Farmers' Field Days At Cornell.

A series of three farmers' field days is announced by the state college of agriculture at Cornell. They will be held at Ithaca on June 30, July 1 and 2.

This is the first event of the kind held by the college at Ithaca, and its chief purpose will be to give the farmers of the state an opportunity to see the institution and the experimental farm during the growing season when the farm can be seen to advantage and its work apparent. In addition, the college will provide instruction and entertainment by means of demonstrations, lectures and recreation features. These summer field days will thus supplement the regular Cornell farmers' week of February.

The general plan is to hold indoor lectures every day from 10 in the morning until noon. Many lectures, on a variety of subjects, will be going on at this time. Those who attend can select the topics in which they are most interested.
Field demonstrations will be held from 1 o'clock until 5. These will include demonstrations in orchard and experiment plot, designed to show new facts in plant breeding, soil treatment, crop rotations, pasture improvements, flower growing and the like.
As with the regular winter's farmers' week, there will be something for every member of the family.
The evenings will be given up to recreational features, either indoors or out, as the weather conditions permit. Bailey Hall and the State Drill Hall, which is said to be the largest building of its kind in the country, will be available for such gatherings. In addition, excursions about the college farm and the campus will be organized for those who wish to get an impression of its complete equipment.

DRY SENTIMENT CRYSTALLIZING IN NEW YORK CITY

Organization Formed to Support
Eighteenth Amendment and Enforcement Law.

New York city, the pivotal city of the pivotal state in the wet's fight to break down the Eighteenth Amendment now has a branch of the Allied Citizens of America, incorporated "to uphold the Constitution of the United States of America, particularly the Eighteenth Amendment."

Men and women prominent in business and social life attended the initial meeting at which the need for such a movement and its aims were outlined. The keynote was struck by one speaker who declared that New York's branch of the organization must have a vast membership in order "to show politicians that it is politically safe to vote dry."

"The trouble with the situation," said Mary Grey Brewer, one of the organizers of the movement, "is that the wets are on the alert working with all their might to discredit prohibition, while the people who believe in it and see its benefits are sitting placidly with folded hands saying, 'Isn't it nice that the saloons are closed?'"

It was stated at the meeting that thousands of pledge cards have been signed by New Yorkers and that, as a result of the economic and social improvements visible in the city due to prohibition, sentiment is crystallizing for a real fight to uphold the law.

Plans were laid for meetings, publicity campaigns and membership drives, all of which will be of an educational nature calculated to give the people the real truths about prohibition which have been withheld by the wet press.

ESTATES OF DEAD MEN BRING PENNIES

Woman in Black, Auction Fiend at Morgue, Gets Most of Articles.

The estates of dead men sold for pennies at St. Paul, Minn. Behind a marble table in the county morgue the coroner disposed by auction of the pitiful fragments of property left by St. Paul's unknown dead in 1919.

When relatives or near friends of those whose bodies are brought to the morgue make no claim to their "estates" the law requires public sale.

"That watch," said the coroner, and held it up, battered, worth $1 once, "stopped when its owner died. It says ten minutes to ten."

"Maybe that was his zero hour," commented a woman in black. "I bid 20 cents."

Then came the razor an old man used to slit his throat. The bidding was high, but the woman in black, confirmed auction fiend, bought it for 76 cents.

There was a knife. "A little rusty," said the coroner. "I think we found this fellow in the river."

Post cards, bits of cloth, a bottle opener, keys, a locket with a broken back—all the things that meant in their own private way much—maybe all—to some one once, were heaped on the marble slab and pawed over by the woman in black and her rival bidders, then sold by the state for copper and silver.

"Two estates left," announced the auctioneer, "I don't suppose anybody wants this."

He held up the soiled, blood-stained discharge paper of James Alton, one-time soldier of the land.

"I'll take that. Here's a dime," snapped a bidder with two gold stripes on his sleeve. My American Legion post'll try to find his folks."

"And this," continued the coroner and carried to view a bedraggled Bible, its imitation leather puffed and swollen by moisture.

"Gimme," barked the woman in black. "I want that. I bid 15 cents." She carried away the Bible that once was Ole Johnson's.

"He gave his heart to God at the Union Gospel mission December 2, 1914," was the fading legend on the fly-leaf.

VETERANS HOLD POST AT DOOR OF HOUSE

Visitors who throng the gallery at the house of representatives, if they only know, could find a bit of "human interest" in two messengers at the gallery door: These are John Rowe, veteran of the Mexican war and Ex-Sergt. Emmett Scott, a hero of St. Mihiel.

Mr. John Rowe for forty years has held the post of messenger at the gallery door of the house. Mr. Rowe entered the United States army November 10, 1845. At the battle of Vera Cruz in 1847, he had his hand blown off in an artillery bombardment. Now, at the age of eighty-five he is in splendid health and fully expects to remain at his post at the capital for many years to come. Ex-Sergt. Emmett Scott since last November has been a door messenger at the gallery of the house, while in his spare hours he is busy studying law for his future work. Mr. Scott served two and one-half years in the world war with the Fifty-fourth ammunition train. In September, 1918, he was seriously wounded in the leg by a high explosive shell at the battle of St. Mihiel. This picture shows the veterans at their post outside the gallery door.

Corset a Relic.

A corset worn by Mrs. James Wilson, whose husband was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and which had been handed down to the youngest child of each generation, has fallen into the possession of Mrs. James Wilson of Marshall, Mich.

Canandaigua expects that a branch of the Miller Corset company of Cortland will be located there.

Ashville, Chautauque county has hopes. Oil has been discovered flowing on a well driven a few years ago, and the discovery will be investigated.

Officials of the seven banks in Jamestown have signed an agreement to close the banks on Saturday evenings in June and August and open them on Friday evenings during those three months.

By a unanimous vote the Western New York Episcopal diocesan council ordered that the salary of Bishop Brent of Buffalo be increased from $6,000 to $10,000 a year with an expense allowance of $2,000.

There is not a vacant house in Wrocton at present, due to the rapid industrial growth of the town. A large number of barns are being converted into dwelling houses to take care of the increased population.

The Savona Review will cease publication next month, being the third newspaper in Steuben county to suspend, owing to the high cost of print paper and other things that enter into the makeup of a newspaper.

The people of Belfast have adopted the old time. For one day the new time was tried. The school opened one hour earlier. There was much tardiness on the part of the pupils and complaint on the part of the parents.

Bearing the names of members of the Monroe county bar who served in the war, a tablet will be unveiled at the Rochester court house on June 24, when the members of the Bar association will take their annual cruise.

Blowing of whistles, ringing of bells and marching of students made up a celebration in honor of the signing by Gov. Smith of Senator Lusk's Cortland Normal school bill, which makes available the sum of $1,750,000 for the erection of a normal school building in Cortland.

Daylight saving will remain in effect in New York state, Governor Smith vetoing the Fowler bill designed to repeal the daylight saving law. A section granting municipalities local option on the question of daylight saving was incorporated in the repeal bill as an amendment.

Mrs. Ida Y. Smith of McGraw was elected president at Albany of the Rebekah state assembly. Other officers chosen were: Vice president, Mrs. Louisa Schlitt, New York; secretary, Miss Agnes E. Rogers, New York; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie Atherly, Auburn, warden; Mrs. Susia Murray, Gouverneur.

With the rapid growth of industries in Cuba in the past two years, Cuba is confronted with a serious shortage of homes. Current rumors say money interests there contemplate building houses to care for the incoming labor with the possibility that a building syndicate will be formed to relieve present conditions.

Cider is O. K. and devoid of alcohol when it leaves the factory, but develops a kick when bottled. This is the contention of the Hildick Apple Juice company at Mt. Kisco, which has brought suit to restrain Charles O'Connor, federal prohibition director, from enforcing the prohibition act so far as it relates to its product.

New York state produced just a third of the total maple sugar crop of the country and as producers in the state received an average of 35 cents per pound for sugar and $2.70 per gallon for syrup, the total value of New York's share was this year more than $4,000,000. The average yield of each tree was about two pounds of sugar or one-fourth gallon of syrup. At this rate the gross return from an acre of woods averaging 50 good maple trees was not far from $35.

Grape growers and farmers in Northern Chautauque will hold a meeting the latter part of this month to organize for the purpose of protecting their vineyards and farms from depredations this summer and fall. Local police justices and other magistrates have assured the farmers that persons arrested for stealing will be given the maximum limit of the law. Last year growers in that section were heavy losers, and aside from the farm products stolen, whole sections of vineyards were stripped of grapes and much harm done to the vines in snatching off the fruit.

A decrease of from 25 to 50 per cent in acreage of corn, potatoes and grain in Western New York territory served by the Lackawanna railroad was predicted by Allen Merchant, agricultural agent of the D. L. & W. line. Unusually favorable weather is the one thing that will avert an acute food shortage this summer, in his opinion. "Unless the growing season proves remarkably good, we shall feel the pinch in Buffalo as well as in all other parts of this agricultural belt," he said. Mr. Merchant has just completed a two-weeks' survey of crop conditions in all Western New York counties served by the Lackawanna.

Little or no hardship because of the European war borer quarantine will be inflicted upon the farmers of Western New York, according to information obtained by the food division of the Wholesale Merchants & Manufacturers' association of Buffalo from the state department of food and markets, division of agriculture. Dunkirk has recently been added to the list of towns in the quarantine area. Buffalo is excluded. Other cities and villages which are quarantined are: Dayton, Perryburg and Persia in Cattaraugus county; Hasover, Pomfret and Sheridan in Chautauque and North Collins in Erie county. No other quarantine exists in Western New York.

The Marchers

By T. C. HARBAUGH
(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

A tattered flag with a riven star
At the head of a thin blue line,
A muffled drum says "Here they come—
The men of the oak and the pine."
Fame weaves a wreath for the marchers old
Whose locks are as white as the snow—
A wreath that is plucked by loving hands
On the fields of the long ago.
They all recall, 'neath the flags that wave,
The deeds they did in their prime,
And hearts beat fast as they go past
Down the avenues of Time;
They thrill at thought of the captured hill,
The old, old camps they see,
And they march again o'er shot-torn plain,
On, on to victory.

They live in the Nation's heart today,
Enshrined in a People's love,
The waving grass beneath their feet,
The arching skies above;
No trumpet's blare disturbs them now,
No long roll breaks their rest,
As on they march with heads erect,
Our bravest and our best.
Their pride is in the land they saved
On many a field of fame,
Their thoughts are with their comrades dead,
Each one they love to name;
As on they march let flowers fall,
Hats off to the thin blue line!
"They come, they come!" says the muffled drum,
"The men of the oak and the pine."

Before them rise toward the skies
Life's last and grim rebout,
And countless tears will fall when all
Are finally mustered out;
A tattered flag with a riven star
Is a symbol of deeds well done,
And our brave will live on the roll of Fame
As long as the rivers run.

Lesson to Be Remembered.
The presence of the veterans of the world war with boyish faces gives a fresh impulse and renewed strength to our Memorial day exercises, and so should it stir a new devotion to the things for which these men fought and for which their brothers died. World freedom was won by them upon the battlefield, but if its fruits are not to wither and decay they must be preserved by us. The meaning of their sacrifices must be taught in our homes, in our schools and in our churches, as well as in our memorial exercises. Thus only can we raise up a generation which shall translate those ideals into law and custom for the blessing of mankind.

Worthy of All Tributes.
In France today people, regardless of race, are strewing new graves with flowers and their eyes are misty with the tears of thanksgiving that the terrible conflict is over. Right again has triumphed, and with that triumph come the fresh responsibilities as well as the fresh courage to meet them and to make our tortured world a better place in which to live; a better place in which to die. Soldiers of all the ages, their sleep is sweeter today for the sincere tribute that we pay them.

MEMORIALS OF TWO WARS

Tree, With Its Scythes and Flags, Living Mementoes of Those Who Loved Their Country.

In 1861, when the unpleasantness between the North and South broke out, Wyman J. Johnson of Waterloo, N. Y., came in from the fields one day, hung his scythes in a tree and said to his parents: "I am going to enlist in the Union army; let the scythes hang there until I return." Johnson, after serving three years, died of wounds in 1864, and, in accordance with his request, his scythes was never taken down, and it still is in the tree, a fitting memorial to one who gave his life for his country. Early in 1918, two brothers, Raymond and Lynn Schaffer, on departing to join the American army and navy, respectively, also hung their scythes in this tree. In memory of Johnson, and in honor of the Schaffer brothers, flags are kept continually floating over the three scythes.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

We honor our heroic and patriotic dead by being true men, as true men by faithfully fighting the battles of our day as they fought the battles of their days.—David Gregg.

MIGHTY THRONG OF HEROES

No Disparagement to Say the World Has Never Seen Army Superior to "Boys in Blue."

Now that the last great war has been fought that will ever be fought, the question as to which was the greatest army the world has seen can be settled. In our judgment there can be no doubt that history will say unqualifiedly that the greatest army in every respect the world has seen was the army that fought and won the Civil war in the United States between 1861 and 1865.

Old and bent on the highways,
Their tattered flags on the breeze,
Never leaped at the jaws of death
Such fighting men as these;
Never saw flame or rampart
When battle fires ran red,
The like of these old gray soldiers
Who seek today their dead.

They are fast disappearing now—only the thin blue line remains of that great host of freemen who filled the world with their story. But, when the last man of them all shall have stood at salute before the Great Captain at the gates of Jasper, God will have folded in his heavens the mightiest throng of heroes that heaven itself has yet welcomed to its shining highways.

Bull Run Monument.

The first memorial to be erected to the memory of volunteers. It is on the historic field of Bull Run.

War Flags Carry Thrills.
There are war flags that carry a thrill in each frayed stripe and tattered star. From the garrison standard, lowered at Fort Moultrie in 1860, when Major Anderson and his command evacuated that post to occupy Fort Sumter, to the flag raised at Richmond in 1865, each powder-marked, bullet-torn emblem represents a chapter of national history written in indelible red, white and blue.

April 20, 1864

By Miles O'Reilly.

Three years ago today
We raised our hands to heaven,
And on the rolls of muster
Our names were thirty-seven.
There were just a thousand bayonets,
And the swords were thirty-seven,
As we took the oath of service
With our right hands raised to heaven.
O 'twas a gallant day
In memory still adored—
That day of our sun-bright nuptials
With the goddess of the sword!

Shrill rang the fife, the bugles blared,
And beneath a cloudless heaven
Twinkled a thousand bayonets;
And the swords were thirty-seven.

And of the thousand bayonets
Two hundred march today;
Hundreds lie in Virginian swamps
And hundreds in Maryland clay;
And other hundreds, less happily, drag
Their shattered limbs around
And envy the deep, calm, blessed sleep
Of the battlefield's holy ground.

As for us—one night a week ago
Our remnant, just eleven,
Gathered around a banqueting board
With seats for thirty-seven;
There were two limped in on crutches
And two had each but a hand
To pour the wine and raise the cup
As we toasted "Our Flag and Land!"

And the room seemed filled with whippers
As we looked at the vacant seats,
And with choking throats we pushed
Asid
The rich but unseasoned meats.
Then in silence we brimmed our glasses
And rose up—just eleven,
And bowed as we drank to the loved and the dead
Who had made us thirty-seven!

It matters not whether their bodies are here or in France, it is their Memorial day, and the American people pause from their activities to pay them tribute, together with the dead of other wars. Some day perhaps, it will be possible to place flowers upon the graves of all of our men who fell in the great fight. But wherever they rest these men will be honored by the people of the whole country and Memorial day now takes on a new significance greater than in its inception. Perhaps some time the lands of our allies will adopt this custom and establish May 30 as the day of commemoration of gallant deeds and unselfish service and sacrifice.

Day for Introspection.
Americans could not these days do better than commune with their own past and make the acquaintance of the nation's heroes. The memory of the boy who died at Shiloh, or at Chateau Thierry is worth more to the nation than all the teaching of all the cubist social reformers. For these boys did something, set an example, and built their lives into the life of the country. Unknown their names may be, but they are immortal, and their sacrifice is part of the inheritance of every American, and should be precious. We found America in the cantonments and on the battlefield, and not in a dirty Bohemia. Surely, Memorial day will carry some such message as this to every loyal heart and every clear-thinking mind. It ought to be reverently observed, with a grateful sense of God's mercies to this land which has meant, and still means, so much to the world. "Thank God," said Daniel Webster in his speech on the completion of the Bunker Hill monument, "I—I also—am an American!"

The Day of the G. A. R.
If there is anything in Memorial day it lies in preserving the traditions of a mighty host in blue that marched to do the work of the nation.
If there is anything in loyalty, in patriotism, in hope of the future, it lies in assuring every man, woman and child of the gratitude of the republic.

Kill the Spring House-Fly.

Kill the first fly of spring and thus destroy its millions of prospective descendants this summer! Now is the time to kill mankind's most deadly enemy!

The medical authorities of the United States, alarmed at the threatened importation of typhus fever and the germs of other intestinal diseases, are making special preparations to resist and combat the peril. Despite all war-time precautions many parts of Europe are being ravaged by communicable diseases which easily become epidemic under conditions favorable to their spread and development. The house fly is a great and active spreader of such diseases. It is the duty of everybody to exterminate him. Every accumulation of garbage, manure or filth of any kind is a hotbed for such development. Clean up and wipe out these plague spots.

The housefly is especially noted for skill in finding these spots, swarming with disease microbes, as breeding places for his offspring that feed voraciously on filth; each fly is marvelously equipped to distribute these seeds of disease where propagation is assured. The most deadly diseases are his specialty. Every fly-speck abounds in germs. In the track of a single fly have been found one hundred and sixteen colonies of germs, and on and in the body of a single fly 6,600,000 germs. As the chill of winter begins to depart, the flies that have hibernated emerge from their hiding-places and crawl sluggishly about, easy victims to the watchful housekeeper. Every fly should be instantly killed! Let not one escape! Eternal vigilance and instant death to the disease germ-carrier is the price of health and safety! Swat the spring fly on sight!!

Death of Chas. A. Clifford.

The Auburn Citizen gives the following obituary of Chas. Clifford of that city whose death occurred Tuesday, May 25:

Charles A. Clifford, for many years a resident of the First Ward, where he was well known and popular, is dead at his home, 3 Augustus St. He was 40 years old. He had been sick for 10 weeks. Mr. Clifford was a member of the Republican County Committee and for several years he had worked in his district in the interests of the party. He was also a member of the Sons of St. George. He was a man of affable disposition and estimable character and was held in the highest regard by close friends and general acquaintances as well.

Mr. Clifford was born in Axbridge, Somersetshire, England, and came to this country with his parents when a young boy. This was 30 years ago. He was employed at the Dunn & McCarthy Shoe Factory for a long time, but latterly worked at the Robinson-Bynon plant. He was an expert at his work and enjoyed the esteem of his employers and shopmates.

Mr. Clifford is survived by his wife, one son, Thomas E., his mother, three sisters, Florence, Beatrice and Ruth; five brothers, Reginald, Thomas, John Harold and Raymond, all of this city.

Funeral services were held at the house at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Lew Cass Bennett, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, officiating. Burial in Soule cemetery.

Mrs. Clifford was formerly Miss Mary Tyrrell of Genoa, and a trained nurse. She has the sympathy of many friends in this vicinity.

Basket Willow Farm.

A mile north of Clyde is located the largest farm in the United States, if not in the world, devoted exclusively to the growth of basket willow, says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. It is about sixty acres in extent, and is owned by the Barnes brothers. Every year this unique farm is covered with a forest of Lilliputian trees, thousands upon thousands in number, which grow up in the spring, reach a state of satisfactory maturity during the summer, and then are cut down and harvested in the fall and early winter. On the Barnes farm this process has been going on year after year for nearly forty years.

Supt. Springer Receives Gift.

The meeting of the teachers of the Fourth district held at King Ferry on Monday was one of the most interesting and successful ever held. The program as arranged by Supt. G. B. Springer was carried out in full, but there was one part of the program which he did not plan. At the close of the regular exercises, Principal Randall of the King Ferry Union school arose and with fitting words of appreciation presented Supt. Springer, in behalf of the teachers of his district, a beautiful chair, foot rest and waste basket. The chair is a rocker, of dark oak with brown leather seat and the foot rest exactly matches the chair. The recipient of the gift was so completely taken by surprise that it was some time before he could voice his thanks to the teachers. He highly prizes the gift and will ever hold the givers in grateful remembrance.

A Fine Entertainment.

The entertainment given at the hall in District No. 13, Forks Creek, brought out a full house, the seating capacity being entirely taken up and extra seats had to be brought in. The night was very favorable and the entertainment was enjoyed by all.

Each and everyone of the children did very nicely. The operetta was fine. To think of children taking the full program of such an entertainment is surprising and they surely showed that such a thing can and has been done, the very smallest boys in the whole school taking the lead in the latter part of the operetta, "just like grown ups."

Miss Ford, the teacher, gave two readings and was called back both times, to which she kindly responded. The receipts of the evening amounted to $28 which will be used for the school.

Mr. Duckett, a member of the 1920 class of the seminary, supplied the pulpit last Sunday and preached a most excellent sermon. Regular services next Sunday at 10:30 o'clock, with Sunday school immediately following.

The "Church Night" gathering on Tuesday evening was well attended, about 100 being present. The girls of the Willing Workers class provided the decorations, consisting of sprays of apple blossoms, lilacs and other flowers. The program included piano duets by Mrs. Bradley and Miss Cope, reading by Miss Jennie Ford, piano solos by Miss Cope, short addresses by Dr. MacPhail and Mr. Scott of the First church of Auburn, and a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Fargo. Following the program, refreshments were served, and a social hour was enjoyed. The addresses of the evening were good practical talks and were well received by the audience. The church greatly appreciates the interest of these Auburn pastors and their coming to help us. It is expected that definite announcement can soon be made regarding a supply for the pulpit.

The woman's class held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Leeson at East Genoa on Friday last, with fifteen ladies present. The officers were all re-elected for another year. Music by the victrola and the serving of refreshments concluded a very pleasant afternoon.

Flowers Were Laid on Graves of Soldiers in 1865.

Old Chronicles Credit John Redpath With Idea That Led to the Present Beautiful Custom of Memorial Day.

In the early part of April, 1865, a man named John Redpath was acting as superintendent of schools in the city of Charleston, S. C. John Redpath was a newspaper reporter with the Northern armies during the Civil war, and had been with General Sherman on his march to the sea, sending out the first newspaper report of the surrender of the city of Charleston. He was a man very much interested in education; that was why he was trying to better school conditions, which, after four years of the Civil war, were very bad. There was one school in which he was particularly interested, which was conducted in an old church.

As he walked to this school one morning he went past a place that had been famous as a race course, but was now used as a cemetery for the soldiers who had died in battle. He looked over the fence of the cemetery, and it made his heart sad to see the way the graves of the brave men were neglected. He wished that something might be done for them.

When he reached the school he addressed the children, telling them that it made him unhappy to see the badly cared-for graves, and asking them to try to find time to gather a few wild flowers for the cemetery.

"We'll gather armfuls of posies, and just hide the graves from sight—so that they'll never look bad again," one little pupil cried.

The enthusiasm of the youngster who had jumped to her feet and suggested the "armfuls of flowers" was not forgotten by John Redpath. As he went about his work during the next few days he thought of it often, and finally a beautiful plan grew in his mind.

He would set apart a day when all the graves in the soldiers' cemetery would be decorated with flags and flowers.

At that time Charleston was still under military rule and was governed by Colonel Woodford of the Union army. John Redpath went to Colonel Woodford and told him about the plan, asking him to appoint the day a military and civil holiday. The date decided upon for the decoration was May 1, and on that day over 10,000 men, women and children were present at a memorial service, and then marched to the cemetery, where the children dropped flowers on the graves while everyone sang patriotic songs.

Such was the first Decoration day. From that time on the custom of decorating all the graves of the soldiers on one day grew to be popular. The custom of decorating the graves of the dead soldiers did much to wipe away the bitterness felt between the people of the North and South. Francis Miles Finch expressed just such a thought in his Decoration day poem, which every child in school has read, "The Blue and the Gray."

John Redpath lived to be an old man, and saw the custom that he founded become one of the most pleasing and popular holidays. Later in life he founded the Redpath Chautauque bureau, which is still popular and has been the means of giving entertainment and education to thousands and thousands of people.—Utica Globe.

Some people plan festivities for Memorial day instead of planning to take part in one of the memorial services. The day should be kept sacred by all—it is not too much to give one day to show honor to the brave dead.

Belongs to All the Brave. Memorial day is observed as a memorial not alone for the men of Civil war or those who fell during the war with Spain. It is observed for all those and for the thousands who went abroad to fight for liberty and never returned. Hallowed is the ground where they rest, whether they be the old soldiers or the new.

Then and Now

ON Decoration day, it was then called, he always climbed the hill out to the graveyard with his little hand in that of his grandmother. It was a day that he looked forward to for he was to carry some of the flowers from his own garden to place upon the grave of his grandfather, a Northern captain who had lost his life in the charge at Chattanooga. On all other days the sword hung over the mantel-piece at home. On this one day the boy was allowed to take the precious relic from its resting place and examine it to his heart's content.

The years passed. No longer a youth, now a man with a son of his own, he heard the call of country and answered. The blood of the best American patriotism ran in his veins. Among the first troops he crossed the seas to fight for country and for justice. Stricken on the Argonne, he too poured out his blood on the fields of France. Today he lies among the noble, unforgettably dead. As in former times he learned of the spirit of sacrifice, his boy today is learning of the same spirit of sacrifice which exalts human life and makes it divine.

So a great tradition binds the generations to each other, enriched by the thousands of unselfish, noble men and women who live and die to make men free.—Indianapolis Star.

INTERESTING COMPARISON OF GREAT LEADERS OF THE WORLD CONFLICT AND OUR CIVIL WAR.

The French correspondent of the Army and Navy Journal, J. B. Gautreau, comments on the maturity, not to say advanced age, of the generals victorious in war. Of the three marshals, 118 generals of divisions and 251 generals of brigades in the French active service, the youngest of the brigade generals is forty-four; the youngest general of division is fifty; all the army group commanders are beyond sixty. It is a contrast. Mr. Gautreau says, with the wars of the French Revolution, which brought to prominence generals who were scarcely more than twenty-five, such as Bonaparte, Hoche, Pichegru, and other great soldiers.

It is not necessary to go back so far as that to find groups of military commanders comparatively young. Our own Civil war supplies enough. To mention the oldest of the prominent generals on the Union side, Hooker was forty-nine when Lee beat him at Chancellorsville; Meade, forty-seven at Gettysburg. Sherman was forty-four when he started from Atlanta to the sea. Grant was only forty-three at Appomattox, McClellan thirty-six at Antietam, Sheridan thirty-three when he galloped to Winchester.

Of the Confederate leaders, Albert Sidney Johnston was fifty-eight and Lee and Joe Johnston were fifty-four when the war began; Longstreet was forty. Stonewall Jackson, whose beard and pety are to the schoolboy evidences of extreme age, was only thirty-nine when he was killed at Chancellorsville. Hood was but thirty-three when he took command against Sherman.

MEMORIAL FLAGS.

On this Memorial day when o'er the soldiers' graves we strew the lilac and the budding rose, And daisy gemmed with dew, Our thoughts revert with grief and pride

To those beyond the sea Who lost their young, heroic lives Defending Liberty.

We cannot deck with garlands sweet The places where they rest, Nor moisten with our tears the earth

Upon each gallant breast; But let us to the gentle winds Our service flags unfold, And hang a fadeless laurel wreath O'er every star of gold.

—MINNA IRVING.

Day of Sacred Memories.

So the day is a twin festival, dedicated to brave men and true patriots, who in great crises did their duty with a courage and devotion that will ever be a reproach to civilian slackness, and should be an inspiration to more faithful and unselfish service. Only so can the American people make good their "resolves that these dead shall not have died in vain." It ought not to be difficult to serve and be loyal to a country for which gallant men were content—and proud—to lay down their lives, whether in the Virginia or the Argonne wilderness. So we come to another Memorial day.

Day Belongs to All Heroes.

This day of American consecration is for the heroes of all of America's wars, the living and the dead, those who laid down their lives and those who offered the supreme sacrifice but were spared to a later generation.

THE UNFORGOTTEN.

Myriads of dead in earth's warm bosom slumber, Tenderly blanketed by verdant sod; A myriad more, beneath old ocean's thunder, Silent await the final act of God.

For God remembers—he who notes the sparrow— The piteous pale ones who pass away, On earth forgotten, as all joy and sorrow And love forgotten are in life's brief day.

But they who die upon the field of glory, Whether on ocean's plain or Marathon, They are the unforgettably dead; Their story Rings down the ages until time is done.

HALL OF HEROES

Worthy Memorial Projected for National Capital.

To Be Dedicated to Soldiers of the Republic Who Have Given to It "Their Last Full Measure of Devotion."

It now seems probable that one of the tangible fruits of the world war, in the form of memorials, will be an immense convention hall to be located in the national capital, which strangely enough has no really suitable meeting place for large audiences. If the building, for which plans have been accepted and a splendid site secured through the co-operation of congress, is erected, it will be designated as a memorial both to the soldiers of '17 (and '18) and of '76. The reason for thus linking the heroes of the present with those of colonial days is that George Washington himself is responsible for the idea of a memorial, having included in his will a bequest of $25,000 for the purpose. This was in the form of stock certificates, and was one of two gifts which congress gave him in view of the fact that he would accept no compensation of the usual sort for his services. In setting aside this gift in his will, Washington designated that it be used for the diffusion of knowledge.

While the original stock certificates have long since become of little value, the idea has never been lost sight of, and an organization was formed to raise money for the memorial. Our sharing in the great war interrupted the work of this society, but on the other hand the coming of peace has given it a new incentive, and so it is proposed to complete the fund (already $350,000 in cash, with many contingent promises in addition) and erect a great convention hall in honor of our boys in khaki and the Revolutionary heroes. A splendid site has been granted by congress for the building—that now occupied by the old Pennsylvania railway station.

It provides for a main auditorium with a floor space of 38,500 square feet, with a gallery of 10,000 square feet, the two having a seating capacity of 7,000, and so suitable for inaugural balls, public receptions, etc., as well as conventions. Grouped about the main auditorium are smaller halls. The second floor is to have a banquet hall with a capacity of 600 persons and rooms designed to serve as permanent offices for patriotic societies.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Day of Solemn Observance.

Those who cannot bring themselves to a cessation of their normal pursuits long enough to join in the memorial services, to bow their heads in a momentary tribute to American valor, at least can refrain from making the event the occasion of a holiday. They owe this much to the dead and to the families whose hearts are saddened. American sentiment can be shown in no better way than by observing May 30 as a real Memorial Day.

NORTHERN BAPTISTS MASSING FORCES IN $100,000,000 DRIVE

Big Sum Asked in One Movement to Fulfill Five-Year Program—Personal Service of 2,000,000 Members to Be Used to Make Huge Pledges More Effective—Education to Be Feature of Great Activity, Both in U. S. and Abroad.

By LUPTON WILKINSON.

The 10,686 churches which constitute the Northern Baptist Convention are moving forward this spring in a program termed by their leaders one of the most significant unified advances a Christian body has ever made. Thirty-four state convention headquarters are teeming with activity and the entire strength of the denomination is marshalled, ready for a task whose size may well be called staggering.

It is now nine months since the assembled national delegates of the Northern Baptists met in Denver and after providing entirely new and modern church organization machinery set the face of 2,000,000 people toward a five year effort, necessitating expenditures that will total at least $100,000,000. The urgency of the world situation, viewed from the Christian standpoint and made clear in detail to the convention through a 150-page itemized survey of the field's needs, has worked like multiplying leaven. Thousands upon thousands of copies of that survey have been distributed in answer to individual written requests.

The denominational program is known officially as the New World Movement of Northern Baptists. It is defined as "an attempt to apply vigorously the principles of Christianity to the problems confronting the world." The shadow of many ills, the stresses and pain of humanity, struggling to give a new order birth after the cataclysm of war has swept away old standards and safeguards, are the basic urges behind the Baptist effort.

The churches involved, believing the call to service imperative and fated only to grow larger, have decided to pledge the entire $100,000,000 Baptist fund in one financial "drive" between April 21 and May 2. My purpose here is not to discuss the task involved in the raising of such a sum. The impetus of aid and co-operation from numerous other denominations working together in the Interchurch World Movement will aid the Baptists greatly in their money campaign, a larger one than any other denomination faces this spring.

What must interest the general public in considering the huge undertaking are some very practical questions. Through what channels does the church hope to effect the application of the Christian ideal and the Christian machinery toward a lessening of unrest? How clearly and wisely have the church leaders viewed the situation? Do they work with a seeing vision of the tremendous ground, physically and spiritually speaking, that they must cover? How definite and concrete are their plans?

No one who has read the report of the Field Survey Committee of the Northern Baptist Convention can reasonably doubt the earnestness with which the men behind the New World Movement are striving to be practical.

The scope of the Americanization plans indicates the trend. Children in the Sunday-schools will be asked to treat the children of the foreign-born as friends. Baptist women will be asked to cultivate friendship as individuals with foreign-born women. Missions will be established in mining, manufacturing and logging districts where the native proportion of the population is small.

Speaking of "future citizens," the report of the committee says:

"We cannot honestly preach to them and teach them national ideals if we are silent while they, because they are strangers, are being exploited. It is our Christian duty to assist in the bettering of factory conditions, standards of employment for women in industry, living conditions of foreigners and social, educational, civic and religious opportunities for the foreign-born."

From Czecho-Slovakia, from Japan, from the heart of Mohammedan Africa, observers have been writing in unanimous agreement that conditions abroad are even more unsettled than in America. The belief of the church that the Christian ideal is the one solution will make itself felt through an investment of practically $10,000,000 for new equipment in foreign mission fields. This will be in addition to normal operating expenses. Plans include the sending out of 228 new missionary families and 176 single women missionaries and the erection of 188 missionary residences, 241 missionary schools, 76 dormitories, 75 church buildings, 5 industrial schools and 19 hospitals.

In China, one of many mission fields, five new high schools for girls will be established. "An intelligent womanhood is absolutely necessary for the permanent regeneration and Christianization of the Orient," says the report which led to this plan's adoption.

One domestic trend of the New World Movement will be a steady hammering on the problem of ministers' salaries. The average salary of the 8,823 ordained Baptist ministers in the United States is $1.87 a day, or $683 a year. Only eight out of every hundred receive as much as $1,500 a year.

Many amusing and appealing letters have been received since it became known that a determined educational campaign to remedy this condition is under way. One letter from Peru, Ind., says:

"In my opinion the greatest financier of the times is not Frank Vanderlip or J. Pierpont Morgan. The wife of the average minister has all of the great financiers of the country beaten to a standstill. If the same degree of efficient management as has prevailed in the ministerial household could be applied to our industrial and political institutions, we could successfully compete in the markets of the world and come off victors."

In none of the welfare features of the Baptist program will the evangelical note be subordinated. Dr. J. Y. Aitchison, director of the General Board of Promotion of the Northern Baptist Convention, has summed up as follows the keynote spirit of the effort:

"It is always necessary to remember that neither money nor buildings nor additional workers serve to express the terms of the New World Movement. It is not a campaign. It is the advance of an ideal. The raising of the money and the spending of the money are incidental to the supreme task of offering Christianity like a healing bandage to the wounds of the world.

"We are going forward on the theory that the denomination or the church or the man who hangs back now, is what President Roosevelt would have called a 'pussy-footer.' Where Christianity dominates, there cannot be just and greed and hate. Certainly there cannot be Bolshevism."

Buddhism Seeks to Regain Grip

Buddhist priests of Burma, after ignoring the progress of Christian missions in that country for more than a century, are making a vigorous effort to restore Buddhism to its old place. This is the report made by Baptist missionaries in that field. The outcome of the struggle is of vital importance, as Burma has the most advanced civilization of any part of British India, and its influence is growing.

With this in view, the General Board of Promotion of the Northern Baptist Convention believes that the working forces of Christianity should be doubled. Especially is this so since, under direction of the British authorities, the missionaries sent out by the Northern Baptists are conducting 55 per cent of the educational work of the country. An indication of governmental co-operation is found in the offer of the authorities to pay half the cost of construction of a new plant for Judson College. The government, too, has secured a beautiful new campus outside the city of Rangoon. Schools of every grade, from kindergarten through college and seminary, are conducted by missionaries, and educational work is particularly strong among women and girls.

Some idea of the task of expansion is shown by the fact that there are 40 races in an area as great as Texas and with a population greater than that of New York State. In spite of the work already done, the illiteracy of Burma is estimated at 62 per cent. The needs are taxing the ability to meet them. In their struggle to restore the prestige of Buddha the Occident has furnished Buddhist leaders with an idea. One of their most active agencies is the Young Men's Buddhist Association, which drew its inspiration from the Y. M. C. A.

Before 1924 it is hoped to be able to send 55 new missionary families, as well as 34 new women missionaries and four doctors to supplement the 69 missionary families, 52 single women and four doctors and two nurses now in the field.

Especially is there need for greater medical service, as the present force gives medical attention to more than 10,000 persons a year. Most of these are not in the cities and centers of population. The British Government provides for work in such centers. Missionaries in the field estimate that some 90 per cent of those who die in the non-Christian field suffer to the close without the attention of a doctor or nurse.

Plans favored by the General Board of Promotion favor the use of 25 automobiles in this region, estimating that the activities of the missionary can be tripled by this equipment.

Construction of 25 new school buildings to replace outgrown plants and relieve congestion, the establishment of a school in trades and arts and the founding of new schools for girls are reported as immediate necessities to forestall Buddhist efforts.

Why Introspection is Good.

When you build to endure you must do it in the light of your limitations. Only the few are satisfied that they know it all. There are more who need the prod of circumstances to force them into a use of their powers. The wise man knows better than anyone else the limits of his power. Accordingly he husband his resources and measures well his possibilities before he attempts the impossible. Yet he is ever ready to acknowledge the great when he sees it. It's better far to acknowledge your own shortcomings and then strive to rise above them.—Grit.

How to Avoid Deafness.

Keep yourself from getting deaf, or improve your hearing if deafness has begun, by "ear drill." That, at any rate, is the advice of Dr. J. Madison Taylor. Here is the result of an experiment he made: "I inaugurated a series of movements that were designed to restore elasticity to the tissues of the neck, the jaws and the ear structures. The patient was then sixty-nine years of age; now is eighty-seven. After a month of these exercises there was a 30 per cent improvement of the hearing." Yawning has long been recognized as a means of aiding the muscles of the throat and chest. The act can be induced by deep breathing and suggestion. It has an acknowledged place in the avoidance of deafness."

How East Indians Catch Fish.

The fisheries of India scarcely differ from those of China, the deep-sea work done by the natives being practically confined to the pearl oyster. But a river fish greatly sought after by native anglers is the tuppee, or bartah, known by Europeans as the mango fish, from its yellowish color. It is not unlike our perch and always commands a high price, partly on account of its toothiness, but especially because its air bladder yields isinglass.

In the Ceylon rivers, too, we find the peasantry still clinging to the wading method, almost identical with that practiced by the Chinese; the fisherman finding his catch with his bare feet.

How Moon is Brought Nearer.

With the aid of the world's largest telescope recently installed at the Mount Wilson observatory the moon has been brought nearer to the earth than ever before in history, according to Boys' Life. The moon's latest photo measures four feet in diameter and reveals details of the moon's surface never before seen by the human eye. With the aid of the great telescope it will be possible to observe 300,000,000 stars.

How One Physician Proves Death.

Doctor Icard of Marseilles publishes a new test for death. This is based upon the fact that the body fluids are alkaline in life, but are acid three-quarters of an hour after death. Therefore he compresses a fold of skin with a forceps and expresses a drop or two of serum. Ordinary test paper will show after five or ten minutes whether this is alkaline or acid.

How Ireland is Prospering.

The total extent of land under crops in Ireland in 1918 was 5,711,127 acres, compared with 5,570,592 acres in 1917 and 4,806,575 acres in 1916. As the harvest was a heavy one and the crop was saved under fairly good conditions, the unusually high prices put farmers in a prosperous position.

YOU have all heard of the New York State Barge Canal and how it was to benefit the people and business concerns in the territory it traverses.

But these benefits will not accrue unless the Canal is operated—and this the INLAND MARINE CORPORATION is doing.

The present fleet consists of 57 cargo carriers, virtually every boat suitable for canal service.

Already, however, every foot of space in our boats has been sold for the season of 1920 for eastbound traffic.

Because the company is able to give through routing to any part of the world, the demand for space is so great that it was found necessary to add to the fleet.

And so in order to provide funds for building more boats we offer you a chance to buy a limited number of shares of the capital stock of the INLAND MARINE CORPORATION, which is in actual and successful operation at the present time.

Remember, the INLAND MARINE CORPORATION is not about to begin business. But you have been taxed to pay the $1,546,000 which the Barge Canal cost, and through the purchase of the stock of this company you have an opportunity to get back some of the money you paid in taxes.

Full information will be furnished if you will fill out and mail the attached coupon

Cornell Crews Win Races.

The Ithaca Journal-News gives the following summary of the races last Saturday:

"With victories recorded for the Cornell crews for both the varsity and the freshman races against Harvard on Cayuga lake last Saturday, the attention of Cornell rowing circles will be turned to the regatta which will be held at Poughkeepsie on July 1.

Cornell in both races went out from the word go in an attempt to settle the issue in the early stages, and in both cases succeeded. The freshman race was a procession after the first quarter mile and it served to emphasize that this freshman eight is one of the most remarkable yearling crews ever turned out here, and for that matter as fast a two-mile crew freshman or varsity, as this lake has seen in many years. It had speed, power and fight galore, and fine form, too. Its victory by over nine lengths was one of the most sweeping in the annals of local rowing.

The varsity race was much closer and a far grimmer battle. Harvard led for perhaps 200 yards, when Cornell came even, and for the next half mile it was a stern battle, with the Cornell shell pushing forward gradually until at the mile the Ithacans had three-quarters of a length, and at the mile and a quarter there was open water. After that Cornell gradually increased its lead until the finish saw a good two lengths and a half margin over the Crimson. The time, 10:47, was fairly fast."

Extravagance in Luxuries.

More than $100,000,000 a month is being spent for luxuries in the Borough of Manhattan alone and the "orgy of spending" is not yet on the wane. A "king's ransom" is being spent monthly for candy, and this fact is held partly responsible for the sugar shortage, though almost equally heavy sums have been spent recently for jewelry, furs, automobiles, theatre tickets and a few other non-essentials.

These are some of the more startling facts gathered from a statement issued by William H. Edward, Collector of Internal Revenue.

Death of Lansing Citizen.

George T. Brown, 76, died Saturday morning at the home of his son, J. S. Brown, in the town of Lansing, after an illness of about four years. He leaves besides his son, a brother, Richard Brown of Lansing, and a sister, Mrs. Jane Barr of Ludlowville.

There was a prayer service at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, at the home, and the funeral was held at 1 o'clock from the chapel at Pleasant Grove cemetery. Rev. Lawrence Eighmey officiated. Interment in Pleasant Grove cemetery.

Agrigraphs.

A little paint goes a long way toward sprucing up about the farm.

Three reasons for cultivation: Downing the weeds, loosening the soil, saving moisture.

You can't work effectively and fight flies at the same time; neither can the cows. Spraying will help.

Hog cholera is the swine raisers' chief enemy. Inoculation locks the stable before the horse is stolen.

Good wool on the sheep will not be good wool in the market unless properly handled. There's more to marketing wool than merely shearing it and stuffing it in a bag.

The better the farmer, the less sure is he that he has heard the last word on efficient farm management. There is no business in which more time and thought are being expended for finding better ways than in agriculture.

Before you junk or trade in an old machine, look it over carefully. At present prices, perhaps the parts you can use for repairs on your new machine will be worth more than the entire old machine itself will bring.

A forest crop calls for less actual outlay of cash in proportion to the final income than any other form of enterprise. An investment of $10 to $15 an acre, with a small annual carrying charge, in 40 to 50 years will produce a return equivalent to from four to six per cent compound interest for the period involved.

Against Health Insurance.

Syracuse, May 12—At its annual meeting held last week at New Orleans, the American Medical association, by unanimous vote, adopted the following resolution against Compulsory Health Insurance:

"Resolved, That the American Medical association declares its opposition to the institution of any plan embodying the system of Compulsory Health Insurance against illness; or any other plan of Compulsory Insurance which provides for medical services to be rendered contributors or dependents, provided, controlled or regulated by any State or Federal Government."

Good Night.

When a plumber makes a mistake, he charges twice for it.

When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a carpenter makes a mistake, it's just what he expected.

When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it.

When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land.

When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference.

But when an editor makes a mistake—good night.—Exchange.

Homespun Yarn.

The high cost of clothing is sending many a housewife to the attic instead of to the dry goods store.

Home-made fried cakes taste good but the odor left in the house after frying them is not so appetizing. Ever try a few drops of oil of lavender on a cloth and waved about the room?

Perhaps the small amount you receive from the sale of old papers and magazines seems hardly worth the bother of saving them; but every bit of paper stock which is destroyed brings just a little nearer what looks like an inevitable paper famine.

Time for the local health authorities, the school board, the newspaper, the church and all other agencies for betterment to start a concerted and organized campaign against the typhoid fly—formerly known as the house fly. The TRIBUNE is ready to help.

Monday loses most of its proverbial indigo hue when there's a washing machine ready to be lugged into the kitchen from the woodshed. And when the machine can be hooked up to the farm tractor, there isn't any blue Monday.

Have you wondered why the substitution of cocoa for chocolate in your recipes has not always been successful? Perhaps you did not add the fat which is lacking in the cocoa. About one-half tablespoon of fat for each ounce, or one-quarter cup, of cocoa should be used.

The Finger Lakes Region.

The New York World gives the following description of this section: "Up in the central and western central part of New York lies a big stretch of country which is especially good to look at even in a state exceptionally provided with natural beauties. It is the Finger Lakes Region, beloved of motor tourists.

This country is dotted with small lakes like jewels and with lakes suggesting miniatures of the inland seas that extend from the St. Lawrence to Duluth. Between lakes and in adjacent territories are hills beautiful and innumerable, rising above graceful valleys. To the eye of the traveler by lake road or by the modest water these hills appear like natural charts marked by the buildings and boundaries of myriad fields and farms."

—Game Protector Willard A. Hoagland finds that there is some confusion in the minds of the public over the question of fishing licenses. No resident fisherman is required to take out a license, but only those who have lived outside the state of New York for six months or more. These non-resident licenses which may be procured from town, city or county clerks cost $2.50 each.
