EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

Benham, now at Batavia, is wearing the suit of clothes which were made for his burial.

The Weedsport Skirt and Waist Co. of Weedsport has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000.

A New York undertaker has an automobile hearse and it is reported that people are dying to ride in it.

Thomas E. Tiquin of Sherburne has been appointed milk inspector at a salary of $80 per month and expenses.

A carload of young fish were received in Skaneateles last week from the state hatchery at Caledonia and were placed in the lake.

Rev. J. E. Ensign has been engaged to conduct evangelistic services at the Moravia M. E. church. He was expected to begin his labors Sunday.

Ex-President Cleveland took residence in New Jersey for a useful purpose. He is to be made a member of the state game and fish commission.

Harry Tidd, organist at the First M. E. church, Auburn, gave a recital at Moravia Friday on a new organ which has just been set up in a church there.

"Pa, do any miracles ever happen any more?" "Yes. One happened to me last night. I told your ma why I was so late getting home, and she believed me."

A clerk in the freight office of the Western New York and Pennsylvania road at Olean was killed at his desk one night recently by a train being backed into the office by mistake.

Army chaplains lately returned from the Philippines say that Manila is one of the most orderly cities in the world. This is equivalent to saying that it has been Americanized.

The Geneva Advertiser says the retail price of kerosene is now 12 cents a gallon, and thinks an entertainment for the benefit of the Standard Oil Co. will not be needed next winter.

Senator Depew has given the Republican party its watchword and battlecry for the coming presidential campaign. He suggests "Gold and glory." It fits like the paper on the wall.

A Chinese doctor in Missouri has secured verdicts of $8,937.50 damages in suits brought against the Kansas City, St. Joseph & Council Bluffs R. R. Co., because a negro porter would not permit him to ride in a parlor car.

Two hundred electric motors will be operating on the Erie canal next year, and will propel 1,000 boats. A new trackless trolley motor is made in Chicago, especially designed to propel canal boats.

H. Laurens Storke, for twenty-seven years connected with the Auburn Bulletin, and lately president of the company, has severed his interests with the concern. He is succeeded by Nelson B. Eldred, representative of the Nelson Beardsley estate.

Horton and Love, who recently escaped from the county jail, walked to Newark Valley where Horton became tired of freedom and was glad to get back into jail on Saturday. He left Love at Newark Valley and he will probably be soon found.

The Standard Oil Co. has purchased 4,000 acres of the Cattaraugus Indian reservation in Cattaraugus county. There are 48 wells on the property which produce $335 worth of oil a day. This is considered the most valuable oil lease in the state.

In a neighboring town a salvation army advertiser wrote on a billboard, "What shall I do to be saved?" A patent medicine man came along the next day and wrote underneath, "Take Carter's Little Liver Pills."

man noticed the sacrilegious work of the medicine man and printed below, "And prepare to meet thy God." Solomon Roosevelt of Delaware, O., builder of the Baltic and Pacific, the first steamers to cross the Atlantic, is dead, aged 93 years. He was born in Alburg, Vt., and lived many years in New York City.

The steamer that has been surveying the ocean bed for the Pacific cable has found the greatest ocean depth yet recorded, being 5,260 fathoms, which is within 120 feet of six miles. This is just west of Guam and the hole is 1,500 feet deeper than any other known.

It is recorded that Napoleon once said that the British army was "a band of lions led by jackasses." The repeated blunders of White, Methuen, Gatacre and Buller in South Africa incline critics to the opinion that Napoleon was at least half right, and that the British army is much the same now as it was in his time.

The wholesale price of coffee has advanced $4 a bag. This will warrant an increase in the retail price of five cents a pound. The advance in price is due to the scarcity of coffee at the present time. Coffee has never been so scarce as it is now since the time of the war.

There were changes on Monday last in two of our most prominent business firms. Chas. J. Hewitt retired from the firm of Fuller & Hewitt, and A. B. Sabins from the firm of White, Stewart & Sabins. Mr. Sabins purchased the evaporator of the firm and will conduct the evaporating business.—Locke Times.

Roger Sherman of Rippleton on Saturday last killed a snake three feet long and also captured two full-grown live grasshoppers. This incident is certainly in keeping with the mild condition of the weather which has prevailed for the past week.—Cazenovia Republican.

Postmaster Marsh of Fleming was driving to Auburn Monday morning when suddenly the horse stopped and could not be urged to proceed. Mr. Marsh investigated and found a hind leg broken at the ankle. The horse was taken to a neighboring barn, a veterinary summoned and an effort will be made to save its life.

Last Monday, W. R. Covey & Co., completed a business transaction whereby they exchange their stock of dry goods and groceries with F. C. Reynolds for his share in the Moravia Mfg Co.'s business. Mr. Reynolds took possession of the store Tuesday, and will immediately close out the stock at cost prices.—Moravia Reg'r.

More stamps were issued by the postoffice department during the month of January, 1900, than in any similar period in the history of the American postal service. Compared with January, 1890, the sale of stamps has increased 94 per cent. In the month past the number of stamps issued was 467,048,545, of the value of $9,105,116. Ten years ago the value of stamps sold in January was $4,716,650.

Farm help will command unusually high wages the coming season, says the Oneida Union. Good men are scarce and can get from $20 to $23 a month for their services. Farm wages are considerably higher than they were twenty years ago, and the hours of labor have been re-adjusted. Then it was the rule to work early and late, while now the hired man who works more than 10 hours is an exception.

The Town Board of Fleming met Thursday and took action on the resignation of Timothy Brigden, overseer of the poor. The resignation was accepted and the Board unanimously elected Lyman S. Baker to the office. Mr. Baker is one of the most influential Democrats in the town and he has shown his qualifications for the office during a previous service several years ago. His unanimous choice shows the confidence his Porter D. Smith's wife and four children of Farmington, near Canandaigua, were all killed by a train on Sunday morning about 1 o'clock. The family consisted of father, mother, two sons and three daughters, and had been spending the evening at a neighbor's. The father and one son were badly injured. The coroner made an investigation.

There is a man in Buffalo held for the Federal grand jury for using a cancelled two-cent postage stamp. In the same city at the same time, is a man who has just robbed a bank of $48,000, who is detained but not locked up in jail. Both are awaiting examination. The man who stole the fortune is treated as a man who has accomplished something extraordinary. The other fellow receives all the consideration of a common criminal.

Hon. D. C. Bloomer, a resident of Council Bluffs, Ia., since 1855, is dead at his home there. His demise was sudden. His age was 84 years. Mr. Bloomer was a native of Scipio, and was admitted to the bar in New York City in 1853. In 1840 he married Miss Amelia Jenks, who, until her death a few years ago, was of national prominence as an advocate of woman suffrage and whose advocacy of dress reform for women during her younger days gave her name to the Bloomer costume.

Mary Reagan, who resides near Homer and has been employed as a domestic in this village, was found early Wednesday morning in a stupor and appearance indicated that she had taken poison. She partially recovered, but in the afternoon she became very hysterical, and was finally taken to the sheriff's residence. She there admitted taking poison, and told where the package could be found. Search in her room revealed a paper labelled strychnine, but it contained none of the crystals. She was later conveyed to her home.—Cortland Democrat.

Syracuse Post-Standard's Auburn correspondent: Unless all signs fail King Ferry, in the town of Genoa, will be connected with Auburn by trolley within a year. The plans are rapidly nearing completion and there is a possibility that the line may extend to Ithaca. A stock company has been organized and the following compose the board of directors: Dexter Wheeler, Isaac Hazard, Edward D. Mosher of Poplar Ridge, and Geo. Morgan of Fleming. If the project goes through, the route would pass through via Mapleton, Fleming Hill, Scipioville, Sherwood, Poplar Ridge and Ledyard.

Venice Center.

FEB. 27—Byron Williamson and bride of Scipio were guests of W. R. Quereau and family on Sunday.

Eben Beebe lost a valuable horse recently.

The present prospect is that there will be but few changes in this place this spring. Frank Hunter will work the farm of M. W. Murdock.

Mrs. Nichols and daughter Cora who have kept house for T. Cannon for the past year and a half will return to Poplar Ridge, which will necessitate a change in the Cannon home.

The present outlook is favorable for a skimming station to be located here.

J. E. Rogers is able to be about with the aid of crutches.

Elmer Fell took his departure from this place on Friday last. He returns to his home in Kansas.

Good Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a popular baker of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with coughs or whooping cough, and it has always given perfect relief. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best medicine for children, and it is."

East Genoa.

FEB. 27.—East Genoa W. C. T. U. and Senior L. T. L. united in holding a social at the home of Mr. Henry Strong on Thursday evening, Feb. 22. Despite bad weather and roads, the pleasant parlors were well filled, several being present from Genoa and North Lansing. A mixed program was given, ranging from comic to pathetic, enlivened by songs by the Seniors. A bountiful supper was served, after which a good social time was enjoyed and parlor games were played by the young people. The young host and hostess received many thanks for their kind hospitality. Expressive little souvenirs in honor of the day were given each guest, prohibition hatchets tied with white ribbon.

Many people have suffered with bad colds, but all seem to be improving.

The Ladies' Aid society which is raising money to insure the church, met with Mrs. Coon on Wednesday.

Mrs. B. Beardsley fell one day last week, hurting herself quite severely. Jay Sharpsteen of South Lansing will move on the farm vacated by Eugene Younglove.

Geo. Main will work the Wm. Wilcox farm this year.

Levi Starner has received news of the death of his son-in-law, Henry Taylor of Dakota, whose remains are expected to arrive here this week.

School is closed for a six weeks' vacation.

The Senior L. T. L. will meet at F. Bothwell's on Saturday evening.

North Lansing.

FEB. 27.—The farmers of this community held another meeting at Grange hall Saturday evening, and feel quite sure of having a creamery.

Rudolphus Miller is at Philadelphia this week on important business.

Andrew Brink will move in the Bowker house this week. Lloyd Hare and family will occupy the house vacated by Brink.

One of our fair maidens in playing the game of euchre always has the "Right" Bower, and rumor says she will keep it, too.

The sad news reached us last Friday of the death of W. A. J. Osmun, a former resident of Lansing, who died at his son's, Dr. Davis Osmun, in Rochester. Mr. Osmun and wife had been to Buffalo to visit their daughter, Mrs. Dr. Phillips, and were on their way home, stopping to visit the son. The funeral was held Sunday from his late home near Ithaca and burial took place in Ithaca cemetery.

Abram Robinson is very sick, his condition being very critical.

Mrs. Anna Osmun celebrated her 92d birthday Feb. 13 and entertained a few friends at dinner.

Will Smith of Lansingville is soon to move on the Sickle farm, now owned by Roswell Beardsley.

John Conley is in very poor health.

Poplar Ridge.

FEB. 27.—It is quite evident that the severest of the winter is yet to come of which these days are a foretaste.

George Husted and wife entertained a company of friends at dinner on Feb. 22, it being the thirteenth anniversary of their marriage.

Quite a number from about here dined on Thursday last with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Starks on the Lake road.

There are to be so many changes in these parts one will hardly know where to find his friends. Some of the changes are as follows: E. O. Sprague and family in their new the home purchased of E. Sprague; Chas. Baldwin's family at Scipio Center; J. H. Peckham in George Chase's house; Clayton Culver back to his own home; Mrs. Nichols and daughter in part of the house with Ed Chase; Chester Allen in Byron Culver's house; Byron Culver in Dexter Wheeler's house; O. Cannon in Isaac Hazard's house; Wilson Mosher in John King's farmhouse; David Nolan on his farm known as the Isaac Judge place; Chas. Mosher will occupy Allen Landon's new house and work for Mr. Landon this season.

Mrs. Eliza Sprague suffered a slight shock one day last week.

Edwin King who has been sick for a few days is much better.

Mrs. Andrew Allen is able to be out after being confined to the house for seven weeks.

To rent—part of the Merritt house for small family. Inquire of Nellie Judge on the premises.

East Venice.

FEB. 28.—Frank Young has been very busy the past week, moving and caring for a sick horse.

Mrs. George Freece is on the sick list. We are glad to hear that D. C. Mosher is slowly improving after his sickness.

There will be a Farmers' Institute at the hall here next Friday the 9th. A general invitation is extended. A program will be conducted as follows: 10:30 a. m.—Address of welcome by Rev. W. A. Pugsley; Response by the conductor; Discussion, Establishing a herd of thoroughbred cattle, Henry VanDreser of Cobleskill. 2 p. m.—Question box; Discussion, How the mortgage is lifted, Elisha Cook of Poplar Ridge; Food and care of dairy cows, F. A. Converse, Woodville. 7 p. m.—Question box; Poultry in connection with dairying, Joseph Titus; The modern farmer, Mr. Converse.

Mrs. D. R. Kimball has returned from a visit in Wayne county.

The party at R. Doty's on Friday evening was a success, about seventy guests being present although the weather and roads were bad. Only those who have attended such a gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doty know how to appreciate their friendly and royal mode of entertaining.

The remains of Wm. H. Young of Moravia were brought here for interment today. The remains of Henry Taylor are expected Wednesday. He was formerly a resident here but died in Kansas.

We are very sorry to lose Mr. Sullivan from our community. Those who have known him long will appreciate the loss of such a man, but he is going among people who will recognize and appreciate his sterling business principles and genial address.

Belltown.

FEB. 28.—Miss Ida Bradt of Groton and Miss Ella Mitchell of Moravia are guests of Miss Ruby Davis.

Mrs. Franc Carpenter who has been spending the winter with her daughter at Indianola, Ia., has returned to her home.

Charles Mosher and wife entertained a large company of friends at their home last Thursday evening.

Fred Tuttle and wife of Genoa were guests of his parents over Sunday.

Walter Young and wife of Groton visited friends in this vicinity recently.

Jesse French was in Ithaca one day last week.

Remarkable Cures.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with remarkable results each time. First with rheumatism in the shoulder, which was relieved by two applications of pain balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, rheumatism in the thigh, almost prostrating him with pain, was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment at night and getting up free from pain. [From the

Funeral Reporting

Extraordinary. Here are a few extracts from some recent reports:

"The remains were attired in a black shroud, covered with an eiderdown blanket, and reposed in a satin lined, black cloth covered casket, with silver trimmings and plate bearing the inscription: 'At Rest.'" "The remains were attired in a cream shroud, covered with an eiderdown blanket, and reposed in a satin lined, white embossed plush covered casket, with silver trimmings and plate." "The remains were attired in a black suit with patent leather slippers and buttonhole bouquet, covered with an eiderdown blanket, and reposed in an ash of rose embossed plush covered casket with honeycomb lining, heavy silver trimmings and plate bearing the inscription: 'Rest in Peace.'" "The remains were attired in a blue dress and rested in a white casket." In addition to such interesting and valuable information the name of the "funeral director" is always given, and the reader is told that the "floral tributes were composed of" a cross of artificial flowers with inscription: 'Our Charlie,' from the nurses of the hospital and bouquet: 'Aunt Katie,' etc.

Those who have never witnessed a bicycle race or one made by an expert "against time" have little notion of what a motor cycle is like for the tremendous speed it attains. The machine used for pacing racers is driven by steam, and although there are two riders, they do nothing but steer. The steam is generated from vaporized gasoline. Six gallons of raw gasoline are carried in a tank in the rear of the steersman. Counterbalancing this tank is one carrying 60 pounds of compressed air to force the gasoline into use. This fuel is vaporized by heat, and is then forced under the boiler, where it is ignited by 100 jets of flame that pass in and around 300 or more small copper tubes in which the steam is made. The water, which is carried in a tank under the steersman, can be pumped out of this tank or back again. The gasoline flow is controlled by an ingenious device, and the speed of the machine is easily regulated by the engineer on the rear seat. The rear wheel revolves once at every piston stroke, and 2,700 revolutions of the driving wheel per minute are guaranteed by the makers of the machine. The horse power is calculated at 4½, and the stroke of the piston is five inches.

Among recent incorporations in New York is an International Sunshine society, whose creed is mutual helpfulness and acceptance of the law that all things work together for good. One of its favorite quotations is from Sydney Smith: "If it be my lot to crawl, I will crawl contentedly; if to fly, I will fly with alacrity; but as long as I can avoid it, I will never be unhappy." The new society will embrace some practical features, including the distribution of good literature.

The Chlicqthe (Mo.) street car drivers are very accommodating. When a housewife anywhere along the line wants some groceries she hails a car, gives her order to the driver, and on his return he delivers the goods. One rainy night recently a driver had a call to take a woman to the theater. She lived three blocks from the line. The gallant fellow got an umbrella, walked to the woman's house, escorted her to the car and then started down town.

PRISONER ON THRONE

The Queer Plight of the Emperor of China.

Kwang-Hsu the Mere Puppet of His Sharp and Shrewd Aunt, Tia-An, the Dowager Empress.

A year has passed since the reins of government in China were wrested from the weak hands of Kwang-Hsu by his aunt and adopted mother, Tia-An. This momentous event meant at the same time the end of reforms which have been inaugurated by the youthful emperor, or rather by Li Hung Chang, the viceroy, who has not inaptly been termed the Chinese Bismarck.

If the relations of China to foreign powers were still as loose as they were only 40 years ago, the coup d'etat undoubtedly would have ended with the assassination of Kwang-Hsu, but now even China has to respect and to fear "public opinion," at least as far as it finds expression in international politics. It probably was only this fear of an intervention, or even of a protest, by the powers having "spheres of interest" in China that prevented the ruling powers in China from employing the means which otherwise are, as a matter of course, the finale of palace revolutions in oriental countries.

It may also be possible that the loving aunt and dowager empress was of the opinion that no artificial means were necessary to expedite the departure of the sickly nephew to the seventh heaven of the disciples of Confucius. The health of the descendant of the robust Manchu chiefs, who bears every sign of the decadence of the dynasty, has always been extremely precarious. He is physically quite undeveloped, scarcely five feet in height, and makes, though he is nearly 30 years old, the impression of a weakly boy of 15 years. The quivering lower lip gives him an pathetic expression, somewhat softened by the melancholic but shrewdly looking eyes. Like his adoptive mother, Kwang-Hsu has a Roman nose—for a descendant of Manchu an unusual feature.

It is true that all sacrificial rites and other ritual acts, which, otherwise, according to custom, are celebrated by the emperor in person, as head of the Chinese theocracy, are performed by deputy. But this may be done for the sake of economy as well as for the emperor's health, because a sacrificial festival at which a functionary officiates does not cost nearly as much as if the "Son of Heaven" appeared in person, and, on the other hand, the fear is removed that Kwang-Hsu may use his absence from the palace as an opportunity for flight.

Soon after his oppression on September 21 of last year the emperor attempted flight, as is now known, for the purpose of seeking the protection of the British embassy. But this scheme was betrayed and frustrated. While the Chinese ambassador in England declared that the most cordial relations existed between aunt and nephew, the latter was imprisoned upon a small island in a little lake within the palace grounds. The stone bridge which connected this island with the extensive gardens was destroyed, and a board of contrivance was provided which is only put in place when a eunuch brings the meals for the "Son of Heaven," or when the legal ruler of over 400,000,000 of people is taken away in a litter to participate as a silent figure in some council of state, where the edicts are framed which declare his best friends to be traitors or denounce his reformatory decrees and recall them.

Gradually the dethroned ruler seemed to become reconciled to his fate, and he was given quarters in the palace in the center of Peking, near the rooms used by the dowager empress. He still lives there under the closest surveillance. When the women of the foreign embassies in Peking were received by the dowager empress last month Kwang-Hsu was present as a silent spectator. He occupied a seat of state, which was placed a little lower than that of his aunt, and as the seven women were presented he shook the hand of each, smiling awkwardly.

During the present year the emperor has repeatedly received foreign ministers without the presence of the dowager empress, scarcely saying a word, while before the coup d'etat he used to speak quite freely in a thin, boyish voice. It is said that in the councils of state he never says anything and that he declines to participate in any of the business transacted. If this is done out of spite it would appear as if his resigned attitude is only simulated.

Quite recently the rumor gained circulation that the emperor made another attempt at escape in having himself wrapped in blankets and carried from the palace by eunuchs who are devoted to him, or rather were devoted, because they were later bastinadoed to death. It is also said that through the medium of the Japanese ambassador in Peking he has prayed assistance from the emperor of Japan. What truth there is in these rumors is hard to say, but the existence of them leads to the conclusion that the young emperor is by no means reconciled to his fate.

However, aid must come, if at all, from the outside, for it is certain that Kwang-Hsu has not the requisite energy to help himself. He cannot count upon delivery by personal followers in China, for loyalty and self-sacrificing devotion are flowers which do not thrive in the atmosphere of the Chinese imperial court. — Chicago Tribune.

She delights in old-fashioned flowers, and in her garden they are allowed to grow in wildest luxuriance, making the place a perfect dream of beauty. Egan stoutly protested his innocence to the last.

HORTICULTURE

HILL SITE ORCHARDS.

An Interesting Subject Interestingly Discussed by a Successful Fruit Grower.

The majority of old orchards in Illinois were planted on hill sites and the varieties were mostly sweet or very sour sorts, seedlings being about as numerous as budded or grafted stock. Of the named varieties of apples, Rambo, Pippin, Bellflower, Milam and Talman Sweet were perhaps the most common. As a rule these early orchards were planted for family use only and were given but little attention, being used for pasture for hogs, sheep and other stock. With such indifferent treatment very large crops of fruit were seldom produced, and the trees were not drained of their vitality. The big Minkler shown in the engrafting is growing upon a steep north hillside—slant fully half-pitch—in a hill orchard owned by Mr. J. H. Loy, in Effingham county. It is six feet in circumference, 35 years old and is estimated to have produced $150 worth of apples. The orchard has a northern and southern slope, with a ridge wide enough for one row of trees. Originally there were about 300 trees, consisting of 15 or 20 sorts. The trees were planted 35 years ago and most of that time the orchard has been pastured. At this time not more than 50 trees remain, the majority of which are in rapid decadence. The 25 Ben Davis trees were the first to die, and the Jennettings and Minklers are the best preserved of those surviving. Nearly all the trees living in this old orchard are on the north hillside and they are best where the slant is steepest. So far as can be determined from a study of the old trees remaining in this orchard, decay and decline are traceable in nearly every instance to cutting out large limbs, splitting down at forks and injury at base from borers, sunscald or other causes unknown. It appears that trees which made a low or branching top and bore only moderate crops of fruit were longest-lived. Peach trees, mostly seedlings, were planted in this orchard, between the apple trees after the latter were in full bearing, but were short-lived and not very productive, which I think was rather owing to the fact that they were in sod than from any other cause. It is worthy of note in the study of this orchard that the trees were longest-lived that were on the sides and at the base of the hill.

My studies of this and many other old orchards on hill sites seem to warrant the following conclusions: That trees planted on hill sites will come into bearing earlier and will produce heavier crops of fruit than on level site than a south hillside; that an orchard on a hill site will be shorter-lived than on a level site; that the longevity and fruitfulness of an orchard on a hill site would be greatly increased by sub-soiling and clean cultivation, as such orchards suffer greatly from lack of moisture; that only such varieties as are not given to overbearing should be planted on hill sites if longevity is desired in the orchard; that a hill or orchard ought to be benched, which may be done by plowing at a right angle to the slope and breaking the soil on the lower side of the trees, as shown in our illustration.—A. D. McCallen, in American Agriculturist.

HORTICULTURAL HINTS.

The best time to prune the peach is early in the spring.

Horses or cattle should never be pastured in the orchard.

Unleached ashes are the best fertilizer for all stone fruits.

Clear lime water is the best for destroying worms in pots and in fern cases.

One of the best things to keep rabbits away from trees is a mixture of coppers and glue.

After raspberries have grown two or three crops it pays to apply a little manure around them.

As a general rule, after the orchard comes into full bearing, it is best to let it have the benefit of the whole ground; clover, however, may be grown.

The compact form of growth of the currant adopts it to close garden quarters, while its ability to thrive in a partial shade is greatly in its favor.—St. Louis Republic.

DEMOCRAT IN DERBY

American Horse May Win the Great English Race.

Horsemen and Lovers of Sport in This Country Hope That the Yankee Gelding May Be Allowed to Run.

Democrat, the horse who by long odds is the American favorite for the coming English Derby, is certainly one of the most promising youngsters that have yet been entered for the classic turf event. Not only has he already had a sensational career, having been generally recognized as the best two-year-old of last year, but to-day there are many good English sporting men who believe that he stands as good a chance as Forfarshire, the other favorite, to carry off the honors in the blue ribbon events of the English racing world.

An examination of the record of Democrat's performances last year, says the Chicago Democrat, will prove beyond dispute that he was clearly entitled to the credit of being regarded as one of the best, if not the very best, two-year-olds of 1899. Those who have followed his work know that he was not himself in the early part of the season. As the result, he made but an ordinary appearance at his first three starts—whereas, later in the season he easily defeated such horses as Emerson and O'Donovan Rossa, all of whom had bested him at the earlier events.

In fact, it was actually not until the Ascot meeting that Democrat began to be himself, but at the Coventry stakes he commenced that series of victories that was broken only once before the close of the season, this occasion being his defeat by Forfarshire. Among his great victories were the Hurst Park Foal plates at six furlongs, the National Breeders' stakes at five furlongs, the Champagne stakes at five furlongs and 152 yards, the Rous memorial at five furlongs, the Middle Park plate at six furlongs and the Dewhurst plate at seven furlongs. In these events the least weight carried by him was 124 pounds, while the highest was 130 pounds.

As has already been stated, Forfar beat Democrat in the Imperia stakes at six furlongs, winning closely by less than a head. On this occasion Forfarshire had the advantage in weight and Democrat was otherwise handicapped by being ridden by Sloan just after he had had a bad fall. As the result, he was unable to do his mount justice, and the American gelding was defeated. At the National Breeders' Produce stakes, however, Democrat defeated Forfarshire easily although the latter was given an ad-

Naturally, under such circumstances, the friends of the American claimant have full confidence in his ability to win against Forfarshire, and it is quite generally believed that he will win the Derby until he is debarred from the event on the ground that he is a gelding.

It is believed, however, that the English Jockey club will not take this means to prevent him from running, as they have already permitted him to appear in the Champagne stakes, an event that is run under exactly similar conditions.

It is held that if the club desires to prevent the Derby being won by a gelding, a rule should first be passed prohibiting the entering or passing of a gelding for the Derby or any other classic event, but that, until such a regulation is adopted, the entrance of Democrat or of any other gelding ought to be regarded as valid.

At no time have the American racing men taken as much interest in the Derby as they have shown this year for to them Democrat is an American horse, and a victory on his part will be a victory for the American breeder. As to the breeding of this little horse from an American point of view none could be better, although some English critics insist on the opinion that the sons of Sensation have more speed than stamina. To horsemen on this side of the water such an opinion seems very strange and there is no doubt that the history of the modern turf offers many arguments against such a belief.

Both Acrobat and Hunter's Lexington, full brothers to Sensation's dam were stayers of the best type. Moreover, Democrat, as a son of Sensation traces back to the Pantaloon and Whalebone families as well as the Glencoe, Sir Archy and Diomed. Through Equality, by Rayon d'Or, Democrat carries the richest and most fashionable blood in the English stud book, having a double cross of Glencoe, a triple cross of Diomed and a double cross of Touchstone fortified by the blood of Whalebone.

THE total number of deaths from disease in the British army since hostilities began is reported as 13 officers and 653 men, and the total number sent home sick as 54 officers and 1,628 men. That is quite a favorable comparison with our own record of more than 5,000 soldiers dead from disease since the Spanish war. However, the rainy season in South Africa will soon begin, and the Britons will have to supplement their figures.

The Situation in Africa.

After a suspense of ten days the expected has happened, and the daily papers of Tuesday chronicled the unconditional surrender of the Boer General Cronje and his little army of 3,500 men to the superior force under Generals Roberts and Kitchener of 35,000 men. However severe this blow may be to the Boers, the British can derive but little benefit from it, because the larger part of the Boer army with the artillery is forming a new line of defense even stronger than the first, and Roberts has the job to do again. The army under Buller at Ladysmith seems to be making little or no headway toward relieving that besieged town, and the end of the war, to say the least, is not yet in sight.

An Evening of Pleasure.

The celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koon was a delightful affair which occurred on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, 1900, at Sherwood, where they have resided all these years and where they are numbered among the most respected residents. The reception was one of the most successful and elaborate ever given in Sherwood and the attendance hardly fell short of the one hundred invitations issued. Supper was served in four courses and was in keeping with the other admirable arrangements for the entertainment of the guests. Mr. Herman Brehm added to the pleasure of the evening with many selections on his gramophone. There were many beautiful presents, consisting of solid silver, cut glass, U. S. coins, china and linen. A number of out-of-town guests were present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brehm of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. George of Seneca Falls, Mr. David Hutchinson of Auburn and Mrs. Stringham of Union Springs. All present enjoyed themselves in a right royal manner, and carried away with them the most pleasant remembrances of the occasion, while the few who had sent regrets, sincere as was their disappointment, did not realize the pleasure they were denied by other engagements. As the clock recorded the hour of midnight, the guests began to depart and handshaking and well wishes for the future were exchanged, all hoping that the host and hostess might live to enjoy another anniversary at the end of the next twenty-five years. Southern Pines, N. C.

THE CITY IN THE SOUTH, BUILT BY NEW ENGLANDERS.

Southern Pines is located on the highest known sand hill in the country. The sand is fragments from pure clear crystal quartz. It is not the dusty sand that is usually found in Florida and points South. On account of the purity of the sand, the largest experiment farm in the United States has been established at this point. The experiments being made are the testing of fertilizers, in regard to showing the value of different fertilizing materials. The experiments carried on in this line are much more extensive than those at Washington, by the United States government. Agriculturists from this country and Europe are making trips to Southern Pines studying different lines of experiments that are being made. The German Kali Works have contributed largely to the maintenance of the experimental work. The great Seaboard Air Line system of railroad that runs through the most prosperous part of the South is largely interested in this line of experiments. The railroad is doing more for the improvement of the condition of farmers along its line than any other railroad in the United States, and as a result, farmers from all over the country, especially in the Northern States, are buying lands and locating on the Seaboard Air Line system and have bought more than fifty thousand acres in the vicinity of Southern Pines. Special rates are given through the Old Dominion Steamship Company's line and thence over the S. A. L., for parties coming to that territory to prospect for settling. The Seaboard Air Line has its Northern headquarters at 371 Broadway New York. Chief Industrial agent of the S. A. L., Mr. John T. Patrick, with headquarters at Pinebluff, N. C., gives information to those desiring to investigate.

will be at the Goodrich house, Moravia, Tuesday, March 6, and at the Clinton house, Ithaca, Saturday the 3rd. His hours are 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. The doctor is a specialist in every sense of the word and is having great success in his line. Examinations free and private.

George Wait of South Gardiner, Me., says: "I have had the worst cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough remedy is the only thing that did me any good. I have used one bottle and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the makers of an honest medicine." Sold by J. S. Banker.

Homes Wanted.

FAMILIES, both Catholic and Protestant, willing to offer a good home to a friendless boy or girl of any age from infancy to 10 years, and who will receive the child as a member of the family and give it such care and training as will fit it for a life of self-support and usefulness, are invited to correspond with State Charities Aid Association, 105 East 22d St., New York City.

Southern Pines, N. C., is a newly established village on the Seaboard Air Line. Hundreds of northern people go there every winter and all seem pleased at the good climate and the enterprise manifested on every hand. Piney Woods Inn, an elegant new hotel, offers splendid accommodations at very moderate rates and as a natural result is always crowded. You can buy excursion tickets to Southern Pines so the fare costs but little, but it is always best to write ahead for accommodations at Piney Woods Inn.

—The Farmer Review appeared last week in a handsome new dress of type which greatly improves the already attractive appearance of that paper.

—Snow 18 inches deep was a surprise to the villagers when they looked out Thursday morning, and many used a shovel for the first time this winter.

—The reorganization of the band is being agitated, and the idea seems to be favored by the majority. To start right there should be a conference of gent that they meet at this office on Tuesday evening next at 7 o'clock.

—Farmers say the hay crop will be light next season on account of the absence of snow this winter.

—Social party at Kendall House hall, King Ferry, next Wednesday evening. A pleasant time assured all who attend.

—Mrs. G. W. Davis has an announcement in another column. She would be pleased to have the ladies call and inspect her new goods.

—Marricd, at the Baptist parsonage, Moravia, Feb. 21, 1900, by Rev. C. G. Langford, Ernest M. Denson and Mary Fawcett, both of Genoa.

—New cuts for auction bills have just been received at this office. We will keep at the head of the procession in the matter of auction posters.

—The following good advice from an exchange is worthy of consideration: "The more a man or woman knows, the less he or she gossips about neighbors. Culture kills gab."

—Charles Foster purchased the Bernet Riley place, sold by foreclosure Wednesday, for $650. It will make Mr. Foster a good home, and we are glad to extend to them a cordial welcome to the village.

—A man's home paper is worth more to him than any other because it gives him more facts and local news, besides always working for the best interests of the home community. When you subscribe for your home paper and pay for it you increase the editor's ability to work for the development of your own community.—Press and Printer.

—Photographer Hankey is doing an excellent business, having booked more orders since the holidays than before. His work is certainly a credit to this village, and he should be encouraged both directly and indirectly to remain here permanently. His new display photos show the handiwork of the artist.

—On Wednesday at 2 o'clock a man telephoned from Wyckoff Station to THE TRIBUNE that he wanted 50 large auction bills and would start to drive here for them immediately. The bills were ready for him at 4 o'clock, and he was well pleased with the work and with our capacity for hustling out auction bills. As has before been said, this is the place to get printing of any kind and every kind. Auction bills printed while you do a little trading at the stores.

—John Huson, the oldest resident of this town and vicinity, died at the home of his son on Saturday, Feb. 17, 1900, aged 94 years. His remarkable vitality and good health have been noted by many, and he has been an active, industrious man until within the past two years. He was the victim of no disease, and died simply because old age was too feeble to battle with death. Two children survive, Mrs. C. D. Strong and Wm. Huson, who cared for him during his final illness.

—Rev. G. A. Kratzer of Middleport, N. Y., at one time a student at the Genoa academy and a resident of the town of Venice, has been appointed secretary of a permanent commission of six to prepare a new series of graded Sunday-school lessons for the Universalist denomination. Mr. Kratzer is also one of the editors of the Sunday-school Helper, the Universalist Sunday-school magazine, and he has been for some time president of the Western New York Universalist Sunday-school Association.

—Wind and cold did not interfere with a most pleasant occasion last Friday evening, when nearly seventy invited guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Doty near East Venice. Various games and amusements occupied the early evening, after which refreshments were served in a pleasing and original manner. The gentlemen then repaired to the kitchen and opened a box of fragrant cigars while the ladies had a song, and when the friends parted in the early morning, each voted the host and hostess model entertainers.

The "Venice Center museum" as some one has termed the unique collection of rare and beautiful things brought from foreign lands by Fay P. Fell, contains articles found in but few museums. They must be seen to be fully appreciated. One would think two voyages around this world quite sufficient to satisfy the most ambitious traveler. His many friends hope he will decide to remain here.

Those who listened to Elmer Fell's service on Sabbath last need no description from us. It is very evident that the time spent at Moody's training institute has been improved. We regret that time did not allow him to remain here longer, and give a series of Biblical teachings from charts of his own ingenious construction. The minister in charge called him a "sub-soiler."

A FAT MAN'S DINNER.

BY KENNETH F. HARRIS.

HE was a large man, with intensely red whiskers, although his whiskers had nothing to do with the way in which he conducted himself. He was so large that his hand would hardly go into the cracker bowl that the waitress in the stockyard restaurant had placed within his reach, and it was a rather large-sized bowl at that.

As a matter of fact, the management had not contemplated the insertion of fists in its cracker bowls; that was perhaps the reason why the waitress looked at the man on the other side of the table with a slight elevation of her eyebrows and then smiled, but her lips and turned her head away as the man responded with a swift wink. The extremely large man, oblivious of this, withdrew his bulging fist from the bowl, poised it over his soup, and allowed the crushed crackers to fall therein.

Then he stirred them until they had become a soft, spongy mass that filled the bowl to its utmost capacity. Had there been any room left for more crackers, the fat man might not have been satisfied, but there wasn't.

"Shall I bring you some more?" queried the waitress, with gentle sarcasm.

"You needn't mind," said the big man, stirring his soup and crackers into a wash, and reaching for the pepper across the plate of the man at his side. "What have you got to eat?"

"Spareribs o' beef an' brown potatoes, roast veal with dressing, boiled pork an' dumplings an' beefsteak pudding," replied the girl, nasally and monotonously.

The big man conveyed a spoonful of soup to his mouth with a bubbling noise and seemed to reflect. Then he said: "I'll take some ribs o' beef and veal, well done, and you might bring me a little of the boiled pork and dumplings and a piece of the beefsteak pudding."

He would probably have gone on with the list of his wants had there been anything more to add, but he had gone through the entire menu and had to be satisfied from force of circumstances, but just the same he did not look satisfied, and his manner intimated that he thought it a shame that more should not be offered him.

"We only serve two kinds of meat with an order," said the girl.

"Bring me the spareribs and boiled pork, then," said the big man. "It seems 's if a man ought to get what he wants to eat when he pays his money."

The girl hurried away to the kitchen and the large man devoted himself to his soup. At the third spoonful the man by his side, who had twice shuddered, got up and went away. He spoke a minute or two to the cashier as he paid his check, and the cashier seemed to try to conciliate him.

When the man with the red beard had finished his soup he looked hungrily around and asked the man opposite to pass him the bread. He toyed with two or three slices, which he spread thickly with horseradish, and the plate was empty when the waitress came back bearing aloft a trayful of dinner.

It is possible that the girl regretted her limitation of the variety of meat and exerted her influence with the cook to secure the largest possible portions of the order she permitted. The brown and oleaginous spareribs were spare in name only, having the appearance of a family joint, and the potatoes were proportionately numerous; the boiled pork, flanked by its pale, steaming dumplings, was in thick slices of more than generous dimensions, and whatever spaces there might have been on the tray were filled with side dishes of lima beans, tomatoes and corn bread. If, however, the waitress expected that the big man would weaken before the emergency, she was mistaken.

He went at it systematically, carving great wedges of meat and thrusting them into his mouth without interrupting for an instant the regular swing and champ of his jaws, except when he stopped to flush his alimentary canal with copious draughts of water. The beef was soon reduced to a few clinging shreds about the bone, and of the potatoes not a vestige remained. The dumplings vanished like things of absolutely no substance; the pork was not a circumstance, and the tomatoes and beans hardly worth mentioning, so little resistance did they afford. The big man's face grew red with the exertion of eating, and his eyes bulged, but he persevered until everything was eaten.

Then he asked for pie.

The girl ran over the lists of desserts, including apple pie, pumpkin pie, mince pie, canned pears and rice pudding.

He said he didn't care for the canned pears but would take the other things, and when the girl informed him that he was limited to two kinds of desert he looked hurt and told her to bring him pumpkins and mince pie.

The man who was sitting opposite had finished his meal some time before and was looking with an expression of mild curiosity at the ravenous diner. The large man bore his scrutiny remarkably well, but nevertheless seemed a trifle uneasy.

At last the pie was finished and the large man grunted in a satisfied sort of way, pushed his chair back and walking over to the cashier's desk threw down a quarter and turned to go. The cashier rapped smartly on her desk with the coin and the big man turned round again.

"Ten cents more, please," said the cashier. "I gave you a quarter," said the big man, aggressively.

"I know you did," said the cashier. "The regular meal is 35, though."

The man who had been sitting opposite lounged up and leaned his arm on the cashier's desk, while he looked at the protesting diner.

"I thought this was a 25 cent place," said the burly person. "I've eat better dinners for 25 cents."

To this the cashier deigned no reply, but beckoning to the waitress asked her to "fetch Mr. Meisner," at which the big man fumbled reluctantly in his pocket and produced the required ten cents, and the cashier said: "Never mind now, Labbie."

The big man turned again to go out, but this time it was the other man who recalled him.

"Mister!" said the other man.

AIMEE'S ONE FAILURE

BY KENNETH F. HARRIS.

"I know a joint where they claim to give you all you want to eat for ten cents."

"You had better go there," retorted the big man. "You look as if it would do you good to board at a place like that regularly."

"You don't need to get mad," said the other. "I was just giving you a tip because you seemed to be a stranger around here."

"I guess I can find my way about."

"I'll give you another. Don't go near Armour's—that's just across the railroad track—keep away from them to-day."

"What do I want to keep away from them to-day for?" asked the big man, unguardedly.

"They're killing hogs," said the other man, calmly.—Chicago Daily Record.

Brought About a Struggle

Pat Men Even Could Not Agree as to Their Value—Ten Years Senate and House Wrangled Over the Matter.

(Special Washington Letter.)

THE pictures of the capitol building which show the east front are published broadcast so that everybody in the land has a good idea of the appearance of the palatial structure. There are three entrances to the capitol, by broad staircases, but they are seldom used.

The senate and house entrances have beautiful white marble steps, but the rotunda entrance is approached by old red sandstone steps. Beneath these stairways are wide driveways, and they are used by senators and representatives because there are basement entrances which lead to elevators. Therefore the beautiful stairways are seldom used. Without them, however, the symmetry of the building would be destroyed.

Strangers in Washington usually mount the stairs from the outside, for they would never think of going through the dark driveways beneath. Readers of this paper, when they come to the national capitol, will know that it is better and easier to go in beneath the stairs where they will find broad doors entering wide halls. At each door a capitol policeman will be found, and also authorized guides, who will show the way to the elevators, so that they may go to the main floor without the toil and fatigue of stair climbing; for it is tiresome, particularly to ladies, to go upstairs, even at home. If it had been left to women to invent stairs they would never have been invented.

There are six elevators in the capitol; two in the house wing, one in the rotunda and three in the senate wing. Three of the elevators are set aside for the exclusive use of dignitaries, and three are for all people to use. The two elevators in the house wing are open to all comers. This is because the house is composed of direct representatives of the people, and it would not be wise for them to be exclusive. Some of their people might come on was chairman of the house committee on appropriations, and he possessed power sufficient to block all appropriations which did not meet with his approval. He declared that "representatives who were too lazy to walk upstairs ought not to be in congress," and he would "not consent to have the people's money wasted in that manner."

However, just about 20 years ago, when another man had the chairmanship of the committee on appropriations, an agreement was reached whereby appropriations were made for two elevators; one for the senate and one for the house of representatives. That was the beginning. Four others have since been added, and it is expected that two more will be added during the present year, one for the senate and one for the house of representatives. Nobody now objects, because everybody concedes that elevators are a public necessity, and that two more will be required for the accommodation of the general public.

In the Forty-sixth congress when the first appropriations were made, and in several preceding congresses, there were two fat men in congress who took opposite sides of the question of appropriations for elevators. Gustave Schleicher, of Texas, was a tall man and very large. He advocated elevators because it was so hard for him to climb the long stairways. Philetus Sawyer was a senator from Wisconsin. He was not very tall, but he was so fat that he fairly waddled when he walked. He said that he would rather climb the stairs for exercise than to vote an appropriation for his own convenience. Both of these gentlemen were very popular, and both of them had adherents, and the debate about elevators went on as though the fate of the nation depended upon the settlement of the question. After elevators were placed in the capitol, however, Senator Sawyer admitted that they were fine modern conveniences, and he gave up the exercise of climbing the stairs.

Gustave Schleicher, of Texas, was born in Germany and spoke with a pronounced foreign accent. One of his strongest supporters was Robert Klotz, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, who spoke excellent English. Schleicher did most of his work by moving about among the members talking privately to them in favor of elevators, but Klotz made a number of telling speeches in favor of the project.

Speaking of elevators in the capitol for the comfort and convenience of statesmen and of visitors, it is appropriate to say in this connection that, although the stairs on the east front of the capitol are long and cause weariness to those who use them, the stairs on the west front are much longer and harder to climb. The greater part of Washington is built west of the capitol, and all of the best hotels are west of the building. Therefore visitors usually approach the capitol from that side. Thousands annually get off of the street cars at the foot of Capitol Hill and climb those stairs. They should not do so. They should remain in the cars, for they go around the capitol grounds and up the hill. Therefore, no citizen is allowed to use that corridor or elevator who comes there alone. No exception to this rule is ever made.

Two of these elevators have steam power, and four of them are run by electricity. The two elevators in the house wing are of old style and they move very slowly. The supreme court elevator and the three in the senate wing have electric power, and they move very swiftly. Many people individually use the elevators a number of times each day. Consequently the aggregate number carried amounts to several thousand daily. They are almost always crowded when the senate and house of representatives are in session.

It may seem singular now to state that the congress debated the subject of elevators for ten years before making appropriations for them, although elevators were used in all large buildings in the principal cities. In 1876, when your correspondent first visited this city, there was no elevator in the marble building, but the subject of making appropriations for that purpose was under consideration. Year after year efforts were made to secure appropriations for this purpose, but they were thwarted by the alleged "economists," the principal objector being William S. Holman, of Indiana, who was called "the watchdog of the treasury." At that time Mr. Holman by remaining in the cars you can be carried up the hill, and alight on the level plaza of the east front. Then, by walking to the senate or house wing, entering the driveways beneath the marble staircases, you can easily find one of the elevators already described and reach your destination, the main floor of the building, without exertion or loss of breath.

It is important to particularly remember that when you enter the house wing of the capitol you are at liberty to take either one of the elevators there. But when you enter the senate wing you should ask the policeman or guide to direct you to the public elevator, and thus avoid the embarrassment of going to one of the exclusive elevators and being told that you cannot use it. Some American citizens don't like that sort of thing; but the writer merely sets forth the existing facts, without comment.

MAKING AN ORCHARD.

Best Plan for Beginners is to Select Varieties That Have Been Tried with Success.

As an orchard, especially the apple and pear orchard, will, after it has made good growth and become established, last an ordinary lifetime, if given proper care, the selection of varieties should be made very carefully. To set out and care for an orchard until it comes into bearing requires considerable labor and expense, and to find out after working four or five years to secure good growth that a mistake in the selection of varieties has been made will prove a costly experience.

Of course there is always a chance of being imposed upon by the nurseryman. The farmer may make a good selection and order them, and receive them properly labeled according to his order only to find out that he has been swindled when the trees commence to bear—too late to avoid the loss.

The only safe plan is to buy only from responsible nurserymen, who will not substitute after accepting the order. There are plenty such so that there is not much excuse for buying irresponsible dealers.

The best plan is to select for the principal dependence varieties that already have been tried and proved. There is an abundance of these without risking too much on untried or unknown sorts. Because some traveling agent who is interested in selling some high-sounding variety at a big price recommends them is not a sufficient reason for investing.

Difference in soil and cultivation of growth make a difference in the growth and quality of the fruit, and the only safe guide is to take old and tried varieties for the main crop and then if desired a few trees of fancy sorts of unknown quality may be selected to try.

On the farm plan first to have a full supply all through the year. Then if more is wanted plant good winter varieties that are strong in appearance, as in a market apple appearance, as in a market apple appearance, as in a market apple appearance.—N. J. Shepherd, in Farmer's Voice.

THE SAN JOSE SCALE.

Spraying with Crude Petroleum Has Been Found Effective in Destroying the Pest.

Prof. John H. Smith reports to the association for the advancement of science that he has found spraying with crude petroleum to be a sure method of destroying the San Jose scale. He first tried it on a Duchess pear tree, which was badly infested. In the early part of January, 1898, he painted the tree thoroughly from the tops of the twigs to the ground. Long before spring opened it was easy to see that there was not a living scale remaining on the tree. As it started well in the spring, about a dozen trees were sprayed with a nozzle to cover them as completely as possible. As they had begun to make leaf growth, he found in some cases foliage injured, and when an extra heavy dose of oil was put on the fruit buds were killed. The tree treated in winter not only blossomed and bore well, but it made a rank and vigorous growth, and the foliage had a color that enabled anyone to identify it as far as they could see it. It was as if an application of nitrate of soda had been made around it. This increase in vigor and growth continues up to the present time.

The next winter many trees were treated, including apple, peach, plum and cherry, and by his advice many others tested it, so that probably 2,000 to 3,000 trees were treated that winter. In no case has any tree been injured, and in all cases the scale was destroyed and the tree appeared vigorous and healthy during the summer. In one case where there were three rows of apple trees 30 to 40 years old, the middle row alone was sprayed, and in June it was a sight to behold. The other rows looked sickly by the side of that, and the fruit set full and fair.—The Fruit Grower.

Mortgage, dated this 1st day of April, 1890, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. in Liber 121 of Mortgages, at page 315, and now a record therein. The amount claimed to be due and owing on the above described mortgage, at this time, Dec. 22, 1898, (the date of the first publication of this notice, is Thirty Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-two Dollars and Twenty-five Cents (30,822.25) of principal and One Hundred and Sixty-two Dollars and Eight Cents (162.08) of interest. Default having been made in the payment of the money secured to be paid in and by the above described mortgage, and no suit or proceeding having been brought or had to recover said mortgage debt or any part thereof, notice is hereby given by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and recorded with it, and by virtue of the statute in such case made and provided, that said mortgage above described will be foreclosed by a sale of the real estate and property therein described at public auction at the front door of the Cayuga County Court House in the City of Auburn, Cayuga County, New York, on the 31st day of March, 1900, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day. The real estate is described in said mortgage as follows: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Town of Genoa, County of Cayuga and State of New York, being a part of Lot number Twenty-nine (29) and bounded and described as follows: On the north by the lands of Henry Underwood, (and formerly owned by Ephraim Morgan); on the east by the highway to the north by the lands of Frank Bothwell (and formerly owned by William Lundell); and on the west by the lands of Thomas Armstrong (and formerly owned by David Hotchkiss) containing Fifty acres of land more or less. MATILDA SEXTON, Dated December 22, 1898. Frank M. Leary, Attorney for Mortgagee, 9 and 10 Smith Block, Auburn, N. Y.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS: Default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a certain mortgage dated the second day of December, 1875, and made and executed by John Kinney and Ellen, his wife, of the Town of Genoa, County of Cayuga, and State of New York, mortgagors, to Amos Hurlbutt of the same place, mortgagee, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the Clerk's office of Cayuga County, N. Y., in Liber 92 of Mortgages at page 74 on the 6th day of December, 1875, at 9 o'clock a. m., and whereas, said mortgage was on the 6th day of December, 1878, sold at public auction, by said Hurlbutt to Mary Ann Kinney of the said town of Genoa, N. Y., and which assignment was duly recorded in said Clerk's office of Cayuga County, N. Y., in Liber 3 of Assignments of Mortgages at page 54, on the 15th day of November, 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., and whereas, said mortgage was on the 5th day of April, 1887, sold and duly assigned by the said Mary Ann Kinney (then Colgan) to Amos Main and which assignment was duly recorded in said Clerk's office of Cayuga County, N. Y., in Liber 4 of Assignments of Mortgages at page 265 on the 5th day of April, 1887, at 12 o'clock p. m., and whereas, said mortgage was on the 17th day of February, 1896, sold and duly assigned by the said Main to the said Town of Genoa, N. Y., to J. W. Skinner of the same place who is now the holder and owner thereof, and which last assignment was duly recorded in said Clerk's office of Cayuga County, N. Y., in Liber 9 of Assignments of Mortgages at page 265 on the 8th day of December, 1890, at 11 o'clock a. m., and whereas, the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of One Hundred Forty-two Dollars and sixty cents ($142.60) to wit: $117.78 of principal and $24.82 of interest and which is the total amount claimed to be unpaid upon said mortgage. The whole sum thereby secured and unpaid being due by the terms thereof, and whereas, no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been brought or other proceedings had for the recovery of said sum of money or any part thereof. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and duly recorded therewith as aforesaid and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein and below described at public auction at the front steps of the Genoa postoffice in the town of Genoa, N. Y., on the 28th day of March, 1900, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day. The said premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Town of Genoa aforesaid being part of Lot No. 18 in said town and bounded as follows, viz: Beginning at the southwest corner of said lot, running thence north on the west line thereof twenty-six (26) chains and ninety (90) links to lands formerly belonging to John King, deceased, thence easterly fourteen (14) chains and forty-three (43) links to the center of the old bed of Salmon Creek at a stake six links southwest from an elm tree. Thence southwesterly in the center of the old bed of said Salmon Creek to the place of beginning containing twenty-two acres of land be the same more or less.

It seems likely that France will have a quiet year for its approaching exposition at Paris, the only drawback being the absence of English, who have hitherto figured largely in the gate receipts and hotel bills. Such is the animosity at present in Paris toward the English that Americans, because mistaken for Englishmen, are often insulted in the streets.

It was early in 1840 that the first daguerreotype was taken in this country, and the man who faced the camera on that occasion is still alive. Dr Charles E. West, of Brooklyn, now over 90, was the subject, and he retains the faded plate. He has been a teacher 62 years, and continues to add to his record of 16,000 pupils.

A well-known Jewish business man of Seattle was lately arrested in Tarnopol, Gallacia, Austria, on a charge of buying girls for export from Austria to the United States. He was a naturalized citizen of the United States. Revocation of his citizenship would be a fitting but mild penalty for his un-American act.

A Boston man says that Gen. Grant, after his trip around the world, deliberately paid a visit to Plymouth Rock. It appears that during his trip in foreign lands he was repeatedly asked about Plymouth Rock, and was repeatedly and shamefully compelled to say that he had never seen it.

Women are not cowardly; they are only timid, says a man who claims to have studied carefully the attributes of the gentler sex. While they often display considerable agitation at the sight of a mouse, history abounds with instances of their courage and presence of mind in great emergencies. Why, during the late war with Spain women faced every danger to lead aid to the wounded, and they are now going in large numbers to act as nurses in South Africa in spite of the dangers to be faced.

In regard to plans for beautifying a town the American architect makes the striking remark that it has been shown many times that where suitable places inviting decoration are provided in our cities, "there are plenty of people ready to contribute money for their adornment." The observation covers so much important ground that it deserves careful and permanent consideration.
