State and national granges and farm bureau associations and federations will not participate in any way in the series of conferences to be held in Washington within the next few days for allaying farm interests with organized labor. S. J. Lowell of Fredonia, master of the New York state grange and the National grange association, declared in a statement in Syracuse.

Saratoga county lost its contention that it is a charitable institution because it operates a tuberculosis hospital and infirmary, in a decision given by Surrogate Cobalan in New York. The county supervisors protested against paying $5,000 transfer tax on a bequest of $50,000 left to the hospital by Horace W. Carpenter. The surrogate held the county does not come under the heading of corporations exempted from the transfer tax.

Eight or more women's clubs have joined the Women's Equal Opportunity League of New York in protest against proposed "welfare" legislation for women, which they condemn as "discriminatory and unfair toward women workers. These clubs have adopted resolutions asking the legislature to defeat the office workers' bill, the minimum bill and the eight-hour factory bill, which are scheduled to be introduced when the legislature meets in January.

A bill legalizing the manufacture and sale of ales and beers, sponsored, it is said, by most of the legislative leaders, will be introduced shortly after the New York state legislature convenes on Jan. 7. Informal discussions of the proposed legislation have been held in New York and it will be patterned in the 3 per cent beer bill introduced at the last session of the legislature by Senator J. Henry Walters, majority leader. The bill will be pressed for early passage, and those behind it were predicting that it would be law before Jan. 15.

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that a very large capital expenditure ought to be made to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.
WALKER D. HINES,
Director General of Railroads.

Work more—
Produce more—
Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

PROPERLY PROUD OF HOTEL THAT NEW SUIT FOR WINTER

Citizens of Alexandria, La., Have Right to Boast of Their Magnificent Caravansary.

Advantages and Disadvantages in Having it Ready-Made or Made to Order.

Alexandria, La., is known throughout the South as the little town with the big hotel. Strangers always remark the incongruity of the metropolitan edifice apparently fallen by accident into this quiet little place.

It seems that in Alexandria's ante-bellum days, a wealthy man and his small dog were stopping at the town inn. One day the innkeeper and guest had a lively argument over the dog. Its owner replied that he and his dog would not be among those present at the inn in the future and departed proudly, intimating darkly that the innkeeper would be sorry. He then made good his threat by building a hotel such as Alexandria had never dreamed of seeing, and here dog and master took up their residence and gathered to themselves all the transient trade of the town.

Alexandria wears its hotel proudly, a trifle self-consciously. It is the show place of the town and its assertive stone grandeur commands respect and deference. A town that boasts a hotel inclosing marble halls ending in a grand staircase and a Spanish patio adorned with a fountain as an extra attraction must assume an air of dignity in keeping with its importance.

Alexandria's other claim to notice is the fact that only a few years ago the Louisiana legislature conducted a series of spirited arguments as to the removal of the state capital from Baton Rouge to Alexandria. In the end Alexandria lost out and was forced to console itself with the fame it acquired from its big hotel.

The Question of Importance. Millionaire—Tell me, child, that young man who wants to marry you this Christmas, has he got any money? Miss Innocence—Money, father? Why, he has just given me a cluster of diamonds ring studded with pearls. Millionaire—Yes, I know. Has any money left?

There are possible advantages in going to a tailor and having your suit made to order and just as many possible advantages in buying it ready-made. With the ready-made suit there is always this:

You can see the finished garment. There is never the possibility that you won't like it after it is finished, for it is finished to begin with. Moreover, if you are a person whose time is precious, the ready-made suit has advantages in that way. Even if it needs rather elaborate alterations you will need far less fitting than if you are having it made entirely to order. And of course, the ready-made suit, if you buy a good one from a smart shop, has probably been made according to the design of a very skilled and highly paid person, whereas your tailor may or may not have the eye of a real designer and he may or may not follow skillfully the lines of the design you select for him. However, if you are blessed with a good-figure the tailor will reveal the fact as the ready-made suit cannot possibly do, even if it is altered, for it is necessary to make ready-mades according to designs that do not fit a rule play up the figure. They must be built for the average figure and built according to lines that require the least possible fitting.

If you go to the tailor bear this in mind: That for this winter suits made of heavy men's suit fabrics are going to be extremely smart. Select such a fabric that shows a decided stripe—one that would probably not be the one you would choose for your husband or son, because the stripes should be quite far apart and quite noticeable. A cutting of dark slate gray with a lighter gray stripe is a splendid selection. Now have the bodice pieces of the pattern cut lengthwise of the stripe with a tunic on the jacket cut the other way of the material. Or in some such way as this make use of the striping to give the suit its only trimming.

Venice Farmer Found Dead.
Robert Buckley, a well known farmer of the town of Venice, was found dead in the offices of County Superintendent of Highways J. Charles Dayton Wednesday morning, Dec. 24, when S. L. Depew, who has an office in the same suite, opened his door that morning.
Mr. Buckley went to Auburn Tuesday to confer with Mr. Dayton regarding farm matters, Mr. Dayton having charge of the farm in Venice on which the deceased is a tenant. He later left the office and was found asleep in the hallway and taken back into the small room connecting the highway office and that of Mr. Depew. He was laid on a couch and when Mr. Dayton left at 7 o'clock that evening he was breathing regularly and apparently asleep.
Mystery surrounding the death, which was believed for some time to be due to poisoning from a brand of "prohibition" drink was cleared up when an autopsy was performed in the undertaking rooms of W. H. Meagher by Dr. Andrew J. Forman, coroner, and Dr. William E. Wash coroner's physician. When the body was found Buckley's face was buried in his hat, and death was found due to suffocation.
The deceased was 46 years old and is survived by his wife and three children.
The funeral took place at his late home in Venice Saturday morning, Dec. 27, at 9 o'clock; services at Our Lady of the Lake church, at King Ferry. Burial at King Ferry.

Death of Chester Wolford.
Chester Wolford died Wednesday night, Dec. 24, at his home west and south of this village, after a period of ill health extending over several months. Heart disease was the cause of death.
The deceased was born Jan. 1, 1864, at East Coblekill, N. Y. Eight years ago he moved with his family to Ithaca and about three years ago he purchased a farm on the Indian Field road near this village which he occupied until this winter, when because of ill health he sold the farm, and removed to the Dempsey place.
Surviving are a wife and three children: Mrs. Hugh C. Stutz of Evanston, Ill., Clayton and Frank Wolford who live at home. The deceased was highly respected by all, and the family have made many friends during their residence here.
The remains were taken on Saturday to Howe's Cave, N. Y., his former home, where funeral services were held and burial was made on Sunday.

Young Women.

King Ferry School Notes.

[ELIZABETH BRADLEY, EDITOR]
The entertainment at the close of school for Christmas vacation was certainly splendid. The children under Mrs. Hendrickson's and Miss Conaughty's direction gave a vivid and pleasing representation of the speech, customs and dress of the people of many foreign countries.
Miss Hughes' pupils enacted many of the Mother Goose Rhymes, putting new life and fun into the familiar old rhymes. Her pupils showed the patience and skill of the careful training they had received, especially little Henry Hendrickson, who played the part of Little Jack Horner to perfection.
After the entertainment the presents were taken from the tree and distributed among all of the pupils. Then popcorn was given to all the pupils and visitors. Mr. Randall gave the signal for bursting the popcorn bags for which the boys had anxiously waited.

Death Rate for November.

Albany, Dec. 27—The latest vital statistics report, made public by the New York State Commissioner of Health, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, shows that the general death rate for the State increased slightly in November this year over the preceding month, but was still very much below the average for the month of November during the 5 years before 1918—the decrease being over 17 percent. The State's birth rate of 20.4 per thousand population for November is still low and much below the average for that month in the 5 years 1913—1917. Also the State's infant mortality rate of 66 for November is 19 points below the average for that month.
The number of deaths in the State from diphtheria was 187 in the month of November, as compared with the 5 year average of 142 for the same month.

THIS CITY BUILT WHILE YOU WAIT

Fourth Largest Town in Alabama Full Grown in One Year.

HAD A MODEL GOVERNMENT

Permanent Settlement Around U. S. Nitrate Plant Presented Unusual Problems.

By GARRET SMITH.
The fourth largest city in Alabama, peopled with 25,000 souls of diverse races and religions, uprooted from far scattered communities in every part of the United States and Canada sprang into being almost overnight around the great new government ammonium nitrate plant down on the open cotton and corn fields at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee River during the last year of the World War. Here was a problem in city building, municipal government and community welfare that has seldom been equalled and the success of its solution has never been excelled.
The job was in the hands of the Air Nitrates Corporation which had been organized under the direction of the Ordnance Department to build plant and city at Muscle Shoals. Early in January, 1918, this new town had a few temporary buildings and a population of 300. This had jumped by the middle of August to more than 21,000. A population multiplied by 70 in 7 months.
In the management of the new towns and army cantonments that sprang up during the war the old-time evils that attended the growth of mushroom cities have been avoided by the application of modern welfare systems. But nowhere were conditions more difficult than at Muscle Shoals. Here was a malarial region threatened at the same time with other deadly disease epidemics. Transportation was lacking. No nearby labor was available and the general labor shortage was at its most acute stage. Costs of labor and supplies were leaping over night. Furthermore, Muscle Shoals differed from all the other new war towns inasmuch as it was to be permanent.

New Government Devised.
The managers, besides city government, had to handle the entire retail business of the town. A camp supervisor's department was put in charge of the maintenance of all buildings, fire protection and sanitation. The camp supervisor looked after everything from the mending of a lock to the remodeling of groups of buildings or laying sewers or steam mains. For the bachelor contingent a commissary department was necessary.
The business department managed the stores, canteens, motion picture theaters, pool parlors, tailor shops, dry cleaning establishments, barber shops, newsstands, a hotel, a vegetable farm and a hog farm, where 1,000 hogs were raised on the wastes from eating places. It maintained a slaughter house where these hogs were put through the regular packing house course. It operated a laundry which cleaned 7,493 pieces a day. Then there was a real estate department that rented and managed the family quarters and a housing department which assigned to quarters everybody excepting the families.
Under separate jurisdiction from its community director were the police.
The health department, in charge of a physician from New York city, started with a small office in one of the temporary buildings, and was soon full grown and splendidly equipped. Conditions were favorable to disease. The winter was the severest on record in northern Alabama. The men were compelled to work either in deep snow or mud above their knees. As a result a pneumonia epidemic developed among the Negroes that spring. Later in the year a typhoid epidemic was threatened. Moreover, the site of the plant was in the heart of the malarial district. But the pneumonia epidemic was checked, the typhoid threat-nipped in the bud, and malaria stamped out.

A Health Record Established
The little first-aid hospital presently grew to a complete modern institution with a nurses' home and a separate dispensary for dental, eye, ear, nose, throat, genito-urinary clinics and a surgical dispensary for first-aid work.
During the eight months when the death rate was not affected by the influenza and pneumonia epidemics the general health rate was 12.4 per thousand per year, which is lower than in most cities in the same latitude and climate, and the pneumonia death rate during the epidemic was lower than in most army cantonments.
Much of the success of the health administration is due to the establishment of the Muscle Shoals sanitary district by the United States Public Health Service.
The education and welfare department also had a vital work to perform. There was a school population of over 1,000. The Secretary of War created the community organization branch of the Ordnance Department which, with advice and aid of some of the greatest school men of the country, prescribed the courses of study and recruited teachers from the best established systems.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR BUSINESS AND HOUSEHOLD LIFE

As Recommended By

National Committee of Bankers

1. Make a budget.
2. Keep an intelligent record of expenditures.
3. Have a Bank account.
4. Carry life insurance.
5. Make a Will.
6. Own your own home eventually.
7. Pay your bills promptly.
8. Invest in War Savings Stamps and other government securities.
9. Spend less than you earn.
10. Share with others. Thrift without benevolence is a doubtful blessing.

You should commence to observe the above commandments upon January 1, 1920. For the purpose of assisting housekeepers to arrange their BUDGET AND ACCOUNT BOOK, we have secured a few copies which we will be glad to distribute, free of charge, upon application. They will be ready for distribution on or about January 2nd, 1920.
