Sherwood.

APRIL 14—One must be blessed with a very amiable disposition to get rid of "the blues" this weather long enough to find out what is transpiring even in one's own neighborhood. With so much wind and storm we could think of little else.

The pen fever is raging here as well as elsewhere. A number however have been proof against the contagion thus far. One poor victim plows two miles through the mud every morning with his stereotyped number of letters and postal. We hope the sufferers will keep up good courage for no doubt with better weather there will be a dropping off of the epidemic.

Dr. B. K. Hoxsie has made two flying visits to Sherwood the past week. He reports his father to be in a critical condition still. It is to be hoped that when the steady sunshine comes there will be a change for the better in more than one invalid. We understand that Dr. Hoxsie expects to be in his office here at least twice a week

Mrs. G. F. Armistead and daughter of 2½ Grant Ave., Auburn, were guests at M. Ward's two days last week.

Harris Owen of Cortland visited his mother last week, having come to attend the Baker-Willmore wedding.

Dr. Susan Otis of Auburn spent Saturday and Sunday with her brother, S. G. Otis.

Rossa Lyon is home from Cortland Normal school for a visit.

Mr. Paddock, the founder of the Industrial school in Idaho, was the guest of Emily Howland last Friday.

Mrs. Geo. Slocum of Genoa was calling on friends here yesterday.

Wm. Howland and son returned Wednesday afternoon after an extended tour through the South. They visited the exposition at Charleston, then made a tour of Florida, visiting St. Augustine and other places of interest.

Miss A. G. Flanders returned from Massachusetts and reopened her school last Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Hoxsie and daughter moved from Weedsport the first of the month. They will reside with Dr. Hoxsie.

Benjamin Brewster and wife are occupying their new house.

Mrs. Mary West has gone to Buffalo to make her home with her son.

Chester Allen and daughters attended the recent wedding of Miss Lulu Baker to Will Willmore of Boston. Miss Clara Allen was bridesmaid.

S. G. Otis and daughter, H. C. Hussey and several others from here attended quarterly meeting at Hector last week.

Five Corners.

APRIL 15—Theodore Kratzer has returned home.

D. G. Ellison made a trip to Ithaca today.

Miss Lillian Stephenson has gone to Moravia for the summer.

D. LaBarr spent a few days recenty at Ithaca.

No oats have yet been sowed in this vicinity.

Relic of a Noble Sacrifice.

Hanging in a tree on a farm near Oneida is a scythe said to have been hung there during the war of 1812 by a young patriot, who left his farm work to go to the war. He was killed in battle and the owner of the farm decided to let the scythe hang where he left it. The farm has since changed hands many times, but the scythe has never been disturbed. The place is now owned by Henry Deits.

Sciplo.

APRIL 15—April half gone and no farm work done to speak of. A few plowed in the mud yesterday but the horses went to their knees in mud. Eight years ago we had snow a foot deep and when that went off, for a few days we had nice weather. Then it commenced raining and rained for 21 days. Some corn had been planted but that planted in June turned out to be the best crop. A white frost this morning which is a sign of rain. According to Barker's Almanac we need not expect any good weather this month.

The marriage of Julia Kensella to Will Byrne took place last Wednesday in the church and was well attended. Miss Mamie McGarry was bridesmaid and the brother of the groom best man. Miss Kensella is the only child of Dennis Kensella and has hosts of friends who remembered her very generously with presents, including $100 from her father, $40 from others and a large amount of silver, linen, dishes, chairs, etc. After a short wedding trip they have commenced housekeeping on the farm lately purchased of J. Snyder. They have the best wishes of the community.

The death of Herman Loveland is to be lamented by all who knew him. It is certainly a cause for deep regret that a capable and industrious man, fitted for any position, should ruin his life by the drink habit. How many there are plodding on in the same path, thinking there is no danger and saying, "I don't drink enough to hurt me; I can take a glass or let it alone, just as I please." If you keep on thinking so, my dear friend, you may fill a drunkard's grave, disgrace your family and your children may follow in your footsteps. We would advise all young men to let strong drink alone, and in old age you will thank God you did so.

The Mercantile Agency of New York has an excursion to Charleston exhibition April 21st. Railroad fare for the round trip about $20. This is a cheap rate and a large number should go and get a glimpse of the South. J. Snyder will go if there is any one else in this vicinity to go. There will be excursion rates from all points, $10 to Washington and return and $10 from Washington to Charleston and return.

Messrs. Francis Gallagher and Charles Golden left Monday for Lebanon, Pa., where they will enter a business college.

Mrs. Mary Hudson visited her brother in Varna last week.

The dwelling house and store of Lewis Campbell which are being built at Myers are well under way.

Miss Ellen Gallagher of the Cortland Normal is spending her vacation at her father's, Frank Gallagher, at Myers.

Mrs. W. G. Fish has been a guest at her father's, S. B. Landon, at Brookton.

Tribune and 3 a week World $1 65.

Gortland.

APRIL 14—Thunder Saturday—sign of cold weather, which we really do not need.

Chumpabai, a child-widow of India, was present Friday at the Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church and made some interesting remarks. She is studying at North Chili, N. Y., preparing to do good in her own country.

H. B. Hubbard of Cortland is one of the trustees of St. John's Military school at Manlius which was burned a few days ago. He was in Syracuse Friday to attend a meeting of the trustees.

Burton L. Gallagher has been appointed superintendent of the Cortland Rural cemetery to succeed his grandfather, the late B. B. Morehouse, who had held the position a long time.

The addition to the Gillette Skirt factory building is nearly completed.

Ground has been broken for the new buildings at the Wickwire shops. More hands of course will be needed and business will be lively.

Mr. James Walsh is expected home soon from Chicago where he is attending a medical college. He will again have charge of the Park as he did last summer.

Mrs. Charles S. Mead of Moravia spent Saturday with Mr. Mead's mother, Mrs. D. S. Mead.

State Secretary F. S. Goodman of New York addressed a mass meeting for men Sunday afternoon in the Opera House.

Rev. U. S. Milburn of the Universalist church preached Sunday on the theme "Who is the Happy Man."

The fountain pen "mania" bids fair to be a rival to the Larkin soap "fad."

Representatives of the Salvation Army took part in the Thursday evening prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church.

Cortland people are not enthusiastic over the decision of the alienists in the Truck case. A terrible crime was committed here; no one doubts but Truck committed it; he had a fair trial and was found guilty; the county can do no more, only to pay the enormous bills run up to keep the law from being vindicated.

John M. Hinds who has been spending his Easter vacation here has returned to Amherst college.

C. O. Newton and wife of Homer gave an Easter offering of $3,000 to the Congregational church of that place for an organ in memory of their son.

Lake Ridge.

Several cases of pinkeye about here and the grip also.

John Snyder received a large quantity of maple sugar from Walter Havens at Cincinnatus. He has no trouble in disposing of it.

Mrs. Helen Lobdell is recovering from her paralytic shock which prostrated her a few weeks ago. Mrs. Chloe Lowe of Lansingville is staying with her.

Mrs. Helen Conrad returned to her home from Groton last Saturday to remain during the summer. She spends the winters with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Bowman, at Groton.

Mrs. Eva Gallagher is confined to her bed by a severe illness. Dr. Skinner of Genoa is attending her.

On account of the bad weather last Tuesday evening not many attended the sugar social at the Grange hall.

Death of George Mosher.

The mention in these columns last week of the strange death of George Mosher of Buffalo, seems to have been in error so far as regards his earlier life. The following facts are given by a sister of the deceased:

George Mosher was born in 1834 at Scipioville, N. Y. He was the only son of the late Samuel and Eliza Mosher, for many years residents of Genoa village. He was twice married and is survived by a widow, two daughters, Miss Georgie of Buffalo and Mrs. C. B. Lynch of Schenectady, and by a sister, Mrs. David Marshall of Aurora.

Firemen Figuring.

The Moravia firemen are considering the idea of holding the annual meeting of the Central New York Volunteer Firemen's Association in that village. A three days' meeting is held, the third day being devoted to a grand parade. The convention will bring from five to six thousand people, and occurs in August.

For Agricultural Fairs.

The agricultural societies of Ithaca, Trumansburg, Dryden and Moravia have formed an association to be known as the Central New York Fair Association. Delegates from the four societies met in Ithaca recently to discuss plans for the fall expositions. Two large tents will be purchased and the advertising matter will be issued jointly.

$7.10 to New York and return April 2 via the Lackawanna railroad. Tickets good going on all trains April 2nd and good for return to April 7th inclusive. The Lackawanna is the shortest line to New York. For tickets apply to F. W. Phillips, C. T. A., 213 East State St., Ithaca, N. Y.

News from Auburn.

The Week's Events at the County Seat. Clippings from the Daily Prints. Two Interesting Columns.

AUBURN, April 16—Frederic Cossum has received a beautifully engraved commission as Aid de camp on Department Commander Charles A. Orr's staff.

Miss Alice Searing has returned from Aurora where she has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. S. G. Lyon, for a few days.

County Judge Searing has appointed J. Fitch Walker, of Moravia, a member of Cayuga county's Side Path commission to succeed J. W. Barrus, of Port Byron, whose term of office has expired. The appointment, which was filed in the county clerk's office, is for the full term of five years from January 1 last.

The date of the marriage of Mrs. Carrie B. Hills, of Albany, and George B. Longstreet, of this city, has been announced for April 24.

Truck, the Cortland county murderer, under sentence to be electrocuted, has been declared hopelessly insane and it is expected Governor Odell will commute his sentence to life imprisonment. Truck is getting off easy for a most brutal crime. We should think he would much rather be dead than insane.

When James Churchill enters Auburn prison he will be the fourth murderer from Tompkins County with a life sentence to serve. The other three have been in prison for some time. The first of these is J. C. Cortright who murdered Joel Evans, a butcher of Speedsville. He has served 20 years of his term. Richard Barber, who killed the aged Mr. and Mrs. Mason, near Trumansburg, is the second and John Corbin of Ithaca who killed his wife is the third. James Churchill is the fourth.

Retail prices of anthracite coal were dropped Friday thirty-five cents on the ton, and will continue at these figures, at least during the month of April. Local dealers met this morning and determined on the move, the wholesale prices having been cut forty cents on a ton with the beginning of the month. Egg, stove and nut were reduced from $5.75 to $5.40 and grate from $5.50 to $5.15. It was decided to make these prices only for the month of April as the conditions existing between the miners and operators are not favorable. A strike which was put off to the first of May, may be declared at the close of the present month and if this happens, of course there will be an increase over the present prices.

The body of Stephen M. Cook, jr., a middle aged man of Waterloo, was found in the Rumsey race here Sunday evening. It is believed he was drowned accidentally.

F. E. Hughitt has been named referee to determine the amount due Charles B. Nichols who seeks to recover surplus money in the case of Richard Murphy against Mary L. Thomas et al.

James J. Power, for many years the dispenser of beverages in "The Little Gold Dollar," and Fred Leader, for some time in the employ of W. J. White, have formed a partnership and purchased the saloon of John D. Cahill at No. 11 State street. They will take possession May 1.

Gallagher is out of jail. His bail bond is signed by Dunfee and Matty of Syracuse and the order from Justice Rich was served on Sheriff Colton at noon Tuesday by Attorney Aiken and soon after Gallagher left the jail where he has been confined since July 30th. He visited White's place, the scene of the tragedy, and called on other friends about town. He appeared to be in good health and spirits.

The inquest held by Coroner Smith Saturday afternoon to determine the cause of the death of Hinman Loveland, of Fleming, who was found Saturday noon lying dead in a room in the Peacock House resulted in a finding that Loveland had taken his own life by means of chloroform. A glass containing about equal parts of water and chloroform was found in the room and some of the poison was discovered in the dead man's stomach. The deceased was 65 years of age and is survived by a wife and four children, Herbert N., living in Auburn; Alfred E., living at New Rochelle; Mrs. Ellen L. Gould, living at Newark, and Floyd H., who is at home. The members of the family are at a loss to account for the strange act of the father, there not being any trouble of any kind which would lead to the taking of his life. The funeral services were held Monday afternoon. Rev. O. M. Hilton, pastor of the First Universalist church, officiated. Burial was in Fort Hill.

For Stomach Troubles.

"I have taken a great many different medicines for stomach trouble and constipation," says Mrs. S. Geiger of Dunkerton, Ia., "but never had as good results from any as from Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets." For sale by J. S. Banker.

Auburn to Ithaca.

The board of directors of the Auburn & Ithaca Electric Railway company, which has a scheme for the construction of an electric railway between Auburn and Ithaca, taking in several of the intervening towns, held two meetings at the Osborne House, Auburn, on Monday, talked the scheme over thoroughly, laid future plans and selected officers as follows: President, I. P. Hazard, Aurora; vice president, Dexter Wheeler, Poplar Ridge; secretary, Sherman Collins, Ithaca; treasurer, E. B. Mosher, Aurora; executive committee, Sherman Collins, I. P. Hazard and Dexter Wheeler.

It was decided to commence the work of surveying for the proposed route immediately. The company will be incorporated and the certificate of incorporation will be filed in the county clerk's office in a few days.

When you lack energy, do not relish your food, feel dull and stupid, after eating, all you need is a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will make you feel like a new man and give you an appetite like a bear. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Death of Dr. Talmage.

The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the noted Presbyterian divine, died at 9 o'clock Saturday night at his residence in Washington. The patient gradually grew weaker until life passed away, so quietly that even the members of the family, all of whom were watching at the bedside, hardly knew that all was over. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the brain.

At Dr. Talmage's bedside, beside his wife, were these members of his family: The Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage, Chicago; Mrs. Warren G. Smith, Brooklyn; Mrs. Daniel Mangam, Brooklyn; Mrs. Allen Donnan, Richmond; Mrs. Clarence Wyckoff and Miss Talmage, Washington.

Narrow Escape from Fire.

The Baptist parsonage at Moravia had a narrow escape from fire last Wednesday morning. An overheated stovepipe passing through a chamber well filled with wearing apparel set fire to the garments and the blaze had gained considerable headway when discovered. An alarm was sounded but neighbors had quenched the flames before the firemen arrived. The loss to the building and to Rev. C. G. Langford is about $200, covered by insurance. Miss Mary Sandwick also lost a quantity of wearing apparel.

For Cash.

Bird-Shot For Tiger.

No use to hunt tigers with bird-shot. It doesn't hurt the tiger any and it's awfully risky for you.

Consumption is a tiger among diseases. It is stealthy—but once started it rapidly eats up the flesh and destroys the life. No use to go hunting it with ordinary food and medicine. That's only bird-shot. It still advances. Good heavy charges of Scott's Emulsion will stop the advance. The disease feels that.

Scott's Emulsion makes the body strong to resist. It soothes and toughens the lungs and sustains the strength until the disease wears itself out.

TOO SUPERIOR.

There is a girl who lives near by;
A wondrous cultured lass.
In every art she loves to try
Her neighbors to surpass.
On the piano morn and night
She plays selections quaint,
And I am told 'tis her delight
To broider and to paint.

Her name is often seen upon
Some literary page;
And she can tell of what was done
Back in a classic age.
Such admiration does she claim
It makes her sisters wroth,
And yet about this wondrous flame
There lingers ne'er a moth.

For young men are a timid sort,
And fear that they by chance
If they should go to pay their court
Would show their ignorance
And set those lovely lips a-curl
And plunge them deep in woe;
So, 'tis the plain old-fashioned girl
That mostly gets a beau.

HILDEGARDE'S ESCORT.

By Mary S. Daniels.

THREE letters at once. Such a thing had never happened to Hildegarde before, and she blushed and dimpled with pleased surprise as she surveyed the row of envelopes, debating which to open first.

All three bore the Seaforth postmark. That was almost a matter of course, for neither Hildegarde nor any of her friends had ever been very far from the little town in which she had been born. Even a single letter was not a frequent experience. And here were three!

The little cream-tinted one was from Aunt Bee, of course. And this oblong one, with the sprawling address, was from Archie Bale. Archie was her classmate in the high school, the biggest and the nicest boy she knew. She had received more than one missive, exactly like this in appearance, from him during the last two years, all of them invitations to some school entertainment or young folks' party. Perhaps this was—Hildegarde drew a quick breath at the thought—an invitation to the Ap-Morgan concert on Friday night. She did so want to go to that concert.

But, here was this large, square envelope, with the dashing address decorated with innumerable flourishes. Hildegarde had never seen the handwriting before, but the color in her cheeks deepened as she regarded it closely. What if it should be—could it be—from Mr. Howard Overton? Suppose he should invite her to the concert.

Howard Overton was almost a stranger in Seaforth, a clerk in the new bank. Hildegarde had met him several times, and had been a little flattered by his undisguised admiration and somewhat elaborate politeness. All the girls were enthusiastic about Mr. Overton's good looks and polished manners. It would be quite a distinction to receive an invitation from him. If this should be one, and if she opened it first, instead of Archie's.

But there was Aunt Bee's note. Deferring the momentous decision, Hildegarde tore open the little envelope. Two bits of buff pasteboard fluttered into her lap as she read:

Dear Hildegarde: I had meant to ask you to attend the Ap-Morgan Concert with Ned and me, but my sister Gertrude is very ill and I must go to her at once. Ned would have taken you just the same, but he too is called out of town by unexpected business, and so I send you the tickets. You will easily find some one to go with you, and I hope you will enjoy the concert. Your loving aunt,

Beatrice Hunt.

Hildegarde laughed softly as she opened the other notes, both, as she surmised, invitations to the concert. What an embarrassment of riches.

The Ap-Morgan concert was a great event in Seaforth. Not many celebrities like the famous harpist visited the town, which was bristling with placards and posters announcing the concert. All the music-lovers were full of anticipation of the coming treat, and when Hildegarde stopped at the little stationery shop on her way home from school for some composition paper yesterday, she had found old Mr. Barlow himself studying the big card in his shop window as if even he found it a matter of interest and importance.

"Are you going to the concert?" he asked, as he tied up Hildegarde's parcel.

Hildegarde looked up in surprise. It was the first time she had ever heard Mr. Barlow say a word more than was necessary in the strict way of business. The school girls called him "the crabbedy man," because of his taciturnity and forbidding ways.

"I don't know; I'm afraid not. I should like to very much, but——"

That ready color came into her cheeks. Money was very scarce in the little household, consisting only of the invalid mother, herself and the maid whose services were indispensable in keeping them comfortable. Hildegarde had sometimes to deny herself coveted indulgences.

Happily most of the good times that came that way were inexpensive ones, and Hildegarde, being winsome and companionable, missed few of them. No girl in Seaforth was more in demand or had more pleasures. But the Ap-Morgan concert was different from everything else. The tickets were high-priced, and she did not feel free to spend so much money on a single evening's pleasure, passionately as she loved music.

"You'd better go," the old man in the shop went on. "I heard Ap-Morgan once, years ago, when he was a very young man, and I'll never forget it. You may never have such another opportunity."

"Indeed, I should love to go," said Hildegarde earnestly. "Are you going?"

It was a mere instinct of courtesy that prompted the last words. She was amazed at the result.

"No!" replied the man curtly. All the friendliness was gone from his tone and manner, and the girl felt repulsed. Only there was a look in his eyes that made her wonder vaguely if it were possible that he too coveted this treat and had to renounce it because he could not afford it. She was conscious of a kind of fellow-feeling for the crabbedy man.

That was yesterday, and this morning here were two invitations, her first real-grown-up invitations, to the concert, besides Aunt Bee's tickets. No wonder Hildegarde beamed with pleasure. She was to hear Ap-Morgan after all.

Then came, naturally enough, the thought of old Mr. Barlow, and she beamed still more. Why should she not give him one of Aunt Bee's tickets, since she could not use them if she accepted——

But something brought a thoughtful look into her eyes. The crabbedy man would not accept the tickets. She knew it by intuition. There had been a kind of stern pride in that look of his yesterday. She pondered a few moments, with puckers in her forehead. Then she caught her breath hard.

"I'll do it!" she said to herself. "I don't want to—much—but I'll do it. I will."

Putting away her letters quickly and gathering up her school books she left the house, stopping only for the good-by kiss to the dear invalid in the sitting room.

She had plenty of time to stop at the little stationer's shop on her way to school. The old man was dusting his counter. He looked, if anything, a trifle more forbidding than unual, but Hildegarde plucked up her courage.

"Mr. Barlow," she began in her most winning way, "I have come to—to ask a favor of you."

A favor of the crabbedy man! It was not easy and she found nothing to reassure her in his cold regard. But she went on:

"My aunt, Mrs. Hunt, has sent me two tickets to the Ap-Morgan concert. She is going away and cannot use them herself, and she wants me to go and enjoy the concert, if I can get any one to take me. I could not have afforded to buy the ticket for myself, but now I can go, if—if I can get some one to go with me. My mother is an invalid, you know, and does not go out, and I thought you might—that maybe you wouldn't mind—I mean that perhaps you would be kind enough to be my escort. You said you liked Ap-Morgan, and—and I don't know of any one else who would really enjoy it and hasn't already arranged to go. It would be a great favor, a very great favor indeed, if——"

Hildegarde was out of breath, but she saw that she had gained her end, and the dimples came out to punctuate her uncompleted sentence.

Little notes to Mr. Overton and Archie Bale explained that she could not accept their invitations, as she was engaged to attend the concert with a very old friend. The "regrets" were genuine, and yet the sacrifice of her girlish inclination was not so hard, after all, as she expected. The old man's stately acceptance of her invitation had somehow touched and pleased her.

There were a good many wondering looks as Hildegarde and her escort entered the concert room on Friday night. Hildegarde, more bewitching than ever, Archie Bale thought, in her dainty white ruffles and ribbons, disposed by her own clever fingers, and with her most distracting dimples, held her head high, with a proud little smile on her lips. She was not ashamed of her escort. There was a dignity and grace in his bearings, notwithstanding his old-fashioned dress, a gentle courtliness and deference of manner to the pretty girl at his side that would not have done discredit to any young gentleman present. Mr. Howard Overton suddenly seemed flashy and tawdry in comparison. No, indeed, she was not ashamed of the crabbedy man.

Mr. Barlow had presented himself at Hildegarde's home early and she had taken him into the cozy sitting room, where her mother chatted with him in her gentle, friendly way, while the girl put the finishing touches to her simple toilet. He had brought with him a cluster of pale roses from the little back garden that no one ever saw but the occupants of the house. These he offered to Hildegarde with the same old-fashioned courtesy with which he afterward took care of her light wrap, handed her her fan, and folded her programme. Its very quaintness was delicately flattering.

And in the intervals of the music they talked. Somehow Hildegarde found herself telling the crabbedy man all about her ambitions and aspirations, the girlish longings that could not be realized because of the want of means to bring them to pass. She told him how she used to dream of some day playing the harp herself and perhaps becoming a great musician like Ap-Morgan. But harps were so awfully expensive, and she might well be content with the old piano which Aunt Bee had given her when she bought her new grand. She could laugh frankly at the old dream now, but a tenderness in her voice and her eyes revealed how much it had been to her. And the crabbedy man listened to it all with the most friendly and sympathetic interest.

It seemed like a quaint, pleasant dream when it was all over, the beautiful music, the walk home, the stately adieus of her courtly old escort. She had enjoyed it, and so, she felt sure, had Mr. Barlow, and now it would be stored away as a pleasant memory. Her friends laughingly questioned her about it the next day, but Hildegarde did not care to talk much about it. After all, what was there to say?

It was several days before Hildegarde went into the little shop again. She half dreaded a return of the old, taciturn, unfriendly manner. But no, there was the greeting of real friendliness in the old man's smile.

"Can you step here a moment, Miss Hildegarde?" he asked, when he had tied up her small purchase of pens.

Hildegarde followed him, wondering. The next moment, standing in the doorway of the adjoining back room, she gave a low exclamation. In the farthest corner, tarnished, dusty, and silent, stood a harp, its strings faintly gleaming in the afternoon sunlight.

"It belonged to my little girl," said Mr. Barlow. "I could never bring myself to part with it, poor as I have become, but I will lend it to you, if you will accept the loan. Then you can take lessons and perhaps become the great musician, after all." His eyes twinkled kindly, though there was a curious faltering in his voice, as if the words cost him something.

"Oh!" exclaimed Hildegarde breathlessly. "O, Mr. Barlow!" Then the tears came into her eyes, and she could not say any more at all.

"There, there!" said the old man quite cheerfully. "I am glad to let you have it, and I will take it around to-night after I close the shop."

I need not tell how Hildegarde tried to tell her thanks, nor of the talk she had with her mother when she reached home that wonderful afternoon, nor what they all said to one another in the cozy sitting room when Mr. Barlow came around in the twilight. But if Hildegarde thinks she has more to be thankful for than any one else in the world, there is one person at least who will never agree with her, and that is the crabbedy man. For is there not always a corner for him in that pleasant sitting room, with the easiest of easy chairs, where Hildegarde brings him tea that she has made herself, and then plays for him in the long evenings, just as the little maid, dead so long, used to do?

I do not know if Hildegarde still dreams of being a great musician, but she is working hard, and Ap-Morgan himself can give no greater pleasure to his crowded audiences than she gives day after day to those who love her, the pale mother, the dear old crabbedy man, and the young people who make up her circle of friends, of whom Archie Bale is still chief. And what is music for if not for this?—Young People.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. Steady the Eyes.

The degree of light thrown upon what you are reading or doing, is of considerable importance; but much more so is the steadiness of what light you have. A flickering flame, however much there may be of it, is always injurious, and you can feel the result even the next day after using it. Reading upon the cars is perfectly possible and harmless, if you take good care to hold the reading-matter firmly, so that it will vibrate or otherwise move with the body. In this way, the relative positions of eyes and paper or book, are not changed. Keep especially careful, wherever you may be, to avoid flickering candles or gas-jets. They often lay the foundation for a settled case of eye-weakness.

THE VILLAGE NOTES

NEWS PICKED UP BY THE TRIBUNE REPORTERS.

What Has Happened in Genoa During the Past Seven Days—An Interesting Page.

This is the season of the year
When single men delight to jeer
At those who have a home and spouse
And soon will have to help clean house.

—Local news on page 6.

—The roads have dried out wonderfully the past week.

—D. W. Smith visited the city on business Monday.

—F. Sullivan made a business trip to Auburn Tuesday.

—J. J. Peacock of Locke was in Genoa on business Tuesday.

—We understand there will be a hop at the rink Saturday evening.

—Miss Edith Myers has returned from a visit with friends at Auburn.

—Charles Carson and D. C. Hunter were at Moravia on business Saturday.

—L. V. Smith of Cortland has been the guest of friends at Genoa and Moravia this week.

—E. C. Starner of Weedsport was looking after his cigar trade in this section this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Welty and little son of Auburn made a short visit with relatives here this week.

—Arthur, Baker the popular manager of the creamery, spent Sunday at his home at West Dryden.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hagin and son spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Hagin's sister, Mrs. Frank Townley, in Lansing.

—E. S. Preston, representing the Five Counties Fire Insurance Company, of Ithaca, was in town a day or two this week.

—Leon Davis is doing the team work for Sullivan & Mulvaney. Their new team and delivery wagon prove to fill the bill exactly.

—Dwight Kellogg of Seneca Falls and Mr. Jennings of Moravia, well known horsemen, were in town Tuesday looking at some of the fancy equines owned here.

—Landlord Carson is making some needed repairs to the interior of the hotel kitchen and pantry. He will also look after the holes in the sidewalk near the bridge soon. The guests at the hotel have taken their meals at the adjoining residence while the new ceiling was being placed in the kitchen.

When the geese begin to nest,
When the hens all do their best,
When the schoolboy sheds his vest,
And the housewives never rest,
Then it's spring.

—Ralph H. Ames of Cortland was in town on business Wednesday.

—Wm. Wilcox of Ithaca was in town Tuesday. He still feels slight effects from the operation for appendicitis.

—Mrs. L. M. Tupper and son George of Cortland are the guests of relatives and friends in this vicinity for a few days.

—Frank J. Smith who has had a long hard siege of confinement, feels quite improved with the coming of bright warm days. His friends all hope to see him about again soon.

New bicycles and bicycle sundries at E. B. Beebee's.

—The Montague auction was well attended and the property sold at fair prices. Henry Hand purchased the cow and E. H. Perkins secured the horse. Mr. Montague was a thorough farmer and all the tools,etc., were in first class condition.

—Robert Mastin visited Fred Conger at Owego Sunday. Mr. Conger is recovering nicely and withstood the shock of the accident and amputation remarkably well. The arm was amputated below the elbow which is much better for him than the first report indicated. He will come home until the injury is healed and then return to Owego to work.

Cookhasthebestsand.

The Tile Business.

The Genoa Brick and Tile Mfg. Co. have made remarkable progress during the past week and the business begins to assume most satisfactory proportions. Two acres of excellent clay land were purchased of David Kinney. Chas. J. Foster, who is the superintendent of the Genoa business, or at least will be as soon as the works are in running order, says that no better clay for the purpose can be found, and his years of experience have given him opportunity to thoroughly study the nature of working clay; in fact he is well known as an expert at the business. Mr. Peacock, who formerly conducted the Venice tile works, was in town Tuesday and delivered to the Genoa company the machines and other articles owned by him at the Venice yard. A large part of the lumber required for the buildings, etc., has been purchased, and carpenters will soon be at work. Mr. Foster began Thursday to grade the ground and make ready for the erection of the kiln and buildings. The work will be finished as soon as possible and the secretary of the company is even now booking orders for the tile. A limited quantity of building brick will also be manufactured and held for sale.

Spring Clothing.

Come and look over my stock of clothing in Men's, Boys' and Children's suits, all wool suits, cut in latest style, and reliable, no shoddy, and at prices to suit everybody. Big line of Pants, Shirts, Working Clothing. If you are thinking of having a suit made to order, then I can show you a fine line of samples.

Society Notes.

The Five Corners and West Genoa W. C. T. U. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary Mann, Friday, April 25, at 2 p. m.

The Baptist Bible school decided last Sunday to hold their Children's day exercises on June 8th. The superintendent also appointed the committees to drill the children and the decoration committee. They have chosen a very appropriate program for the occasion, and any one who attends the services will be both entertained and instructed. Every one welcome.

W. C. T. U. Column.

A wonderful morning is breaking
The shadows are fleeing in fear,
The echoes of drums in the valleys
Far up in the mountain we hear.
An army is marching to conquest
With banners emblazoned in white
"For God and our homes and our country
For soberness, virtue and right."

To right and to left are the women
In faithful defense of the cause,
They bear but a badge of white ribbon
Their seal for republican laws.
All night with a martyr's devotion
All day in the comfort of prayer,
The army sweeps on through the nation
To save it from wreck and despair.
Join hands with the temperance heroes
Who break down the strongholds of rum
And shoot through the cities and hamlets
"Hurrah! Prohibition has come."

Friends of our Christian Sabbath will rejoice to hear that the efforts of liquor dealers and their friends to secure the enactment of laws for Sunday opening of saloons have not been successful. The storm of protest from Christian and temperance organizations raised a public sentiment that has overthrown their efforts and our Sabbath will not be profaned in this manner. An exchange says: As the outcome of the tremendous efforts put forth by some clerical advocates of the saloon and the "reform (?) administration" of New York to authorize open saloons on Sunday, two bills were introduced in the legislature, one by Mr. Jerome, the district attorney, and called the Jerome bill; the other prepared by a self-constituted committee of fifteen, with the support of Bishop Potter, Lyman Abbott and Dr. Rainsford. That bill tended to the same object and is called the Newcomb bill, because it was introduced by a member of the assembly of that name. Both bills were referred to the committee on excise, owing to the importance of the question involved and the hot discussion of it in the press. The excise committee appointed a hearing on them for March 11, and a large delegation representing all the religious and temperance organizations of New York went up to oppose the bills. As the city papers had stated that a number of liquor dealers and their friends would be present, the chairman arranged to have the hearing in the Assembly chamber. There was a large attendance. The chairman said he would hear the opposition first. Rev. Dr. Dunn, chairman of the delegation, stated that they had come to oppose the Jerome and Newcomb bills. The chairman then said that the Newcomb bill had been withdrawn as none of its promoters cared to come up and support it. Dr. Dann then asked, "What of the Jerome bill?" The reply was that too is out for the same reason. What a backdown for Bishop Potter, Dr. Rainsford, Lyman Abbott and others. With all their clamor for the Sunday saloon, they could not come forward to defend it. There being no bills to oppose, Dr. Dann said that with the permission of the chairman the delegation would withdraw. After remarks by different members, the chairman said they could retire, and rest assured that no bill legalizing the opening of saloons on Sunday would be passed by the legislature, and they might make that statement to the organizations which they represented. Mr. Hugh Dolan, president of the state liquor dealers' association and a large number of liquor dealers were present and greatly disappointed and disgusted at being deserted by their preacher friends.

DIED.

King—In the town of Venice, N. Y., Tuesday, April 15, 1902, Edward Payson King, aged 54 years.

Funeral services at his late home, Friday, April 18th, at 2 p. m. Burial at King Ferry.

I will pay the following prices, subject to market change, for hides delivered at my residence or to me on the road: Sheep and lamb pelts, 40 to 85 cents; cow and steer hides, 6c.; bull hides, 6c.; whole horse hides with head and tail on, $3.50 to $3.75.
W. S. Eaton, Genoa.

And Still They Come.

From Union Springs, Port Byron, Seneca Falls, Weedsport, Skaneateles and other vicinity towns, all have heard and are in need of some of those famous, family Hamilton medicines. Never was there such a stampade for a line of medicines as is now in progress for Chemist Hamilton's.

His Autumn Flower, the great female tonic, that restores to health, strength and vigor women who have become diccouraged, is in hourly demand.

Hamilton's Cream Hair Balsmen, that is unlike all other hair preparations, for it eradicates diseases from the scalp, destroys all microbes and mites that infect the roots of the hair; it restores orignial color, prevents dandruff, stops itching of the scalp, makes hair grow, keeps it soft, glossy and beautiful.

In every instance where the Hamilton medicines fail to give satisfaction to the customer he promptly refunds the money paid upon the return of the empty package. There is no excuse for women to suffer longer from the ailments peculiar to them, for no medicine has ever given such permanent and complete cures and caused so many spasmodic and heartfelt expressions of gratitude as his Autumn Flower, his Sarsaparilla Compound, a spring medicine, his Kidney Cure and his Rheumatic Remedy.

People who keep these medicines in the house rarely have sickness.

THE VILLAGE NOTES

—Early peas are being sown. Time to shut up your hens.

—Mrs. Frank W. Ames of Almond, N. Y., spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cook of this village.—Chenango Forks Herald.

—W. C. Davis, of Waterloo, has perfected a gasolene engine to propel a common row-boat. It develops one horse power, and weighs, complete, less than 50 pounds.

—An exchange gives as the reason why some people never get along any better "because they sit down and dream about automobiles when they ought to be pushing wheelbarrows."

—Get in a habit of studying our birds and learn to recognize them by sight and by their songs. What bird besides the Phoebe bird sings "Phoebe" before the Phoebe comes?

—Mrs. Oscar Cornwell of Scipioville and her daughter, Lena, were guests of Mrs. Oscar J. Spencer last week. Miss Cornwell returned Saturday to her duties at Stockport, where she is teaching.—Union Springs Advertiser.

—The services of painters and paperhangers are just now in very active demand. It is a good time of the year to improve the appearance of dwellings by a suitable coat of paint. The lawns and yards should receive careful attention.

—Assemblyman Moran's bill for the placing of town tickets on the general ticket and doing away with a separate ballot in the county, has been signed by the governor. This knocks the country printer out of a paying job each election.

—The Country Gentleman of April 3, contains an excellent likeness of Mrs. W. H. Bulkley of West Groton, recently elected Pomona of the New York State Grange. Mrs. Bulkley is also lecturer of the West Groton Grange, and vice president of the Groton Political Equality Club.

—During the rush at Rothschild Bros.' store last evening several women fainted and had to be carried out. One of the unfortunate women was Mrs. Heizer of Titus avenue. She was carried to Dr. Meany's office and did not recover consciousness for nearly half an hour.—Ithaca News. There is no longer any doubt that Rothschilds' is a metropolitan store.

—Pick up the papers on the streets. Let us all have a lively interest in village improvement. Clean the crosswalks occasionally; repair the broken sidewalk, and throw some coal ashes or cinders over the cobble stones which stick up through the mud on the busiest piece of walk in the village. Why in the world don't the business men's association get together and turn the small balance in the treasury to good account? Do it now.

—The V. S. Sale Co., of New Concord, Ohio, have been denied the mails. This concern which recently exploited "Red Albumen," as a hen food, and were the originators of black pepsin, per algretta, hypersamphire and other fakes, has been placed upon the black list, and is no longer permitted the use of the mails. It appears that "red albumen" contained not even a small per cent of stimulant being nothing more or less than oxide of iron.

—On Monday of last week Abram Nostrand of Moravia was brought before Justice Curtis of that town to show cause why his son Harry, fifteen years of age, should not attend school regularly. The defendant tried to establish the fact that the boy was not physically able to attend school, but as this evidence was not substantiated by a doctor's certificate the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The Board of Education at Moravia are determined that the provisions of compulsory education law shall be fully enforced and all parents who in any way encourage their children to stay away from school without a valid excuse will be prosecuted at once.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE
For Coughs and Colds in Children.

"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, Esq., a well-known watchmaker of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the City Dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quickly of all chest colds It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the results." For sale by J. S. Banker.

DUTIES AND TRIALS

Sermon of Dr Talmage for Persons of All Ages.

Wholesome Advice to Those in the Twenties as Well as Those Who Have Reached the Alloted Three Score and Ten.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Washington, Jan. 26.

From an unusual standpoint Dr. Talmage in this discourse looks at the duties and trials which belong to the different decades of human life; text, Psalms 90:10: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten."

The seventieth milestone of life is here planted as at the end of the journey. A few go beyond it. Multitudes never reach it. The oldest person of modern times expired at 169 years. A Greek of the name of Stravaride lived to 132 years. An Englishman of the name of Thomas Parr lived 152 years. Before the time of Moses people lived 150 years, and if you go far enough back they lived 900 years. Well, that was necessary, because the story of the world must come down by tradition, and it needed long life safely to transmit the news of the past. If the generations had been short lived, the story would so often have changed lips that it might have got all astray. But after Moses began to write it down and parchment told it from century to century it was not necessary that people live so long in order to authenticate the events of the past. If in our time people lived only 25 years, that would not affect history, since it is put in print and is no longer dependent on tradition. Whatever your age. I will to-day directly address you, and I shall speak to those who are in the twenties, the thirties, the forties, the fifties, the sixties, and to those who are in the seventies and beyond.

First, then, I accost those of you who are in the twenties. You are full of expectation. You are ambitious—that is, if you amount to anything—for some kind of success, commercial or mechanical or professional or literary or agricultural or social or moral. If I find someone in the twenties without any sort of ambition, I feel like saying: "My friend, you have got on the wrong planet. This is not the world for you. You are going to be in the way. Have you made your choice of poorhouses? You will never be able to pay for your cradle. Who is going to settle for your board? There is a mistake about the fact that you were born at all."

But, supposing you have ambition, let me say to all the twenties, expect everything through divine manipulation, and then you will get all you want and something better. Are you looking for wealth? Well, remember that God controls the money markets, the harvests, the droughts, the caterpillars, the locusts, the sunshine, the storm, the land, the sea, and you will get wealth. Perhaps not that which is stored up in the banks, in safe deposits, in United States securities, in houses and lands, but your clothing and board and shelter, and that is about all you can appropriate anyhow. You cost the Lord a great deal. To feed and clothe and shelter you for a lifetime requires a big sum of money, and if you get nothing more than the absolute necessities you get an enormous amount of supply. Expect as much as you will of any kind of success, if you expect it from the Lord you are safe. Depend on any other resource, and you may be badly chagrined, but depend on God and all will be well. It is a good thing in the crisis of life to have a man of large means back you up. It is a great thing to have a moneyed institution stand behind you in your undertaking. But it is a mightier thing to have the God of heaven and earth your coadjutor, and you may have Him. I am so glad that I met you while you are in the twenties. You are laying out your plans, and all your life in this world and the next for five hundred million years of your existence will be affected by those plans. It is about eight o'clock in the morning of your life, and you are just starting out. Which way are you going to start? Oh, the twenties!

"Twenty" is a great word in the Bible. Joseph was sold for 20 pieces of silver; Samson judged Israel 20 years; Solomon gave Hiram 20 cities; the flying roll that Zechariah saw was 20 cubits; when the sailors of the ship on which Paul sailed sounded the Mediterranean sea, it was 20 fathoms. What mighty things have been done in the twenties! Romulus founded Rome when he was 20; Keats finished life at 25; Lafayette was a world-renowned soldier at 23; Oberlin accomplished his chief work at 27; Bonaparte was victor over Italy at 26; Pitt was prime minister of England at 22; Calvin had completed his immortal "Institutes" by the time he was 26; Grotius was attorney general at 24. Some of the mightiest things for God and eternity have been done in the twenties. As long as you can put the figure 2 before the other figure that helps describe your age I have high hopes about you. Look out for that figure 2. Watch its continuance with as much earnestness as you ever watched anything that promised you salvation or threatened you demolition. What a critical time—the twenties! While they continue you decide your occupation and the principles by which you will be guided; you make your most abiding friendships; you arrange your home life; you fix your habits. Lord God Almighty, for Jesus Christ's sake, have mercy on all the men and women in the twenties!

Next I accost those in the thirties. You are at an age when you find what a tough thing it is to get recognized and established in your occupation or profession. Ten years ago you thought all that was necessary for success was to put on your shutter the sign of physician or dentist or attorney or broker or agent and you would have plenty of business. How many hours you sat and waited for business, and waited in vain, three persons only know—God, your wife and yourself. In commercial life you have not had the promotion and the increase in salary you anticipated, or the place you expected to occupy in the firm has not been vacated. The produce of the farm with which you expected to support yourself and those depending on you and to pay the interest on the mortgage has been far less than you anticipated, or the prices were down, or special expenses for sickness made drafts on your resources that you could not have expected. In some respects the hardest decade of life is the thirties, because the results are generally so far behind the anticipations. It is very rare indeed that a young man does as did the young man one Sunday night when he came to me and said: "I have been so marvelously prospered since I came to this country that I feel as a matter of gratitude that I ought to dedicate myself to God." Nine-tenths of the poetry of life has been knocked out of you since you came into the thirties. Men in the different professions and occupations saw that you were rising, and they must put an estoppel on you or you might somehow stand in the way. They think you must be suppressed. From 30 to 40 is an especially hard time for young doctors, young lawyers, young merchants, young farmers, young mechanics, young ministers. The struggle of the thirties is for honest and helpful and remunerative recognition. But few old people know how to treat young people without patronizing them on the one hand or snubbing them on the other. Oh, the thirties! Joseph stood before Pharaoh at 30; David was 30 years old when he began to reign; the height of Solomon's temple was 30 cubits; Christ entered upon his active ministry at 30 years of age; Judas sold him for 30 pieces of silver. Oh, the thirties! What a word suggestive of triumph or disaster!

Your decade is the one that will probably afford the greatest opportunity for victory, because there is the greatest necessity for struggle. Read the world's history and know what are the thirties for good or bad. Alexander the Great closed his career at 32; Frederick the Great made Europe tremble with his armies at 35; Cortes conquered Mexico at 30; Grant fought Shiloh and Donelson when 38; Raphael died at 37; Luther was the hero of the reformation at 35; Sir Philip Sidney got through by 32. The greatest deeds for God and against Him were done within the thirties, and your greatest battles are now and between the time when you cease expressing your age by putting first a figure 2 and the time when you will cease expressing it by putting first a figure 3. As it is the greatest time of the struggle, I adjure you, in God's name and by God's grace, make it the greatest achievement. My prayer is for all those in the tremendous crisis of the thirties. The fact is that by the way you decide the present decade of your history you decide all the following decades.

Next I accost the forties. Yours is the decade of discovery. I do not mean the discovery of the outside, but the discovery of yourself. No man knows himself until he is 40. He overestimates or underestimates himself. By that time he has learned what he can do or what he cannot do. He thought he had commercial genius enough to become a millionaire, but he is satisfied to make a comfortable living. He thought he had rhetorical power that would bring him into the United States senate; now he is content if he can successfully argue a common case before a petit jury. He thought he had medical skill that would make him a Mott or a Grosse or a Willard Parker or a Sims; now he finds his sphere is that of a family physician, prescribing for the ordinary ailments that afflict our race. He was sailing on in a fog and could not take a reckoning, but now it clears up enough to allow him to find out his real latitude and longitude. He has been climbing, but now he has got to the top of the hill, and he takes a long breath. He is half way through the journey at least, and he is in a position to look backward or forward. He has more good sense than he ever had. He knows human nature, for he has been cheated often enough to see the bad side of it, and he has met so many gracious and kindly and splendid souls he also knows the good side of it. Now, calm yourself. Thank God for the past and deliberately set your compass for another voyage. You have chased enough thistledown; you have blown enough soap bubbles; you have seen the unsatisfying nature of all earthly things. Open a new chapter with God and the world. This decade of the forties ought to eclipse all its predecessors in worship, in usefulness and in happiness.

My sermon next accosts the fifties. How queer it looks when in writing your age you make the first of the two figures a 5. This is the decade which shows what the other decades have been. If a young man has sown wild oats and he has lived to this time, he reaps the harvest of it in the fifties, or if by necessity he was compelled to overtoil in honest directions he is called to settle up with exacting nature some time during the fifties. Many have it so hard in early life that they are octogenarians at 50. Sciaticas and rheumatisms and neuralgias and vertigoes and insomnias have their playground in the fifties. A man's hair begins to whiten, and, although he may have worn spectacles before, now he asks the optician for No. 14 or No. 12 or No. 10. When he gets a cough and is almost cured he hacks and clears his throat a good while afterward. O ye who are in the fifties, think of it! A half century of blessing to be thankful for and a half century subtracted from an existence which, in the most marked cases of longevity, hardly ever reaches a whole century. By this time you ought to be eminent for piety. You have been in so many battles you ought to be a brave soldier. You have made so many voyages you ought to be a good sailor. So long protected and blessed, you ought to have a soul full of doxology. In Bible times in Canaan every 50 years was by God's command a year of jubilee. The people did not work that year. If property had by misfortune gone out of one's possession, on the fiftieth year it came back to him. If he had fooled it away, it was returned without a farthing to pay. If a man had been enslaved, he was in that year emancipated. A trumpet was sounded loud and clear and long, and it was the trumpet of jubilee. They shook hands, they laughed, they congratulated. What a time it was, that fiftieth year! And if under the old dispensation it was such a glad time, under our new and more glorious dispensation let all who have come to the fifties hear the trumpet of jubilee that I now blow. That was the allusion made by Mr. Toplady, the great hymnologist, when he wrote:

"Blow ye the trumpet, blow
The gladly solemn sound;
Let all the nations know,
To earth's remotest bound,
The year of jubilee is come;
Return, ye ransomed sinners, home.

"Ye who have sold for naught
Your heritage above
Shall have it back unbought,
The gift of Jesus' love.
The year of jubilee has come;
Return, ye ransomed sinners, home."

My sermon next accosts the sixties. The beginning of that decade is more startling than any other. In his chronological journey the man rides rather smoothly over the figures 2 and 3 and 4 and 5, but the figure 6 gives him a big jolt. He says: "It cannot be that I am 60. Let me examine the old family record. I guess they made a mistake. They got my name down wrong in the roll of births." But, no, the older brothers or sisters remember the time of his advent, and there is some relative a year older and another relative a year younger, and, sure enough, the fact is established beyond all disputation. Sixty! Now your great danger is the temptation to fold up your faculties and quit. You will feel a tendency to reminiscence. If you do not look out, you will begin almost everything with the words: "When I was a boy." But you ought to make the sixties more memorable for God and the truth than the fifties or the forties or the thirties. You ought to do more during the next ten years than you did in any 30 years of your life, because of all the experience you have had. You have committed enough mistakes in life to make you wise above your juniors. Now, under the accumulated light of your past experimenting, go to work for God as never before. When a man in the sixties folds up his energy and feels he has done enough, it is the devil of indolence to which he is surrendering, and God generally takes the man at his word and lets him die right away. His brain, that under the tension of hard work is active, now suddenly shrivels. Men, whether they retire from secular or religious work, generally retire to the grave. No well man has a right to retire. The world was made to work. There remaineth a rest for the people of God, but it is in a sphere beyond the reach of telescopes.

My subject next accosts those in the seventies and beyond. My word to them is congratulation. You have got nearly if not quite through. You have safely crossed the sea of life and are about to enter the harbor. You have fought at Gettysburg, and the war is over—here and there a skirmish with the remaining sin of your own heart and the sin of the world, but I guess you are about done. There may be some work for you yet on a small or large scale. Bismarck, of Germany, vigorous in the eighties. The prime minister of England [illegible] composing his oratorio, "The Creation," at 70 years of age. Isocrates doing some of his best work at 74. Plato busy thinking for all succeeding centuries at 81. Noah Webster, after making his world renowned dictionary, hard at work until 85 years old. Rev. Daniel Waldo praying in my pulpit at 100 years of age. Humboldt producing the immortal "Cosmos" at 76 years. William Blake at 67 learning Italian so as to read Dante in the original. Lord Cockburn at 87 writing his best treatise. John Wesley stirring great audiences at 85. William C. Bryant, without spectacles, reading in my house "Thanatopsis" at 83 years of age. Christian men and women in all departments serving God after becoming septuagenarians and octogenarians and nonagenarians prove that there are possibilities of work for the aged, but I think you who are passing the seventies are near being through.

But the most of you will never reach the eighties or the seventies or the sixties or the fifties or the forties. He who passes into the forties has gone far beyond the average of human life. Amid the uncertainties take God through Jesus Christ as your present and eternal safety. The longest life is only a small fragment of the great eternity. We will all of us soon be there.

Eternity, how near it rolls!
Count the vast value of your souls.
Beware and count the awful cost
What they have gained whose souls are lost.

Good for Rheumatism.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this Remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle, was completely cured.—SALLIE HARRIS, Salem, N. J. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Another Chain Scheme.

Our reporter says he was talking with Mr. J. G. Barger, who says he is completely overcome by the watch scheme at present, but hopes to be in better shape soon. Mr. Barger says: "The Auburn Daily Advertiser had learned we were about to submit a watch scheme to the public, and in last Friday evening's paper they mentioned it briefly, explained the project and gave us a personal recommend that would stagger anyone but a newspaper man. Saturday evening, we received about a dozen letters, some of them with money enclosed and orders for the watch and all wanting to know at once all about the scheme, and so it has been ever since, so bothered that we can't do what we ought to to get ready. You see the Advertiser folks pulled our gun off before we were ready, but we will have the whole outfit fixed up soon and have watches by the bushel, more properly by the gross.

"It is curious to notice that for all the watch is good value and well worth the price, people are not so much interested in the watch as to learn how long they can work. We tell them we hope they will work as long as they can make some money for us. No use talking nonsense. I was in the employ of a company for many years and got big pay, but during all that time there was no agreement how long I should work; at the end of every month they paid my salary and expense account, but I knew every minute that I would get the grand bounce unless I made enough money for them to more than pay what 1 cost them; they didn't keep me for pleasure, but for profit.

"No, we don't want people for only one week; there would be no money in it for us. You see, they pay $3 50 for the watch; we pay them back at the end of the first week $1.50, leaving us $2., which dosen't cover expenses; we have reason to expect that some people will buy the watch and not work the first week and we will not have to pay them back $1.50; on these lapses we will make enough to let us out even at least.

"Well, talk about fraud! If Scriptture can be applied to this scheme, we would quote, "Cast the beam out of your own eye." It beats all what some writers are doing. They write to all sorts of imaginary and impossible people. I know of one woman who has been dead nearly two years who has four pen letters in the postoffice and they don't know where to send them! Another little miss of four years has three letters, and people who don't bother to either read or write get letters by the dozen, and the writers who send out such letters will "holler" the loudest if they don't get their pay just as soon as they report the week is up. And such specimens of penmanship! Nothing like it since the inscriptions on the Egyptian pyramids. Nearly every color of the rainbow and it would make a Chinaman tired to look at it. The fellow who first got up these written English characters must think the people are going back on him. And everyone is going it as they please.

"O, no, we don't worry how we are coming out. We don't propose to beat anybody nor allow them to beat us. It is a fair, square deal and we intend to carry it out on business principles."
