

CITY AND COUNTRY.

Dr. Talmage Talks of the Good Done by the Former.

He Says It Is the Birthplace of Civilization and Not Necessarily Evil—Some Advice to the Young.

[Copyright, 1909, by Louis Klopsch.]
Washington, Aug. 12.

From St. Petersburg, the Russian capital, where he was cordially received by the emperor and empress and the empress dowager, Dr. Talmage sends this discourse, in which he shows the mighty good that may be done by the cities, and also the vast evil they may do by their allurements to the unsuspecting and the unguarded. The text is Zechariah 1:17: "My cities through prosperity shall yet be spread abroad."

The city is no worse than the country. The vices of the metropolis are more evident than the virtues of the rural districts because there are more to be bad if they wish to be. The merchant is as good as the farmer. There is no more cheating in town than out of town—no worse cheating; it is only on a larger scale. The countryman sometimes prevaricates about the age of the horse that he sells, about the size of the bushel with which he measures the grain, about the peaches at the bottom of the basket as being as large as those at the top, about a quarter of beef as being tender when it is tough, and to as bad an extent as the citizen, the merchant prevaricates about calicoes or silks or hardware.

And as to villages, I think that in some respects they are worse than the cities, because they copy the vices of the cities in the meanest shape, and as to gossip its heaven is a country village. Everybody knows everybody's business better than he knows it himself. The grocery store or the blacksmith shop in day and night is the grand depot for masculine tittle-tattle, and there are always in the village a half dozen women who have their sunbonnets hanging near, so that at the first item of derogatory news they can fly out and cackle it all over the town. Countrymen must not be too hard in their criticism of the citizen, nor must the plow run too sharply against the yardstick.

Cain was the founder of the first city, and I suppose it took after him in morals. It takes a city a long time to escape from the character of a founder. Where the founders of a city are criminal exiles, the filth, the vice, the prisons, are the shadow of those founders. It will take centuries for New York to get over the good influence of the pious founders of that city—the founders whose prayers went up in the streets where now banks discount and brokers bargain and companies declare dividends and smugglers swear custom house lies, and above the roar of the wheels and the crack of the auctioneer's mallet ascends the aspiration: "We worship thee, O almighty dollar!" The old church that used to stand on Wall street is to this day throwing its blessing on the scene of traffic and on all the ships folding their white wings in the harbor. In other days people gathered in cities for defense—none but the poor, who had nothing to be stolen, lived in the country, but in these times, when through civilization and Christianity it is safe to live anywhere, people gather in the cities for purposes of rapid gain.

Cities are not evil necessarily, as some have argued. They have been the birthplace of civilization. In them popular liberty has lifted its voice. Witness Genoa and Pisa and Venice. After the death of Alexander the Great among his papers were found extensive plans of cities, some to be built in Europe, some to be built in Asia. The cities in Europe were to be occupied by Asiatics; the cities in Asia were to be occupied, according to his plans, by Europeans, and so there should be a commingling and a fraternity and a kindness and a good will between the continents and between the cities. So there always ought to be. The strangest thing in my comprehension is that there should be bickerings and rivalries among our American cities. New York must stop caricaturing Philadelphia, and Philadelphia must stop picking at New York, and certainly the continent is large enough for St. Paul and Minneapolis. What is good for one city is good for all the cities. Here is the great highway of our national prosperity. On that highway of national prosperity walk the cities.

A city with large forehead and great brain—that is Boston; a city with deliberate step and calm manner—that is Philadelphia; a city with its pocket full of change—that is New York; two cities going with a rush that astounds the continent—they are St. Louis and Chicago; a city that takes its wife and children along with it—that is Brooklyn. Cincinnati, Louisville, Pittsburgh, all the cities of the north and all the cities of the south, some distinguished for one thing, some for another, one for prospered. What advantages one advantages all. What damages Boston common damages Washington square. Laurel Hill, Mount Auburn, Greenwood, weep over the same grief. The statue of Benjamin Franklin in New York greeting the bronze statue of Edward Everett in Boston. All the cities a confraternity. I cannot understand how there should go on bickerings and rivalries. I plead for a higher style of brotherhood or sisterhood among the cities.

But while there are great differences

In some respects I have to tell you that all cities impress upon me and ought to impress upon you three or four very important lessons, all of them agreeing in the same thing. It does not make any difference in what part of the country we walk the streets of a great city there is one lesson I think which ought to strike every intelligent Christian man, and that is the world is a scene of toil and struggle. Here and there you find a man in the street who has his arms folded and who seems to have no particular errand, but if you will stand at the corner of the street and watch the countenances of those who go by you will see in most instances there is an intimation that they are on an errand which must be executed at the earliest moment possible, so you are jostled hither and thither by business men, up this ladder with a hod of bricks, out of this bank with a roll of bills, digging a cellar, shingling a roof, binding a book, mending a watch. Work, with its thousand eyes and thousand feet and thousand arms, goes on singing its song, "Work, work, work!" while the drums of the mill beat it and the steam whistles fire it. In the carpeted isles of the forest, in the woods from which the eternal shadow is never lifted, on the shore of the sea over whose iron coast tosses the tangled foam, sprinkling the cracked cliffs with a baptism of whirlwind and tempest, is the best place to study God, but in the rushing, swarming, raving street is the best place to study man.

Going down to your place of business and coming home again I charge you look about; see these signs of poverty, of wretchedness, of hunger, of sin, of bereavement, and as you go through the streets and come back through the streets gather up in the arms of your prayer all the sorrow, all the losses, all the sufferings, all the bereavements of those whom you pass and present them in prayer before an all sympathetic God. In the great day of eternity there will be thousands of persons with whom you in this world never exchanged one word will rise up and call you blessed; and there will be a thousand fingers pointed at you in Heaven, saying: "That is the man, that is the woman who helped me when I was hungry and sick and wandering and lost and heartbroken. That is the man, that is the woman; and the blessing will come down upon you as Christ shall say: 'I was hungry and ye fed me, I was naked and ye clothed me, I was sick and in prison and ye visited me; inasmuch as ye did it to these poor waifs of the streets ye did it unto me.'"

Again, in all these cities I am impressed with the fact that life is full of pretension and sham. What subterfuge, what double dealing, what two-facedness! Do all people who wish you good morning really hope for you a happy-day? Do all the people who shake hands love each other? Are all those anxious about your health who inquire concerning it? Do all want to see you who ask you to call? Does all the world know half as much as it pretends to know? Is there not many a wretched stock of goods with a brilliant store window? Passing up and down the streets to your business and your work, are you not impressed with the fact that society is hollow and that there are subterfuges and pretensions? Oh, how many there are who swagger and strut and how few people who are natural and walk! While fops simper and fools sneer and simpletons giggle, how few people are natural and laugh! I say these things not to create in you incredulity or misanthropy, nor do I forget there are thousands of people a great deal better than they seem, but I do not think any man is prepared for the conflict of this life until he knows this particular peril. Ehud comes pretending to pay his tax to King Eglon, and while he stands in front of the king, stabs him through with a dagger until the haft went in after the blade. Judas Iscariot kissed Christ.

One of the mightiest temptations in commercial life in all cities to-day is in the fact that many professed Christian men are not square in their bargains. Such men are in Baptist and Methodist and Congregational churches, and our own denomination is as largely represented as any of them. Our good merchants are foremost in Christian enterprises; they are patronizers of art, philanthropic and patriotic. God will attend to them in the day of His coronation. I am not speaking of them, but of those in commercial life who are setting a ruinous example to our young

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION—AS GOOD TO YOU AS A DAILY AND YOU GET IT AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY.

It furnishes more at the price than any other newspaper published in America. Its news service covers all the globe and is equaled by that of few dailies. Its reports from the Boer war have not been excelled in thoroughness and promptness, and with the presidential campaign now in progress it will be invaluable. Its political news is absolutely impartial. This fact makes it of especial value at this time.

If you want to watch every move of the great political campaign take the Thrice-a-Week World. If you want to keep your eye on the Trusts—and they need watching—take the Thrice-a-Week World. If you want to know all foreign developments, take the Thrice-a-Week World.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the GENOA TRIBUNE to

It is said that owing to the introduction of electricity for the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, several thousands of hands will soon be thrown out of work.

The Auburn district conference of the M. E. church was held Nov. 20 and 21 at Waterloo. Among the noted speakers were ex-Chancellor Sims of Syracuse and Rev. Manly S. Hard of Kingston, Pa.

Count Boni de Castellane, who got rid of more than $4,000,000 of the Gould money in three years, is a more formidable enemy of plutocracy than even William Jennings Bryan.

As a result of foreclosure proceedings brought by the Wayne Gallup estate against John Mullaly a farm of 17 acres situated in Venice was sold recently for $350, and was subject to an incumbrance of $630.

Charles Bowker of Binghamton, who was already getting a pension of $12 a month tried to have it increased by swearing that he had lost some of his fingers in the war. It was proved that he lost them coupling cars, and the judge gave him a year and one day in Auburn.

At about noon Monday, Nov. 12, Merchant Holley of Moravia, aged nearly 92 years, was found dead hanging in an outhouse near his home in Central street. His nephew had left him only half an hour. He had expressed himself as tired of life. He leaves two sisters who are in advanced years.

It was revealed by an inventory that the property left by the late Thomas K. Beecher of Elmira, will amount to something over $3,000. A gentleman remarked that the only reason he could assign for his possession of so much was that Mr. Beecher probably didn't know he had it. If he had he would have given it away.

At a recent meeting of the shareholders of the Moravia Elgin Creamery Co. held at the creamery it was decided to increase the capital stock of the company from $4,900 to $10,000, the shares being $25 each. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Edgar Shaffer, John Morse, Eugene Harris, E. E. Adams, Christopher Ennis, M. B. Devinney, W. J. Young. The board organized by electing the following as officers: President, John Morse; vice president, E. E. Adams; secretary and treasurer, Edgar Shaffer.

The advent of the younger Dick Croker at Cornell University is something of an eye-opener to the laboring men of Ithaca who have been supposing the youthful swell's father to be the poor man's special representative. As his college outfit he has two bulldogs that cost $10,000, a stable of thoroughbred horses and a full line of vehicles, which will take him daily to and from the country seat he has set up near the college, and forty suits of clothes which his valet informs the world cost from $50 to $100 each. All this money was acquired Hanna's son he would get general attention from the Democratic newspapers and Cartoonist Davenport might even make his picture with one of those dollar-marked suits of clothes on.

Burglars broke into J. R. Van Sickle's grocery store at Cayuga one night recently and blew open the safe which was in the rear end of the store, but secured nothing of any value. The postoffice is located in this store and the burglars also blew open that safe from which they secured about $360 in money and stamps. They overlooked a pocketbook in this safe containing $45. Both safes were completely wrecked. Before breaking into the store the robbers got into Fred Baker's shop and took a number of tools which were left in the postoffice. There appeared to be three in the gang, two doing the work inside and one watching. Andrew Richter who lives in part of the building attempted to go out and discover what was up. He was told not to try it or they would shoot him full of holes. Mr. Richter discreetly withdrew. This makes the tenth postoffice burglary in this vicinity within the past few months. All of the entrances were forced in the same manner with chisels, and the safes were blown up by drilling a hole in the top in each instance.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phipps of Poteau, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by Banker.

A COMPARISON

TELLS THE STORY.

We sincerely invite comparison of Suits and Overcoats bearing our label with those of any other store in Auburn; the result will open your eyes, because the quality will be as good, the make will be better, the fit will be equal to made-to-measure, to say nothing about what we can save you in price. We don't want you to take our word for it, but come and see for yourself—you will not be disappointed. If you buy here and are not satisfied with your purchase, bring it back and we will refund you your money.

Spanish-American War.

Wars seem to be necessary evils, yet they bring their blessings and we can see already a great good that has come out of the recent war between Spain and America. It has shown that America has no sectional issue to settle. There is no North, no South, no East and no West; but a United Country. The boys from the Old North state, North Carolina, stood shoulder to shoulder with those from the Northern states. It was very gratifying to see how the Southern people welcomed and honored the "Yankee boys" as they passed southward and it shows to us all, that the men and women of the South are loyal to the old flag. Yet many Northern people have for several years contended that the South was "true blue" and would respond when the time come. Many people up this way have friends and kinspeople who are located in the famous winter resort, Southern Pines, (Yankee town) in North Carolina and they have been writing of the kind treatment they get at the hands of the Southern people. They have divided up lands and let Northern people have it at most reasonable rates. Southern men of prominence are doing all they can to induce Northern people to go South and engage in business and hundreds of them are going. A visit to the Seaboard Air Line office at 371 Broadway, New York, or the ticket office of the Old Dominion Steamers in New York, will convince any one of the fact that daily many Northerners are going South. The Seaboard Air Line is one of the most progressive Southern railroads for they have opened an office of information right in the heart of the North for the purpose of inviting the people to go South, and those who have accepted the invitation, have returned with words of praise as to the treatment they received.

Be sure to go via Southern Pines on your way to Florida, as it is the shortest route. For information write to J. T. Patrick, Pinebluff, N. C.

The CHAS. H. SAGAR COMPANY,

"DRUNKEN JIM."

Bad Interpretations in His Life of the Oriental Salutation "May Your Shadow Never Grow Less."

This oriental salutation is capable of more than one interpretation. Two sinister fulfillments threatened a man whose surname, bequeathed to him by his father with other and less enduring legacies, was lost in the scribble of "Drunken Jim." His shadow certainly grew shorter, for his knees bent, his shoulders slouched and his head poked, as his spirit to look the world in the face gradually melted away. Again and again, more often for the sake of his family than for his own, a friendly hand was stretched to raise him up. "It breaks my heart to see them dear children starving," a compassionate neighbor and a strong temperance man said as an argument for spending time and money in the desperate effort to save "Drunken Jim" from himself. The object of his care was not wholly in-appreciative; but he had lost faith in himself, his wife had lost hope and his children had lost love for him. Husband and wife listened incredulously to the assurance that they might lay hold on the power of God. Jim did sign the pledge once, he said; and for a good long while he kept it and got on well with a coster's barrow. But he had to deliver something at a brewery. The atmosphere was full of drink, and a glass of ale was pressed upon him. Farewell from that moment of temporary enjoyment to the resolution of turning over a new leaf! Jim's shadow on his own wretched doorway soon grew thinner as well as shorter, for he gradually sank into a nameless grave. But he left behind him a shadow that seemed as though it would never grow less. It fell on his children, whose pasty faces and spiritless manner were the evidence of past starvation, and it blighted their prospects in life. That one glass of ale had disastrous results. Before offering intoxicating drink to strangers, careless, good-natured persons would do well to consider St. Paul's admonition: "That no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way."—The Quiver.

HIS SHADOW CERTAINLY GREW SHORTER.

ALCOHOL CAUSES DISEASE.

Indulgence in Alcoholic Drinks of Any Kind Unfits Men for Army Duty.

It is not only in the tropics that the use of intoxicating liquors—"mild beer" no less than fiery whisky—is conducive to disease by so weakening the system as to make its natural defense against the assault of disease less effective. Any physician understands this fact. One of the first questions asked by the examiner for a life insurance company is whether the applicant for a policy drinks intoxicants. If he does the risk is regarded as considerably more hazardous, and some companies take whisky drinkers in preference to users of beer.

One trouble about the effort to uproot the army canteen, and the greatest trouble, is the fact that army officers themselves are inveterate drinkers. At West Point they are taught the strictest sense of personal honor; to lie is an unpardonable offense, while to cheat or to betray or to do anything "underhanded" is inconceivable; but to drink is one of the natural attributes of a gentleman! We must admire the high notions of honor and integrity that are there instilled—would that we had more of them in the workaday world—but at the same time one cannot but regret the failure to realize the manifold evils flowing from the use of liquor and the failure to inculcate any lessons that will teach the embryo army officer that he can be a better soldier by letting it alone. There was formerly a notion that a man could not be a good newspaper man without being more or less of a drunkard, but that is of the sole. The army is the only large business in America that has not moved against the drink habit; it should be awakened to the spirit of the twentieth century.—Indianapolis Press.

Consumption of Beer.

The consumption of beer in Germany averages 26 gallons a year for each inhabitant; in the United Kingdom it is 31.3 gallons; in the United States it is 12.6 gallons; in France it is only 5.3 gallons.

MISSING THE MARK.

The Greatest Failure One Can Make Is That Implied in the Little Word "Sin."

Sin is the translation of a New Testament word signifying literally the missing of a mark. This suggests that other familiar word, of Latin derivation, transgression, which denotes a stepping over a bound or limit, somewhat in the manner of a trespasser, says the New York Observer.

It is perfectly evident that there is in the world a great deal of missing of the mark. The marks are of all kinds, and they are set by various hands at various stages in the development of the race, and for very various purposes. So soon as primitive man emerges from a condition of absolute savagery up to a plane of semi-intelligence he begins to establish marks or standards, rude and clumsy though they may be, which his fellows are supposed to regard in their warring, hunting or feasting. In this are observable the crude beginnings of a human society. As men rise in intelligence these norms or standards, imposed by master-spirits who have seized the reins of power, or tacitly agreed to by common consent, increase in number and variety, and may also perhaps improve in moral quality. And in a highly developed, civilized society the marks of social or political regulation, or of commercial usage, are so many as to be bewildering. The members of such a society cannot move in any direction without running up against bounds and restrictions and regulations curbing zeal or defining duty in a very intricate fashion.

Man therefore has his little marks everywhere. Many of these are the mere arbitrary chalk-lines drawn here or there at the instance of an arbitrary whim, but some are goals and bounds that are set at the farther end of life's race courses to incite the ardent runner to utmost efforts to obtain the coveted prizes there to be bestowed. Many, alas! quite miss the mark in life, stumble and fall in the race, or wander off from the arena altogether. Failures are numerous, misfits are observable everywhere. Humanity finds difficulty in keeping itself up to regulation standard, even when the norm is simply that of a social etiquette, a conventional morality, or of current ethics.

There is moreover a mark which vastly transcends these pretty by-laws and "Do's" and "Don'ts" of men, though it may include some of them, and that is the law of a Sinaitic holiness, the pure prescription of the absolutely righteous commandment of Jehovah. When now it is man's little mark that is missed we call it "bad form," or a "great mistake," or perhaps a misdemeanor—which is the word of the statute books. But when it is God's great mark of holiness that is missed there is no term for it but that little, awful monosyllable, "sin," compact with infinite terrors, fraught with endless consequences—which is the word of the Bible. Sin brings in the idea of a wrong committed against God, of an offense which is not a contempt of court in the earthly sense, but which strikes at Heaven, a crime against the Creator, a failure to attain the goal of that perfection on which God rightfully insists.

There are many earthly marks and standards of which if a man fall no great harm is done. There are more "necessary" things in the world which after all could be dispensed with than men think. Many a man has failed in a social or political sense, who has succeeded as regards the essential interests of life; many a man has been disappointed in commercial quests or educational enterprises who has yet retrieved himself by attaining the great moral ends of existence. The emphasis after all is not on man's mark and man's prizes but on God's high, shining mark of holiness. None can afford to miss that mark. To miss that mark is sin. To continue to miss it is eternal condemnation. No life can be a failure that meets the demands of the divine law through the merits and grace of the Son of God, but human speech cannot describe the terror of disappointment and remorse which is certain to pursue those who, in presence of all God's pleas and promises, deliberately and steadily miss the mark of His will. Moreover, this terror deepens into keenest anguish as he who misses the mark of the Divine will realizes that not only does God not will his failure, but rather desires his success in reaching the mark. Does He not, indeed, stand ready to must die. He also told Israel when he persisted in sinning that he was self-destroyed.

A Destructive Charge.

One of the most terrible conflicts of the civil war occurred near Centralia, Boone county, Mo., in the afternoon of Tuesday, September 27, 1864. Nearly 200 federal soldiers, commanded by Maj. A. V. E. Johnson, of the Thirty-ninth Missouri infantry, riding out after guerrillas, met there Capt. Bill Anderson and George Todd, with 225 men. Scarcely a dozen of the federal soldiers escaped with their lives, while of the guerrillas two only were killed and one mortally wounded. There is nowhere in the history of the world record of a charge more destructive than that made on the fair September afternoon. Every man in the federal line of battle perished, and only half a score of those left to hold the horses got away.—St. Louis Republic.

Economy.

Economy no more means saving money than it means spending money. It means the administration of a house, its stewardship; spending or saving, that is, whether money or time, or anything else, to the best possible advantage.—Ruskin.

Sympathetic.

"Hen-ry," gasped Mrs. Peck, "I w-wish you wou-ld go f-or the doc-tor, I c-can't hard-ly b-breathe."

"Don't try, my dear, if it hurts you," calmly replied Henry.—Chicago Evening News.

Thanksgiving

A week from Thursday. Yum, yum! what a line-up the old dining-room will behold! You will have turkey, of course, and all the regulation extras and condiments.

What a propitious time it is to outfit anew that room, where you sit and gaze around for hours every day in the year! A modern Table, a Sideboard, a China Closet, a Buffet, a Plate Rack, new Chairs, a Dining Table Rug, walls redecorated with the new Dining-room Papers, new Curtains and Draperies, Pictures for the walls. What is the use in waiting until you are so old you can't not enjoy nice things, or until the children have swarmed? Come in, anyway, and look over our 1901 Dining-room goods.

After the turkey is but a ruined frame, you will all hunt for Rockers and Easy Chairs. Once Seating Outfits came in sets, one-half or more being stiff-backed chairs; now no two pieces are even similar to each other, and every one wants a large restful Easy Chair or Rocker.

We counted, this morning, from our stock book, 82 patterns of Fancy Chairs, and 73 Rockers; the prices on former run from $1.90 to $16.50 and on Rockers $1.50 to $19.50.

THE VILLAGE NOTES

NEWS PICKED UP BY THE TRIBUNE REPORTERS.

What Has Happened in Genoa During the Past Seven Days—An Interesting Page.

—Talmadge sermon this week. Read it.

—Frank Denson and family of Reynoldsville were guests of his brother John over Sunday.

—E. S. Muggleton has returned to Auburn to work in Osborne's shop and expects to move his family there in a short time.

The place to buy millinery at Mrs. E. B. Beebe's.

—The editor has a plan whereby he is able to furnish to any hunter or sportsman a Marlin repeating rifle or target gun of any size and grade at considerably less than regular price. Any TRIBUNE reader who wants a gun should call for further particulars right away.

—Ensign Coat, who has been holding meetings here for the past six weeks, will conduct services in the Presbyterian church next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. It is expected that the Sunday evening service will close the work of Mr. Coat in this village.

All hats at greatly reduced prices at Mrs. E. B. Beebe's.

—We have received the past week a large stock of wedding invitations, dance tickets and folders, which are new, neat and desirable. Orders for printing of this class receive our best attention, and we don't suppose the work can be excelled in this part of the country. We would be glad to show you samples and designs before you place your orders elsewhere.

—While returning home from Moravia Friday evening, A. B. Peck and family were the fortunate victims of a very unfortunate accident. They had nearly reached the top of the "Billy Green hill" when the evener snapped in two, and the wagon backed down the hill with terrible velocity. It finally turned into the ditch and overturned, throwing Mrs. Peck and her mother, Mrs. Hand, out and piling seats and other things onto them. Mr. Peck assured himself that no one was seriously hurt and then succeeded in catching the team and driving back down the road to Keefe's place where he was fitted out to enable them to proceed homeward. For more than an hour the ladies sat by the roadside in pitchy darkness, and strange to say, five men passed on up the hill during the time and each one —Read the Sagar Drug store prices on the third page.

—Now get your ticket for the concert-recital next Tuesday evening.

—Mrs. O. W. Ferrigo has been visiting friends at Auburn the past week.

—Once again we beg the indulgence of our readers. THE TRIBUNE is nearly a day late.

—Miss Belle Hunt returned Wednesday from a week's visit at Whitney Point and Syracuse.

—Several new ads will be found in this issue. Read them over and see if they are not interesting.

—Genoa is to have a farmer's institute on Feb. 20 and 21, for the first time in a number of years.

—E. May Gorman, merchant, at Locke, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in United States district court at Utica, with debts given as $1,693.38. The petitioner has no assets.

—The proposition to erect a $10,000 Soldiers' and Sailors' monument by the county was defeated by a majority of 1,173, the vote being 4,337 for and 5,510 against the proposition.

—The Model Clothing Co. occupied the Avery store two days this week and displayed a fine assortment of wearing apparel. They occupy one side of our supplement this week.

Have you seen those 25 and 50c hats at Mrs. E. B. Beebe's?

—The Sayman Remedy Co. played their last entertainment to a large audience Wednesday evening. They go to Summerhill from here. The baby contest, which brought out considerable good-natured rivalry, resulted in favor of little Harry Fulmer.

—A neat new barber pole advertises for Frank Lane's shop. He has recently purchased a couple of new chairs. Mr. Lane has also purchased an engine and is preparing to attend to the grinding and sharpening of razors, a trade which he is experienced in.—Groton Journal.

Walking and sailor hats at about half price at Mrs. E. B. Beebe's.

—Milo H. Snell, representing the Home Correspondence School at Springfield, Mass., was in town on business Tuesday. Many young men and women who are unable to attend a business school are taking advantage of this method and preparing for a future successful business career.

—The high wind of Wednesday did considerable damage in this vicinity. The East Venice hall was moved about six inches on its foundation, numerous trees were blown over, wagons overturned and people turned over. But they say "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good."

J. Leon Mack has some fine pigs and a new milch cow for sale. w1 —Says the Locke Times: "Frank Giltner who has been in the employ of Geo. Englehart for about two years has gone in partner with A. W. Hudson of Moravia, who has been running a shop there for some time. Mr. Giltner will move his family soon." Well, well; Mr. Hudson has the sympathy of a lot of folks over here.

—Next Tuesday evening at the Presbyterian church occurs Mrs. Hewitt's concert-recital, the first to be given in Genoa, so far as we can learn. The sale of tickets has been large, and there is every indication of a highly enjoyable evening's entertainment. The trustees of the church have decided to level the two platforms and remove the division line, which will be a marked improvement, and they expect to have it finished for the recital. The programs are now out, and the public may see that the entertainment will be worth the price. Remember the date.

Tax Sale.

All repair work finished by C. S. Hill and left with Wm. Robinson will be sold for charges on Dec. 15 next, unless called for before that date.

Vocal and Instrumental Concert at the Presbyterian church, King Ferry, Wednesday evening, Nov. 28th, at 8 o'clock. Admission 20c, children 10c. The following talent needs no introduction, but assures a pleasing program: Miss Jennie D. Woodley, elocutionist; Miss Marsh, (from the Ithaca Conservatory) soloist; Casper Fenner, soloist; Messrs. J. B. Gunn and E. L. Colby, vocalists.

—Remember the concert-recital at the Presbyterian church, Tuesday evening, November 27. The people of Genoa should take pride and pleasure in encouraging the young people in their study of music, and here is a chance to do so.

—The latest dance is the "five step." It is a pleasant combination of the waltz and two-step, tho it is not at all liable to supercede or even equal in popularity either of the others mentioned. The music for it is said to be quite pretty. —Review. Is that so? We danced a five step before we were twelve years old, and the music was of a very ordinary tone.

—An observing editor, after looking over the situation, concludes that some people go to church to weep, while others go there to sleep; some go there to tell their woes, while others go to show their clothes; some go there to hear the preacher, others to hear the solo screecher; boys go to reconnoiter, girls go there because they orter; many go for some reflections, but mighty few to help collections.

Remember that I will buy your old rubber, copper, etc., and pay the highest market price. 5c for rubber. PEARL HUNTER, Genoa.

FOR SALE—Single comb white and buff Leghorn cockpels, 50c to $1 each. w2 GEO. L. FERRIS, Five Corners.

For sprains, swellings and lameness there is nothing so good as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Ames--McAllister.

A very happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McAllister in DeRuyter on Wednesday afternoon, when their only daughter, Lettie M., was united in marriage to Ralph H. Ames, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ames of the same place, in the presence of about fifty guests.

At 3 o'clock, the bride and groom attended by Miss Winifrid C. Ames, sister of the groom, and Mr. Eugene McAllister, brother of the bride, entered the parlor and took their places beneath a bell of evergreens and flowers, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Rosenberry, pastor of the M. E. church of DeRuyter. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played by Miss Maude DeLong as the bridal party entered the parlor and she continued playing softly during the ceremony. The bride was very becomingly attired in a gown of light blue silk with white chiffon applique trimmings and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of white mull and carried white roses.

After congratulations, the guests were served with very fine refreshments, and after viewing the presents which were elegant as well as useful, the time for departure soon came.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames very quietly left the house and were driven to Cuyler where they took the south-bound train, thus evading, as they thought, the shower of rice which was waiting for them at the station in DeRuyter. But several guests at the wedding were on that train and the young couple were not allowed to continue their journey without the usual amount of rice.

After a ten days' trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Ames will come to Genoa and will reside with C. A. Ames and wife.

Those in attendance at the wedding from this place were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ames, Miss Emma A. Waldo and Mr. Albert D. Mead.

When the Pilgrim Fathers enjoyed their first Thanksgiving in 1621 they did not think so much of the clothes they wore as the people of today. Custom has made it an almost universal law that today a man must be well dressed. This law of custom is broken in many ways, but more often by men that pay good prices for poor, inferior, ill-fitting clothing. Let us show you our offerings for the Fall and winter of 1900-01. THE ONE-PRICE HEIFER.

Yew want buy that heifer, Zeb? I dop't believe yew can; I wouldn't sell that heifer, sir, to any livin' man.

No, sir, if yew should come an' lay a fifty in my hand I'd go an' shet the stable door an' let that heifer stand.

I'd let her stand right where she is till she is old an' gray.

Afore I'd sell one side of her, that's all I've got to say.

Yew heard I wanted to dispose? Yew must hev heard it wrong;

I'd buy a dozen like her, Zeb, if yew'd bring them along.

Of course I've got a lot of stock, more stock 'n what I need, an' I am short of stable room, an' some-what short of feed;

But ez for sellin' that there beast I wouldn't, no siree!

Let forty dollars come between that heifer, Zeb, an' me.

I am a one-price critter, Zeb, no man kin beat me down;

She's wuth a head more'n forty, Zeb, ask any man in town.

Hi Hunker wants her purty bad, an' so does Deekin Hale,

But ez I said before, of course, the heifer ain't for sale.

She's gentle an' she's good an' kind, an' slicker then an' ed;

A child could milk her any time, she'd never raise a heel.

She never hooks nor jumps the fence, she never runs away.

An' comes around at milkin' time ez reg'lar ez the day.

You'd better see the milk she gives, it's yellor, thick an' sweet,

An' ez for quantity, by gum, that heifer can't be beat!

Their junks of butter floatin' round inside the milkin' pail,

An' speakin' of her butter, Zeb—but then, she ain't for sale.

Yew say yew're bound to hev her, Zeb? Yew want her purty bad?

The slickest piece of cow-flesh, sir, a farmer ever had!

Wuth thirty dollars ez she stands, an' not a dollar less;

For I'm a one-price critter, Zeb, yew'll find that out, I guess.

Wuth thirty dollars ez she stands, I'll tel' yew what I'll dew;

I'll swap her now for twenty-five—twixt me an' her an' yew.

jest twenty-five, no more or less, for I'm a one-price man.

An' if yew'd want to swap her back, why durn it, Zeb, yew can.

—Joe Cone, in N. Y. Sun.

Finders and Losers

BROADLY speaking, girls are divided into two great classes—the ones who find and the ones who lose.

Meta is a girl who finds. Ownerless earrings and brooches and shirt studs are scattered along her pathway, entreating her to pick them up, whichever way she strolls, and little things like horseshoes and four-leaved clovers seem to leap up in the most unlikely places at the first sound of her step.

"Guess what I found to-day?" is her regular form of greeting; so no one was surprised when the question came that day at Georgia's tea.

"Oh, I don't know," said Lillian, indifferently. "Probably a cotton handkerchief or somebody's other glove." Lillian is one of the girls who couldn't find anything if they would. Possibly that's the reason she assumes the manner of one who wouldn't if she could.

Meta gave a withering glance at the scoffer. Then she removed her Ledsmith hat and extracted from its crown a roll of money, which she spread upon her lap. A $50, a $20 and a $10 bill stared out.

"Counterfeit!" gasped Lillian.

"No, sir. Uncle Mac says they're as good as any ever made."

"You didn't find them, Meta; you're joking," protested Georgia.

"No joke about it. I was walking down Wabash avenue, and stacks of people were passing in both directions, too, but suddenly there was an open place about a yard square right in front of me, and straight in the middle of it lay this money, all rolled up. It just seemed as though the crowd parted, and everybody looked the other way on purpose to let me have it."

"Well, I never!" sung the chorus.

"What are you going to use it for, Meta?" somebody asked, but Lillian, whose interest had revived wonderfully, didn't give her time to answer.

"Use it for?" she cried. "Do you s'pose Meta would spend that money? Think of the poor woman who lost it!"

"Woman, indeed!" retorted Meta.

"Uncle Mac doesn't think that. He says there's a little pocket just inside the waistband of his trousers where he keeps a wad of bills—whenever he has one—and that it's the easiest thing in the world to slip the money in back of the pocket instead of into it. And I asked him if that ever happened to him. You ought to have seen how guilty he looked when he said: 'Once—but don't tell Ellen!' That's my aunt, you know. Well, we think—Uncle Mac and I—that some rich club fellow lost it, and that he'd put it to some extravagant use even if he had it again."

"But I can't help thinking about some poor old washerwoman who hadn't another cent in the world," murmured the blue-eyed innocent.

"Washerwomen without another cent are so likely to go strewing $80 rolls around!" said Meta.

"More likely 'twas a school-teacher with her month's salary—and teaching is such nervous work!" suggested Lillian.

"Or a fagged-out woman clerk," added Georgia.

"Well, I wouldn't take it from a woman mind so much if it belonged to a man. But I intend to advertise it, anyway."

"Certainly!" exclaimed Lillian as if she'd been thinking of that all the time. "That's the proper thing to do," and blue-eyed innocent added: "I should just use that money for advertising every day in every paper until there wasn't a cent left."

Meta pursed her lips. "Well, I'm taking Uncle Mac's advice about this," she said. "He says to study the papers a day or two and see if the loser advertises. Then, after that, he says to advertise: 'Found—Sum of money, at such a place, at such a time.' Not a word to give a false claimant any help in identifying the bills, you see. But he doesn't think I'll ever find the owner, and, say, girls, if he shouldn't turn up, what do you say to a lake trip together or some kind of a regular spree with this money?"

"I couldn't enjoy it," said the right-ecus Lillian.

"Not unless you gave half to a hospitable!" amended another.

"Oh, I don't know," dissented Georgia. "I think my conscience would take to a trip to Mackinac."

"Good for you!" replied Meta, as she rolled up her wealth and put on her hat. "We'll spend it all for gum if we want to, Georgia; and we won't treat them, either—see if we do!"

They didn't see her again for three weeks, and then she came flying into luncheon at Lillian's with a look in her eyes as if she'd just fallen heir to a million in gold.

"I've had the loveliest experience in the world!" she announced. "You remember that money I found? Well, I waited a few days, as Uncle Mac said, and no one advertised the loss; so I put one in myself. Told them to address X, the newspaper office, you know—the way they do. Next morning I went down to get the returns. There were nine answers, and of all the pathetic things! Not one of the people who wrote had lost their money on the day or at the place I found mine, but they were just as hopeful, for all that, and they actually made me feel responsible for their losses.

"First there was a man who had dropped a small, flat, black book, with a pawn ticket, a laundry bill and two two-dollar bills in it. And distressed over it! You'd think he'd lost a gold mine. And he was so sure 'twas his money I'd found—poor fellow! Then a woman poured out a whole sheetful of her heart, and drew a picture of the purse she'd lost, and told me how the money in it belonged to her sister, who was in the hospital and who needed it dreadfully, and how I'd be blessed forever if I only restored it. Next there was an old man who had dropped two $20 bills, and he went on in a shaky, feeble hand to explain that the reason he was carrying it was because he couldn't trust the banks; and then another girl, who told about an alligator-skin pocketbook containing a latchkey and a time pass over the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinac road. When I showed that to Uncle Mac afterward he said that road was a regular joke, because it didn't run to any of the places mentioned in its name, and he just shouted over the pass, because it had expired September 30, 1897. But it wasn't funny to me. I thought the girl must be in a sad way to be hanging on to an expired pass over a road like that for three whole years. Besides, she mentioned in a postscript that there was a five-dollar bill in her purse.

"I got awfully worked up over those letters. Then, suddenly, I had a brilliant idea. I just made up my mind to wait a week and then, if no one claimed that $80, to send for all those forlorn people and pay them what they had lost out of what I had found. I didn't dare tell Uncle Mac the scheme until the week had passed and I had really written notifying them all to be at his office at ten o'clock this morning. Then I just gave him the news all in one piece. I don't believe in breaking things, especially when you've set your heart on doing them. Oh, he thought I was crazy, of course, and wished he'd answered my 'ad.' himself and claimed the money. Said he could have done it through some one else so I would never have suspected, and then could have kept the money for me until this fit of sentimental foolishness had passed off—and all that sort of talk. But the end of it was that he took a chair over by the window in his office and let me have things all my own way with the people I had sent for. They all came, mind you, and of all the surprised-looking beings! Each one was expecting to find the identical purse he had lost, and at first everyone looked suspicious of everyone else. They couldn't seem to grasp the situation.

"I had the money, all changed into the right amounts and lying in tempting little heaps on Uncle Mac's desk. First I made a little speech and then I served gold and silver refreshments. It took every cent of the money, and I had to put in a dollar besides, so there goes our gum, Georgia; but you wouldn't grudge it if you'd been there. Such larks! I never felt so much like a beneficent fairy in my life. Oh, dear—fun! Vaudeville are nowhere—and, say, the man who lost the pawn ticket will never get over his grudge against me because I couldn't give that back. He thinks I've lost him a fortune! But actually kissed my hand. Think of that—will you? And the woman with the sister in the hospital was so happy! And I cried. Me crying—can you see it? And Uncle Mac needn't pretend he wasn't wiping his own eyes, either! But when they were gone he squared around at me, stern as stern, and said, in a disgusted way:

"Well, of all the girly-girly performances!"

"I looked straight back at him and just said: 'How would you have a girl, Uncle Mac, if not girly? Do you want me manny?' And honest fact, he didn't know a single thing what to say."—Chicago Daily Record.

merchants. Go through all the stores and offices in our cities and tell me in how many of those stores and offices are the principles of Christ's religion dominant? In three-fourths of them? No. In half of them? No. In one-tenth of them? No. Decide for yourself. The impression is abroad everywhere that charity can consecrate iniquitous gains and that if a man give to God a portion of an unrighteous bargain then the Lord will forgive him the rest. The secretary of a benevolent society came to me and said: "Mr. So-and-So has given a large amount of money to the missionary cause," mentioning the sum. I said: "I can't believe it." He said: "It is so." Well, I went home, staggered and confounded. I never knew the man to give anything. But after awhile I found out that he had been engaged in the most infamous kind of a swindle, and then he promised to compromise the matter with the Lord, saying: "Now, here is so much for thee, Lord. Please to let me off!"

I want to tell you that the church of God is not a shop for receiving stolen goods and that if you have taken anything from your fellows you had better return it to the men to whom it belongs. In a drug store in Philadelphia a young man was told that he must sell blacking on the Lord's day. He said to the head man of the firm: "I can't possibly do that. I am willing to sell medicines on the Lord's day, for I think that is right and necessary, but I can't sell this patent blacking." He was discharged from the place. A Christian man hearing of it took him into his employ, and he went on from one success to another until he was known all over the land for his faith in God and his good works as for his worldly success. When a man has sacrificed any temporal, financial good for the sake of his spiritual interests the Lord is on his side, and one with God is a majority.

But if you have been much among the cities you have also noticed that they are full of temptations of a political character. It is not so more in one city than in all the cities. Hundreds of men going down in our cities every year through the pressure of politics. Once in awhile a man will come out in a sort of missionary spirit and say: "I am going into politics now to reform them, and I am going to reform the ballot box, and I am going to reform all the people I come in contact with." That man in the fear and love of God goes into politics with that idea and with the resolution that he will come out uncontaminated and as good as when he went in. But generally the case is when a man steps into politics many of the newspapers try to blacken his character and to distort all his past history, and after a little while has gone by instead of considering himself an honorable citizen he is lost in contemplation and in admiration of the fact that he has so long been kept out of jail! If a man shall go into politics to reform politics and with the right spirit, he will come out with the right spirit and unhurt. That was Theodore Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey. That was George Briggs, of Massachusetts. That was Judge McLean, of Ohio.

Then look around and see the allurements to dissipated life. Bad books, unknown to father and mother, vile as the reptiles of Egypt, crawling into some of the best families of the community; and boys read them while the teacher is looking the other way, or at recess, or on the corner of the street when the groups are gathered. These books are read late at night. Satan finds them a smooth plank on which he can slide down into perdition some of your sons and daughters. Reading bad books—one never gets over it. The books may be burned, but there is not enough power in all the apothecary's preparations to wash out the stain from the soul. Fathers' hands, mothers' hands, sisters' hands will not wash it out; none but the hand of the Lord can wash it out.

And what is more perilous in regard to some of these temptations we may not mention them. While God in His Bible from chapter to chapter thundered His denunciations against these crimes people expect the pulpit and the printing press to be silent on the subject, and just in proportion as people are impure are they fastidious on this theme. They are so full of decay and death they do not want their sepulchers opened. God will turn in to destruction all the unclean, and no splendors of surrounding can make decent that which He has smitten. God will not excuse sin merely because it has costly array and beautiful tapestry and palatial residence any more than He will excuse that which crawls a blotch of sores through the lowest cellar. Ever and anon through some lawsuit there flashes upon the people of our great cities what is transpiring in seemingly respectable circles. You call it "high life," you call it "fast living," you call it "people's eccentricity." And while we kick off the sidewalk the poor wretch who has not the means to garnish his iniquity, these lords and ladies, wrapped in purple and in linen, go unwhipped of public justice. Ah, the most dreadful part of the whole thing is that there are persons abroad whose whole business it is to despoil the young.

What an eternity such a man will "See here, what have you done?" and the wretch will wrap himself with fiercer flame and leap into deeper darkness, and the multitude he has destroyed will pursue him and hurl at him the long, bitter, relentless, everlasting curse of their own anguish. If there be one cup of eternal darkness more bitter than another, they will have to drink it to the dregs. If in all the ocean of the lost world that comes billowing up there be one wave more fierce than another, it will dash over them. But there is hope for all who will turn.

I stood one day at Niagara falls, and I saw what you may have seen there—six rainbows bending over that tremendous plunge. I never saw anything like it before or since. Six beautiful rainbows arching that great cataract! And so over the rapids and angry precipices of sin, where so many have been dashed down, God's beautiful admonitions hover, a warning arching each peril—six of them, 50 of them, 1,000 of them. Beware, beware, beware!

Young men, while you have time to reflect upon these things and before the duties of the office and the store and the shop come upon you again, look over this whole subject, and after the day has passed and you hear in the nightfall the voices and footsteps of the city dying from your ear, and it gets so silent that you can hear distinctly your watch under your pillow going "tick, tick," then open your eyes and look out upon the darkness and see two pillars of light, one horizontal, the other perpendicular, but changing their direction until they come together, and your enraptured vision beholds it—the cross.

A Blacksmith Saved his Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, 5 years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by J. S. Banker.

RAM'S HORN WRINKLES.

Right is more than relationship.
The careless man is never care-free.
Where the heart lies the thought flies.
Large pride may go with a lean purse.
Christ furnishes the Christian's precedents.
The sinless Man was the silent One when accused of sin.
Good principle makes the best capital for life's business.
All our sorrows may be made the servants of sympathy.
Life has the greatest circumference when it centers in Christ.
The best analysts of the Bread of Life may yet die of starvation.
No commerce enriches the world so much as the exchange of thought.
The man who can stand it to be alone will do the work that will stand alone.

Your Ideal.

You cannot live up to your ideal, you say. But at least you can keep your ideal from being lowered. Are you doing that?—Boston Congregationalist.

A Lithuanian in Chicago bears the strikingly suggestive name of John Uppermost Short. It has a very impetuous sound.

When You Get a Headache

don't waste a minute but go to your druggist and get a box of Krause's Headache Capsules. They will prevent pain, even though your skull were cracked. They are harmless, too. Read the guarantee. Price 25c. Sold by J. S. Banker.

COL. BOB AND GEN. LEE.

An Old Army Mule That Obeys Military Orders and Needs No Driving Lines.

A military mule and a military negro driver are curiosities of the street cleaning department, and when the pair get a Bay street assignment they command lots of attention. A reporter was near the corner of Bay and Hogan streets the other day when Col. Bob, the negro, and Gen. Lee, the mule, came to empty the garbage barrels, says the Florida Times-Union and Citizen.

"Halt!" rang out in stentorian tones, and caused everybody to look up. Col. Bob hoisted the barrel and the mule tried to kick a fly from his nose with his hind hoof. "Tention!" called Col. Bob in military accents, and the mule pricked up his ears and threw his head high in the air.

When the garbage had been collected Col. Bob wished to cross the street, and, shouldering his spade, he called "Right wheel, forward march!" and without glancing at the mule Col. Bob marched across the street and Gen. Lee wheeled around and crossed over, until the cry "Halt!" again greeted his long ears. When the dump cart had been filled Col. Bob mounted the seat and called "Tention, parade dress, step lively now," and without requiring Col. Bob to touch the lines the mule took the right side of the street and went off at a quiet trot.

Gen. Lee was formerly an army mule and was purchased by the city when the soldiers left Jacksonville at the close of the Spanish-American war. Col. Bob was a truckman in the commissary department and drove Gen. Lee during the encampment here.

The king of Sweden and Norway has tendered to George D. Meiklejohn, assistant secretary of war, the decoration of Chevalier of the Sword on account of courtesies extended to Swedish officers who visited the United States during the war with Spain.

A northwestern newspaper correspondent begins an item thus: "Mr. —, one of our business men, came near having an experience that might have been more serious for him than it was." There is a writer who should be moved higher up.

Honest now, do you owe the printer?

Rheumatism.

Nobody knows all about it; and nothing, now known, will always cure it.

Doctors try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, when they think it is caused by imperfect digestion of food.

You can do the same.

It may or may not be caused by the failure of stomach and bowels to do their work. If it is, you will cure it; if not, you will do no harm.

The way, to cure a disease is to stop its cause, and help the body get back to its habit of health.

When Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil does that, it cures; when it don't, it don't cure. It never does harm.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.
