DEC. 19-Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Armstrong celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage on Saturday evening. Over 60 friends and neighbors were present. An elegant supper was served, and the beautiful gifts received spoke eloquently of the high esteem of the guests. Mr. Fred Armstrong of Rochester was home for the occasion.

The Senior L. T. L. held a very pleasant meeting at the home of the president, Miss Emma Atwood, on Friday evening. Music and singing, with selections by members, a social hour and refreshments nicely served made an enjoyable time.

Mrs. Georgia Hewitt of Orleans Co. addressed the W. C. T. U. at a parlor meeting at Mrs. Coon's on Tuesday, giving much information in regard to the work, and rousing interest in the temperance cause. Singing and remarks by Rev. The funeral of Mrs. David Price who died Nov. 26th was held on Wednesday, Nov. 28th, and in addition to the remarks made by Rev. W. sketch of her life was also given:

C. Brass at that time, the following 'With the exception of a few years that were spent in Michigan, this life was lived among you here. You have valued her worth, you have come under her influence, you have received something from its perpetuation. Our departed sister was born June 18, 1837, and had consequently passed her 63d birthday. When a child, she was taken to Michigan, living there about eleven years, and returning to this section of country when about 16 years of age, spending the remaining time of some 47 years in your midst. She was married to Mr. Price on June 13, 1855, enjoying a married life of over 45 years. Who of us can measure the influence of her active, energetic, whole-souled service in the Master's cause? Rarely gifted with the exceptional endowment of song, she literally sang her soul out, in her devoted work for Jesus Christ. With a beautiful voice of rare culture and careful training, her contribution of service to the church defies all attempts of computation-only the eternities can measure its power for good. She poured her soul out in song, carrying the spirit and forms of truth into thousands of hearts, who will now rise up and call her blessed. Measure the influence of her rare voice in song? Impossible. Only the Infinite Mind can gather up the good accomplished and make it an eternal and shining adornment in her crown of life. The sermon carries God's message to the mind; the song carries God's message through the awakened emotions to the mind; the one appeals predominantly to the reason, the other to the heart. While I am not underrating the place and value of preaching, I would emphasize the power of songto preach through song is the rarer accomplishment. In distinguished service of song, what a power Mrs. Price was in the King Ferry church, what a tower of strength in its devotional work! Beginning to sing in Union Springs, N. Y. Fire Insurance and 1855, she never ceased to use her voice for God in song, until God forced her to stop. In 1872, when the renovated church building was rededicated to divine worship, she formed the soprano in the famed Price-Fenner Quartette, so often ments of every description carefully Price-Fenner Quartette, so often and correctly drawn; all business left heard and widely known throughout this section of the state. When the quartette was broken by death, still this matchless singer in Israel con-Insurance Company, will be in Genoa and tinued, a leader in the song worship vicinity each month to look after his pat- of the King Ferry church until God laid her aside. Her blessed ministry of song for something like 45 yearscan you measure its influence? Nay, we cannot even approximate its value and significance to the work of God in this community. That voice is hushed now, here we shall hear it no longer, but methinks, I can almost hear it in its distinctness in the song of Moses and the Lamb, in the Heav-

only Chorus yonder.

In many ways she might be called an ideal woman. If I were to summarize her character and life in two words, they would be these-faithful and cheerful. Mrs. Price was a wellrounded woman of many parts. She was full of energy, and kindness, and hope, and no one could ever touch her life without feeling the richer and better for the contact; but there was one thread that found its way all through her life and made it the one connected whole, that it was, so strong and so beautiful-cheerful fidelity was the mainspring of her life. A faithful wife and mother, and a model housekeeper, with an abiding smiling, cheerful presence made her home a delight to her family and friends, and an inspiration to all. Nothing that fell to her lot, ever suffered from neglect, and yet there was a feeling of repose in every movement. Everything was attended to, and in time, and yet without hurry. And the same loving fidelity so manifest in the management and atmosphere of the home, was taken with her everywhere-into the neighbor's home, society and the church. What she did, she did cheerfully and well. Nothing ever waited on uncertainties that was committed to her hands. Perhaps her most acceptable and valuable life-service to the church was that which will long be remembered with thanksgiving by all the King Ferry people and surrounding communities, her blessed service of song. She was emphatically "the sweet singer of Israel." Seldom has woman sung so long, and so well, in the house of God. I recall with tears of delight those years of inspiration to the pastor in his service which came from that voice so full of pathos sympathy and triumphant hope, as it uttered in beautiful melody those hymns of praise in the Sabbath congregation or the house of mourning. How many, many times have listening audiences been lifted up to the very gates of the New Jerusalem by that soulful voice, on wings of faith and hope. One specimen will illustrate the scores of other occasions when souls were uplifted by the voice of song. It was a beautiful afternoon in the month of June, I think in 1871, when a large gathering of friends stood about an open grave in the cemetery. Some of us had had

Died Very Suddenly.

As the TRIBUNE goes to press we learn that yesterday (Thursday) about 1 o'clock Arthur A. King went to the residence of Netus Jump, west of King Ferry village, and was woefully surprised to find Mr. Jump, his brother and their sister lying upon the floor, the first two dead and the woman dying. George Shank, who has worked there for years, was also unconscious, but had chances to recover. Mr. King hastened to the village and informed the citizens and and found the bodies as above described. There is an apparent mystery, but no statement has been made. There was a faint odor of coal gas in the rooms, but not enough to cause any person inconvenience.

LEUNG CHI-TSO.

Chinese Reformer of Honolulu Whose Hend Is Worth $65,-000 in Peking.

Leung Chi-tso, also known as Leong Kai Chew, lately came back from Hawall, where he spent a fortnight proselytizing among the Chinese of that island. He says that he had great success, and those who accompanied him tel! the same story, says the Honolulu Commercial Advertiser.

Leung Chi-tso, whose head delivered at Peking is worth $65,000, according to the officers of the downger empress of China and Li Hung Chang, takes some chances of losing his headpiece. Though he was constantly watched on his journey to Hawaii and during his travels there, yet there were moments when a quick and determined assassin might have carned the reward, which would have meant a fortune to the villain wielding the weapon if he succeeded in convincing the wily empress of the death of the man she hates and fears.

With Loung Chi-tso to Hawaii went a quartette of local Chinese who constituted his cabinet and bodyguard. They were men whose tidelity was proved and whose courage and alertness could not be doubted. Their instructions were to never let their charge out of their sight or reach. and to be ready any instant to defend his safety.

Meetings were held at Hilo and other places, and reform, as advocated by Leung, gained many adherents. Lenng told his heavers at the plantation and village garherings that he had come to talk with them on a subject dear as life. He pictured to them the condition in which the Chinese emperor is, the restraint placed upon him by the empress and the willingness of the emperor to give free speech and a share in the government to every citizen of the Chinese empire.

He advocated the adoption of Enropean methods and habits, the cutting off of queues and the general showing to the world and to the conservative party in China that they were followers of the reform party and were determined to fight the battle of reform to the bitter end.

All over Hawaii Leung Chi-tso carried the doctrine of opposition to the empress, and found favor. He was attended everywhere by bands of enthusiasts, and the Bow Wong Wui, a branch of which he instituted in Honolulu, has now a membership of many hundreds on the big island.

This will mean much money for the coffers of the society, which is struggling for the overthrow of the dowager Leung Chi-tso's intentions are to leave Honolulu for the mainland of America as soon as his labors in the islands are over. He will spend a long time in San Francisco and the other cities of California, where his countrymen live in numbers, and will eventually go to Europe. He will have great influence to help him in San Francisco, where the leading merchants are in sympathy with the reform plans.

When an adviser to the emperor and a teacher in a college he, of course, wore the conventional clothes of the upper class and had as long and handsome a queue as any other reputable Chinese. It was not till the empress sought his life that he abandoned the national costume of China and cut off the pigtail which he prid-Now he assumes the everyday coat and trousers of an American and wears his hair short and parted in the

ENTERTAINS FOR CHARITY.

The Beneficent Work of Miss Eva Madge, a Young New York Girl.

Miss Eva Mudge, of New York, enjoys the distinction of having raised more money for charitable purposes than any other girl of her age in America. She is only 18, and has for some years past been engaged in entertaining select circles with songs and impersonation. At six years of age she attracted public attention by her remarkable musical gifts, being engaged at that time to sing at a reception at the white house, Washington, D. C., by President and Mrs. Cleveland. Twice since that time she has appeared in entertainments at the white house and has been constantly engaged in giving songs and recitals during the 12 years past. Miss Mudge has been specially noted for her warm interest in charity work, and two beautiful gold medals have been given her in commemoration of her services in this direction, one by her society and professional friends and the other, set with diamonds, by the New York press. She enjoys the enviable distinction of having given more to the poor than any other girl of her age in the country. Her latest achievement is the rendition, in a Stonewall Jackson suit and hat, of the famous poem, "Barbara Frietchie," which aptly displays her accomplishments. The musical setting enables her the free use of a rich contralto voice. Misa Mudge is a lineal descendant of Zachariah Mudge, prebendary of Exeter and vicar of outh, born 1680; and of Admiral

FEMININE FRILLS.

Seasonable Materials for Gowns and Jackets for Matron and Maiden.

There are a good many women who bject to the ordinary wire skirt and out hangers, and do not care for the ribbon-covered ones. For these women tions. there is always the wicker hanger to be found. It is light and clean, and has a dainty appearance in the clothes loset, says the New York Times.

Homespun is having a pleasant little period of popularity this year. It is a sensible, practical goods, excellent for traveling, and many traveling gowns are to be seen of it. Beige is a good olor, and in the homespun a gown is practically indes ruetible and will look well as long as it remains in style. Traveling capes are made of the homepun, the long coats intended for service, and in some of them the high stor r. collar and the wood which encircles the shoulders are lifed with plaid.

A pretty gown for a young girl is made of a rich red homespun. The skirt is made plain and stitched, and the short little spencer jacket shows the break black satin folded belt, which is almost a bodice in itself, and a long black satin scarf is worn over a white blouse.

Another pretty gown which a young girl finds serviceable is of black crepa de chine. It is simply made and has on the bodice a broad collar of renaissance lace outlining a little round yake or empiecement, as the French call it. The collar is pointed with two long points coming down on either side of the front. The yoke and stock are of turquois blue taffeta crossed with narrow black velvet ribbon, and there is a little soft belt of the blue. The empiecement and belt can be changed at will for others of a different style, giving a pleasant possibility of variety.

A pretty tourist's costume of brown has a plain skirt reaching to the instep, and in place of a jacket a plain little smoothly-fitting cape is worn, The only trimming on the gown is gimp, the color of the gown and narrow, three rows passing down the left side where the skirt opens and around the lower edge. The cape, which reaches to just above the waist line. is also trimmed around the edge, up the front, and around the neck below the standing collar with the gimp. The collar is pretty and appropriate, a high, straight military collar with velvet set on, leaving a plain edge. The cape buttons down the front are also in a businesslike manner, which is at the same time stylish, with three plain little buttons, one at the top, one halfway down, and the last at the lower edge. The suit is intended for service and shows it.

Potate Soup.

Cut half a pound of peeled potatoes into slices (they should be weighed after being peeled) and put them into a stewpan with an ounce of butter, an onion and a turnip, sliced, and a few pieces of celery; cover the pan and let the vegetables simmer for ten minutes without becoming in the least brown. Then pour in a quart of white stock (the liquor in which a piece of mutton or a fowl has been boiled will answer the purpose), and after it has boiled up let it simmer until the vegetables are quite tender. Remove the onion and pass the potato, etc., through a sieve; return the puree to the stewpan and add half a pint of milk which has been boiled with a tablespoonful of rice nour; season the soup with salt, pepper and a little grated nutmeg; stir in about a dessertspoonful of chopped parsley, and as soon as it is thoroughly hot send it to table, accompanied by sippets of fried bread,-Washington Star.

MOTHER TUBBS

By J. L. Harbour. (Copyright, 1900, the Authors' Syndicate.)

OTHER TUBBS and I were the MOTHER TUBBS and I were the only passengers in the heavy, old stage coach as it slowly crept up the steep and rocky ascent of Golden pass It was a raw cold November day or we would have ridden outside with Shorty, the ariver, but as there was a fine, chilling mist in the air, we were glad to wrap ourselves up well on the back seat of the inside of the coach. Mother Tubbs was already in the coach when I entered it at Silver Gap camp. She greeted me quite as if I were an old friend, although I had never seen her until that moment. She was a large, motherly, comfortable looking woman of about 65 years, and she was loquacious to the

"My man he says that my tongue is loose at both ends," she said, merrily, soon after I had seated myself by her side in the coach. I had thought that she might prefer to have the back seat to herself, and I was about to take the front seat when she said:

than backwards, and then there ain't but just this one robe in the stage, and we can both use it if you set here. Much as I've trailed 'round in stage coaches in the last 25 years, it makes me dead sick to ride backwards." "Have you lived here in the Rockies

25 years?" . "Indeed, I have, my son. And I ain't ever been out o' sight of 'em in all that time, either. Oh. I'm an old-timer, I am. My land! the booms I've lived through, and the camps I've seen go up and down in that time! I went all through the Leadville boom, and the Gunnison county booms, and here I am on my way to another one over here in Poverty gulen, where I reckon you are bound for. Some o' the boys they say a boom wouldn't be wuth anything if Mother Tubbs wa'n't in it. That's what they call me -Mother Tubbs. And land knows I have mothered enough of 'em to have earned the title."

We had ridden about ten miles, and Mother Tubbs' tongue had run incessantly in a very entertaining way: Presently we rode down into a narrow gulch, where five or six log cabins with sunken roofs and fallen doors indicated the existence of a little mining camp in days long past. Mother Tubbs glanced out of the window in the door of the coach, and said, with a little sigh:

"Dear me! Here's all there is left of old Camp Fancy, and when them cabins was built it was thought it would be the biggest minin' camp in the country. That's what the miners think about ev'ry new minin' camp. There was as many as a thousand miners in this gulch one summer, and there were 'ents and cabins all up and down the gulch. Then the min'ral veins all petered out. You see that cabin up by that big bowlder?"

"Yes; I see it."

"Well, I kep' a lodgin' house there 20 years ago, and sometimes I kep' 30 people over night in the three little rooms that cabin had. I never think of them days without callin' to mind something that happened one night along the first o' the boom, when there wa'n't a great many folks in the gulch yet. I'll tell you about it if you say so."

"O please do."

"Well, it was one real cold and stormy day in November when the stage come along and dropped a single passenger at my house, and I'd never had such a passenger dropped there before. She was a yaller-naired, blue-eyed, innocent lookin' young thing of about 19, whose pa and ma had no bizness to let her be trav'lin' round alone, even if she was on her way to marry the fellow she was engaged to. But it was like this: The girl was inclined to be wenk-lunged, and the doctors in her home back east had said that

Well, it so happened that she was engaged to be married to a young feller who had come from her home out here to seek his fortune. He had got the minin' fever, and had come to this gulch, thinkin' there was to be a big boom here. He had a little money, so when the girl writ him what the doctors had said about her. he sent word for her to come right out here, and they would be married. He was full o' hope about the future, and he knew they'd git along all right. Well, she'd got here a day or two ahead o' time, so he wa'n't here to meet her. He was back on the hills prospectin', se I just mothered her, and told her to make herself right at home there at my house, and they could be married there if they had a mind to when her beau showed up. She was such an innercent lamb that I took right to her and she was head over heels in love with this fellow. She showed me his photergraft before she had been three hours in the house, and I reconized it as the face of a young chap who had stayed a day or two at my house a few weeks before. His name was Harvey Briggs.

"Well, the girl was all played out after bein' on the stage all day, and) hustled her off to bed right after sup per. The night had set in awful stormy and bad, and I was settin' by a roarin fire hemmin' some tablecloths 'long about ten o'clock and thinking that hoped no one was out in that storm when all of a sudden my door opened and in dashed a tall, slim young feller without any hat or overcoat and look in' skeered out of a year's growth.

" 'O Mother Tubbs!' he says, with his voice all of a tremble and his eyes stick in' out of his head with fright. 'They are after me! What shall I do?"

"'Who's after you, son?' says I. 'And what are they after you for?'

"The men up in the gulch, he says They say I have jumped a claim, but if I have I didn't know it! I thought it was an old claim that some one had abandoned. But they can't be made to think so unless you can make 'em think it. What shall I do?'

"Well, I recognized him in a minnit as Harvey Briggs and I held up my hand for silence, fearing the girl in the other room would hear him, but she was too worn out and slept too soundly to be easily 'wakened. I told the boy -he wa'n't over 22-to set down, and he kep' beggin' me to hide him, and 1 was about to send him to the loft overhead when the door swung open and in come about as many men as could "You'd better set here by me, for crowd into the room, and the young it's more comfortable riding forwards | feller give a yell and run into a corner like a skeered rabbit. Well, I just jumped right in front of him, and I held up my hand and I says, says I:

"'Stand back, boys; stand back! There ain't one of you that wants to lay hands on a woman, and you'll have it to do if you try to pull him out. Stand back, I tell you!'

"I knew more than half of 'em, and, I tell you, they stood back. It'd been mighty rash for one of 'em to of laid hands on Mother Tubbs, for there were boys there that would have fit to the death for me, and one of them boys was Bill Hodge, the leader o' the gang. He says, says he:

"'Yes, stand back and hear what

Mother Tubbs has to say." "'I got this to say, says I: 'There's a young gal in the other room who has come nearly 2,000 miles to marry this boy, and just as sure as you take his life hers will go, too, for she is just that far gone on him. You don't want her blood on your hands; no. nor you don't want any human blood on your hands. This boy says he didn't mean to jump that claim, and even if he did he is a young, inexperienced boy, and it ain't for you to jedge him. I don't believe that he meant to do wrong, and I tell you right flat that you don't take him out o' this house to his death. I'll shoot first!'

"There was a loaded rifle on the wall back o' me, and I grabbed it and held it out before me." " 'Bully for Mother Tubbs!' says Bill Hodge. "Just at that minnit the door of the cabin's other room opened and the girl come out. She had on a long, loose, blue wrapper and all her yeller hair hangin' down her back. The young feller screams out 'Lucy!' and she was in his arms in a minnit. Then, in a minnit or two, she says:

"What are all these men here for?" "'La, child,' says I, 'they have come to your wedding. We'll have the ceremony performed right now. Come, parson, marry 'em right off.'

"You see, I had a parson that had just come to the camp lodgin' with me, and he had been routed out by the noise and had just come into the room. He come forward and the girl kind o' objected to bein' married in a blue wrapper, but I told her that she couldn't look purtier in the finest white satin and that it would be a pity to send the men away without seein' a weddin' when they had come fer that purpose. So she give in, and they was married, and if Bill Hodge wa'n't the first one to shake hands with the bridegroom, and he kissed the bride! I flew around and made coffee and cut a big fruit cake I'd made for Thanksgivin', and we had a gay time. And the young fellow turned out real well. He is a prosperous man and he and his wife have four lovely children. I visited 'em last week. But

I reckon that was the first and only

A GOOD HABIT TO CULTIVATE.

Take Cheerful, Courageous Views of Life-Rensuns for Praise and Gratitude.

The disposition to praise God is not merely a matter of temperament. It also is a matter of conviction and may become a habit. They who by nature are despondent often have learned to take more cheerful, courageous views of life by forming the practice of gratitude and praise to God and achering to it loyally. It opens one's eyes to study the reasons which he individually has for rejoicing. Devote a short time now and then to meditation upon your circumstances. Compare them with what they might be, and with what those are of many persons whom world which reveals the presence, power and glory of God, and if your heart do not inspire your lips to utter praise it will be strange indeed.

But why does God desire our praise? What good does it do Him? It is a mistake to think of our Heavenly Father as so remote in His supreme holiness and glory as to be indifferent to our feeling toward Him and our expression. of it. He desires our pruise because He knows that for us to recognize what His character is, and what He has done and is doing for us in spirit and in life alike, cannot fail to make us in every way more like Himself. It does one good to be grateful and to utter gratitude in praise. It does one good to focus thought on an ideal of nobility and hol'ness, to comprehend sustains close relations with us, and to express our appreciation and thankfulness for what He is and is doing for us. This is why God desires us to praise Him and why we should comply with that desire. It is a blessing for us to utter praises, and a duty left unperformed when we fail. If you look around, you will perceive that the Christian whose life is most characterized by the spirit and voice of praise, not in any sentimental or perfunctory spirit, but in genuine heartiness, is not only the happiest but the most useful replied Mrs. Perkasie, "and the doctor of men. The Essential Thing to Look After In This Life-The Need of the Hour.

How we desire to look into the future! Not simply to know what may affect us, but to know that which is so mysteriously hidden from us. The search for knowledge is simply the effort to know the unknown. In this we become so absorbed that we forget that which is at hand, and which vitally concerns us. "When shall these things be?" asked the disciples of Jesus. "Wilt Thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" "Lord, are there few that he saved?" So we are asking questions. What will the church of the future be like? What will be its organization? How shall it meet the responsibilities of the future? When will all the kingdoms of the earth become obedient to Christ? What will be the fate of the Bible under the adverse criticism to which it is Sample Bov, 15 pairs, prepaid, 75c. subjected? When will Christ come? And when will the end be? There are a thousand questions we would like to have answered. We ask and listen. but no voice comes out of the darkness. There will ever be mysteries; there must ever be hidden things, for God is infinite, and His plans are beyoud the powers of man.

But Christ anwers us. He does not unveil the mysteries, but He speaks to us concerning ourselves: "Strive to enter in at the strait gate," Duty is present; it is personal. The future depends on the present, and it is for us, in a certain sense and to a limited degree, to make the future. Do we ask what is in store for us? The answer is, it is not for you to know, but do your present duty, and the future will come to you in the line of right,-United Presbyterian.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

.THE COST OF FRICTION.

An Important Item to Be Reckoned with in the Social Machine-The Oil of Kindness.

The trade in lubricants is larger than many of us know. To make the wheels turn easily upon the axle without groaning and without wear, to adjust the parts of the machinery so. nicely that they shall all work to one common end and keep the bearings smooth with oil-these are important S. W. Journal 2.00 problems for the machinist and the engineer. The chemist of the Pennsylvania railroad told the students of one of our universities not long ago that friction cost his company about

> What it costs the churches every year who shall have skill enough to reckon? It is not to be told in mere figures of money lost or wasted. It must rather be reckoned in terms of wasted opportunity, disheartened workers, energy that might have accomplished great results for Christ frittered away in mere keeping the peace and holding ground already won. Does not the noise of friction often warn the world away from the doors of the church? Everyone knows how difficult the problems of social friction are. Our whole system of conventionalities, with its established forms and smooth hrases, its civilities and insincerities, is little more than a lubricant upon the bearings of the social machinery to keep them cool enough to do their work. For friction genders heat, and heat makes social ease impossible. It is pitiful, when we think of it, that so large an amount of energy is needed in keeping the organism from wearing itself out by mere attrition. but the experience of even very selfish society proves that the energy is we'll invested.

Social forms and conventions are necessary also in church life; but there is no reason why they should be either complicated or insincere. Social ease depends upon self-respect nd respect for the rights of others. In the intercourse of church life these ought not to be difficult, for here all are alike the children of God and aints. But the real differences that training, intellectual and spiritual of him he made one jump. turned a ttainment, of wealth, taste, leisure, power of leadership and desire for prominence-must be allowed for and are only too apt to become sources of friction. We could not spare these differences, however we might wish to modify them, for they make the variety of our church life, the diversity of gift which the One Spirit uses: but we can feel the need of lessening friction at all points of meeting, the absolute necessity for the smooth oil of courtesy and kindness, the banishment of all gritty particles of selfishess, haste, ill-temper and overweening pride of taste. For energy that s spent on needless friction is wasted energy and, with its difficult and, glorious task of witness-bearing, the hurch of Christ has no energy to

Most quarrels and misunderstandngs have their rise from very little things. Hatreds begin as mere flisikes, disagreements as to differences of taste, about which there should be to disputing. Here, then, comes in he use and blessing of those social more do without than the world. little consideration, a drop or two of courtesy, a pouring in the oil of kindness at the right time and place, add much, and in many cases would idd more, to the respect in which men hold the church and to the efficiency of its work in the world .- Boston Congregationalist.

The Beauty of the Spirit.

Beauty in woman never loses its charm for men, but as they grow older other qualities come to have a stronger attraction. Sympathy, insight and that marvelous combination of tenderness and strength that charecterize the best women are prized above all else. You look at a woman 25 years after her wedding, and the girlish grace and bloom have long since departed. The marks of the years cannot be concealed, but her on if he has found in her his soul's true mate. Every year has elicited new beauties in her nature, and she is far more to him than she was on the wedding day. Such facts as those make us believe in immortality. It is not possible that the maturity and beauty of the spirit shares in the fate of the body. You have only to love deeply and passionately for a term of years to have your skepticism banished by the contact of your soul with some ultimate spiritual realities .- Boston Watchman.

FIGHT AROUND A TREE.

A Critical Situation Out of Which Both Contestants Came Safely.

"Comrade Leavell's tree exploit," said B. F. Bauman, of the Thirtieth Iowa infantry, relates the Chicago Inter Ocean, "reminds me of my experience at the siege of Atlanta. A few lays before we went to Jonesboro we were on the firing line day and night. and we seized every opportunity to advance our picket line. One day when we, on the left, were within 200 yards of the main confederate lines, the right was ordered to swing forward to our line. At the same time we on the left were to make a demonstration and hold all we gained.

"We were lying close in our little vidette holes, or scoopouts, and when the bugle sounded the charge our boys made a rush. We had selected our destination in advance and I had fixed on a tree 50 yards in my front. I made the tree, which had been shot off 15 feet above the ground, and was almost

I made the same demand on him. put my gun around the tree to his side. and, regardless of the fierce fighting going on around us, we edged around that tree, each keeping opposite to the other and each hoping to get the drop on the other fellow.

"This was more exciting than it seems now and I never gave my whole attention to any matter I happened to have in hand as I did to shooting that Johnny. But finally my foot slipped and he seized the opportunity and banged away with the muzzle of neirs in common of the inheritance of his gun not six inches above my nose.
