A fine flowing well, 250 feet deep, has been secured by Landlord Shaver of Freeville.

A young man who recently died at Penn Yan carried $3,000 life insurance upon which only $102 had been paid.

In the jury trial between the People against George Coon for assault, in Lansing, Thursday, the jury found "no cause of action."

Seven cattle buyers were registered at the Palmer House Monday night. This would indicate there is quite a demand for Eastern beef.—Norwich Sun.

General John M. Palmer comes out flat-footed for McKinley. And Palmer is the only Democrat elected to the United States Senate from Illinois since the war.

Sam Kellan, a Binghamton liveryman, claims to have in his possession the horse that Col. "Teddy" Roosevelt rode in his brilliant charge up San Juan hill.

A writer in the Binghamton Democrat says that the fare on the packet boat New York, on the Chenango canal, in 1847, from Binghamton to Hamilton was 50 cents. The distance was 66 miles.

The D., L. & W. company is to erect a new passenger station at Binghamton. The contract has been let to the Grace & Hyde Co. of New York, for about $40,000. Oxford stone will be used.

Georgetown farmers have all but gone out of the hop business. Last year there was only 37 acres devoted to hop culture in that town and this year it is said the acreage has been reduced to two.

The Rev. Lewis Halsey, formerly of Farmer, has been appointed one of the vice-presidents and representatives of the territory of Arizona at the Pan-American exposition to be held at Buffalo next year.

A Medina farmer left his new self-binder in a field of wheat he was cutting and during the night some enemy covered it with the sheaves of wheat and fired the pile, ruining the binder and destroying a large quantity of the grain.

Philip Scheuerman of Fayetteville, who sustained a broken neck while bathing at Sylvan Beach on the day of the hop growers' picnic, died at Dr. Cavanaugh's hospital last Friday afternoon. The remains were taken to his late home where interment was made.

The Tompkins County Agricultural society decided Saturday to offer a special prize of $15 to the best gun club shooting clay pigeons, in a contest to be held on the grounds during the first day of the fair. This contest is open to all clubs in Tompkins and adjoining counties.

Thus far this year the Standard Oil company has declared dividends of 38 per cent, and the New York Journal parades the fact as a campaign argument against McKinley. Will The Journal kindly explain how the election of Bryan would reduce the profits of the Standard Oil company?

Last week cable communications were established between United States and Portugal. A four or five line article on an inside page was devoted to convey this information to the readers of the dailies. Just a little difference from the time when Great Eastern laid the first cable and that was not very many years ago.

The next generation of Cubans will be all the better for the fact that the school teachers of Cuba were furnished instruction in the United States this summer. No one will called "Imperialism." We wonder if all who oppose the policy of the administration have pondered over this point.

Caroline Hart, an inmate of Auburn prison, hung herself in her cell early Saturday morning, using strips of her bed clothing for a rope. She was received at the prison in 1899 to serve 9 years for manslaughter and abortion. Fred Varney of Syracuse, also a convict, for burglary and in for 5 years, attempted to hang himself the same morning, but was cut down by a guard in time to save his life.

Under the new letting of the mail routes which will be advertised next September to take effect July 1, 1901, the contractors will be required to deliver mail to residents along their routes when so desired by such residents who will be required to place convenient boxes or receptacles along the highway in which their mail will be placed, when orders are left at the postoffice to that effect. This will be practically free delivery along all stage routes.

A Western exchange tells of a wife of a Methodist minister in an Iowa town who has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robins, the second Sparrow, and the present one named Quayle. There are two young Robins, one Sparrow, and two little Quayles and the family live on Jay street. One almost might be forgiven for suggesting that the lady was a "bird."

It is said that the Democratic party will soon have an official organ in Auburn. Details are very meagre, but A. L. Childs of Waterloo, clerk of Auburn prison under Governor Hill, and later editor of the Waterloo Observer, will probably be the editor. The paper, if issued, will be printed at the Bulletin office. In order that the new daily may not interfere any more than necessary with the Bulletin, it is to be a morning paper.

John Fairbanks of North Pharsalia sprinkled the interior of his henhouse with kerosene and touched a match to it, to kill the lice. After extinguishing the flames, as he supposed, he went to a neighbor's, returning to find the lice all consumed, also the building and his cow barn, with hay, wagons, new cutter, etc. There was a small insurance. Wonder if this man is related to the DeBuyter Fairbanks of years ago who was so nearly killed in dodging the beetle he asked a friend to throw to him.

It is doubtless true that "the Chinese soldier who is bloodiest from butchering the American citizens and soldiers is the bravest" in the eyes of his fellow countrymen, just as the American soldier who did the most to destroy Spaniards in the Cuban war, was extolled the highest by the press and pulpit of his native land, while his fair country-women tumbled over each other to hug and kiss the sanguinary hero. "Why does the American government allow this?" Gibbon, in his "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," speaking upon this subject, answers the question by saying: "As long as mankind shall continue to bestow more liberal applause on their destroyers than on their benefactors, the thirst of military glory will ever be the vice of the most exalted characters."

Although a notice has been given, it is not too late to add a few words concerning our venerable friend and former neighbor, Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, who departed this life in the 94th year of her age. It is comforting to know that she retained her mental faculties to the last. Though she had outlived nearly all her contemporaries, the large gathering of friends at the house and also at the church manifested the esteem of the community in which she had so long resided, as well as the respect for the aged. For some years she has had the honor of being the oldest lady, if not the oldest person, in town. The Rev. Mr. Small of Lansing gave a very appropriate discourse from Matthew, "Be ye also ready," etc. The four fine looking grandsons, all brothers, acted as pall bearers. AMERICA'S ANSWER TO CHINA.

Relief Expedition Must Enter the Capital Unmolested and Escort Foreigners to Place of Safety Before Peace is Considered.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The American commander in China in a dispatch of just three words received at the war department late yesterday afternoon sent a thrill of exultation and expectancy throughout official quarters by announcing his arrival at Ho-Si-Wu, only 33 miles from Peking, last Thursday. The first heard from him before this was at Yang-tsun, which had been captured after a hard fight, and word of his movements since then had been eagerly awaited. Thursday he was 18 miles beyond Yang-tsun. Lang-Fang, the place where the ill-fated Seymour expedition met its fate and turned back, had been left behind. The battle of Yang-tsun was fought on the 6th, and the advance on Ho-Si-Wu was accomplished on the 9th, a march of 18 miles in three days. This was four days ago, and at the same rate of progress Chaffee is even now fairly within striking distance of the walls of Peking. It was a consummation which the war department had awaited calmly, and, stirring as the news was that the American force was now near the gates of the imperial city, Secretary Root and Adjutant General Corbin evinced no surprise, as it accorded with calculations, although the advance has been more rapid than was expected.

Word of the advance soon spread throughout official quarters, and in the enthusiasm of the moment a report got about that this was the day for the actual arrival at Peking. But the war department had not a word of the advance beyond Ho-Si-Wu. It was deemed hardly likely the march to Peking should have been made since last Thursday. At the rate of progress, six miles a day, made from Yang-tsun to Ho-Si-Wu, about 24 miles would have been covered in the last four days, and up to yesterday this would still leave the international forces nine miles from Peking. Viewed from any standpoint the advance to Ho-Si-Wu was of the utmost importance not only strategically, but also in showing that communication was open back to Chefu, that the expected opposition from Chinese hordes had not been sufficient to prevent the steady forward movement and in the influence it would exert upon the Chinese government.

The reply of the United States government to China's overtures of peace was made public early in the day, showing the firm and final position that had been taken. While expressing satisfaction at this pacific step, the reply states that it is evident that "there can be no general negotiation between China and the powers" so long as the ministers and legationers are restrained and in danger. Then follows a specific statement of what the United States expects as a condition precedent to a cessation of hostilities—viz, that a body of the relief force be permitted to "enter Peking unmolested" and escort the ministers back to Tien-tsin. The text of the American reply is as follows:

"Touching the imperial edict of Aug. 8 appointing Li Hung Chang envoy plenipotentiary to conduct negotiations on the part of China with the powers and the request for a cessation of hostilities pending negotiations, communicated to Mr. Adee by Mr. Wu on Aug. 12, 1900, the government of the United States learns with satisfaction of the appointment of Earl Li Hung Chang as envoy plenipotentiary to conduct negotiations with the powers and will on its part enter upon such negotiations with a desire to continue the friendly relations so long existing between the two countries.

"It is evident that there can be no general negotiations between China and the powers so long as the ministers of the powers and the persons under their protection remain in their present position of restraint and danger and that the powers cannot cease their efforts for the delivery of these representatives, to which they are constrained by the highest considerations of national honor, except under an arrangement adequate to accomplish a peaceable deliverance.

"We are ready to enter into an agreement between the powers and the Chinese government for a cessation of hostile demonstrations on condition that a sufficient body of the forces composing the relief expedition shall be permitted to enter Peking unmolested and to escort the foreign ministers and residents back to Tien-tsin, this movement being provided for and secured by such arrangements and dispositions of troops as shall be considered satisfactory by the generals commanding the forces composing the relief expedition."

ONLY TEN DAYS' FOOD.

Minister Macdonald Says Situation is Desperate.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The British consul at Canton, says The Daily Telegraph's correspondent there, has received the following message, dated Aug. 6, from Sir Claude Macdonald, British minister in Peking: "Our situation here is desperate. In ten days our food supply will be at an end. Unless we are relieved a general massacre is probable. The Chinese offer to escort us to Tien-tsin, but, remembering Cawnpur, we refuse the offer. There are over 200 European women and children in this legation."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, wiring yesterday, says, "The allies at noon Saturday were within 30 miles of Peking."

A Yang-tsun dispatch, dated Aug. 7, giving details regarding the capture of that place, says:

icans advanced on the village at a rapid rate for 5,000 yards and under a severe shell and rifle fire. The Russians opened, and the British-American advance became a race for positions, culminating in a brilliant charge.

"The heaviest loss of the day was sustained by the Americans, the Fourteenth infantry having 9 killed, 62 wounded and several missing. The Bengal lancers unsuccessfully attempted to cut off the Chinese retreat."

Another Yang-tsun special says: "Owing to a mistake British and Russian guns shelled the Fourteenth United States infantry during the night, wounding ten."

GRADE CROSSING SLAUGHTER.

Eleven Omnibus Passengers Killed and Eleven Others Seriously Hurt.

SLATINGTON, Pa., Aug. 13.—Eleven persons were instantly killed and 11 others, several of whom will die, were seriously injured last night in a grade crossing accident three miles east of this city by a passenger train on the Lehigh and New England railroad crashing into an omnibus containing 25 persons. All the dead and injured were in the omnibus, and but three escaped uninjured.

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock. The omnibus, driven by a man named Peters, was returning to Slatington from a funeral the occupants had been attending at Cherrysville. The coach belonged to Henry Bittner of Slatington, and the dead and injured were nearly all relatives of Sophia Schoeffer, at whose obsequies they had been present. The train was a special and consisted of an engine and one car. At the point at which the collision occurred there is a sharp curve in the road, and the omnibus came along at a good rate of speed, the occupants being unconscious of any impending danger. As the bus swung around the curve the engine and car came in sight. It was too late to stop either the omnibus or the train, and as the driver of the former whipped up the four horses to cross the track ahead of the train the latter crashed into its middle. The occupants were thrown in all directions, bruised and bleeding. The 11 dead were killed outright. Physicians and a special train were sent for, and the injured were taken to South Bethlehem.

No watchman is employed to warn teams or pedestrians of any approaching train, and those living in the vicinity state that it is impossible to hear an approaching train. A peculiar feature of the accident was that the horses drawing the bus escaped unhurt.

GRATEFUL CUBANS.

The Teachers Not Unmindful of the Favors Received.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 10.—The Cuban teachers as a body who have been trying to devise some suitable means of expressing their thanks to Harvard and to all people who have helped them have adopted plans. A loving cup to be presented to the university and the national concert which will be given next Thursday evening will partly serve the purpose. Yesterday, however, neatly printed cards were handed about by the Cubans to the guides, instructors and all other Americans in Cambridge who have been friendly to them in any way bearing the following words:

"The Cuban teachers who, through the efforts of Mr. Frye, have been enabled to attend the course of instruction in the Harvard summer school cannot find words to express their gratitude toward the American people and in particular toward all the officers of the university.

"They also thank the commercial establishments in general for the kind way in which they have been treated.

"Hurrah for the American people!

"Hurrah for Harvard university!

"Hurrah for the American government!

"Hurrah for Mr. Frye, President Eliot, the professors of geography and the instructors of English!

"The people of Cuba will never forget them."

Dr. Dowie Off to Holy Land.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Dr. John Alexander Dowie, "Overseer on Earth of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion," arrived in this city yesterday from Chicago, en route to the Holy Land. The earthly Zion of which Dr. Dowie is overseer is situated on the shores of Lake Michigan, 42 miles from Chicago, but the overseer does not live there yet, because the city is not completed. The headquarters of this sect is in Chicago, where for ten years it has existed and grown despite the efforts of the Chicago churches, the board of health and a large proportion of the citizens to drive it out. Starting with nothing, it has at present, according to its leader, more than 50,000 active members and has accumulated property valued at $2,000,000.

Fire at Glens Falls, N. Y.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The most destructive fire since the burning of the Glens Falls Portland Cement company a year ago this month resulted in a loss of over $100,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire originated in the workroom of Heffron & Linehan, shirt manufacturers, occupying the third floor of the A. S. Ruggie collar and cuff factory, and spread from there to the building occupied by the Glens Falls Electric and Gas company and D. Robertson & Co., manufacturers of shirts and ladies' waists. The Central House, the Park hotel and the McGregor Park Music hall were then attacked by the flames.

King Humbert's Funeral.

ROME, Aug. 10.—With as much simplicity as the last rites to a king would permit the remains of the late King Humbert of Italy received their last honors and tributes from his loving country yesterday. The casket containing his body, borne on a gun carriage, preceded by his general aid-de-camp carrying his sword, followed by his favorite war horse and surrounded by those who were closest to him in the councils of state, was deposited after an imposing ceremony in the Pantheon. The city was a mass of somber decoration, giving Home

Smoking in the evening produces wakefulness, as the nicotine acts as a cerebral irritant, and interferes with the vasomotor centers.

Mr. Malins, the head of the Good Templar order, has completed his temperance tour round the world in 44 weeks, during which he has traveled 40,000 miles and sailed on 26 different steamships.

The little town of Macy, Ind., is in a state of excitement because a man named Andrew Oliver has secured a license to open a saloon there. For 30 years the place has been without a saloon, though hundreds of attempts have been made to start such places. Recently Oliver advertised in the usual way, but put his notice in a paper published 60 miles away in the most remote part of the county. It escaped the observation of Macy people and the county commissioners, finding no opposition, granted his application.

What Drink Did.

"A two-dollar bill came into the hands of a relative of mine," writes a lady in Boston, "which speaks volumes on the horrors of strong drink or the traffic in it. There was written in red ink on the back of it the following: 'Wife, children, and over $40,000, all gone. I am alone responsible. All has gone down my throat. When I was 21 I had a fortune. I am not yet 35 years old. I have killed my beautiful wife, who died of a broken heart; have murdered my children with neglect. When this bill is gone I do not know how I can get my next meal. I shall die a drunken pauper. This is my last money, and my history. If this bill comes into the hands of any man who drinks, let him take warning from my life's ruin.'"—Michigan Christian Advocate.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." TRAIN ROBBER IN JAIL

Express Messenger Lane's Murderer Confesses.

STOLEN MONEY WAS RECOVERED.

Mystery of the Shocking Crime on the Pennsylvania Road Last Friday Night Was Quickly Solved by Detectives.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employee of the Adams Express company, has been arrested in this city and has confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania east bound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married on Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania line. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago and had not since been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money of which he felt in great need on account of his approaching marriage. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his affianced and in her company when placed under arrest.

The robbery had been carefully planned, and it included the murder of Express Messenger Lane. He had no accomplices and no confidants. He knew Lane well—in fact, they were friends, and he relied upon Lane's confidence to help him execute the crime. He knew that considerable money was always carried by the messenger on Pennsylvania train No. 8 between St. Louis and Columbus and that he was certain to secure a large sum if he robbed the way safe on that train. Having provided himself with a Smith & Wesson six shooter, 38 caliber, he went to Urbana Friday morning and waited for No. 8. When the train arrived there, Ferrell went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Lane consented, never for a moment suspecting the treachery of his pretended friend. For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the end of the car, with his back slightly turned. When Ferrell had finally nerved himself for the crime, he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane unobserved and fired three shots in rapid succession into the messenger's back. Lane rolled off the chair on the floor on his face, and Ferrell quickly fired the remaining shots at the prostrate body. Lane was unconscious, but Ferrell, fearing that the wounds already inflicted would not cause death, took Lane's revolver and fired two more bullets into the body.

Ferrell then took the key to the way safe from the pocket of the dead messenger, opened the safe and placed Lane's revolver inside, where he could reach it easily in case he was detected and needed it to defend himself. After he had taken out all the moneys containing the money packages, sack orders and way bills he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the car arrived at Plain City, when he slipped off the train.

The Powers Trial.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Aug. 14.—The hearing of testimony in the case of ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers was concluded yesterday, and today the argument before the jury has begun. There will be five speeches on each side. Those who will speak in behalf of the prosecution are Commonwealth Attorney Franklin, T. C. Campbell, John K. Hendrick, Victor F. Bradley and Captain B. B. Golden. Those who will argue the case for the defendant will be ex-Governor Brown, J. C. Sims, Judge J. H. Tinsley, ex-Congressman Owens and Judge George Denny. The case is expected to reach the jury by Saturday. Judge Cantrill announced that the Youtsey case will be taken up immediately. The jury was taken to Frankfort yesterday afternoon and spent an hour in viewing the state capitol grounds and buildings and other points in connection with the case.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

LAKE CHARLES, La., Aug. 13.—It is reported that several persons were killed and 40 injured by the wrecking last evening four miles east of this city at Iowa Station of the west bound fast passenger train on the Southern Pacific road leaving here at 5 p. m. The trucks of the engine left the track, and the entire train was ditched except the sleepers. There is no telegraph office at Iowa, and details are lacking. Arrangements have been made to bring the dead and injured to this city over the Kansas City, Watkins and Gulf road, which crosses the Southern Pacific near Iowa Station.

PORTO RICANS WANT WORK.

Delegation Gets Prompt Satisfaction From Governor Hunt.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Aug. 14.—More than 100 laborers, with their wives and children, reached this city yesterday after two days of weary marching, without food, from San Lorenzo, a distance of 27 miles. The procession, made up of all shades and conditions, led by a colored woman with an American flag and carrying banners on which were inscribed the words "Give Us Work," marched quietly through the city to the executive mansion, where a halt was made.

The spokesman then called upon Civil Governor Hunt and explained that the object of the visit was to ask the government to open a road between Caguas and San Lorenzo; thus enabling the laboring classes of the district to get a livelihood. He pointed out that at present there was no work of any kind in that district and that the people, who were wholly dependent upon their daily earnings, were without bread and suffering.

Mr. Hunt responded sympathetically and promised that the government would do all in its power to relieve the situation. The delegation immediately retired, well pleased with the interview, and the procession left the city an hour after it had entered and began the return journey.

Orders were promptly issued for work to be begun on the road today and for the employment of as many persons as possible who might apply from the district. The spokesman of the delegation had said that there was no expectation of gratuitous government assistance, but merely a desire for work. Official investigation shows that the district in question is very badly off and that no work of any sort has been in operation there for some time.

It is pointed out that these conditions are partially due to the old system of government relief supplies, which had a tendency to pauperize the recipient and to lead many to believe that the government would indefinitely support the poor in idleness.

NEELY CASE TANGLED.

Extradition Delayed Through Unexpected Legal Complications.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Through a legal complication as peculiar as any that has ever been laid before the United States courts Charles F. W. Neely, accused of misappropriating thousands of dollars in connection with the administration of the postal department of Cuba was not made subject to an order of extradition yesterday, and his case is more complex than ever.

Judge Lacombe of the United States circuit court came to this city yesterday to sign an order for the extradition of Neely to Cuba. He did not sign it, however, because he found that John D. Lindsay, Neely's counsel, has applied to Judge Wallace for a writ of habeas corpus for his client and that Judge Wallace had denied the application and had issued an order remanding Neely to the custody of United States Marshal Henkel pending an appeal to the supreme court of the United States. This appeal was made or Friday last.

Hoar and Bryan.

(From the Syracuse Herald.)

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts is easily the most distinguished Republican who opposes the Philippine policy of the McKinley administration. He refuses, however, to support Bryan, because he regards the latter as an unfit man for the Presidency and because he hopes that the Republican party will come around to his way of thinking on the Philippine question. In the New York Times, Senator Hoar criticises some features of Bryan's speech, though on the whole Bryan's views on the question of imperialism agree with his own. He says that Mr. Bryan "knows that if there should be a Democratic majority in the House of Representatives equal to his wildest hopes, and if the Republican majority in the Senate should be reduced or wiped out altogether, so that there will be a tie—which is, I suppose beyond his most sanguine expectations—there are still earnest and pledged Imperialists enough in the Democratic party to prevent any such action." No doubt this is true enough. Turning from Bryan's nice theorizing and frank promises to the cold facts, it may be asserted that the chances are a hundred to one against such a change in the political complexion of the Senate as would give Bryan, in the event of his election, a majority for the execution of his design for abandoning the Philippines.

It is with particular bitterness, however, that Senator Hoar recalls that the treaty with Spain, whereby we acquired our sovereignty over the Philippines, would never have been ratified if it had not been for the affirmative influence of Mr. Bryan. The Senator writes: "I myself, in my humble way, did everything in my power to prevent the ratification of the treaty. I do not understand that any opponent of imperialism charges me with failing to do my full duty as a Senator, both by vote and speech. I did it at the cost of what was as dear to me as my life—the approval and sympathy of men who had been my friends and political companions for more than thirty years. Everything I tried to do was brought to naught by the action taken by Mr. Bryan, an action taken against the remonstrance of the wisest leaders in his own party."

Mr. Bryan's defense of his course in urging the ratification of the treaty was the weakest part of his Indianapolis speech. Nineteen months ago he advised the Senate to approve what was really a deed of purchase of the Philippines; but now he wants the people to relinquish their legitimate possession. Mr. Bryan's position as an opponent of Imperialism, so-called, would be much stronger and more consistent, if he had opposed Senatorial sanction of the treaty. It is not surprising that Republican anti-Imperialists like Senator Hoar refuse to follow the lead of so shifty an advocate of the principle in which they believe.

Another good game of ball was witnessed on the village field last Saturday, the Ithaca Cyclers opposing the local team. The Ithaca boys are good ball players and hale fellows well met as well, and they had rather play ball at Genoa than any town they know. Some of them are good singers and two of them, McQuigan and Toomey, can do as fancy a step in dancing as one cares to see. (By the way, we have a good singer in the home team; he can sing "Pauline" in a way that will swell the hardest gizzard and bring tears to the gamest veteran. We don't know this to be so, but the Ithaca boys tell it and they are all good fellows.) But the game. For the first five innings it looked like a hard rub for Genoa, but one little hit having been recorded, and no scores; but in the 6th the swatters began to do business and 9 scores came as easily as the first 5 rings. Hosmer, McDermott and Smith each made home runs, and there were one, two and three base hits in profusion. John Stickle whose playing and batting average is well up, got a hit but it was under the fifth rib and nearly put him out of the game. This sixth inning gave the home team a lead which the visitors could not recover.

PHILIPS CALLS A BALK AND JOHNNY GRANT OBJECTS.

Moravia is announced to play Rochester at the Norwood ball park at Auburn next Monday afternoon. Boston plays at Syracuse the same day.

The Auburn Athletic Club came to town yesterday afternoon to indulge in a friendly game and they proved to be rather good ball players. Both teams made costly errors, partly because of the slippery ground. Lack of time forbids a detailed account of the game, but here is the score:

Genoa	3	1	0	0	2	1	3	3	—13
Auburn	0	0	3	0	3	0	5	0	—11

NO TIME

No time, do we say—for a helpful thought
To lighten the burdens of hearts that ache?
No time for encouraging, cheering words,
That are healing balm to the hearts that break?

No time, do we say—for a kindly act,
For the comfort and sunshine of a song?
No time for the tenderness that is life,
As careless and heedless we pass along?

The tender words we neglect to speak
To the hungry hearts we so fondly love,
Yet the tenderest words go up to God
And each flower we give will blossom above.

Still we grieve our own by hasty words
And acts that in vain we try to forget—Then beautiful things we say of our dead
And cover with flowers our vain regret.

Oh, pray, to the living give time each day
In some way to gladden the lonely hours
By the touch of a hand, a smile, a word—
'Tis the living who need our kindness and flowers.

TATTERS

By Helen Frances Huntington.

(From the Home Journal, New York. Reprinted by Special Permission.)

AN INEXPLICABLE instinct had guided Jimmy through forbidden grounds direct to Ted's library door, where he stood, cap in hand, a decently-clean, solemn-faced boy of 12, with a little grizzly mop of a dog wriggling apologetically at his heels.

"His name's Tatters, an' he kin sit up an' dance an' sing," said Jimmy. Whereupon Tatters "sat up" and peered anxiously through the ragged dun-colored fringe that veiled his bright black eyes. For the rest he was the most dejected, forlorn little creature that ever begged his way through a hard and thankless world.

"What are you two doing here?" Ted demanded, coldly.

"Please, sir, won't you take 'im in?" Jimmy entreated. "The Home's sendin' me to Kansas an' the man what's hired me won't take Tatters. You kin have 'im fer a dollar."

"But I don't want him," Ted answered, heartlessly; at which Tatters dropped his smudgy paws limply and turned to Jimmy, with a look of hopeless appeal which said, as plain as human speech could do: "Why is the hand of every man turned against me?"

"He eats so little you'd never miss it," Jimmy explained, persuasively. "Tatters promised, mutely, to eat still less if Ted would take him, and Ted's heart wasn't proof against that last appeal. He patted the little towsted head good-naturedly and assured him that he should have abundant food and a roof to shelter him as long as he behaved in a fit and proper manner. I have never owned a dog in my life, he explained, deprecatingly, "but I'll take Tatters and do the best I can for him."

The leave-taking consumed half a minute. It was plain that the dog suffered most acutely; but he had been made to understand that it was all part of the inexplicable fate that had branded him as a vagrant. When the door closed behind Jimmy he ran about from window to window, till he found the one overlooking the avenue where he sat very still, watching the lessening figure of his late master until his breath blurred the pane hopelessly; then he whined softly until Ted be thought himself of his promise and carried him out to be bountifully fed and groomed after the manner befitting his adoption.

Shorn of his long disguise—the grime and soot of plebeian association—he was a handsome dog with a silver-gray coat, a little black dust-brush of a tail, a curly, shapely head, and the kindest eyes ever set in a canine face, deep, midnight black, shot with coppery lights that gave him a look of human intelligence. The longer Ted looked at that winning little face, the longer he wanted to look; it was so wise, so tender, so impressively grave.

"Tatters," said Ted, putting his hand under the silky uplifted chin, "I'm going to be very good to you always, and in return I want you to be very good to some one else. Come, let us go and see her, and you'll know why."

She sat on a couch beside a sunny window, her hands folded idly over an open book, her eyes fixed unseemingly on luminous space. Ted affected not to notice the deathlike transparency of the flower-like face; he proceeded cheerfully to introduce Tatters to his new mistress, and Tatters "sat up" very prettily until he was lured by the look in Nadine's eyes to move a step closer and put his paws on her knees.

"What a dear little fellow," she said languidly, taking his face between her thin hands and looking down into his dark, beautiful eyes. "I never thought I should like a dog; but this one looks almost human. Is he really mine? Oh, thank you, Ted." For the first time in many weeks she smiled genuinely, and was interested.

Tatters puzzled his brain sorely about Nadine's inactivity, and after patient endeavor to rouse her, he went little friend what was wearing out his own heart.

"The doctor gave her trouble a long, hard name, Tatters," said he, "and he thinks there's one chance in a hundred that she may be cured; but I know better. She's very young, barely 22, but sorrow has aged her more in a single hour than a whole lifetime of joy could have done. No, she doesn't rightly belong to us, but she came to us long ago when she was a little girl, and there never was a time when I didn't love her more than anyone else in the wide world. She was always very good and sweet to me and such a lappy, bright little girl, until she married Dion. He was a fine fellow, too, but not quite good enough for Nadine. He was very fond of her, and she was happier still until the other woman came. Such a woman, Tatters! as beautiful as an angel—you couldn't blame him, if you could see her. Nadine didn't blame him, either, but it broke her heart. They say people sometimes outlive even that trouble, but it isn't true, not with a nature like hers. If you could only help her to forget, just for a little while, Tatters, I'd love you as long as I live."

Tatters kept his charge faithfully, but it was vain to hope for success where human ingenuity had failed. Ted helped evade the dreaded climax by reading all the newspapers carefully before Nadine saw them to guard against her seeing mention of his return, for which she watched and waited, as a dying man longs to be shriven. She put off the southward flight day by day, and meantime grew weaker, paler and sadder; and Ted and Tatters went about watching her with troubled eyes.

Winter came with a rush of icy air and flurry of snow that sent the frail ones hurrying southward to kinder climes. The others could not well be spared from the busy round of social life, so Ted went with his mother and Nadine. The world lay shrouded in white vestments through which the train plowed a narrow track bearing them farther and farther from their accustomed scenes. Tatters sat in Nadine's window looking wistfully out of the window at the flying panorama of skeleton trees and hedges till the train stopped at a wayside station. Ted took him out for a little walk, and he scudded along the narrow path sniffing the frosty air delightedly, and presently disappeared under the car wheels, to be caught up by someone on the opposite side.

Ted heard a man's coaxing voice say: "Hello, my beauty! Look, Tess, isn't that a perfect little beauty?" The answer was a delighted little feminine exclamation, then a lady stepped out of the coach and confronted him, followed by Dion, who looked very wan and weary beside that radiant vision. Ted looked into her face and forgot everything but the thought that Nadine must not see them. He got possession of Tatters and walked the length of the train and back before he dared to confront Nadine, and the train pulled off with a few preliminary shocks when he swung aboard the smoking car. He sat staring dully before him, until he was recalled to a realization of things tangible by a keen sense of impending danger.

There was a shriek of escaping steam, a sickening crunch of wheels, an explosive crash, then he was seized by some blind force and flung down amid the debris of a wreck. Tatters' doleful little whine recalled Ted's scattered senses. He woke to find himself lying in a poor little roadside hut, where they had carried the dead and wounded. Dion's wife lay not an arm's length from his couch, and beside him sat Nadine unhurt.

"It is not fatal?" Dion asked in a husky whisper.

The doctor moved away very softly, but the dying woman read the bitter truth in his eyes, and shivered with mortal terror.

"Dying!" she cried, incredulously. "Oh, no. It simply isn't possible! It can't be; why should I be chosen when so many others don't care to live! Oh, no, not I; life is far too sweet to die!"

Tatters whined and thrust his nose close to Ted's face, and he opened his eyes and smiled understandingly, then the clear, tuneful voice broke the deathly silence again. "Dion, if it should be true! I am afraid to die with an unconfessed lie on my soul. It was all my fault that she left you. I wanted you to believe Nadine unfaithful. You'll forgive me, Dion, won't you. It was because I loved you so—and she couldn't have cared one hundredth part as much as I do. You loved her, didn't you, Dion? Yes, I knew, but I tried to forget. If I should die you will marry her. Dion, I love you so that I wish only for your happiness."

"But I will not die, Dion, I will not!" the young voice trailed off in half a sob, then woke again very faint and tremulous, like the echo of distant music. "How dark it has grown!" it murmured. "Have they left us alone at last, Dion? Come closer, I cannot see you—"

There was no more sound or motion from the darkened pallet; the long lashes fluttered down and lay like rays of darkness on driven snow, and the childish lips parted in a faint, sweet smile upon which death had set his holy seal as if God had forgiven her guilty soul.

Roses everywhere! Stately bride roses under a fringed canopy of maiden hair fern, long-stemmed beauties, queens of hearts in such lavish confusion that Tatters was obliged to walk very circumspectly through the maze of blossoming stuff to the window where Ted stood with folded hands, great high, to a rose bower.

There were white rose petals on the sidewalk leading to the front entry and three little urchins were chattering delightedly over their trophies of an easy conquest.

Tatters found a little bare space on the window—and looked out too, but failed to discover anything of signal importance. So he frisked about until Ted roused himself and took the fluffy little head between his palms and smiled with the pathetic cheerfulness of complete renunciation.

"All the fuss and flurry is over at last, Tatters," he said, "and now we've got to take life in hand and make something out of it. We shall be very happy, too—not quite as happy as Nadine and Dion, perhaps; still you have me and I have my work. Nadine? Well, Tatters, she doesn't need either of us now."

"Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach," says O. P. M. Holliday of Deming, Ind. "His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. WHAT MADE HIM POOR.

Aged Victim of Drink Declares That the Saloons Were His Downfall and Ruin.

An old man rapped at a door, and when it was opened by the gentleman of the house he said he was hungry, and begged something for his breakfast. He said he would willingly do some work to pay for it. A good meal was given him, which he ate as if he was really very hungry. When he was about to go he stood with his old hat in his hand, his thin, gray hair blown by the wind. His face was thin, and wore rather a piteous expression. Said he:

"I thank you sincerely for this food. I was hungry. And, while I thank you,

MADE HIM POOR BY THE USE OF STRONG DRINK.

I want to warn you against coming into the condition I am in. When I was young I worked hard, and made money. I spent it in the saloons. I put hundreds of dollars there. Now I am too old to work. I must wear rags for clothes, and beg for a living. The saloons drive me out and give me nothing. Last night I was driven from one and would have been in that terrible storm but for the kindness of a man who let me sleep in his shop."

He is only one of many made poor by the use of strong drink. It is, indeed, a deceiver, and no respecter of persons.—Selected.

SAVINGS BANKS IN SALOONS.

An Experiment Which Is to Be Tried by the Russian Government—Will Be Watched with Interest.

The Russian government is encouraged by the rapid increase in the number of savings bank depositors and the amount of the deposits, which has followed the opening of many new offices or branches of savings banks, to attempt still further to stimulate the practice of making provision for ill health or old age, and preventing the dissipation or waste of surplus earnings. To this end it is proposed, among other things, to open savings bank agencies in connection with all government establishments for the sale of intoxicating liquors. That is certainly a novelty, and it moves a prominent financial and commercial paper in this country to remark that the suggestion of such savings banks seems to savor of irony.

But need it be considered absurd or ironical to advocate the opening of places for savings in connection with drinking saloons or liquor stores? Is that not just where they are most required? Would not more men refrain from spending their money for strong drink if they found in sight, where they went for that purpose, a bank for savings, making its appeal to prudence and reason?

Of course, on the other hand, there would be the danger that if a man's bank deposits were at hand when he was in a drinking place he might withdraw his savings to squander them for liquor. That would be most unfortunate, but is it reasonable to suppose that the tendency in that direction would be half as strong as the opposite and salutary influence toward prudence and sobriety?

The question is at least an open one, and if the Russian government shall try the experiment, on a large scale, the test will be of the utmost interest to temperance workers all over the world. If anything effective can be done to check the use of strong drink and the waste of money in saloons by multiplying places for receiving savings deposits the fact ought to be known as soon and as widely as possible.—Cleveland Leader.

Temperance Hospital for Boston.
A hospital for the treatment of inebriates upon strictly scientific principles is to be established in Boston. In honor of our promoted leader it will bear the name of "Willard." The pres-names appear in the list of the members of its executive committee and board of directors. "A hospital under expert medical direction," says a circular sent out by the management, "having every opportunity for outdoor recreation, where the patient can go for private treatment at moderate rates, was one of the cherished plans of Miss Frances Willard." Plans for opening this hospital are already in operation. A fine country place has been selected and the directors are now raising funds to establish and maintain such an institution.—Union Signal.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

French Scientist Carefully Studies the Effect of Alcohol on Plants.

The general effect of alcohol on the human system is too commonly demonstrated to make special experiment necessary. Plants, however, cannot obtain this particular drug so easily, and their behavior when alcoholized must be made a subject of scientific investigation. Such a study has been made by Louis Adrien Levat, who describes his experiments in the Revue Scientifique.

His investigation took place in the gardens of M. Hildebert Richard at Avignon, France, and its result is not such as to warrant the administration of alcoholic liquids to plants, unless it is desired to put a speedy end to their existence. Alcohol, in fact, seems to act on the plant more quickly and fatally than on the man. Says M. Levat, in his report:

My experiments were made on two adult geranium plants in full leaf and flower, 17 months old, sprung from the same plant, growing in two pots of the same form and equal dimensions, and containing the same weight of moistened alluvial soil.

These two plants were first observed on the 10th of August last, after which time they stood in a sheltered place in identical conditions as regards air and light. On that day, at six p. m., the plant A, the less vigorous of the two, having several leaves bordered with yellow, was watered with 20 centiliters (about one-half pint) of spring water. The plant B, the more vigorous, with normally green leaves, was watered with 20 centiliters of diluted butylic alcohol.

On the next day, August 11, the plant B had symptoms of turning yellow in all its leaves, which had a peculiar odor, very different from that of the normal plant, and slightly etheric. The watering was repeated at the same hour.

On August 12, although the plant A had grown more vigorous (the yellow border tending to disappear from the leaves, and its stem remaining vertical), the stem of the plant B fell over at right angles, the calyx bending and the flowers touching the edge of the flower-pot. The petals began to drop off and the leaves all turned toward the ground. At the same time melanosis (blackening) appeared on all the leaves.

On the 13th all the leaves on the plant B, still drooping downward and almost entirely covered with melanosis, folded up and clung stiffly to the stalk. The sepals of the calyx were dried and blackened, and all the red petals had dropped off. The last watering took place the evening of the 13th; and on the following morning, although the plant A was superbly green and filled with blossoms, the plant B, after absorption of 80 centiliters of alcohol, showed a notable decrease of nutrition and a lethargic aspect approaching coma.

I did not push the alcoholization any further, and after taking up the plant B, I examined sections of the stem, branches and roots, and found that they had undergone profound modifications. All the tuberous tissues were of a dark wine color, and the whole was impregnated with alcohol. Microscopic examination showed a stoppage of the circulation and modification of the stem with obliteration of most of the medullary rays. The rootlets, dry and burnt, had turned reddish-black. Some parts had kept green in the main stem, but the stoppage of circulation was complete in the branches.

The parts that seemed to have suffered most in the organism of the alcoholized plant were the bark, the radicular tunic, the leaves and the flowers.

Thus, the experiment shows that the absorption of butylic alcohol at 90 degrees by a full-grown red geranium, to the amount of 80 centiliters, sufficed in four days to affect the plant with alcoholism, which was shown by a notable weakening of the vegetative life and symptoms of poisoning, with a special odor throughout all parts of the plant, partial burning, melanosis and geotropism of the leaves.—Literary Digest.

Druggists and hotel keepers who keep liquor for sale are placed in the category with regular liquor dealers, bartenders and professional gamblers by the grand lodge of odd fellows, and will be excluded from the benefits and society of the great order. The question was formally acted upon at the convention held in St. Paul June 14.

The bottle of wine was supplanted by the Japanese custom at the launching of the steel towing schooner Bryn Mawr at South Chicago on June 12. Miss Elizabeth M. Utley named the ship, and as it started down the ways she opened a cage containing four white doves, which flew away. This custom will be observed with all the boats of the Carnegie fleet.

The Campaign of 1900

Is now open and is probably the most important since 1860, and the issues are just as important, just as well defined, and more numerous than ever before, and these vital facts together with what is happening every day in all parts of the world, make it imperative and necessary that the intelligent man, woman and child should read the newspapers. It is the only way to keep posted, to keep in touch with the political, military and social events, and to enable the voter to cast his ballot for what he knows he wants. To enable one and all to prepare for this national event, the following campaign offers are now quoted: When taken in connection with the GENOA TRIBUNE, the Tri-Weekly World one year 65c; the Tri-Weekly Tribune one year 80c; Weekly Tribune 25c; Semi-Weekly Post-Standard (Syracuse) 50c; Rochester Democrat and Chronicle 55c; New York Daily Press $4.50. The GENOA TRIBUNE is $1.00 per year; 50 cents for six months. Send through your postmaster or address
