Wheat is looking very fine. A drive on the Indian Field road, although rough most of the way to Merrifield, is a very pleasant drive. It is a very fine farming country. ] will have to make the same remarks I did a year ago, that there is a poverty-stricken look about the houses and barns, the Robert Miller place for instance. The old wagon house looks as forlorn as possible. There seems to be no one to nail on a siding, trim up the rose bushes in the dooryard or run the lawn mower, and the house is crying for paint. There is a splendid piece of wheat, how ever, and it is hoped it will yield 40 bushels to the acre and bring $1 per bushel, and then, the next time we ride by, we will see what has been done with the money. This is not the only place on the street this will apply to, but there are many others. It seems to me the Thomas Tillit place needs a brush and paint and some one to use them. The former

A LOVE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

CONTINUED.

Those whose eyes love had not opened supposed Wintoun's attitude to be a necessary defence against his uncle's tyranny. For the laird, having, as he thought, succeeded in compelling his family to accept his plans for their and his own interest, became very authoritative, and fussed and fumed about every petty circumstance and was more and more difficult to manage, as Mrs. Brathous made more frequent demands upon him for money for Katherine's bridal outfit. Every check brought forth a dispute. Every ornament was "senseless extravagance." He was worried by the dressmakers in and out of the house, and by Katherine's inexplicable good spirits, and more still by Wintoun's determination not to discuss with him those small details of the expected event which seemed so important to the laird's nature—the kind of wine and wedding cake and wedding cards, the people to be asked and neglected, the length and route of the marriage tour, etc.

On the morning of the twenty-fifth of September, Mrs. Brathons was sitting in her room, despondent and worried to an extreme degree. Her easy, sanguine disposition had led her, thus far, in the daily anticipation of "something happening," for she had supreme reliance upon that good fortune which looks after people who trust their affairs to it. But in five days a document must come, which would be a social shock up and down Gala Water. And if Wintoun deserted her daughter for Jessy Telfair, and Mowbray, for any reason, did not keep ! his appointment, she felt that the chagrin would be intolerable, and her husband's anger so just that for once she would be unable to meet him with her usual weapons.

One of those sudden sick fears that frequently attack the heart just before all reason for fear is taken away. had smitten her in the night, and she had anticipated the looks and words of all her acquaintances, the gossip, true and untrue, that would ring from house to house, the passion of rage that would knock Brathous against every human creature; the minister's calm reproaches regarding his own daughter-really, that morning she was feeling as if she might be a very wicked woman. And Katherine did not appear at breakfast. She had "gone for a walk," her maid said; and Mrs. Brathous gratified her lord by a very sincere anger at the girl and her unconventional way.

"Drabbling her skirts and shoes in the dew, like a milking-maid," she said, fretfully. "It is absurd!"

"My dear, she is the Flower of Gala Water," said Brathous, satiri-cally, "and needs the dew."

The remark turned the lady's wrath upon the speaker, and, after a disagreeable meal, she had retired to her room to think things over, until finally she felt half inclined to make a clean breast of the whole affair.

About ten o'clock Katherine entered the room like a streak of sunshine from Iran. She was dressed exquisitely in pale-blue, with white asters in her hat and at her waist. Her starry eyes, her delightful smile, her rosy face, her air of perfect happiness, were, for the moment, irritat-

"Oh, Katherine!" cried Mrs. Brathous; but she got no further, Katherine was kissing the complaint off her lips.

"He has come, mamma!" she cried. "We are going to see him! Get dressed, mamma; I well help you! He is waiting to see me! Every moment is an hour!"

"Do be sensible, child. Do you mean that Richard Mowbray has come? Where is he?"

"He is staying with Jamie Wintoun. Will you please believe that, of all things? Jessy got Jamie to meet him at the train and take him to Wintoun as his guest."

"Katherine, what a shame!" "No; Jamie and Richard have to be brothers, and they may as well begin at once. Jessy and I could not have our husbands hating each other." Then Mrs. Brathous laughed, and began to get interested.

"You see, also, mamma, my guardian willn ever think of looking for Richard at Wintoun; but he has been at the hotel at Galashiels every day, lately, asking for him. Jamie found that out, and told us, and so Jessy said: You must meet Mr. Mowbray, Jamie, love, and ask him to stay at Wintoun." And when she had whispered to Wintoun, Jamie nodded and smiled and met him last night at the midnight train."

"Jamie is an anger of light, Kather-

"He is a very good man. Jessy kissed him for being so good. Men are generally 'good' for compensation.'

"How are we to get to Wintoun House? And I will not go by the manse, for Doctor Telfair's face hurts me. When he finds out about Jessy, I shall shut myself in my room."

"Jessy is here, and the pony-carriage is waiting. You can drive, mamma.

Then the toilet went rapidly forward, and the laird was astonished to see his wife come downstairs in the sweetests of moods and dressed for a drive.

"We are going to ride over to Wintoun, Alexander," she said, "and we may go to Galashiels, so do not wait for us."

And Brathous answered:

"Very well, my dear;" but as soon as the ponies had passed the gates, he turned to the house for his own horse.' "Galashiels!" he muttered. "Galashiels! If you are going there, I am going, too. All three women looked too happy not to have some mischief on hand.

"Now." said Mrs. Brathous. as she flecked her whip for emphasis, "the liard will away to Galashiels as fast as St. Serge can trot him there, and we can have some comfort at Wintoun."

In less than half an hour they arrived at Wintoun, and there they found Jamie and his guest in the breakfast parlor. They were smoking and chatting in the pleasantest manner. Jamie's laugh was their welcome as the door opened, and then what a delightful commotion there was! Katherine was in Mowbray's arms, Jessy and Wintoun were clasping hands, and Mrs. Brathous was effusively thanking Jamie, and thus committing herself deeper to all that these four love-sick young people might propose to do.

And what thought was there of a selfish, unreasonable old guardian, when there was such a young man as Richard Mowbray present? His lovedarting eyes, his handsome face, his caressing manner, won him his will, whatever he wanted. He took Katherine into the drawing-room and put his heart in her hands-he wooed her as if she was the only woman in the world-he left their friends to talk of trains and trunks, and all the lets and bars, which even lovers have to submit to. What He had to say had conditions of almost divine eloquencemonosyllables and silences-flashing intelligences beyond words-kisses that were eternal promises—the clasping hands and the mingling of soft black hair with tresses like the dawn.

In the meantime Mrs. Brathous discussed with Jessy and Jamie a plan they had arranged for escaping the laird's interference.

"You must have a bride party at Levens-hope as soon as you can," said Jamie to Mrs. Brathous; "and during its progress Katherine will join Mowbray. They will come here. I have, already spoken to a young minister from Innerleithen. He knows nothing but that the marriage is proper and honorable, and approved by those who have the right to approve it; and this I certify by my word of honore The servants can be called as witnesses at the moment needed, and so will not have time to talk or to give any information. When the first tumult of discovery is over, I will return to Wintoun and drive them myself to Symington. The laird will be sure they have taken the train either to Edinburgh or Carlisle; he will never think of their going to Glasgow. But from Glasgow they can easily reach Liverpool, and I think Mowbray purposes to carry his bride to America

"That is a long way off, Jamie. do not like it," said Mrs. Brathous.

"But they will not be safe from annoyance unless they are a long way off. They are going round the world to reach their home. I do not know but what Jessie and I will follow them, Mowbray says they will wait in New York for us," and Wintoun looked at his pretty Jessy, and she slipped her hand into his and nodded brightly at the suggestion. And quickly the hours flew by in these discussions, for after lunch they lost themselves in the garden to continue them. At length, however, Mrs. Brathous declared they must return to Levens-hope; "and Jamie," she said, "must go with us, for the laird is a suspicious creature, and we must give him neither word nor sign to go by."

The laird had trotted to Galashiels and back and was tired and disappointed. Yet he could not complain, though no for he did not want his wife to think stars and pointed. Yet he could not complain, that he had any remembrance of Mowbray or any suspicion that Katherine might have written to him, or that he could in any way interfere with her marriage with Wintoun. He thought that by ignoring the danger he might annihilate it. He had satisfied him-self that the Englishman was not at any of the inns in Galashiels. He had called at the manse, and finding the doctor had bluntly asked, "if they had had company," and been quite assured by the servant's negative. And yet there was something about Katherine and her mother he could not understand. But how can a man complain of a feeling so vague that it is undefinable?

After Jamie and Jessie had left, Mrs. Brathous seemed inclined to talk, and the laird gladly humored her.

"She is sure to let something out," he thought.

"Jamie says we ought to have a party, a little dance and a supper before the wedding to rehearse the ceremony and introduce people to one another," was her first remark. "What do you think, Alexander?"

"I think it will cost too much money." "I will pay all the cost out of my private income. Jamie wants it. Some of his people are strangers here." "Then let Jamie pay for it Your doing so is only robbing Peter to pay Paul. Katherine has been no end of expense lately. I shall be glad enough when she is away to her own home." And he looked so sour and ill-natured that Mrs. Brathous answered quickly:

"So shall I! I am sure nobody can wish to stay in your home that can help it!"

"I am sorry enough for my nephew. He will have his hands full with his 'Flower of Gala Water,' and she will wither and fade just like the rest of

"Think shame of yourself, Alexander, for saying such unkind words. If Jamie has a drop of your blood in him, he will make a poor husband for any girl. My daughter need not make you sorry for him. If I had taken her into the world for a season, she would have bettered your nephew a thousandfold. If you are sorry for Jamie, stop the wedding at once. Katherine will be glad to have it sto

"I dare say she will. What does she care for the shame and the talk I would have to meet up hill and down dale and in the market-place? She could then marry that runaway Englishman. I dare say she would be glad. But I am not going to pain and shame Jamie to please her. Poor Jamie!"

"Poor Jamie, indeed! Alexander, you have a bad tongue. But take care! The bad tongue eventually says some words that pay for all the others."

She lifted her ball of wool, threw her knitting passionately into her work-basket, and left the room. It was to Katherine's room she went. The girl was sitting in her nightdress, reading a song Mowbray had written to her, and her sweet, bright face, all smiles and dimples, made the tears spring to her mother's eyes. She told Katherine what her guardian had said, and added:

"Now, my dear, I will have no more scruples. To-morrow send invitations to the Hislops and the Heriots, the Hetherbys and all the young people you know. Tell them it is for an informal dance on next Monday night, and then tell Richard he must make his arrangements to suit."

"Mamma, darling, how are you going to bear the storm that we shall outfly? The laird and the minister and the people you know-gentle and simple?" "I shall tell myself my little girl is happy; that Charlie Janfarie's little girl is happy. As for the laird, he will bluff and bluster in public, and go down on his knees to me when we are alone. I snap my fingers at him! And as for the minister, the laird is sure to call him names, and rouse the man in the minister so far that he is pretty certain to say: 'Wintown and Jessy, and you and I and Mowbrayone and all of us did right.' Do not give yourself a care about me, Katherine, my darling daughter. I shall want something to break the blow when you are gone from me, and I shall have the fight with your guardian at hand. At any rate it will be pleasant to remind him that he has no longer any occasion to pity 'his poor nephew.'

CHAPTER VII.

THE YOUNG DISPOSE. "The happiness of her child is the crown of "Love and hope lay encamped before the gates of the future."

The bride dance was not further discussed, but the young people of the neighborhood were all bidden to it, and in the interval, while the laird was away one day, Katherine's trunks were sent to the Northwestern Hotel, Liverpool. There was telegraphing to and fro, and riding here and there, and nobody had ever seen Jamie Wintoun so busy; but, then, when a man is to be married in a day or two, anything is ordinary and expedient.

Fortunately, Monday was one of those 'ovely days which are the charm of the dying sum and the night, ⊕ a bright with Total Street 7 cool. A large company of young men and maidens were gathered at Levens-hope. They trooped through the halls, and ran up and down the stairs and danced in the parlors and flirted in the green-houses. The laird was important and effusive: Mrs. Brathous was playing waltzes and singing songs and finding partners and sending servants here and there and everywhere. There were fiddlers in the large hall, and they were dancing the Lancers there.

Katherine, in a gown which had the ineffable softness of pale-primrose silk, covered with Valenciennes, was a wonderful picture. Her beauty was so harmonious, so radiant with love, so etherealized by the emotions filling her heart, that even Jessy was amazed at her transfiguration. She danced continually. She had a kind word for everyone; she appeared to be the happiest of all that happy company. Jessy kept close at her side, and it was remembered afterward that she was evidently on the watch, and very frequently in the southern greenhouse. This enclosure was entered from one of the parlors, and had a door at the other end opening into the garden shrubbery.

About ten o'clock Jessy was singing, and it was while the delicious strains of "Braw, Braw, Lads o' Gala Water" were floating through the room, that Katherine was aware of the concerted signal. Wintoun was looking into Jessy's face, and taking on his own heart the words dropping so musically from her lips:

But there is ane, a secret ane,
Aboon them a' that I loe better
And I'll be his, and he'll be mine,
The bonnie lad o' Gala Water!"

STAMPS AND COINS.

Assistant Postmaster-General Merritt has decided upon the designs for a series of new postage stamps for the island of Cuba, and they will be supplied as promptly as possible by the bureau of engraving and printing. Another series of stamps will be made for Porto Rico, and a third set for the Philippine islands. They will be furnished by the United States, but the proceeds of their sale will be turned into the local treasuries until congress shall order otherwise. All three of the new colonies are to be treated by the postoffice department as foreign countries until some permanent form of government has been adopted for them, and the old rates of postage will be maintained. It will require a fivecent stamp to carry a letter to Cuba and Porto Rico as before.

General Adjutant von Petroff, now postmaster general of Russia, introduced novel letter boxes throughout the Russian cities, and ordered the more frequent collection of letters from the boxes. The new boxes stand on corners of streets, so that the public can reach them from sidewalks; the letter carrier who collects the mail opens them from the street side without even dismounting from his wheel-All the collecting carriers have been provided with tricycles having a large receptacle for the mail matter in front of them.

The stamps of the Cuban republic. printed a year or so ago, as a means of raising funds for the insurgents, have been sold in large quantities, though they have never been recognized as postage stamps. If a letter franked with one of these labels was sent to the United States it was treated by the postal authorities as wholly unpaid, and the postage collected upon delivery. Having no recognized government the Cubans could not issue postage stamps and expect them to be honored in other countries.

STILT DANCING.

The Chinese Celebrate Feltich Worship with Quadrilles on Clothes Props. The Chinese, in the interior districts, where fetichism is still the prevailing religion, celebrate all their festival days by dancing on stilts. The entire population, from the child just able to toddle to the gray-haired gran'father, mount on long poles and parade around the town, shouting, singing and throwing flowers. No one can be excused, as the unbelievers are mercilessly punished. Some French and English tourists recently came upon a crowd of this kind near the village of Newchwang, in the extreme southwestern portion of the empire. Their arrival was unexpected by the Orientals, who took it as very rude on the part of the Europeans to Intrude on such a holy day. A turbulent mob of perhaps 500 rushed on the Caucasians; who numbered but a score, to do them mischief. It was impossible to distinguish sexes, as all wore rude masks made of straw mats. So the travelers quietly knocked the sticks from under a few dozen of the foremost, and, pouncing on them as they plumped to the ground, administered a sound beating. The rest finally made off. Had the Celestials been on foot, the affair might have resulted seriously. As it was, by the time the majority could get their feet untied from the awkward stilts, the unsanctified intrudgra were far away.

They then went as far as Chapman De Groat's, on the "Spook road," where they set the case of beer on the front stoop and went in to drink. While in the house all fell asleep, When Martin Kelly woke up he missed his pocketbook, containing $61 in bank noteg and some coin. Dick Bradley, colored, a son-in-law of De Groat, was accused of the crime, but stoutly protested his innocence. Martin Kelly salled for a rope and Bradley was taken out to a tree. The rope was put around his neck and he was pulled up some distance, choking and gasping. He was then let down again, when he confessed to having stolen the pocketbook. A part of the money was found, and Bradley was sent to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury for grand larceny. where they purchased a case of beer. They

Snyder Escapes Indictment. The Grand Jury at Herkimer, which has been investigating the case against Canal Superintendent Charles A. Snyder, who was removed by the State Superintendent of Public Works for falsifying his payrolls, has reported. Several sealed indictments were handed up. After the jury had been discharged District Attorney Adam J. Smith said to the Court that the Grand Smith said to the Court that the Grand Jury had falled to indict Snyder and applied for an order to present the case to the next Grand Jury. Justice Scripture asked on what evidence he wished the case sent to another Grand Jury. The District Attorney said that the evidence showed that names of men were on the payroll for amounts which they had never received, and that in one instacce the man whose name appeared on the payrolls had never done any work. Justice Scripture granted an order sending the case to the next Grand Jury and allowed the bond given by the defendant when first arrested to remain

Sing Sing Convicts' Paper.

A new field of activity has been opened to the convicts in Sing Sing Prison. They are publishing a weekly newspaper. The name selected for the paper is the Star of Hope. It consists of four pages. Sing Sing Prison has an extensive printing establishment, and the "copy" from the inmates which escapes the blue pencil of the War. den is set up by convict printers in the shop, and then run off on the press. Among the outside contributors will be Mrs. Balling ton Booth. She is a favorite with the convicts, and has organized the Hope League among the men. The naming of the paper the Star of Hope was a compliment to her, in recognition of her work among the prisoners. The sheet contains all sorts of news about the prison, and in a way will be the official organ of the institution.

Murderer Brann's Appeal Dismissed,

The Court of Appeals has refused to grant a new trial to Adrian M. Brann, the wife murderer, now in Sing Sing Prison. The condemned man killed his wife while she was visiting him in Sing Sing Prison, where he was serving a two years term for assault, by stabbing her with a potato peeling knife which he had concealed in his clothing. This was on March 5, 1898, He was sentenced to die in Sing Sing Prison during the week beginning August 7, 1898. The appeal acted as a stay. Thomas F. Curran, Brann's attorney, will now appeal to the Governor to have a commission appointed to examine Brann as to his sanity.

Judge Thrashes Wife Beater.

James Kinney was brought before Justice John A. Adams at Bath a few days ago charged with beating his wife. The sentence inflicted by the Court, six months in jail and in addition $50 fine, was not regarded very favorably by the prisoner and he be-came very insolent to the Court. Justice Adams grew white in the face with rage and made a dash for Kinney, and in the presence of the Court loungers he gave the wife beater a thorough thrashing.

SPANISH SOLDIERS ALSO TAKEN.

The American Naval Force Surprised While Seeking the Rescue of Beleaguered Spanish Troops at Baler, 112 Miles From Manils_Natives Refused to Communicate After the Attack.

MANILA (By Cable).-Lieutenant J. G. Gilmore and other officers and landsmen of the gunboat Yorktown, which had been sent to Baler, on ithe east coast of the island of Luzon, to relieve a Spanish garrison, are reported missing.

There are grave fears regarding the fate of these. They and the Spanish force they were sent to rescue, numbering eighty soldiers, three officers and two priests, were ambushed by 400 insurgents, who surrounded and cut them off from reinforcements from the Yorktown.

Many of the insurgents were armed with Manser rifles. Our men returned the fire

The situation at Baler was almost inexplicable. It was reported recently that a Spanish garrison besieged by natives at that place was in entire ignorance of the Spanish-American war and its results. The first reports said that a garrison of forty-seven officers and men had held Baler ever since last May, in all that time having no communication whatever with the outside world. The garrison was believed to be in dire straits.

The gunboat Bennington was sent to investigate the story, and, returning, reported it to be true. The Yorktown was immediately made ready and sent to bring away the besieged Spaniards.

of Our Men by the Filipinos.

Washington, D. C. (Special).—The Navy Department has received the following dispatch from Admiral Dewey:

Manila, April 13.

Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

The Yorktown visited Baler, Luzon, east coast of Luzon, P. I., "April 12, for the purpose of rescuing and bringing away the Spanish forces, consisting of eighty soldiers," three officers and two priests, which were surrounded by four hundred insurgents. Some of the insurgents armed with Manser rifles by natives. Lieutenant J. C. Gilmore, while making * * ambushed, were fired upon and captured. Fate unknown, as insurgents refused to communicate afterward. The following are missing: The officer previously referred to, Chief-Quartermaster W. Walton, Coxswain J. Elisworth, Gunner's Mate E. J. Nygard, Sailmaker's Mate Vandoit, Seamen W. H. Bynders and O. W. Woodbury, Apprentices D. W. A. Venville and A. J. Peterson, Ordinary Seamen S. Brisolese and O. B. McDonald, Landsmen L. P. ### FILIPINOS TO URGE PEACE.

Prominent Natives Take Steps to Act as Mediators.

Manila (By Cable).—A number of prom-inent and wealthy Filipinos are organizing a committee to take steps to bring about, if possible, an understanding between the rebels and the Americans.

One branch of this committee intends to ask the United States Philippine Commis-sion to make a statement as to what terms will be offered the rebels if the latter will surrender. Another branch of the committee will approach Aguinaldo with the terms, and will endeavor to persuade him to accept them. It is considered doubtful, however, if any members of the committee will dare to confer personally with the rebel leader. The committee includes several persons recently condemned to death by Aguinaldo for petitioning him to cease

PORTO RICO IS PEACEFUL

One Regiment and Two Artillery Batteries Ordered Home.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special) .- Another result of Secretary Alger's visit to Porto Rico appeared in a telegram sent by the War Department to General Henry to send to the United States one of the regiments and two batteries of artillery that have seen longest service in the tropics. When Scoretary Alger was in Porto Rico he learned that a small military force could maintain law and order there; in fact, he brought away the impression that in time a native constabulary could safely be trusted to protest life and property in the feland. The withdrawal of the troops designated will leave less than 8000 soldiers, all regulars, in

REED TO LEAVE CONGRESS

Former Speaker Will Practice Law in New York City.

He Will Take Up His New Duties After a Brief Vacation in Europe-Will Reside in the Metropolis.

NEW YORK CITY (Special). - Thomas Brackett Reed will give up his home and his political relations in the State of Maine, his Washington life, his Speakership of the House of Representatives, to become a member of a New York law firm. This he has decided upon.

Mr. Reed will sail for Europe with his family soon, spending several months there. On returning he will at once as-sume his new duties here.

THOMAS BRACKETT REED.

Speaker Reed has known the members of Speaker Reed has known the members of the firm for many years and has had frequent business dealings with them. Though he had received offers to go to the head of several perhaps better known firms, he early expressed his preference for the one with which he is to be associated.

The Speaker is said to have been assured of an income of at least $50,000 a year, an emolument equal to that of the President of the United States, from insurance companies alone. He will continue to act as referee for the several insurance corporations for which he has been recently corporations for which he has been recently acting, and friends say that his income may yet amount to $100,000 annually.

Mr. Reed's motives for getting out of Congress and entering the bar in this city are variously regarded by lawyers and politicians." The consensus of opinion, however, is that he is merely taking the step for financial reasons. He is a comparatively poor man and now that not many years of activity remain, it is time they say, that he consider such matters.

With his great personal reputation and influence he will become at once a power in the New York bar. It is not thought that he will take any part at all in local politics. His step was taken only after long deliberation. He has been consider-

Mr. Reed is a native of the State he has represented in Congress, having been bora-in Portland, Me., on October 18, 1839, so that he is in his sixtieth year. He was gradu-ated at Bowdoin College in 1860, and studied law, but was appointed Acting Assistant Paymaster in the Navy in April, 1864, and served until his honorable discharge in November, 1865, when he was admitted to the bar and began to practice law in Portland. He became a member of the lower branch of the Maine Legislature, then a member of the State Senate, and later Attorney-General for the State. In 1876 he was elected to Congress, and has represented the State of Maine continuously in the House since then. On December 2, 1889, and on December 2, 1895, he was elected to the Speakership, and his discharge of the duties of that office have made him a figure of National prominence.

THE CHICAGO'S LONG CRUISE.

Rear-Admiral Howison Starts on a 20,000-Mile Voyage.

NEW YORK CITY (Special) .- The United States cruiser Chicago, flagship of Rear-Admiral Howison, commanding the reestablished South Atlantic Station, has started from the Brooklyn Navy Yard on a cruise extending more than 20,000 miles. The Chicago will cross the Atlantic to the Azores, whence she will go to Gibraltar, through the Mediterranean to Port Said, pass through the Suez Canal, stop at Aden, pass through the Suez Canal, stop at Aden, and then sail down the east coast of Africa to Mozambique. From Mozambique the cruiser will proceed to Cape Town, and from there to St. Helena. From St. Helena she will cross the Atlantic to Rio de Janeiro, and from there will return to New York, touching at the Barbados. The Chicago is expected to return to this port early in October.

early in October.

The Chicago will cruise in waters where the American flag, floating from the masthead of a warship, has not been seen for many a day, and the chief purpose of the ship's long cruise is to show the peoples of those ports that the Stars and Stripes still fly from as good fighting craft as ever plowed the seas.

Rear-Admiral Howison will make the en-tire cruise. Captain P. M. Cooper is in command of the ship,

OUR CONSUL'S PROTEST.

Objection to a Second Payment of Duties to the Nicaraguan Government.

NEW OBLEANS, La. (Special) .- A steamer just arrived from Bluefields announces that W. S. Sorsby, United States Consul at San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua, has reinforced M. J. Clancy, United States Consul at Bluefields, and the two presented to General Torres, Governor of the Nicaraguan province of Zelaya, a formal protest against the attempt of the Torres Government to collect a second time from American merchants oustoms duties paid by them to the Nicaraguan Government when Reyes was in control. Several conferences Reyes was in control. Several conferences were held between the American Consuls and General Torres and Estrada, but the matter had not been settled when the steamer left. General Torres has confiscated seventeen large fruit plantations near Bluefields on the grounds that their owners took part in the Reyes revolution or sympathized with it. The seizures have caused the laborers on these plantations to desert, which will have the effect of cutting down the banana erop of Nicarana.

THE FAMOUS 999 of the Empire State Express has passed into history. It has held the record as the fastest locomotive in the world, but now comes a competitor, as was invetible-221 on the Albany and Boston railroad It has made 70 miles an hour on ordinary tracks, and the builder claims a possibility of 90 miles an hour. The proportion of these mighty machines is as follows: In weight, 999 62 tons; 221, 85 tons and with tender 126 tons 999 makes an average of 58.58 miles an hour with a train weighing 243 tons, while 221 draws 310 tons at 70 miles an hour. The cylinders of 999 are 19x24 inches; and those of 221 are 22x34x36 inches. The safety boiler pres ure of 999 is 190 pounds of steam to the inch, that of 221 is 220 pounds. The other differences are in proportion. The new wonder is deceptive in motion, as the exhaust is only half as frequent as that of the old fashioned locomotive. The 100-mile an hour machine noon, and died while being conveyed will soon appear.

Company to putor measure, it would make so much differ ence that it would amount in the course of a year to a handsome profit, but this would all come out of the customers of Chilton Paint and therefore the scheme of scant quantity has never been entertained.

The Chilton Paint has always been made with Pure Linseed Oil and will continue to be so made until a better vehicle can be found, and, should an oil be made which is superior to that compressed from flaxis superior to that compressed from flax-seed, the Chilton Company would be the first to use it, and would then inform the public of the fact through its advertise-ments. Linseed Oil is the old-fashioned oil for paint and the one which should be used. Nothing has ever been found which approaches it for the purpose intended. No benzine or benzine drier is ever admitted to the Chilton Paint.

It enjoys the confidence of the people and deserves it.

New Horseshoing Shop.

I have spent 15 years of my life in the study of the horse and the anatomy of the horse's foot. It is something every man should know to shoe a horse as it should be shod. The art of shoing a horse is in trimming the foot with perfect correctness, therefore it takes a man with a great deal of experience to trim a horse's foot and set him squarely on his feet. There is the secret of stopping horses from interfering. I can stop a horse from interfering. I pay special attention to lameness of the foot and interfering horses. I have been on a stock farm for 6 years and have had a great deal of experience with all kinds of horses feet. I have read several veterinary books, but a veterinarian is not a horseshoer. It takes a man who is born a mechanic to be a good horseshoer. Horseshoing is an art of itself, a man can't learn it in a month. I do my own trimming and fitting and guarantee my work to give satisfaction.

ROTHSCHILD BROS., ITHACA.

Our recent contract for adding one more store on State street has been completed and we shall soon make very extensive preparations throughout our ten stores in the way of shelving, counters, fronts, floors, etc., which will necessitate reducing our stock in general. We make this announcement in order to have you prepare for the coming bargains. Every department will be changed, every store rearranged and every improvement up to the times will be inaugurated. You will then see one of the most metropolitan stores in your own little city. Now we want you to get ready when the call comes to carry off our stock, so we can make room for our alterations. Thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of goods must be disposed of before the masons, carpenters, plasterers, painters, glaziers, etc., can be made room for. We shall strive to close out every dollars worth of goods before we give our stores over to them. At the present writing we cannot tell when our contract will be placed, we are awaiting develop-ments from the builders, but in a few days you will hear the great bugle call when we know everybody will be here.

A Friendly Tip About Spring Clothing.

Now that warm weather is here that new spring suit or overcoat must be purchased. And so we want to give you a little advice-take it, or not, as you desire. We have selected our line of clothing this season with the greatest of care. It comprises everything that one can wish. We have blue and black serges, cheviots, fancy worsteds and those handsome checks suits which are so popular, and the make and cut of them is right. They are gotten up by the best houses in the country—by houses that are always after the latest that the market affords. Our prices of course are right. We quote but a few:

$6.00

This gets a handsome light check suit, something stylishly gotten up. All wool. Last season it was $10.00.

$10.50 This is going to be the hit of the season. It is one of those Adler suits and is a winner. It's a pretty light check and looks like custom made.

$9.00

Gets a black or blue serge, something smart, an elegant appearing garment, a suit worth $14. While they last $9.00.

$12.00

This is a remarkable value for the money. It is an all wool worsted in black, grey and brown checks. Also an Adler garment. Custom made it would cost $35.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY:

KRNNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.
About 3 years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month, and and rendered her unable to walk with out assistance, her limbs being swolen to twice the normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamber-lain's Pain Balm. I purchased a 50c. bottle and used it according to directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. B PARSONS. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Conversation Simplified.

"It's a fraud," exclaimed one of the men who had stopped to read their papers in the warm though unpretentious little place which serves both as railway waiting room and postoffice. "The whole business is a downright swindle."

"Of course it is," answered his neighbor, who was busily engaged in pronouncing under his breath all the words in an article on successful fertilizing.

"It's an outrage on a confiding pub-lic, and a backset to civilization."

"That's what it is," was the somewhat grudging response.

The indignant old gentleman became so excited that he had to go out and walk up and down the platform. As his friend glanced up from his paper to watch him depart he caught the eye of a traveling man who, pending train time, had nothing to do but watch people "Excuse me for asking questions about things that are none of my affair," said the traveling man, 'but are you a mind reader?"

'Not that I know of."

"You knew what your friend was talking about without his telling you." "Well, not precisely.

"But you answered him as if you knew.

"Yes, but I wa'n't takin' any risk in that. I knowed he was makin' allusions to either a 'lection or a prize fight. An' whichever it was, them was my sentiments."

No Consolation,

"There's no use in being discouraged, Victor," said his young wife. 'Remember that when William Cullen Bryant began to write he only got $2 apiece for his poems."

"Only $2!" exclaimed the struggling young literary genius, with bit-ter emphasis on the 'only.' If I could get $2 apiece for my poems, Ara-bella, I could make $40 a day."

"Shall we shoot or hang him," asked the western cowboy. The methodical man of business paused to "Let us not be hasty," he said, "for hurry begets criminal waste and extravagance. The first thing to do is 8, 10 and 12 Genesee St. to learn the price of rope and compare it with the cost of ammunition."-Pearson's Weekly.

"Say, pa," queried Willie the other morning while preparing his geography lesson, "how many motions has the earth?

"I don't know, Willie," replied the fond parent, as he bound a towel soaked with ice water about his throbing brow, but they're numerous, quite numerous."—Chicago News.

THE CHARACTERISTICS OF GOOD WHISKEY .:::

In the preparation of whiskey for medicinal use the infusion of rye or other grain is first made to undergo fermentation by which the saccharine matter and indirectly the starch are converted into alcohol. In this state the liquid is called the wash. This is submitted to distillation and the product is denominated low wines. By a second distillation it becomes purer and stronger and now takes the name of raw spirits or whiskey. It is now submitted to a third distillation in order to further purify it. This is where our whiskey is superior. Few whiskies are ever submitted to a third distillation.— By time, certain chemical changes take place by which the natural impurities contained in the liquor are destroyed and the whiskey becomes mellow, losing the disagreeable odor and taste which it is apt to have when first distilled. We guarantee Centennial Whiskey to be six years old. Quart Bottles (bottled at the factory) $1. By the Gallon $3.50. Orders for goods to the amount of $3.00 sent by prepaid express to any address, cash with the order. Good California Port, Catawba and Sherry Wines 35 cts. per quart, $1.25 per gallon.

Local Weekly's Hold on Its Field. Probably the time will never come in this country when the local newspaper will cease to be a unique feature of every considerable community, a sterling necessity of every growing and progressive town, says the Killingly County Observer. And as to its character and tone, its ambitious and its aspiration, they will continue to be, as they now are, as much dependent upon the community as upon the publisher, for the town journal is, after all, what they make it.

How to Save Labor in Spring Clean.

Spring cleaning is no longer the labor it was in the days of our grandmothers. Women understand how to save themselves by the use of modern conveniences. When beginning the work everything should be beginning the work everything should be in readiness — tacks, hammers, brooms, with a supply of Ivory Soap (which is the best for all cleaning purposes), lime, ammonia, and carbolic acid. Good weather should be selected, and only one or two rooms cleaned at a time; air and sunshine should be freely admitted.

Oh! how I wish more suffering women would accept your kind offer and be relieved. There is no need for women to suffer. Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will relieve them." MRS. IDA PETERS, Milan, Tenn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you the first time asking your advice I was a great sufferer. Menstructions were irregular, sometimes a week too soon and then a week or two late, and when they appeared were very profuse; great pain and tenderness in the bowels, pain in back and limbs, leucorrhose all the time. I was weak and nervous and had no appetite. Burning and choking sensation in my throat. I received your reply and followed all your instructions and now I am cured. I owe my recovery all to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and her wonderful remedies."

ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio, writes:

"I have been thankful a thousand times since I wrote to you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstrustion and leucorrhoss. I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one box of Pills, one package of Sanative Wash and am now well."

MRS. MAGGIR P. STINE, New Berlin,

M. S. QUAY NOT GUILTY

Jury Acquits Him of the Charges of Misusing Public Funds.

IS APPOINTED SENATOR.

After Twenty Hours' Deliberation the Jury Decides That He Did Not Misuse State Funds-Jury Stood Ten to Two at First-The Scene in the Courtroom-Three Ballots Taken.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn. (Special) .- Thes trial of ex-Senator Matthew Stanley Quay on the charge of conspiring to use State funds on deposit in the broken People's Bank of this city for his private gain ended on Friday in a verdict of acquittal. Almost simultaneously Governor Stone announced at Harrisburg that he had appointed Mr. Quay to the seat in the United States Senate recently vacated by him, which the Legislature failed to fill at its session just

The verdict of the jury acquitting Mr. Quay was announced at 11 o'clock. There comparatively few persons in the courtroom. There was an attempt at a demonstration, but this was repressed by the court officers, whose loud shouts of "Order!" and "Silence!" were effective in quieting those jubilant spirits who wished to give vent to their satisfaction by cheering. Mr. Quay, with a broad smile on his face, responded pleasantly to the greetings and congratulations of those who crowded around him. A few of his political friends were there, and these men were vociferous in their expressions of satisfaction at the outcome of

Though the jurors entered into a bond of secrecy it was learned that three ballots were taken before the verdict was reached. On the first ballot they stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. Then one man was won over by the majority, and in the morning the last man who stood be-tween Quay and freedom gave in.

QUAY APPOINTED SENATOR.

Governor Stone Immediately Acts On the Receipt of the Verdict.

HARBISBURG (Special).—Immediately on receipt of the news that Mr. Quay was ac-quitted of the charges against him, Gov-ernor Stone appointed him United States Senator to fill the vacancy until the next Legislature meets and notified Vice-President Hobart as follows:

"Sir: By virtue of the power vested in me as Executive of the State of Pennsyl-vania, under Article I., Clause 2, Section 3 of the Constitution of the United States, I hereby make temporary appointment of the Hon. Matthew Stanley Quay to be United States Senator from Pennsylvania until the next meeting of the Pennsylvania Legislature to fill the vacancy now existing in this State. Very respectfully, "WILLIAM A. STONE, "Governor of Pennsylvania."

Precedent Bars Him From Senate. Washington, D. C. (Special).-Matthew Quay, in spite of his appointment as Senator by Governor Stone, will probably get no nearer the Senate of the Fifty-sixth Congress than the Marble Room. Precedents are all against his taking his seat by virtue of appointment from the Governor. The Senate is on record as holding that where a State Legislature convened for the purpose of electing a United States Senator fails to do so the vacancy cannot be filled by a Gubernatorial selection.

The sand ridges, or dhoras, of the Indian desert spring from low cross ridges, or saddles, like closed fingers from the knuckles of the back of the hand, but in reverse and parallel directions-that is to say, the ridges face both northeast and southwest, covering a longitudinal distance of one or two miles, when they are again repeated in a similar formation. Their cross slopes average two to one and are well covered with desert grasses and bushes, an occasional acacia or rohira tree breaking the monotony of the landscape. This peculiar formation ends abruptly at the sandstone cliffs of Sata, about a thousand feet above sea level, which form a barrier to their further ex-tension eastward. When seen for the first time from these heights they have a confused, wave-like appearance, and it is only ultimately discovered that they form in plan parallel but tapering edges. ### HOT BATTLE AT QUINGUA.

Eight of Our Man Killed by Rebel Fire From the Jungle.

LAWTON ON A NEW CAMPAIGN.

Colonel Statsenberg, of the First Nebrasks, Among the Dead-Forty Americans Wounded-Filipinos, Concealed in the Brush, Did Not Lose Heavily, but Had to Retire.

MANILA (By Cable).-There was some severe fighting along the advanced American lines north of Malolos Sunday morning, in which our losses were unusually heavy. It having been reported to General MacArthur that a body of the rebels was in the neighborhood of Quingua, Major Bell, with a small troop of cavalry, was ordered to make a reconnoissance. He examined the country in the vicinity of Malolos, and went almost to Quingua before the enemy was discovered.

The country examined by the cavalry was rough and covered with a dense growth of brush, which afforded an ideal hiding place for the Filipinos. The Americans were on their guard against an ambuscade, keeping a close watch for the rebels, who, there was reason to believe, were hiding somewhere in the jungle near Quingua.

As the troops approached the town a strong force of rebels attacked them. At the first volley from the insurgents, who were intrenched in the brush, one of the cavalrymen was wounded, and he would have fallen from his horse had it not been for two of his comrades, who, riding on one side of him, held him in his saddle and took him to a place of safety. Two others took him to a place of safety. Two others of the troop were wounded soon after, one

The Americans were not confused by the attack. They dismounted and, deploying as infantry, poured a telling fire into the brush, where it was known that the greater part of the attacking force was concealed.

News of the engagement was hurried back to Malolos, and, while the Americans held their ground gallantly against a far stronger numerical force, General Hale hastened forward with reinforcements for the cavalrymen.

Two battalions of the First Nebraska Regiment and six companies of the Fifty-first Iowa, with four field guns, were quickly on the scene and vigorously at-tacked the enemy. The Filipinos made a strong defence, but were ultimately driven from their negition strong defence, but were ultimately driven from their position.

The following were killed: Colonel John M. Stotsenburg of the First Nebraska regiment; Lieutenant Sisson of the same regiment; two privates of the Nebraska regiment; two privates of the Fourth cavalry and about forty wounded. Most of the wounded belong to the First Nebraska regiment. The loss of the enemy, though they were forced to abandon their position, was not heavy.

not heavy.

General Lawton has taken the field again with a column of troops consisting of the North Dakota regiment, two battalions of the Third Infantry, the Twenty-second Infantry, two guns of Scott's Battery, three troops of the Fourth Cavalry and Gale's Squadron, equipped in light marching order. They were supplied with ten days' rations. This new cam-paign is expected to result in clearing out the jungle in the country north of Manila up to the foothills of the mountains on the northeast, and up to the termination of railroad at Bulacan.

KING HUMBERT'S TOAST TO ENGLAND Takes Luncheon on the Majestic and

Calls England an Ally of Italy. Rome, (By Cable) .- King Humbert and Queen Margherita, after reviewing the British and Italian squadrons in the Bay of Aranal, took luncheon on board the British flagship Mejestic. Proposing a toast to the health of Queen Victoria, King Humbert

"I drink to the health of the much-loved Queen Victoria, to the prosperity of the English nation, an ally of Italy, and to the glory of its navy."

It is stated that the King significantly emphasized the term sily. In the evening their Majesties entertained Admiral Rawson, Bir Philip Currie, British Ambassador, Prince Louis of Battenberg and the chief officers of the British squadron on board the Italian warship Bavola.

BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Sam Hose Tortured For the Cranford Murder and Assault.

Found at His Mother's House and Giver Up to a Mob in Newnan, Ga., After He Had Been Locked Up.

NEWNAN, Ga. (Special) .- Sam Hose, the negro murderer and assailant of Mr. and Mrs. Cranford, was burned at the stake, in the presence of 2000 people, near this town Sunday afternoon. Before his death Hose's body was mutilated with knives, and the torture endured for half an hour. When the flames had ended his suffering, the mob cut the remains of his body into small fragments.

Hose made a partial confession, acknowledging that he killed Mr. Cranford, and said that the murder had been instigated by a colored preacher, who had paid him $12 to commit it.

Hose had been on the farm of the Jones brothers, between Macon and Columbus, since the day after he committed his crime. His mother is employed on the farm, and to her little cabin he ged as a safe refuge. Saturday morning one of the Jones boys met Hose, and as he was talking to him noticed that his "ginger" "ace was ebony black. Just below the collar of his shirt the copper color was discernable. Jones black. Just below the collar of his shirt the copper color was discernable. Jones became convinced that he was the negro for whom the authorities, assisted by bloodhounds, had been scouring the country for ten days, and determined to arrest him. Sunday morning the Jones boys brought the negro into Macon and put him aboard a Central Railroad of Georgia train, with the intention of bringing him to Atlanta.

In some way the news of the arrest leaked out, and, as the town had been on the alert out, and, as the town had been on the alert for nearly two weeks, the intelligence spread rapidly. From every house in the little city came its occupants, and a good-sized crowd was soon gathered about the jail. Sheriff Brown was importuned to give up the prisoner, and finally, in order to avoid an assault on the jail and possible bloodshed, he turned the wretch over to the waiting crowd. A procession was quickly formed, and the negro was marched at its head through several streets of the town. Soon the public square was of the town. Soon the public square was reached. Here ev-Governor Atkinson, of Georgia, who lives in Newman, came hurriedly upon the scene, and standing up in a buggy importuned the crowd to let the law take its course.

take its course.

Judge A. D. Freeman, also of Newnan, spoke and prayed the mob to return the prisoner to the custody of the Sheriff and go home.

The assemblage heards the words of the two speakers in silence, but the instant their voices had died away shouts of "On to Palmetto!" "Burn him!" "Think of his crime!" arose, and the march was resumed. Leaving the town, the mob, which now numbered nearly 1500 persons, started on the road to Palmetto. One and a half miles out of Newnan a place believed to be favorable to the burning was reached. A little to the side of the road was a strong pine tree. Up to this the negro was marched, his back placed to the tree, and his face to the crowd, which jostled closely about him. Here for the first time he was allowed to talk. He said: "I am Sam Hose. I killed Alfred Cran-ford, but was paid to do it. 'Lige' Strickland, the negro preacher at Palmetto, gave me $12 to kill him."

The clothes were torn from the wretch. The clothes were torn from the wretch. A heavy chain was produced and wound around the body of the terrified negro, clasped by a new lock which dangled at Hose's neck. He said not a word to this proceeding, but at the sight of three or four knives flashing in the hands of several terrified in the second second several terrified in the second several terrified in the second second several terrified in the second eral members of the crowd about him, which seemed to forecast the terrible ordeal he was about to be put to, he uttered

A hand grasping a knife shot out and one of the negro's ears dropped into a hand ready to receive it. Hose pleaded pitifully for mercy and begged his tormentors to let him die. His cries were unheeded.

When the crowd wearied of this mutilation the words, "Come on with the oil," brought a huge can of kerosene to the foot of the tree, where the negro, his body covered with blood from head to foot, was striving and tugging at his chains. The can was lifted over the negro's head by three or four men and its contents poured three or four men and its contents poured over him. By this time a good supply of brush pieces of fence rail, and other firewood had been placed about the negro's feet. This pyre was thoroughly saturated and a match applied.

A flame shot upward and spread quickly over the pile of wood. As it licked the negro's legs he shrieked once and began to struggle. As the flames great higher and struggle. As the flames crept higher and the smoke entered his eyes and mouth, Hose put the stumps of his hands to the tree back of him and with a terrific plunge forward of his body, severed the upper portion of the chains which bound him to the tree. His body, held to the tree only as far as the thighs, lunged forward, thus escaping the flames which roared and crackled about his feet. One of the men nearest the burning negro quickly ran up and, pushing him back, said: "Get into the fire there," and quickly coupled the disjointed links of the chain.

The torch was applied about 2.30, and at 8 o'clock the body of Sam Hose was limp and lifeless, his head hanging to one side. The body was not cut down. It was cut to pieces. The crowd fought for places about the smouldering tree, and with knives secured such pieces of his carcase as had not crumbled away. The chain was severed by hammers, the tree was chopped down, and the chips and such pieces of the firewood as had not been burned were carried as souvenirs. ried as souvenirs.

GOVERNOR BLAMES THE NEGROES. Says They Must Protect the Whites If They Expect Protection.

ATLANTA, Ga. (Special). — Governor Candler made a statement on the burning of Sam Hose, near Newman, in which he of Sam Hose, near Newnan, in which he said:

"The whole thing is deplorable, and Hose's crime, the horrible details of which have been published and are too horrible for publication, is the most diabolical in the annals of crime. The negroes of that community lost the best opportunity they will ever have to elevate themselves in the estimation of their white neighbors. The dipbolical nature of the double crime was well known to every one of them; the perpetrator was well known, and they owed it to their race to exhaust every means of bringing Hose to justice.

their race to exhaust every means of bringing Hose to justice,
"The good and lawabiding negroes must separate themselves from the lawless and criminal element. They must denounce crime and aid in bringing criminals to justice, whether they be black or white. In this way, they can do more to protect themselves than all the courts and juries in the States can do for them. To secure protection against lawless whites they must show a disposition to propagalist lawless bine.

Spafford--Manchester.

In the presence of one hundred and twenty-five guests, at the Church street residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Manchester, Wednesday, April 19, the only daughter, Carrie Elizabeth, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to George Lee Spafford. On the arrival at the home, the guests were met by the ushers-Miss Wade, Miss Amerman and Miss Jean Amerman, and were presented to the parents of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Spafford, Promptly at 12 o'clock the bridal party, consisting of the contracting parties accompanied by Mr. Warren Maltbie of Moravia, who acted as best man to Mr. Spofford, and Miss Myrtle Gray of Omro, the bridesmaid, entered the spacious parlors to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march rendered by Prof. Harry A. Tidd of Auburn. They were met by the Rev. H. L. Rixon, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, who in a few short sentences, pronounced the words which made Miss Manchester Mrs. George Lee Spafford. After the ceremony the guests were served with the wedding breakfast. The bride's wedding gown was organdie over white satin with carnation trimmings. She carried cream roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in pink henrietta. The gentlemen members of the wedding party were conventionally attired. The presents with which the guests remembered the bridal pair, were elegant and uscful.

Mr. and Mrs. Spafford left by carriage for Cascade, where they took the afternoon train for Auburn. Their wedding trip will include visits with friends in Seneca Falls and Buff do. Both the bride and groom are well known in Southern Caynga, and they have many warm friends who wish them success as they start out on life's journey.-Moravia Register.

Memorial.

Our hearts have been deeply saddened by the death of our beloved brother, Frank H. Peckham, and as we realize our loss, we can only look up through our tears, and, trusting in our Father's love, say: "He doeth all things well." In his death our society has lost one of its most faithful and earnest workers—one who was always at his post and ready to respond to the call of duty.

His presence and interest were an inspiration in our meetings, and his kindly, cordial welcome gave a home feeling to those who came amongst

His beautiful life has made its influence felt in the community, and we hope his memory may be an in-centive to others to follow the Master he loved.

We shall greatly miss him in our meetings and social gatherings-miss his helpful words and deeds-but we know our loss is indeed his gain, and he has realized the fulfilment of the promise "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.'

We would extend to his home circle our deep and heartfelt sympathy in this time of bereavement, and would point them to the Savior he followed to comfort and sustain them in these hours of sorrow, hoping they may indeed know "The eternal God is their refuge, and underneath are the Everlasting Arms."

"Not now, but in the coming years, It may be in the better land, We'll read the meaning of our tears And there, sometime, we'll under-stand."
