EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings
Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

Married, at the Fleming Baptist parsonage on April 23, Jessie Hakes and Melvin Bush, of Lake Ridge.

Arbor day was established in 1889. Since then it is stated that school children have planted 214,571 trees.

A 3-cent coin is to be put in circulation. It is to be of nickel, and have a hole in the center—Chinese fashion.

Editor Beach of the Moravia Register has the sympathy of the fraternity, being a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism.

At Waterloo on Sunday seven bicyclists were arrested for riding on the cinder path without 1900 tags, and it cost them $2 each.

Frank H. Tarbell and A. J. Brink of North Lansing have incorporated the North Lansing Creamery company with a capital stock of $700.

The Moravia base ball fiends are bemoaning the fact that "Bumble" Elger will not catch for the Moravia team this season. Elger has signed with Batavia.

The officers of the Tompkins County Agricultural society have signed a contract with the Buffalo Bill show for its appearance on the fair grounds on Friday, July 6th.

Orlando B. Perishing, a student of Auburn Theological seminary, who accepted the call of the Cato Presbyterian church, will be ordained at Cato, May 15, at 8 p. m.

The Masonic Home at Utica is one of the largest and finest institutions of the kind in the country and at present 250 elderly people find a comfortable home within its walls.

One more liquor tax certificate has been granted by County Treasurer Loughborough. The recipient was Anna M. Stanton, the inn-keeper of Atwater, town of Genoa, and she paid $100.

To satisfy all partisans in Congress why not pass a resolution of sympathy for the Boers, also one for the British, and another one for those Americans who choose to mind their own business.

The war department will present the Schenevus monument association a cannon weighing 3,450 pounds and 20 ten-inch shells, all of which will be properly mounted on the soldiers' lot in the cemetery.

Gardner Mason, a well known farmer living near Kelloggsville, hung himself in the barn on Saturday. He had been in poor health for some time and his mind may have been temporarily unbalanced.

Prinstein, the Syracuse University athlete, now holds the world's record for broad jump, covering the distance of 24 ft. 7 1/4 in., at the annual race meet of University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, Saturday.

C. H. Springer has contracted for the output of the Groton Elgin Creamery. Mr. Springer now handles ten tons of butter each week, the product of this and other creameries controlled by him.—Moravia Republican.

The New York Central railroad has recently commenced to rigidly enforce the law concerning the use of their tracks as a thoroughfare for pedestrians, and the result has been a great number of arrests through the state.

Rochester is the first city in the world in the production of photographic apparatus, in output of seeds, nursery stock and optical instruments. It also has the largest preserving establishment in the world.

Letters of administration were issued to Elizabeth D. Hoff and Mary E. DeShong in the matter of the estate of Henry G. Crise of Ledyard. Bond in the penal sum of $2,000 filed and approved. The estate consists of $1,000 personal property and $3,500 real estate.

Rev. Lewis Halsey, formerly of Farmer, was chosen Rev. and E. Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Arizona, at the last annual convocation.

Walter Grant of Ithaca who secured an appointment to West Point four years ago, graduates from that institution in June. After his course is completed he intends entering the U. S. Cavalry and will probably be detailed to duty in the Philippines.

Reliable reports from Union Springs convey the intelligence that fishing in Carr's cove was never better than it is at present. A day or two ago Isaac Kells caught 302 bullheads with hook and line. Many other anglers have had good luck and thousands of bullheads have been caught in the cove.

J. A. Reed is showing two very old account books found by him in Lansing. They were the property of Abraham Bloom and are dated 1767 and 1788. One is covered with what looks like phosphate sacking and both are as yellow as age can make them. Mr. Reed says he also has one which bears the date of 1765.—Ithaca News.

The Lehigh Valley road is enjoying the heaviest freight traffic this spring in the history of the road. Every locomotive that can turn a wheel has been pressed into service on the main line and more are being turned out at the shops as rapidly as possible. Grain, stock, iron ore and general merchandise make up the bulk of the shipments.

A project is on foot to consolidate the Erie & Central New York railroad running from Cortland to Cincinnatus with the Cortland & Homer electric railroad. If this is done the electric road now running from Cortland to McGraw will be taken up and used in the extension of the other line from Cincinnatus to South Otselic.

An exchange tells of a farmer who has kept sheep for 14 years and has never had them attacked by dogs, while flocks on adjoining farms have been ruined. Six or eight bells of different sizes are worn in his flock. It is said that not a dog in the world has sufficient courage to attack a flock of sheep well supplied with bells.

A lady, carrying a two or three months' old child in her arms, boarded an eastbound car this noon for a trip to the campus. When the conductor asked for her fare, she tendered him a five dollar bill. "Smallest you've got, ma'am?" inquired that official. "I should hope so," was the indignant reply. "I've been married only two years." That conductor is formulating a new form of inquiry as to the size of specie tender.—Ithaca News.

At the recent session of the Masonic grand lodge at New York city, C. W. Mead of Albany was elected grand master, Elbert Crandall of Brooklyn deputy grand master, C. W. Cushman of Buffalo senior grand warden, F. H. Robinson, Hornellsville junior grand warden, Theo. A. Taylor of Brooklyn treasurer, E. L. M. Ehlers of New York treasurer. The grand lodge voted $2,000 to the relief fund of the Ottawa fire sufferers.

Silas Snyder of Cayuga county came to Seneca Falls last week in search of his wife, who, he said, was working for a farmer living north of the village. He was ill and penniless and applied to the police justice for assistance, but upon talking the matter over, he consented to plead guilty to vagrancy and was sent to jail at Waterloo for ten days, where he died Tuesday morning. While talking with the police justice Snyder said that a year ago by the death of an uncle living in the eastern part of this state he had become heir to a farm and a sum of money, which would come into his hands in about six months.—Seneca Falls Reveille.

McDermott's orchestra will play at the rink on Friday evening, May 12.

A Good Law.

Next September a new law goes into effect which prohibits the publication of private letters or documents found on persons or among the effects of persons who are found dead or of those who have met a violent death, except with the consent of the proper authorities.

N. Y. C. &amp; H. R. Excursion.

The annual spring excursion to New York city will be run by the New York Central on Thursday, May 17, at one single fare plus one dollar for the round trip, good on all but the limited trains and good until Tuesday, May 22, returning. May is the best month to visit New York, as you get the outdoor amusements as well as the theatres. See Central tickets for further particulars or write H. Parry, general agent, Buffalo.

The Marsh Case.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that Henry Marsh was struck on the head by his brother James S. Marsh, and that death was caused by the blow. Marsh was immediately arrested and jailed, and after four days' confinement was released on bail in the sum of $3,500. The case will be considered by the grand jury this week and Marsh will doubtless be indicted for murder or manslaughter. Whiskey continues to get in its work.

Beware of a Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by J. S. Banker.

A new law (more than 3,000 were introduced in the last legislature) provides that the board of supervisors shall designate some proper person other than the poormaster, to take charge of the burial of any soldier, sailor or marine who dies without leaving sufficient means to pay the funeral expenses. The friends or relatives may conduct the funeral if they desire, and if unwilling or unable to pay the expenses, the county treasurer shall pay such expenses which shall not exceed $35.

Many business houses throughout the country are putting a stop to cigarette smoking by employes, saying the habit is incompatible with efficient service. Absolute prohibition has been established by some firms. Not only does cigarette smoking affect the brain, but physically disables the system, and the horrible stink of the miserable things is very obnoxious to customers and to other employes who don't use them.

Mr. Merriam, the director of the census, has so far progressed the preparatory work that the taking of the census might have begun on May 1 instead of June 1. For the 52,010 places for enumerators 298,604 applications have been received by supervisors and the latter have thus far sent in 41,146 nominations of which 882 have been rejected and 37 withdrawn. Of the 37,356 enumerators thus far appointed, 939 are women.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my showcase, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by J. S. Banker.

DOBLEY'S KILLING PACE

Revealed When His Wife Used Cook-Book Prescriptions.

"I DON'T know why it is, said Mr. Doble, as he pushed away his un-tasted breakfast, 'but I feel a presentiment that I am going to be ill."

"You never looked better in your life," said Mrs. Doble. "Don't give in to any such idea. It's simply nervousness."

"That's it," said Doble. "My nerves are running away with me. They are at a tension which threatens a sudden collapse. I start at the least sound. I wake with the bells ringing in my ears and feel as though a vise were gripping my head. It's been that way now for three days."

"It's those late suppers of yours," said Mrs. Doble. "You would require the digestion of an ostrich to consume such combinations as you have been addicted to of late."

"Nonsense, Mrs. Doble; my symptoms have nothing about them which indicates that the trouble is a simple one, which might be removed by bicarbonate of soda and seltzer. It's located here, Mrs. Doble." Doble tapped his brow mysteriously.

"Perhaps a headache?" suggested Mrs. Doble.

"No; it's the rush of modern life," said Doble. "It's the pace at which people must live nowadays. We're all in a race—trying to see which of us can push on fastest to the grave!"

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Doble. "I felt sure that the fricasseed crab meat in a chafing dish and the Welsh rabbit you had last night would affect your liver, and now I'm sure of it. Either one alone is bad enough, but when you combine the two—it is simply dreadful!"

"It is not the liver, Mrs. Doble, it is the brain. I have a confused sensation as though the optic nerve had gotten tangled with the spinal cord. Then there is a singing in the ears with a tingling feeling in the temples, and shooting pains in the back of the neck."

"They have an excellent Household Medical Guide in the back of this," she said, as she skimmed over the leaves.

"Have you had dizzy spells and hallucinations, with loss of appetite and a distaste for exertion?" she asked, reading from one of the pages.

"Exactly," said Doble. "I feel as though my head weighed a ton, and when I attempt to walk the effort of placing one foot before the other seems to completely exhaust my vitality. The very thought of taking another step is weakening."

"How about chills with sudden flushes of heat, sallow complexion and a yellowish tinge to the whites of the eyes?" asked Mrs. Doble, anxiously.

"All of those," said Doble. "I tell you, Mrs. Doble, I am threatened with a serious collapse. I have been working too hard."

"You have the grip," said Mrs. Doble, firmly, closing the book, "and you must not think of going downtown today. Simply telephone to the office that you are ill, and take a day of quiet rest at home. I will fix up some remedies that will break up your cold, for really grip is only an exaggerated cold. And the rest will do you good."

"I haven't taken a day's holiday in years," said Doble. "I don't think it would agree with me to stay home. I'd fancy I heard the ticker calling me or imagine the office was on fire, or something."

"Now, you go upstairs and get into a smoking jacket and slippers, and, first of all, I will fix up something that you can eat. I will prepare it myself!" said Mrs. Doble, who had little or no opportunity to put her nursing abilities in evidence owing to her husband's continual good health. She acted as though it were going to be a genuine pleasure to have an invalid on her hands for a day.

An hour later Doble was wrapped in an eiderdown quilt, with a flaxseed poultice on his chest and a wet towel about his head. Mrs. Doble said she had taken his temperature and declared that it was more than a hundred, so she decided that it was better for the invalid not to eat anything.

So a very tempting broiled chicken with currant jelly, buttered toast and tea was taken downstairs before Doble's eyes, although he explained that he had had the first symptoms of real appetite that he had experienced for three days. Then Mrs. Doble made him take a dose of some disagreeable mixture and put a piece of ice on his head. Doble had just become eagerly interested in a new novel when she took it away and said that it would only upset his nerves to read it, and she even removed the newspapers and read him one of Mrs. Heman's poems.

"I am bound that you'll have one day of perfect rest, John," she said. "You have positively alarmed me as to the condition of your health."

"Already I feel much better," said Doble. "I suppose my state of nervousness made me exaggerate the symptoms. Do you know, my dear, I think I should enjoy some toast and tea—and chicken. And perhaps a small piece of steak. I don't know whether it is the ice on my head, but my head has returned."

allow the patient to eat while the fever rages." I might fetch you some milk and lime water if you think you could stand it."

"I have no yearning for it," said Doble, "and my fever has subsided. I have an idea that I shall bring all my strength of will to my aid and go down to the office after all. It makes me feel foolish to sit here done up in this way."

"But your nerves have quieted down—don't you see what a different person you are to the Mr. Doble who complained at the breakfast table this morning? How is the singing in your ears?"

"Never a song," said Doble. "Nothing disturbs the quiet but the dull drip of the ice upon my collar. How long do I have to balance this berg on my head? By the way, Mrs. Doble, I feel sufficiently frapped now, for my own part. But I don't want to interfere with the original recipe. You are sure you have not gotten me mixed up with a dessert?"

"The ice must be renewed at frequent intervals," said Mrs. Doble. "It's the greatest thing in the world for the nerves. I have sent out to get an extra supply."

"And the embalming process that is at present going on over my wish-bone?" asked Doble. "Is there any special time at which it may be removed, or is it one of those perpetual blooms that become part of one's very existence? The freezing of the head and the boiling of the chest simultaneously is a great idea for taking the mind off business troubles. It is impossible for one to worry about the price of gas stock with these two restoratives in operation."

"That's it," said Mrs. Doble. "It's the counter-irritant that cures. I'll venture to say that you have no symptoms of tired feeling at present. You said this morning that you couldn't put one foot before the other."

"I feel now," said Doble, "that if I could shed these various glaciers and volcanoes that you have surrounded me with I could sprint around a cinder path in time to music. About this time, as a rule, I am going out to luncheon when I am downtown. What a terrible thing it would be to be condemned to stay at home doing nothing every day! It would drive me crazy in about 48 hours."

"But, like all New Yorkers, you are fond of talking about the nervous strain caused by the rush we live in, the noise, the elevated cars and all that, when in reality you couldn't live in any other atmosphere or environment."

"They say," said Doble, shifting the ice so that it would melt equally over both sides of his neck, "they say there are microbes in the New York air that are different from the germs that exist in the atmosphere of other cities. I suppose we get accustomed to absorbing these particular ones, and we get to like them. If a New Yorker found himself in a quiet country place with no prospect of getting back to Broadway and the Bowery he would think the roar of the elevated the sweetest music in the world!"

"But he would begin talking about the terrible strain he lived under just as soon as he got back to town."

"It's artificial, but then we are fond of gilding and show in every department. Take our restaurants—and, talking about restaurants, Mrs. Doble, I am of the opinion that I should feel much better if I were allowed the excitement of a few lamb chops just at this moment. I feel a peculiar gnawing—"

"I think you'd better have a fresh poultice," said Mrs. Doble. "You lose the effects of those poultices unless they are changed quite often."

"I won't worry if I lose the effect," said Mr. Doble. "There is something about a poultice that seems somehow humiliating to me. Modern medical authorities laugh at poultices. They say never put a poultice on anything but a barn door—but your little book, 'Helpful Hints for the Kitchen,' advocates them strongly, I see."

"There is nothing like a poultice," said Mrs. Doble.

"No," replied her husband, sadly, "it occupies a niche all by itself; it's a solitaire in the scheme of life. It's a clammy, clinging amalgamation of exclusiveness."

"I can see that you feel better already," said Mrs. Doble. "I can always tell when you begin joking that you are really happy."

"Happiness is a big word," said Doble, adjusting the drip to a point just above his left ear. "I've been happier than I am at this moment, and yet I have been more unhappy! There is a certain repose about the feeling that a piece of ice on the head gives one. Then, the mere fact of having had nothing to eat for a number of hours has a chastening influence that cannot be denied."

"Do you really think you could stand some breakfast?" asked Mrs. Doble. "I am a little bit afraid to go contrary to the directions."

"Mrs. Doble," said that lady's husband, with dignity, "I absolutely refuse to be confused with the methods for cooking which are contained in that useful volume you hold. It may be all right regarding things that are to be set in a cool place and fanned until frozen, and it also gives you ing out red ants, but I am prepared to have some breakfast, and I would like the customary meal of steak, chops and soft-boiled eggs that are served previous to executions of death sentences."

"I don't believe that you are ill at all," said Mrs. Doble.

"I merely complained of nervousness," said Doble, "and I must admit that this quiet, restful morning, in conjunction with the somewhat rigid rules prescribed in the 'Kitchen Hints' has completely restored me to my normal state of health. I am now prepared to shed my various wraps, pillows, poultices and glaciers, to have breakfast and to proceed to my daily toil."

"Oh, you can't go now!" said Mrs. Doble. "I telephoned them that you were very ill. Suppose we go to a matinee?"

"Which is a thought born of an intelligence of marked superiority," said Doble. "Let us get back to our usual gait—the pace may be killing—but we can't get along without our microbes."—N. Y. Sun.

HORTICULTURE

A NEW HORSERADISH.

It Comes to Us from Northern Bohemia and is a Variety Developed by Long Selection.

The United States department of agriculture is about to distribute roots of the famous Maliner horseradish, long grown to great perfection in northern Bohemia. It is a variety developed by long selection, and is distinguished by its unusually sharp flavor, uniform shape and excellent keeping qualities. Its culture is made a great specialty in Kuttentberg, Bohemia, from which place large quantities are exported. The department issues a circular, Circular No. 20, Division of Botany, detailing the method of culture as practiced abroad, which, however, would seem to entail too much hand labor to be acceptable in this country. Cuttings 12 inches long are planted in an oblique position in beds three feet wide, placing the cuttings 18 inches apart along both edges, but alternately, so that they are not opposite each other across the bed. The larger end of the cutting is barely covered with earth, while the lower end lies three or four inches deep. The roots thrown out, consequently, make nearly a right angle with the main stem. Of course very thorough cultivation is given throughout the season, and about the end of June the beds are gone over, each cutting uncovered separately and slightly raised with the hand. All root fibers are rubbed off from the body of the root with a woolen cloth, or if too large, cut off with a sharp knife. The roots emitted from the lower end are not disturbed, as they form the cuttings for next season's use. A little powdered charcoal is dusted over the cut surfaces to prevent decay, and the root is again covered with earth. The soil is well prepared previous to planting, by deep trenching, and the thorough incorporation of well-rotted manure. If the soil is too rich and deep, the beds are sometimes underlaid with a pavement of porous cement, 18 to 20 inches below the surface, which checks the growth of the small roots, and causes them to thicken. Grown in this careful manner the marketable roots are said to be of great uniformity in length and diameter, the average thickness being about 2 1/2 inches at the top and 1 1/2 inch at the small end. It will be interesting to note whether the variety will retain its superiority any considerable time after dissemination in this country, as it is very unlikely that it will receive the painstaking care which has developed its characteristics. Foreign cooks use horseradish much more extensively than is customary with us. They employ it as a prominent ingredient in dressings for boiled meat dishes, as well as in the raw state. Pictures of the roots, much reduced in size, are shown in the cut.

ROOTS OF BOHEMIAN HORSERADISH.

An Effective Insecticide.

The arsenate of lead has been found to be quite as effective as paris green for insects. The farmer can get the materials for this and mix it himself. Get the arsenate of soda 68 per cent. strong and dissolve ten ounces of it in a tank of water. In another tank dissolve either 24 ounces lead acetate or 20 ounces lead nitrate. They are best dissolved by tying up in a bag and suspending in the water. Mix these together, adding water enough to make 150 to 200 gallons of the mixture. This would be effective on nearly all leaf-eating insects, but it might be used much stronger without injury to the foliage. This is the mixture used by the gipsy moth commission for destroying the larvae, and it was also used in the Hudson river valley for the elm leaf beetle and caterpillar with success.—American Cultivator.

How to Plant Watercress.

Sow some watercress around the spring run, its pungent taste makes it a relish and an excellent appetizer in the early spring before anything else green has thought of growing. Sow seed in the bed of a run where water is not over one or two inches deep and does not run too swiftly. Dead grass and roots should first be cleaned out. If the bottom is sandy or gravelly, it will do better than mud. The plant is a good perennial.

and if the location is good and it is cut over carefully the bed will last indefinitely. Spring runs near their sources rapidly freeze over, and in open winters the plants will remain green and grow all winter. Plantings may be easily made with roots taken from another bed.—Grant Davis, in Farm and Home.

Hold on, there, dairymen; don't all of you rush beefward. We will want just as much good, rich milk, cream and butter in the future as we have had in the past.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

System Has Proved a Failure in Many Localities on Account of Excessive Roads.

The farmers of Washington county, Pa., have at last attained their hearts' desire—free rural mail delivery. And at the same time they discover that the system will probably be a failure, owing to the bad condition of the roads in that country. Strange, isn't it, that this discovery was not made before the government acceded to the demands for the mail service? Verily, "What fools these mortals be!" After having listened in stony silence for 25 years to good roads sermons and in the meantime deciding that rural mail service was of more value than good roads, these farmers discover that the road must come first and that rural mail delivery will follow naturally. As it is, they have put the cart before the horse, and as a result the horse backs away.

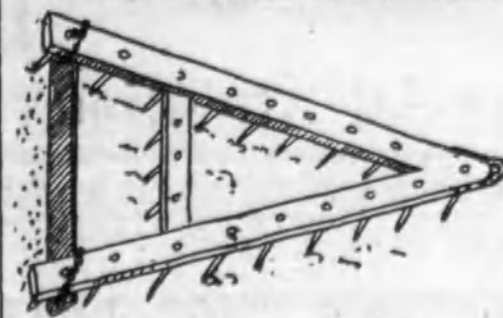

Here was the proposition which these farmers considered: Good roads, which would enable the farmer to haul his products to market at less cost and with greater ease than with the present roads; and, secondly, rural delivery, whose only advantage is the delivery of letters once a day. Suppose that the letter which the rural carrier delivers contains an offer for the farmer's wheat at one dollar per bushel on immediate delivery, and suppose that the roads are in their usual impassable condition; then what? The farmer tears his whiskers and other hirsute adornment and curses the government that allows such roads to be built. He forgets that the building of roads lies within his own power; that if he asserts himself he can procure the finest roads in the world. Instead, he is obliged to lose this chance to sell his wheat at one dollar per bushel, merely because he has accepted rural mail delivery in lieu of good roads. That letter does him no good; it is the immediate delivery of the wheat that counts, and rural mail carriers are not addicted to carrying wheat to the railroad station some miles away. Rural delivery will surely follow good roads, and good roads may possibly follow free rural mail delivery, but let us have the roads first. You cannot send several hundred bushels of wheat by mail, but with good roads you can have the pleasure, the real pleasure, of driving into "town" any day with your wheat and other products and get your own mail, and then you will not feel the need of free rural mail delivery. When you get the good roads, then the boys will want bicycles, and every morning they will be only too glad to ride in for the mail, and the rural mail carriers will only have to draw their breath and their salary, and they will wax fat, and the farmer likewise, and then prosperity will ride through the land in a motor vehicle on good roads.

As at present contemplated, it will require from 70 to 80 carriers to deliver the mail through Washington county once a day. That is, providing the roads are in good enough condition; otherwise the farmers will be lucky to get their mail once a month.—Cleveland Cycling Gazette.

compleish. Insert a narrow plank in front of the rear teeth of an A harrow, and the land will be harrowed, the lumps crushed and the surface leveled at one operation. One can also, by stepping on and off the cross-piece, drag earth from knolls and deposit it in depressions, thus grading the land very nicely.—Farm and Home.

The Railroad Hearing.

Notice has been received that the State Railroad Commissioners will hold a public hearing in Auburn on Tuesday the 22d, at 10 a. m., to consider the proposed New York, Auburn & Lansing railroad, and the people of the towns along the line are urged to attend this hearing, and especially those who are interested as shippers and receivers of freight. The Auburn Bulletin says editorially:

"Now that the State Railroad Commission has appointed a hearing for May 22, to determine whether or not the proposed railroad from Auburn to Genoa is a public convenience and necessity, Auburnians should exert themselves to secure the favorable action of the railroad commissioners. Some time ago when a request was made for a franchise to construct a road from Auburn to Cayuga the opposition of the New York Central was sufficient to secure adverse action on the part of the state commission. By this action an injustice was done Auburn. It is intimated that the application for a franchise for the Genoa road will encounter some opposition. This may or may not prove true, but preparation should be made to meet all adverse testimony. The road to Genoa is very much needed and plenty of arguments can be advanced to convince the railroad commissioners of this fact. Auburnians should be as much interested in the project as are the people of Genoa and others in the territory through which the road will pass. Nothing which will aid in the project should be left undone."

Miss Florence Newman, who has been a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism, says Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only remedy that affords her relief. #### $500 Reward.

To whom it may concern: The undersigned having been authorized by the railroads comprising the Central Passenger Association to act as a joint agent to validate for passage return portions of excursion tickets which will be sold at reduced rates for a number of important conventions to be held in Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other cities at intervals from May 1 to September 30, involving the use of autograph stamps, ticket dating dies, etc., will pay a reward of $500 for information resulting in the arrest and conviction of any person fraudulently using such stamps or dies, or imitations thereof. Orders have been placed for all stamps and dies required by the undersigned or his employees for the purpose above referred to. Therefore any orders which may be received purporting to emanate from the undersigned or his representatives for stamps or dies bearing the name of the Central Passenger Association or of F. C. Donald will be given for the purpose of perpetrating a fraud upon the railway companies.

LIGHTING A STALL.

Many horse stalls are located against the wall of the barn or stable, and, when shut in by high sides, cause the horse's head to be in a very dark place—unhealthy and injurious to the eyes.

HOW TO LIGHT A STALL.

When the horse comes out into the full light, cut a small window above the horse's head and cut off the direct light from it in the manner shown in the cut. Thus the light cannot shine directly into the animal's eyes, but will dispel the darkness.—American Agriculturist.

BET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

It Has Shifted the World's Sugar-Producing Area from the Tropics to the Temperate Zone.

Two-thirds of the world's sugar is now produced from beets. Prior to 1871-72 the world's production of beet sugar had reached a million tons; in the present crop year it is, according to latest estimates, 5,510,000 tons, while the cane sugar crop, which in 1871-72 was 1,599,000 tons, is in the present year 2,904,000 tons. Thus cane sugar production has scarcely doubled during the period under consideration, while that from beets has more than quintupled. Meantime the price has fallen more than one-half, the average cost in foreign countries of all sugar imported into the United States in the fiscal year of 1872 being 5.37 cents per pound, and in 1899 2.39 cents per pound. These facts are interesting in view of the consideration of matters by congress relating to the sugar-producing islands which have recently come into closer relations with the United States.

The sugar-producing area of the world has in less than half a century been shifted from the tropics northward, and the farmer of the temperate zone has shown his ability not only to compete with the low-priced labor of the tropics, but in doing so to reduce by one-half the cost of the article produced.—Scientific American.

Fertile eggsh for hatching cannot be obtained from crowded pens where the birds have little exercise.

Fruit Trees Along Roads.

The cultivation of fruit trees along the high roads of France is being extended year by year. Following the example of the government the communes in certain departments adopted the practice as a source of revenue, and now it has become an important branch of national industry. In Germany, Belgium and the duchy of Luxemburg also the system is being rapidly developed. Last year the fruit harvest from the roads of Wurtemberg amounted to over $600,000 as compared with $200,000 in 1878; for the last 13 years Saxony has gained a revenue of about $340,000 from the same source; and Belgium's three-quarters of a million fruit trees, planted along the roads in 1894, now furnish $200,000.

A Hint from New Jersey.

Essex, N. J., has macadamized nearly all of its leading thoroughfares and a number of roads of secondary importance. The state pays one-third of this cost and the property owners along the line of the road ten per cent. The rest is paid by the county. The latter will pay about $55,000 for the improvements now planned.

Wide Tires a Necessity.

It is as true to-day as it ever was and as it always will be: wide tires are necessary for the preservation of the highways. The men who drive rubber-tired automobiles will soon be shouting the truth when they have been proclaiming for so many years.

Starting the Onion Crop.

When making the onion plat use the "sets" instead of seed and set them in the rows as soon as the frost leaves the ground. They may be about three or four inches apart in the rows, but for large kinds more room may be given. Begin working them from the start, and especially after a rain, to prevent them from being crowded with grass and weeds. Where the maggots attacked them last year such land should be given over to peas and a new location selected for the onions.

Another Feature of Paris.

—Henry Munson and George Carpenter of Ithaca are in town making some repairs and alterations at the residence occupied by C. S. Hill, the jeweler. They report that considerable interest in the proposed railroad is expressed in Ithaca.

—Rev. Mr. Mitchell's temperance address last Sunday evening was eloquent and instructive and was fully appreciated by the audience. This is the time for seed sowing; may it bear fruit an hundred fold. "He that speaketh truth showeth forth righteousness."

—Principal Marks of the Genoa school will attend the joint teachers' association which will be held at the Moravia high school May 19th. An interesting program has been prepared for both morning and afternoon session, and there should be a large attendance.

—While working in the woods a short time since, G. W. King of King Ferry cut a tree upon which were carved the initials of his father, E. P. King, and the date 1833. The block was carefully preserved and may be seen at Mr. King's residence on the

—A large number of Genoa, Venice, Lansing and Scipio people are making preparations to visit Auburn the 22d, to be present at the railroad hearing. This is the proper thing to do. Let Auburn be filled to overflowing with interested citizens.

—E. F. Lynch of Berkshire was in town Wednesday looking after a bay mare and buggy which were stolen from him on May 1st. $50 reward is offered for information that will lead to the arrest of the thief. Perhaps Smith, the creamery man, has taken to stealing horses as well as butter.

—With the warm weather and passable roads comes the usual number of tramping peddlers selling all lines of goods, usually of inferior quality. It is strange any one will buy of them in preference to patronizing established firms in town who are always here to make good their guarantees.

—People often ask if we charge for an item of local news or a personal mention. We never charge for any news item. If our columns are used to publish matter that is to benefit the advertiser we want a share of the profits, but news is what we are after and if you have a local or personal item send it in.

—It's a positive fact that when a family moves out of a house and cleans it as clean as water will do it, the new family that moves in will call it the nastiest house they ever saw. They will say they had to take a hoe and dig the dirt, and the family that moves in where they went out will say the same thing.

—The short term combination of THE TRIBUNE and New York Tribune expired May 1. However yearly subscriptions will be received same as before—$1.25 for TRIBUNE and Weekly; $1.80 for TRIBUNE and Tri-Weekly Tribune one year. The presidential campaign is already on and if you are not fixed for newspapers this is your chance.

—H. D. Crosby, who will be remembered as putting on a first class local entertainment some three years since, writes that he would be pleased to come to Genoa again and introduce his new comedy-drama, "The Country Postmaster." He says "we don't believe in doin' nuthin' for no body what wont do nuthin' for you. Ye can't never make nuthin' doin' for nobody for nuthin'. But want to make money for those who are willing to help us make money for them." This means that if sufficient interest could be aroused to assure the successful production of Mr. Crosby's entertainment, then the money so raised would come back to the people in the way of base ball or band concerts. Will anything be done?

—Harvey Stanton of Locke was in town on business a day or two last week. While here he discovered that his dwelling house on South St. had been entered and a various assortment of household goods stolen. The residence has not been occupied the past winter, but considerable property was left there when Mr. Stanton vacated. He consulted Justice Hunt with the result that search warrants were issued and Constables Gillespie and Smith went to the home of the Labar family where the goods were found. Two of the Labar girls were arrested and admitted that they entered the house by a cellar window, smashed the stair door open and took a carpet, and other goods at later visits. They were taken to Auburn jail and on Tuesday appeared before the grand jury and told their story, implicating two young men whose names are not yet given out. In all probability they will all be indicted by the grand jury, which is not expected to report until next Tuesday. The Labar family have recently removed from the "Dublin" road over into Little Hollow. Genoa seems to be unfortunately favored with people of this class although some of them perhaps wear better clothes.

TREATMENT OF TREES.

Indiscriminate Pruning is Nearly or Quite as Detrimental as No
Pruning at All.

When a tree is healthy the top is luxuriant, but when it is weak or old the top dies or makes little or no growth, and small shoots sprout all over the trunk, and in many cases when such bushes are cut over they push from the base and do well. In very old trees restrictive measures often fail to produce any lasting improvement. But with trees that are comparatively young and which are suffering from neglect, but are not deficient in vitality, renovating treatment is often productive of good results. Improvement usually takes the shape of better growth, healthy foliage and stronger growth, and this requires time. With young trees especially feeble growth and unhealthy conditions are the result of starvation, bad soil or other unfavorable conditions, atmospheric or otherwise.

When a tree is dying of old age the signs are plain enough, and very little can be done to help it. One of the surest signs of debility in a tree is the pushing of adventitious growths from the trunk and main branches and the dying off, year by year, of the twiggy terminal shoots. The sap does not circulate freely to the extremities, but chiefly about the trunk.

One renovating measure is the judicious removal of the feeble, decaying tops and branches and the application of fertilizers near the roots.

The trees should be pruned rather late in the spring, when growth is about commencing, and only the really diseased or dead portions should be cut away. Indiscriminate pruning is nearly or quite as detrimental as no pruning at all. There should always be a good reason for the removal of limbs from a tree. The effects of renovating treatment will usually not be apparent the first year unless it be in the production of numerous buds and small growths from the old wood. With care, an improvement may be noticeable each year.—
N. J. Shepherd, in Farmers' Voice.

PRUNING FRUIT TREES.

When Setting Them Out a Generous
Use of the Knife is Advisable in Most Instances.

When trees are taken up in the nursery a great many of the roots are broken off. The drying out incident to transportation reduces the vitality of the trees also, and so they must be favored as far as possible by a vigorous pruning of all limbs.
The cuts show, first an average tree as it comes from the nursery, and, second, the same tree as it should be pruned when it is set out. Most people are too much afraid of cutting a tree back. Such work

BEFORE AND AFTER PRUNING.

means, however, a more vigorous tree later on, and the vigorous pruning should be given, no matter how much it hurts to cut the young growth back.
There is another important point to be remembered in setting out young trees.
Probably more of these die annually for want of sufficient moisture than from any other cause. This is shown by the fact that one rarely loses any newly set trees if the season happens to be very moist, while in dry seasons the loss is apt to be very great. A heavy mulching about each tree as it is set will greatly assist in keeping the roots moist, as will also a firm packing of the earth about the roots when being covered. If it pays to set out trees at all, it will pay to set them out properly and to care for them when set.—N. Y.
Tribune.

Birds as Weather Prophets.

If birds in general pick their feathers, wash themselves, and fly to their nests, expect rain. Parrots and canaries dress their feathers and are wakeful the evening before a storm.
If the peacock cries when he goes to roost, and, indeed, much at any time, it is a sign of rain. Long and loud singing of robins in the morning denotes rain. Robins will perch on the topmost branches of trees and whistle when a storm is approaching. The restlessness of domestic animals and barnyard fowls before an approaching storm is well known, and many of their peculiarities have been noted; but the actions of birds do not appear to have received particular attention.

THIS MEANS BUSINESS.

When the Cows Are Milked the Scales and a Record Sheet Ought to Be at Hand.

The scales and a record sheet ought to be at hand when the cows are milked. Then each cow's milk can be weighed and a record made of the amount, so that one can tell what his cows are doing—whether each cow is paying her way and something more, or whether some of them are running the dairy in debt. The percentage of cream which each cow's milk affords ought to be known to the dairyman. He can gain the information by the Babcock test, or (approximately) by setting a quart of the milk in a straight-sided vessel and noting the proportion of cream to the whole depth. Then with a record of the amount of milk given by each cow, the value of her weekly and monthly product becomes instantly known. Have a record sheet and keep it on a hinged board behind the cows, as shown in the accompanying illustration. — Orange Judd Farmer.

THE HIGHEST STANDARD.

It is Absolutely Necessary to Insure a Living Profit in Modern Dairy Operations.

We have persistently labored to induce the dairy farmers of this continent to adopt a higher standard in the conduct of their business. It is believed that the great hindrance to progress and profit in everything connected with the business, from the cow to the creamery and cheese factory, and beyond them to the dealers, has been too low a standard. The demand of the consumer has been for better products than the producers have been willing to give. Indeed, it has been the demands of the market which have compelled the farmer, and all the agencies after him, to accede to a higher standard of production.

We believe that this "higher standard" is absolutely necessary to insure a living profit, to prevent loss on the part of the producer.

It sees everywhere that it is the poor cow, the poor, low standard ideas of the man who owns her, the low standards of excellence in their product, that are bringing loss and waste to the dairy farmers of the country. Any man with half an eye can see this if he will but look at the facts. He can see that the "low standard" men are not making the money that the men are who, from the cow up, have higher, better standards of doing things. He can see that it is the poor butter and cheese that sell for a price away below the cost of its production. He can see, if he will look, that this great flood of poor product was made by men and women who worked under a low standard. He can see that these low standard ideas entail an enormous loss on the farming class.

Whom is he working for? Certainly not for the consumer, for he takes his product only under the crushing protest of a ruinously low price. He is certainly not working for his own product, his own education, his own advancement in the scale of manhood and respectability among his fellows. No man grows in his pocket, his own self-respect, or the regard of his fellow men, who makes a product that he ought to be ashamed of, if he knew what was what.—Hoard's Dairyman.

DAIRY AND STOCK.

Keep a clock at the barn, "lest we forget." The C combination—corn, clover, cows, cash.

Don't compare your best grade to some other fellow's worst pure-blood.

Look out for the horse whose owner is not willing to have him tried before purchasing. Reputable dealers now permit three days' to a week's trial by responsible persons who are bona fide dealers.

Do you remember how much better the cow did last summer when there was a much larger per cent. of water in her food than there is in hay and dry meal? Then wet the rations of ground meal with warm water.

A young horse that isn't afraid of anything is rare and valuable. Hold onto him. A friend has such a mare decided she was worth $200 to me if she was to the other man, and so I kept her," he said.

When some of us were boys the farmers used to think that it made "cattle tough" to stand out through the cold days, shivering from head to foot. They did not seem to know that cold takes off a large share of animal heat which they can get only from food, and that the more they are exposed the more food they will need. Most folks know better now.—Farm Journal.

TROUBLES IN THE DAIRY.

How to Overcome or Avoid Some of the Most Vexing Annoyances in Butter Making.

A very annoying experience on the farm dairy is to have the butter refuse to come. A very fertile cause of this annoyance, especially on the average farm where only a few cows are kept and there is only sufficient cream for churning once or at most twice a week, is the mixing of sweet and sour cream. It is not an uncommon practice to skim each day's cream into a crock, and then some morning when it is convenient, the housewife concludes to churn. She warms the cream to the proper churning point and then proceeds with the churning and finds that it takes an unreasonable length of time for the butter "to come," she wonders what the trouble is. Investigation has shown that ripened cream, that is, sour cream, churns easier than sweet cream, therefore, when the churning contains a mixture of cream that is three, four or more days old, together with that which is still sweet, we have a condition which makes not only slow churning but wasteful churning, the sweet cream being much slower to churn, keeps the other butter from coming. In addition to this trouble, we find that when the mixed cream is churned, the particles of butter in the ripened cream finally gather first. The butter-maker discovers that the butter has come and stops her churning. Were she to test the buttermilk with the Babcock tester, she would find that a goodly portion of the butter was still in the buttermilk, this being from the sweet cream which was added the same morning and if the churning had continued long enough it might have been gotten out. Most everyone has seen a pail of buttermilk, which has been left standing for some time, and which shows a layer of cream on the surface. When this condition exists the loss of fat in the buttermilk is considerable, as the tester will show. To secure thoroughness of churning in a reasonable length of time, the cream should be kept as sweet as possible, by keeping it cold until 18 to 24 hours before the time to churn it. It should be stirred thoroughly as each new lot is added. Having decided when you are to churn, the cream, if still sweet or nearly so, should be warmed up to a temperature of 65 or 70 degrees to ripen. The temperature at which it is set to ripen depends on the length of time it must stand before you are able to churn, also on the condition of the cream, whether it is sweet or beginning to sour. The higher the temperature at which the cream is set, the more rapidly it will ripen. When ready to churn, the cream should be thick and have a smooth, velvety appearance, that is, free from lumps, and have a pleasant sour taste. This is a condition which is difficult to describe on paper, but will come from experience.—Prairie Farmer.

ANOTHER SELF FEEDER.

To Build One Does Not Require So Very Much Skill Nor a Heavy Outlay of Money.

The cut shows the device in use by William O. Day, Delaware county, Ind. This shows space for three head, but it can be made any size desired. His are eight feet long, making room for 16 calves or sheep, eight on each side.—J.

IMPROVED SELF FEEDER.

B. R. wanted one to hold 300 pounds of corn. It would be difficult to plan one that small; this one pictured holds 600 pounds. Use inch plank. First make the floor or bottom, 38 inches long and 26 inches wide. Take four planks three feet long and seven inches wide and make partitions (A) for the trough; these are three inches wide at the bottom and beveled up to fit flaring side of trough. The troughs are four inches wide on bottom and the plank (B) is eight inches wide. A space of two inches at the bottom of the box (C), allows the corn to come through into troughs. The ends (D) are 46 inches long. The dotted lines (E) show the slanting floor. The box is broken out at F, to show grain inside.—Ohio Farmer.

Fifteen hundred glass windows permit the visitors to view the interior and 400 little electric lights illuminate it at night.

Caring for Milk Pails.

Scalding the milk pails will not cleanse them, as hot water causes portions of the milk to curdle. First wash the vessels with lukewarm water, dissolving a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda (washing soda) in every quart of water used. Scrub well and rinse with clean cold water, and then scald, using more carbonate of soda in the boiling water, then again rinsing with clean cold water.

Special for Decoration Day $8.25.

ITHACA, N. Y.

Grand Army Republic

Citizens and Veterans here are making more than usual preparation to celebrate DECORATION DAY. Our orders and sales of blue flannel and regulation "grand army" suits have never been so large as this year. But then we never before offered what we do this year. Our regular $12 Slater Assabet or Middlesex Flannel Suits, guaranty for quality and color sewed into each coat. $8.25 a suit. We know there are lots of fellows selling suits at $8.25 and less, but ours are worth and cheap at $12. OR YOUR MONEY BACK. Special price $8.25 only until Decoration Day. Please do not ask for special advertised prices except the time they are advertised for, and our DECORATION DAY SPECIAL is for the purpose of meeting as many as possible of our old heroes, and enable them all to get with little money a good new suit.

Of course you know we have other kinds of clothes. Like to have you come in here to see us when in town. Men's Suits $1.49 upwards. Boys' Suits 50c upwards. Overalls 19c upwards. Work shirts 17c upwards. 25c Rubber Collars 11c. 70c Socks 4c. $1.00 Pants 60c. Lots of other bargains, and if you require a real good suit $7.50, $10, $12, $15, come as high as $18, we've got them and can prove to you that we can save you money on the best or cheapest. To do a large business we are satisfied with a smaller profit, and our large business enables us to buy much cheaper than smaller dealers can. Try us.
