NEIGHBORHOOD VILLAGES

The Happenings of the Week in Our Sister Villages.—Newsy Correspondence.

Venice Center.

WEST HILL, Feb. 11.—One year ago this past week the weather was like Indian summer with little or no snow to be seen.

Mercury 8 below zero, roads quite drifted in places and some farm houses are almost blockaded. The warm room is the most inviting place at present.

Quite a turnout on caucus day. We hope the town meeting will bring out all the no-license votes. We recently heard a J. P. remark that we couldn't get along without license, but the most prosperous people we know of always got along without a drop of spirits.

Sheriff Wood spends most of his time in Auburn. His wife will accompany him as soon as convenient.

Miss Sarah Hull has been quite ill for some time past but is improving. Her sister, Miss Emeline Wood, is tarrying with her.

A few friends and neighbors made Mrs. H. N. Wood a pleasant evening visit on Feb. 3 in remembrance of her 91st birthday, bringing cheer and congratulations and departing with her best wishes for many happy returns of the day. As the venerable lady came from a long lived race on both sides she may live out the century.

In the item some weeks since regarding the old lady who committed the 25th chapter of Matthews to memory at the age of 3 years, we would correct an error. It should have read at the age of 8 years.

Mrs. N. Purrinton was called to Buffalo by the death of her eldest brother, Dr. Green. Her relatives soon expect her here on her return. Her husband is in quite poor health.

A lie will travel a league while truth is getting on her boots, but truth will overtake it in time for she takes league steps.

Scipio.

FEB. 21.—The sleighing has gone. Last week our attention was called to our cellars; Jack Frost crawled into many cellars and fixed potatoes so they will not have to be sprouted.

The ladies' aid was well attended, considering the condition of the roads.

The Masonic dance was a very pleasant affair, but not largely attended. A supper embracing all the viands of the season was well served at the Wattles House.

Mrs. Almira Duncan McDonald died Sunday morning. Funeral at Clark's hotel at Ensenore on Wednesday at 10 o'clock; Rev. Mr. Holmes delivering the discourse.

The death of Frank Wallace casts a gloom over all, especially his brother Masons. It is but a short time since he was installed into the mysteries of Masonry, and a banquet spread at the Wattles House, and so soon to be snatched by the hand of death. It is hard to realize, and if it is hard for us what must it be for the mother and father to part with their only child. "Weep not for I am with you unto the end of the world, so I am with you forever." Funeral services Wednesday at 1 o'clock at the house; 2 at the Universalist church. Burial at the Scipio cemetery.

J. Howell called on friends here today, settling up with his tenants and leasing the Lloyd Howell farm to Ed Hartnett.

Orrin Jordan has his arm out of the sling.

J. K. Smith has the lumber all drawn for his new barn.

Several sleigh loads attended the union meeting at Venice Center on Sunday evening. This evening the Rev. Harry Wright preaches, and we have a different preacher every night this week. Town meeting today and a show this evening.

North Lansing.

FEB. 21.—Climatic changes are in order, from 12 below zero to summer heat.

On Tuesday evening the carpet rag social at Grange hall will be held unless another blizzard comes unexpectedly. The evening appointed previous only 13 could get there. Fifteen cents a couple for a lunch supper and lots of fun and music.

The Methodist society are preparing for a men's social at Grange hall soon.

Mrs. Betsy Beardsley is slowly gaining and we trust will be among us again soon.

Roswell Beardsley has been kept in his room quite closely for several days. He is quite feeble, but all wish he may celebrate the 90th anniversary of his birthday in July.

Jacob Decamp has been and is yet very sick from erysipelas and pneumonia.

Mrs. Liddington died on Monday night last. She lived in the Bowker house owned by R. Beardsley. The funeral was held at Andrew Brink's on Monday at 2 p. m.; Rev. J. P. Williams officiating. She leaves a little son seven years old.

Mrs. Carrie Larn of Fleming has been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Trimmer for over five weeks.

A sleigh load of Grangers attended County Grange at Ithaca on Saturday last.

On Wednesday evening last at six o'clock Mr. John Pierce and Miss Edith Bothwell were married at the residence of David Bothwell, Rev. J. P. Williams assisting them to embark on the matrimonial sea. Only the near relatives were present.

It would seem from the many defective ballots found at the town election Tuesday, that a school for voters should be established.—Groton Journal.

The old bear was one of the smartest quadrupeds on record this year. He has beat the goose, the dyspeptic hog, the squirrels, corn shucks and the oldest inhabitants at their own game.

Polly, wife of Charles Covey of Venice, died at her home Thursday, February 9, aged 82 years. The funeral was held at the house Sunday. Interment in Indian Mound cemetery Moravia.

It is said that after the first of April the Central railroad will cease to operate the West Shore as a separate road but will run it as a division of the Central, using it almost exclusively as a freight road.

Business is again booming at the DeRuyter milk station. The new proprietor, a gentleman by the name of Armstein, agrees to keep at least the price of one week's milk on deposit at the DeRuyter bank as a guarantee to the patrons against loss.

At the close of the service at the Presbyterian church, Cato, Sunday morning, Rev. W. B. Lucas offered his resignation and presented the church with $800,—which is the amount of the mortgage on the parsonage.

The first annual meeting of the Summerhill Agricultural Society will be held on Saturday, Feb. 25. Officers will be elected and other business relating to the society and the fair to be held next fall, will be transacted.

"Father," confessed the callow youth, "I have married her. We are two souls with but a single thought." "Well, you've gained something. A single thought isn't so many, but it is one more than I ever knew you to have before."

While on a business trip to Groton recently Fred Cossum of Auburn invested in a number on a piano which was one of the prizes at the fair of the Conger hose company. Mr. Cossum's surprise may be imagined when he received a telegram stating that he had drawn the piano.

Last Saturday the closets of the Cottage Hotel at Union Springs took fire at 9 a. m., from a lighted cigarette. It required the combined efforts of four men, twenty pails of water and the tearing up of the floor to subdue it. Had this happened in the evening the entire hotel would probably have gone to ashes.

The Lydia Pinkham Medicine Co. receives about 1000 letters daily, nearly all addressed to that worthy woman whose last act of regular business prior to death was to call at the Lynn police court and take the "poor debtor's oath." But times have changed and the son of the departed has been so successful that he is said to be unable to invest money conservatively, as fast as he gets it.

The historic Washington elm, in Cambridge, Mass., beneath whose branches General Washington took command of the Continental Army, is rapidly decaying and the Cambridge Park Commission say it will be impossible to save it more than a few years longer. A short time ago workmen went over the tree and cut off a considerable amount of dead wood and there is not very much left to keep alive. It is intended to make a thorough overhauling of the tree in the spring, and to do everything possible to preserve it.

Charles R. Skinner, state superintendent of public instruction, has notified County Clerk Benham of the amount of Cayuga's share in the public school monies. The aggregate appropriation for the state is $3,730,394.14 and Cayuga's apportionment is $46,857.16. Of this sum $14,760 is for the city of Auburn which includes $89.99 for the library fund and $800 for the superintendent.

Geneva taxpayers are finding out by experience that it costs to be a city. While the place was a big nice village everything ran smoothly, and the village government cost about $35,000 a year. Now under a city charter it is necessary to raise $32,000 a year, the difference between the two sums representing the relative expense of village and city government.

THE FLOWER OF GALA WATER.

A LOVE STORY.

BY AMELIA E. BARR.

(Copyright, by ROBERT BOWMAN'S SONS.)

CHAPTER II.

CONTINUED.

"Yesterday I put a piece of heliotrope at my throat, and he made me remove it. He said the scent of the thing made him have a faintness. I pointed out several pieces in the vases, and he answered if I would wear a vase full of other flowers with heliotrope, he might perhaps endure it. He makes the same objection to any other flower I choose. He takes dislikes to all the gowns I look well in, and I really can only dress myself in a gray-winey or a Galashiel's tartan with any comfort. All my friends are in some way objectionable. The Heriots are flighty; the Netherby girls are extravagant; the Hislops are vulgar; the Fenwicks are beyond bearing for their pride; and so on and so on. If it was not for the minister, he would cross you off my visiting list also."

"Why does he do such things?"
"Only because he is a natural tyrant. He loves to show his power, and I am completely in it. Until lately I did not mind him very much. I had mamma and you, and everything gave me joy. I wore my pretty dresses when I came here, and played and sang when he was out of the house, and carried my novels and poetry to my own room; and as long as I could visit Jessie Telfair, I cared nothing for the Heriots or for anybody else."

"You have Jamie Wintoun also on your side. Jamie is a multitude."

"Jamie is well enough."

"Well enough! And Jamie is to be your husband!"

"No, he is not. I vow I will never marry him. Jamie knows how I feel. I made him understand the other night. I did not mean to hurt him, but I fear I did, for he has not been to Levens-hope since, and the laird was fretting and fuming about his 'nephew's wrongs' all the time I ate my breakfast this morning."

"Poor Jamie Wintoun! He is such a good-hearted, honorable soul!"

"He may have all the good qualities that exist, Jessie, and yet he has never made me in all these years care for him as some one made me care with a glance and a sigh and a touch of his hand. And this some one has all Jamie's good qualities added to his own special ones."

"Besides all those other excellencies which you are constantly inventing for him?"
"Very likely I do invent some. Every woman has to invent for the man she loves her ideal virtue. Not one in a thousand has them naturally."
"On these topics they talked with an ever increasing interest. The kirk bell rang, and the minister preached and prayed, and the congregation scattered over the hills, and Katherine still lay upon Jessie's bed, with a headache and a heartache, telling her griefs and despairs, and listening to hopes and likelihoods, angry a little, weeping a little, but with all finding great comfort in Jessie's reasonable and unreasonable friendship."

When Doctor Telfair came back from the afternoon service, Jessie boldly defended her own and Katherine's delinquency.

"Katherine is really sick," she said, "and I stayed at home with her. And you ought to go and give the laird a good scolding, father. He is simply an outrageous domestic tyrant."

"He thinks he is doing his duty."
"He knows he is overdoing his duty. And it is the overdoing that delights him."

"What was Katherine crying about?"
"Crying?"
"Yes, I heard her sobbing. Poor little lassie! What was she crying for?"

"For the moon, I think."
"You mean for that Mr. Mowbray she met here?"

"Yes; that is what I mean."
"Jessy, you are a wise wee body, and I will tell you something. You must judge whether to speak or to be quiet. I have had three newspapers from the young man. His name is in all of them. I have no doubt they were intended for Katherine. He was sure I would tell you, and equally sure that you would carry the message to Katherine."

"Where are the papers, father? Why did you not tell me before? A Babylonish signet would have been more wisely read by you than a roundabout love message."
"I am not altogether without a sense of the tender passion, Jessy. I live yet, my daughter, in a shadow of the bygone. But I was thinking of Wintoun, who is a very pleasant young man and living within my own bounds and parish."

"Katherine will never marry Jamie Wintoun."

"The laird will make her."
"She is beyond his 'make' now."
"Not until she is of age."
"Pshaw! She came of age the day she met Richard Mowbray. Father, you are ten times greater than the laird. Stir yourself up for poor Katherine, who is likely to be driven distracted between Brathous and Wintoun."

"A word in such a matter, Jessy, is like a mustard seed and may grow into a great tree, and with all my college learning and soul wisdom I might be put to the wall by two bits of lassies not out of their teens yet. I am not very sure if I ought to let you have the newspapers."

"I have taken your first word on that subject, father, and so I will never need your second, which is nothing but a doubt anyway. Mysie will give you a good tea. I looked well to it. Mine has gone upstairs with Katherine's. We would only be talking un-Sabbathlike if we came down; and, besides, you would feel it to be your duty to forbid us looking at the papers to-day, and that would be a dreadful trial."

An involuntary glance at the papers when Doctor Telfair first spoke of them had revealed their situation to Jessy. They were on a book-shelf, and she took possession of them with a nod and a smile, and ran upstairs with the fleet feet of love. The evening meal had been set by the window, and Katherine had risen and was pouring the boiling water on the leaves of the tea as Jessy entered. The peculiar refreshing odors of Pekoe and young Hyson filled the room, and there was a wan smile upon Katherine's face; for the young have to be very despairing, indeed, before the succulent juices of flesh and luscious sweetness of creams fail to interest them. The idea of a good meal had been accepted by Katherine at first with the resignation which a sense of personal duty inspires, but it was fast becoming a pleasurable anticipation.

Jessy's face flashed to her hope and expectation, and Katherine put down the little brass kettle and looked at her friend with breathless interest. Selfish people like to play with good news, to make riddles and surprises and please themselves, but Jessy shut the door and said promptly:

"Dear, if you want to know about Mr. Mowbray, here are three newspapers with his name in them. He sent them to father. Of course, he knew they would be given to you. Love has many strange postmen. Only think of him sending the minister—Doctor Telfair himself, and no less!"

She was turning over one paper as she spoke, and the others were in Katherine's hands. A pencil mark quickly directed their attention to the proper lines.

"Here is the first notice," said Jessy. "Balmoral Hotel, Edinburgh, Richard Mowbray, Mowbray, Westmoreland." How the name stands out among a score of other names!

"He looked at it," said Katherine, and the words caught light from his eyes. "Here is the second notice: 'Perth, Richard Mowbray, Mowbray, Westmoreland.' What is he doing in Perth, Jessy? Did he speak of Perth before I came?"

"I think not. This is the latest paper, May 15. 'Wick, Caledonian Hotel.'"

"Wick! What ever has he gone to Wick for? It is almost at John O'Groats—at the last foot of Scottish ground."

"I think I know. He spoke of an aunt who lived in the Orkneys. The next paper, I dare say, will come from Kirkwall."

Katherine's headache and heartache were now gone, blown off John O'Groats, far away over the great North Sea. It was charming to see how brightly and swiftly the color came back to her cheeks and the light to her eyes. She was hungry then, and she poured out the tea, and enjoyed her slice of mountain mutton, and very much enjoyed her tarts and tinctured cream; the while she talked softly, and smiled and dimpled, and was as happy as she had been miserable. The laird was now a nonentity. She felt even a trifle belligerent toward him. Wintoun's absence was no longer annoying. Jessy promised to see the young man and find out what was the worst of the trouble there. And after a delicious, delightful meal, Katherine rode slowly and hopefully home between the two lights, with three little scraps of newspaper in her silk purse. As for the purse, it was hidden away safely close to her heart!

CHAPTER III.

DESTINY.

When Mowbray came first to Gala Water the primroses were starting the meadows and hedgerows, when he came again the roses were beginning to bloom. The interval was not a happy one to Katherine, for if love makes a man cunning it makes a woman self-willed. Without actual knowledge of Mowbray's character she had assured herself that he was the mate of her soul and that it would be a kind of sin to hesitate in her allegiance. She had seen Mowbray but a few hours. Wintoun had been her familiar for years, but no doubt had troubled her decision against Wintoun. Almost without consideration or without conscious intent she had made her old lover understand that she had decided against him; and Wintoun, not usually quick to apprehend, had been positive of this decision, though the words which had enlightened him admitted of another construction.

His uncle's temper had suddenly forced him to take a position which he had not considered, and which on reflection he regretted. He had in fact spoken more proudly and chivalrously than he felt. The next morning he could not endure the thought of resigning Katherine. To give her up implied the unsettling of all his life, and he was a young man whose happiness depended upon its being fixed and methodical. Unusual events and emotions disturbed his equilibrium, threw him out of his orbit, and he felt like some forlorn castaway. Katherine was lovely and lovable, and he had got the habit of loving her. In tearing herself from him she inflicted a wound, and suffering of any kind was a new sensation to Wintoun. He resented it and his uncle had been the first recipient of his resentment.

But his heart-suffering was not all. Katherine's desertion would wound his personal and family pride in the keenest manner. He could imagine how young Heriot and Jack Netherby and Harry Forster would condole with him. He was aware that he had "peacocked" about Katherine's love for him and his alliance with the Flower of Gala Water in a way to merit the sympathizing retaliation which was sure to come. How they would twit him with the Englishman's triumph! How they would condole with him because he lived three hundred years too late and could no longer "ride" into Westmoreland and "lift" Mowbray's cattle and corn and carry off Mowbray's wife! Not naturally a very bright young man, his imagination had at this crisis a terrible vividness.

Nor could he afford to be quite oblivious of his uncle's threat. It was true that Brathous had part of his estate in pawn. He had been made fatherless at an early age and his mother had not been equal to her position as guardian of a large landed estate. She had left it in difficulties which Brathous had assumed and hitherto managed with great skill; but in financial matters, if his uncle went against him, what could he do?

These reflections, added to a severe cold, produced a fever which kept him at home for a week. Katherine thought she was to blame for his absence. The laird was sure his nephew was brooding over the angry words he had said—both were blaming themselves somewhat and both were anxious to be friends again. During that week there had been hours, if he had known them, when he might have greatly influenced both his love and his creditor; for it is not in any life opportunity is wanting; it is the soul, alas! that is either ignorant of its "hour" or else too fearful to claim it.

In any case, Wintoun let it slip and every day took it farther away. Katherine received the hope which had been sent to her through the vagrant newspapers, and after that Sabbath day she felt no more compunctions about Wintoun. Her rapturous joy in the peradventure messages overcame such weak and transitory regrets and doubts as had assailed her in her loneliness.

"I will have the blessedness of loving as well as of being loved," she said to herself, as she went home with the three bits of paper in her possession. "Jamie may love me, but I do not love him; and even Jamie has the habit of loving more than the divine passion of the condition. I will wait for Richard Mowbray. He is sure to come."

She was then sorry that Jessy had promised to say a conciliating word to Wintoun. She wished she had told her to leave affairs as they were. The laird's anger at his nephew's absence would be easier to bear than Jamie's reproachful eyes and the frightened attempt to please her which he would be certain to make. She hoped some good fate would prevent Jessy seeing Wintoun until she could contradict her desire. But Jessy was no lukewarm friend. She persuaded her father to take her to Wintoun House early on Monday morning, and while the minister went to talk with a sick plowman Jessy took the unhappy lover seriously to task.

"Running away even before your rival is on the ground! I am ashamed of you, Jamie Wintoun! The man may never come near Gala Water again. He may have seen some other pretty girl as he went through the Scottish land. He may have a sweetheart in England."

"He is sure to come back here. I feel it."
"No," she said, "I am sure to trust to

They are simply the most unreliable evidence. Suppose he does come back! What then? Lord Taunton admired Katherine, and came back and back, and then went his way and married another woman."

"Mr. Mowbray fell in real love with Katherine. I know he did."

"What do you know of real love?"
"I think I know all about it, Jessy."

"You do not. If you were in real love would you stop away from Katherine for anything or anyone? No. You would press your case morning, noon and night. You would get Katherine's mother on your side. You would seek your uncle's active help, for if he set himself to worry Katherine she would marry or drown herself to get beyond him—and if you had a thimbleful of good sense you would be coaxing me this very minute to say the good words you have not spirit enough to say for yourself. Jamie Wintoun, order your best horse and put on your best coat and away over to Levens-hope and ask for what was promised you, and then see to it that you let no one say 'No.'"

CHEYENNE'S REFUSE RATIONS.

Content That the Issue Shall Be the Hoof.

Some of the Cheyenne Indians living in and near Kansas have branched out in the show business for a livelihood. Some time ago the commissioner of Indian affairs made a ruling that the Indians were no longer to be issued beef in the carcass, but that it must be dressed by competent butchers and issued on the block. The Indians objected strenuously to this arrangement, as they regard the parts rated as offal by the slaughter houses and packing houses as the best part of the beef. White Shields of the Cheyennes instigated a revolt among the Indians in the vicinity of Red Moon's camp, in the western part of Indian territory, and the Indians refused to take their beef off the block. Major Woodson, the agent, then suspended all rations and the Indians still maintain their independence. A large part of the Indians a few weeks ago, at the instigation of White Shields, refused to send their children to school. Their rations were cut off, but a short time ago they yielded. About a third of the Cheyennes and Arapahoe Indians are no longer receiving rations on account of their refusal to take their beef off the block. White Shields, with two other chiefs—Red Leg and White Horse—is travelling about over Southern Kansas giving dances and in this way are maintaining their independence of the government. Major Woodson, speaking of the Indians in an interview, says: "There are always some of the Indians who have an insatiable desire to impress the other Indians with their importance. White Shields is one of these. I see that a band of Cheyennes was here a short time ago giving dances. These Indians are absent from the agency without my consent. Indians are very much like children and I have to treat them as such. If they get too unruly I can have the stray band brought back to the agency by the soldiers. They are doing this to keep from working. They were born lazy and I have failed to get it worked out of them. Old White Shields has been the cause of some of the school trouble, too. He got mad about the change in the issue of beef and revolted. The other Indians wanted new school houses built, and accordingly I ordered them erected. White Shields then got in his work with Red Moon's band and they refused to send their children to school. The commissioner of Indian affairs wrote me to enforce the treaty rules and after doing without rations for a few weeks they consented to send their children back to school."

WHAT THE LAW DECIDES.

The appropriation for domestic and irrigation purposes of more water than is necessary is held, in Hague vs. Nephi Irrigation Co. (Utah), 41 L. R. A. 311, to leave the owner of a mill the right to take the excess for manufacturing purposes so far as necessary.

A statute prohibiting the deposit of sawdust in the waters of a lake, or in tributaries thereto, is held, in State vs. Griffin (N. H.), 41 L. R. A. 177, to be a proper exercise of the police power. With this case is a note on the statutory protection of water used for supplying a municipality.

An action against a city for a defective and dangerous street, made seamy by a street railway track, is held, in Schaefer vs. Fond du Lac (Wis.), 41 L. R. A. 287, to be not maintainable until all legal remedies have been exhausted against the railway company in possession of the track, as well as the owner of the track.

The right to build dams to aid the floating of logs is held, in Carlson vs. St. Louis River Dam and Improvement Company (Minn.), 41 L. R. A. 271, to be subordinate to that of the riparian owner to have his land free from overflow beyond that caused by the natural condition of the stream. With this case is a note on the right to use a stream for floating logs.

OIL TRUST CONFESSES GUILT.

Reasons Given by the Standard Oil Trust For Not Producing Its Books—Chicago Responsible For Heavy Damages—A Growsome Find—Children Burned to Death—A Young Woman's Suicide.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (Special).—The Standard Oil Company refused again on Friday to produce its books in evidence at the investigation resumed before Master Commissioner Brinsmade, and Attorney-General Monett asked that F. E. Squire, Secretary of the company, be committed to jail for contempt of court.

Colonel Brinsmade refused to send Mr. Squire to jail, but said that he would certify all the records to the Supreme Court and let the Court decide whether a penalty should be inflicted for the refusal to answer the question.

Squire was the only Standard Oil Company official to appear at the hearing of the half-dozen or more summoned. He submitted his reasons for refusing to show the company's books, as follows:

First—Because they are demanded in an action instituted against the Standard Oil Company for contempt of court, and I am informed that to enforce their production for such a purpose is an unreasonable search and seizure.

Second—Because the books disclose facts and circumstances which may be used against the Standard, tending to prove it guilty of offenses made criminal by an act of the Legislature of Ohio passed on April 19, 1898.

Third—Because they disclose facts and circumstances which may be used against myself personally as an officer of said company, tending to prove me guilty of offenses made criminal by the act aforesaid.

CHICAGO RIOT DECISION.

Rest Case For Damages Suffered in 1894 Goes Against the City.

CHICAGO, Ill. (Special).—Damage suits aggregating from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 will probably be brought against the city on riot claims as the result of a decision handed down by the Supreme Court a few days ago.

Nearly every railroad company centering in Chicago holds heavy claims against the municipality, growing out of the railroad riots in 1894. All litigation has been held in abeyance, however, pending the ruling of the Supreme Court in the case of the Manhattan Cement Company. This has been regarded as the test case. By affirming a judgment given against the city in the Manhattan case the Supreme Court deals a violent blow at the City of Chicago.

The complainants asked $150 damages for property burned in a car at the stock yards during the railroad riots. Judgment was obtained against the city in the Circuit Court, and the city appealed. It is now probable that damage suits will be filed against the city in great numbers. The total liability of the city may be much greater than $5,000,000.

CUT-UP BODY IN EXPRESS BOX.

For a Year It Had Been Lying Unclaimed in an Ohio Village Office.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (Special).—A box, two feet long and one foot wide, that has been nearly a year unclaimed at the express office in Baldwin, a village about twenty miles from here, has been opened and found to contain a human body that was cut in pieces to fit the box. The box was sent by Adams Express Company from Cincinnati, consigned to Dr. Emerick, whose whereabouts are unknown, and who has not been in Baldwin for ten years. The name of the sender is unknown. The body is supposed to be a man's, although the hands and feet resemble a woman's.

Four Children Burned to Death.

Du Bois, Penn. (Special).—Late a few nights ago the home of Frank Carson, a woodsman, at Huntley's lumber camp, near Medix Run, Elk County, was destroyed by fire, and four of his children ranging in age from two to twelve years, met death in the flames. The father was absent, and the mother and five children were alone. Mrs. Carson was awakened by the flames, and with her small baby in her arms escaped through a window, leaving the other children, three boys and a girl, in their beds. Her screams attracted neighbors, who got out one boy, but he was so badly burned that he soon died. The remaining three could be seen, and their cries heard, but it was impossible to reach them.

PHILIPPINE NAVAL CAMPAIGN.

Jurisdiction of the United States to Be Extended Over the Archipelago.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—The administration has determined rapidly to extend the jurisdiction of the United States over the whole of the Philippine group, acting on the theory that delay in this case is dangerous and that anarchy and a general paralysis of such interests as the through a failure promptly to replace the Spanish sovereignty over the islands by that of the United States. This decision involves the necessity of a naval campaign, and this will be instituted as soon as Admiral Dewey reaches the reinforcements in the shape of gunboats now on the way to Manila.

It is not anticipated that there will be a necessity for any formidable demonstration, but the very fact that the United States Government is able to exhibit a sufficient force to accomplish the purpose of occupation is expected to deter the natives from profligate resistance.

Owing to the vast number of the Philippine islands a large number of gunboats would be required to visit them simultaneously, so that the programme will be to have the vessels visit in order the principal towns outside of Manila, especially those where Spanish garrisons were maintained on the islands of Cebu and at Zamboanga on the island of Mindanao and some of the cities on Negros. The naval vessels will be accompanied by some transports, and the soldiers will be landed where necessary to hold the United States flag and take possession formally of the ports.

THE FRENCH PRESIDENCY

M. Emile Loubet Elected to Succeed the Late M. Felix Faure.

M. DUPUY AND CABINET REMAIN.

The National Assembly at Versailles Elected M. Loubet by One Ballot—The New President Begs For Unity—Hostile Demonstrations in Paris—The Provinces Satisfied With the Election.

PARIS (By Cable).—The National Assembly at Versailles Saturday afternoon elected M. Emile Loubet President of the French Republic, to succeed the late M. Felix Faure.

The official count showed that 812 votes were cast, and that M. Loubet received 488, M. Mellin, 279, and that fifty were scattered.

The votes not given to M. Loubet or M. Mellin were divided between M. Cavagnac, General Jamont, General Sausser and others.

President Loubet has asked M. Dupuy to retain the Premiership and the present Cabinet to remain.

After the announcement of the result in the Assembly, M. Chauveau and many members repaired to an adjoining salon, where M. Loubet awaited them. The result of the election was then communicated to him, and he received the congratulations of his friends.

The newly elected President promised to devote his best efforts to fulfilling the wishes of the country, and to "reunite the Republic, who have drifted asunder, by the current of unhappy events."

The Premier, M. Dupuy, then formally transferred the Executive power to M. Loubet, and congratulated him upon his election.

The President, in thanking M. Dupuy, expressed the hope of having the support of the Cabinet.

M. Loubet left the palace in a carriage, accompanied by M. Dupuy, and followed by the Ministers. The crowd along the route acclaimed President Loubet with cries of "Vive la Republique!" "Vive l'Armee!" "Vive Loubet!"

LOUBET INSULTED IN PARIS. Republican Guards Called Out to Disperse Hostile Mobs.

PARIS (By Cable).—President Loubet arrived here from Versailles in the evening and was received with military honors. Amid renewed acclamations from the crowds the President proceeded to the Elysee Palace in order to pay a tribute of respect to the remains of President Faure. He then went to the Foreign Office, where he received the high officials of state and the Diplomatic Corps.

As the Presidential carriage left the St. Lazare station a band of thirty or forty persons ranged themselves on either side of the roadway, under the leadership of a couple of individuals, who kept giving signals for shouts of "Down with Loubet!" and "Resign! Resign!"

The noise and excitement were redoubled when the carriage stopped at the Elysee. Here two compact hostile groups were massed, hooting and blowing whistles. MM. Loubet and Dupuy spent ten minutes with Mme. Faure, and then proceeded to the Quai d'Orsay. On the journey thither M. Loubet was more favorably received by the public.

The appearance of President Loubet in a carriage at the statue of Joan of Arc where a crowd had gathered was the signal for hostile demonstrations and cries of "Panama! Panama!"

In opposition to the cries of "Panama!" the supporters of the President raised shouts of "Vive Loubet!" At this stage of the demonstration a detachment of mounted cuirassiers appeared and cleared a passage for the President's carriage.

Suddenly MM. Deroulede, Millevoys and Habert appeared. The mob surrounded M. Millevoys, who donned his Deputy's belt, which is his usual method of signaling to his friends, and from 400 to 500 of his supporters ranged themselves behind the three Deputies, shouting "Down with Loubet!" "Resign!" and "Panama!"

M. Millevoys waved the tricolor flag above M. Deroulede, while the latter harangued the crowd.

The demonstrators then marched to the Rue des Pyramides, shouting and shouting tricolours. The police attempted to stop them and tried to seize the flags. But the mob resisted and finally marched to the Avenue de l'Opera, where a large force of police was stationed, in front of the Military Club. This detachment of police succeeded in dispersing the demonstrators, a downfall of rain assisting in the work.

The street demonstrations were renewed at midnight. The Republican Guards, mounted and on foot, took up their station at the corner of the Boulevard and the Rue Drouot. The police cleared the streets and the approaches to the office of the Libre Parole. MM. Deroulede, Copee and Forain arrived together at the Rue Montmartre. Deroulede and Copee attempted to make speeches and much shouting ensued while shouts of "Vive l'Armee!" and "Demission!" were frequently heard.

The police intervened and scattered the crowd, making many arrests.

Telegrams received from the provinces show that the announcement of M. Loubet's election was received with satisfaction.

CAREER OF M. LOUBET.

Emile Loubet has long been a prominent figure in French politics. He has been in several Ministries, has presided over a Ministry, has been a Senator, and twice President of the Senate. His most conspicuous appearance in politics, up to the present, was in the great Panama Canal scandals, which wrecked the Ministry of which he was the head.

He was born at Marsanne, Department of the Drome, December 31, 1833. He studied law, obtained the doctor's degree, and practiced his profession at Montelimar, of which he became Mayor. In 1876 he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies and took his seat with the Republicans on the left. He was instrumental in the overthrow of the Broglie Cabinet in 1877, and was re-elected a Deputy the same year. In 1881 he was again elected from the arrondissement of Montelimar.

M. Loubet stood for the Senate in 1885, and was elected, and became Minister of Public Works in the Cabinet of M. Tirard, which existed for three months. In February, 1893, upon the fall of the de Freycinet Cabinet, he was asked to form a Ministry. He was successful, and himself took the portfolio of the Interior.

His direction of affairs while satisfactory to the Extreme Left, procured the hostility of the moderate Republicans, who were in the majority. His difficulty was increased by the troubles arising out of the complaints of the miners of Carmaux. Troops had to be summoned to quell the disturbances, and this made the Loubet Ministry still more objectionable to the moderates of the Left, and of course to the entire Right.

A bomb was exploded November 8 at the door of the offices in Paris of the Compagnie de Carmaux, which caused three deaths, and killed five persons. The Ministry was then given greater authority to control public meetings and demonstrations, and the red flag was ordered off the streets of Carmaux. A few days later the Panama Canal scandals put an end to the Ministry. M. Loubet again stood for the Senate and was elected, and was chosen its President. He was re-elected to this post January 12, 1899.

Relief Felt in Europe.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY DISASTER.

Over a Score Killed and One Hundred Injured in a Collision Near Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (By Cable).—An express train from Calais, having London passengers on board, came in collision a few days ago with a stationary train at Forest, near this city. Twenty-one persons were killed outright and more than 100 were more or less injured.

There were no Americans or English among the victims.

The train left Tournay in the morning, and reached Forest a few hours later. Immediately afterward the Mons express dashed at full speed into the station and ran into the Tournay train, which was standing at the platform.

It is said that, owing to the fog, the engineer of the express train did not see the signals.

The scene of the wreck presented a terrible picture. When the locomotive of the express train leaped on to the roofs of the three rear-most carriages of the train from Tournay, they crashed through them and ground the carriages and their occupants into an almost inextricable mass of splintered wood, broken and twisted ironwork, and mangled humanity. Six of the bodies of victims were found intertwined in the wheels of the express locomotive.

STEPHENS FOUND GUILTY.

Former Professor in Lafayette College Convicted of Arson.

EASTON, Penn. (Special).—George H. Stephens, former professor in Lafayette College, was tried here for setting fire to Pardee Hall in order to revenge himself upon President Warfield for dismissing him from the faculty. He was found guilty.

The court made the closing argument for the prosecution, and then Judge Scott delivered the charge to the jury.

He said that a confession made by a defendant could only be received as evidence when the facts contained therein were supported by corroborative proof. Evidently the jury found plenty of corroboration, for it was only out an hour, and most of that time was consumed in waiting for the sake of appearances.

Stephens received the verdict apparently without surprise, and betrayed no feeling whatever over the result. In fact, it is stated that he expected to be convicted.

It is not believed that he will be tried on the indictments for malicious mischief and larceny still pending against him. He is accused of stealing 127 books from the college library.

TO DISFRANCHISE THE NEGROES.

The North Carolina Legislature Passes the Constitutional Amendment.

RALEIGH, N. C. (Special).—The amendment to the Constitution of North Carolina, limiting the suffrage, has been adopted by both branches of the General Assembly. It passed the House by a vote of 81 to 27, and the Senate by a vote of 41 to 6. Before becoming a part of the Constitution, however, it must be submitted to a vote of the people of the State. This will be done at the next general election, which, under the new election law, will be held in August, 1901.

The avowed object of the amendment is to eliminate the ignorant negro vote. To do this, educational, property and poll tax qualifications are prescribed. To prevent this disfranchising white voters a further provision is made that any person can vote whether he possesses the other qualifications or not, provided he or his ancestors could have voted on January 1, 1867.

CONFLICT AT TALIEN-WAN.

Three Hundred Chinese Killed in a Fight With Russians.

PEKIN, China (By Cable).—A serious conflict has taken place between the Russians and Chinese at Talien-Wan, 300 of the latter being killed. The trouble originated in a question of taxes.

Talien-Wan is one of the two ports leased by China to Russia respectively. The other is Port Arthur. Both are in the Liao-tung province.

Talien-Wan is an important town, protected by fortifications. While the Chinese flag still is allowed to fly, the Russians really are in absolute control and have several thousands of troops there.

The Russian lease was signed at Peking on March 27, 1898. It is for twenty-five years and may be extended later by common accord.

FOUR FOUND ASPHYXIATED.

Gas Was Turned and Death Ends a Night's Revel in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn. (Special).—Mrs. Charles Fahrnkamp, aged thirty-three years; her two children, Florence and William, aged respectively ten and nine years, and an unknown woman, aged about thirty-five years, were found dead a few days ago in a room in Mrs. Fahrnkamp's home. The gas was turned on and life had apparently been extinct for several days. Scattered about the first floor were remnants of cigars and cigarettes and empty beer and whisky bottles.

The bodies were found by a neighbor, who had forced an entrance to the house. Mrs. Fahrnkamp was lying on the floor and her daughter nearby. The unknown woman and the boy were in bed. Mrs. Fahrnkamp's husband, who is a traveling salesman, for a New York company left home about a week ago on business for his firm.

TRAGEDY ON THE OCEAN.

While the Ship Was Sinking the Captain's Wife Died in His Arms.

NORFOLK, Va. (Special).—The crew of the schooner James E. Bailes, shipwrecked and abandoned at sea, arrived here a few days ago and told of their terrible suffering and the death of the wife of Captain E. H. Darling, who was frozen in her husband's arms.

The Bailes sailed from Cazesco, Mexico, for New York on January 23, with a cargo of cedar and mahogany. She was a double-decked three-master of 3200 tons net register. All went well until February 11, when off the Delaware Cape, about ninety miles at sea, where the storm struck her.

The storm increased in violence, and on Monday the schooner sprung a leak. On Tuesday, while the pumps were being worked to the utmost, they broke beneath the deck, and the schooner began to fill the fast. By nightfall she was awash, the seas swept over her, and the crew, lashed to the rail, suffered fearfully from the cold.

The waves carried the boats and the taff-rail away on Tuesday, and shortly afterward, in order to lighten the standing rigging, the masts were cut away and went by the board. For three days the crew, without food or water, were lashed to the rail, the seas washing over them almost continually.

On Thursday, about noon, the schooner Mount Hope, Captain McLean, bound from New York for this port, came along and took them off. They were brought here and were sent to New York on the Old Dominion Liner Jamestown.

More Riches in Colorado. Third Discovery of Valuable Ore in the Great Isabella Mine.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. (Special).—The great Isabella Mine created a third sensation a few days ago by encountering for the third time in two months unusually rich bonanza ore. In December a vein carrying $1000 a ton was opened on the fifth level of the Lee Shaft. On January 27 a streak in that vein was encountered which assayed on select samples as high as $100,000 a ton. The run of the vein including the streak has turned as high as $20,000 to the smelter.

The latest, or third, discovery is a vein somewhat larger and which, from its location, is believed to be the famous Buena Vista vein, whose character is sylvanite. This vein "pinched off" two years ago. While it was being worked a period of eighteen months it netted the company $300,000 for dividends. The vein was encountered on the tenth level of the old Buena Vista shaft.

GEN. MILES ON THE STAND

The Army Beef Inquiry Calls Him as the First Witness.

IMPUTED FRAUD TO NO ONE.

Newspaper Interviews With General Miles Were Erroneous—He Says Montauk Conditions Caused Investigations—He Presents the Reports of His Officers Regarding the Quality of the Beef.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—The investigation of General Miles's charges regarding the beef provided for the army in the war with Spain was begun on Monday by the court of inquiry recently ordered by the President.

The court formally organized with Major-General James F. Wade as President. The other members are Brigadier-General George W. Davis, Colonel George L. Gillespie and Lieutenant-Colonel George B. Davis, the last named being recorder and Acting Judge Advocate.

General Miles was presented as the first witness. He was sworn, and after stating his rank and office, he was asked about his statement before the War Commission. He said he made one, and upon Colonel Davis submitting a printed report of that statement General Miles examined and approved it.

Then he was asked about an alleged interview which appeared in the New York Journal of December 23, whether it represented completely or in part what he said. General Miles read it and said:

"I do not recall anything in that interview that had not been given in my testimony or transmitted in my reports. You will observe it contains a number of my declarations to name officers or my authorities, and refuses to answer. It must therefore be incorrect in its representations."

Then being asked about an interview from the New York Herald on February 1, he said:

"I have a letter from the gentleman who, I understand, wrote this, in which he says he is willing to swear that I declined to be interviewed, and that, thinking something had been given out, he had proceeded to write what he knew were the facts."

He declared the interview an erroneous presentation of what he could possibly have said.

General Miles was then questioned as to what his idea as to the best supply to the army was when the war broke out. He stated that when it was possible beef on the hoof was the best, but that when it was not, Cuba and Porto Rico were excellent grass countries. However, he understood that our troops were receiving refrigerated beef.

Referring to the canned roast beef, as distinguished from the refrigerator beef, Colonel Davis read a portion of General Miles's War Commission testimony, condemning it in severe terms. General Miles said the canned roast beef was issued to volunteer and regular troops alike on the transports and in Cuba till the arrival of the refrigerator beef.

It was fully testified by both the regulars and volunteers. The first complaints of it General Miles said he heard at Tampa from some of the Rough Riders from San Antonio, but he paid little attention to it at the time, not realizing fully that there had been any change from the standard ration. He again heard of it aboard the Yale, when the men declared they could not eat it, and he ordered the Inspector to inquire into it. Again he heard of it in the trenches at Santiago, but he was still largely occupied with the campaign, and he thought nothing more of the complaints than he would of hearing that some man was "kicking" about his coffee or of his hardtack.

What finally drew his attention seriously to the matter were the reports of officers that the whole Fifth Corps was weak and prostrated. This was in August, when a question of a parade through New York was broached. General Bates at that time reported that only about one-fifth of the men at Montauk Point were in condition to march through New York. General Miles said this seemed to him remarkable, as there was no yellow fever at the Point, and he thought the men certainly ought to be over their malaria. He therefore ordered an inquiry into the beef, about which there had been so much complaint.

"Did you report it to the Secretary of War?" asked Colonel Davis.

General Miles in reply went at some length into an explanation of the routine of army headquarters, showing why he preferred to conclude his inquiry so that he might have something tangible to present to the Secretary.

General Miles's attacks upon the canned and refrigerated beef before the War Commission were then taken up specifically Colonel Davis reading the testimony of the Commanding General in which he referred to it as "embalmed" beef and said it had been sent as "a pretense of experiment."

In answer to a question of Colonel Davis, General Miles said—he thought his use of the words "pretense of experiment" was unfortunate, and he disclaimed any intention to impute fraud to any one.

"As far as indicating fraud," he said, "I wish to state that no such inference was intended. It was perhaps an unfortunate expression, and had my attention been called to it I might have amended it to say—well, 'on the theory of an experiment.' As a matter of fact, it was an experiment, and a very costly one."

General Miles said he first heard complaints against the beef at Ponce. The first direct statement that it had been treated chemically came, he believed, from Dr. Daly, who presented it late in September, and appeared subsequently before the War Commission.

It was general talk among the officers at Ponce, General Miles continued, that the refrigerator beef must have been subjected to some chemical treatment to make it keep for seventy-two hours. Dr. Daly's, however, was the first official report.

General Miles then read a long summary of 100 letters received by him at Army Headquarters, giving the various terms in which the army meat was characterized. These included "embalmed," "decomposed," "injected," "poisoned," "spiced," and the like.

In addition, he showed a summary of reports on refrigerator beef condemned and thrown overboard from transports. G. G. Yeaman, from the Yosemite, reported the condemnation of 8000 pounds, Lieutenant-Colonel O'Neill, of the steamship Chester, 4000 pounds; Colonel James Hamilton Lewis, 10,000 pounds.

General Miles then described the nauseating qualities of the canned and refrigerator beef.

This practically concluded General Miles's testimony before the Committee.

An explosion at the Hubbard blast furnace at Sharon, Penn., a few nights ago, resulted in the instant death of Patrick Moore, who was blown from the top of the stack to the ground, ninety feet. Dennis Carney was fatally burned. Christopher Peters, Freeman Carl and Richard Rowland were seriously hurt. The furnace was practically wrecked, the loss being $40,000.

The east and west wings and the administration buildings of the penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, were destroyed by fire a few days ago. The 600 prisoners confined in the wings were removed uninjured, although some had narrow escapes from suffocation. Most of the guards lost all their clothing and personal effects.

The unknown desperado who shot and killed a man near Cassville, in attempting to commit a burglary, some weeks ago, and who has been in jail in Utica since that time under the name of "John Doe," has been identified by the Bertillon system of measurements as Charles R. Davis, a noted criminal, who has spent a good share of the forty years of his life behind prison bars.

The venerable and hairless editor of the Greene American thus commiserates his condition: "This is a great climate. In summer a bald head gets very weary while brushing flies from his old pate, and swabbing perspiration from his classic brow, and in winter old grip reduces him down to the thinnest kind of a dishrag, and keeps him guessing whether he will rally in time for another season with the winged pets."

The electors of Brutus did not vote on the license question this year because Justice Dunwell at Lyons Friday granted an injunction restraining Town Clerk William H. Kevand from furnishing any ballots on the license question at Tuesday's town meeting. The application was made by Attorney A. W. Shurtleff, who was retained by Louis S. Paul, a Weedsport saloon keeper. Petitions were filed with Town Clerk Kevand asking for a vote on the question at the coming town meeting. The law says that such petitions must be filed at least 20 days before town meeting and the petitions in Brutus were filed just one day late. The Cayuga Chief says that no one objects to the taking of a vote upon the license question when it can be submitted separate and distinct from all other matters.

Experience of a Traveler in a Small Town in Nebraska.

"Apropos of Indians as waiters," said the social traveling man, "I dare say the students from Indian colleges will do first rate, but I have in mind the time when it was tried in Nebraska in a small town on the Missouri bottoms, and in a way that was not altogether satisfactory to the guests who were waited on."

"Were you one of them?" asked the representative of a piano house.

"No, but I was at the little river tavern where it was tried. The girl waiters had all left for a new, big hotel that was to be opened in the next town, and the landlord had to do the waiting himself, and then he thought of the Indians at the reservation and went and hired four of them. They didn't get around until breakfast was over the next day—an Indian doesn't have any idea of time—and there was only one man who hadn't eaten. He was a drummer from a New York clothing house, and the biggest growler in sixteen counties."

"You take his order, Jim," said the landlord to the man he had been drilling. "Put this bill of fare under his nose, give him a glass of ice water, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

"Indians are not as slow as they seem, and this was one of the wickedest bucks on the reservation. He managed to get the order all right and carried it in and served it, and then, towel on arm, he stood at the back of the guest's chair, as he had been instructed to do. But the drummer was ugly and swore a big, round oath that he would have no Indian in his."

"At that the grim statue at the back whipped out a savage dirk from his store accoutrements, and, holding it over the head of the grumbling guest, he said, with consistent Indian brevity, accentuated by a Choctaw swear word: 'You eat!'"

"And eat he did, flesh and fowl, not daring to move a muscle, while the arm of fate held the murderer's knife within an inch of his visage. And it was not until he had eaten everything in sight that his dilemma was discovered, and he was rescued in a state verging on collapse."

"That particular guest was never again heard to complain, but the trial of Indians as waiters ended then and there, their methods being quite too original or aboriginal, for practical application."

Before the discovery of One Minute Cough Cure ministers were greatly disturbed by coughing congregations. No excuse for it now. Banker.

—During the freshet the fore part of the week, Howe's mill dam was carried away by the great mass of water and ice. This is quite a misfortune at this season of the year.

—It is hoped that the citizens of Genoa will cheerfully combine in the effort to secure the services of Rev. Mr. Laughton as pastor of the Baptist church. We need him here.

If all who hate would love us And all our friends were true— Good gracious! kindly tell us What would the gossips do?

Paid for this TRIBUNE?

—Only four days to Spring.

—Mrs. Jay Pierce and son of Genoa, who had been attending the funeral of her mother at Peruville visited at Geo. Desmond's a portion of the week on their return home.—Locke Times.

—A social party will be held at the Rink on Friday evening, March 17. Meanwhile the hall will undergo thorough and much needed repairs. Ladies' and gents' dressing rooms are to be built, the stairs enclosed, and a gallery erected for the accommodation of spectators. This will make the rink one of the best dancing halls in the country and all should attend the party on the evening of St. Patrick's day.

—Wise business men try to sustain and keep any business in a village. The unwise discourage and drive it away by an illiberal policy. They see failure in every projected enterprise, and never lose an opportunity to discourage those who are undertaking to establish a business. We have them in Jordan and they are as useful in maintaining business enterprises as the grip is in maintaining health and happiness.—Ex.

Highest market price paid for pork at the Genoa market.

—The country roads are not generally so good as they used to be. Snow is piled in drifts by the wind, instead of lying evenly as they did before the forests were cleared away. Few farmers realize how much they lose by having the roads either swept bare of snow or blockaded with snow drifts during most of the winter. It is the season when most of the marketing of farm produce is done. If the roads are so bad it cannot be done now the teams are kept idle and a large amount of labor is put upon them in the busy season of plowing and seeding. Of late years roadside fences, especially on the windward side are the chief causes of the roads filling with show banks. The roadside fence along a much traveled highway inconveniences the public more than it can possibly benefit the owner of the land adjoining it.—Ex.

Town Meeting Returns.

There was considerable excitement in town Tuesday. The total vote of the town was 504. Here is the result as canvassed Wednesday.

REPUBLICAN.		DEMOCRATIC.
Dudley, supervisor, 439.
285 Hagin,	clerk,	Sullivan	163
222 Tarbell,	justice,	Hunt	236
258 Hollister,		Sterns	184

270 Mead, D L		Sill	168
287 Niles,	com'r	Slocum	167

281 Smith,		Oliver	144
270 Gillespie,		Norman	156
272 Stickle,		Fulmer	145
Game constable, Foran, 172

The total vote on the excise questions was 504, as follows:

No. 1—yes 128, no 206. No. 2, yes 99, no 201. No. 3, yes 169, no 159. No. 4, yes 247, no 187.

There was an unusually large number of spoiled and blank ballots cast, both town and excise, and it is safe to say that fully 100 ballots were cast which could not be counted as the voters doubtless intended. For instance, why should a man cast a ballot for one inspector and a constable only?

Locke elected the entire Republican ticket, although Town Clerk Stryker had the narrow margin of 1 to his credit. The drug store was given license with a majority of 8.

Venice elected the entire Republican ticket, with the exception of George Crawfoot for collector, and went no-license by a majority of 60.

Scipio elected Edward Parkhurst for supervisor and the balance of the Republican ticket. We understand the no-license people carried the day with a good margin. Fleming went license by 2 majority, and elected a mixed ticket.

Ledyard elected for supervisor Geo. Bancroft, Rep., over his popular opponent Martin Maloney, jr. by a majority of 12. The vote polled was the largest in the history of the town. The Republicans were all elected and no-license carried by 32 majority.

Moravia re-elected W. J. Greenfield for supervisor, and licensed the drug stores only.

Locomotor Ataxia and Paralysis Can be Cured.

These extreme nervous disorders were treated with wonderful success by the discoverer of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, previous to his discovery being offered to the public generally. This remedy is the only known specific in many diseases that, until recent years, were pronounced incurable. Here is the proof:

James Crockett, a sturdy old Scotchman living in Detroit, Mich., at 88 Montclair St., was cured of Locomotor Ataxia by these pills. For many years he has been a chief engineer of one of those big passenger palace steamers plying upon the great lakes. This is a position of great responsibility and the anxiety causes a great nervous strain. Mr. Crockett says: "For fifteen years I watched the big engines and boilers without a single accident, and only noticed that I was getting nervous, suddenly without warning I was taken sick, and was prostrated. I had the best of physicians but grew gradually worse. At a council of doctors, they said I had nervous prostration, and had destroyed my whole nervous system and would never recover. For three years I was unable to move from my bed. The doctor said I had locomotor ataxia, and would never be able to walk again."

"The pains and suffering I experienced during those years are almost indescribable. The friends that came to see me bid me good-bye when they left me and I was given up. The doctors said nothing more could be done. My wife kept reading to me, articles about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. We finally decided to try them. The first box gave me relief. I continued to use them for about two years before I could get strength enough to walk. I am nearly seventy-five years old and there is not a man in this city that can kick higher or walk further than I can and to-day I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for they saved my life."—Detroit Evening News.

A Bank of Brides.
Simla, the summer capital of the Indian Empire, is a pretty pine-treed place well up in the foothills of the Himalayas. A feature of Simla life is the annual fair held by the native hills people, an attractive item of which is a "Bank of Brides" in an amphitheatre, where sit numbers of young women who thus calmly announce that they are candidates for hymeneal honors. Some of these aspirants to matrimony so patiently awaiting a choosing are quite pretty, and have intelligent faces; but those of Mongol caste must needs linger long for a partner, if personal beauty enters into the equation.—Woman's Home Companion.

Caribou Blinded by Duelling.
The Indian guide Jim Paul was once hunting on the Gaspereaux plains, New Brunswick, when he saw a large bull caribou coming straight toward him through a clump of stunted spruce. The animal frequently collided with the trees and seemed to take no notice of the Indian. "Sartin," said Jim. "I tink dat caribou was drunk. Bambye when he git pretty close I shoot him. Sartin he was mighty ole caribou, for he was blind and had no teeth and no horns." In the mating season it is not uncommon for caribou males to be blinded by thrusts received in their furious duels for the mastery of the herd.

President Faure Was Stricken Suddenly While at Work in His Study, and Died in a Few Hours—Medical Aid Was of No Avail—Premier Dupuy Informed the Functionaries of France's Bereavement—He Issued a Note Appealing For Vigilance—The Grief of the Dead Statesman's Family—At His Bedside When He Expired—M. Faure's Career.

PARIS (By Cable).—M. Felix Faure, sixt, President of the third French Republic died suddenly of apoplexy at 10 o'clock Thursday night. He had been slightly indisposed for a day or two, but he did not consider himself as really ill.

M. Faure was in his study in the Palace of the Elysee at about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when he summoned his valet, complaining of fatigue and weakness. The valet assisted him to a sofa and Dr. Humbert was called to treat the President.

PRESIDENT M. FELIX FAURE, OF FRANCE.

Finding the action of the heart feeble, Dr. Humbert administered ether, but declared that there was nothing serious about M. Faure's condition. Nevertheless, the President grew worse and other physicians were summoned, including Drs. Potain and Lannelongue, and it was speedily realized that the case was desperate. Dr. Lannelongue had snappings brought from a neighboring pharmacy, but their application had only a slight effect.

The death agony began at 9.50 o'clock, and M. Faure passed away ten minutes later. His wife and daughter, Mme. Berge, M. Dupuy and the civil and military officials of his household were present. The newspapers learn that M. Faure suffered for several months past with heart disease, but the fact was not known to the public.

M. Dupuy communicated the sad intelligence to M. Loubet, President of the Senate; M. Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber of Deputies; the members of the Cabinet and to other high officials, and afterward addressed the following dispatch to all prefects and sub-prefects in France:

I have the sad task to announce to you the death of the President, which occurred at 10 o'clock this evening, as the result of an apoplectic stroke. Kindly take the necessary measures to inform the population immediately of the mourning that has fallen upon the Republic. The Government counts upon your active vigilance at this painful juncture.

By a curious coincidence, M. Dupuy occupies the same place which he held when President Carnot was assassinated on June 24, 1894.

It was painful to witness the distress of Madame Faure and the children. Only with the greatest difficulty could she be induced to leave the death chamber, and even then she insisted on remaining in M. Le Gall's room, apart from the children, in order to give free vent to her grief.

FROM TANNER TO PRESIDENT.

M. Faure Won His Way to the Top by Hard Work and Ambition.
Francis Felix Faure, sixth President of the third Republic of France, was born on January 20, 1841. His father was Jean Faure, a cabinetmaker. Faure was educated in a private commercial school, and was then sent to England for two years. When quite young he married the daughter of M. Belluot, an attorney in Amboise.

He became President of the Havre Chamber of Commerce, and during the Franco-Prussian war held the office of Deputy Mayor. In August, 1891, Faure offered himself as a Republican candidate for Parliament in the Third District of Havre and was elected. He was appointed Under Secretary of State for Colonies in the Gambetta administration, and held the same office in the Ministries of Jules Ferry (1893), M. Brisson (1895) and M. Tirard (1897). In May, 1891, he became Minister of Marine in M. Dupuy's Cabinet, and was appointed Vice-President of the Chamber of Deputies, a position to which he was several times elected. On the retirement of Casimir-Perier, who resigned the Presidency on January 18, 1895, he was elected by 430 votes against Henri Brisson, the election taking place on January 17.

The State Forest Preserve.

An important proposed amendment to the Constitution will be proposed at this session of the Legislature at Albany amending the section which now reads: "The lands of the State, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the Forest Preserve, as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, moved or destroyed." The amendment will be added to the end of the section to provide "except that the State authorities may dispose of lands outside of such preserve, provided that the funds obtained from such sale be applied to the purchase of additional forest lands." The suggestion for such an amendment comes from ex-Comptroller James A. Roberts, and is principally indorsed by the Forest, Fish and Game Commission, and the Forest Preserve Board. It is claimed that the State now owns land as far as fifty miles outside the present preserve, that it is of no value except as farm land, and that the authorities are forbidden to sell or exchange it. It costs more to keep it guarded than it is worth, and for the money received from its sale much valuable wooded land could be bought.

Receiver For Gorge Road at Niagara.

The Niagara Falls and Lewiston Railroad Company, otherwise known as the Gorge Road, has gone into the hands of a receiver. On the application of a majority of the directors of the road, Justice Childs granted an order appointing Joseph B. Megrue, of New York City, temporary receiver. Captain John M. Brinker, one of the stockholders and until recently President of the company, said a few days ago that the road did not make any money last year, and this fact, with heavy losses from damage suits, was responsible for the insolvency of the company. The company will be reorganized as soon as a plan can be agreed upon.

A Sheep With a Rhinoceros' Horn.

Frank Lyon, of Naples, has a flock of sheep, one of which is developing into a freak. From the centre of its face a horn is growing similar in appearance to a rhinoceros' horn. The growth became noticeable last summer and has now developed into a horn three inches in diameter at the base and five inches long, tapering to a fine point. The sheep has become a formidable opponent since the growth of its new weapon, and gaining in belligerency as its new horn grew in length, is now the best fighter in the flock, displacing the old ram which had enjoyed this pre-eminence.

A Girl Accidentally Shot.

Christopher Pfitzer, who lives just outside the village of Ravenna, a suburb of Albany, was standing in front of his home a few days ago cleaning a revolver, when in some way it was discharged, and the bullet struck the seven-year-old daughter of Philip Fink, who was passing at the time. The bullet entered the side of the head over the ear, killing her instantly. When Pfitzer saw what he had done he was crazed with grief. The child was picked up and carried to her home. The child had a narrow escape from drowning only a few weeks ago, at the time three children from one family lost their lives by the ice giving way.

State Health Statistics.

The annual report of the State Board of Health issued at Albany shows a marked decrease in the number of deaths from diphtheria, which were 417 in 1897 and 263 in 1898. There were 121,000 deaths reported during the year, making a death-rate of 18.10 per 1000 of the reported population. In 1897 the death-rate was 18.00. The average longevity for the year, indicated by the mortality, was 65.3 years against an average for ten years past of 54.3. In the winter months the average daily mortality was 311, in the spring 326, in the summer 341 and in the autumn 328.

Aged Man Shot and Robbed.

Anthony Meyer, an old resident of Pendleton Centre, was shot and robbed at his home a few nights ago by two masked men. Mr. Meyer and his daughter and another small girl had retired for the night when they were awakened by a knock at the door. As soon as it was opened by Mr. Meyer the thugs at once knocked him down and partly disabled him. A struggle followed and the burglars resorted to revolvers. The robbers then bound the inmates with ropes and ransacked the house, securing $178 in cash, some checks and several notes and mortgages.

A Convention of Old Maids.

A novel assemblage convened in the Opera Hall, at Avon a few days ago. The gathering was an old maids' convention, and the delegates were spinsters from different places in Livingston County. They discussed the cases and conditions of single blessedness, and some of the bolder ones suggested remedies more or less practicable. Committees were appointed, and the deliberations proceeded in a business-like way, according to parliamentary usage, with malice toward none and charity for all.

A Malone Hotel Burned.

The Olympia Hotel, at Malone, was burned a few nights ago. The proprietor, H. A. Gray, and all the servants were at the army furnishing supper for the Twenty-seventh Separate Company's annual ball. The hotel was a large wooden building in the centre of the village. The firemen were at a great disadvantage owing to the intense cold, the mercury registering fifteen degrees below zero.

Robber Murders a Farmer.

Jacob Van Huse, a farmer of Fenfield, was murdered a few days ago, being clubbed and then shot. His body was found lying on the floor of his home by a neighbor. The murdered man lived alone, and his house was in a secluded spot. The authorities are looking for a tramp who is suspected of the murder. Robbery was the motive, but the murderer only obtained a watch and a small amount of money.

To Abolish Death Penalty.

What Our Knowledge is Good For.

The attainment of skill is the alpha as it is the omega of science. It was the attempt to gain perfection in his every-day work that led primeval man to take the first steps in that great movement of which the fruition appears in the final development of our modern universities. For a man of highest culture, also, the end and object of study is, as Aristotle teaches us, not the attainment of knowledge, but the perfecting of conduct, and this is true not only when we conceive of conduct as our action in relation to other men, but also if we look upon it as action in relation to the objects and conditions which surround us.—From "The Field of Art" in Scribner's.

The Marine Corps' Motto.

The motto of the marine corps is "Semper Fidelis"—always faithful. From the establishment of the corps during the revolution up to the present time the marines have nobly lived up to this motto, and have upon countless occasions shed luster upon the glory of American arms. To-day all the world knows of the brilliancy of their exploits at Guantanamo. The heroism they displayed there in the face of overwhelming odds is characteristic of the marines.—New York Sun.

OUR PHILIPPINE POLICY.

President McKinley Enunciates One in a Speech in Boston.

ISLANDS TO BE KEPT IN TRUST.

The President States That Until Congress Shall Direct Otherwise, He Holds It His Duty to Hold the Islands, Compelling the Natives to Recognize the Authority of the United States.

Boston, Mass. (Special).—Boston's welcome to President McKinley on Thursday was characteristically enthusiastic, and the banquet of the Home Market Club, in Mechanics' Hall in the evening, at which the President delivered a striking speech on the Philippine problem, was the greatest affair of its kind in the city's history. Nearly two thousand attended the banquet. The President received a tremendous ovation on his introduction of the banquet. After referring briefly to the stirring events of the last year, he spoke in part as follows: "The Philippines, like Cuba and Porto Rico, were intrusted to our hands by the war, and to that great trust, under the providence of God and in the name of human progress and civilization, we are committed."

"It is a trust we have not sought; it is a trust from which we will not flinch. The American people will hold up the hands of their servants at home to whom they commit its execution, while Dewey and Otis and the brave men whom they command will have the support of the country in upholding our flag where it now floats, the symbol and assurance of liberty and justice."

"We hear no complaint of the relations created by the war between this Government and the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico. There are some, however, who regard the Philippines as in a different relation; but whatever variety of views there may be on this phase of the question, there is universal agreement that the Philippines shall not be turned back to Spain. No true American consents to that."

"Even if unwilling to accept them ourselves, it would have been a weak evasion of many duty to require Spain to transfer them to some other Power or Powers, and thus shirk our responsibility. Even if we had had, as we did not have, the power to compel such a transfer, it could not have been made without the most serious international complications."

"Such a course could not be thought of, and had we refused to accept the cessation of them, we should have had no power over them, even for their own good. We could not discharge the responsibilities upon us until these islands became ours either by conquest or treaty. There was but one alternative, and that was either Spain or the United States in the Philippines."

"The other suggestions—first, that they should be tossed into the arena of contention for the strife of nations; or, second, be left to the anarchy and chaos of no protectorate at all—were too shameful to be considered."

"We were doing our duty by them, as God gave us light to see our duty [great applause and ovation] with the consent of our own consciences and with the approval of civilization. Every present obligation has been met and fulfilled in the expulsion of Spanish sovereignty from their islands, and while the war that destroyed it was in progress we could not ask their views. Nor can we now ask their consent."

"It is not a good time for the liberator to submit important questions concerning liberty and government to the liberated while they are engaged in shooting down their rescuers."

"The future of the Philippine Islands is now in the hands of the American people. Until the treaty was ratified or rejected the executive department of this Government could only preserve the peace and protect life and property. That treaty now commits the free and enfranchised Filipinos to the guiding hand and the liberalizing influences, the generous sympathies, the uplifting education, not of their American masters, but of their American emancipators."

"Until Congress shall direct otherwise, it will be the duty of the Executive to possess and hold the Philippines, giving to the people thereof peace and order and beneficent government, affording them every opportunity to prosecute their lawful pursuits, encouraging them in thrift and industry, making them feel and know that we are their friends, not their enemies; that their good is our aim, that their welfare is our purpose, but that neither their aspirations nor ours can be realized until our authority is acknowledged and unquestioned."

"No imperial designs lurk in the American mind. They are alien to American sentiment, thought and purpose. Our priceless principles undergo no change under a tropical sun. They go with the flag. They are wrought in every one of its sacred folds and are as inextinguishable in their shining as the stars."

Fun in Sweden.

General Baron Rappe, Swedish Minister of War, has just suffered a penalty for a very amusing slight to royal ceremony. The day before Christmas King Oscar summoned a cabinet council to the palace. At the last moment General Rappe, who is notoriously absent minded, having on his full uniform, as required by the regulations, forgot to put on his plumed chapeau, and hastily clapped his ordinary silk hat on his unfortunate head. No one happened to see him en route till he approached the palace. The King and the rest of the cabinet, looking out of the window, saw the motley War Minister approaching, and burst into loud guffaws. They chaffed him without mercy, and the King, to censure his absence of mind, put him under a three days' arrest as provided by the military regulations forbidding the wearing of civilian attire in conjunction with military uniform.

The rolling of the vessel pitches the wheelbarrow and pushes together in a heap, convulsing the onlookers with laughter.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

THE ills of women conspire against domestic harmony. Some derangement of the generative organs is the main cause of most of the unhappiness in the household.

WOMAN'S PECULIAR ILLS

The husband can't understand these troubles. The male physician only knows of them theoretically and scientifically, and finds it hard to cure them.

But there is cure for them, certain, practical and sympathetic. Mrs. Pinkham has been curing these serious ills of women for a quarter of a century. Failure to secure proper advice should not excuse the women of to-day, for the wisest counsel can be had without charge. Write to Mrs. Pinkham for it. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

Among the multitude of women helped by Mrs. Pinkham and by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is Mrs. JOSEPH KING, Sabina, Ohio. She writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Will you kindly allow me the pleasure of expressing my gratitude for the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with falling of the womb, and those terrible bearing-down pains, and it seemed as though my back would never stop aching; also had leucorrhoea, dull headaches, could not sleep, was weak and life was a burden to me. I doctored for several years, but it did no good. My husband wanted me to try your medicine, and I am so thankful that I did. I have taken four bottles of the Compound and a box of Liver Pills, and can state that if more ladies would only give your medicine a fair trial they would bless the day they saw your advertisement. My heart is full of gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham for what her medicine has done for me. It is worth its weight in gold."

Obituary.

Mrs. Eliza Morey, widow of the late Samuel Morey, died at her home in Ludlowville, Jan. 24, 1899, aged 77 years. She was married to Samuel Morey Jan. 9, 1839 by Dana Fox, and for fifty years had lived in the house where she died. Her last illness was of only two weeks' duration, and she died in great peace. She was a faithful follower of Christ for fifty years, and could joyfully exclaim "O death, where is thy sting; oh grave, where is thy victory?" She was noted for her many excellent qualities and consistent every day Christian living—her life was an example to the unsaved. She delighted to sing the songs of Zion and the day before she was taken sick sang with much feeling "Oh come angel band, come and around me stand, oh bear me away on your snowy wings to my eternal home." For years it had been her custom to have her children and their families home for a Christmas dinner and tree. Last Christmas she was in usual health, but seemed to feel that this was our last Christmas together. She asked us all to live Christian lives so that all of us might meet her in Heaven, then bade us a Christmas farewell. Just before she died she said to her daughter Mary, "I have hung my harp on the willow, I want to go over the river." The funeral services were held at her late home, conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Funnell. Interment in Ludlowville cemetery. Six children, three sons and three daughters, besides a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren mourn her loss.

"Our lovely mother has left us,
 And our loss we deeply feel;
 It was God's hand that bereft us,
 He can all our sorrows heal."
 M. S.

As the season of year when pneumonia, grip, sore throat, cough, cold, catarrh, bronchitis and lung troubles are to be guarded against, nothing "is a fine substitute," will "answer the purpose," or is "just as good" as One Minute Cough Cure. That is the one infallible remedy for all lung, throat or bronchial troubles. Insist vigorously upon having it if "something else" is offered you. S. S. Banker.

Still Un-identified.

The body of the man which was found in Cayuga lake on Thursday afternoon was brought to this city yesterday afternoon and all through the early hours of the evening and also this morning many people visited Gross' undertaking rooms in the hope that they might identify the man. As yet no one knows who the man was although many have made a guess at his identity. One man is quoted as saying that the remains are those of Thomas Hunter of May's Point. This story has some color in it as Hunter is missing from home and the clothes in which the dead man was garbed are similar to those usually worn by Hunter. The description of the features does not tally with the dead man, however. Several men who have viewed the remains state that they are sure that at one time the man worked on the New York Central as a section hand. The body has been neatly dressed in a black suit and placed in a coffin.

Funeral services were read over the remains by Rev. Frederick W. Palmer of the Central Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The body will be placed in a vault at Soul cemetery to remain until all hope of identifying the man has passed.—Auburn Bulletin.
