NEWS ABOUT THE STATE

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

The hotel at Glenwood has been granted a license.

Auburn Theological seminary graduated twenty-two young men last week.

Geo. B. Preston of Ithaca has been appointed inspector of boilers under the Inland Waters Steam Navigation law.

Onondaga county has taken in over $200,000 for Raines law certificates.

A boy at Chester, Pa., lassoed the engineer of a freight train and was dragged under the wheels and killed.

A Groton man is trying to train robins to extract angleworms out of the earth for him to take away from them and feed to his chickens. Talk about energetic laziness; Groton has it.—Owego Record.

John Stack, while attempting to catch a ride on a Lehigh Valley train near the West Shore junction at Weedsport about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, lost his hold and fell. Stack's right leg went under the wheels and the member was completely severed just below the knee.

The Y. M. C. A. of Cortland will camp this year at Conklin's Point on Owasco lake. This is the third season the young men have been in camp, but this will be their first visit to Owasco lake. They will open camp in July for three weeks.

The stock for the proposed reorganization of the Moravia Foundry and Machine company has been fully subscribed and the stockholders will meet at Cuykendall's hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock to affect the organization of the company.—Republican.

It is stated that W. W. Ames, editor of the DeRuyter Gleaner, is an aspirant for the Republican nomination for member of assembly in Madison county. It takes a good man to fill R. J. Fish's place, but Mr. Ames is just that kind of a man, and we sincerely hope he will win out.—Cortland Democrat.

Among the Moravians who went to Auburn last week to see "The Idol's Eye" was Walter Odell. Coming back Odell was sitting on the car steps, and between Wyckoff and Ensenore the car gave a lurch and he was thrown head first from the train. The fall rendered him insensible and about daylight he awoke. The train was running at a high rate of speed and his escape from instant death was miraculous. He escaped with a few bruises.—Republican.

The Lafayette creamery, located in the town of Groton, just this side of the Cortland county line, was destroyed by fire about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning of last week. The factory was started in 1876, and the entire cost was about $2,800. The loss above an insurance of $600 falls upon the stockholders. For the last three years it had been operated by the Standard Butter company of Owego, who sustain a loss above insurance on the additional machinery which was put in by them. It is thought the creamery will be rebuilt.

The first fatal accident with which the Cortland & Homer Traction company has been connected since the inauguration of its service occurred last week Thursday and the victim was William L. Williamson, a farmer 37 years old, who lived up Cold Brook in the town of Scott. His team ran away and dashed into the car, which was going at such a high rate of speed that the motorman was unable to bring his car to a standstill before the collision. The collision occurred about 10 p. m., and the victim received injuries which produced death in about two hours. He was taken to Homer, but never recovered consciousness.

Saturday morning about 7 o'clock the home of Edward Hanlon, a farmer living about two miles west of Phoenix, was totally destroyed by fire. Mr. and Mrs. Hanlon were milking when Mrs. Hanlon heard a crackling sound, and going out of the barn found the house was on fire. Her first thoughts were of her little grandson, who was asleep upstairs, and she rushed in to try and get to him, but her clothes caught fire and she was compelled to try to save herself. Edward Mackesy, a neighbor, had arrived and quickly rolled Mrs. Hanlon on the wet grass and extinguished the flames in her clothing. Securing a ladder, Mr. Mackesy broke in the window and rescued the child. Mrs. Hanlon was frightfully burned about the back and head and both arms. Dr. Hamill was summoned and did all he could to relieve her sufferings, but says the burns will probably be fatal, as Mrs. Hanlon is more than 60 years old.

Jurors Drawn.

The trial jurors for the June term of county court were drawn Monday morning. The list from this vicinity is as follows:

Fleming—Thomas Quinn.
Genoa—Charles Metzgar, John I. Hollister, Eugene H. Shangle.
Locke—John C. McIntosh.
Owasco—Thomas Bassett.
Scipio—Omar Johnson.
Sempronius—Russell Lawrence.
Springport—David Everitt.

Surrogate's Court.

In the matter of the estate of Florilla Shangle of Genoa petition for letters of administration filed and citation issued to June 12.

In the matter of the estate of Elizabeth Goodyear of Genoa testimony of witnesses heard and adjournment taken to June 9.

An inventory of the personal estate of Reuben Rounds, late of Locke, amounting to $318.43, was filed by the appraisers.

Gorman Held.

William J. Gorman, the Locke liveryman, was before U. S. Commissioner Avery in Auburn, Monday, on the charge of selling liquor without a government license. The commissioner secured the statement of a resident of Locke that he had obtained liquor of Gorman. After hearing part of the evidence, the case was put over until Friday, when it was concluded and United States Commissioner Avery held the defendant for the next United States grand jury at Buffalo.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of sciatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the infliction is demonic enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by J. S. Banker, Genoa.

The Moccasin in the Forest.

In autumn, when all the leaves and twigs are dry as tinder, a man wearing shoes makes a noise in the forest like a troop of cavalry; but in moccasins he can move swiftly through the woods with the stealth of a panther. The feet are not bruised, for, after enjoying for a time the freedom of natural covering, these hitherto blundering members become like hands, and feel their way through the dark like those of a cat, avoiding obstacles as though gifted with a special sense. Best of all, the moccasin is light. Inexperienced sportsmen and soldiers affect high-topped lace boots with heavy soles and hobnails, imagining that these are the most serviceable for rough wear. But these boots weigh between four and five pounds, while a pair of thick moose-hide moccasins weigh only eleven ounces. In marching ten miles a man wearing the clumsy boots lifts twenty tons more shoe leather than if he wore moccasins.—Harper's Magazine.

Marriage Increasing in England.

Great Britain is flourishing. The sure test is the marriage record shown in the Registrar General's annual report just issued, in which it appears that the rate is higher than it has been in twenty-one years. The Registrar points out that a marriage rate usually keeps in close touch with the value of British exports and imports, and the price of wheat. Up goes trade, and up goes the marriage rate! Not exactly romantic, but eminently practical. It seems that widowers have been in greater demand than widows, for 98 out of 100 of the men married in the course of the year were widowers, whereas only 69 out of 1000 of the women who married were widows. Nearly half of the bachelors and spinsters were married between the ages of 21 and 25. The favored age for the re-marriage of widows and widowers was between 33 and 40. In one out of every 100 of the marriages, husband and wife could neither read nor write, and signed the certificate with their mark.—New York Press.

DEWEY SAILS FOR HOME.

His Departure From Manila Attended by Enthusiastic Farewells.

CAPTAIN WALKER ALSO RETURNS

Cannons Thundered Salutes, Bands Played and Sailors Cheered Their Departing Comrades as Admiral Dewey Sailed Away—British Cruiser Powerful Joined in the Farewells—The Admiral's Plans

MANILA (By Cable).—The cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey on board, has left here for Hong Kong on the homeward journey to the United States. As she steamed away the Oregon, Baltimore and Concord fired an Admiral's salute. At the first shot the band on the flagship played a lively air, and her whiteclad sailors crowded the decks and gave a tremendous cheer.

When the Olympia passed the Oregon the crew of that battleship gave nine cheers for the Olympians, who responded by throwing their caps so high that dozens of them were left bobbing in the wake of the cruiser. Then followed the noisiest half hour known in this harbor since the battle which linked its name with that of Dewey. The din of guns and brass bands echoed through the smoke; a fleet of steam launches shrieked their whistles; the musicians of the Baltimore played "Home, Sweet Home," her flags signaled "Good-bye," and those of the Oregon said "Pleasant voyage."

The merchant vessels in these waters dipped their flags; the ladies on the decks of the vessels of the fleet waved handkerchiefs, and the great, black British cruiser Powerful, which lay the furthest out, saluted the Olympia. The latter's band played "God Save the Queen," and to this the crew of the Powerful responded with hearty cheers for the Olympia. The last music heard from Admiral Dewey's ship was "Auld Lang Syne," while the guns from the forts at Cavite and from the Monterey, on guard off Paranaque, too far to be audible, puffed white clouds of smoke. The Olympia was disappearing past Corregidor Island when a battery before the walled city spoke Manila's last word of farewell.

Admiral Dewey is enthusiastic over his homing, but when mention was made of the welcome to be extended to him he said he appreciated the friendship of his countrymen deeply, but hoped they would not be too demonstrative. He intends to go directly to his home at Montpelier, Vt., and live there.

Walker, of the Concord, the last of the commanders in battle here, went to the admiral and said: "Don't leave me behind." So he was relieved, and goes home on the Olympia.

CUBAN DISPUTE SETTLED.

President McKinley Approves of General Brooke's Plan of Disarmament.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—Immediately after his return to Washington President McKinley had a conference with Secretary Alger, the result of which was that the Secretary cabled directions to Major-General Brooke at Havana to proceed immediately with the distribution of the $3,000,000 furnished by the United States for the payment of the Cuban Army on condition that it surrender its arms and disband. This marks the end of the embarrassment arising from the negotiations between General Brooke and General Maximo Gomez, which threatened at one time to prove serious.

General Brooke's plan, approved by the President and the Secretary of War, is in substance as follows:

The arms are to be surrendered to the Alcaldes in the presence of United States officers designated by General Brooke, and not directly to these officers, as originally directed by the President. The Alcaldes are then to turn over the arms to the American representatives and representatives of the Cuban army and they are to be shipped under guard to Havana and Santiago, where they are to be placed in United States armories. At the armories they will be under the immediate care of armorer appointed by General Gomez, and are to be exhibited as relics of the Cuban insurrection and Spanish-American War. In this way the Cubans will have a proprietary interest in the weapons and will be charged with their preservation, while the American authorities will be in practical possession of them.

STEAMSHIP PARIS GOES AGRROUND.

American Liner Wrecked Near the Manacles, Off the England Coast.

FALMOUTH, England (By Cable).—The American Line steamer, Paris, Captain Watkins, from Southampton and Cherbourg, for New York, went aground just off Lowland's Point, an outlying ridge of the Manacles, at a point half a mile from where the wrecked Atlantic Transport Lineer Mohegan lies. The passengers, numbering 36, and the crew, were landed safely. From the first there was no danger to those on board. Assistance was summoned by means of rockets. These were seen at Coverack, and a lifeboat with a crew of four put out proceeded to the stranded ship. Lifeboats and tugs were soon literally swarming around the vessel to render assistance. A majority of the passengers were taken to Falmouth.

When the vessel struck, the crew were summoned on deck. The passengers, upon appearing, were met at the companionway with comforting words and assurances of their safety. Exceptional coolness was shown on all sides, the stewards distributing coffee and stimulants to all who desired them.

DAWSON CITY IN ASHES.

Fire Wiped Out Three-Fourths of the Metropolis of the Klondike.

VICTORIA, B. C. (Special).—Dawson City has been destroyed by fire. Nothing is left of the centre of the Klondike metropolis save a heap of ashes. The burned area comprises three-fourths of the city, including everything on the water front. Fortunately for the inhabitants the big warehouses of the Alaska Commercial and the North American Trading and Transportation companies escaped damage, and there is no fear of famine.

A fatal fight was fought at Hancock's Mill, Ga., between John Letter on one side and James Morris and George McLeod on the other, apparently without provocation. After the fight had cleared away Letter was found killed, McLeod mortally wounded, and Tom Yeoman, a negro who had been standing in range, dangerously wounded in neck.

An experiment is to be tried by the Board of Education, of Westfield, N. J., in the appointment of an auxiliary board of women to assist in the conduct of the public schools of the place. The following have been appointed to the committee: Mrs. Howard MacDougall, Mrs. Paul Phillip, Mrs. Salter Clark, Mrs. Alfred Bea and Mrs. Edgar R. Pearsall.

Warren Brown, twenty-three years old, of Waltham, Mass., was thrown from his bicycle through his rear wheel being struck by an unknown rider. He suffered concussion of the brain, and died two hours after being taken to his home.

Origin of the Elevator.

The elevator originated in central Europe. The earliest mention of the elevator is made in a letter of Napoleon I., addressed to his wife, the Archduchess Maria Louise. He writes to her that, when in Schoenbrunn, then the summer residence of the Austrian emperor, near Vienna, he used the "chaise volante" (flying chair) in that castle, which had been constructed for Empress Maria Theresa. It consisted of a small, square room, sumptuously furnished with hangings of red silk, and suspended by strong ropes with counter-weights, so that it could be pulled up or let down with great ease in a shaft built for the purpose about 1760.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package. CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

HOME duties to many women seem more important than health.

No matter how ill they feel, they drag themselves through the daily tasks and pile up trouble. This is heroic but a penalty has to be paid.

A woman in New Matamoras, Ohio, MRS. ISABELL BRADFIELD, tells in the following letter how she fought with disease of the feminine organs until finally forced to take to her bed. She says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write to you to tell you that I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think there is no medicine in the world like it. I suffered for nine years, and sometimes for twelve weeks at a time I could not stand on my feet. I had female troubles of all kinds; backache, and headache all the time. Seven different doctors treated me. Some said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation performed. But oh! how thankful I am that I did not, that I tried your Vegetable Compound instead. I cannot say too much in its praise, nor thank you enough for what it has done for me. I want you to publish this in all the papers for the good of other sufferers."

The wives and mothers of America are given to overwork. Let them be wise in time and at the first indication of female trouble write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice. This advice is promptly given without charge.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, advising and helping by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

FILIPINO CAPITAL TAKEN

Lawton's Advance Guard, Under Summers, Captures San Isidro.

FLEEING INSURGENTS PURSUED.

Rebels Lose Many Men—Major Kobbe's Force Sent to Join General Lawton—Many Natives Returning to Towns Within the American Lines—Cultivation of Rice Fields Resumed.

MANILA (By Cable).—General Lawton's advance guard, under Colonel Summers, of the Oregon troops, has taken San Isidro, the insurgent capital.

Colonel Summers's command, consisting of the Twenty-second Infantry on the left, the Minnesota regiment in the centre and the Oregon and North Dakota regiments on the right, preceded by scouts and accompanied by Scott's battery, advanced from Baluarte at daylight. The troops first encountered the enemy two miles from San Isidro, the rebels retiring when the artillery opened fire. Just outside the town a rebel force, estimated to number two thousand men, was entrenched. It made a slight resistance, but evacuated its position when the American troops turned its right flank.

The enemy's loss was fifteen men killed and twenty wounded. The United States troops also captured three prisoners and many rifles. On the American side, one soldier of the Oregon regiment and one of the Minnesota regiment were slightly wounded.

After capturing the town Colonel Summers's troops continued their advance, pursuing the retreating rebels for several miles.

The expedition under Major Kobbe, of the Third Regiment, consisting of the Seventeenth Infantry, a battalion of the Ninth and one battery of the First Artillery, left Calumpit at daybreak, marching up the Rio Grande to join General Lawton's division at Arayat. A flotilla of cascos loaded with supplies also proceeded up the river. Both forces were conveyed by the "tinclad" Army gunboats, under Captain Grant.

Although the rebels still threaten San Fernando in considerable force, large numbers of natives, a majority of them being families with their household goods, are returning daily to the towns inside the American lines, at Apalit especially.

Many of the richer Filipinos are coming to Manila, and laborers are resuming work in the rice fields. The latter show their respect for American sovereignty by removing their hats to the passing trains.

Owing to the bad condition of the roads, the work of repairing the railroad is being actively pushed. All the broken bridges have been trestled, and only a few excavations remain to be filled up. Trains will be running through to San Fernando in a few days. The only natives there are some Filipinos from Macabebe, who are trading with our soldiers.

The army gunboat Napindan has returned here from the lake, having been disabled by a cannon shot from the rebels near Santa Cruz. Her rudder-post was broken.

Aguinado's ex-secretary, Esamillo, who was arrested here on February 23, is now employed as official interpreter by the authorities.

NEGRO MURDERER AT BAY.

He Kills One Policeman and Wounds Another in Maryland.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—Humphrey Taylor, a negro suspected of the Rosenstein murder at Sidell, Md., shot and killed Police Sergeant Fritz Passau, wounded Policeman G. W., and kept a posse of half a dozen officers at bay from the loft of a house nearly two hours. Dozens of shots were exchanged between the officers and the fugitive, who only surrendered when preparations were made to burn the house.

When questioned by the police in regard to the Rosenstein murder the prisoner became much confused in his replies, and told half a dozen different stories. He said that a man named Brown had committed the murder, and that he waited on the outside and kept watch, receiving $60 from Brown. On searching the house the police found $192 and a gold watch and chain where he had secreted them. He had a diamond ring and a small sum of money on his person. His conflicting stories as to his movements and where he obtained the money led the police to believe he is the man the Maryland authorities are looking for. It is probable, however, that he will be detained by the district authorities and held for the murder of Sergeant Passau.

THE DEWEY HOME FUND.

Invitation to Send Contributions to the Committee in Washington.

It is Proposed to Present Him With a Handsome Residence For His Distinguished Services.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—The committee in charge of the plans for raising a fund for Admiral Dewey has issued this statement:

"NATIONAL DEWEY COMMITTEE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

"The American people are anxious to do honor to Admiral Dewey. Their zeal has taken the form of invitations to banquets in many different cities, of celebrations, parades and displays. Obviously it will be impossible for him to attend all the banquets, and it may be invidious to select one or a few for the honor of his presence. The common sense of our countrymen does not find suitable expression for its admiration and esteem for our great naval hero in methods effervescent and transient.

"A grateful nation cannot do better than provide liberally for Admiral Dewey's comfort in a home fitted to his tastes, worthy in some measure of his services and indicative in a small degree of the gratitude which is not of a day, but of all time. A popular subscription will afford all the privilege to join in a testimonial in which patriotism will have a monument.

"The career of Admiral Dewey is a part of our national history, a glorious chapter in the magnificent record of the recent war with Spain. Not in our country alone, but in all the world, his name is emblazoned with those that shall not die. His services all know in part; the future will add to appreciation of his greatness, to the solidity and brilliancy of his fame.

"On his return from the scene of his victories and his statesmanship the official duties of Admiral Dewey will be performed in Washington. He should have a home there. The national capital cannot fail to have attractions for him in the present and the future. For a winter residence during his life he can hardly find a more desirable place. It is for a home for Admiral Dewey in Washington that subscriptions are invited.

"Suggestions to this general effect have been put forth in several quarters. Assurances have been conveyed to the undersigned that the general enthusiasm can be directed into a single current through their agency as a national committee. Each of us, busy with manifold occupations, accepts as a duty not to be set aside the task of organizing the popular munificence for this purpose and of administering the patriotic trust for a Dewey Home Fund.

"Subscriptions may be sent at once to the treasurer of this fund at the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. Temporary receipts will be promptly returned, and as soon as they can be prepared a duplicate of the same date and number, bearing a fine portrait of Admiral Dewey, will be forwarded to every subscriber.

"Immediate response will enable the National Committee to convey to Admiral Dewey, as soon as he lands, practical evidence that the American people have provided for him a home at the nation's capital.

"The committee invites the newspapers of the country and the Governors of all States to co-operate in this movement.

"FRANK A. VANDERLIP, Chairman.
"CHARLES H. ALLEN.
"HENRY C. CORBIN.
"PERRY S. HEATH.
"ELLIS H. ROBERTS,
Treasurer of the Fund."

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON SAILS.

Before His Departure He Pays Dewey a Handsome Tribute.

NEW YORK CITY (Special).—Among the passengers on the American liner St. Paul which sailed for Southampton, was ex-President Harrison, who is to be the legal representative of Venezuela at the meeting of the Boundary Commission in Paris in June. Mr. Harrison was accompanied by his wife and baby. He expects the boundary dispute between England and Venezuela will be settled within the next few months.

Speaking of the reception promised Admiral Dewey on his return, the ex-President among other things said: "The things which Dewey has done and the things which he has left undone since that memorable May day have made him as great a diplomat as he is a fighter. He is the great hero of the Spanish-American war, and deserves all the praise which the people of the American Nation can give him. He not only destroyed Spain's power, but kept would-be meddlers from making it a triangular fight."

FATAL TORNADO IN IOWA.

Several Persons Killed and Much Damage Done.

MANCHESTER, Iowa (Special).—A disastrous tornado swept over the vicinity of Colesburg, Delaware County, twenty miles northeast of this city, doing great damage. Three persons were killed and many others injured. The town is fifteen miles from a railroad and details are meagre, but the following are known to have been killed: George Lang, Jerome Jacobs and a child named Tupper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ridenous are seriously injured, and two Tupper children will die. The storm also did great damage in the vicinity of Littleport and along the Turkey River. The Kennedy schoolhouse and the farmhouses of Messrs. Wilsey, Krimple, Shepherd, Cole and Page were destroyed. A tenant on the Cole place was killed. Walter Shepherd and child are among the dead and others of the family were injured.

DR. EDWARD E. HALE RESIGNS.

Relinquishes His Pastorate in Boston After Forty-Three Years' Service.

BOSTON (Special).—The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale has resigned his pastorate of the South Congregational Church after a service of forty-three years.

The resignation came in the form of a letter addressed to the Standing Committee and proprietors of the church. Dr. Hale said in the letter that he had begun to realize that the church needed a man who could serve as minister as well as preacher. The letter contains many expressions of love for the people among whom Dr. Hale has worked for so many years.

Dr. Hale has for many years occupied one of the foremost places in the Unitarian denomination in the whole country, not only as a preacher, but also as a writer.

The Uses of Zinc.

The largest consumers of zinc are the manufacturers of galvanized iron work. Then come the brass founders, for zinc is an important element in brass alloys, and large quantities are used in the sheet form and as an element in galvanic batteries. Zinc is put under stoves and is used to line bathtubs.

Great quantities of the ore are used also to make zinc white, or zinc oxide, for paint, but this is made direct from the ores and is not materially affected by the present rise of values, the zinc oxide having gone up only about half a cent a pound in price. Of this the United States imported at one time about 30,000 barrels a year. Now we can export it as we do the metal and ore. Our exports of the ore were only 48,000 pounds in 1895, but last year rose to 21,040,000 pounds, while our exports of pig rose in the same period from about 3,000,000 pounds to 21,000,000.—New York Sun.

America's greatest physicians have conquered La Grippe and its after effects. Their treatment has been thoroughly tested in the hospitals of Europe and of this country, and is embodied in Dr. Kay's Lung Balm.

Rev. H. B. Dye, of Morrison, Iowa, writes: "Mrs. Dye had a bad attack of La Grippe which settled on her lungs. She used Dr. Kay's Lung Balm, with most decided good effects, which is a repetition of past experience with her. Nothing is so prompt and positive in its effects on her lungs."

You should write for free advice and a copy of Dr. Kay's Home Treatment, an illustrated book of 116 pages of receipts, etc. Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co., Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Bohemia's Strange Minerals.

Not far from Trebitsch, in Bohemia, are found many glassy-looking objects, of a bottle-green color, and tending, when unbroken, to an egg shape, to which the name moldavites has been given. Doctor Suess, of Vienna, from a recent study of these curious minerals, concludes that they are really meteorites, and should be added to the list of foreign bodies that have found their way to the earth's surface by falling from space.

One on Her Majesty.

The following story—for the truth of which, however, we are unable to vouch—is told of the Empress Frederick. When Her Majesty was last in England she purchased a quantity of very artistic wall-paper, which she had sent to her villa at Homburg. On showing some samples of it to her chamberlain she asked him where he thought they came from. "This piece," replied the chamberlain, "comes from Berlin, and the other from Magdeburg—made in Germany," your Majesty."—London Chronicle.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

Cascade.

MAY 22.—Miss Lena Reynolds of Dryden is assisting Mrs. Baker at the Cascade House.

School closes next month. Miss Alger is very much liked as a teacher. A. J. Hurlbutt is improving his residence by painting it in colors.

Mr. Jay Mathers who spent several months in California has many interesting souvenirs of his trip. He has a Chinaman's suit complete, many Indian relics, deer antlers, etc., also a box of the beautiful and fragrant orange buds and blossoms. When the little box is opened the room is sweet with the perfume. Mr. Mathers entertains his friends with views of many scenes taken with his kodak. Several boarders are at the Cascade House.

Gardening has been in order and the vegetables are looking fine in the many gardens of the cottage campers. The outlook for fruit is fine.

Corn-planting has been postponed for a week on account of the rains.

A small party of home gypsies camped on the banks of Owasco on Sunday last. The weather was not propitious or inviting in the morning but a warm rain is rather enjoyable sometimes and did not dull or dampen the spirits of this band. After noon the weather changed and the sun shone brightly on the group enjoying their dinner, with nature's green and mother earth for table and chairs. Not since the days of our childhood has a meal tasted better. Beautiful ferns grew close by our table; the perfume of spring violets and wild lilies of the valley filled the air; the lowing kine were near, chewing their cud with contentment; boats were seen all along the banks; the many cottages and the large Cascade House, the little steam yacht at the landing, another steaming toward us, and the beautiful hills dotted here and there with farm buildings; nature had fairly outdone herself in making the scenery of such beauty. Oh, it was a day and a scene which would need the pen of a poet and the brush of an artist to do it justice. We seemed to have slipped away from the everyday cares of life, "By the world forgotten, and the world forgot." Peals of laughter were heard, echoed by the forests close by. If one could live forever, thus enjoying the spring sunshine and flowers near the waters of beautiful Owasco! When we came back the wind was blowing rather hard, and the large waves dashed the water in our faces, making one of our party wince and tremble a little, but our oarsman was a practiced hand and we reached the shore safely. There were no fortunes told that day; the little old fortune-teller seemed to have forgotten to gather in the pennies; we think she was learning to "row a boat." Why do we rave of the beauties of other states when we have hundreds of such beautiful nooks in the old Empire state? Are we such restless, unsatisfied people, that we want to wander away and take long wearisome journeys to enjoy nature's beauties?

A PRISONER OF WAR.

"No rent again this month? This is the third time it has happened within the half year. I'll go there myself and get the money, or I'll know the reason why!"

Mr. Matthew Deane was in particularly bad humor this raw December morning. Everything had gone wrong. Stocks had fallen when they ought to have risen—his clerk had tipped over the inkstand on his special and peculiar heap of paper—the fire obstinately refused to burn in the grate—in short, nothing went right, and Mr. Deane was consequently and correspondingly cross.

"Jenkins!"

"Yes, sir!"

"Go to the Widow Clarkson's, and tell her I shall be there in half an hour, and expect confidently—mind, Jenkins, confidently to receive that rent money. Or else I shall feel myself obliged to resort to extreme measures. You understand, Jenkins?"

"Certainly, sir."

"Then don't stand there starin' like an idiot," snarled Mr. Deane, in a sudden burst of irritation; and Jenkins disappeared like a shot.

Just half an hour afterwards, Mr. Matthew Deane brushed the brown hair just sprinkled with gray away from his square yet not unkindly brow; putting on his fur-lined overcoat he walked forth into the chilly winter air fully determined, figuratively, to annihilate the defaulting Widow Clarkson.

It was a dwarfish little red brick house which appeared originally to have aspired to two-storyhood lot, but cramped by circumstances had settled down into a story and a half; but the windows shone like Brazilian pebbles, and the doorsteps were worn by much scouring. Neither of these circumstances, however, did Mr. Deane remark as he pulled the glittering brass door knob, and strode into Mrs. Clarkson's neat parlor.

There was a small fire—very small, as if every lump of anthracite was hoarded in the stove, and at a table with writing implements before her, sat a young lady whom Mr. Deane at once recognized as Mrs. Clarkson's niece, Miss Olive Mellen. She was not disagreeable to look upon, though you would never have thought of classing her among the beauties, with shining black hair, blue, long-lashed eyes, and a very pretty mouth, hiding teeth like rice kernels, so white were they.

Miss Mellen rose with a polite nod, which was grimly reciprocated by Mr. Deane.

"I have called to see your aunt, Miss Mellen."

"I know it, sir, but as I am aware of her timid temperament, I sent her away. I prefer to deal with you myself."

Mr. Deane started—the cool audacity of this damsel in gray, with scarlet ribbons in her hair, rather astonished him.

"I suppose the money is ready?"

"No, sir, it is not."

"Then, Miss Olive pardon me, I must speak plainly, I shall send an officer here this afternoon to put a valuation on the furniture, and—"

"You will do, nothing of the kind, sir."

"Olive's cheek had reddened and her eyes flashed portentously. Mr. Deane turned toward the door, but ere he knew what she was doing, Olive had walked quietly across the room, locked the door, and taken out the key—then she resumed her seat.

"What does this mean?" ejaculated the astonished "prisoner of war."

"It means, sir, that you will now be obliged to reconsider the question," said Olive.

"Obliged?"

"Yes—you will hardly jump out of the window, and there is no other method of egress unless you choose to go up the chimney. Now, then, Mr. Deane, will you tell me if you—a Christian man in the nineteenth century—intend to sell a poor widow's furniture, because she is not able to pay your rent? Listen, sir!"

Mr. Deane had opened his mouth to remonstrate, but Olive enforced her words with a very emphatic little stamp of the foot, and he was, as it were, stricken dumb.

"You are what the world calls a rich man, Mr. Deane. You own rows of houses, piles of bank stock, railroad shares, bonds and mortgages—who knows what? My aunt has nothing—I support her by copying. Now, if this case be carried into a court of law, my poor ailing aunt will be a sufferer—you would emerge unscathed and profiting; you are not a bad man, Mr. Deane; you have a great many noble qualities, and I like you for them."

She paused an instant, and looked intently and gravely at Mr. Deane. The color rose to his cheek—it was not disagreeable to be told by a pretty young girl that she liked him, on any terms, yet she had indulged in pretty plain speaking.

"I have heard," she went on, "of your doing kind actions when you were in the humor of it. You can do them, and you shall in this instance. You are cross this morning, you know you are! Hush, no excuse; you are selfish and irritable and overbearing! If I were your mother, and you a little boy, I should certainly put you in a corner until you promised to be good."

Mr. Deane smiled, although he was getting angry. Olive went on with the utmost composure.

"But as it is, I shall only keep you here a prisoner until you have behaved, and given me your word not to annoy my aunt again for rent, until she is able to pay you. Then, and not until then, will you receive your money. Do you promise? Yes or no?"

"I certainly shall agree to no such terms," said Mr. Deane, tartly. "Very well, sir, I can wait."

Miss Mellen deposited the key in the pocket of her grey dress, and sat down to her copying. Had she been a man, Mr. Deane would probably have knocked her down—as it was, she wore an invisible armor of power in the very fact that she was a fragile, slight woman, and she knew it.

"Miss Olive," he said, sternly, "let us terminate this mummy. Unlock that door!"

"Mr. Deane, I will not."

"I shall shout and alarm the neighborhood, then, or call a policeman."

"Very well, Mr. Deane, do so, if you please."

She dipped her pen in the ink and began on a fresh page. Matthew sat down puzzled and discomfited, and watched the long-lashed eyes and faintly tinted cheek of his keeper. She was very pretty—what a pity she was so obstinate.

"Miss Olive!"

"Sir?"

"The clock has just struck twelve."

"I heard it."

"I should like to go out to get some lunch."

"I am sorry that that luxury is out of your power."

"But I'm confounded hungry."

"Are you?"

"And I'm not going to stand this sort of thing any longer."

"No?"

How provokingly nonchalant she was. Mr. Deane eyed the pocket of the grey dress greedily, and walked up and down the room pettishly.

"I have an appointment at one."

"Indeed! What a pity you will be unable to keep it."

He took another turn across the room. Olive looked up with a smile.

"Well, are you ready to promise?"

"Hang it, yes! What else can I do?"

"You promise?"

"I do, because I can't help myself."

Olive drew the key from her pocket, with softened eyes.

"You have made me very happy, Mr. Deane. I dare say you think me unwomanly and unfeminine, but indeed you do not know to what extremities we are driven by poverty. Good morning, sir."

Mr. Deane sallied forth with a curious complication of thoughts and emotions struggling through his brain, in which grey dresses, long-lashed blue eyes, and scarlet ribbons played a prominent part.

"Did you get the money, sir?" asked the clerk, when he walked into the office.

"Mind your business, sir," was the tart response. "I pity her husband," thought Mr. Deane as he turned the papers over on his neck. "How she will henpeck him. By the way, I wonder who her husband will be?"

The next day he called at the Widow Clarkson's to assure Miss Mellen that he had no idea of breaking his promise, and the next but one after that, he came to tell the young lady she need entertain no doubt of his integrity. And the next week he dropped in on them with no particular errand to serve as an excuse!

"When shall we be married, Olive? Next month, dearest? Do not let us put it off later."

"I have no wishes but yours, Matthew."

"Really, Miss Olive Mellen, to hear that meek tone, one would suppose you had never locked me up here, and tyrannized over me as a jailer."

Olive burst into a merry laugh. "You dear old Matthew, I give you warning beforehand that I mean to have my own way in everything. Do you wish to recede from your bargain? It is not too late yet."

No, Matthew Deane didn't; he had a vague idea that it would be very pleasant to be henpecked by Olive!

HE MADE A DISCOVERY.

An Instance Where a Superabundance of Knowledge Was Disastrous.

"I hear a good deal about luck," said the oculist as he polished away at a pair of eyeglasses and smiled in a sorrowful way, "but I don't believe in it. The man who has luck is the man who doesn't make a fool of himself, as I did a year or two ago. If I'd had two grains of sense in my head on an occasion twenty months ago I'd have been enjoying a soft snap to-day.

"No it wasn't a ground floor speculation," he continued, after breathing on the glasses and holding them up to the light. "I got a letter from the President of one of the biggest railroads in the country, asking me to call at his office. When I called I discovered that he wanted to pay me $5,000 per year to test the employees of the road for color blindness. I closed with the offer as quick as I could get my breath, and a day was named for me to bring up my samples and show the old gent the modus operandi of the thing. I was on hand when the hour arrived. I had all the colors ever used about a railroad, and after looking them over the President sagaciously observed:

"This green doesn't seem to me to be quite as deep as our signals, but perhaps it will answer well enough."

"I turned to him, and I hope to drop dead in my tracks if he wasn't looking at the brightest kind of red—the danger signal, you know!

"You mean this," I said as I pointed to the deep green.

"No, sir, I mean this," he replied, as he put his finger on the red.

"Ah, me!" sighed the oculist. "but what a fool I made of myself! The President of that big railroad couldn't tell red from green, nor blue from white, and I was ass enough to give it away that he was color-blind. I was only between us two, but he flew mad and called me an impostor and an idiot, and I was virtually kicked out of his office."

"You ought have lied about it," was remarked.

"I ought to have kept my mouth shut and never said a word. It was nothing to me whether he could tell the color of his hat or not, but it was a heap to him to learn that he'd been married for thirty years and didn't know whether his wife had black hair or red."

Getting a Clench on Him.

"He'll propose all right," said the old man confidently. "I have him fixed."

"What did you do?" asked the anxious mother.

"I asked him to lend me $50, and he did it. Oh, he is in earnest and no mistake."

"But you didn't want the money," protested the anxious mother.

"Of course not," answered the foxy father. "I only wanted to encourage him. He thinks he has me fixed so I can't object, and he'll come to the point in a hurry now."—Chicago, Post.

A Little Too Much.

The Gentleman—How's this? Last week it was the right leg you had lost? The Gaffer—Say, you can't expect a fellow to stand all week on one leg.

A Sly One

"Didn't you know it was against the law to beg for money?" said the lady to the tramp at the back door.

"I wasn't going to beg for money, ma'am," was the reply of the humble wanderer.

"It's just as bad to beg for bread."

"I wasn't going to beg for bread, ma'am."

"What are you going to beg for, then pray?"

"Only for one of your pictures, ma'am."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Mean Thing

"Are you going to make biscuits to-day, dear?"

"No, I wasn't going to; but if you want me to, I will."

"Well I wish you would. I might as well pay that election bet to-day as any other old time."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Long-Tail Wait

Tom—I saw a nickel-in-the-slot machine to-day that will tell whether a man is in love or not.

Jack—Well, the inventor ought to make a fortune out of it. Most any man will gladly give up a nickel to find out whether it is love or dyspepsia that ails him.

Too Many Already

"But could you bring yourself to marry a woman who smoked cigarettes?" they asked the young man who had insisted that women had a right to smoke if they chose.

"No. I have enough people begging my cigarettes now."

Society Notes.

Memorial services will be held in the M. E. church at North Lansing at 10 a. m. on Memorial Day. An interesting program is being prepared, consisting of songs, recitations, personal experience by some old soldiers, etc.

The pastor of Ledyard M. E. church will preach the sixth and last sermon on the Lord's Prayer next Sunday morning. There will be no service in the evening on account of union Memorial services at the King Ferry Presbyterian church.

Rev. Geo. Laughton will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening. Evening subject, "A Message to the Churches." As this is the concluding sermon of the term Mr. Laughton was engaged for, a meeting of the members will take place in the church at the close of the morning service. All members are requested to be present.

Rev. S. M. Gillam will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church next Sunday at the usual hours.

The L. A. S. of East Genoa will meet at Mrs. Eliza Beardsley's on Wednesday afternoon, May 31. All are cordially invited.

The members of the Universalist society will meet at the residence of B. L. Avery Saturday evening, May 27, at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of electing two trustees and to transact such other business as may come before the meeting. All members should manifest an interest in this meeting, as an effort will be made to re-organize the society and have services again. Mrs. E. M. Ford, May 23, 1899. Sec'y.

At the Head of the Procession.

By Annie Hamilton Donnell.

ALWAYS have I rid at the head o' the procession an' I'm always a-going to!"

Captain Ephraim Enty waved his empty right sleeve violently in emphasis of his words. His large, smooth face was red with wrath. The meek little face of his wife echoed his indignation faintly.

"Sh, sh, Eph'im," she murmured soothingly, "you'll get all het up."

"I am all het up. I tell you, Rhody, I'm not a-going to give up my place to no new upstart of a soldier, that never fit in a battle."

"He was in the war, Eph'im—he was in it clear from the beginnin', an' he ain't never been wuth anything since."

"I ain't sure, hey? I ain't sure?" thundered the captain. "Well, if he fit, where's his scars? What's he got to show for it?—that's what I want to know. Where's his crutches or his—that?"

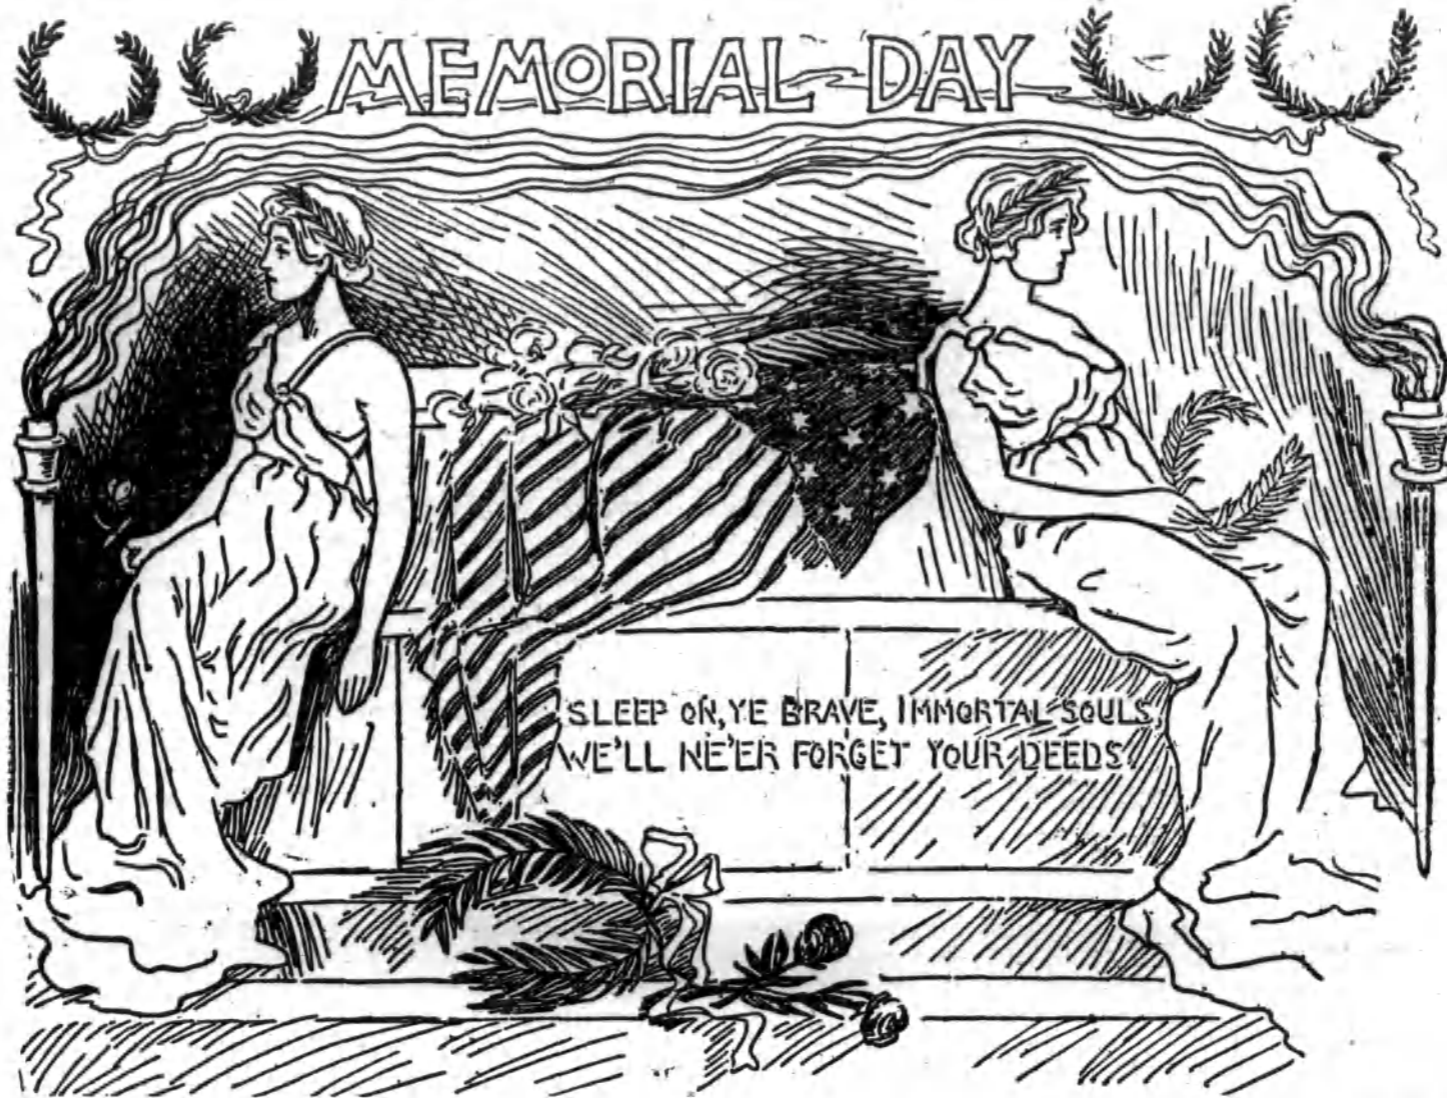

The empty sleeve drooped eloquently before Rhoda Enty's frightened face. She hid it suddenly in the faded blue folds and sobbed softly. She could never "get over" Eph'im's empty sleeve.

The thrifty little village of Dixville was, once a year, at any rate, fervently patriotic. On the thirtieth of May they marched in solemn procession to the tune of the Battle Hymn, and strewed flowers on their dead heroes' graves—lavishly, unstintingly, with awed, serious faces. The thirtieth of May was one of Dixville's great days. At the head of the line rode their living heroes. The oldest had honorable precedence, and Captain Ephraim Enty was the oldest. His place, on his lumbering old gray horse, at the very head of the solemn rows of town-folks, had never been disputed. For one day in her uneventful, monotonous year, Rhoda Enty was an honored woman by virtue of her widowhood and the fact that she was permitted to hold the Post's battle-scarred flag while the graves were being decorated. It was all the glory she asked for.

But this year there were some slight forebodings of disturbance, as May crept into her twenties, and close to her thirtieth day. Already at the meeting of the old soldiers to arrange the programme for the celebration, there had been hints of trouble in the wotedly peaceful gathering. There had even been a few—a very few—hot words.

"We've got to stick to our rules," old Uncle Basil had said rather excitedly, thumping his cane at every word. "We've got to stand by 'em, I tell you! If it's the rule for the oldest vet'ran to lead the procession, then the oldest vet'ran's got to! Because we'd all a sight rather have Eph ain't any excuse for breakin' rules. If the Lord didn't see fit to send him along till three years after he sent Joseph Patten, why that ain't our fault—nor it ain't the Lord's either. I guess He knew what He was doin'."

All but Uncle Basil stood by Captain Ephraim, however. It wouldn't well-to-do Enty home. The invalid wife had succumbed weakly to the winter's rigors.

Joseph Patten himself had managed to outlive them—by the help of the town. That was what "they said."

"There he is goin' by now, Eph'im," whispered Rhody shrilly. "He's been down to Uncle Basil's sawin' wood, I guess, an' now he's goin' home to supper. I should've thought Aunt Basil might have invited him in—bein' without any wife

so. He don't look as if he relished his meals very much."

Rhoda Enty laid aside her knitting and set about getting tea. She hummed a hymn quaveringly, as she worked—it was the Battle Hymn. As she passed the window toward Joseph Patten's cottage, she looked searchingly at its one leaning chimney. Her face grew sober.

"I don't see any smoke—he ain't goin' to have anything hot," she murmured. "He looked as if he'd ought to have something real nourishin' an' hot. I guess his wife would've seen to it—she was real careful of him, an' she an invalid, too."

She bustled about a minute, pouring out her husband's tea and making things handy. Then she filled a plate with the warm, odorless biscuits and put on her sunbonnet.

"Where you goin' to, Rhody?"

"Me? O, I'm just goin' out on an a pitcherful o' tea." She held the plate and saucer with a firm grip and smiled across the kitchen at Ephraim stoutly.

Then something else happened. To Rhody's amazement Ephraim pushed back his chair and crossed over to her with the teapot in his hand.

"I'll go along with you and tote the drink," he said, good humoredly. "It'll save you makin' another trip, an' I shouldn't relish my supper all alone, anyway. It won't take us but a minute to run over'n back."

They went away together on the little "arrant" of mercy. Instinctively they both began where they had left off in the Battle Hymn, just before supper was ready.

They went in, through the kitchen, to the half-open sitting room door. Then they hesitated, looking at each other doubtfully. A strained, eager voice came out to them. It sounded broken and strange to their ears.

"They don't believe I fit, Lord. They don't believe it. I can see it in their faces that they don't. They think I'm pretendin'. O, Lord, pretendin'. Can't you make 'em believe? I want that more than the gold round my hat—more than I want anything else but her. It's breakin' my heart because they don't believe—why, Lord, an' I fit all through the war! Thou knowest I did—I bore the fevers an' dampness an' hunger an' I'd have bore the bullets an' the knife if they'd come, too. I could have bore them easier than the weakness an' pain that's lasted all these years. Why, Lord—dear Lord, I never thought of finchin'! I wouldn't tell anybody but you—but I never did, I never did, Lord! I liked it—I wanted to fight!"

There was a moment's utter stillness, and while it lasted Captain Ephraim and his little wife held their breath. Then, when the eager sobbing voice began again, they hurried softly away.

Memorial Day was very near. There was one more meeting of the committee of old soldiers, and Captain Ephraim attended it as usual. There was no anger or heated discussion in that meeting. All the last arrangements were made and the minutiae of the day's celebration attended to. It was noticed by some of the old soldiers' wives how serious and gentle the veterans were when they came home. Rhoda was unsurprised.

The great day itself dawned in a setting of red, white and blue, as it should. Dixville awoke and rejoiced at the brilliant East and the white of the apple blossoms and the blue of the sky overhead. The whole little town was alive with patriotism and zeal. At ten the procession formed in front of the town hall, and went winding away through all the streets, that were bright with flags. The borrowed band played the Battle Hymn finely.

At the head of the little line rode Joseph Patten on Captain Ephraim's old gray horse. He was little and bent and weak, but no one noticed that. They all noticed how straight he sat and how his face shone—and how his brass buttons and the bit of gilt cord around his hat caught the sunlight splendidly. He was coated in army blue and nobody chose to see the coat was much too big and the sleeves were turned up at the wrists. If anyone gazed, it was never known in Dixville.

Behind the leader marched the other "boys," and one of them wore a brown coat with an empty sleeve. There were no brass buttons, but the sunlight caught the eyes under their gray brows, above the ordinary coat—and how they shone!

"Glory, glory, Hallelujah," played the borrowed band.

"Glory, glory, Hallelujah," tramped the "feet triumphantly—

"SHE HELD THE POST'S BATTLE-SCARRED FLAG WHILE THE GRAVES WERE BEING DECORATED."

seem like Memorial Day at all unless Eph rid at the head, with the wind flapping his empty coat sleeve, they said. That empty sleeve added a touch of pathetic dignity to the occasion—they were all proud of it.

Little feeble, tottery Joseph Patten—how would he look sitting astride a horse gay with the trappings of war? Ten months before, Joseph Patten and his invalid wife had moved into Dixville—into the little unpainted, unbecomingly house next to the trim, arrant—you go right ahead an' eat, Eph'im."

"But what you goin' to do with them biscuits—that's what I want to know," persisted Captain Ephraim, laughing.

Rhoda Enty's little figure in its calico gown faced about in the doorway. "Well," she said unflinchingly, "then I'll tell you. I'm goin' to take 'em over to Joseph Patten, for his supper—an' I've got some preserves in this saucer, an' I'm comin' back after future patriots. She has taken pains to learn something of each name graven on the soldiers' monument of their own town and the story of the lives or deeds of valor of those men are as household words.

The devoted little family are up with the first streak of dawn on May the 30th, to gather wild flowers—full of enthusiasm about doing honor to their favorite heroes.

It is a pretty sight to see the little procession march down the village street, laden with flowers and flags. The youngest toddler feels the dignity of his position as he stumbles along under a mass of blossoms as large as himself. As they pass along, other children are apt to join them, and all are welcomed who will bring a contribution.

When beyond the limits of the town they seek the outlying cemeteries, they all break forth into singing as they tramp along—shouting lustily the old war songs—under the leadership of the sturdy little mother, whose warm heart thrills with the thought that the "brave boys" sang those very airs as a vent for their enthusiasm, or perhaps to reanimate their courage or stifle homesickness.

GARLANDS FOR THE BRAVE.

A Beautiful and Appropriate Observance of Memorial Day.

IN all the year no better time could be chosen for the exhibition of patriotism than Memorial Day—never could it find more graceful expression than by placing nature's loveliest types of immortality upon the graves of those who have forfeited their lives for their country.

There is a patriotic little matron living in a New England town, who boasts of coming of soldierly lineage, and who, in anticipation of Memorial Day, gathers her small brood about her to listen to thrilling tales of heroism and self-sacrifice—chronicled during the Civil War—thus educating

THE PROCESSION OF LITTLE PATRIOTS.

HOSTILITY TO AMERICANS.

Consulate at Manaos Stoned and Coat-of-Arms Torn Down.

No Apparent Reason For the Action—The Wilmington's Visit—Her Voyage to Iquitos, Peru.

MANAOS, Upper Amazon, Brazil (By Cable).—The United States Consulate here has been stoned by a mob and the consular coat of arms torn down and destroyed. The office of the Amazon Steamship Company, an English concern, was also attacked. Fortunately the Consul and the English agent were both absent at the time, and thus escaped bodily injury at the hands of the rioters.

In March last the United States gunboat Wilmington was sent by the United States Government to Brazil on a mission to cultivate friendly political and commercial relations, to ascend the Amazon as far as she could go and to explore the region above Manaos.

It was understood the United States Government had made all necessary arrangements with the Brazilian Government in order that the commanding officer of the Wilmington might carry out his orders. Official dinners and other entertainments were given in honor of the officers of the Wilmington and cordial speeches of friendship were made upon these occasions.

The captain and officers of the Wilmington did everything incumbent upon them in a social and official way to carry out their mission. The Americans heard of no other difficulty than that of procuring coal and pilots. Finally, procuring both, the Wilmington left for Iquitos, Peru. No excitement was notified until a few days after the Wilmington had departed, when the mob formed, marched to the American Consulate and committed its outrages.

The people and officials of Iquitos were immensely pleased and complimented by the visit of the American man-of-war. The officers were feted at official and private receptions. But Iquitos is in Peru and not Brazil.

Manaos, with a population of 60,000 persons, is beautifully located on the Rio Negro, ten miles above its junction with the Amazon. It taps the richest rubber district in the world. Extensive and costly improvements are being made to beautify the city, such as paving the streets, installing large electric plants for the light and street railway systems, and the new water works, in all of which American engineering, capital and machinery are largely employed.

COUNTERFEITING GANG INDICTED. Bills Found Against Ingham and Newitt and Their Alleged Accomplices.

PHILADELPHIA (Special).—The United States Grand Jury found true bills against all the men who were arrested in connection with the counterfeit silver certificates and the counterfeit revenue stamps. There are three indictments against E. P. Ingham, former United States District Attorney, and his assistant, Harvey K. Newitt. In the first bill Ingham and Newitt were charged with conspiracy with Jacobs and Kendig to commit an offense against the United States Government. Five of the eight counts of this bill charge conspiracy to bribe an operative of the Secret Service; two, conspiracy to defraud the United States; and one, conspiracy to utter as true forged revenue stamps. The second indictment charges aiding and abetting Jacobs and Kendig in counterfeiting, and the third charges bribery of William J. McManus, a Secret Service operative. James Burns was indicted for aiding and abetting Kendig in forging revenue stamps. B. S. Bredell and Arthur Taylor were indicted for engraving plates for the James Monroe head $100 note and for engraving the revenue stamps. Samuel B. Downey was indicted for accepting a bribe as a United States officer, and W. L. Kendig and W. H. Jacobs were indicted for making plates and counterfeit notes and revenue stamps.

PLOT AGAINST THE BOERS.

Eight Europeans Arrested at Johannesburg For High Treason.

PRETORIA, Transvaal Republic (By Cable). The names of the men arrested in Johannesburg, charged with high treason in enlisting men for the purpose of rebellion, are officially given as Colonel Nichols, Captain Patterson, Lieutenants Tremlett, Ellis and Allen, Quartermaster Mitchell and Sergeants Fries and Hooper.

The arrests were made in Johannesburg practically simultaneously, and the prisoners were brought here on a special train before the Outlander residents were aware of what had happened.

The Transvaal executive officers have held a secret session to consider the matter. It is understood that they discussed the treatment to be accorded the prisoners, who, if convicted of treason, are liable to be punished with death. It has been ascertained that none of the prisoners is an employe of the British South African Company, of which Cecil Rhodes is the head and front.

WATSON OFF FOR MANILA. He Has Sailed on the City of Peking to Relieve Admiral Dewey.

SAN FRANCISCO (Special).—Rear-Admiral J. C. Watson, who will succeed Admiral Dewey in command of the Asiatic Squadron, has sailed for Manila, via Hong Kong, on the City of Peking. About an hour before the steamer sailed a small crowd assembled on the dock to bid the Rear-Admiral farewell. He ran down the gangplank as gayly as a lieutenant of twenty-five. He shook hands with several men, but on the cheeks of half a dozen pretty girls he impressed kisses that would have made Hobson tremble for his laurels had he been present. Admiral Watson was accompanied by his staff and five mechanics from Mare Island bound for Manila.

Great Storm Off Honduras.

The steamship Foxhall arrived at New Orleans, a few days ago, and reported a great storm off the Honduras coast. The yacht Mystic was wrecked with eight American passengers. They reached shore, but were almost starved. One of them died afterward of starvation. Several other wrecks were reported with serious loss of life among the natives.

General Henry Arrives Home.

The United States transport McPherson arrived a few days ago at the Port of New York from Ponce, having on board General Guy V. Henry, former Military Governor of Porto Rico.

WHOLE CITY ON A STRIKE

Residents of Wheeling, W. Va., Refuse to Ride on the Street Cars.

RECEIPTS $100 IN FIVE WEEKS.

Populace, Including Business Men, Support the Strikers, Who Want Their Pay Increased—Non-Union Men and United States Officials the Only Patrons of the Car Companies.

WHEELING, W. Va. (Special).—When a stranger gets off the train here he is met outside the railroad station by a committeeman of the striking trolley employes, who offers to pin on his coat the button which the whole city seems to have adopted as its motto. The legend on the button is:

I'LL WALK.

The total receipts of the Wheeling street railway lines have been less than $100 for the past five weeks. The cars run regularly, but carry scarcely any one except the non-union motorman and conductor and the two United States deputy marshals. It is estimated that five passengers ride daily on the cars.

The strikers demand twenty cents an hour for nine hours' work, which the companies refuse to grant. In 1898 the Wheeling Railway Company was paying twenty cents an hour to its men. Then they were cut to 17 1/2 cents, and dull times was given as the reason for the reduction, which, it was promised, was to be temporary only. In 1896, instead of a restoration to the old rates, the men were further cut to sixteen cents an hour, and this spring, when wages advanced in other lines, the trolley employes began to organize. The management discharged every man who became active in the movement to form a union, but the organization was formed finally, and the demand for twenty cents an hour was made upon the Wheeling line and the Wheeling and Elm Grove Suburban line.

There was much disorder at the beginning of the strike. The cars were stoned and women surrounded them and dragged the non-union men from the platforms. The Chief of Police refused to man the cars with officers, and then Judge Jackson came to the company's rescue. The line carries mail, and he issued sweeping instructions and swore in an army of deputy marshals, besides delivering a scathing lecture from the bench to the people of the city for sympathizing with the strikers.

PEACE CONFERENCE OPENS.

The Preliminary Exercises of Delegates at the Hague.

THE HAGUE (By Cable).—The Peace Conference called by the Czar of Russia has opened a few days ago in the "House in the Woods," two miles from the Hague.

M. DE STAAL, (President of the Peace Conference at the Hague.)

M. de Beaufort, President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Government of the Netherlands, delivered the opening address and welcomed the delegates. M. de Staal, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, and head of the Russian delegation, informally assumed the Presidency of the Conference. After the appointment of nine Secretaries, M. de Staal's proposal that the sessions be secret was adopted.

QUEEN'S PUBLIC FAREWELL.

Ceremonies at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

LONDON (By Cable).—Queen Victoria laid the foundation-stone of the Victoria and Albert Museum a few days ago. The event is her last public appearance. She drove through the streets lined with troops from Buckingham Palace, the royal carriage being escorted by a detachment of the Life Guards. Her Majesty was accompanied by several Princes and Princesses, and other royal personages met her at the museum, where a raised dais was reserved for them. The Ambassadors, members of the Cabinet and the leading State officials occupied a pavilion. Crowds of people gathered along the route from early morning, and an enormous number had gathered at the time the Queen started from the palace. The houses along the route were decorated, and there were strings of flags across the roads.

Her Majesty looked remarkably well. She was dressed in black, except for a white plume in her bonnet. She took the greatest interest in the mechanical part of the stone-laying, talking with the Prince of Wales on the subject.

OTIS REFUSES THE TERMS.

Request of the Filipinos For an Armistice Again Denied.

MANILA (By Cable).—Two military and two civil Filipino Commissioners, appointed to co-operate with three citizens of Manila in negotiating terms of peace, arrived here a few days ago.

They submitted a new proposition, but waited an armistice pending the session of the Filipino Congress. Major-General Otis refused to entertain the proposition.

NEW YORK STATE NEWS.

State G. A. R. Encampment.

This year's State encampment of the G. A. R. was held at Syracuse. The city was beautifully decorated in honor of the veterans. The first session opened in the Alhambra with "America," sung by the school children of the city. Mayor McGuire made an address of welcome and Colonel Anson S. Wood, Department Commander of the State, responded. In the afternoon there was a parade in the principal streets, participated in by the local military organizations and 600 veterans. The delegates elected J. W. Kay, of New York, Department Commander; Jere S. Cross, of Oswego, Junior Vice-Commander; Dr. Frank Madden, of Plattsburg, Medical Director, and the Rev. J. G. Ferguson, of Little Falls, Chaplain. Resolutions were adopted honoring Colonel J. D. Shaw, of Watertown, for National Commander and President McKinley's Administration. The encampment unanimously adopted a resolution strongly denouncing anti-imperialism, a copy of which was forwarded to President McKinley. The following resolution, calling for the removal of H. Clay Evans as Pension Commissioner, was also adopted: "Resolved, That it is the sense of this department that the administration of the Pension Department by H. Clay Evans meets the emphatic disapprobation of this department and of every veteran who is entitled to a pension under the law, and we ask that he be removed and the office filled by a man who will administer the pension law according to the intent of the framers of the law, the Congress that passed it and the President who signed it." The Women's Relief Corps elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. Mary E. Seely, of Syracuse; Senior Vice-President, Mrs. Jennie B. Shepard, of Skaneateles; Junior Vice-President, Mrs. Maria Mead, of Olean; Treasurer, Mrs. Mary Wilson, of Rochester; Chaplain, Mrs. Armonella Deventer, of Central Square. Executive Board—Mrs. Sarah E. Fulton, of Rochester, Chairman; Mrs. Kate T. Gleason, of Albany; Mrs. Estelle B. Meador, of Gasport; Mrs. Carolyn Wright, of Ilion, and Mrs. Amanda Frantz, of Geneva. Mrs. Seely appointed as Secretary Mrs. Sarah E. Phillips, of Syracuse. The election of officers of the ladies of the G. A. R. resulted: Department President, Mrs. A. C. Brainard, of Buffalo; Senior Vice-President, Mrs. S. A. Hobert, of Penn Yan; Junior Vice-President, Miss Lillian Halsey, of Yonkers; Chaplain, Mrs. L. Gardner, of Brooklyn; Treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Roach, of Utica; Delegate to the National Convention, Miss Anna Fleig, of Amsterdam. Mrs. Mary Walsh, of Buffalo, was appointed Secretary by the newly elected President.

Roswell P. Flower's Bequests.

The will of Roswell P. Flower was filed for probate with Surrogate Charles I. Adams at Watertown. In the petition for probate accompanying the will it is stated that the former Governor's real property is estimated at $6,500,000 in value and his personal property at $75,000. Mr. Flower left bequests of $40,000 to each of his brothers and sisters, or their heirs; $25,000 to Frederick S. Flower; $10,000 to his former cashier, Ransom S. Pattison; $10,000 in trust to St. Thomas's parish, New York, for the benefit of the parish house, erected in memory of his son, who died in 1890; $10,000 to Trinity parish, Watertown, for the benefit of the poor; $5,000 to his namesake, Roswell Flower George, of this city, and $5,000 to Roswell Flower Mundy, of Chicago. The residue is left to his widow and daughter, share and share alike. Mrs. Sarah M. Flower is executrix, and John B. Taylor and Anson R. Flower are executors. Mr. Flower had made a practice for years of giving away at least one-tenth of his income. His gifts, however, always far exceeded his regular tithe. During the last year, it is learned from the best authority, he had given away, directly or indirectly, more than $1,000,000.

Capized in the Hudson River.

E. Albert Tower, a millionaire, his son, twelve years old, Clinton Matthews, his secretary, and Edward Lane, went sailing on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie a few days ago in a boat modeled after a South Sea Island proa. It was like a new toy for Mr. Tower, and he was trying all sorts of experiments with it. A squall filled out the sail, causing the boat to careen. Tower was at the rudder. He slackened the rope which controlled the sail, but in so doing let out the rope caught. Before he could loose the line the boat partially capized, throwing all into the water. Mr. Matthews and Mr. Tower bent their efforts to save the boy. They helped him into the half-filled boat and the others clung to the gunwales. The crew of the tugboat Suste picked up the half-drowned sailors. The proa did not sink and was towed ashore. Mr. Tower is ready to hire a South Sea Islander to give him instructions how to sail his new craft.

Convict Jourdan Released, With $4398.

Joseph Jourdan, whose sentence of life imprisonment for the killing of George Huffer was commuted by Governor Roosevelt, was released from Sing Sing Prison a few days ago. He had been in prison there since April 6, 1875. Jourdan was a veteran of the Civil War and drew a pension. This has been received at the prison regularly since he has been there. The authorities placed it on deposit for him, and, counting the allowance of the State, Jourdan received $4398.40 when he stepped out of the prison a free man. Warden Johnson gave him a railroad ticket to New York, and also offered him a few words of advice.

Killed His Son and Himself.

Fred Burt, a farmer residing at Langdon a few days ago killed his four-year-old son, Clinton, and then killed himself. He entered the house at about noon, and drawing a revolver fired four shots at the child, one taking effect between the eyes. The mother, who heard the reports, ran screaming for help. Burt sat down, shed tears, and then tried to kill himself with the revolver. Falling in this he got a shotgun and blew off the top of his head. It is thought he was suffering from temporary insanity. The family had always lived happily and there was no previous sign of mental trouble.

Drank Poison by Mistake.

Ernest Goryea, Joseph Pattinone and Henry Bushey, all of Chazy, drove to Plattsburg a few days ago to spend the day. As they were returning in the evening, in an alleged intoxicated condition, they found a bottle, which they supposed contained liquor, and drank freely of its contents. Shortly after reaching home they were taken violently sick, and, although aid was quickly summoned, the two former died in great agony, while Bushey is critically ill. The coroner's inquest failed to throw any light on the matter as to what the bottle contained.

Fell and Broke His Neck.

George Brown, forty years of age, of Little Meadow, a prosperous farmer, while on his way home from Apalachin, a few days ago fell from his wagon and broke his neck. The driverless team led to the discovery of the dead body.

OUR POLICY IN CHINA.

The Government to Participate in the Empire's Dismemberment.

TO MAINTAIN TREATY RIGHTS.

America From Now on to Be a Factor in China—Will Oppose Any Action of the Powers Which May Abrogate Our Treaty Rights—The Policy Which Has Been Formulated at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—After years of waiting the United States is to become a factor in the future of China. Henceforth it will take part in any movement looking to the dismemberment of the Chinese Empire, and under certain conditions may demand a portion of the territory.

For the time it will do no more than watch developments and insist upon treaty rights wherever needed, but now that this step has been taken it is expected to develop by successive stages until finally the American eagle will stand with the English lion and the Russian bear, demanding its full share of the fertile Empire almost ripe for distribution among the powers of the world.

On authority it is positively asserted that the United States will protest vigorously against any scheme for partitioning China which does not distinctly guarantee treaty rights and commercial opportunities to her citizens.

Concessions asked for or given are not to be objected to, except where there may be a possibility that possession of the concession may be followed by an attempt to exercise sovereignty over the territory covered by such concession.

Any attempt of this sort is to be opposed by the United States. It has informed, semi-officially, the governments most interested in the attempt to parcel out the great Chinese domain of the attitude it will assume, and from two of them, Great Britain and Russia, has received direct assurances that no ulterior move prompts the efforts to secure concessions, and that the interests of this country are to be protected in any event.

But this assurance is not satisfactory. The State Department assumes the position that every movement in China is of interest to this country, and for the first time it has taken an advanced and positive stand. Henceforth the nations now engaged in the endeavor to parcel out the Chinese Empire will have to do the work with the understanding that this is to be the policy of the United States:

- 1. It will oppose any plan to wrest sovereignty from the reigning powers in China over any portion of the Empire unless the interests of this country are fully protected.
2. The treaty rights we have with China are to be upheld, and as cessation of sovereignty abrogates existing treaties with China, the only way Great Britain and Russia could secure consent of the United States would be by promptly arranging new treaties guaranteeing the same rights it now has under Chinese rule.
3. The open door policy is to be insisted upon as the only guarantee that the growing commerce of this country will not be debarrd from its prospective greatest market in the far East.

STORMS IN THE WEST.

Destroy Considerable Property and Injure Many Persons in Ohio.

AKRON, Ohio (Special).—A tornado struck this city a few days ago and did much damage. The storm struck the tents of Mann's circus and they collapsed upon the crowd. Policemen had hard work to prevent a panic, but the spectators were finally released without injury.

The shops of the Akron Sewer Pipe Company also suffered heavily. A portion, more than 150 feet square, of the main building was blown down, and three men were slightly injured. Other shops and buildings about the city were damaged more or less, and many trees were destroyed. Carriages were overturned in the street, and awnings were torn away.

CANAL FULTON, Ohio (Special).—In the storm which struck this place, the wall of a schoolhouse was blown in and nine pupils were injured, some of them seriously. Four scholars were buried beneath the debris of brick and wooden beams. They were extricated by the teacher.

TOLEDO, (Special).—One of the worst wind and rain storms in years was experienced in Toledo. Several small boats on the river were capized. In the city a number of plate glass fronts were blown in, and other damage to a considerable amount done.

Several houses were unroofed at Tiffin, and at the France stone quarry a number of workmen were injured, Lewis Leslie being picked up by the wind and carried some distance.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (Special).—In a severe storm the house of Julius Bundt, at Augusta, was struck by lightning, and Bundt was killed.

CUBAN POVERTY DECREASING.

General Wood Reports Much Improved Conditions at Manzanillo.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA (By Cable).—Major-General Leonard Wood, Military Governor of the Department of Santiago, has returned from Manzanillo, where he made a personal inspection of the prevailing conditions. He says that he found affairs progressing satisfactorily in all the places he visited. The people are beginning to work on the small plantations and poverty is rapidly decreasing. The country people say they have no fear of brigands, and that the reports of lawlessness are mainly sent out by Cubans who are antagonistic to the Americans. These reports have little or no foundation. General Wood was received everywhere with demonstrations of appreciation of the policy he has pursued regarding small municipalities.

Severe Storm in Pennsylvania.

A windstorm struck the country surrounding Altoona, Penn., a few days ago, doing severe damage. The Altoona Silk Mill, the Rhines Woodworking Mill and three residences were damaged, entailing a loss of $100,000. In Houldaysburg, the county seat, the Court House, Presbyterian Church and a business block were partly destroyed. The cities of Tyrone, Blossburg and Hustington also Nearly Fifty-eight Years Old!!!

It's a long life, but devotion to the true interests and prosperity of the American People has won for it new friends as the years rolled by and the original members of its family passed to their reward, and these admirers are loyal and steadfast to-day, with faith in its teachings, and confidence in the information which it brings to their homes and firesides.

As a natural consequence it enjoys in its old age all the vitality and vigor of its youth, strengthened and ripened by the experiences of over half a century. It has lived on its merits, and on the cordial support of progressive Americans.

It is The New York Weekly Tribune, acknowledged the country over as the leading National Family Newspaper.

PEPPINA'S COMMISSIONS.

The Queen of Italy's Discovery About the Maid Who Shopped For Her.

An amusing story has been sent to the London Pall Mall Gazette from its correspondent in Rome. The Queen of Italy had a trusted maid who did her shopping. The maid fell ill, and the Queen sent a lady-in-waiting in her stead to buy a gown. The shopkeeper asked $200 for a plain pique dress, and the lady demurred at the price. The shopkeeper declared that the price was not excessive, saying: "There are Peppina's dues to come out of it. She always insists on having over fifty per cent. commission."

The result was the dismissal of Peppina, a sadder and wiser, but not impoverished woman, her perquisites having been enormous.

CONVICTS AS COUNTERFEITERS.

Bogus Silver Dollars Made by Prisoners in Colorado.

The discovery has been made that some very successful counterfeiters have been operating in the State Penitentiary at Canon City, Col.

The counterfeiters made are silver dollars. It is believed they are of a combination, principally of Babbitt metal, which was used in setting the grannings during the construction of the prison. It is supposed the coins were made in plaster paris molds. The coins were first detected by marshall's men in an investigation, and twenty-eight of the bogus dollars were found in the possession of prisoners. No clue was obtained as to the identity of the counterfeiters. The coins are so well executed as to deceive almost anyone.

Franklin's Famous Toast.

Franklin was dining with a small party of distinguished gentlemen, when one of them said: "Here are three nationalities represented; I am French, and my friend here is English and Mr. Franklin is an American. Let each one propose a toast."

It was agreed to, and the Englishman's turn came first. He arose and in a tone of a Briton bold said: "Here's to Great Britain, the sun that gives light to all nations of the earth."

The Frenchman was rather taken back at this, but he proposed: Here's to France, the moon whose magic rays move the tides of the world."

Franklin then arose, with an air of quaint modesty, and said: "Here's to our beloved George Washington, the Joshua of America, who commanded the sun and moon to stand still—and they obeyed."
