Genesee street, Auburn, is to be paved with asphalt.

The Cortland County Fair is the first of the season Aug. 27-30th.

Isaiah Randell, for forty years a jeweler in Seneca Falls, last week made an assignment.

The Weedsport Band has been engaged to furnish music for the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, of Auburn, at the Labor Day parade in Seneca Falls, Sept. 2.

Here is the way some poet speaks of the disasters of the cup defender Constitution: "Yankee Doodle built a yacht, to be the cup defender; every time she sailed a race it took a week to mend her."

According to a new directory of Syracuse, just issued, the city has 576 Smiths and 336 Browns. Thirty-six of the former and twenty of the latter respond to the name of John.

Cortland merchants are either remarkably trustful, or else remarkably careless. The police of that city found seventeen doors unlocked at night in Main street during the month of July.

Prof. I. S. Sears, recently principal of the DeRuyter high school, who recently bought a grocery business at Sheds Corners, has been appointed postmaster at that place vice F. R. Wood, resigned.

Miss Cordelia Grover of Fayetteville, was drowned while bathing in the canal one day last week. She could not swim and accidentally got into the water beyond her depth.

Mrs. John Egbert and Mrs. Perry Van Ostrand have issued invitations for the marriage of Miss Helen Mar Townley to Byron Edmund Brooks on August 22d, at the farm residence at South Lansing. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will reside in Newark, N. J.

William Jennings Bryan is extending the field of his newspaper work and is now to issue a paper in Alexandria just across the Potomac from Washington. Mr. Bryan has just concluded negotiations for securing control of the National Watchman which has been published in Alexandria for some time.

The New York Tribune cartoonist insists on making Uncle Sam look like General Passenger Agent Daniels of the New York Central, says the Syracuse Herald. Well, if there is a man in the country who embodies any more of the good qualities that Uncle Sam is supposed to possess than G. P. A. Daniels we would like to see him.

Our townsman Mr. Frank Conger by the unanimous vote of the directors was recently honored with an offer of the presidency of the National Bridge Company of New York. This company has a capital of one and one-half millions and is doing an enormous business and is soon to increase its capital. Mr. Conger although feeling very much flattered with the offer felt obliged to decline on account of his connection with the American Bridge Company and also on account of his determination to devote a greater part of his time to his large business enterprises. Groton is to be congratulated on this decision.—Journal.

Soon after her marriage, which took place about fifty years ago, Mrs. Hester S. Thorpe of Sidney, N. Y., made a vow that she would never pass beyond the front gate. She kept the vow, confining her strolls to her little yard. She never saw a railroad, although one ran within a few blocks of her home. Her death occurred recently at the age of seventy-two. Strange people in this world.

Among the recent visitors at Scipioville is Miss Tompkins of Illinois, granddaughter of Mr. Wilshere, the well known business man of that place, and great granddaughter of Daniel D. Tompkins, governor of the state of New York, and vice president of the United States.

The first appellate division of the supreme court of this state has handed down a decision, in which all the judges concur, that the serving of a sandwich with a drink is not in good faith a meal but is a simple pretext to evade the law. And that is something that everybody knew years ago.

Mr. W. H. Freeborn of New Woodstock, was in Cortland Friday and made arrangements with the Cortland County Fair association to exhibit a midget cow which he raised and owns. This animal is 4 years old, fully developed and stands only 32 inches high. Its breed is Durham, and it is considered a great freak of nature.—Cortland Standard.

Oscar Norenburg, an Ithaca electric lineman, was badly burned Friday morning by grasping a "live" wire. He had climbed a tree to change some wires and losing his balance he reached out for support and caught a wire through which 2000 volts of electricity were passing. An other lineman cut the wire and Norenburg was helped down and his wounds were dressed.

The State Fair Commission is paying particular attention to the comfort of the visitors to the fair grounds. They have decided to place 1,000 benches, each of which will hold six people, in various parts of the grounds. This will enable visitors to the fair to secure needed rest at intervals during the day, and will undoubtedly be appreciated by those who have spent a day viewing exhibits, where such accommodations are not provided.

A Young Lady's Life Saved.

Dr. Chas. H. Utter, a prominent physician, of Panama, Colombia, in a recent letter states: Last March I had a patient a young lady sixteen years of age, who had a very bad attack of dysentery. Everything I prescribed for her proved ineffectual and she was growing worse every hour. Her parents were sure she would die. She had become so weak that she could not turn over in bed. What to do at this critical moment was a study for me, but I thought of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and as a last resort prescribed it. The most wonderful result was effected. Within eight hours she was feeling much better; inside of three days she was upon her feet and at the end of one week was entirely well." For sale by J. S. Banker.

Don't be satisfied with temporary relief from indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure permanently and completely removes this complaint. It relieves permanently because it allows the tired stomach perfect rest. Dieting won't rest the stomach. Nature receives supplies from the food we eat. The sensible way to help the stomach is to use Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which digests what you eat and can't help but do you good. For sale by J. S. Banker.

The laws of health require that the bowels move once each day and one of the penalties for violating this is piles. Keep your bowels regular by taking a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when necessary and you will never have that severe punishment inflicted upon you. Price, 25c. For sale by J. S. Banker.

The shirt waist man and the net waist girl go hand in hand today, and the people year after year keep on throwing their clothes away. The coat and vests are laid to rest, and where is the fleecy shawl? And clothes get fewer and thinner—what will be the end of it all? Oh, what will the shirt waist man take next from the things he has to wear? And what will the net waist girl throw off from her shoulders now half bare? The shirt waist man and the net waist girl go rollicking down the way. Have we started a trend that's going to end in the old fig leaf some day.

Editors are often accused of a lack of veracity, but the facts seem to be that they are fully as truthful or as least as honest as their brethren in the other professions. Witness this complaint from the convict publishers of the Star of Hope, printed at Sing Sing: "Why is it from the first inception of our paper to the present time we have never had an editor to sojourn in our midst? Other professions have been represented. Of preachers we have enough to furnish food to any African chief for a year; doctors in sufficient numbers to depopulate a town, and lawyers enough to establish a colony in Hades. But editors—not one!"

Surrogate's Court.

In the matter of the proof of the will of the late Lewis Pinckney of Aurelius, Walter E. Woodin was appointed special guardian of Belle, Edward and Flossie Pinckney, infants. Adjournment was taken to August 27.

Johnson N. Tarbell and J. S. Banker were appointed appraisers of the real estate of Sally Alvord, deceased of Genoa.

Sidney J. Westfall appointed appraiser in the matter of the estate of John Welty, of Owasco.

Nerves Like a Flat-Iron.

A woman who suffered for three years from nervous prostration says, two bottles of Lichty's Celery Nerve Compound effected a complete cure. She hardly knows today weather she has nerves or not, as she never feels them. It is certainly a wonderful remedy. Sold by J. S. Banker.

P. T. Thomas, Sumterville, Ala., "I was suffering from dyspepsia when I commenced taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I took several bottles and can digest anything." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only preparation containing all the natural digestive fluids It gives weak stomachs entire rest, restoring their natural condition. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Moravia Relatives Win.

Surrogate Glass of Onondaga county has handed down his decision in the contest over the estate of "Pete" Scovill, holding in substance, that the woman who claimed to be Mrs. Anna Brady Scovill and widow of the deceased, did not hold the relation of wife and granting letters of administration upon the estate to the sister of the deceased, Mrs. Laverne S. Nye of Moravia. Scovill was a well-known sporting-man who formerly lived in Moravia and Auburn but spent his later years in New York where he died in 1899. He left personal property valued at $13,000, consisting largely of deposits in banks.

After his death Anna Brady and Mary Duval both claimed to be his lawful widow but their claims were contested by the Moravia sister who now wins in the first instance. The case may be carried higher.

THE EVILS OF GOSSIP

A Sermon to Those Who Are Disposed to Talk Too Much.

Discourse of Dr. Talmage on the Text "Discover Not a Secret to Another"—Good and Bad Secret Societies.

[Cpoyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Washington, July 28.

A practical question which is asked in most houses, and for many years, is here asked by Dr. Talmage and answered; text, Proverbs 25:9, "Discover not a secret to another."

It appears that in Solomon's time, as in all subsequent periods of the world, there were people too much disposed to tell all they knew. It was blab, blab, blab; physicians revealing the case of their patients, lawyers exposing the private affairs of their clients; neighbors advertising the faults of the next-door resident; pretended friends betraying confidences.

One-half of the trouble of every community comes from the fact that so many people have not capacity to keep their mouths shut. When I hear something disparaging of you, my first duty is not to tell you, but if I tell you what somebody has said against you and then go out and tell others what I told them that I told you, and we all go out, some to hunt up the originator of the story and others to hunt it down, we shall get the whole community talking about what you did do and what you did not do, and there will be as many scalps taken as though a band of Modocs had swept upon a helpless village. We have two ears, but only one tongue, a physiological suggestion, that we ought to hear a good deal more than we tell. Let us join a conspiracy that we will tell each other all the good and nothing of the ill, and then there will not be such awful need of sermons on Solomon's words: "Discover not a secret to another."

Solomon had a very large domestic circle. In his earlier days he had very confused notions about monogamy and polygamy, and his multitudinous associates in the matrimonial state kept him too well informed as to what was going on in Jerusalem. They gathered up all the privacies and poured them into his ear, and his family became a sorosis or female debating society of 700, discussing day after day all the difficulties between husbands and wives, between employers and employes, between ruler and subjects, until Solomon, in my text, deplores volubility about affairs that do not belong to us and extols the virtue of secretiveness.

By the power of a secret divulged families, churches, neighborhoods, nations, fly apart. By the power of a secret kept great charities, socialities, reformatory movements and Christian enterprises may be advanced. Men are gregarious—cattle in herds, fish in schools, birds in flocks, men in social circles. You may by the discharge of a gun scatter a flock of quails or by the plunge of the anchor send apart the denizens of the sea, but they will gather themselves together again. If you by some new power could break the associations in which men now stand, they would again adhere. God meant it so. He has gathered all the flowers and shrubs into associations. You may plant one forgetmenot or heartsease alone, away off upon the hillside, but it will soon hunt up some other forgetmenot or heartsease. Plants love company. You will find them talking to each other in the dew.

You sometimes see a man with no outbranchings of sympathy. His nature is cold and hard, like a ship's mast ice glazed, which the most agile sailor could never climb. Others have a thousand roots and a thousand branches. Innumerable tendrils climb their hearts and blossom all the way up, and the fowls of heaven sing in the branches. In consequence of this tendency we find men coming together in tribes, in communities, in churches, in societies. Some gather together to cultivate the arts, some to plan for the welfare of the state, some to discuss religious themes, some to kindle their mirth, some to advance their craft. So every active community is divided into associations of artists, of merchants, of bookbinders, of carpenters, of masons, of plasterers, of shipwrights, of plumbers. Do you cry out against it? Then you cry out against a tendency divinely implanted. Your tirades would accomplish no more than if you should preach to a busy ant hill a long sermon against secret societies.

Here we find the oft discussed question whether associations that do their work with closed doors and admit their members by passwords and greet each other with a secret grip are right or wrong. I answer that it depends entirely on the nature of the object for which they meet. Is it to pass the hours in revelry, wassail, blasphemy and obscene talk or to plot trouble to the state or to debauch the innocent, then I say, with an emphasis that no man can mistake, No! But is the object the defense of the rights of any class against oppression, the improvement of the mind, the enlargement of the heart, the advancement of art, the defense of the government, the extirpation of crime or the kindling of a pure hearted sociality, then I say, with just as much emphasis, Yes.

There is no need that we who plan for the conquest of right over wrong should publish to all the world our intentions. The general of any army never sends to the opposing troops information of the coming attack. Shall we who have enlisted in the cause of God and humanity expose our plans to the enemy? No; we will in secret plot the ruin of all the enterprises of Satan and his cohorts. When they expect us by day, we will fall upon them by night. While they are strengthening their left wing we will fall on their right. By a plan of battle formed in secret conclave we will come suddenly upon them crying: "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." Secrecy of plot and execution is wrong only when the object and ends are nefarious. Every family is a secret society, every business firm and every banking and insurance institution. Those men who have no capacity to keep a secret are unfit for positions of trust anywhere. There are thousands of men whose vital need is culturing a capacity to keep a secret. Men talk too much, and women, too. There is a time to keep silence as well as a time to speak.

Although not belonging to any of the great secret societies about which there has been so much violent discussion, I have only words of praise for those associations which have for their object the maintenance of right against wrong or the reclamation of inebriates or, like the score of mutual benefit societies called by different names, that provide temporary relief for widows and orphans and for men incapacitated by sickness or accident from earning a livelihood. Had it not been for the secret labor organizations in this country monopoly would long ago have, under its ponderous wheels, ground the laboring classes into an intolerable servitude. The men who want the whole earth to themselves would have got it before this had it not been for the banding together of great secret organizations, and while we deplore many things that have been done by them, their existence is a necessity and their legitimate sphere distinctly pointed out by the Providence of God. Such organizations are trying to dismiss from their association all members who are in favor of anarchy and social chaos. They will gradually cease anything like tyranny over their members and will forbid violent interference with any man's work, whether he belongs to their union or is outside of it, and will declare their disgust with any such rule as that passed in England by the Manchester Bricklayers' association, which says any man found running or working beyond a regular speed shall be fined two shillings sixpence for the first offense, five shillings for the second, ten shillings for the third, and if still persisting shall be dealt with as the committee thinks proper.

There are secret societies in our colleges that have letters of the Greek alphabet for their nomenclature, and their members are at the very front in scholarship and irreproachable in morals, while there are others the scene of carousal, and they gamble, and they drink, and they graduate knowing a hundred times more about sin than they do of geometry and Sophocles. In other words, secret societies, like individuals, are good or bad, are the means of moral health or of temporal and eternal damnation. All good people recognize the vice of slandering an individual, but many do not see the sin of slandering an organization. There are old secret societies in this and other countries, some of them centuries old, which have been widely denounced as immoral and damaging in their influence, yet I have hundreds of personal friends who belong to them—friends who are consecrated to God, pillars in the church, faithful in all relations of life, examples of virtue and piety. They are the kind of friends whom I would have for my executors at the time of decease, and they are the men whom I would have carry me out to the last sleep when I am dead. You cannot make me believe that they would belong to bad institutions. They are the men who would stamp on anything iniquitous, and I would certainly rather take their testimony in regard to such societies than the testimony of those who, having been sworn in as members, by their assault upon them confess themselves perjurers.

One of these secret societies gave for the relief of the sick in 1873, in this country, $1,490,274. Some of these societies have poured a very heaven of sunshine and benediction into the home of suffering. Several of them are founded on fidelity to good citizenship and the Bible. I have never taken one of their degrees. They might give me the grip a thousand times and I would not recognize it. I am ignorant of their pass-words, and I must judge entirely from the outside. But Christ has given us a rule by which we may judge not only all individuals, but all societies, secret and open. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Bad societies make bad men. Good societies make good men. A bad man will not stay in a good society. A good man will not stay in a bad society. Then try all secret societies by two or three rules.

Test the first: Their influence on home, if you have a home. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great enterprises of reform and art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front doorstep and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic or lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art or literature or religion or charity is breaking her own scepter of conjugal power. I know an instance where a wife thought that her husband was giving too many nights to Christian service, to charitable service, to prayer-meetings and to religious convocation. She systematically decoyed him away until now he attends no church, waits upon no charitable institution and is on a rapid way to destruction, his morals gone, his money gone and, I fear, his soul gone.

Here are six secular nights in the week. "What shall I do with them?" says the father and the husband. "I will give four of these nights to the improvement and entertainment of my family, either at home or in good

A Cure for Cholera Infantum.

"Last May," says Mrs. Curtis Baker, of Bookwalter, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbor's was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days' time the child had fully recovered, and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this Remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance." For sale by J. S. Banker.

THE RAIDERS BAFFLED.

A War Incident Which Proves That Things Are Not Always What They Seem.

"I saw by the paper the other day," said the old veteran, according to the New York Mail and Express, "that one of the English colonels in the Boer war had captured a wagon filled with women's wearing apparel. The incident reminded me of something that happened in the rebellion when I was serving with Kilpatrick. It was shortly after Lincoln had issued his emancipation proclamation and refugees were coming into the camp in droves.

"One day we learned from a spy that the confederates were preparing to send a wagon train along a highway some 15 miles north of the town where we were quartered, and we received orders to intercept it. There's nothing in war so absolutely pleasant and peaceable as capturing a wagon train, and, as we had been lying in camp for several days, we were ready for anything.

"Off we galloped, and about sundown we saw in the distance a vehicle of some kind slowly climbing a long hill. We spurred after it, and in a few minutes drew near to what we supposed was the confederate wagon train. As we clattered up the hill the canvas flap on the back of the wagon was lifted and a wooly head appeared in the aperture.

"'What yo' all fussin' about?' inquired the owner of the head. 'Ain't Masa Lincoln said I'se free?'

"What did we do? Why, we turned tail and rode back to camp with the sergeant swearing softly to himself. We didn't say much about our exploit next day. We didn't need to. We didn't hear of anything else for six months."

What most people want is something mild and gentle, when in need of a physic. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets fill the bill to a dot. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by J. S. Banker.

A Very Fine Collection.

Mention has been made some time since of the rarely beautiful collection of marine specimens, corals, fossils, etc., of Mrs. Alanson B. Peck, whose beautiful home is on the shelf of the hill leading from the Forks to East Genoa. Since then Mrs. Peck has materially added to her collection. There is in particular a shell box, brought to Mrs. Peck's grandmother from Cuba in 1857, which is a marvel of ingenuity and beauty. It has come into Mrs. Peck's possession lately. It is about 14 inches long, one foot wide and one foot deep, and has several compartments—the lifted lid disclosing a genuine effect. There is a decoration over the green lining consisting of shell work made with the American eagle's wings spread and three gilt stars—also a work box—a little drawer at the bottom and a mirror in the center. All over the sides of the box are corals and shells from the very tiniest imaginable. The box is certainly a treasure of art and skill. Besides this box there is a shell of pearl from the Mediterranean, coral from Panama, the triton shell from the South Pacific, called there a tea kettle shell; the paper nautilus, the East India spider shell, with its tentacle-like projections; the fan shell, the grandmother shell also known as the lamp shell, which the sailors in the Mediterranean use as a lamp filling it with oil; it has a natural handle as if designed for that purpose; there is also the sea fan from the Indian ocean, and the furbelow clam, so called on account of its ruffles and suggesting that article of feminine attire. Mrs. Peck is constantly adding to her specimens, and has now a collection of which any one may justly be proud.

The Groton Carriage Co.

The Groton Carriage company's plant was sold last Friday at auction sale. The purchasers were Frank and the Hon. Ben Conger, and they paid $97,100 for the plant and all its fixtures.

There had been some dissension among the stockholders of the Carriage company, some of whom refused to put up more money for the refitting of the plant which was deemed necessary to assure its success in the future. Finally the company decided to dissolve and sell the works.

The sale was conducted Friday and at first an attempt was made to dispose of the business in lots. It was found, however, that a larger price could be brought if it was sold in bulk, and finally the establishment was turned over to the Conger brothers who were the highest bidders.

The new company will be recapitalized and put on a firm financial basis. The proprietors are determined to greatly enlarge the works. Automobiles as well as carriages and other road vehicles will be manufactured in the future. It is expected that when the works are reopened the plant will be one of the most completely equipped in this part of the country.—Ithaca Journal.

Here's An Inducement.

Rothschild Brothers offer to the couple who get married at the Tompkins County fair on Thursday, Sept. 19th, at 1:30 p. m., a housekeeping outfit, consisting of a full set of china dishes, crockery and pantry articles, and kitchen outfit (except range) valued at $75. Conditions: The bride must be a resident of Tompkins county, and the daughter of a resident of Tompkins county, and 18 years of age or upwards; the bride or groom must never before have been married. A minister will be in attendance to perform the ceremony and a hack in waiting for their accommodation. The acceptance of this offer must be made to the secretary on or before Sept. 17th, 1901.

The Agricultural society will give to the second couple accepting the above offer, and are married, in which case the ceremony is to be performed at the fair Thursday evening at 9 o'clock, a free first class four-day trip to the Pan-American, consisting of the two round-trip railroad tickets and admission of the couple to the Pan-American. The same conditions apply as above stated.

Dr. William Davis Dead..

Monday morning word was received from Clarksfield announcing the death of Dr. William Davis, which occurred at his home in that place after an illness of about a month. He was first taken sick about five weeks ago, but grew better, and three weeks ago a change for the worse set in and since that time he gradually failed until death came to his relief Monday morning at an early hour. Dr. Davis came from Nebraska to Norwalk about six years ago and for over two years practiced his profession when he moved to Clarksfield at which place he had an extensive practice and many warm friends who will be pained to hear of his death. He was a man of broad views, and a great reader, well versed on all important topics and a fluent speaker. Politically Dr. Davis was a Democrat. The immediate cause of his death was an affection of the brain with other complications. His devoted wife has the sympathy of many friends in Norwalk as well as in the county in her hours of bereavement.—Norwalk (Ohio) Experiment, Aug. 7.

The deceased was a brother of John Davis and Mrs. Lillian Armstrong of East Genoa and Mrs. Sarah Lane and Mrs. Ella Holden of North Lansing. He had a large circle of friends in this vicinity.

A Shocking Death.

John Feeley of Mottville, an employee of the Skaneateles Paper company met with a shocking death at that company's plant, about a mile north of Skaneateles village, shortly after 7 o'clock Friday morning.

Feeley, who was an engineer on one of the beaters, had been employed in the mill for more than 30 years, most of the time as engineer. He went to work Friday morning, and when last seen alive he was going with a lantern to oil the bearings of the shafting in the basement of the mill, as was his custom. As he did not return, John Shepard and Thomas Coleman, fellow employees, investigated and found first his lantern where he had left it. They found his mangled body jammed in between the large pulleys. He had apparently been dead about half an hour.

Arthur Sidman Dead.

The death of Arthur Sidman occurred at Scarboro Beach, Me., on Aug. 11th. Mr. Sidman was to commence rehearsing his new play, "York State Folks," at New York on the 18th of August. He was a native of Homer, 38 years old, and had made Tully his summer home for a number of years. The funeral was held at Tully on Wednesday. Mr. Sidman was at one time employed on the Genoa Herald, and has stopped here for a few weeks once or twice since then. He is well remembered by many friends in this vicinity.

Decision Was Affirmed.

The case of Kate C. Colwell, respondent, against Solon E. Bacon, appellant, was before County Judge Underwood on appeal from a decision of Justice J. A. Hudson of Ledyard, rendered Aug. 2, 1898, in which Plaintiff Colwell was granted a judgment of $54.98, the suit being brought to obtain a balance on an account for merchandise. After hearing the argument Judge Underwood affirmed the decision of the lower court with costs and disbursements.

Interesting to Masons.

B. Brown, formerly of King Ferry, writes an interesting letter from his new home in Utica to friends in King Ferry, and a part of it is found below:

MASONIC HOME, UTICA, July 15th.

I arrived in Utica Tuesday, July 9th, at 5 p. m., took trolley and arrived at the Home at 5:30. After supper I was shown to my room. There are three beds in it. The bedsteads are of late style, nice wire springs, new mattresses, nice sheets and pillowcases, rose blankets and white counterpanes. We have a wardrobe with plenty of room for our clothes, shoes, satchels, umbrellas, etc. There are two dressing bureaus with large mirrors and drawers. I have two drawers for shirts, collars, underwear, neckties, etc. There is a gas chandelier, two rockers, three armchairs, brussels carpet, and wash room with cold and hot water. Each man has his towels, soap, comb and brush. We are requested every morning before leaving our rooms to shake up our beds for an airing and when we return from our breakfast our rooms are in readiness. Every Friday our bedding is changed, room swept and put in order. The superintendent, Mr. Anthony, and his assistant, Miss Rice, are very popular and try to make it pleasant for all. The dining room seats them all at a time. The tables are covered with clean linen tablecloths and napkins, and the food is good and substantial, and plenty of it. The table waiters are young ladies employed here. I asked one of the inmates if they were inmates and she said "Oh, no, they are merely employed as servants." We breakfast at 7, dine at 12, and sup at 5:30. All are allowed to have visitors, but not lodge or eat here. The Home cemetery is about ½ of a mile from here; 57 are buried there. The markers are all pretty and uniform. Service is held in the chapel Sunday at 3:30 p. m., and song service at 7:30 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. We can go to the city or wherever we wish at any time, but are expected to report at meal time and at 10 o'clock at night. If we want to be absent for a meal or to stay over night we can do so by asking permission of the superintendent which is readily granted. I attended a Masonic funeral in the city yesterday. He was a Knight Templar and they all turned out in uniform, also other Masons, and a band of music. The floral tributes were beautiful; the casket was covered with them and the hearse full of them. The burial was at Forest Hill cemetery, about 6 miles from the Home. I visited the graves of Gov. Horatio Seymour, Roscoe Conklin, and other prominent men. New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Auburn and other cities are well represented here. The Home is reached by trolley and is about 2½ miles east of the city. The buildings are situated nearly in the center of a farm of 170 acres which is devoted to the raising of supplies for the Home. A herd of 25 cows furnishes an ample supply of milk for the inmates which now number 265; about 70 women, 54 children and the remainder are men. The buildings are of red brick, elegant in proportion and substantial in appearance. The parlors, reception room, dining room and kitchen, the reading rooms and smoking room, bath rooms and library are models. The library contains 1,500 books, all contributed by the order. Good order and cleanliness prevail everywhere. So far I have not seen one moment of homesickness. There are a great many refined people here who have seen better days. I have met a number of men and their wives and have visited them in their rooms. Any woman who objects to her husband joining the Masons would change her mind after visiting this Home. The only thing is being so far from our friends, but we can visit them at any time money is furnished. The farm house is situated ¼ of a mile from the Home. We have an abundance of green peas, beans and other vegetables. Watermelons and muskmelons will soon be in order. The manager of the farm told me that last summer they sent as many as 40 watermelons at a time to the Home, and sometimes 300 muskmelons. The overseer and 5 men are employed on the farm. They have 7 horses and about 150 as fine hogs as you ever saw. The children are well disciplined; their ages range from 6 to 14 years; I am told that 7 of the number graduate in September; some will be educated to attend college later. Remember me kindly to the brethren of the lodge and all inquiring friends.

Do you know Hynes' Shoes?

Step in Wednesday, "Maccabee Day," and purchase a pair. As soon as you do know them you will be sorry you had n't known them sooner. They are the shoes that satisfy both in style and quality, else Hynes makes it satisfactory.

A pair of Oxfords at the reduction we have made is a good investment.

neighborhood. I will devote one to charitable institutions. I will devote one to my lodge." I congratulate you. Here is a man who says: "Out of the six secular nights of the week I will devote five to lodges and clubs and associations and one to the home, which night I will spend in scowling like a March squall, wishing I was out spending it as I have spent the other five." That man's obituary is written. Not one out of ten thousand that ever get so far on the wrong road ever stops. Gradually his health will fail through late hours, and through too much stimulants he will be first-rate prey for erysipelas and rheumatism of the heart.

The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight, but years of fast living. The clergyman, for the sake of the feelings of the family, on the funeral day will only talk in religious generalities. The men who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at the obsequies. They have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the coffin, will send their wives to utter words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come. Bring me mallet and chisel, and I will cut that man's epitaph: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord?" "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his?" "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." Then give me the mallet and the chisel, and I will cut an honest epitaph: "Here lies the victim of dissipating associations!"

Another test by which you can find whether your secret society is right or wrong is the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial success. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the secret society has advantaged you in an honorable calling, it is a good one, but has your credit failed? Are bargain makers now more anxious how they trust you with a bale of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency A1 before they entered the society been going down since in commercial standing? Then look out. You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members, their fortune beaten to death with ball players' bat or cut amidships with the front prow of the regatta or going down under the swift hoofs of the fast horses or drowned in the large potations of cognac or Monongahela. That secret society was the Loch Earn. Their business was the Ville de Havre. They struck, and the Ville de Havre went under!

The third test by which you may know whether the society to which you belong is good or bad is this: What is its effect on your sense of moral and religious obligation? Now, if I should take the names of all the people in this audience and put them on a roll and then I should lay that roll back of this organ and a hundred years from now some one should take that roll and call it from A to Z there would not one of you answer. I say that any society that makes me forget that fact is a bad society.

Oh, man astray, God help you! I am going to make a very stout rope. You know that sometimes a rope-maker will take very small threads and wind them together until after awhile they become a ship cable. And I am going to take some very small, delicate threads and wind them together until they make a very stout rope. I will take all the memories of the marriage day—a thread of laughter, a thread of light, a thread of music, a thread of banqueting, a thread of congratulation—and I twist them together, and I have one strand. Then I take a thread of the hour of the first advent in your house, a thread of the darkness that preceded, and a thread of the light that followed, and a thread of the beautiful scarf that little child used to wear when she bounded out at eventide to greet you, and then a thread of the beautiful dress in which you laid her away for the resurrection, and then I twist all these threads together, and I have another strand. Then I take a thread of the scarlet robe of a suffering Christ, and a thread of the white raiment of your loved ones before the throne, and a string of the harp cherubic, and a string of the harp seraphic, and I twist them all together, and I have a third strand. "Oh," you say, "either strand is enough to hold fast a world!" No. I will take these strands, and I will twist them together, and one end of that rope I will fasten, not to the communion table, for it shall be removed; not to a pillar of the organ, for that will crumble in the ages; but I wind it round and round the cross of a sympathizing Christ, and, having fastened one end of the rope to the cross, I throw the other end to you. Lay hold of it! Pull for your life! Pull for Heaven!

THE KEARSARGE PENNANT.

Civil War Relic That Served to Inspire Americans at the Battle of Manila.

On the evening of the battle of Manila, writes Lieut. J. M. Ellicott in St. Nicholas, I sat at my desk in my stateroom on the "Baltimore," sipping a cup of after-dinner coffee, and putting my personal affairs in such shape that if I fell a victim to battle they could be properly handled by others. While destroying a large accumulation of unimportant letters, I came upon a fragment of red-and-white bunting enclosed in an envelope and labeled: "A piece of the pennant which flew at the masthead of the United States steamship Kearsarge, when she fought her great duel with the confederate cruiser Alabama."

It had been given to me as a token of regard by the daughter of Admiral Winslow, because I was engaged upon a biography of her father. As I gazed upon the bit of bunting my soul was stirred at the thought that it was once again going into battle; I remembered that sailors are inspired by a good omen, so I placed it in the inside pocket of the blouse which I expected to wear in action.

As the shroud of that long night lifted, and the gray, vaporous dawn of the tropics overspread Manila bay, the quartermaster on the Baltimore's bridge cried out: "There they are!" and I thought again of my piece of victorious bunting, recalling how, 34 years before, a quartermaster on another American warship's bridge had exclaimed exultingly under that flag: "She's coming!"

We sprang to our guns on the Baltimore's forecastle. A signal of three flags sped quickly to the yard-arm of the Olympia ahead of us, a signal which had not been displayed from an American warship for a third of a century.

"Prepare for general action!"

Instinctively we looked aloft, for from every masthead in that long columns of warships burst the stars and stripes. Then our captain cried out from the bridge:

"Men, we must fight on empty stomachs, but we have full hearts. Let us see once more what can be done under those flags!"

Then I held my bit of bunting toward my gun's crew, and said:

"Here, men, is our mascot—a piece of the battle-pennant of the Kearsarge. Let it look once more upon brave deeds in battle!"

When we drew off for breakfast the tropic heat was becoming intense, so I exchanged my blue blouse for a white one. As we steamed in again to complete our victory, I noticed that my gun captain was eying me in a troubled way, so I asked him what was the matter. Coming very close to me he whispered: "Have you still the Kearsarge flag, sir?"

"Why, no," I replied. "I left it in the pocket of my other blouse; but that's all right; it's still on board, you know."

The sailor shook his head dubiously. "I don't know, sir," he said. "I think you had better not let 'em know you haven't it."

I doubt if the knowledge of its absence would have been apparent under the circumstances. It certainly was not in the steady bearing of my gun-captain. But if ever again I take a crew into battle under the inspiration of a mascot, I shall take care to keep the talisman with me to the end.

Told on a Street Car.

A good evidence of how completely sectional lines have been obliterated in New York business life and how completely have faded bitter memories of the civil war was given a few days since in a street car incident. When he boarded a car going downtown, a well-known man about town met a lawyer whom he had known for years. In the course of their conversation it developed that the lawyer had been captured by Mosby's guerrillas during one of their raids, and that it was only by a lucky accident that he escaped death by hanging. A few hours later the same man boarded a car going up-town, and on it found a second lawyer, with whom his acquaintance was of a more recent date. Impressed by the story of Lawyer No. 1, he recounted it to Lawyer No. 2, who laughed heartily and then remarked: "I was one of the squad detailed from Mosby's guerrillas to hang that very man. I haven't seen him since his escape, but I frequently hear of him in the practice of my profession."—N. Y. Times.

A STUBBORN COMPANY COOK.

Moved at Last When a Shell Came Along and Carried Off the Dinner.

"Where we were camped one spell in front of Petersburg," said a civil war veteran, "there was one gun on the other side that seemed to have a line on our company street.

"As a general thing the shells would go over us to the rear; but once in awhile one would burst over the street, and now and then we'd get one touching the ground. And with the conditions as they were, when a shell actually stirred up the dust in the street like that it almost always struck very close to one particular spot, that being at the inner end of the street and on the cook tent's side.

"That used to disturb us considerable, because we didn't know but what some day a shell might come along through there and carry off our dinner, and we tried to get the cook to shift the fire a little, ten feet or so, so we wouldn't be in so much danger; but he was a stubborn cuss, and he wouldn't.

"He said a cook fire wouldn't look very well out in the middle of the company street, and there wasn't any danger, anyhow. What we wanted, I guess, was to keep it where it would be most convenient, right alongside of his tent; but there's where he did keep it, anyway. We couldn't move him till something happened.

"Our fire arrangement was just the usual thing, a couple of crotched sticks driven in the ground, five or six feet apart, with a pole laid across between them, and the camp kettles hanging from that pole, with the fire built under them. We got a shell from that gun one day that took away one of those crotched sticks and scattered earth around pretty freely, but it didn't do any other damage; it was just after breakfast, when there was nothing on the pole; but we got a shot later that same morning, when there was something there, our dinner.

"We were going to have boiled pork, boiled beans and coffee for dinner that day, and all three kettles were hanging side by side and close together on the pole, and b'ilin' away merrily, when along came a shell, there close to the ground, and how it ever did it I don't know, because it didn't have the kettles in line; but it managed somehow, all the same, to smash all three of them into 17 different kinds of cocked hats, and it scattered our dinner pretty much all over creation.

"For about a minute it just rained beans and coffee and chunks of pork all round that neighborhood. Some of the pork came down four streets away; and it seemed as though in our street there wasn't a tent but what got more or less of the beans or coffee or both. You wouldn't have thought they could have been so widely distributed, so that there was enough of 'em to go 'round so far, and the shell didn't explode, you understand, either, just smashed the kettle, and passed on.

"Well, we lost our dinner that day, but the loss served one good purpose; we were able after that to get the cook to move the fire a little, anyway, out of the range of that gun."

Honest now, do you owe the printer?

Pale Weak, Run-down Overworked Women half sick, nervous, tired out with household and maternal cares, constipated, liver torpid, with blotched, muddy, sallow complexions, blood thin and impure, need building up and a thorough renovation of their systems. This is the time you need such a great nerve and stomach builder as the great tonic laxative. It gently moves the bowels and thus removes the cause, and acts directly upon the liver and kidneys, keeping them active and strong, while its marvellous tonic properties clears the complexion, stimulates the liver, quickens the circulation, increases the flesh, brightens the eye; the nervousness speedily disappears, and the entire system recuperates and tones up to a condition of perfect and permanent health.

Laxakola, the great tonic laxative, is not only the most efficient of family remedies, but the most economical, because it combines two medicines, viz: laxative and tonic, and at one price. No other remedy gives so much for the money. At druggists, 25c. and 50c., or free sample of THE LAXAKOLA CO., 132 Nassau Street, N. Y., or 356 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

LAXAKOLA FOR CHILDREN

Give the children Laxakola. It is absolutely safe, being purely vegetable, containing nothing of a harmful character. It builds the little ones up instead of debilitating them. It reaches every organ, cleanses and strengthens the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood and makes them hearty and strong. It tastes good. ☞ Children like it and ask for it.

ADULTERATED COFFEE.

GROCER WHITE FOUND GUILTY OF VIOLATING OHIO'S PURE FOOD LAWS.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Roasting of Coffee Brought Out by Scientific Experts—Presence of Bacteria.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 3.—The jury in Judge Meck's court in this city has found James White, a local grocer, guilty of selling adulterated coffee. The prosecution was based on a package of Arbuckles Ariosa coffee.

The State of Ohio, through the Pure Food Commission, prosecuted White. The case was on trial for nearly a month and attracted national attention.

The manufacturers of Ariosa coffee conducted the defense for Grocer White. The best attorneys in the country were retained to defend him, but, after a short consultation, a verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. The State of Ohio considers this a big victory. Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn has been waging a warfare on spurious food articles and the department has been successful.

The complaint of the State of Ohio was that Ariosa coffee was coated with a substance which concealed defects in the coffee and made it appear better than it is. The State charged this coating or glazing was a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria.

Prof. G. A. Kirchmaier, of this city, a well known chemist, was the principal witness for the State. He had made scientific examinations of samples of Ariosa purchased from Grocer White in the open market. He found that each Ariosa berry contained an average of 300 bacteria. Mr. Kirchmaier further testified that other coffees he examined contained few bacteria or none at all. He declared that the glazed coffee was not a wholesome food product.

Chemist Schmidt, of Cincinnati, corroborated the testimony of Prof. Kirchmaier. The State did not present further testimony.

The defense through the Arbuckles, who prepared this glazed coffee, secured some of the most eminent chemists and scientists in the United States to give testimony in their behalf. Prof. H. W. Wiley, of the United States Agricultural Department; Prof. Vaughn of Ann Arbor University; Profs. Bielle and Webber, of the Ohio State University, were called to defend Ariosa. Dr. Wiley had made a careful examination of the method of manufacturing Ariosa. He told of the 19,000,000 eggs used by the Arbuckles yearly in the preparation of this glazing. On this point in cross examination, the State's attorney deftly drew from him the information that these eggs might be kept in cold storage by the Arbuckles for a year or two at a time.

The experts who heard Dr. Wiley's testimony were pleased to be able to "catch" so famous a chemist. The doctor at one point in his testimony explained very clearly how it is that the egg put into the coffee pot by the house wife settles the coffee. He said that the heat coagulates the egg, and as it sinks to the bottom of the pot it carries the fine particles of coffee with it, and thus clarifies the drink. It is the act of coagulation in the coffee pot that does the work. Later on in his cross examination, he had to admit that when the egg was put on Ariosa coffee at the factory it became coagulated, and as egg cannot be coagulated but once, that the coating on coffee was practically no value, as a "settler" when it reached the coffee pot.

Prof. Wiley acknowledged that the glazing might be a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria, although he would not testify positively either way because he was not a bacteriologist.

Prof. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor, also a witness for the Arbuckles, said he found bacteria on Ariosa coffee.

Prof. Bielle, another witness for the defense, found any number of lively bacteria on Ariosa coffee he examined, and he agreed that glazed coffee surely was a more favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria than unglazed coffee.

Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn says: "The State is very much elated over its victory against this corporation. We are now considering the advisability of informing every grocer in the State of Ohio that it is an infraction of the laws to sell Ariosa, and at the same time give warning to consumers that the coffee is an adulterated food article."

The verdict of the jury in this case is of national importance because a great many other States have pure food laws like that of Ohio, and it is natural to suppose that similar action will be taken by other Pure Food Commissioners to prevent the sale of glazed coffees.

Washington's Fastidious Kinsman.

Lawrence, earl of Ferrers, a distant relative of George Washington, had a most tyrannical temper, and one day in a fit of passion he cut down with his sword his steward, an old gentleman named Johnson. The latter had given no provocation for the deed, and the crime was an act of brutality inexcusable save that the earl may not have been well balanced mentally. He was brought to trial for killing Johnson and demanded and received the privilege of being tried by his peers.

The house of lords was thronged during the hearing. The evidence proved to be conclusive, and Ferrers was sentenced to be hanged at Tyburn. Appeals were made to the king for clemency, but in vain. Ferrers met his fate with considerable bravado. He was carefully attired for the occasion and insisted on providing a silken cord for the ceremony. To this whim the executioner agreed, and the earl was turned off otherwise like any other felon.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

A gymnasium is to be established in a synagogue in Cleveland.

Fully one-fifth of the entire population of this country is either studying or teaching.

Bishop Huntington, of the central New York Protestant Episcopal diocese, is 82 years old, but in order to keep an appointment he walked eight miles over country roads, there being no train to suit.

Rev. Frank Gunsaulus, of Chicago, has interested his congregation in mining, and the church has invested in a mine in the Cripple Creek district, which will be operated for the benefit of the church.

The Adventists report that they have 175 churches in the state of Michigan with a membership of 7,722. Their property is worth $105,321. There are 179 Sunday schools with a membership of 5,134.

The United Kingdom and France, together, have fewer pupils than America by 4,000,000. The total enrollment of Great Britain and Ireland, France and all the states in the German confederation is but a trifle over 19,000,000.

The latest official returns of other countries show that America has a larger school proporton than any other country. The school enrollment for Great Britain and Ireland records but 5,678,640 pupils for the past year. In France, with all its boasted system of public education, there were but 5,535,125. In the entire German empire there were 7,925,000. Austria had 3,423,683; Hungary, 1,858,216; Russia, with its teeming millions, but 3,779,818, and Italy, 2,589,000.

KINDS OF SPIDERS.

A Budget of Correct Information About the Terrible Tarantula and Others.

There are very many kinds of spiders besides those that annoy the housewife with their webs stuck up in the corners of the rooms and in the windows when she has been too busy with the sewing to look after the house much; but every kind is an appetite on eight legs, and thoroughly convinced that nobody can be strong and hearty that lives on vegetables. They all spin more or less, whence their name, which is a contraction of spinder, or spinner, says Harvey Sutherland, in Ainslee's. Also, they bite, and if you listen to all the fool stories that are told, when a spider bites you, you will save time by sending for the lawyer to make your will, and telegraph for the boys to come home at once if they want to see you alive. But I will tell you as between educated people that know a thing or two and do not get scared over little trifles, that a spider's bite is no worse than a mosquito's—not so bad, in fact. A big spider can kill a small bird with its poison, but it only makes a man's arm swell up and hurt for a day or less, and not hurt very much at that. Bertkau could not feel the ordinary domestic spider on the thick of his hand, and only between the fingers could the spider make a puncture like that of a dull pin. The worst result was that it itched a little. Blackwall had them draw blood, but that was all. Though one spider bit another so hard that its liver ran out, it lived for more than a year afterward. As for these terrible tarantulas, either the stories told about victims having to dance till they fell down in exhaustion in order to escape death and madness were tremendous whoppers or tarantulas don't bite as bad as they used to. It is true that in those days the Italian violinists had to work overtime composing tarantelles to play for the bitten, but still there were sneering skeptics that said it was all a scheme got up to pass the hat for the wife and family of the suffering man whom a malignant spider had bitten while he was out looking for a job. Dufour had a tarantula that was quite tame and gentle. She took flies from his fingers like a dear thing. Almost any spider can be taught to take food from forceps and water from a camel's-hair brush. They are great water-drinkers, spiders are. I'll say that for 'em. Like the little temperance bird we used to read about: "Water, cold water, is all of their song." Rum and tobacco they turn from with loathing.

Behind English Walls.

Not until the visitor to England mounts to the top of a coach does he have any conception of the glories hidden behind those brick battlements which make every Englishman's home veritably a castle. What a revelation of beauty they are! Now it is seen that the reverse side of the vine-clad wall forms the most effective of backgrounds for the gay flowers in the hardy border. Hollyhocks stand up like sentinels against the ivy; huge oriental poppies splash their wonderful color among the shrubbery; roses fairly intoxicate the senses where they climb over the half-timbered Elizabethan houses and tangle themselves with the clematis in wild profusion over the arches that span the trim garden paths. During a day's ride on top of a coach one will see hundreds of enchanting gardens; during quite a long walk along the same road one would not even suspect their presence, because of the universal wall, were not an occasional gate left ajar, thereby offering a surreptitious peep.—Everybody's Magazine.

Not So Much.

"Allow me to congratulate you. I have just heard that you are one of your uncle's heirs to $10,000."

"Not so hard, old man. There are 23 other heirs."—N. Y. Herald.

All eyes require glasses sooner or later. Defective eyes, unless strengthened with glasses, become more weakened. The proper glass can often work protective wonders if used in time, but it can't restore weakened eyes brought about through neglect. If you have any eye trouble you should consult

AUG. 13—The threshing season is here, with a very poor outlook both for them and the farmer. Wheat, oats and barley are nearly a failure.

Reuben Doty and wife are spending their vacation at the Thousand Islands, and expect to return by the way of Buffalo.

Mrs. Austin Tabor has gone to Saranac Lake where she will spend several weeks.

F. C. Whitten has purchased the store on the corner of G. S. Young.

We are glad to see the announcement of a fair at Moravia and hope it will be a success. Would it not be a good idea for the people to get on a regular Dryden hustle?

G. S. Young and wife were at the farm the last of the week.

George Freece is again trustee in our school district.

Do the traveling public know where the large rock is located right in the center of the track on the public highway, almost if not quite in front of a thrifty farmer's home and in very close earshot of the many curses rendered by those who are compelled to drive over it year after year. Now let's make a very low estimate of the curses that might have been saved by about one hour's work with a team. Ten curses a day and night, very much larger when dark, for 10 years would make 36,500. Of course they were not so loud and numerous when the rock just began to show itself 10 years ago. Now I ask my brother readers where is there another man who could have saved that number of curses for such a very small amount of labor.

Obituary.

Mrs. Minnie B. Holden passed away at the home of her mother, Mrs. C D Strong, at eight o'clock Sunday evening, August 4, 1901, aged 29 years, 4 months and 4 days She had been a sufferer about three months from the dreadful disease, consumption, and during the last week seemed to fall quite rapidly to the last. She fell peacefully asleep in the arms of Jesus, surrounded by loved ones who will miss the long companionship of her helpful life. She leaves a mother and little daughter and a kind step father, C. D. Strong, besides a large circle of friends to mourn her untimely death She was born in Lansing, the only child.

The memorial services were held Wednesday, August 7, at the home in this village, Rev. H F. Shoemaker of the North Lansing M. E. church officiating. Interment in the Genoa cemetery.

She passed o'er the river to the bright shore
Where the earthly sorrows can wound us no more:
Free, blessed Lord, from burdens of life,
Hurg-r and envy, malice and strife:
There to find rest, sweet rest, in Thy love,
Soothed by the songs of the angels above;
So tly to join in the chorus so sweet,
Humbly, dear Lord, to kneel at Thy feet.

Annual Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Bower family will be held Aug. 28, at the home of Matilda Bloom, one-half mile north of Lansingville. All relatives are cordially invited. *

New Trains Are Beauties.

The two new Lackawanna passenger trains made their initial trip over the main line of the road the other day. They are equipped with the latest improvements and quite a crowd was at the station in Binghamton to see them.

The trains have the same equipments, or two coaches, a parlor car and a dining car. The cars are extra large and on the outside are plain. The interior is finished in quartered oak in dark green. The seats have high curved backs, and lavatories are at each end of the car. The observation car is handsomely finished on the interior and new features have been added.

The trains were on time in Binghamton. No. 6 from Buffalo arrived there at 3:23 p. m. Charles Nichols of Binghamton was conductor and Arthur Loomis of Scranton engineer. No. 3 arrived in Binghamton from New York at 5:18 p. m., with George J. Glover of Binghamton conductor and Bert Tingley of Scranton, engineer. No. 6 switched her dining car and it was taken by No. 3 going west. No. 6 took on a dining car at Stroudsburg.

The trains make the trip between New York and Buffalo in 9 hours and 45 minutes. But two stops, at Scranton and Stroudsburg, are made between Binghamton and New York.

Armour & Company are in the fertilizer business from necessity, and are in it as a permanent business. They will not only sell fertilizer this year, but next year, and for many years. Their fertilizers are as good as can be made. They want permanent customers. If you use Armour's Fertilizers you are getting fertilizer from headquarters.

Armour's Animal Fertilizers contain in concentrated form plant food which came out of the ground. The bulk of this material comes from the animals slaughtered by Armour & Company at their various slaughter houses, combined with potash salts, nitrate of soda, etc., as different soils, crops and climatic conditions dictate.
