"Primary Reading."

The Teachers' association at King Ferry last Saturday was largely attended, and proved to be a most interesting session. Among the several excellent papers read was the following by Miss Alling of this place, which is published at the request of the association.

After the very excellent talks we heard at the Institute upon the subject of reading, it seems now a fitting time to review the work, and see if we are trying to put into practice the methods which were so plainly and pleasantly presented to us. I would like to emphasize, if it were possible to do so, every sentence which was uttered at that time upon this subject of reading. But the topic given to me for today is "Primary Reading."

This subject I consider of great importance, as upon this is based, to a greater extent than many of us think, the ability to succeed in all other branches of education. We may well consider this as the foundation stone of a great structure. How important then that this foundation should be firm, one that needs no patching, no tearing down and rebuilding, but one, no matter how high the structure is built, that still stands strong and grand, as if urging the builder to go higher. Hence in presenting the subject the aim has been, not to prepare a paper which will be applauded for the brightness of composition, but rather to bring to you some practical, every-day methods—methods which have been and are being used in our school. These are my methods only so far as I have accepted those of instructors and writers for educational papers and by remodeling and preparing them for my classes, I have made them mine.

Let us each one imagine we are children, and this the school room which we enter for the first time at the beginning of the year. Here we find the boy who is never afraid of anything, also the timid little girl, who perhaps is nearly crying now with all the strange newness of the school room. The time has come for this class to pass to the recitation seats. The teacher places herself at the head of the line and leads them with little trouble to their places. Why this? It saves time; and where several grades are crowded into one room, time is precious. It impresses the time in order and system reign here. The teacher gives the signal to be seated, at the same time telling them the meaning of it. As the teacher faces this class and the eyes are upturned to her face, does the thought ever occur to her that during the first few days will decide whether these children will like the school room and its work or not? Does she realize that during the time she has them under her care, she may so teach them to love good literature that it will help to mold their characters?

Now shall it be the word or sentence method? We care not; use the one which will the most quickly lead the pupils to grasp thoughts and express them understandingly, with expression and emphasis. I will begin today with a word; say we take the word ball. Boys and girls, what have I in my hand? I do not think they will answer like this: "You have a ball," but rather some of them will say "ball," others will say "a ball." That is right. How many would like to see the chalk make that word on the board? All are anxious to see it. I might write a at the same time. Here are two words I can always use the first day of school and they will always be remembered: mamma and papa. After having two, three or four words on the board, now, children, look at these words. I shall erase them and write again and see one of them. With the word ball, use as soon as possible see, catch, throw, also use the names of those in the class. How they like to read something about themselves! When a sentence is first written let the pupils find out for themselves how to read it. Suppose the sentence is this: See the ball. Ask if any one can tell what is on the board. One will very likely answer "ball," another "see," and another "the," for a child's way is to answer by one word if possible; and many grown-up children answer in the same way. Yes, that is right, you see all those words. But I will put the ball on the floor; now you want me to look at it, what is on the board that tells me to look? Think; who gets it? They look at the ball, then at the board, and you know they are thinking. Very soon some one has the idea and says right out, "See the ball." What help has this been to teacher and pupils? The teacher need not point to the word on the left, saying "We begin here reading this way," pointing to each word to the right. They find this out for themselves. They soon know there is a thought on the board, and they are expected to express it, and they will not disappoint you. Day by day new words are added to the list, and used in sentences. Each day they will write and spell some portion of the lesson they have read that day. In a few weeks they can readily go from script to print. Some one may ask, how many new words can we give in one day? I would say, study the ability of your class. This year you may have a class that will learn many more new words in the same length of time than last year's class. No matter what the method, be thorough. Drill, drill, drill, is what fixes the words in the child's mind. Vary the work. Do you ever tire of the same daily routine of labor? Don't you suppose the child will? For a review of words a short time ago we had the game of hide and seek. I had arranged the words on the board, being sure to have those words that were a little hard for some to remember. Now, class, today we will play hide and seek. As I mention a word see who finds it first, and see who finds the most words. Did I have the attention of the class? Yes, every child was wide awake; there was a real scrambling for the words and I let them scramble. We read sentences in the same way. One pupil reads a sentence and the rest find it. In this way you may get the natural tone, expression, emphasis, and often the very gestures of a real game. Something else the children always like is the ladder. This can be used in the review of words and in the study of sound in this way: We have the words cat, rat, mat, sat, etc., placed on the rounds of the ladder. Tell me, children, does any part of the word on this round sound to you like those on the other rounds? Say each word distinctly. Do you expect this answer: I think a and t are alike; more likely this: I think the ends are alike; another thinks the middle parts alike; that is right. Now this you call middle you all know is the letter a and in these words is the sound of — (giving the sound.) Now I will put a hat on this letter which will help you in telling the sound. A rounding hat, see it? We use the straight hat in the same way, and the hat with two holes in it. Such devices help to fix the sounds in their minds. Do not expect the child to learn all the sounds in one day; yet a sound here and a sound there soon shows that the class is making as rapid advancement as you wish for this grade. Something else I use for a review is a large tree drawn on the board, with plenty of branches but no leaves, writing the sentences on the branches. This year in using the

Chicago Marine Band.

This world-renowned band has been secured for Saturday afternoon, Nov. 10th, at 2 o'clock sharp to appear in the new Opera House at Groton. It is needless to say that all who can will surely avail themselves of this fine opportunity to hear so celebrated a band.

Brook was the sensation at New Orleans during the entire summer of 1897, where his band played the opening season of the New Athletic Park, the finest outing place in the entire South. Wherever heard too much praise cannot be given this wonderful band. Remember the date and the specially low prices secured on account of an unbooked date. Admission 25, 35 and 50 cents. Reserved seats on sale at Rhodes' drug store.

Wood—Bids for Wood.

I hereby request bids for wood for the school district. We need 40 cords  $\frac{1}{2}$  beech and  $\frac{1}{2}$  maple, in blocks body wood, may use small chunks; wood to be blocked; to be cut and drawn during the coming winter. The contract to be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Terms cash on completion of the contract.

Dr. Day at Rochester.

Dr. Day has moved from Waterloo to Rochester and opened an office in the Powers Block. He has added to his office equipment one of Van Houton & Ten Broeck's high grade static electric machines with an X-ray attachment, also an Ozone Inhaler, the new treatment for consumption. He will spend Friday, Saturday and Sunday at his Rochester office, Fridays private only by appointment. Owing to this fact he has been compelled to discontinue some of his towns; however, he will continue to visit Moravia, his next visit there being at the Goodrich House, Tuesday, November 6th, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Declared Insane.

Special County Judge Searing Monday last ordered Mary E. Huff committed to the Willard state hospital, his order being given upon the certificate of Drs. Slocum and Bogardus. The unfortunate woman, lived with her mother in Venice, her husband residing in Michigan.

To the Public.

Remember that J. B. Liberman, the reliable dealer in watches, diamonds, sterling silver and plated ware, etc., makes regular trips thro' this section every 30 days. All the best grades in stock, and now being offered at reduced prices until the holidays. Write him at Moravia for a special want.

NEWS OF THE STATE

EVENTS IN AND OUT OF THE EMPIRE STATE.

Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings
Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

There are now 1,615 inmates in the Soldiers' home at Bath, nearly its full capacity.

Heman R. Allen died at his home in Chicago recently. He was formerly a resident of the town of Springport.

C. W. Stone of Morrisville holds the palm for corn husking, having recently husked in ten hours sixty bushels of York state dent corn.

The Farmer Review says diphtheria has again broken out at Willard State hospital, and many cases have been sent to the pest house.

The funeral of the late James Luce who died in Ludlowville, Thursday, aged 73 years, was held from his late home Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Among several mysterious disappearances during the campaign that of "Coin" Harvey is notable. Where, oh, where is that sterling patriot?

Rev. F. T. Keeney, presiding elder of the Auburn district of the Central New York conference, has been suffering from nervous prostration at the Clifton Springs sanitarium.

Leon Hutchinson left Moravia Friday for Brooklyn where he later enlisted in the Marine Corps of the United States Navy. He is at present stationed at the Brooklyn Navy yard.

The famous Chicago Marine band of forty people, under the direction of T. P. Brooke, will be in Moravia Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 7th, at 2 o'clock. The chance of a lifetime to hear this wonderful band. Prices 35 and 50 cents.

The crops on the famous Muller Hill farm are reported as something enormous this year, recalling the days our grandfathers tell of when they cut with scythes the timothy that covered the vast meadow breast high.—DeRuyter Gleaner.

The late George L. Watkins of Scipioville was a son of the American Revolution and had served as postmaster under presidents Polk, Pierce, Buchanan, Fillmore and Cleveland. It is claimed his grandfather erected the first frame house in Cayuga county.

The town board of Owasco have decided to appeal in their case against the water commissioners of Auburn. The commissioners wanted their pump house and feed pipe ekempt. Justice Dwight decided in their favor and now the Owasco authorities are going to appeal from that decision.

James H. Foster, senior member of the firm of Foster, Ross & Baucus, and Mrs. Jessie Swartz of Syracuse, were married in Brooklyn Wednesday. After a brief wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Foster will come to this city some time next week when they will commence house-keeping at No. 13 Fort street.—Bulletin.

A relic hunter while digging in one of the old fort lots near Delphi last week, unearthing a fine bone harpoon, measuring about five inches in length and unlike anything of the kind ever reported being found in this section. He also found a number of bone awls, some carved pottery and a few other articles.

The case of Porter D. Smith against the Lehigh Valley railroad was tried at Canandaigua last week and the jury awarded the plaintiff $10,000. Notice of appeal has been given. This action grew out of the terrible accident at the Farmington crossing, by which Smith's wife and four children were in-

At this season of the year it might be well to call the attention of farmers and all others who make cider vinegar that before offering it for sale they are compelled by law to mark on each cask, barrel or keg, or package containing such vinegar, the name and residence of the manufacturer, together with the brand "cider vinegar."

Several of the Southern states show a larger gain in population during the last decade than some of the Western states. For example, Alabama has gained 315,689, while California has gained only 276,923, and Nebraska has actually gone backwards. Has the rapid development of the South, so long predicted, at last set in?

The postoffice at Rushville was entered about 2 o'clock Monday morning and a hole drilled in the top of the safe. The door was blown off, and $219 in stamps taken. The books were not much damaged. The noise of the explosion was heard by several persons, but the loss was not discovered until Postmaster Haviland entered the office. A similar job to that done at Genoa.

Last Saturday, the owners of the Dryden Woolen mill property sold the plant, together with the houses and land, to George Cole of this village. Mr. Cole intends to make some arrangement whereby the plant will be started at once. Mr. Lull, who used to run a mill at Brooklyn, has partially made arrangements with Mr. Cole, whereby he would get the mill, and if so, he will start it this fall.—Dryden Herald.

Leonard F. Bloom of Ithaca was last week held to wait the action of the grand jury at the conclusion of his examination before U. S. Commissioner E. H. Bostwick. Bloom is charged with stealing letters and a package sent by mail to people who sojourned along the lake last summer. His bail was fixed at $600 and unless he obtains the required surety he will be confined in jail at Utica until the next grand jury convenes in that county in December.

Twenty citizens of Moravia have perfected an organization to be known as the Cayuga County Agricultural Corporation for the purpose as specified in the articles of incorporation, of encouraging agriculture, stock raising and breeding, mechanic arts, etc., through the medium of an annual exhibition. The first annual meeting of the new society will be held the second Tuesday of January. A temporary organization has been formed with J. Fitch Walker as president and P. M. Rathbun as secretary.

Dr. Duel of Chittenango recently removed a piece of steel from the wrist of George Merwin, which had been imbedded there for fifteen years. It was a sliver from a steel hammer, about five-eighths of an inch wide and a quarter of an inch long. It could not be found by probing, at the time it entered the wrist, and as it gave no trouble, was allowed to remain. Recently it commenced to make its presence felt, and by means of the X-rays its precise location was determined, about five inches from the point where it entered, and it was an easy matter to get at it and take it out.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Flames and Explosives Destroy Life and Property.

DOWN TOWN NEW YORK SHAKEN.

Fire in Tarrant's Wholesale Drug Store Reaches Chemicals, Causing Terrific Explosion—Unknown Number Killed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Not since the disaster of the falling building in Park place has there been such a horror of fire, explosion, falling walls and loss of life as that which occurred yesterday along Warren street between Greenwich and Washington streets, with the new seven story brick building of Tarrant & Co., druggist and chemists, as the starting point of destruction and the fearsome center of interest. In less than 15 minutes, from 12 o'clock to the quarter after, Warren street between Washington and Greenwich was a mass of high piled debris. The blocks bounded to the north and south by Chambers and Murray streets were ablaze. All the north side of Warren street was down, swept clean by the rear wall of the Tarrant building as it was blown out by a terrific explosion. Half the buildings on the south side of Warren street were down, crushed in the same way. The big coffee roasting plant of the Eppen, Smith & Wiemann company in the middle of the block was afire from top to bottom and its front caved in. What gruesome story of death was hidden under the heaps of stone, brick, beams and heavy machinery could only be guessed at.

Estimates put the loss of life at from 50 to 100 and more. The injured, who came from every store and office along the street, struck by flying stones and rafters and shattered glass, probably counted over 100. Ambulances by the dozen stood in nearby streets, and the surgeons had their hands full of work.

How the fire started none could be found who knew or guessed. It broke out in the Tarrant building at 12 o'clock, when smoke was seen curling thinly out of a third floor window on the Warren street side. The place was stocked with chemicals, and these caused the frightful feature of the disaster, the explosions following fast on the heels of the alarm of fire. The whole lower part of the city felt the shock, and streets for blocks leading to the scene were paved with glass from windows and doors, whose empty frames told of the force of the quakes.

It was not until 3 o'clock that the firemen, under Chief Croker's personal direction, had the flames under control. At one time they threatened two whole blocks.

A dull low reverberating explosion, a quick volcanic swirl of smoke and dust and fire, and a whole block of business buildings reaching from Greenwich street to Washington on Warren had lifted, cracked like a crushed eggshell and crumbled into dust. Within five minutes the jumbled, tangled pile was roaring like a furnace, the rows of tall buildings across the street had caught like set pieces of fireworks, and the crowds who fled white faced from the terror behind them seemed to be pursued by the crashing shower of glass and the line of leaping fire.

What had happened was this: A fire had started in Tarrant & Co.'s drug warehouse on the northwest corner of Greenwich and Warren streets. It had burned long enough for the alarm to be sent in, for the firemen to arrive and get their pipe lines playing on it and for an insurance patrol, who, it was supposed, lost their lives, to get inside a building before it fell. Suddenly out from the midst of the fire there flashed a strange pink flame. The men in the coffee warehouse across the street saw that flame and yelled:

"Run for your lives! She's going to blow up!"

Almost instantaneously with that, before the people on the south side of Warren street could more than turn in their tracks, there came the heart clutching earthquake roar and the whole north side of Warren street crashed into ruins. The fire in the drughouse reached the explosive chemicals—just what no one knew at the time—and the dozen or so buildings and storehouses, with the people in them and the firemen working beneath, were hurled down in as chaotic a mass as though the basement of the whole block had been filled with dynamite.

Every window for a half dozen blocks in each direction crashed to the pavement as the puff of air struck against the sides of the buildings. From the burning buildings to the river and in the other direction up to Broadway there were streams of white faced people fleeing as though from a burning city. Some of them had handkerchiefs twisted around their wrists, some had hands pressed to their faces, where the chunks of broken glass had gashed them as they fell. Here and there all through the tangled streets horses stood with one leg up, while blood ran down their fetlocks and over their hoofs. Within a half dozen minutes the streets were jammed with a crowd running from the fire.

At the time the explosion took place Broadway was thronged. The full force of the explosion appeared to sweep up Warren street and Park place. Simultaneously with the shaking of the earth came three distinct blasts of hot air and the smell of drugs. The hot air blasts caused people to throw their hands before their eyes. At the corner of Broadway and Park place an elderly lady was thrown heavily to the sidewalk.

When lifted to her feet, she began to cry hysterically. Scores of women rushed to the east side of Broadway. Men with blanched faces turned into Broadway from Warren street, declaring that hundreds of people had been killed and that the danger was not yet over. To add was over in a few minutes, and then the people turned to watch the debris which had been carried up into the air by the explosion.

It was exactly five minutes from the time of the three loud explosions before any of the debris fell into the street. A piece of tin three feet square slowly sank to the pavement on Broadway in front of The Mail and Express building. For several minutes the air was filled with bits of tin, pieces of paper and fragments of charred wood.

So far as can now be estimated about $1,000,000 worth of property was destroyed.

ROOSEVELT HONORED.

Enthusiastic Reception in New York City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—There was a great demonstration last evening in honor of Theodore Roosevelt, who arrived at 5:30 p. m. from Albany. Over 75,000 men paraded to Madison square, where the governor spoke in the Garden. There was a wonderful display of fireworks. The governor left Syracuse in the forenoon, and his itinerary for the day included Little Falls, Amsterdam, Schenectady and Albany. The stop at Little Falls was, however, cut out.

Although the elements had all day been threatening to play havoc with the plans arranged by the Republicans of New York county, particularly with regard to the outside arrangements, the reception of Governor Roosevelt, candidate for vice president, was carried out in Madison Square Garden to the accompaniment of a tumultuous ovation, which at times fairly made the rafters of the mammoth amphitheater vibrate.

Although the time set for the great demonstration—8 o'clock—was an hour earlier than that of the welcome accorded Mr. Bryan a little more than a week ago, throngs pressed into the famous arena as soon as the big doors swung open, and from then until the moment General Greene called the vast assemblage to order there was one steady, pushing stream of eager humanity, all striving to find a point of vantage.

Governor Roosevelt spoke for exactly 50 minutes. He immediately left the Garden for his sister's home. General Greene next introduced Charles S. Fairchild, former secretary of the treasury under Cleveland's first administration, who met with a flattering reception. He was followed by Hon. B. B. Odell, Jr., candidate for governor.

There were 18 separate and distinct parades and all were together at Madison Square Garden, marching to a common center from the uttermost parts of the city.

With a multitude so vast as this the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America" was a remarkable feature.

There were 500 trained singers and 42 military bands in the musical exercises outside the Garden. On each of two special stands 100 of the trained singers were placed, and the others were divided up among the other stands to direct the people in the rendition of the two national hymns.

The vocal music was led by Frederick C. Ellenberg of 310 East Eighty-sixth street and the instrumental music directed by George L. Humphrey, bandmaster of the Seventh regiment. Bandmaster Humphrey ascended to the searchlight in the tower of the Garden and led the singing of the vast assemblage by means of the wave of light instead of a baton.

SECOND VISIT TO NEW YORK.

Mr. Bryan Gets an Enthusiastic Reception From Democratic Clubs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A great demonstration in honor of Mr. Bryan was given tonight under the auspices of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, of which W. R. Hearst is president. Mr. Bryan arrived from New Haven late in the afternoon and was given a dinner in the Hoffman House ballroom, at which Mrs. Bryan was also a guest. From the Hoffman House they witnessed an unusually fine display in Madison square.

Mr. Bryan delivered several addresses in the course of the evening and was received with great enthusiasm. He first spoke to Italian-Americans in the Broadway Athletic club, then to German-Americans at Cooper Union, next to Congressman Sulzer's constituents at Second avenue and Fourteenth street and again at Twentieth street and Second avenue. The address of the evening, however, was delivered in Madison Square Garden.

Bryan Speaks Thirty Times.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—"And I am feeling tolerably well, I thank you." This was Colonel Bryan's response when told last night that he had made 30 speeches during the day and thus broken his own record for speechmaking. As a rule the speeches were not so long as on most occasions, but they exceeded in number by nine or ten those of any previous day during the present campaign and by three the highest number made in the campaign in any one day in 1896. Beginning at Bainbridge, in the interior of the state, at 9 o'clock in the morning, he spoke in succession at Sidney, Unadilla, Oneonta, Otego, Schenectady, Cobleskill, Voorheesville, Delanson, Ravena, Coxsackie, Catskill, Saugerties, Kingston, Highlands, Marlborough, Cornwall, Highland Falls, Haverstraw, West Nyack and Little Ferry. In New York city he made one speech, at Hamilton Fish park on the east side, and in Brooklyn during the night he made eight speeches, making 30 in all for the day and night.

the highest. They thought it great fun. The child's thought is to go up that tree, and in order to do so he or she must express the thought on the branch.

As soon as the class can go from script to print, I use a number of books suitable for them, using one book for the class. I would not do this if each one could have all the books, but they cannot. You may ask, what is this for? I will say I am trying this for the first time this year. I think we find a greater variety of words, and they will be better able to take any book for their grade and read from it. They only see these books in the class; they have not looked at every picture in the book when it is old; when the books are brought to them their eyes seem to increase in size and they are anxious to try to read.

This same kind of work is continued through the second and third grades. I always stand away from the one reading, and insist upon understanding exactly what is being read. These grades write a portion of the reading lesson each day and bring to the class. They also spell by sound. Here is one way we continue the study of sound: I have thought of a word that sounds like lake; who guesses the word I am thinking of? At the same time writing the words as they are told. We soon get the words bake, lake, make, rake. How pleased they are if some one gets the right word. Now suppose we spell these words by sound. We aim to be very careful in pronunciation and enunciation; children are so in the habit of saying git for get, jist for just, it requires much care and patience to correct these errors, as we too often find the home training is not such as will help the teacher in the way of proper pronunciation. I depend much upon supplementary reading in the primary grades. There is so much good literature now for children as well as the older ones, that it seems to me there is no excuse for us if our schools are not well supplied with good books for children.

Very often the pupil stands nearly across the room, and in front of the class while reading. Doubtless these or similar methods have been used by many of the teachers present. The question is, do we find that the children read any more intelligently than by the method of pointing to each word, and expecting the pupil to read in that way. We answer yes; for in the latter case, as a general thing, no thought is impelling the expression. I believe this work of reading should be continued longer than it is after leaving the primary and intermediate grades. If I were to plan a course of study for any school, I think now that two subjects would be taught in all the grades—those are reading and spelling.

What shall the pupils read? I think every wide awake teacher should make a study of this and place before their pupils only the best literature of the day. Some one has said: "One may read to know, read to think, or read for entertainment." Are we training our pupils that they need to read to know and to think? "Reading should wake a person instead of putting him to sleep." So the teacher can impress upon the minds of the pupils that they can make it a pleasure for others to listen to their reading.

Fellow teachers, can we not decide that during this year we will work harder to have our pupils become good readers? To banish this drawling tone from the school room? To strive to have the child understand the meaning of what he is trying to read? And by so doing we will create within him a love for good books which will follow him all through life.

Varsity Football.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—All of the big varsity football eleven, except the University of Pennsylvania, were scored against Saturday. Columbia made Yale hustle to win, 12 to 5, in a sensational game in this city. Harvard had to play hard football to conquer the famous Carlisle Indians by a score of 17 to 5 at Cambridge, the red men thereby breaking the hitherto, clean record of the Crimson. Princeton beat Brown, 17 to 5, the Providence eleven making a goal from the field. The University of Pennsylvania played a remarkable game against the Chicago university eleven, the final figures being 41 to 0. Cornell disposed of Dartmouth, 28 to 6, and Annapolis outplayed the strong Lehigh eleven.

Tried to Break Up Depew's Meeting.

COBLESKILL, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Five hundred men undertook to break up Senator Depew's meeting here yesterday afternoon and partially succeeded. The town committee undertook to restore order and failed. He introduced Judge Searing of Auburn who made the preliminary address, touching upon many of the important issues of the campaign. Senator C. N. Blanchard of Maine, the state of statesmen, who represents the district formerly represented by the late Mr. Dingley, author of the present tariff bill. Mr. Blanchard authority for every statement made. He is a plain and interesting speaker, and his platform appearance is imposing and dignified. Mr. Norman closed the meeting with some characteristic remarks, telling among other things why he is a Republican. The Aerial quartet of Auburn furnished some good music during the meeting, and the Citizens Band and Locke Drum Corps enlivened things after their own fashion. Prominent Republicans were present from Venice, Locke and Lansing. Here's to the success of the Republican party next Tuesday

A sample of the Japan sweet chestnuts grown on the farm of Geo. C. Sherman of Venice can be seen at the store of H. P. Mastin, who has consented to take orders for seedlings. They are offered at very reasonable rates—one tree, 60 cts.; two for $1.00. Mr. Sherman has raised the present season from a small tree, 5 years old, 16 quarts of fine large chestnuts. They are well worth a trial. Ask to see them while in their store. w2

Obituary.

Died, on Oct. 23d, 1900, at her home near the Forks of the Creek, after nearly a year of illness, Mrs. Frances E. Marshall, wife of Henry Marshall, aged 55 years, 11 months and 23 days. She was born at the Forks and passed all her life near her birthplace, highly esteemed and respected by all. She was the youngest child of Barnabas and Elizabeth Haws. Her father, mother, two brothers and one sister died many years ago. One sister, Mrs. Louisa Sickles, survives and was with her during her sickness. In March, 1871, she was married to Henry Marshall, and three children were born to them. The oldest son, John P., died ten years ago. She leaves a husband, son William and wife, and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Austin, who was with her most of the summer, also a brother-in-law, George Marshall, who has always lived with the family, besides numerous relatives, to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Marshall was ever ready to help neighbors in sickness or trouble, but her virtues shone more brightly in her home where her industry, thrift, prudence and good management made her a treasure to her family. Her presence was missed at the last Peck reunion, being too ill to attend. A few years ago she and her son William were converted, and baptized by Rev. H. Carpenter of North Lansing.

The funeral was held at the Five Corners church on Thursday, Oct. 25, Rev. W. A. Pugsley of Genoa officiating. Burial in Five Corners cemetery, conducted by Mrs. Thayer of Genoa.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Americans Have Several Sharp Encounters With Filipinos.

ENEMY ACTIVE IN YOUNG'S DISTRICT.

The Philippine Commission Revising Customs Tariff—Insurgent Captain Charged With Inhuman Crimes Is Sentenced to Death.

MANILA, Oct. 29.—While scouting near Looe a detachment of the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth regiments under Captain Beigler was attacked by 400 insurgents armed with rifles under the command of a white man whose nationality is not known to the Americans. The insurgents for the most part were entrenched.

After a heroic fight Captain Beigler drove off the enemy, killing more than 75. The fight lasted for two hours. Captain Beigler and three privates were slightly wounded, and two of the Americans were killed.

An engagement took place Oct. 24 between detachments of the Third cavalry and the Thirty-third volunteer infantry, numbering 60, and a force of insurgents including 400 riflemen and 1,000 bolomen. The fighting was desperate. Finally, under pressure of overwhelming numbers, the Americans were compelled to retire on Narvican. Lieutenant George L. Febigor and four privates were killed, nine were wounded and four are missing. Twenty-nine horses are missing. A number of teamsters were captured by the insurgents, but were subsequently released. The enemy's loss is estimated at 150.

A civilian launch towing a barge loaded with merchandise near Arayat was attacked by a force of 150 insurgents under David Fagin, a deserter from the Twenty-fourth infantry. The American troops, on hearing firing, turned out in force before the boat could be looted and recaptured it.

Fagin, who holds the rank of general among the insurgents, has sworn special enmity toward his former company. Of the 20 men he captured a month ago seven have returned. One was killed in a fight, his body being horribly mutilated. Fagin sends messages to his former comrades threatening them with violence if they become his prisoners. It was Fagin's men who captured Lieutenant Frederick W. Alstaetter, who is still a prisoner.

General Hall's expedition, with a force of nearly 800 men, through the mountains to Binangonan, province of Infanta, in pursuit of the insurgent general Cailles, although it discovered no trace of the enemy, encountered great hardships on the march. Twenty Chinese porters died, and 40 men were sent into hospital. After stationing a garrison of 250 men in Binangonan and visiting Polillo island, off the coast of Infanta province, General Hall and the rest of his force embarked there on the transport Garroune.

Reports from General Young's district show a daily increase of insurgents there owing to the fact that recruits are going, thither from the towns.

While a detail of the Thirty-third volunteer infantry was returning from Bangue on rafts it was fired upon by insurgents, Sergeant Berdstaller being killed and two privates wounded.

The Philippine commission has decided to compile the revised Philippine customs tariff from its own investigations, assisted by the report of the army board.

Over Twenty Millions of Gold.
SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 29.—A total of $20,106,687 worth of gold dust and bullion has been received at the Seattle assay office during the present year. Following are official figures showing the amount of gold dust and bullion received between Jan. 1 and Oct. 4, 1900: Number of deposits, 6,028; ounces of gold and bullion, 1,243,163; from Cape Nome, $2,710,427; other Alaskan points, $462,893; total from Alaska, $3,173,320; from British Columbia (Atlin), $493,116; Yukon district (Klondike), $16,374,488; Washington, Oregon, Idaho and foreign gold coin, $125,762. Since Oct. 24 the office has received an additional $150,000 from Nome and $50,000 from other points. The probabilities are that before the sea son closes Nome will have furnished $5,000,000.

A Cave Discovered.
SYRACUSE, Oct. 29.—P. M. Heifer and E. A. Holmes, Syracuse university students, discovered a cave near Jamesville, this county, Friday. They crawled into it, and, finding a passage leading downward, they entered that also and soon were in a second cave. Another passage leading downward was entered, and the boys found themselves in a third cavern. They had only a few matches and when they tried to retrace their steps could not locate the opening. After searching for more than two hours they found a small hole in the roof of the cave. By alternately standing upon each other's shoulders they managed to dig away the rock and crawl up into the cave by which they entered, finally reaching the open air. An exploring expedition will soon be organized.

Roosevelt Rotten Egged.
ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Governor Roosevelt finished the first day of his second week's campaign in this state by an invasion of the home of the Democratic candidate for governor, Hon. John B. Stanchfield. At Ithaca the governor's reception was of a most friendly nature. His welcome in Elmira was the greatest political demonstration the city has witnessed in years. Fully 20,000 people were in town. For the first time in New York Theodore Roosevelt was assaulted on the streets of Elmira on his way to the places of meeting. He was in a carriage with former Senator Fassett and at several points along the route was pelted with eggs and vegetables and greeted with the vilest epithets. He sat in dignified silence, while the police looked on.

Floods in Wisconsin.
LACROSSE, Wis., Oct. 29.—In the past 24 hours seven and a quarter inches of rain fell in this city. The storm was most severe in this city, although it was generally felt within a radius of 50 miles. The Milwaukee road suffered much damage to its tracks, and no trains have arrived from the east for 24 hours. Trains north are sent over the Omaha road to St. Paul via Camp Douglas. The worst trouble is between here and West Salem. The Lacrosse river marshes are flooded, and a farmer's family was driven to seek refuge in a tree, where they remained until rescued. The Burlington road has a washout which will require some days to repair. At Hokah the dam which held Lake Como broke, and the lake has almost disappeared. There is much damage through the country, but reports are so far indefinite. Fire started by lightning caused damage in Lacrosse to the extent of several thousand dollars.

Living With Bullet in Head.
MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The physicians are unable to extract the bullet from the head of Bertha Greenis of Chester, who was accidentally shot by her father Friday night, but it is believed the child will recover. The patient has not lost consciousness.

Guide Shot For a Deer.
UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Marcus Earle, a well known Adirondack guide, aged 45 years, who had a camp in the vicinity of Moose river, was shot and killed about 1 p. m. yesterday through being mistaken for a deer. One report states that the shot was fired by Dr. Palmer of this city, but information from another source gives the name as Parmelee. Earle leaves a widow and four children.

Ex-Secretary Porter Very Ill.
POMFRET, Conn., Oct. 27.—Mr. John Addison Porter, formerly secretary to President McKinley, lies dangerously ill at his residence in this place, suffering from a disease which must ultimately take him off. ## GOING HOME.

By Mrs. Minnie M. P. Knotts.

THE soft, hazy October sunshine fell on a West Virginia poorhouse, changing its white painted sides into a subdued pearly tone. In one of the east rooms, opening off the hall and inmates' sitting-room, lay Aunt Emily on a low, black, wooden bed. She had lain in this room since one April day when her right side felt numb and stiff and refused to obey her will. After that stroke of paralysis she was never able to sit up longer than an hour or two. During all this time Mary Sharpe another inmate, had acted as nurse under the instructions of Mrs. Winters the stewardess.

This morning Aunt Emily's pale face looked more sallow than usual in the subdued light coming through an old yellow paper curtain. Her thin gray hair was parted in the middle and drawn tightly back from the forehead; the gaunt hands were folded on the faded calico comfort, the palsied right one underneath. She had her large brown eyes turned toward the window where the beauty of the autumn gleamed.

October frosts had made the hillsides, that stretch away for miles, a bright landscape, reminding one of Joseph's coat, so many were the colors. Half of the trees had changed their green foliage for red or yellow, but some still clung to the old color, as if loath to put on the brighter shapes of a step nearer death. The corn fields were bare except for the golden brown shocks that rose here and there like wigwags. In the pastures, yet green, the sheep wandered about or rested from their rambles under the tall oak trees. Far away in the distance, the bluish gray tops of the Allegheny mountains looked down like sentinels on the quiet country, and the thin, fleecy clouds clung lovingly to their summits.

Aunt Emily turned her head away from the window as the door creaked on its hinges and Mary Sharp entered. Mary was a middle-aged woman with a lot of copper-colored hair that was freshly combed, and a kind face that shone as from a recent washing with kitchen soap. Although she made a visible effort to walk lightly, her heavy shoes squeaked noiselessly on the bare floor. She went over by the bed and sat down in the scarred wooden rocking chair and began swaying back and forth, a loose rocker go click, cluck at every motion. She smoothed down her checked gingham apron and said:

"How are you feeling to-day, Aunt Emily?"

"About the same. I've just been thinking how much all things in this world are alike. Every day the leaves of those trees over on the hills are nearer death and decay. They'll soon be scattered all over the ground."

Mary did not answer for a minute or two, but finally said:

"Well—the trees will all be green again next spring."

"Yes. Last spring, Mary, the trees were green and full of life just as I was when I married Andy Dover and settled down on our 20 acres. For a while everything was bright. We loved our little Annie with her long golden curls and watched her grow into womanhood and marry Clinton Mayes. Then I buried Andy. But Annie comforted me and took me to live with her. She and Clinton were good to me; and the children, dear little things, were so much company."

Aunt Emily paused and wiped her eyes with one corner of the unbleached sheet. Mary still swayed back and forth, and the click, cluck of the loose rocker was the only noise that broke the silence except the low hum of voices and the occasional chuckle of "foolish Ben" from the other end of the hall.

"But Clinton wasn't much to blame for not wanting to keep me any longer," Aunt Emily went on, as she cleared her throat. "Annie was sickly, and the doctor's bill had to be paid, although the miner's wages were cut down 20 cents a day. My money was all gone, and I wasn't able to work much. Annie must be sicker now, for she has not written to me for more than a year, and like the trees I am withering. Look over there!" Aunt Emily pointed with her able hand to the pauper's burying ground across the road where the soft sunshine, coming through the trees, touched the plain boards that marked each mound. "Mary, I'll soon be there."

Mary gave a loud cough, wiped her face with a piece of unhemmed muslin that she took from her apron belt, and replied:

"Oh! I reckon not! Annie will come for you some day and take you home to get well. Let me prop you up in bed before I go to help get dinner."

Mary soon had the invalid sitting up with the two cotton-batting pillows and a ragged edged comfort at her back. "I'll go now if you are resting all right," and the heavy shoes squeaked across the floor.

sound of squeaking shoes died away she shook her trembling head and said slowly: "She will never come."

In the kitchen the women were helping Mrs. Winters get dinner. The steam was rising from a couple of large iron kettles on the range in one corner of the room, and the odor of boiling coffee filled the air. Mrs. Winters in gray calico wrapper and blue apron was putting bacon into a skillet. Her usually pale face was flushed from the heat of the stove. Mary got the dishes from the cupboard and took them to the long table at the other side of the room. She wiped off the brown oilcloth before setting the dishes in their places, and, as she worked, the wrinkles in her forehead grew deeper. When the table was nearly ready Mrs. Winters came over and sat down on the end of a bench that ran along one side of the table.

"How is Aunt Emily this morning, Mary?" she asked, as she wiped the perspiration from her face.

"She says she feels the same. But she was blue and told me she would soon be in the buryin' ground. She seems to worry right smart because Annie don't write." After a pause Mary added, with a knowing nod, "I don't believe she'll live long."

"I must go in and see her after dinner," Mrs. Winters said, as she turned her head to the window with a sigh. Her kind face always looked sad as if it reflected the poverty-stricken misery around her; even when she smiled it seemed from pity rather than joy.

That evening after supper Mrs. Winters took down a tablet of writing paper, the small round bottle of ink and the red penholder and wrote the following letter to Mrs. Annie Mayes:

"If you ever want to see your mother alive, come soon."

"I won't say anything about this letter to Aunt Emily," she said to her husband, "because if Annie don't come it will be such a disappointment to the poor old woman."

One afternoon a week later Mrs. Winters was interrupted in her sewing by a knock on the front door. She opened it and admitted a frail looking little woman with large brown eyes looking from a very thin face.

"Is this Mrs. Winters?" the stranger asked. "I am Mrs. Mayes."

Mrs. Winters took the visitor into the sitting-room, assuring her that her mother was no worse. After her wraps were laid aside she said:

"I will go to mother at once."

"I am afraid the sudden surprise of you walking into her room would be more than she is able to stand," Mrs. Winters said. "Just take this rocker and I will go and tell her first."

After Mrs. Winters left the roof the visitor rocked for a minute or two as the footsteps sounded down the hall, and then got up and walked to the window and looked out.

Aunt Emily turned her face toward the door as Mrs. Winters opened it. The large brown eyes had a look of resignation, and as they recognized Mrs. Winters the thin lips parted in a sad smile.

"Good afternoon. Do you feel pretty well?" Mrs. Winters said, as she sat down in the rocking chair by the bed.

"Yes, and happy, too. I like to watch the men gather in the corn shocks from the hillside yonder. It makes me glad to know that some one has a good harvest."

"I came in to see if you were awake. There is a lady in the sitting-room that wants to see you. I'll go and bring her in."

"Oh, maybe it's Annie!" Aunt Emily exclaimed, and the look of resignation in her eyes changed to one of joyous hope.

Ten minutes later mother and daughter were sobbing in each other's arms. When their emotions had subsided Annie drew the old rocker close to the bed and sat down, resting her hand on her mother's. They talked of the children, Clinton and home, and how on the morrow Annie was to take her mother home. Then there was silence for a time, broken only by the noise of the loose rocker.

"So, to-morrow I am going home to see the children again," Aunt Emily said, and a tear drop wet each cheek. She reached for the corner of the unbleached sheet, but the soft handkerchief of the daughter wiped them away instead, and the low voice responded: "Yes, mother, I am going to take you home in the morning. Clinton and I see things differently now."

Mrs. Mayes went early to her mother's room the next morning. She opened the door and walked toward the bed to awaken her. Aunt Emily's face was turned toward the window. Her hands were folded on top of the comfort, the able one above as usual.

"Mother!" Mrs. Mayes called, as she reached the bed, but the sleeper did not awaken. "Mother!" she repeated, as she laid her hand on the folded ones, then started back, gave a low scream and sank into the old rocker. Her mother was dead.

Aunt Emily's face wore a happy smile as she lay ready to be taken home. Her hands were folded over the black burial robe, as they used to be on the faded calico comfort, and clasped a bunch of autumn leaves that "foolish Ben" had brought from the woods. When she was carried from the house all the inmates gathered at the front watched the hearse and carriage wind slowly down the hill, and waited for the last glint of sunshine on the ornaments of the hearse as it disappeared behind the poplar grove, before turning their tear-stained faces to the house.

Only "foolish Ben" spoke. "What you cryin' for?" he said. "Don't you know she's goin' home with Annie?"—The Housekeeper.

Some Chinese Riddles.

Chinese boys are very fond of asking riddles, and some of the juvenile prodigies of ancient days are represented as having been very clever in composing these enigmas. A few, somewhat similar in form to many popular English riddles, are the following:

"What is the fire that has no smoke, and the water that has no fish?"

"A glow worm's fire has no smoke and well water has no fish."

"Mention the name of an object with two mouths, which travels by night and not by day?"

"A lantern."

STORY OF THE FLIGHT

Prince Su Relates Experience of the Chinese Court.

A PANICSTRICKEN, LAWLESS COMPANY

The Journey Occupied Twenty-six Days—Empress Dowager Wept, and the Emperor Reviled Everybody.

PEKING, Oct. 30.—Prince Su, who accompanied the Chinese court in the flight to Tai-yuen-fu and afterward returned here, disheartened by the anarchy existing among those composing the immediate advisers of the throne, gave in the course of an interview today an interesting account of his journey.

"On the first day," said Prince Su, "the court traveled in carts 20 miles north, escorted by 3,000 soldiers, who pillaged, murdered and committed other outrages along the entire route. The flight was continued at the rate of 20 miles a day to Hsuan-hua-fu in the most panic-stricken manner. So little authority was exerted that the soldiers even stole the meals prepared for the emperor and the empress dowager. The execution of several fort murder and pillage eventually brought them under control.

"The court remained three days at Hsuan-hua-fu, some advisers counseling a further stay. They were, however, overruled owing to the fear of foreign pursuit, and the flight was resumed to Tai-yuen-fu, with 10,000 additional troops under General Tung Fu Hsiang who added to the discord.

"The empress dowager did little else but weep and upbraid her advisers. The emperor reviled everybody. The journey occupied 26 days, the longest route being taken owing to fear of pursuit.

"On arriving at Tai-yuen-fu great difficulty was experienced in forming any semblance of government. Many edicts were ignored, and affairs reached a state of absolute chaos. The emperor would have preferred to trust himself to the allies, but he was compelled to join in the flight."

Prince Su does not believe that the court is going to Sian-fu. He thinks the plan is to return by a circuitous route through southern Shansi and northern Honan.

China's Proposition.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—"The Chinese plenipotentiaries opened negotiations," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, "by proposing that China should pay an indemnity of £40,000,000 in 60 installments, agreeing that the likin and the customs service should be under foreign control until the obligation should be discharged. They also agreed that Prince Tuan should be imprisoned for life, that Tien-tsin should be treated as an international district and that other places should be opened to foreign trade. China undertakes to abstain from purchasing war material abroad. In order to raise the indemnity she proposes to double the import duties."

Four of a Family Drowned.

PORT CLINTON, O., Oct. 29.—A quadruple drowning occurred near Plaster Bed, on Sandusky bay, eight miles east of here, yesterday afternoon. The drowned were the children of William Stark. Mr. Stark and the children went for a boat ride. On returning to shore the boat became fouled in a fish pound net, and the oarsman could neither forge the boat ahead nor go back. The children became frightened, and, leaning over the side of the small craft, it capsized, resulting in the four deaths. Mr. Stark came here from Toledo three weeks ago. He then had a family of a wife and ten children. Last week Harvey, aged 4, died, and the week before another child aged 3 months, also died.

Mount St. Elias Damaged.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Oct. 29.—A report has reached here from Yakutat that Mount St. Elias was badly shaken by the recent earthquake that did so much damage at Kodiak. Indian trappers and hunters who were in the vicinity of the mountain have returned to Yakutat and say that the mountain was badly torn up. The shock was so severe that a mass of ice acres in extent broke loose near the top of the mountain and came crashing down the sides, carrying everything before it. The Indians state that from where the avalanche started clear to the base of the mountain it made a track about half a mile wide, where no snow or ice remained.

Professor Max-Muller Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Right Hon. Friedrich Max-Muller, corpus professor of comparative philology at Oxford university, died yesterday afternoon. His disease was an affection of the liver. Until ten days ago he was able to continue writing his autobiography, dictating to his son. He was perfectly conscious until a short time before he passed away. Frequently during his illness dispatches of inquiry were received from Emperor William.

Hays to Be President.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Charles H. Tweed of the Southern Pacific railroad confirms the report that Charles M. Hays has been selected for the presidency of the company, made vacant by the death of C. P. Huntington. He said that Mr. Hays would assume the new office about Jan. 1 and that he would have headquarters in San Francisco. Mr. Tweed added that the other officers of the Southern Pacific would probably retain their present positions.

Alford Arrested.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Cornelius L. Alford, Jr., the absconding note teller of the First National bank in New York city who is charged with stealing $700,000 from the bank, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Chief Inspector William B. Watts of this city and Detective Armstrong of New York in an ordinary

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

President McKinley Names Thursday, Nov. 29.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The state department has issued the following:

By the President of the United States of America—A Proclamation. It has pleased Almighty God to bring our nation in safety and honor through another year. The works of religion and charity have everywhere been manifest. Our country through all its extent has been blessed with abundant harvests. Labor and the great industries of the people have prospered beyond all precedent. Our commerce has spread over the world. Our power and influence in the cause of freedom and enlightenment have extended over distant seas and lands. The lives of our official representatives and many of our people in China have been marvellously preserved. We have been generally exempt from pestilence and other great calamities, and save the tragic visitation which overwhelmed the city of Galveston made evident the sentiments of sympathy and Christian charity by virtue of which we are one united people.

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 29th of November next, to be observed by all the people of the United States at home or abroad as a day of thanksgiving and praise to him who holds the nations in the hollow of his hand. I recommend that they gather in their several places of worship and devoutly give him thanks for the prosperity which he has bestowed upon us, for seed time and harvest, for the valor, devotion and humanity of our armies and navies and for all his benefits to us as individuals and as a nation, and that they humbly pray for the continuance of his divine favor, for concord and amity with other nations and for righteousness and peace in all our ways. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington this 29th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-fifth. WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

SHARP FIGHTS WITH BOERS.

They Have an Army of 15,000 Men and Are Active.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—According to a dispatch from Cape Town to The Daily Mail a force of Boers attacked and surrounded a patrol of Cape police with a convoy near Hoopstad, Orange River Colony, last Wednesday, and a sharp fight ensued.

"The police," says the correspondent, "were compelled to abandon two Maxims. Ultimately re-enforced by the yeomanry, they succeeded in getting away with the convoy, but they lost 7 killed, 11 wounded and 15 captured. The colonials were outnumbered ten to one, and the engagement lasted for two hours.

"The Boers have 15,000 men in the field, nearly half of whom are in Orange River Colony. These are divided into commandoes of some 300 each, but are capable of combination for large operations."

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Barton's losses Thursday and additional casualties were a captain and 12 men killed and 3 officers and 25 men wounded. The Boers had 24 killed and 19 wounded. Three Boers who held up their hands in token of surrender and then fired on our men were captured and tried by court martial. I have confirmed the death sentence imposed on them.

"Methuen has dispersed the Boers near Zeerust. They had six casualties, and we took 28 prisoners. Our casualties were six wounded.

Death of Prince Victor.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A dispatch received here from Pretoria announces the death from enteric fever of Prince Christian Victor of Sleswick-Holstein, eldest son of the Princess Helena of England and a grandson of Queen Victoria. He was born in 1867 and was a major in the King's Royal rifles.

A Rich Find of Gold.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 29.—Advice from Dawson City state that a big strike has been made on Goring creek, 16 miles above the mouth of Hunker creek. The whole creek has been staked.

For sale—farm of 147½ acres, level and all under cultivation, known as the Elihu Slocum farm, 1½ mile from King Ferry post office and station. Price reasonable. C. E. SLOCUM, King Ferry.

DIED.

WEST—In Locke, Saturday evening October 27, 1900, Malinda West, widow of the late Benjamin West, aged 91.

SABIN—At Chatham, Sangamon Co. Ill., October 6, 1900, Mrs. Sarah Helen Sabin, only surviving sister of Thos. H. Phelps of Ledyard.

Worse still, he (Bryan) endeavors to set friend against friend, neighbor against neighbor, family against family, section against section and nation against nation. He makes the always dangerous appeal to the evil in human nature. His postulates are Boxers, and his propaganda is Boxer. He speaks no encouragement to the unsuccessful, but tells him to lay the blame at the door of his more fortunate neighbor, and that his sole remedy is to attack him. He invariably speaks of creditors as "merciless creditors," and to the debtor he teaches that his friend who loaned him money or has trusted him is his enemy. When a man fails and becomes despondent he does not seek to inspire him with the American spirit of perseverance; he does not appeal to him to be up and doing and try again, but he tells him to stop trying and that the remedy is to pull down the more successful. —Don M. Dickinson, Postmaster.

Mrs. Chas. Barger and Mrs. Henry Barger and little daughter Iva visited at George Mather's in Groton last Saturday.

Lansing was well represented at Ithaca Monday to hear the speech of Governor Roosevelt.

Mrs. Glen Morton of Auburn is the guest of her father, Denton Lobdell.

The violin which is played by Wm. Metzgar at Methodist church Sunday evenings is a great improvement to the choir.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Walter Havens has recovered from her illness and is able to ride out.

Sherwood.

Oct. 30.—The I. O. G. T. gave an oyster supper in their rooms last Tuesday night. Owing to the rain there was a very small attendance; however expenses were cleared and a small sum added to the treasury.

Nearly every man in Sherwood went to Auburn Thursday to see and hear Roosevelt. One could not help noting the difference from the Friday previous, when only three and one a boy went to hear Bryan. The boy, having been taught to hurrah for McKinley, returned without seeing the "elephant."

Fred Koon and wife and Mark Koon of Auburn were at C. Koon's over Sunday.

Mrs. Carrie Stringham of Union Springs is with her niece, Mts. H. Koon.

Deborah and Samuel Otis returned from the seaside last week.

Mrs. Theodore Collins has gone to Saranac lake for her health which is in a very precarious condition.

Extraordinary Entertainment.

On Wednesday, November 7th, the famous Chicago Marine Band, assisted by Miss Harriet Dement Packard, soprano, will give a matinee concert at the Moravia opera house at 2 p. m. Admission, 35 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. The sale of seats will open on Tuesday, October 30, at G. B. Clary's, but holders of course tickets may reserve their seats in advance, upon the Saturday or Monday previous. This concert is not of the regular course, but is given by the Central Lyceum Bureau at a matinee price to assist the Moravia management financially, having purchased a higher priced course this season than before. This band is probably as good as any in the U. S., in some respects superior, and people who enjoy good music should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity. Remember the day, Nov. 7, at 2 p. m.
