NEWS OF THE STATE

EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

Maple logs are being shipped from Cincinnati to New York.

A "Jack the Hugger" has appeared at Geneva. How lovely!

At a recent sale in Orange county, Holstein cattle sold at from $60 to $90 a head.

Assemblyman R. J. Fish offers the Oneida Dispatch, of which he is the proprietor, for sale.

The Remington automobile plant has finally decided to locate in Iliou rather than in Herkimer.

In Cattaraugus county a company of rough riders for service in the Philippines is being recruited.

The supervisors in session at Cortland raised a subscription of $50 for the Cortland hospital on Sunday.

The Franklinville Electric company has been reorganized and the plant will soon be in operation again.

Syracuse has declared war on the New York Central and will endeavor to force the railroad to build elevated crossings.

The Tully Times is authority for the statement that asthma may be avoided by wearing thirteen nutmegs strung on a linen cord about the neck.

During the past ten years, Madison has lost in population 2,347, and the town of Lenox is the only one in the county having made a gain in that time.

Nothing has yet been heard from Harry Murdock who was the stenographer in the Loonie case in Elmira and disappeared shortly after taking Miss Loonie's confession.

Miss Mabel Anthony, daughter of David Anthony of Venice, and George Hoagland of that town were united in marriage on Wednesday, Nov. 28th, by Rev. C. G. Langford.

The automobile may be all right in summer time when the roads are all sandpapered and clean, but for such roads as these give us the old reliable foot-footed horse, with a covered wagon and both ends nailed up.

The Cortland county supervisors have passed a resolution to work the county prisoners on the roads, and will buy a stone crusher to furnish the raw material. Why don't the Cayuga county legislature follow suit in this manner?

Thank goodness, it has come at last! A highly esteemed contemporary announces that "a number of large chewing gum manufacturers are closing up business. The chewing fad has passed, and there is not one-half the gum consumed that there was a few years ago."

Prof. Henry C. Bunn, formerly professor of Greek and English literature at St. John's military academy, has enlisted in the regular army, and has been assigned to the 22nd regiment, now serving in the Philippines. He is a Yale graduate, but has always had an ambition to embark in a military career.

The stock of the Union Shoe and Clothing Co., which failed at Auburn recently, has been sold by the receiver appointed by the United States Bankruptcy court, at a very low figure, to M. Rosenbloom, who will dispose of the stock, consisting of clothing, boots, shoes and furnishing goods, at a very great sacrifice.

A reputable citizen of Camden who went to Canastota on a Lehigh train one day last week, states that over a ton of fish in boxes and barrels were shipped by express from South Bay on that train, in broad daylight. And this in spite of the fact that game protectors patrol Oneida lake and destroy nets every day.

Surrogate's Court.

Petition was filed for proof of the will of Ambrose E. Holley, late of Auburn, and citation was issued on Nov. 30. The petitioner is Eben M. Walker, who sets forth that the sole executrix named in the will, Edna M. Holley, a daughter, is under 21 years of age, and that there is only one other daughter, Lena M. Horton, residing in Venice. The estate consists of personal property valued at $800 with no realty.

A Reason for his Millions.

Clement Studebaker started at the forge of a village smithy in Indiana, more than three decades ago, says a writer in the Christmas "Success." Today he is one of the greatest manufacturers of America. What was the secret of Mr. Studebaker's success? Every nail that he drove held!

The farm buildings of Daniel H. Tabor at Meridian were destroyed by fire early Friday morning, the house alone standing. The loss is estimated at $4,000 with $1,000 insurance. It is supposed that the fire was started by tramps. The stock was saved, but a large quantity of tobacco and other crops, including a silo, went up in smoke. Ernest G. Tabor, chairman of the board of supervisors, is a son of Daniel H. Tabor.

The death of Gustave O. Beuck of Davenport, Ia., senior in the College of Civil Engineering at Cornell University, occurred at the Cornell infirmary last week. Beuck had suffered with spinal meningitis. While tilting back in a chair about three weeks before Beuck fell to the floor. He did not appear to be seriously hurt, but a few days later his legs became paralyzed and the difficulty soon extended to the whole body, resulting in meningitis. He was a member of the track team.

To the Public.

Watches, diamonds, jewelry and silverware and all the novelties of the season at reduced prices for the holidays. Next trip to this vicinity about Dec. 15. Leave any orders at Hotel DeWitt or address at Moravia. J. B. LIBERMAN.

The most effective little liver pills made are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They never gripe. J. S. Banker.

I will pay highest cash market price for raw furs of all kinds; horse and beef hides and sheep pelts; also old rubber. R. W. ARMSTRONG, 1mch01 East Genoa.

Notice.

We are prepared to clip horses, also the designation, with the result that the county seat is retained by Morrisville. While Morrisville is centrally located it is not as accessible as is desirable. There is a probability that the agitation for a change will be continued.

An item is going the rounds of the press to the effect that a new coin three cent piece has been authorized by an act of Congress to take the place of the old coin, which was so much like the dime that its coinage was stopped. The new three cent piece is ordered to be made of nickel, the size of the old bronze cent, only thicker. In the center is to be a hole one-fourth of an inch in diameter.

Charles Ingersoll, the defaulting treasurer of Tompkins county, received at Auburn prison in May on a sentence of five years, died in the prison hospital Tuesday, the 27th, of Bright's disease. The remains were carried to Ithaca next day. Mr. Ingersoll was born in Lodi, Seneca Co., Nov. 12, 1846. He served as a sailor on the U. S. flagship Lancaster for about a year, and was a trustee of the village of Ithaca at one time.

Fifty thousand American horses for Africa. Horses to the number of 50,000 are to be purchased in this country the next six months by agents of the British government for the use of Lord Kitchener's forces in policing the Transvaal and Orange Free State. This news has been announced by John S. Bratton of St. Louis, who has supplied directly or indirectly, to the British army in the last two years, many horses suitable for cavalry use.

John Miner of Locke met with an accident recently that resulted in the loss of a foot. Mr. Miner was working on a buzz saw and in attempting to kick some sawdust away from the machine, his foot was caught in the saw and the teeth cut a deep gash across the instep. Dr. Wakeman of Locke and Dr. Ryan of Moravia were called and found the injury so bad that it was necessary to amputate the foot at the ankle. Mr. Miner is doing as well as could be expected.

Arthur Kinney, aged 23 years, committed suicide by blowing off the side of his head with a shotgun at Waverly Friday. He was one of the gunners on the Marblehead when the Spanish cable was cut at Cardenas and was honorably discharged last May. Two weeks ago he started for New York to re-enlist, but was nearly asphyxiated in his room in a hotel and the report that he had attempted suicide became current. It is supposed that brooding over the accident and the fancied disgrace unsettled his mind.

A most peculiar runaway accident occurred in Cortland Saturday night. A gentleman from Virgil drove in town to attend the entertainment at the opera house, and before starting for home later in the evening he stopped at a lunch wagon to refresh the inner man. During his absence the horse ran away up Main St. and Groton Ave. The gentleman searched a long time for his rig, and finally went home with a livery team. About 4 o'clock the following morning his own horse returned home with harness and buggy in good order.

A good election story comes to our ears, says the Tully Times, and while we cannot vouch for it, will give it as reported: A certain Democrat living down near Preble, has a son aged 21, who is a Republican. Both have the same name. On registration day the old gentleman went to Preble village and registered, but was careful not to register his son, giving abroad the impression that the "boy" was not a voter. Early election morning, the wide-awake Republican "boy" made a sneak for the village and voted on the common name. As a result the Democratic father was North Lansing.

Dec. 3.—The Methodist society will hold their meetings in the Baptist church while the Methodist church is undergoing repairs. They commence work this week. When finished this place will have one of the best of country churches.

They are all hustling for the church fair to be held in Grange hall Dec. 19th and 20th.

A carload of apples to box and then work is closed for the season at the evaporator.

Lansing will be well represented as usual at the Supreme court next week.

The man who raised cabbage this year has a broad smile on now when you are talking about money in farming.

Miss Lillian Stevenson of Five Corners is visiting at Will Stanton's this week.

Dennis Kelly moves to Groton in the spring.

Several of our farmers invested with the American Seed and Silo company of Buffalo last spring thro' their smooth-talking agent, and some of them wish they had not. There is a promise of several lawsuits growing out of their deals which if as reported, do not show them up in a very fair light. Most of our farmers would rather pay a smooth-tongued stranger three or four prices than to pay a neighbor a few cents extra for far better seed.

Mrs. Conrad has gone to Genoa to keep house for Dr. Skinner.

Mrs. Charles Strong is gaining in health.

Mrs. Sarah French, who has been quite ill for the past few weeks, is improving.

The Grangers have a dance Christmas night, Dec. 25, at Grange hall.

Eggs at 25 cents a dozen and butter at 25 cents per pound makes those smile who can sell, but with the majority they say "Hens don't lay and cows are dry."

The man that has a silo and had it well filled means to enjoy Christmas this year.

The traction engines are getting in some fine work on our roads, as a rule leaving them in bad shape, badly furrowed out by the drive wheels.

Timothy Coughlin runs a liquor store at 157 State St., Auburn. Monday morning he found that a burglar or two had been in his place the night before, and opening the safe and the cash register, had departed with $165. The thief left no clue.

A Man said to us about a week ago, "I always like to trade here, for I know I will get what I buy, and I feel safe. He was right; come and see for yourself."

NEWS OF THE STATE

EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings
Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

G. S. Aikin has been appointed postmaster at King Ferry.

Mrs. E. L. Powers of Preston has an iron tea kettle which has been in constant use for over 58 years.

At Syracuse last week John Welch was sentenced to eight years in Auburn prison for stealing ten cents.

In the death of Senator Cushman K. Davis of Minnesota one very promising Presidential possibility has disappeared.

Twenty-one counties in this state are said to receive more school money from the state than they pay in school taxes.

Mrs. Hawley Milliard is under arrest in Syracuse on a charge of attempting to kill Dr. I. M. Slingerland of Fayetteville.

The New Birlsall Co. of Auburn has booked an order for forty traction engines for Peoria, Ill., and seven for Copenhagen, Denmark.

The latest bank teller to go wrong, Henry J. Zoller of Rochester, only got away with $2,092. The papers will hardly notice him.

Mrs. Schmoll, who shot and killed Mrs. Ostrander at Baldwinsville last June, because of her attentions to Mr. Schmoll, has been acquitted.

In his annual report Secretary Long will ask for ten new warships. But he will probably consider himself lucky if he gets half the number.

Col. John G. Butler, a civil war veteran with an enviable record, has resigned as captain of the 41st Separate company, N. Y. N. G., located at Syracuse.

The Bible is not to be read in the Utica schools hereafter and the singing of hymns of worship is also to be dropped. This is in accordance with law.

Bruce Porter of Middleport, who had been accused of stealing an overcoat, hanged himself in a shed and had been dead several days when found.

Dr. A. D. Bassett of Poolville is indicted for the second time for practicing medicine without the proper credentials, has been admitted to bail in the sum of $200.

Oklahoma and Indian Territory taken together have an area of 80,000 square miles and a population of 720,000. Their admission into the Union as a single State cannot long be delayed.

It is said that the D., L. & W. railroad is surveying for an electric road from Apulia to Fabius and Cuyler. They might a good sight better be surveying for a road from Ithaca to Auburn, via Genoa.

Poor Edgar Allen Poe! Many a time he lacked the price of a meal or a lodging. Yet a copy of his first work, "Tamerlane," published at Boston in 1827, has just sold at auction in New York for $2,075.

Julian C. Scott, Esq., of Bainbridge has received an appointment to a position in the loan and trust division of the state banking department. The salary is $10 per day and expenses while actually engaged.

"Major" Page, said to be the smallest man (2:10) in the state, was married to Miss Mary Weikle, a good looking young woman from Shamokin, Pa., last Friday evening at Cortland, at the Orris Hose Co.'s fair.

Mrs. Jane Albridge of McGrawville was fatally burned Wednesday night by her clothes catching fire from the lamp. She was alone at the time and was so terribly burned before help arrived that she lingered but a few hours.

Hereafter the employees of the Lehigh Valley road will keep their own time. The company furnishes a book with 31 slips. The employee fills out the hours' work each day and the slip is filed with the company. It is thought this method will greatly simplify the work of making up the payroll.

An association is being formed for the purpose of restocking the Adirondacks with moose. The association might begin its work by prosecuting the man who shot the only moose of recent days near Saranac Lake a few weeks ago. There's a law with a heavy fine attached for killing the animals.

More than 300 people climbed onto the roof of a glass factory at San Francisco last Thursday to see a foot ball game. The roof suddenly collapsed and a hundred or more were injured by falling, some striking upon the red hot furnaces. The number of dead is upwards of 16 and others were fatally injured.

Justice Davy handed down a decision Wednesday holding that George T. Spaulding of Avoca is entitled to $1,700, the face value of an accident policy for the loss of an eye. Spaulding got a sliver in his eye, which destroyed the sight. The insurance company maintained that a surgical operation would restore the sight. Spaulding declined to undergo the operation.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Dutchess county, says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup, and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after a croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Remedy kept at hand for use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Now is the time when croup and lung troubles prove fatal. The only harmless remedy that produces immediate results is One Minute Cough Cure. It is pleasant to take and can be relied on to cure colds, coughs and all lung diseases. It will prevent consumption. J. S. Banker.

Krause's Headache Capsules

are unlike anything prepared in America. They were first prescribed by Dr. Krause, Germany's famous court physician, long before antipyrine was discovered, and are almost marvelous so speedily do they cure the most distressing cases. Price 25c. Sold by J. S. Banker.

Many persons have had the experience of Peter Sherman of North Stratford, N. H., who says, "For years I suffered torture from chronic indigestion, but Kodol Dyspepsia Cure made a well man of me." It digests what you eat and is a certain cure for dyspepsia and every form of stomach trouble. It gives relief at once in the worst cases and can't help but do you good.

Help is needed at once when a person's life is in danger. A neglected cough or a cold may soon become serious and should be stopped at once. One Minute Cough

A COMPARISON

TELLS THE STORY.

We sincerely invite comparison of Suits and Overcoats bearing our label with those of any other store in Auburn; the result will open your eyes, because the quality will be as good, the make will be better, the fit will be equal to made-to-measure, to say nothing about what we can save you in price. We don't want you to take our word for it, but come and see for yourself—you will not be disappointed. If you buy here and are not satisfied with your purchase, bring it back and we will refund you your money.

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and curve—all but pity and love—is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

Sherman's Letter Made a Man of Him.

Ten years ago, when the late John Sherman was secretary of state, says "Success" in its issue for December, a young man, the son of one of Sherman's school-mates, wrote to him for assistance. He said that he had fallen so low in life that there was no place for him but the gutter; that existence had become a burden, and that he wanted to die. Today this same young man is a prosperous merchant in New York City. He told "Success" that his position is due to the advice given him by John Sherman, in answer to his letter. "Success" was given permission to publish the letter, which the owner guards more carefully than all his other possessions. Mr. Sherman wrote:

You say that your life has been a failure, and that you are thirty years old, and ready to die. You say that you cannot find work, and that you see no hope in life. You say that your friends do not care to speak to you now.

Let me tell you that you have reached that point in life when a man must see the very best prospects for his future career. You, at thirty, stand on the bridge that divides youth and manhood. The one is dying, perhaps, but the other will soon burst, young and hopeful, from the ashes, and you will find in yourself a new being—a man. Do not let your discontent kill this new life, before it is born.

Unless you are physically deformed, go to work. Go to work at any honest work, if it only brings you a dollar a day. Then learn to live within that dollar. Pay no more than ten cents for a meal, and twenty cents for a bed, and save as much of the balance as you can, and with the same intensity as you would save your mother's life. Make the most of your appearance. Do not dress gaudily, but cleanly. Abandon liquor as you would abandon a pestilence, for liquor is the curse that wrecks more lives than all the horrors of the world combined.

If you are a man of brains, as your letter leads me to believe you are, wait until you are in a condition to seek your level, and then seek it with courage and tenacity. It may take time to reach it; it may take years, but you will surely reach it—you will turn from the workingman into the business man or the professional man, with so much ease that you will marvel at it. But have one ideal, and aim for it. No ship ever reached its port by sailing for a dozen other ports at the same time.

Be contented, for without contentment there is no love or friendship, and without those blessings life is, indeed, a hopeless case. Learn to love your books, for there is pleasure, instruction and friendship in books. Go to church, for the church helps to ease the pains of life. But never be a hypocrite; if you cannot believe in God, believe in your honor. Listen to music, whenever you can, for music charms the mind, and fills a man with lofty ideals.

Cheer up! Never want to die. Why, I am twice your age, and over, and I do not want to die. Get out into the world. Work, eat, sleep, read, and talk about the great events of the day, even if you are forced to go among laborers. Take the first honest work you get and then be steady, patient, industrious, saving, kind, polite, studious, temperate, ambitious, gentle, loving, strong, honest, courageous and contented.

Be all these, and, when thirty years more have passed away, just notice how young and beautiful the world is, and how young and happy you are!

Redeeming Unused Tickets.

The ticket redemption bureau in Grand Central Station, New York, is a branch of the New York Central's passenger department, and the business is conducted on the systematic lines that characterize all departments of this company's service. Applications for redemption of unused or partly used tickets are received in person, by mail and through ticket agents, and adjustments made as rapidly as circumstances will allow. A ticket agent is authorized to redeem a ticket sold at his office, bearing no evidence of service of any kind, if presented by the original purchaser within thirty days from date of issue. In other cases he is authorized to receive for redemption a ticket valid for passage over the company's lines, issuing a receipt to the applicant and forwarding the ticket to the general passenger agent, who will settle direct with the claimant. Applications received by mail are acknowledged, and ordinary claims are immediately settled by check or postage. Claims requiring investigation are looked into without delay, and it rarely happens that they are more than one week in course of adjustment.

In round numbers 10,000 to 12,000 claims are received annually by mail, and an average of 10,000 claims are annually presented in person, making from 20,000 to 22,000 in all. The range in value is from a few cents to $200. The amount of money refunded for unused tickets aggregates $50,000 per annum.—From the New York Mail and Express.

Dr. Crittenden of Buffalo entertained the people of this place and vicinity every evening last week at Murdock's hall. He lectured, extracted teeth without pain, and conducted a few little contests in which prizes were given to the winners. His time has been quite fully occupied through the day with filling and extracting teeth at which he is an adept. He has also found a good many purchasers of his medicines. Saturday evening Miss Annie Foley carried off the prize as being the handsomest lady, and Arthur Hodson was decided to be the handsomest man for which he received a prize also.

Ledyard.

Public interest has been more aroused in the offerings of Smith's Store this fall than ever before. The stocks are larger and more complete than ever; at all times you can find some goods that are being sold at less than the regular prices.

We probably do business differently than any store in Cayuga county. A peculiar thing about us is that we have only the one price. You buy goods at just the same price as your neighbor. You are welcome to come in and look, get prices, ask questions—no one will ask you to buy. But let us once know your wishes and we'll give service that is unsurpassed in the county. Our advertising is absolutely truthful—no exaggeration; the goods and values are what they are quoted. We often sell goods for cost or less in order to adjust our stock, or sometimes we get a double quantity of some goods that we cannot handle in the time we feel we should.

Held Up by Three Men.

On Monday evening about 9 o'clock Alvin Ames, who is employed by Fred Murdock on the Ross farm in Fleming, started out with his brother Richard to exterminate some skunks. They became separated and after tramping about for some time Alvin started for the house. When near the barn he was surprised by three masked men who securely bound and gagged him, and then threw him on the barn floor, while they proceeded to make way with Mr. Murdock's poultry. After about an hour and a half, Ames succeeded in freeing himself enough to get to the house. Mr. Murdock cut the cords and removed the gag, and after a time was able to tell his story. No trace of his assailants has been found.

Did you see

Edward Bok's editorial in the last "Home Journal"? No? Well, do read it. My! how it must make a lot of ladies wince. Here are some things he said:

"The curse of the American home today is useless bric-a-brac. . . . The nervous breakdowns of many of our women are due to the over-furnishing of their homes. . . . Useless ornamentation disfigures; simplicity is the only thing that ornaments. It does more; it dignifies. . . . We should allow nothing in our homes except those things we can actually use. . . . Money paid for a good piece of furniture is never wasted; it is one of the best investments."

In a word, his cry is, away with dust-catchers, jim-cracks, bric-a-bracs. Give us homes in which we can breathe freely.

You had the satisfaction of facing the turkey Thanksgiving Day in a properly furnished dining-room, or you didn't. All is, Christmas is coming, and, asks alive! don't wait until New Year's day to make ALL your good resolutions. Say to yourself, "Go to, now, sink or swim, survive or perish I WILL put into our home those few Furnishings it so much needs."

THE VILLAGE NOTES

NEWS PICKED UP BY THE TRIBUNE REPORTERS.

What Has Happened in Genoa During the Past Seven Days—An Interesting Page.

—One more holiday, and then the end of the century!

—Lots of fancy girls who do fancy work don't fancy work.

—A Christmas party has been announced for the 28th, at the East Venice hall.

—All contributions for the fair Tuesday evening, Dec. 18, will be thankfully received.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ames arrived in town Wednesday, and expect to remain here through the winter.

—A. E. Trea and sister, Miss Pearl Trea, came over from Groton Wednesday to tarry a few days at home.

—The streets of this village for a portion of this week presented much the appearance of a soft mortar bed.

—E. S. Muggleton and family have moved to Auburn. J. H. Smith and Will Marks drew the household goods and found hard roads.

—Byron Hunt and son Ray were home from their work on Sunday. They attended the funeral of Mr. Hunt's brother, who died in Syracuse on Saturday.

Ask to see those 47c corsets at Smith's.

Toys, games, etc., at Smith's.

—E. S. Heaton of Auburn is in town this week. He is overseeing the erection of the new bell in the Baptist church tower, with Frank Miller and S. Weaver as engineers. The bell weighs 1400 pounds and has a fine tone.

—The official canvass is given in a supplement to the Review today. It was printed at the Review office and is a job we are proud of. But few country offices can do such a piece of work.—Farmer Review. Right you are, brother.

—We have noticed in many exchanges that round potatoes were bringing five cents more than long ones. If this is so it might be worth while for farmers to take notice of it. They work better in the paring machines making a large saving in time and expense in large hotels and restaurants.

You might profit by reading Smith's ad.

Lamps and fancy china at Smith's.

—Mrs. Mary Davis died suddenly one day last week at her home in this village. The funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, King Ferry, Monday, and the remains were interred in the Genoa cemetery, Rev. Father Rafferty kindly consenting to that arrangement.

—Carrots have been regarded as a moderately useful but not an especially interesting product of nature, but suddenly they have acquired a prominence all their own. Eaten early in the morning they are said to produce an astonishing effect upon the skin, hair and eyes of the devotee. It is asserted that in six months the most faded and "elderly complexion will —Little bits of paper, Old cigars chopped small, Little puffs of smoke, keeps Boy from growing tall. Quids and stumps worked over In a nasty smoke, Makes a boy a rowdy, Makes a youth a bloke.

—Oh, yes, we have water in the well now, thank you.

—Mrs. A. B. Van Marter is spending the week with friends at Cortland.

—Little Ruth Haskins, who lives with her grandmother, is seriously sick with typhoid fever.

—Burdette Royce, who has been visiting at Robert Mastin's, left for Rochester Monday morning.

—Clarence J. Terwilliger, who stole various articles from the Cornell house near East Venice, was sentenced to the Elmira reformatory. The Scipio riot case is now on trial.

—Henry Lester had the misfortune Monday morning while assisting in unloading some bridge work in the yards of the bridge company to be struck by a boom. He was thrown some distance over piles of iron and struck in mud and water. He was severely bruised but is getting along all right. It was a narrow escape from serious injury.

—Over in Madison county it is the custom for the Republican and Democratic publishers, who secure the publishing of the session laws, to give a grand banquet to the fraternity and also the county officials. How we wish that rule was in force in Cayuga county. We can almost taste blue points, lobster salad and roast turkey, furnished by the Democrat—Argus and Journal.—Register.

—A representative of the Central Lyceum Bureau, Rochester, was in town Monday to arrange for a lecture course. He was able by utilizing certain dates to offer us a $400 course for the sum of $225, including the Fisk Jubilee Singers and the Boston Ladies' Symphony Orchestra. However no contract was made. We understand that a series of local entertainments will be arranged.

—Learn a trade, or get into a business and go at it with a determination that defies failure, and you will succeed. Don't leave it because hard blows are to be struck or disagreeable work to be performed. Those who have worked their way up to wealth and usefulness do not belong to the shiftless and unstable class, and if you do not work while a young man, as an old man you will be nothing.

—Exchange. This advice is not necessarily confined to trades and professions. The same can be given to the young farmer. If you are going to "farm it," post yourself and keep up with the world outside; no man can work a farm as his grandfather did and make it pay. Take one or two good agricultural papers; watch and profit by the experience of others; study your work as the physician or the lawyer studies his—for in all the world there is no calling more honorable than agriculture, and none containing more chances for reflection and study.

—John Hargett from Montville or that vicinity created some excitement in this village Monday afternoon. It seems that his housekeeper had tired of her position and sought a change, and accompanied by another woman and a little girl they broke away from John's beguiling influences and "hoofed it" to Genoa. They expected to depart on the evening stage, but meanwhile John drove in on the trail and the show began. After considerable argument he dragged his woman through the streets as far as the rink, followed by numerous persons who wanted to see the finish. The crowd drew a little too near to suit the anxious Mont-villian, and he threatened to knife someone if they interfered. The couple soon proceeded and went as far as A. Taber's where John was arrested by constable Gillespie who had procured a warrant sworn out by Justice Mead upon complaint of Sim Gifford. A number of men who went up to Mr. Taber's assisted in putting the bracelets upon the victim's wrists, and only succeeded after a hard struggle at the point of a revolver. John was lodged in the village coop and next day before 'Squire Mead he plead guilty to assault and paid a fine of $20. He evidently is of unsound mind, especially at times.

—J. C. Mastin, formerly of this village but recently of the State street dining hall, Auburn, is now located at 512 Stewart ave., Ithaca, where he has a well established dining room.

It's your business to read Smith's ad—it might save you some money.

Society Notes.

The Rev. James R. Robinson, A. M., will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Morning subject, "A Sum in Gospel Addition." Evening subject, "Character Building." A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present at these services.

The Presbyterian Sunday school will hold their annual Christmas exercises at the church on Monday evening, Dec. 24. There will be the usual entertainment and the tree, and an invitation to participate is extended to all.

Subject at the Baptist church Sunday evening will be A Headlong Fling at Jesus. Baptism at the close of the sermon. There will be a donation for the pastor at the church on Tuesday evening next. Chicken supper, special music and addresses, and everybody invited.

Poplar Ridge.

Dec. 4—The Lyceum course has been much enjoyed by all so far and this week we expect a grand treat in Alton Packard, the chalk artist.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Culver entertained about twenty-five of the cousins at dinner on Thursday.

The Misses Katherine and Jean Ammerman of Moravia visited at Mrs. Susie Haines' on Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Mosher has moved her household goods to King Ferry where she will make her future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Wheeler have returned from New York where they visited their son, Millard and wife.

Lloyd Culver was home from the business school at Rochester for a short vacation and Thanksgiving. He speaks very highly of the school.

Arthur Landon is attending school at Moravia.

Mrs. George Husted is on the sick list. Her sister-in-law, Miss Hattie Husted, of Ellsworth is spending a few days with her.

Mrs. D. T. Williams of Belmont is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Julia Chase, and other friends and relatives about here.

W. J. Haines and sister were in Auburn a couple of days last week.

Mrs. James Nichols was in Syracuse last week.

L. E. Wood of Cortland is in town.

East Genoa.

Dec. 5—The pastor who keeps his appointments by driving 12 miles over these roads must be a man of "grit and grace." Rev. H. R. Shoemaker is at his post in all kinds of weather. We hope the people will show their appreciation by coming out to hear his sermons.

Our L. T. L. held a meeting at Henry Strong's on Wednesday evening, partly as a farewell to their kind host and hostess, who have gone to Pennsylvania for the winter, and also for a business session when the following officers were elected for the coming year: Pres., Miss Emma Atwood; Vice Pres., J. D. Sharpsteen; 2nd Vice Pres., Lillian Armstrong; Treas., Frank Sigler; Rec. Sec., Paul Henry; Cor. Sec., Veda Younglove; musical director, Celia Atwood; sergeant, Geo. Atwood; librarian, Mrs. Nellie Tupper; chairman of entertainment committee, Miles Lane; amusement com., Carl Thayer; refreshment com., Mary Hall; flower com., Nina Thayer. A good social time was enjoyed, cake and coffee served and many good wishes expressed that Mr. and Mrs. Strong who have been ready to open their house for meetings and assist in every way in the work of the society, might be prosperous and happy in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Willis of Ithaca visited at Fitch Strong's over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sharpsteen are spending a few days at their son's, Jay Sharpsteen.

ALL THE SAME TO HIM.

Confederate Private Was No Longer Particular with Whom He Ate.

A crowd of old confederates were swapping war stories when one of them told the following to a Louisville Courier-Journal man:

"One of the most striking figures in the armies of the west was Gen. John Magruder, C. S. A. He was what might be called a 'Murat' of a man, for in the hardest times 'Prince John' could always show a natty uniform, and he always went into battle, the soldiers said, with enough fuss and feathers to have marched down a dozen men. It was evidently his determination to die not only with his boots on, but with all his good clothes as well. Added to his love of dress was a fondness for good eating that led him to every promising home near a camping ground.

"On one occasion, with his staff, he rode up to a handsome, old-fashioned home in Tennessee, and with his most courtly bow and gallant manner hinted that food would not be unacceptable to famished soldiers. The 'lady of the mansion' bade him enter and hastily sent servants running hither and thither to provide a meal for such handsome and gallant soldiers.

"About the time the dinner was weighing down the table and just before the officers had been invited to enter the dining-room, a poor private, who in peace would have been styled a gentleman, sneaked up to the back door and begged a bite to eat.

"The hospitable hostess, absolutely ignorant of military etiquette, told him to 'come in immediately, that dinner was just on the table.'

"The officers, Gen. Magruder and the rest, are just getting ready to eat," she said; "you are in nice time."

"Had he not been so hungry the private might have run on the spot. But hunger conquers all fears and he quickly followed his hostess to the dining-room, determined to snatch a few bites and run before he could be sent to the guard house.

"The officers had not entered. The private slipped into a seat and began a savage attack on the food before him. Chicken, ham, and everything in sight and reach were seized by the soldier. When 'Prince John' and the staff came he expected nothing more than death.

"The door opened, and with the hostess on his arm Gen. Magruder entered the dining-room.

"In a moment the general saw the private.

"What are you doing here?" thundered the officer.

"The private sent half a corn-pone to join the chicken he had just swallowed and reached for a piece of ham. He was too busy to talk.

"Gen. Magruder strode up in his splendid uniform, and touched the dirty-coated figure seated composedly at the table.

"Sirrah, do you know with whom you are to eat?"

"The soldier never looked up. He only grunted out between bites: 'Don't know—don't care—was a time when I was mighty particular. All that gone. Too hungry—willing to eat with anybody.'

"He was allowed to finish his meal."

LADY WARWICK'S NEW TOPIC

The Titled Speaker Says No Man Ever Wished He Was a Woman.

The countess of Warwick recently delivered an address on "Man's Opportunity," and this is what she said: "Men are not thoroughly convinced of the desirability of the equality of the sexes and the emancipation of womanhood. Was there ever a man who wished he was a woman? Yet, how gladly would she give everything in the world to be a man. Men did not half realize the splendid powers they had. If they did they would use their votes to return only those men to parliament and governing bodies who had the well-being of the workers at heart. It was to be regretted that talent and character often struggled at enormous odds because there was no money to develop them. But those two attributes should be the only test."

The London World, in discussing Lady Warwick's new topic, says: "Lady Warwick was inclined to overlook the fact that the vast power wielded by her own sex is not the less real and effective because it is exercised otherwise than at the polling booths or in the parliamentary division lobby. Those, for instance, who have benefited by Lady Warwick's fruitful efforts for the welfare of woman workers have little enough reason to sympathize with her emphatically expressed wish that she could change her sex; and although she cannot be persuaded that there ever was a man who wished he was a woman, it is certain that there are few influences in the world that rival in potency the influence which the 'unemancipated' sex is able to bring to bear upon most of the affairs of life."

HIGH-PRICED VINEYARDS.

Prince Albert of Prussia Buys Land at $5,000 an Acre—Value of the Wine.

To the owner of even the most valuable landed property on this continent, mining property alone excepted, the news that Prince Albert of Prussia has purchased the Wilhelmi vineyard at the rate of $5,000 an acre will have seemed a gross exaggeration, if not worse, says the New York Tribune. There is not anywhere within the United States an agricultural property for which any such price would be paid.

Both the Johannesburg and the Marcobrunn wine lands, in the latter of which the Wilhelmi vineyard lies, are in the Rheingau—the small district from which the cream of the famous rhine wines come. The Johannesburg vineyards are mostly the property of Prince Metternich, to whose ancestor, the famous diplomat of the congress of Vienna, they were presented by his imperial master, Francis Joseph of Austria.

To understand the enormous values of these lands on a basis of simple arithmetic, it is only necessary to know that the average production of an acre of Rheingau vineyard being about 200 gallons, a "half stick" of Rheingau wine, of the vintage of 1893, sold for 17,500 marks, or about $4,200. A "half stick" contains 160 gallons, so that the product in this particular case of less than one acre for one year brought in 75 per cent. of the price of one acre in Prince Albert's recent sensational purchase.

HANDS WERE IN HIS POCKETS.

This Circumstance Took a Great Load Off the Young Woman's Mind.

There was a garden party for a charitable object out in the suburbs one evening recently, reports the Washington Post, and for the space of one long minute in the latter part of the evening I thought I was able to witness what they call on the stage a thrilling situation. I went to stroll in the grounds with a young girl who wanted to ask my advice about what she had already made up her mind, and we wandered where Japanese lanterns were few. She was telling me all about Charley—or, perhaps it was Dick—when suddenly in the dim light before us we saw the young man himself. His back was toward us, and he was walking somewhat closer than was entirely necessary to a girl in a light organdie frock. The gown looked almost white in the faint light, but about the waist of it was a wide band of something dark. The girl beside me stopped short and drew a deep breath.

"Oh!" she gasped. Just then the couple in front of us stepped into the bright light of a lantern. The wide black band was still about the girl's waist, but both of Dick's hands were in his pockets. My companion drew another breath.

"Oh!" she said again.

Wonders of the Digger Bee.

Dr. John B. Smith, writing in Popular Science, gives the name of "digger bee" to a blue-green bee having a metallic sheen, which may be seen flitting about sandy places during the first heats of May. With the aid of liquid plaster of paris poured into the holes that it makes in the ground, he has followed the bee through a wonderful course of digging. The work is all done by females, and its pribee makes a tunnel a quarter of an inch in diameter, which, after starting for a few inches on a slope, runs straight down into the ground. At the depth of a foot or more, short lateral tunnels are driven, and at the ends of these are formed the breeding cells. Having provided for her young, the bee "continues to dig, down, and yet further down, until she is four feet or even more beneath the surface, dying from sheer exhaustion about the time her first progeny begin to make their way to the surface."

The Acorn and the Oak.

"When I heard your son reading his graduation essay I could not help thinking of the mighty oak and the little acorn.

"Why? He didn't mention them anywhere in his paper.

"No. But the grandeur of his style and the way he held himself kept reminding me of the mighty oak."

"And where did the acorn come in?"

"You were there, you know."—Chicago Times-Herald.

BILLY MASON'S "FOOLISHNESS"

By Eben E. Rexford.

BILLY MASON, from the time he first saw a telegraph instrument in operation, thought he would like to be a telegraph operator, and he asked his father to buy him the necessary outfit, so that he might learn the business at home.

"All foolishness," answered Mr. Mason. "You'd get tired of it in less than a week. Better go in for something that you'd get some good out of."

"I wouldn't get tired of it," asserted Billy. "I promise you that if you'll buy me an outfit I'll stick to it till I get so I can send messages just as a real."

That settled the matter, so far as Mr. Mason was concerned. But Billy did not give up his plan.

When the new railroad came to Brownsville of course a telegraph line came with it, and Billy lost no time in making the acquaintance of the operator, who was a pleasant, good-natured fellow, and quite willing to show Billy how to use the instrument.

In less than a week from the time he began to practice on the operator's "sender" he had learned the alphabet, and it was not long before he could begin to pick up short and easy words as they came to the operator, over the line.

"You'd learn the business in no time if you had a chance," the operator said. "You ought to have an instrument at home. If you had we'd string a wire between your place and the station, and we could practice a good deal at odd spells."

One day the operator at the station told him that he had found where a secondhand outfit could be bought for a song, almost.

"If you'll buy that I'll furnish the wire," he said. "Then we'll have a line of our own, and will ask no favors of the main line."

Billy determined that such a chance as this should not be lost, and he went to work that day to earn the money with which to buy the outfit. He ran on errands. He did all kinds of odd jobs that would bring in a penny. By and by, seeing how intent he was on the purchase of the instrument, his mother felt sorry for him and gave him enough to make up the price of it, when added to what he had earned.

And Billy bought the outfit.

A happier boy than Billy Mason was when the wire was strung and the line was ready for use it would be hard to find.

It was not long before he was able to "take" the messages the station man sent him over their line, and in a little while he became quite proficient at "sending." They talked back and forth between the farm and station, and Billy began to feel quite like a full-fledged operator when he was able to "call up" the man at the other end of the line, and ask him a question whose meaning did not have to be guessed at.

One day Mr. Mason announced his intention to take the family and go over to his sister's at Three Lakes on a visit.

"We'll go Saturday and come back Monday," he said. "But I guess you'll have to stay at home"—to Billy—"to see to things. It wouldn't do to shut up the house and leave it alone."

Mr. Mason and the family started off on Saturday afternoon on the long-planned, often-delayed visit, and Billy was left to look out for himself, which he felt quite able to do.

The night closed in dark and threatening storm. The wind blew fiercely about the house and made a roaring sound in the chimney of the fireplace. Billy did not feel at all frightened at being alone, but he could not help feeling lonesome.

He went up to his room about eight o'clock and concluded he would go to bed.

"I wonder if Stewart is in the office still?" he thought. "I'll call him and see."

He went to the instrument and made his "call."

"Click, click, click!" came back the answer, presently.

"Didn't know but that you'd gone home," telegraphed Billy.

"Busy making out my monthly report," came back the answer. "Shall not be able to get away very early to-night. Good night."

"Good night," responded Billy, and then he went to bed.

He dropped off to sleep almost immediately. But he woke just as the old clock downstairs was striking ten.

As the sound of the clock died away he became conscious of another sound—a sound like that of a step in the room below—a slow, careful step, as of some one who did not care to make noise enough to warn others of his presence.

"I wonder if some one is downstairs, or am I imagining it?" thought Billy.

He sat up in bed and listened.

"I do hear steps," he decided. "Who's downstairs, I'd like to know? None of our folks—they wouldn't be tip-toeing around like that. It must be a burglar or a tramp."

Billy's room was over the sitting-room. There was a register in the floor, sat there he heard a sound like the careful opening of a door, and then he saw a glimmer of light through the opening in the register plate. He leaned out of bed and peered down into the room below. Presently a man passed under the register. He could see enough of him to tell that it was a man, and that was all.

He listened. Pretty soon he heard a sound like that of bureau drawers being opened.

"It is a burglar," decided Billy. "He'll get away with father's box that he keeps his money in, as sure's the world!"

Suddenly an idea came to Billy. It was not very late yet. The clock had just struck ten. It was possible that Stewart was still at the station, at work on his report for the month. If he could only call him up!

"I'll try it," decided Billy.

He took a quilt from the bed and dropped it lightly over the register.

"That'll keep the sound of the instrument from getting down to the man," he thought.

Then he got out of bed noiselessly and tip-toed across the room to the table on which the instrument stood.

His hand shook as he touched the key of the sender, so fearful was he that Stewart would have left the office. He sent the "call" and waited almost breathlessly for a reply.

Presently click, click, click! went the machine, and Stewart answered him.

"A burglar here," he said to the station agent, over the wire. "Send men, quick. No time to lose. Hurry!"

"All right," came back the reply.

The village was about half a mile away from the Mason farm. Billy calculated that it would take at least 15 minutes to get men together and get them there. By that time the burglar might be gone. But they would be so close on his track that they might be able to run him down.

He listened again.

By and by the man moved away from the corner where the bureau stood and went out of the room. Billy judged by the faint light that lingered in it that the unwelcome visitor had gone into the pantry, just across the kitchen from the sitting-room door.

He was soon convinced that he was right in this surmise, for he heard the sound of crockery coming in contact with other crockery.

"He's hunting about for something to eat," thought Billy, "and don't know just where to look for it, so he has to keep looking till he finds it. I hope he'll come across the doughnuts and mince pie mother left for me, and will like them so well he'll keep at them until some one gets here."

Billy crept over to the front window, raised the sash softly and listened.

"I'm sure I hear some one down the road," he said. He listened again.

By this time Billy could distinguish the forms of several men at the gate.

He threw up the sash and leaned out of the window.

"Go 'round to the kitchen door," he cried. "There's where he must have got in. He's in the pantry now."

The man in the pantry heard him, as well as the men at the gate, and Billy heard him scurrying across the kitchen floor and out at the kitchen door.

But he was not too late to make his escape. The men from the village came around the house just as he made a bolt for the garden fence, and two or three shots were fired at him. One of them took effect, and with a groan and some terrible oaths, he fell among Mrs. Mason's petunias and hollyhocks.

Five minutes later they had the thief securely bound, hand and foot, by Mrs. Mason's clothesline. The shot had struck him in the leg, and quite disabled him, but the party from the village had no intention of letting him get away, and, being unused to dealing with burglars and that class of not-to-be-depended-on persons, and feeling rather insecure as long as he had the use of hand and feet, they determined to be on the safe side.

"I'll bet he don't get them knot, loose very easy," declared the man who did the tying. "I guess there hain't much danger o' his gettin' away."

The tin box in which Mr. Mason kept his valuables was found in the flower-bed, where the man had dropped it when the pistol ball had struck him. Some articles of old-fashioned jewelry and trinkets of some little value were found in his pockets, and turned over to Billy. Then they took him to the village with them, and he was lodged in jail for safe-keeping.

You may be quite sure that Mr. and Mrs. Mason was greatly excited when they found out what had happened.

"Why, I had over $200 in that box!" cried Mr. Mason. "I've been saving it up to make a payment on the wood-lot with, next week. I don't know what I'd have done if the man had got off with it."

"Now, what do you think of my 'foolishness'?" cried Billy. "If it hadn't been for our telegraph you'd have lost your money, as sure as you live."

"I wouldn't wonder if you're right about that," answered Mr. Mason.

Billy's father went to town the next unwrapped the box, eager to see the contents of it. "Nothing second-hand about that, my son."

"Oh, my gracious," cried Billy, his eyes almost as big as dollars with surprise and delight, as the last paper fell off, disclosing a telegraph outfit, bright with enamel and gilt ornamentation. "Isn't it a daisy? I say, father, you couldn't have brought me anything I'd rather have had than this. It's a good deal nicer than the one the operator has down at the station."

"Glad you like it," said his father. "You've earned it. I hope all you 'foolishness' will turn out as this one has."

The thief never came to trial in Brownsville. It was discovered that he was an old offender, who was wanted in several other places for serious misdemeanors, and he was turned over to the proper authorities, and I believe he is still in state's prison. Perhaps, had it not been for Billy Mason's "foolishness" he might still be at large.—Ledger Monthly.

A Prominent New Englander Called South.

For several years it has been known that the Southern section of the Union was being rapidly pushed to the front, but few people of the North really know how much enterprise, pluck and determination those people have. Before the civil war between the States, their surroundings and customs were different to ours. They were as much a different people as though they lived in a foreign country. They were surrounded by slaves who did all the work and it was not necessary for them to exert themselves. The young men grew up as large land owners with hundreds of slaves. Each had as it were a little kingdom of his own over which he prevailed. They thought of nothing but cotton and rice culture. They made cotton to be shipped to the Northern markets to be made into cloth and reshipped back to the South and elsewhere. They were farmers, we up here the manufacturers. But the freeing of the negroes has changed things. Every man was dependent upon his own exertions. They were left without money and without means and for thirty odd years it was a hard struggle for those people with nothing but the soil as their capital, but this hard life has shown that the Southern people are made out of the same material, with the same energy of the Northern men and all they needed to develop into first-class business men was the opportunity.

The climate is not, as many suppose, the cause why the white people did not work. The fact is they did not have to work while they had slaves, and even now it is so easy for any one to make money down there, that they do not have to work as hard as we do up here.

The Southern people are not slow to catch on. They are not opposed to Yankee ways as some say, and this is proven by the fact that they are getting Northern men and women to go down and teach them how to do things in the Northern way and this shows they are up to the times and ready to learn all they can.

Among the foremost people in the work of development are those along the great Seaboard Air Line Railway which traverses what is known as the Piedmont section from Portsmouth and Norfolk, Va., through Virginia and the two Carolinas into the heart of Georgia, Atlanta. To guide people in the work of development, the Seaboard Air Line has at considerable expense secured the services of a former citizen of New England, a real live hustling Yankee, Mr. E. St. John, a native of Connecticut, who went West when a young man and built up a reputation as a railroad manager and a developer, far above any other persons that had anything to do with the development of the great Western States. The fact that these people are securing the services of such a man is positive evidence that they are not behind in the march of progress. Mr. E. St. John is located at Portsmouth, Va., and has been put at the head of the Seaboard Air Line and he is inducing many people from the North to go down South. He has opened offices in Boston at 306 Washington St., in New York at 371 Broadway, in Philadelphia at 30 South Third St., in Baltimore at 207 E. German St., in Washington at 1434 New York Ave., and at each of these places Northern men are employed to give information to those who desire to go South; and during the last twelve months, more than four thousand persons have settled along the Seaboard Air Line, and those who think the Southern people are slow are badly mistaken. The Seaboard Air Line is owned by Southern men and they are showing by their acts that they are going to have the territory developed in the most substantial way, and they are employing competent Northern people to help them.

For information about the South write J. T. Patrick, Pinebluff, N. C., Secretary of Southern Bureau of Information.
