NEIGHBORHOOD VILLAGES IN PRINT.

The Happenings of the Week in Our Sister Villages.—Newsy Correspondence.

Scipio.

DEC. 11—The traveling is improving. The last week has been a record breaker for bad roads.

J. Snyder was in Cortland, Homer and Syracuse last week, and had the pleasure of riding home from Auburn through the rain on Tuesday. Mr. Snyder will be 75 years old Monday, Dec. 17th.

The riot trials progress slowly, not one having been tried yet. It seems as if they have had punishment enough for their thoughtlessness and we hope they may only be fined, as we need their labor here more than the state does, and some have families that need their support.

Church services are poorly attended these stormy Sundays.

Miss Jenny Snyder has a birthday party the 19th.

School has been closed the last week on account of the teacher's being at Auburn as a witness.

Miss Mamie McGarry is quite like herself again.

J. Snyder is closing out his stock of goods. You can get bargains if you will call on him.

Will Silkworth has been sick for a few days.

E. S. Akin finished drawing barley today. He sold his barley, cabbage and hay to Springer at Moravia and loads at Ensenore.

Jerry Simonds, who is in his 85th year, is enjoying very good health this winter.

Rev. Mr. Ballou is settled in his new home and everything looks very cosy.

The Mutual Improvement society met at Dr. Kenyon's last evening. The President's message was the theme, Rev. Mr. Gott leader.

Poplar Ridge.

The matrimonial fever is still raging at Poplar Ridge for one more of its resident daughters has taken to herself a companion for life. On Dec. 3, Miss Nellie M. Judge and Mr. Edmund Barnes were married in Auburn by Rev. Amos Nailor, pastor of the Second Baptist church. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

King Ferry.

DEC. 13—F. E. Hughitt of Auburn was in town Monday.

Miss Anice Drake of Ithaca is visiting friends here.

Mrs. D. W. Peckham of Buffalo visited her mother, Mrs. C. W. Garey, over Sunday.

Mrs. Alfred Avery returned home from Old Forge, Pa., Monday.

Mrs. H. W. Atwater of Waterloo is visiting friends here.

C. E. Slocum is spending the week in New York.

Mrs. H. D. Wheeler is visiting friends in Auburn.

I. C. Hall returned from Hoosick Falls last week.

Perhaps some may recall the family of Samuel Chadwick, once residents of King Ferry. Two of his grandsons, sons of Elizabeth, were commissioned by the government to go to the Paris exposition, as superintendents of electric machinery at a handsome salary. One of the brothers was so well pleased there that he is about to marry a French lady and remain in Paris and continue the firm of Drake Bros.

Attention.

Mrs. J. E. Shaw wishes to close out her winter millinery stock and on and after Dec. 15 hats may be had at cost. Call and see winter hat at cost.

Notice.

We are prepared to clip horses, also have a thoroughbred Chester white

Ledyard.

DEC. 11—The blizzard on Sunday and the temperature since makes us think what the future has in store for us.

Work on the chimney at the church has had to be suspended on account of the cold wave.

Mrs. E. Sayre and children of Farmer are visiting at H. M. Purdy's.

Mrs. Georgia Hewitt, state organizer of the W. C. T. U., is expected here next week to hold a meeting. An announcement of the same will be made later.

The evaporator closed on Monday. It has been running since the 20th of September.

Earl Seager is visiting his sister at Cayuga.

George Meade has resumed his work in Auburn.

G. N. Coon and J. Golden are re-packing apples in Aurora this week.

With two poultry buyers people ought to be able to dispose of their poultry at a good price. Wesley Wilbur is one of our enterprising dealers.

Sherwood.

DEC. 11—The weather was so very bad on Thanksgiving day, it no doubt was the cause of things being so dull. Dr. Slocum and family of Genoa spent the day at his father's, H. Foster and mother and Julia Simkin spent the day with friends, and Dr. B. K. Hoxsie went to Auburn.

Mrs. H. J. Myers has been spending the past two weeks at the home of Lee Myers.

Mark Koon of Auburn was home over Sunday.

Mrs. Lois White visited at E. Brewster's over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Searing and Mrs. C. F. Cumstock attended county lodge in Auburn last week.

A. B. Cumstock is running an express, weekly, to and from Auburn. He also keeps fresh oysters for sale.

Antoinette Ward and Mrs. Thos. Heffernan are on the sick list.

P. D. Ward has gone to B. L. Watkins' for the winter.

Miss Lydia King went to Philadelphia last week.

Miss Emily Howland and Caroline Putnam went to New York City last week to be present at the bazar. It may be of interest to our friends who are in sympathy with the equal rights movement to know the contributions from some of the different states. The Kansas millers sent 350 barrels of flour which was made into bread daily and sold from the Kansas booth. Iowa sent a carload of hogs which were sold in Chicago and the proceeds forwarded to New York. In the Ohio booth the autographs of J. A. Garfield and Wm. McKinley were sold. Montana, Oregon and Washington sent curious heads of animals. New York state had two booths. In one was a locomobile for sale. In one booth a lady professor in phrenology examined heads at $1 each. One booth was devoted entirely to dolls and another to confectionery. A fine program was furnished every afternoon and evening.

The P. E. club held its first regular meeting last Friday evening. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Victoria Bradley, Pres., Isabel Howland and Minnie Ward, Vice Pres., Mary Heffernan, Sec., and Deborah Otis, Treas. The president's message was discussed and several interesting letters read.

The W. C. T. U. will hold its fifteenth annual meeting Thursday afternoon.

Cards are out announcing the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sherman.

THE "OLD COLONEL."

Drink Brought Him to Deepest Degradation, But Prayer and Sympathy Saved Him.

In February of the present year an old man died in the Presbyterian hospital in New York. Thousands knew him as the "Old Colonel." His story is briefly this:

The "Old Colonel" was born of one of the best families in Ohio. He was reared in a wealthy Christian home, and after leaving college he studied in the law office of Edwin M. Stanton, Lincoln's great war secretary. He married and began the practice of law. But in college he had fallen into intemperate habits. When the civil war began he enlisted as a private soldier. At the end of the war he was mustered out a colonel of cavalry—and a confirmed drunkard.

He struggled against his fatal habit, but it finally ruined him. Home was gone, and wife and children followed. Bereft of everything, he left his own city, and after months of wandering entered New York under an assumed name. For over a quarter of a century he led the life of a drunken vagrant and beggar, notorious as one of the most loathsome of his class.

One night, while half-intoxicated, he entered the Bowery mission, and during the service rose and prayed most unctuously. After the meeting he said he was "converted," and asked for a quarter of a dollar. This the leader gave him, and begged him not to return too soon.

The next night he came reeling in, and prayed once more, and tried to put his arms about the leader's neck. He was vigorously repulsed, and the door was pointed out to him.

"Do you mean it?" he asked, quivering.

"If you stay much longer you'll see if I mean it!" was the harsh reply.

The old man went out, cursing the mission and everybody connected with it. Two weeks later there was an up-town monthly meeting of the rescue-workers, and the young man who had turned the old beggar out told the story, and expressed his sorrow for his severity. He said that he had not been able to sleep since, or to pray, save for the man whom he had so rudely repulsed.

The company, having heard their fellow-worker's confession, knelt and prayed for the "Old Colonel," who was perhaps starving or freezing upon the street.

At the close of the meeting the penitent slumber-worker hastened up to the "elevated," and took the first train for his down-town mission. As he hurried in, he saw a familiar, ragged figure shivering upon the back bench. This time he did not threaten the intruder, but put his arms about the old tramp's neck and burst into tears. When the meeting was over he took charge of him, gave him a beefsteak dinner, a shave, clean clothes and a bath; and when the east emerged from this treatment, behold! he was transformed into a gentleman.

At the same time his whole being seemed to be pleading that his heart might be made as clean as his body. For six days he prayed earnestly: "O Lord, forgive and restore me!"

At the end of the sixth day a beautiful smile transfigured his sin-scarred face. He turned to his preserver and said:

"O brother, I am saved!"

"I believe you," was the solemn reply.

From that instant the old tramp was a changed being. His craving for liquor was gone. His intellect was restored. Even lost youth seemed to revisit that wasted frame. The besotted outcast became a dignified Christian man.

Thirteen years he lived, and died happy in the knowledge that he had lifting the depraved is the miracle of patience, and that is possible only when faith and love are strong enough to conquer loathing. In many a repulsive instance like the one just told, a sublime opportunity would have been wasted if natural feeling instead of Christian pity and kindness had had its way.—Youth's Companion.

It would be a simple matter to be a moderate drinker, if it were not so much harder to refuse the second drink than the first one.—Puck.

Doing the Impossible.

Most of the great things of the world have been done in the face of the cry "impossible." To the minds of his generals Napoleon's plan to cross the Alps was sheer madness. From a conventional standpoint the winning of American freedom was impossible, and so were nearly all the great deeds of history that thrill us most.

We find it impossible to walk around a park on a rainy night without overshoes, yet many an explorer has waded water and lain out-of-doors for weeks without catching cold. If our eating departs a hair's breadth from the routine we see no hope of escape from dyspepsia and other ills. We were, some of us, incredulous when we heard that a college president had proven his ability to live on fifteen cents a day. Yet Thoreau lived for two years at the rate of twenty-seven cents a week. When General Fremont was crossing the plains it is recorded that his bill of fare for many days was "roast mule, fried mule, deviled mule and mule." Nansen and his lieutenant lived for a whole Arctic winter on bear meat, and had one bath each in half a teacupful of water; yet they came out well in the spring.

All these things were impossibilities according to the usually accepted standards. Looking at them we learn that so-called impossibilities are not necessarily real ones.—From The Saturday Evening Post.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers are dainty little pills, but they never fail to cleanse the liver, remove obstructions and invigorate the system. J. S. Banker.

NEWS OF THE STATE

EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings
Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

The woolen mills at Cazenovia were completely destroyed by fire last Saturday night.

J. J. Hooker has been appointed postmaster at Ira Station, Cayuga county, in place of C. L. Smith, deceased.

During the balance of the school year Cazenovia seminary will observe Monday as the weekly holiday instead of Saturday, as is usual.

Frank Sincerbeaux of Moravia was chosen one of the students to represent Yale in the debate with Harvard at Cambridge, Mass.

It is needless to say that the diversifiers in the vicinity of every army post cordially sympathize with the movement for the abolition of the canteen.

The D., L. & W. railroad crosses five streets within the city limits of Cortland and has flagmen at four of them; the Lehigh Valley road crosses nine streets and has one flagman.

Dr. Ira S. Sweet of Columbus was recently called to Chicago to see Curtis Gates, who is suffering from a broken or sprained leg. His fame as a natural bone setter is extending all over the country.

Nearly a year has passed since the Neely defalcations in Cuba were made public, and the Supreme court is only now considering whether he can legally be extradited from the United States to Havana for trial.

A handsome water motor was shipped last week by the Moravia Manufacturing company for use at the Pan-American Exposition. There is a good sale for the motors and excellent satisfaction is given wherever they are installed.

The Tower clock and chimes at Waterville were sold at auction last week along with other personal effects of the late Reuben Tower. The clock and chimes were bought by B. Wilson Roberts, a resident of Waterville, for $3,100. This is over a thousand dollars less than the cost originally.

An eastern editor asked a very bad man what was the first step that led to his ruin. He answered that the first step was cheating an editor out of two years' subscription. "When I had done that the devil had such a grip on me that I could not shake him off."

Says the Farm Journal: There seems to be among people not engaged in dairying a growing prejudice against the movement to compel oleomargarine to sail under its own colors. Some are asserting that the dairymen want to destroy all competition, so that they may have a monopoly of the market for their butter. This is nowise so. The dairymen want to be able to sell their product for just what it is, without having any bogus article placed beside it called the same thing and sold a cent or two less to get the trade. The butter-maker is willing that oleomargarine should be sold side by side with his butter, provided it is honestly labeled oleomargarine and sold for ten or fifteen cents less, according to its true value. This is easily seen to be in favor of the buyer.

The farmer who now gets his mail at his door, by means of the free rural mail delivery system, pronounces it the finest thing in the world. The country merchant who is made lonesome on account of the failure of the farmer to come to town to get his mail says it is a ruinous thing for the country. There seems to be a wide difference of opinion in this matter. In many towns there are people who claim that a saloon brings business and enterprise to such towns as have them, but a great many disagree in this. What is "one man's bread is another man's poison" and so it goes in this world. People have great hopes in the free rural mail delivery making this world better in many ways. It brings farmers closer to town and the rest of the world and provides for them advantages they so much deserve. If the merchant in the small town doesn't like it he can buy a farm and

MOSES KALVINSKY.

Honored His Uniform.

The work of the railroad man, especially in the passenger service, is a strain on the nerves. Trains are supposed to hurry over the road; passengers are generally in a hurry and very often confused, and the men in uniform are appealed to from all sides for information and assistance. The railroad management, operating on the progressive theory that more flies can be caught with molasses than with vinegar, expects them to be useful in helping passengers avoid mistakes and in making them comfortable. How to keep in good temper and still try to please everybody is an hourly problem with them. But they are solving it.

At the Watertown station a few days ago, as the train was ready to move out, the ticket agent called out to a trainman who had come into the waiting-room, evidently in search of somebody:

"She is sitting there in the corner. A lady who is with her is trying to have her baggage checked."

The trainman found a young woman, evidently an invalid, with a face distressingly anxious and inexpressibly sad, and, taking her arm, he led her toward the train, past the baggage room. They were met by the conductor and the lady friend, who had attended to the baggage, and then the women parted, the almost helpless traveler being committed to the care of the men who wore the uniform of the New York Central, a uniform which often represents as much of bravery and chivalry as the Red Cross does.

The two men led their charge to the steps of the car and lifted her into it, and guided her to a seat; she was blind.—From the Watertown (N. Y.) Daily Times.

Gard.

We wish to extend our thanks to the friends who rendered kind assistance to our mother before her death and also in the burial services following.

G. W. DAVIS AND FAMILY.

I will pay highest cash market price for raw furs of all kinds; horse and beef hides and sheep pelts; also old rubber. R. W. ARMSTRONG.

IN THE EVOLUTION of the bicycle nothing is more marked than the change in the class of people who use it. When the bicycle first came into existence, it was expensive, new and unsatisfactory, and no one used it except people who had the wealth to buy it, and the leisure to experiment with it. As prices were reduced and the utility of the machine became more generally known, business and professional men took it up, both as a means of recreation and an aid to their work. Finally as prices were still further reduced, it has come to be primarily the vehicle of the common people. It is pre-eminently the carriage of the laboring man, and nothing is more common in the cities and larger towns than to see troops of mechanics and day laborers on their way to and from their day's work, mounted on wheels and carrying the implements of their trade with them. As a fad, the wheel has ceased to be; but as a permanent factor in the every day life of the world it has come to stay until something better appears to take its place.

INSANITY AND GENIUS are often so closely allied that it is difficult to tell where one ends and the other begins. A striking illustration of this fact was brought to light at Kenosha, Wis., a short time since, when it was found that the person who had received the highest mark in a civil service examination was an escaped lunatic from a neighboring asylum.

A BILL OF LOCAL INTEREST is said to be scheduled for presentation to the legislature at Albany, this winter. It will offer a bounty of $10 for each fish net taken from Oneida lake. Prominent fishermen of Central New York are said to be backing the bill. Such a bill will stimulate the net making industry, if it does nothing else.

NEWS PICKED UP BY THE TRIBUNE REPORTERS.

What Has Happened in Genoa During the Past Seven Days—An Interesting Page.

—Rob Tighe was at Groton on business Tuesday.

—The roads are reported as being in a terribly bad condition.

—Elias Lester of Locke was a business caller in town Wednesday.

—Talmadge writes for THE TRIBUNE again this week. Read his sermon.

—Miss Ella Purrinton has gone to New York city to pass the holiday season.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brightman of King Ferry were guests at Wm. Smith's on Monday.

—F. Purrinton returned Tuesday from a two weeks' visit at the home of his early days at South Starksboro, Vt.

—Miss Mamie Driscoll has gone to Auburn for the winter, where she will remain with Mrs. John Osborne.

—Ray G. Smith who is on jury duty at the county seat this term of court, was home Wednesday and Thursday.

—A. M. Seekell, who is meeting considerable work in this vicinity, will be at his office here next Wednesday as usual.

—Sam B. Buckhorn who drives an engine on the Erie and whose home is at Hornellsville, visited his uncle, H. M. Head, on Monday.

—Parents should see that their children do not have wet feet during this weather. Physicians say that wet feet breed numberless diseases. Children are not to be trusted to comprehend the importance of having dry, warm feet.

—Invitations have been issued for a Christmas party at the rink in this village on Monday evening, December 24. Music will be furnished by Lanterman's full orchestra. Cards also announce a social party at Ogden hall, King Ferry, on Monday evening, the 31st. Jacobs' orchestra will furnish inspiration to the dancers.

—The Genoa orchestra is now rehearsing new music and arranging for a first class entertainment to be given in this village probably the second week in January. The entertainment will be similar to the two already given by this organization. Local artists will be assisted by some outside talent including Miss Lucy Marsh, Ithaca's popular soprano, who has —Smith's ad is on this page this week.

—This is the last month of the greatest century.

—Miss Jane Kratzer is a guest of Mrs. F. C. Hagin.

—Don't forget the fair at the rink next Tuesday evening.

—Mrs. G. W. Davis has been in Syracuse a few days this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Mitchell and Mrs. Mary Carter of Goodyears, visited at Wm. Smith's on Tuesday last.

—Jerome Atwater, well known through this vicinity, died Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elias Dodd.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bower, Miss Ada Bower and Ray Bower have been spending the past two weeks at their farm near Skaneateles.

—Remember the fair and chicken pie supper at the rink Tuesday evening. Supper from 6:30 to 9. Admission free; supper 20c, children 10c. Good music and a pleasing program. Come and enjoy yourself. Contributions for the fair will be received Saturday at Mrs. Nellie Beebe's.

—There was a large attendance at the donation for Rev. Pugsley at the Baptist church, Tuesday evening. The cash received amounted to nearly $60. Nearly 200 people partook of the supper. Rev. Shoemaker of North Lansing was present and made some pleasing remarks, as did the pastor, and the choir rendered some special music.

Venice Center---West Hill.

Dec. 12—It is cheering to see the sun again if the mercury is nearly to zero, and the hubs only half covered with snow. A little more would make rough sleighing.

Who is happier than the farmer these stormy days? He can sit or lie near his bright fire and prosecute his business without going from home.

If the length of the icicles indicate the depth of the snow to come, we will not lack for sleighing. But signs are quite apt to contradict each other.

The "dental entertainment" at the Center drew a full house, as well as several teeth. If they have no railroad they can boast a couple of "prize beauties." Rare things always draw prizes.

Lewis Beebe of Ingleside Academy visited his brother John last week.

The sad tidings of the death of Mrs. David Price caused genuine heartfelt sorrow among her many friends in this region, who have not only been cheered but charmed by her singing. The tears will start when we realize that we will see her face no more in the flesh, nor hear her sweet melodious voice no more on earth. But we have the comforting assurance that she has joined the heavenly choir in the church triumphant. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends is tendered to the family, and the church where for many years her voice was so familiar. We who have known her from infancy would fain lay a flower on her casket as a token of undying affection.

Society Notes.

Regular services in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening. At the close of the morning service there will be a short business meeting of the society and congregation. Every one interested is earnestly requested to be present.

East Genoa W. C. T. U. will hold a parlor meeting at Mrs. Clara Coon's on Tuesday, Dec. 18th, beginning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Georgia Hewitt of Orleans county will be present to give an address and lunch will be served. Let all members and friends make special effort to be present.

Genoa W. C. T. U. will hold a parlor meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 19, at Mrs. Elizabeth Miller's and a Union meeting in the evening at the Baptist church.

A Minister Arrested.

Rev. Chas. F. Whitcomb of Lake Ridge was arraigned before Recorder Danaber at Elmira Saturday morning, Dec. 1, on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. The complaint was filed by Myer Friendly of the firm of Friendly Bros., shoe manufacturers of that city. Whitcomb was formerly in charge of the Baptist church at Lake Ridge and since leaving the profession of preaching he opened a general store at that place. The plaintiff charges that Whitcomb purchased $249 worth of boot and shoe stock for which the firm has been unable to get their pay. At the time of purchasing he is claimed to have made a written statement that he was worth $2,400 above expenses. Recently he made an assignment and went into bankruptcy, and swore that he wasn't worth $500. Whitcomb says he will be able to clear himself.

Agricultural Society Meeting

A dozen or more farmers and merchants attended the meeting to reorganize the county agricultural society at the Court house Saturday p. m. E. D. Mosher presided and T. J. Manro was made secretary. James B. Burlew of Union Springs and others argued earnestly in favor of reviving the organization and an adjournment was taken to Saturday, Dec. 22, at 2 p. m., when the subject will be more thoroughly discussed and some action will be taken.

The following letter will explain why the Auburn agitators will have to organize a new association entirely and this they may do.

MORAVIA, Dec. 8.
Editor of The Advertiser, Auburn, N. Y.:

I note in last evening's Advertiser an editorial regarding the holding of a county fair in your city. I am advised by the commissioner of agriculture that the "Cayuga County Agricultural Society" has failed to file the necessary reports and therefore has no existence. On this authority we have taken possession of the term "County" and have recorded in the proper offices the articles of incorporation of the "Cayuga County Agricultural Corporation," with headquarters at this village.

So come up to Moravia next September with your handsome babies and big vegetables and we will show you a genuine county fair.

Yours, etc., P. M. RATHBUN,
Editor Moravia Republican.

A Venice Wedding.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of David Anthony in Venice, Nov. 28, when in the presence of over a hundred guests, his daughter, Miss Mabel Archer Anthony, was married to George Brown Hoagland, by Rev. Claude G. Langford. They were the recipients of very many handsome and valuable presents. Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland took a trip to some of the larger cities, and are now at home.

Died from tile injuries.

Louis Newgass, a prominent resident of Auburn, and well known in county politics, fell under the wheels of a Central train at Cayuga Monday morning, while attempting to jump aboard. Both legs were terribly crushed and he was taken to the Auburn city hospital as soon as a special train could be made up. Both legs were amputated, but the shock was too much, and he died Tuesday evening.

Congress Awards a Medal for Gallantry Thirty-Five Years After the Act.

"This soldier, at the risk of his own life, saved the life of an officer who had been shot down and overpowered by superior numbers," are the words of the special act of congress passed in 1863, by which Assistant Secretary of War O. W. Melkjohn is authorized to send Daniel B. Moore, baillif in the sheriff's office and attached to Judge Ball's court, the medal which he received from the war department a few days ago for conspicuous gallantry shown at Fort Blakely, Ala., April 9, 1865, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Mr. Moore has never pressed his claims to be awarded the medal in all these years, but his friends have put the case before the war department on several occasions, and now, after 35 years, he is decorated by his country. And since his mother was a native of Illinois this state has a share in his gallant deed. Mr. Moore was born in Iowa county, Wisconsin, in 1830, his father being one of the first white settlers and a fighter in the Black Hawk war. His elder brother was the first white child born in Wisconsin. At the opening of the civil war Mr. Moore enlisted in the Eleventh Wisconsin, company E, and went first to Missouri, serving there with the Thirty-third Illinois in a brigade under Col. Hovey, and later in the Thirteenth army corps under Gen. McClellan. He was through the fight at Vicksburg, and after enlisting in Texas went with the Seventeenth army corps to Mobile. Then, at the attack on Fort Blakely, to use his own words, the company in which he was a corporal received orders to charge the enemy's defenses, and nine of us got into one of the open spaces or roads between the works by which they brought up their pickets, and seven of the nine were shot down. Lieut. Angus McDonald, who was leading us, and I, however, jumped over into the fort, and he was promptly shot down, and then one of the enemy rushed up and wounded him in the thigh with his bayonet, and was about to thrust once again into the lieutenant's side when I shot him, and then fought with the butt of my gun over the body and kept them all off until the position was taken. I was wounded in the head with a bayonet, but escaped without injury of a lasting nature. For this I was made a brevet captain, and later was recommended for the medal. The lieutenant returned to Madison, Wis., and died there in 1891. While I am proud to be so decorated, I never would have pressed for it. The medal is of copper, hanging by a ribbon of the national colors from a bar and inscribed as follows:

"THE CONGRESS TO SERGT. DANIEL B. MOORE, COMPANY E, ELEVENTH WISCONSIN INFANTRY, FOR GALLANTRY AT FORT BLAKELY, ALABAMA, APRIL 9, 1865."

GRANT'S GENEROSITY.

Shares His Personal Supply of Currency with a Captured Confederate.

Representative Vespasian Warner spoke from personal acquaintance with his subject when he made one of the addresses accepting the Grant statue placed in the capitol recently, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Warner carried a musket in the Twentieth Illinois at the time Grant was a captain, stationed at Springfield and engaged in mobilizing the Illinois volunteers. He was a boy of 19 at that time. Grant commanded the Twenty-first Illinois. He took a fancy to the boy subaltern and showed him many personal kindnesses. It was somewhat due to Grant's recognition of young Warner's capabilities that the private soldier obtained his first commission. The tribute which Mr. Warner made to the great commander's memory came straight from the heart. It contained this story illustrative of Grant's character: "He fought battles not for the purpose of killing men, but for the purpose of saving his country, and when a battle was over he wished to take his enemies to his heart and make them his and his country's friends. I do not believe he ever had an unkind feeling for any man, living or dead, whether pointed to consider the question of capitulation. Gen. Grant answered that such commissioners were unnecessary, adding that he purposed to move immediately upon their works. That was Grant, the general. Gen. Buckner surrendered unconditionally, and that night, after 'taps,' Gen. Grant found and entered Gen. Buckner's tent, and, taking out his pocketbook, said: 'Gen. Buckner, you are a prisoner and will be sent north. I presume you have no money that is current with us, and I wish to share mine with you.' That was Grant, the man."

Punctilious.

"And now, madam," said the census enumerator, "as to your age."

"Ah, yes," she answered, as she glanced at the blank; "but you'll have to be more explicit."

"Your age at your last birthday is what is mentioned."

"You will have to specify the time of day upon which you want the calculation based, also whether you wish to know my age in seconds or merely in hours or minutes."

The enumerator began to look worried, and began to suspect for the many-th time that day that working for the government is not the sinecure it has been pictured.

"You know," she proceeded sweetly, "that a birthday is something that occurs only once in a lifetime. If you had said birthday anniversary it would be different. But you didn't say it, and I must shut the door now and get back to my sewing."—Washington Star.

CAPTIVITY OF JOB.

Dr. Talmage Urges Us to Avoid Selfish Thoughts.

Lessons Drawn from Him Who Prayed for His Friends While Imprisoned—Self-Concentration the Fault of Too Many.

(Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopfach, N. Y.) Washington, Nov. 11.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage warns on narrowness of view and urges a life helpful to others; text, Job 42-10: "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Comparatively few people read this last chapter of the Book of Job. The earlier chapters are so full of thrilling incident, of events so dramatically portrayed, of awful ailments and terrific disaster, of domestic infelicity, of staccato passage, of resounding address, of omnipotency proclaimed, of utterances showing Job to have been the greatest scientist of his day, an expert in mining and precious stones, astronomer and geographer and zoologist and electrician and poet, that most readers stop before they get to my text, which, strangely and mysteriously, announces that "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Now, will you please explain to me how Job's prayer for his friends halted his catastrophes? Give me some good reason why Job, on his knees in behalf of the welfare of others, arrested the long procession of calamities. Mind you, it was not prayer for himself, for then the cessation of his troubles would have been only another instance of prayer answered. But the portfolio of his disaster was rolled up while he supplicated God in behalf of Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite. I must confess to you that I had to read the text over and over again before I got its full meaning: "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Well, if you will not explain it to me I will explain it to you. The healthiest, the most recuperative thing on earth to do is to stop thinking so much about ourselves and go to thinking about the welfare of others. Job had been studying his misfortunes, but the more he thought about his bankruptcy the poorer he seemed, the more he thought of his carbuncles the worse they hurt, the more he thought of his unfortunate marriage the more intolerable became the conjugal relation, the more he thought of his house blown down the more terrific seemed the cyclone. His misfortunes grew blacker and blacker. But there was to come a reversal of these sad conditions. One day he said to himself: "I have been dwelling too much upon my bodily ailments and my wife's temper and my bereavements. It is time I began to think about others and do something for others, and I will start now by praying for my three friends." Then Job dropped upon his knees, and as he did so the last shackle of his captivity of troubles snapped and fell off. Hear it, all ye ages of time and all ye ages of eternity, "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

The fault with most of us is too much self-concentration—our health, our fortunes, our advancement, our social position, our achievements, our losses, our defeats, our sufferings, our persecution, our life, our death, our immortality. Of course there is a lawful and righteous selfishness. In a world and in a time of such activities and rivalries and temptations we must look after our own interests and our own destiny or we will go under. Do not wait for others to take care of you. Take care of yourself. But it will not hinder our preservation and prosperity if we enlarge the sphere of our wishes and prayers so as to take in others. The law in the natural world would do well for the moral and spiritual world. The centripetal force in nature would throw everything in toward the center and the centrifugal force in nature would throw everything out from the center. But the centripetal and the centrifugal work beautifully together. The one force that would throw everything toward the center is balanced by the force that would throw everything outward.

Our world, with its own interests, feels the pull of other worlds. No world, no nation, no community, no man, no woman, can afford to exist only for itself or himself or herself. The hour in which Job has that soliloquy about the enlargement of his prayers so as to take in his friends, and he put into execution his good resolution, was the hour when he felt a tonic, a sedative, a nerve, a cathartic that helped to cure his body and revived his fortunes till they were a hundred per cent. better than ever before, for the record is "the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before," and tended to make him a wonder of longevity, for he lived 140 years after his troubles were gone. Oh, what a mighty medicament is the contemplation of and the effort for the welfare of others!

"But," says some one, "it is easy enough for Job to pray for his friends. Anybody can do that. There are those to whom we are obliged for years of kindness. They stand so close to us in sympathy and reminiscence and an-you do not understand that these friends of Job were the most tantalizing and exasperating friends a man ever had. Look at their behavior. When they heard of his bereavements and the accidents by whirlwind and lightning stroke they came in and sat down by him a whole week, seven days and seven nights, and the record is "none spake a word to him." What a disreputable and wicked silence! Mind you, they professed to be religious men, and they ought to have been able to offer some religious consolation. Instead of that they were dumb as the sphinx which at that time stood in the African desert and stands there still. Why did they not say something about reunion in the Heavenly realms with his children who had been slain? Why did they not talk to him about the satisfactory explanations in the future world of things we do not understand in this world? Why did they not go to the apothecary and buy a poultice that would have soothed the carbuncles, or some quieting potion that would calm his nerves, or a few drops of febrifuge that would cool his heated frame? No! For seven days and seven nights they did nothing and said nothing for his relief. They must have almost bored him to death.

After these three friends had completed their infamous silence of a week they began to lecture Job. First, Eliphaz the Temanite opens with a long story about a dream which he had in the night and irritates the sufferer with words that make things worse instead of better and sets him in an attitude of defense against the lecturer. Then comes Bildad the Shuhite, who gives the invalid a round scolding and calls him garrulous and practically tells him that he deserved all that he got, and that if he had behaved himself aright he would not have lost his house or his children or his estate. He practically says: "Job, I will tell you what is the matter with you. You are bad; you are a hypocrite; you are now getting paid for your wickedness." No wonder that there came from Job an outburst of indignation which calls out the other quondam friend, Zophar the Naamathite, who begins denouncing Job by calling him a liar, and keeps on the discourse until Job responds to all three of them in the sarcastic words: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you."

Oh, what friends Job had! Heaven deliver us from having one such friend, to say nothing of having three of them. It was for such friends that Job prayed, and was it a religious triumph for him to do so? Would you, the very best of you, be in very devout mood and capable of making intercession for people who had come to you in a day of trouble and said: "Good for you. You ought to be chastised. You are being taken in hand by eternal justice. If you had behaved yourself aright you would not have been sick or persecuted or impoverished or made childless." Oh, no, my friend, you would not have felt like Job when he prayed for his friends, but more like Job when he cursed the day of his nativity!

Notice that this flagellation by the three friends was premeditated. They did not merely happen in and come suddenly upon the trouble for which they could not offer a compound. The Bible says: "They had made an appointment together." The interview was prearranged. They had agreed as to what they would say to the sick man. You can see that their remarks were not extemporaneous. What they said was sublimely poetic. They rose in style into what in later times we would call the Homeric or Dantesque. But Job was not in need of poetry so much as a salve for his eruptive disorder. He was not dying for lack of a paragraph in blank verse. He was not so much in need of a didactic lecture about the justice of God as an assurance of the Divine mercy. Some pious rustic of the land of Uz not able to put three grammatical sentences together could have said something more consolatory.

The meanness of the attack of these religious critics was augmented by the fact that they had the sufferer in their power. When we are well and we do not like what one is saying we can get up and go away. But Job was too ill to get up and go away. First he endured the seven days and seven nights of silence, and then he endured their arraignment of his motives and character, and after their cruel campaign was ended by a sublime effort of soul, which this day uphold for imitation, he triumphed in prayer for his tantalizers. In all history there is nothing equal to it except the memorable imploration by Christ of His enemies. No wonder that after that prayer of Job was once uttered a thrill of recovery shot through every nerve and vein of his tortured body and every passion of his great soul, and God answered it by adding nearly a century and a half to his lifetime, and whitened the hills with flocks of sheep, and filled the air with the lowing of cattle, and awakened the silent nursery of his home with the swift feet and the laughing voices of childhood—seven sons and three daughters celebrated for their beauty, the daughters to refine the sons, the sons to defend the daughters. There is nothing that pays so well as prayer, and the more you pray ward for making it.

Let us all make a similar attempt to pray for those who vex and misrepresent and tantalize us. You may be very popular in the city or neighborhood where you live, but I warrant if you are in active life there are those who wish you the opposite of wishing you well. Are you benevolent? They say it is on your part a matter of personal display. Are you eloquent or learned? They declare you are overrated and that what you say or write is of no importance. Do you try to make yourself effective in church or hospital or board of directors? They call you officious. Are you well dressed? They say you are proud. Does a false report start in the community against your character? They believe it all and add another story to the fabrication. Some of them pretend to be friends, but they have the cudgels all ready for you—Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, Zophar the Naamathite. Now, pray for them. "Oh," you say, "I cannot do that." I thought you could not. But you will grow in grace until you can do it as easily and as well as did Job pray for his exasperators. You ought to pity them, for defamers and detractors and the envious and jealous are not happy. They hurt themselves more than they hurt you. Better be the pursued than the pursuer. Better be the infant Christ than Herod, the robber of the Bethlehem cradles. You want to be a better man. You want to be a better woman. Then scale this height of triumphant prayer, and you will be ten times more of a Christian than you ever have been. It will prolong your life, as it prolonged Job's life. You will feel a glorious reaction that will last through all time and all eternity. It will steady your nerves. It will reduce your spleen. It will regulate the pulsation of your heart.

Prayer is what some one has called "the slender nerve that moveth the muscles of omnipotence." Prayer is the healthful respiration of the soul. It is the whisper of helplessness into the ear of help. It is laying hold of almightiness, omniscience and omnipresence at one and the same time. Prayer enlists all Divine and angelic reinforcement. Prayer is laying hold of a pulley fastened to the Heavenly throne. Prayer is the first breath of a newborn soul, and it is heard in the last gasp of earthly Christian experiences. Prayer! In an instant it mounts the highest heavens. Neither seraph nor archangel ever flew swifter or higher than the infant's petition at her mother's knee. What an opportunity is prayer! Why not oftener use it praying for ourselves? What better work would we do, what better lives would we live, what better hopes would we entertain, if we multiplied and intensified our prayers!

Some one asked a soldier of Stonewall Jackson the secret of the great general's influence over his men. "Does your general abuse you, swear at you, to make you march?" "Swear!" replied the soldier. "No!" Ewell does the swearing. Stonewall does the praying. When Stonewall wants us to march, he looks at us soberly, just as if he were sorry for us, and says: "Men, we have got to make a long march." We always know when there is going to be a long march and right smart fighting, for Stonewall is powerful on prayer just before a big fight.

In all the tossing of this life lay hold of the rope of prayer mentioned by John Newton, who was converted on shipboard from being a blasphemous sailor to become a great preacher of righteousness, and who said: "When I first amused myself with going to sea, when the winds rose and the waves became rough, I tumbled and tossed about like a porpoise in the water. At last I caught hold of a rope that was floating about, and then I was enabled to stand upright. So when in prayer a multitude of troublous thoughts invade your peace, or when the winds and waves of temptation arise, look out for the rope and stay yourselves on the faithfulness of God keeping His promises."

My hearer, I will tell you the time when you can afford to cease praying. It will be when you have no sins to be pardoned, no sorrows to be comforted, no more friends or foes who need your intercessions. Queen Elizabeth said to Walter Raleigh: "Raleigh, when will you stop begging?" Raleigh replied: "When your majesty leaves off giving." And your time, my hearer, to stop prayer will be when God has no more pardon and mercy and strength to bestow and the resources of the Infinite are exhausted. Havelock knew the value of prayer when he arose at four o'clock in the morning for his devotions. The soldiers of the Fourteenth Massachusetts regiment showed that they knew the joy of worship when they took a delegate of the Christian commission to see what they called their "praying place."

Now, if God has during these remarks shown us the uses, the importance, the blessedness of prayer, suppose we try to do what Job did when he prayed for his exasperators. Many of us at the beginning of this subject felt that, while we could pray for ourselves and pray for those who were kind to us, we never could reach the high point of prayer in which we could pray for those who annoy and make us which we feared we could never climb, but we thank God that by his omnipotent grace we have reached that height at last. Let us pray! O Christ, who didst pray for thine assassins, we now pray for those who despitely use us and say all manner of evil against us. For their eternal salvation we supplicate. When time is no more, may they reign on thrones and wear coronets and sway scepters of Heavenly dominion. Meanwhile take the bitterness from their soul and make them soon think as well of us as now they think evil. Spare their bodies from pain and their households from bereavement. After all the misunderstandings and controversies of this life are over, may we keep with them eternal jubilee in the mansions on the hill. And as Thou didst turn the captivity of Job when he had prayed for those who badly used him and health came to his body and prosperity to his estate, now that we have by Thy grace been able to make supplication for our antagonists, cure our diseases if we are ill, and restore our estate if it has scattered, and awaken gladness in our homesteads, if they have been bereft, and turn the captivity of our physical pain or financial misfortune or mental distress. And Thine shall be the Kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever. Amen.

The Best Cold Cure
