THE STRANGE CASE OF DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

By ROBERT LOUIS STRVENSON

Condensation by Irving Bachelles X...

Stevenson called himself an idler. He was a natura vagabond who loved to go to old clothes upon me own way through the strange city haunts of the disinherited or out upon the open road. He despised smug society, but talked engerly with all sorts of men and women. Yet even as a boy he always carried a notebook and a pencil and constantly put into words what he saw and thought and felt. He wrote antil his health gave wey again and again, and then he wrote of that.

R. UTTERSON was a lawyer who believed in letting people go to the devil in their own way. He and Richard Enfield, a man about town, who was at once his distant kinsman and his friend, often walked about the London streets together. One day they came upon a sinister, windowless, two-story building in a byway. Enfield told of seeing a man in this street run into a little girl, knock her down and walk over her body. "It sounds nothing to hear, but it was hellish to see," he said. "I collared the man and held him, and though he made no resistance he gave me a look so ugly that it set me in a sweat. He offered to pay damages and came to this house to get the money. He gave me 10 pounds in gold and a check signed by a man I knew. A forgery? Not a bit of it-perfectly good!" Mr. Utterson asked the name of the said: "His name is Hyde." of the roan who signed the check, for I know it niready," said Utterson.

That night the latter opened his safe and took from it a will which he reexamined with care. It provided that in case of the death of Henry Jekyll all his possessions were to pass to Edward Hyde, and 'n case of the disappearance, or unexplained absence for three months of said Jekyll, Edward Hyde should step into Jekyll's shoes without delay. As he studied it the fawyer said: "I thought it madness, now I begin to fear it is disgrace." He decided to talk with Doctor Lanyon, a great physician and an old riend of Jekyll.

"I say very little of Henry now," said Lanyon. "He began to go wrong some ten years ago. He became too Lanyon had never heard of Hyde. From that time forward Utterson began to haunt that sinister doorway into which Hyde had disappeared. He determined to discover its owner. At last one night a small plainly dressed man approached and drew a key from his pocket. His look suggested deformity but did not show it. Utterson accosted him and said: "Now I shall know you again. It may be useful." Hyde gave his address in Soho, admitted knowing Jekyll, and disappeared within. Utterson turned away convinced that this loathsome little man had some dark hold upon Doctor Jekyll. In sorrow and in pity he went to call upon Jekyll who lived just around the corner. He was

To the butler Utterson said: "I saw Mr. Hyde go in by the old dissecting room door, Poole, is that right when Doctor Jekyll is away?"

Utterson went home with a feeling that some danger menaced his friend

A year later London was startled by a singularly inhuman murder case. A housemaid, looking from a window, saw a man who resembled Mr. Hyde strike down her master, a venerable. white-haired man, and trample his body under foot in a hellish fury. The old man was Sir Danvers Carew. The case came to Utterson who nione recognized the weapon which the assassin had dropped. It was a cane which he had himself presented to Henry Jekyll. It was another link in the chain. Utterson took an officer to the address which Hyde had given.

The latter was not at home. The house was empty, and nothing suspicious was to be seen except a pile of ashes on the hearth as if many papers had been burned. Among these the detective discovered a partially burned checkbook. Following this clue they located several thousand pounds at a certain bank. Hyde did not claim the money. He had gone away, swiftly and safely.

The next step was to visit the sinister house, which was in truth a part of Jekyll's property and known as "The Laboratory," Light fell through a foggy cupola. At the farther end a flight of stairs led to a large room lighted by three iron barred windows which looked on the court. A fire burned in the grate, and there, cowering close to it, sat Doctor Jekyll, looking deathly sick. He held out a cold hand.

Utterson asked if he had heard the news. Jekyll replied that he had heard it cried in the street. Utterson said: 'Carew is my client, but so are you, and I want to know what I am doing. Are you hiding this murderer?"

Jekyll swore that he was not but added: "He is safe quite safe. He will never more be heard of."

He showed Utterson a letter from Hyde in a queer, upright handwriting. As he went out Utterson asked Poole about the man who had brought the letter to his master. Poole was sure no letter had been handed in. The leter must have come in by the way of the laboratory. Utterson's clerk, an expert in handwriting, put the two leters side by side. After careful study ie sald: "The two hands are in many wints identical. They are differently doped, that is all."

Utterson's blood ran cold in his reins. "Henry Jekyll has forged in defense of a ferocious murderer," he

In less than a week Lanyon took to is bed and died. A day or two after he funeral, a letter from the dead man came by messenger to the lawyer, a missive marked "Private. Not to be opened till the death or disappearance of Henry Jekyll."

Utterson did not open the letter but went at once to call upon Jekyll. He saw only Poole who said his master was hardly ever seen outside the room in the laboratory, and that he had grown very silent and morose.

One evening as Utterson and Enfield went across the court in the rear of the Jekyll house they saw the doctor sitting at one of the windows taking the air with an infinite sadness of nien, like some disconsolate prisoner. Utterson, shocked at his looks, urged alm to come down and walk with him. Tekyll refused sadly: Suddenly as they both stood looking at him his smile vanished and an expression of abject error and despair came upon his face. He turned away. The window was thrust down. Utterson turned and ooked at his companion Enfield, Both were pale, there was an answering horror in their eyes. One night Poole suddenly appeared at Utterson's house. He came to say that for a week his master bad been but up in his cabinet and that he was alarmed. "I can't bear it any longer." He could not explain his fears but egged the lawyer to go back with ilm. His face was white and his voice

Utterson found the entire household n Jekyll's house in a state of panic. "They're all afraid," said Poole. 'Follow me," he added; "I want you o hear, and I want you to be heard-out don't go in, sir." They knocked on Jekyll's door but voice said: "I cannot see anyone." When they returned to the kitchen Poole asked: "Was that my master's roice?" Utterson admitted it was hanged. Poole then opened his heart. 'I believe my master has been made way with," he said. Poole thought it strange that the nurderer stayed. He said that the nan in the cabinet woom had been cryng out night and day for help, and and thrown out papers or which were written orders for certain drugs. Utterson examined some of these papers which were agonized pleas for a special kind of salt which he had ised and wanted again. They were ill in Jekyll's hand as Poole admitted. He also explained that once he had aught sight of the man inside. "The unir stood up at sight of him. If that was my master why had he a mask on ils face?" Poole said: "That thing was not ny master. My master was a tall fine man-this is a kind of dwarf." They decided to break down the

They stood before the door and Uterson demanded entrance. A voice from within cried: "For God's sake have mercy." "That is not Jekyll's voice-it is Tyde's," shouted Utterson, and swung als ax against the door, Shattering the lock they rushed in On the floor lay the form of a man contorted and twitching. They drew near and turned the body on its back, It was Edward Hyde, and by his side vas an empty vial. He was dead, Jekyll was not to be found, but the fend Hyde was dressed in what seemed to be a sult of Jekyli's clothes much too large for him.

On the table was a confession adiressed to Utterson, and a will drawn n his favor. Lanyon's letter explained the mystery. Hyde had come one night to his office very ill and isked for some powders which Jekyll and left with Lanyon to be given to Hyde when he should call for them. Hyde, a small man, with clothes groesquely large, eagerly seized the powder and mixed a liquid which had juickly turned from purple to green.

The man drank. He reeled. He staggered. He clutched the table. He seemed to swell. His features changed, ind there before Lanyon's eyes, pale and fainting, groping before him with als hands, like a man restored to life stood Henry Jekyll.

Hyde and Jekyll were inhabitants of the same body! By the use of a drug he had been able to change from one personality to the other. Hyde was wholly evil. Jekyll, the amiable, respected professor, had but to drink that powerful drug to become the revolting Hyde.

Time and again, as editor of a small town daily paper, I have been overwhelmed by watching some newcomer in the community open a store or build a factory or start in a profession, and noting how quick was the response on the part of my townspeople. They are very human folk, these townspeople. They are quick to discover if a man has ulterior motives, whether he is feathering his own nest first and looking after the public interest last. And that is the reason many a man returns to the city knocking the country town. He has tried to put something over and failed. He has found his clientele not at all the hicks and rubes he judged them. And having turned the tables on him, he abuses them roundly."

NEW STREET-LIGHTING PLAN

Kansas City Authorities Believe They Have an Improvement on the Cluster Effect.

Something new in the way of street lights is planned for Baltimore avenue by property owners between Twelfth street and Southwest boulevard, says the Kansas City Star. When the street has been widened and payed the owners propose to break away from the "cluster" effect that has been sought on other streets where "bright ways" have been established. And, incident- o'clock-he pointed toward the oppoally, they plan to have the "lightest site quarter. He spoke of the easternstreet" in the city.

The accompanying illustration shows ern horizon as "sunset." the style of light and standard the property owners have adopted. It is the same style used along Michigan avenue in Chicago-a single pear-shaped opaque globe on a graceful reenforced concrete standard. There will be 36 such lights on widened Baltimore avenue and the council already has passed an ordinance authorizing

The light will be "staggered" at approximately 100-foot intervals. Tests show that with the internal reflectors the single light will give greater efficiency than the old-fiashloned clus-

Think It Over.

Think it over yourself, today, as you plan for the coming months. In private or public affairs, in business or social or family matters, seek out what points of friction there may be and drop upon them the soothing oil of common sense. Remember that the community is only a collection of interdependent units and that a single selfish act of yours may derange an incalculable number of your fellowbeings and thereby propel the whole a shade nearer to that condition of chaos that every reasoning person must regard with horror. Avoid all senseless and suicidal strife, no matter of what character, and learn to co-operate.—Bermuda Colonist.

Roadwaya,

For good residential property there should be provided a roadway having a hard, compact surface-20 to 25 feet in width, on a substantial foundation, and concrete sidewalks, four feet in width, the remaining portion of the right of way being treated in a less expensive manner. Drains will be required to carry off the surface water from the right of way and the lots fronting on it.

HONEYMOONS IN ODD PLACES

Persons of Adventurous Disposition Have Spent Them Amid Arctic and Savage Dangers,

Mr. Elkins, the wealthy young American who recently took his bride for a honeymoon "as near the North pole as he can comfortably get," is by no means the first bridegroom who has spent his "month of honey" in this chilly environment, says London Answers.

A few years ago Mr. Max Fleischmann, a Chicago millionaire, at his bride's request, took her straight from they spent, on their own evidence, "delightful" months, hunting seals, reindeer and polar bears, two of which fell to the bride's own gun. Mrs. we are told, consisted of an assortment of sheepskin dresses, lined with leather. Less chilly, but no less adventurous, was the honeymoon journey of Major. Powell-Cotton, who took his bride on a long and hazardous journey through Africa, spending many months in the heart of the Ituri forest, hunting the okapl and making friends of the sayage pigmies, who had never before even seen a white woman. But the most daring and adventurous of all recorded honeymoons was that of Captain Andrews, an American sallor, and his bride, who started to cross the Atlantic in a "cockleshell," 12 feet long, and were never seen again.

INDIAN IDEA OF RECKONING

Time Designated in Simple Fashion-Journeys and Distances Told Off by "Sleeps."

The American Indians of early days reckoned time by what they called "sleeps" and "moons." The Indian's "sleep" referred to a sun-to-sun day of 24 hours and his "moon" to what the white man roughly and improperly calls a month. The Indians indicated the noon hour by pointing vertically upward. To indicate the middle of the first half of the daylight period-9 o'clock-he pointed upward midway between the horizon and the zenith and to indicate mid-afternoon - 3 horizon as "sunrise" and of the westferent points were measured in "sleeps." Thus, when he undertook to tell how far he had traveled or to tell how far one point was from another, the old-time Indian would say a certain number of "sleeps." Ordinarily, a "sleep" in this sense corresponded to something like 35 miles-the distance a man could cover in a day, traveling at an ordinary pace on foot. However, it was not unusual for men carrying important messages to make twice 35 miles or more in a single 24hour period.

New York Landmarks Going.

The "downtown" section of New York is losing one of its landmarks by the demolition of the Eastern hetel to make room for an office building. For nearly a hundred years it has been the favorite hostelry of American seafaring folk. "Dynamite Johnny" O'Brien, well-known for his practice of shipping arms to the Latin-American countries, concocted many of his fillbustering schemes in this hotel, which he made his headquarters. One of the features of this building was its beams of solid mahogany. In 1822, when it was constructed cargoes of supplies were frequently shipped from New York to South American ports, and when a return cargo could not be secured mahogany was brought back, serving the purpose of both cargo and ballast. These cargoes were sold cheaply, and were often used in the construction of New York buildings of that period.

A Heavy Exit.

I had had a misunderstanding with my employer, and when I handed in my resignation I rold him in very plain English what I thought of him; he, also, pointing out a tew faults be thought I had. A few months later, after answering a blind ad for a posttion, I received a reply naming a time for an appointment. My name at that time being an exceedingly com one, it was not recognized; neither did I recognize him, as he had moved his office and changed the firm name Upon being ushered into the office I met my former employer face to face. We were both speechless, and I did not catch my breath until I had back ed out and was in an elevator going down,-Chicago Tribune.

WILL HONOR EARLY PRINTER

Anniversary of Birth of Christophe Plantin to Be Appropriately Commemorated in August.

The four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Christophe Plantin, the noted French printer of the sixteenth century, will be commemorated with appropriate ceremonies in Antwerp, during August. Plantin was a son of Belgium only through adoption. He was born somewhere in historic Touraine.

It was the peculiar achievement of Plantin to bring honor and glory to the printer's trade in the days of its infancy. With a keen appreciation of the beauties of literature, Plantin delighted in perfecting his workmanship in order that those beauties might be published in the most attractive form possible, although his tools were those of a common workman. His chef-d'oevure was the famous Biblia polygotta-published in 1569-1573—an attempt at a scientific revision of the text of the Old and New Testaments. It was published in the Greek, Hebrew, Syrian and Chaldean languages. As a result of this monumental work Plantin received from King Philip of Spain the title "prototypographus regius." and the right to print all the liturgical books for the states embraced in King Philip's far-flung empire.

BOUND TO DELIVER SPEECH

Guest at Banquet Must Have Somewhat Astonished the Rest of the Gathering.

There was to be a banquet at an Indianapolis church and one of the parishioners felt sure that he would be called on for a speech. Realizing how poor he was at impromptu speeches he accordingly made ready for this occasion by writing one and then memorizing it. The night of the banquet came and after rehearsing his speech to his proud wife the parishioner went to church, elated over his forethought. The crowd assembled and gathered around the table. And then-then the minister called on the parishioner to say "grace." For a minute he was appalled-also his wife. But bravely he rallied and began to compose a grace. He gave one sentence, hesitated and then to the state, has became the Orleans his wife's horror plunged into the middle of his speech. He finished it, too. Of course every one was amazed, his wife most of all, for you see he even used his practiced gestures.

Back to the Feudal Plan. High prices in England have induced King George to revert to the feudal system of payment with some of his dependents. Henceforth most of the agricultural laborers on his estates will receive all but a small percentage of their wages in goods instead of money. Under the plan they will live rent' free and are to receive special weekly allowances of various foodstuffs, as well as tobacco, beer and a clothing allowance. In money they will get only $1 a week each.

All but a handful of the workers agreed to accept the king's offer as being a practical solution of the high price situation.

Recognizing Her Likeness.

Lucy was gazing through the window of the local photographer, her eyes glued on a certain picture. It was the annual procession of school

Genoa School Notes.

District Superintendent of Schools Dr. Fred Lester visited our school last Friday.

The local school team played a return game with the King Ferry ball team last Friday night. The game was featured by heavy hitting on both sides. Nesbit and Grey occupied the mound for the local team while their opponents were forced to use three pitchers. Darkness halted the game in the eighth inning with a tie score of 17-17. Both teams are looking forward to the opening of the basket ball season when they will again renew their hostilities.

The first Teachers' Conference of the 4th Supervisory district was hled in our High school building Oct. 13, District Superintendent Dr. Fred Lester presiding. Forty-three teachers were in attendance. The morning session, beginning at 10 a. m., marks by Dr. Lester and physical exercises conducted by Miss Badger. The afternoon session began at 1:30, Miss Baker occupying the first period teaching games for the supervised play period. This was followed by a recitation given by Miss Jennie Ford. The afternoon was closed with a question box.

Wool Sales.

Arrangements have been completed by the state federation of county sheep growers' associations to store the wool of all members who desire to take advantage of the plan to sell their product in one lot. Ed S. Hill, stories, editorials, poetry, facts and ecretary of the state association, writes that space has been secured in the warehouse of the Grange League Federation at Syracuse. Mr. Hill recommends that early shipments be made to the warehouse.

W. H. Wood of New York has been engaged to work under the direction of the association officers, and he will grade the wool and make the sales. Mr. Wood has had 23 years experience in grading and selling, and has a wide acquaintance with manufacturers. He will be available to attend county meetings and discuss grading and caring for

This is the daring thought that D. W. Griffith, master motion picture producer of the world, presents in his latest creation, "The Greatest Question," distributed by First National Exhibitors' Circuit and which will be seen at Genoa Gem Theater, Monday, Oct. 18.

Never before in the history of screen or stage has this almighty problem been brought face to face with the public, and in a manner that cannot be misinterpreted. Weaving his thought through the meshes of a simple story about farm folk who are deprived of an oldest and favorite son through the War, Griffith calls for the answer of the greatest question.

SCHOOL TOGS FOR CHILDREN

Wash Clothes Have Preference Where Laundry Question Can Be Easily Solved.

The experienced mother knows that she cannot send her child to school in exactly the same clothes that have been worn all summer. School days are too hard on the one hand on the fine muslins and organdles and such. and require on the other hand something a little more dress-up than the rompers, overalls and play smocks worn during the hot vacation mornings. Of course, the first few weeks the weather is still warm enough for summer clothes, so that a few new cotton frocks can be added immediately to the school wardrobe and new fall things started by the home

Where the laundry question does not present an insuperable problem, the well-dressed child wears wash clothes to school all the year round. There are being sponsored, however, for all school wear some new kinds of wash frocks which lessen laundry work but at the same time keep the school frock fresh and clean, something very hard to accomplish with the dark serge and plaids. First of all, there is sateen. This can be had in dark chintz and challis patterns and washes beautifully. Besides, it is warmer than other cottons. Even in the plain flark shades, when of a fine quality, It makes cunning little frocks in pinafore style to be worn over separate wash guimpes of dimity, lawn or pongee. These guimpes can often he made from wornout frocks, which gives this style of pinafore frock a very practical aspect. A little wool embroidery, a bright blanket-stitch around the edge, home appliqued flowers from other colors of sateen and the little dark school frock of navy. black, brown or dark green becomes quite gay.

SOLVE BAY WINDOW PROBLEM

Curtains and Decorations Which Will Add to Attractiveness of the Space.

In almost every home there are bay windows that perplex the home decorator. There is the round bay window. for example, which requires something more than glass curtains, and yet, because of the closeness of the windows, will not stand elaborate over-hangings. Have two curved rods fitted around the top of the sashes, one for the glass curtains, the outer for the heavier banging. On the inner ope hang net or fine muslin curtains, being careful not to have fullness enough to produce a bulging effect. A narrow width of over-drapery, connected by a straight gathered or plaited valance, should hang at each end, stopping at the sill. A window sent may be uphoistered in the overdrapery material.

Square bays are more difficult. Unless the projecting space is large enough to admit heavy hangings gracefully, they should not be attempted at the individual window. A better plan is to frame the opening of the bay with a single pair of side draperies connected by a valance, just as though it were a wide door opening. A group window may often be similarly treated.-Good Housekeeping.

Chiffon is Popular.

Pastel-colored chiffon blouses are good with plaited chiffon skirts of white. A popular fabric for dresses is the new flowered chiffon. Chiffon and crepe de chine are the favorite | leura. Plain skirta are seent mogliges fabrics for fall and winter

AIGRETS OF WOOD

Imitation Decoration Is to Be Used on Fall Hats.

Feathers Are Placed Around Hat Crown, Often Covering It and the Entire Brim.

No longer need the tender-hearter woman escheny the use of aigrets for imitation ones made from wood will be used on the fall and winter bats, notes a fashion writer. These "aigrettes en bois," as they are called are clever imitations of the real feath ers and come in a variety of colors They are placed around the hat crown often covering it and the brim.

Coque feathers, white, colored and metallic, are also popular, and a few burnt and glycerine ostrich are used. At present few straight or curled ostrich are seen. Trimmings at the side are in the majority, for many shapes show a length from side to side, and are trimmed to accent this feature. Wide ribbons will play a prominent part in the fall millinery. They are of metallic and figured silk, together with novelty effects, and are very at-

The general tendency of the fall mil linery seems to be toward larger shapes than have been worn for sev eral scasons past, although the off-theface model will still be worn, Fabric hats are still in vegue, velver or hatters' plush, duveryn gad silk be ing used. Fur, such as beaver and squirrel, will probably be featured as trimming, while among the colors, old gold and the various browns will lead.

Alloging bandeaux of paradise are shown for wear with evening gowns, One having a cluster of onion-colored

Hat of autumn hay brown, velvet with ostrich feathers drooping over the paradise is studded with copper heads. Large fan-shaped combs of the Spanish type of carved tortoise shell and amber are attractive, while smaller ones set with brilliants, sapphires, jade and other semi-precious stones may be worn to match the gown.

The Peace of God

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D. Secretary Correspondence Depart-ment, Moody Bible Institute, Chi-

TEXT-Peace i leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you.—John 14:27.

Never was the world of mankind

The peace of the text is not beace with God. As has frequently been said by students of the Word of God, there is a "peace with God," and a "peace of God." We believe that the peace of this text is the latter. The disciples of Jesus proba-man's experience. Quite uniformly through all the his- day of December, 1920. tory of Christian experience, we have testimony to this. The Psalmist says. "Great peace have they that love thy law." The prophet Isaiah had the same idea when he said, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." Jesus sometimes spoke to his disciples that they might have peace although they already had peace with God. Paul write to the Philippian Christians of the "peace of God that passeth all understanding," ence the spirit of peace.

The Peace That the World Gives.

In the text Jesus said that the world gives peace. This may be questioned by some at first thought, but it is a John Taber, Atty., fact that there is pleasure in sin. The world does give what we may fairly call peace, although temporarily.

Now Jesus says that there is a difference between the peace of the world and the peace he gives. The world gives only to the lowest part of man, the flesh. The world never gives except for pay, therefore, really never gives. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." A man who yields to the world must remember that the world is a Shylock and will demand the pound of desh, Kurthermore, the world never satisfies. John Ruskin has said that the satieties of the flesh belong to the bitterest experience of men. There is a momentary pleasure in sin to the normal man, but this pleasure does not reach the deeper nature of man, and cannot therefore satisfy. The Peace That Jesus Gives. Jesus Christ said that he did not give as the world gives, and running the parallel, we may say that he gives to the highest part of man, that is, he gives to the spiritual. In the last year and a half of our Lord's life he was in the midst of all kinds of opposition, but he always maintained a spirit of quietness. His spirit prevailing over the flesh; and he would have his followers have the same experience.

Jesus literally gives his peace to the world, asking nothing in return. He said, "I give unto them eternal life," and "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give six airships are said to have been on

This peace of Christ's satisfies. The Psalmist said, "He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness," This peace enabled Job to say in the midst of his many ter for defense, Senator Pearce, has troubles, "Blessed be the name of the placed the problem before the local Lord." President William McKinley as he lay dying repeated the words, "Nearer my God to Thee, nearer to

This Peace Tested by Jesus Himself.

This peace is God's own peace. Whatever commotion there may be on the earth, or indeed in the universe, God is calm and at peace, and this peace was the peace that Jesus Christ himself tested on this earth, "My peace I give unto you." That peace sustained him before the mob that attacked him in Gethsemane; when he stood before Pilate and Herod; as he gazed on the crowds about the cross mocking him, and said, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Those who are not Christians should first experience the peace with God. which is secured by faith in Jesus Christ, and afterwards have this peace of God, the peace of which Jesus spoke in the text, Weeds and Hay Fever.

Interesting observations made by Dr. William Sheppegrell, president of the American Hay Fever Prevention association, are reported in a paper published by him. As a result of a weed-cutting campaign carried out in New Orleans in the spring of 1916 the number of hay fever cases was reduced to less than 50 per cent of the usual prevalence. The "cold storage" treatment of the disease, in which practically all ventilation is excluded in order to insure the absence of atmospheric pollen, is sald to afford only translent relief, while the low temperature is likely to cause bronchitis. The effects of an abundant rain on hay fever patients is beneficial because the rain not only washes the pollen out of the air, but also permanently removes its toxic qualities, so that it is harmless when again blown into the air after the rain is over. This has been proved by laboratory experiments, in which pollen, after submersion in water, was inhaled by hay fever subjects without any apparent effect.

"Sometimes it may prove advantageous to look a gift horse in the mouth," remarked an Australian contemporary recently. It was referring to the proposed gift of six airships to Australia and really meant "always look a dirigible in its air-valve." These patrol duty in the North sea; and Britain, according to a cable message to the commonwealth, has offered them with hangar and equipment to the oversea dominion. Australia's minisair board for decision. As a commercial proposition some enterprising Australian company may welcome the dirigibles, but as a defensive equipment they are not regarded with overmuch favor.

Cox Wiggles and Wobbles.

BY SCOTT C. BONE.

Candidate Cox, recklessly charging that the Republican party had set out to corrupt the electorate by raising a fund of $15,000,000 with which to "buy the presidency," has been utterly confuted by the facts.

Instead, it has been completely established that the goal fixed by Chairman Hays was only one-fifth that amount, or $3,090,000, with contributions rigidly limited to $1,000, and that never before has a campaign fund been so free from the taint of corporate, sinister or sordid influences. That an overtaxed, overburdened and weary country, paying the cost of incompetence, incapacity and extravagance in governmental affairs and maladministration at Washington, would welcome relief at any price legitimately expended may be taken for granted. But only in the wild dreams of Candidate Cox-who stands committed to Wilsonism and the wastefulness of Wilsonism, with everything that Wilsonism typifies and implies-has any such expenditure as Candidate Cox charged ever been remotely conceived or for a moment con-

Even his foremost newspaper champions-organs of the international banking crowd which favor his candidacy because, with equal rashness, he promises that if elected he will go into the Wilson League of Nations -editorially admit that his slush fund charges have proven groundless.

Candidate Cox's credibility as a witness has similarly been damaged by the wet and dry issue confronting him. To the indisputable proof that the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association is appealing for funds to elect him as a "pronounced wet"

he replies that the liquor interests of Ohio never contributed to any of his campaigns. Yet a sworn statement, signed by the secretary of the Ohio Liquor Dealers' Association and on file in the secretary of state's office, shows that that organization contributed a substantial sum out of its treasury to the Cox campaign of 1916. And in the face of it all, having withstood for months, in silence, William Jennings Bryan's denunciation of him as a "wet" and unfit to run for president, Candidate Cox, with characteristic auducity, now assures a North Dakota crowd that "I have always voter dry!" Imagine Boss Murphy, Boss Taggarty Boss Brennan and that Youngstown Apostle of Light and Uplift, Ed Moore, contriving the nomination at San Francisco of a candidate who had "always voted dry!" Imagine it, if you can't Shade of John Barleycorn! What a spectacle is presented in

OLD AND NEW COX SLOGANS.

Washington. - The following intersting interview with Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was published in the hotel column of the Washington Post four years ago-viz, on July 29, 1916:

"Ohio is not the only state where the people are shouting the praises of the President for having preserved peace in the United States. Our honor has remained unsullied. The slogan He Kept Us Out of War' will be the most effective argument the Democrats can use in the campaign. Americanism has been pre-empted by the President, and every other problem of national aport has been met squarely and satsfactorily."

This tends to show the caliber of overnor Cox. With him it is anyhing to win, any sort of a catch phrase, ogan or anything to deceive or fool

NEW YORK GIRL HAS GOAT FARM

Josephine Jenks Makes a Hobby of Raising the Animals.

THEY ARE NOT PETS ONLY

Qwner Has Made a Study of the Scientific Effect of Goat's Milk on Babies and Says Thousands of Families in City Suburbs of America Could and Should Raise Nannies.

To a sixteen-year-old girl belongs the credit of having established and superintended a model goat farm for the sole purpose of demonstrating that it is feasible for any private family with a backyard to keep a goat for its milk-yielding value and thus help solve the growing problem of the distribution of milk in large cities. She is Miss Josephine J. Jenks, a daughter of William P. Jenks, a New York

Miss Jenks is a mere slip of a girl. Her interest in goats began when she acquired one for a pet five years ago and grew until she determined to make a hobby of the raising of nannies. She is perhaps the only shepherdess of the kind in the country. She has built and laid out as a result of her own study and planning model barns and pastures on a portion of her father's 600-acre estate, known as Mount Kemble Farm, near Morristown, N. J. She owns thirty milch goats, about twenty kids and a number of imported bucks.

Made Goats a Study. Merely having goats for pets did not satisfy Miss Jenks. - As she grew older, she began to read about them, at first to learn of their habits and origin, their needs in the way of pasturage and care during the winter months, and finally to determine their economic value. She read books about goat-raising in foreign countries until she settled in her mind that if it was feasible for families to use goat's milk instead of cow's milk in Switzerland, England, Africa and India it would be feasible in America. Her father pampered her hobby and bought her a number of foreign goats, including some valued at $500 each. No shepperdess in France or Switzerland was prouder of her herd than was Miss

Jenks of hers. But having become interested in some scientific works on goatlore she had a more serious plan in her mind than merely satisfying a hobby. Stories of the lack of milk for the bables in the congested districts of New York had a special meaning for her. The price of milk was always going up, she learned, the distributors were complaining that because of the high wages demanded by milk handlers and drivers the distribution cost was ever soaring, and the farmers complained that because of the regulated price it little returns came from the milk. Miss Jenks, despite her youth, has become quite a scholar concerning the scientific effect of milk on bables. She

To Save Babies' Lives.

"Statistics show that 300,000 bables die annually in this country because of malnutrition and bovine tuberculosis. This fact has been brought out by the Milk and Baby Hygiene association and the American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality. In Russia, Austria and Germany investigations have revealed that a low death rate in any given district bears an intimate relation to the number of goats kept in that district. "Travelers in rural France are much impressed by the rugged appearance of children there, which is due to their subsisting on goat's milk, I am told the Greek and Turkish mothers are convinced that goat's milk is of more benefit to their children than is cow's milk."

Of course, Miss Jenks knew that families in congested districts could not keep goats, but, she declared, thousands of families who live in the suburbs have plenty of backyards and open fields in which to raise them. She determined that all that was needed was a little education on the subject

Advantages of Goats. . Summed up, here are Miss Jenks' conclusions as a result of her daily experience with fifty and sometimes a hundred goats:

Goats are less bulky, more manageable and eat less than cows. Therefore they cost less to maintain and can be kept where cows cannot.

They yield proportionately more milk than cows; their milk is more nourishing and more digestible, and, the animals being on the premises, the milk supply is always available, with less ice and less chance of its spoiling.

Unlike sheep or cows, goats are affectionate, and when kindly treated they become fond of their mastersso fond, in fact, that, as in Miss Jenks' case, they will follow their owner through the woods or over the hills as faithfully as a dog. Kids afford endless amusement to children.

NEED MORE MONEY TO

New York Official Says 290 Were "Repatriated" During the Last Fiscal Year.

Increased appropriations to enable the United States immigration authorities to deport aliens in whom insanity is discovered, was urged here by Dr. Spencer L. Dawes, medical a vaminer of the New York state hospital commission. Dr. Dawes declared that although 290 insane aliens were deported during the last fiscal year, there are still a great number in the state who might be deported if funds were available, thus cutting down an item of expense which is second only to education in New York. Dr. Dawes said that there are 39,000 insane persons in state institutions who cost the people annually $11,500,000.

Of the 290 aliens deported for insanity last year 147 were sent to their home countries in the usual way by the federal authorities, while 143 were "repatriated" by the state with the permission of relatives or guardians of the patients.

Explaining this process of "repatriation," Dr. Dawes said: "After securing the consent of relatives to 'repatriate,' we arrange for passports to his or her home country and then give the insane person clothes, tollet articles and a new suitcase for the return trip. Under escort or guard, we send the patient all the way and see that he or she is safely delivered to relatives or friends on the other side. "Last year the state of New York appropriated $40,000 for this purpose

Dr. Dawes said that in addition a great deal of time and money was devoted to returning insane persons to other states in which they are residents, whether citizens or aliens.

"With the exception of Connecticut," he said. "we have no difficulty in getting other states to take back their insane. We have written agreements with Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Washington and several others. Not infrequently we send parties of insane persons across th continent to the Pacific coast.

The law provides that insane aliens may be deported at any time provided that legal processes are instituted within five years of their landing here. As New York is the greatest port of entry, Dr. Dawes said, this state becomes the dumping ground for thousands of these people who must be taken care of at public expense until they can be

CASE AMAZING THEALL'S

Marine Corps Colonel Recovers From Seemingly Fatal Injuries.

The complete recovery from what was believed to be a fatal accident last November has restored Col. Elisha Theall to duty at the headquarters of the marine corps. As secretary did not pay to feed cows for what of the house committee on naval affairs, and later as special legal adviser to the secretary of the navy, Colonel Theall is probably the best known officer of the naval service on duty in Washington, his acquaintance including practically every prominent man in public life in the last twelve years.

Colonel Theall's case will undoubtedly be recorded in medical circles as an amazing one. Not only did he suffer a compound fracture of the skull, with other complications, when struck by an automobile in Washington last November, but he had previously been retired as a marine officer in 1897 and invalided from active service. He was restored to active duty twenty years later, at the outbreak of the war. While on the retired list Colonel Theall graduated in law at Columbia university and later acted as secretary of the house naval committee under Chairmen Padgett and Throughout the war he was stationed at Philadelphia and Norfolk. He gradnated from the naval academy in 1891 and transferred to the marine corps two years later after completing two years' sea duty.

EIG TREE YIELDED TO AGE

Chestnut in Which Washington Is Said to Have Hidden Collapses at Yonkers, New York.

Maybe there's no truth in the tradition that George Washington once hid in the hollow trunk of the great chestnut tree that until recently stood In the front yard of Charles F. Coy, Yonkers, New York. But folk thereabout believe he did, just as they believe that the tree was 700 or 800 years old when it died a few years ago, and was the oldest and biggest tree of any variety not only in Westchester county but in New York state.

The trunk, which was about 35 feet tall and about 35 feet in circumference, according to Mr. Coy, was cut down by the department of public works of Yonkers, and its dismembered remains carted away. Said Mr.

"Before it died that tree produced the biggest and sweetest-tasting; chestnuts I ever saw. After its death a vine that covered it made it still an object of beauty, just as its vast size and age made it an object of ad-

TO DESTROY INSECT PESTS

Two Forms of Insecticides Necessary for Successful Protection of Plants and Foliage.

Do not waste your time spraying paris green on insects that suck the inices from plants and follage, such is lice, green, black and white aphis or fly, mealy bug, red spider and scale, by thrusting their proboscis into the leaf or stem, for they are not affected by stomach poisons. They must be destroyed by contact insecticides. Those in powder form kill by closing the breathing pores in the insect's skin, or in fluid form by being absorbed through these pores, the American Forestry Magazine points out. The best contact insecticides in powder form are hellebore, slug shot and tobacco dust. The best in fluid form are aphine, black leaf 40, fish (whale) off soap, nicotine (tobacco extract), kerosene, miscible oil and lemon oil. Insects that eat plants, foliage, vegetables, fruits, flowers, etc., whether bugs, beetles, worms, caterpillars or slugs are more quickly and effectually destroyed with a poisonous stomachic insecticide such as arsenate of lead, paris green or heliebore. These, if applied according to directions, are so diluted as to be harmless to vegetation and to animal life. Less poisonous stomachic and contact insectiwides are kerosene emulsion, slug

Historic River Boat Race,

Fifty years ago thousands of persons stood on the wharves at New Orleans and watched the river steamers, the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez, start their memorable race for St. Louis. It was the first supreme speed test for big river steamers. Their decks cleared, everything lashed down and sash removed from the pilot house so the wind would not obstruct the boats started. There was a $10, 000 bet up between the owners, and it is said that many plantations in the South changed hands as a result of the race. Picked crews manned the boats. Pilots who knew the stream cut the river bends to save distance. Along the banks of the river everywhere men and women who had come miles to witness the passing of the boats had made camps.

The Lee made the trip from New Orleans in 3 days, 18 hours and 30 minutes, the Natchez following in 3 days, 21 hours and 58 minutes. All members of both crews of the boats are dead.

WHY=

Ill Health Is the General Lot of Mankind

Exposure to cold and wet is the usual cause of sore throat, but it may also be of rheumatic or gouty origin. Local irritation, as from drinking hot drinks or the inhalation of noxious gases, will cause an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the pharynx and soft palate.

The going out of doors when overheated and not being protected by wraps will often cause an Inflammation of the throat.

Housekeepers run out into the yard to hang up wet tea towels, etc., and seldom stop to put on a scarf or coat, and then wonder why they suffer so frequently from attacks of sore throat and cold.

Much of the ill-health we suffer from can be traced to carelessness and heedlessness on our own part.

It is contrary to reason and good judgment to sit down to cool off when very warm where the wind will blow directly upon one. To ride about in open automobiles without wearing heavy coats and being protected around the feet and ankles by thick robesthe many thoughtless things one does every day-will cause a sore throat. which may be severe enough to result in a fatal illness.

Medicines are required for the treatment of such symptoms as chilliness. fever, stiffness and tenderness in the muscles of the neck, soreness in the throat and painfulness on swallowing -and the hacking dry cough.

First begin with a gargle. This may be composed of sodium bicarbonate. one teaspoonful dissolved in a ten cupful of boiling water (and used when quite warm) every five hours.

If the pain in the throat is severe, cold applications are soothing-towels wrung out of cold water and laid snugsoon as they become warm and keeping up the treatment for several hours,

Sucking small pieces of chopped ice proves a very soothing treatment for

A laxative medicine (whether suffer ing from constipation or not) should be taken at the beginning of the attack, a seidlitz powder, a bottle of citrate of magnesia, a dose of castor oil or salts may be taken,

It is always best to remain indoors for 24 hours, preferably in bed, when suffering from sore throat or at the beginning of a cold.

If the fever is high and there is an unusual amount of restlessness and irritability, call in a physician to treat the thront.

Why Erection of Solar Watch Tower in Arizona Will Increase Accuracy of Forecasts.

A new sqlar watch tower is being ouilt by the Smithsonian institution in the Hala mountains in the Arizona desert from which great things are expected. In this region the sun shines com a cloudless sky almost every day in the year, so that daily observations may be made of the amount of solar radiation. This information will make it possible to forecast the weather more accurately than ever before, The same institution has for some time maintained a similar station at Calama, Chill, where conditions are especially favorable for such observations. The weather bureau of Argentine has received daily telegraphic reports from the Chili station and as a result has enjoyed remarkably accurate weather forecasts, as well as advance information as to the amount of rainfall. By combining the observations made in Chill and Arizona the weather prophet expects to greatly increase the accuracy of his forecasts. -Boys' Life.

QUENTIN IN BUSINESS DEAL

Colonel Roosevelt's Delightful Description of Youngster's Method of Turning an Honest Penny.

In "Letters to His Children," Theodore Roosevelt penned the following to his son Kermit, under date of October 17, 1908:

"Quentin performed a characteristic feat yesterday. He heard that Schmidt, the animal man, wanted a small pig, and decided that he would turn au honest penny by supplying the want. ! So out in the neighborhood of his school he called on an elderly darky who, he had seen, possessed little pigs; bought one; popped it into a bag, astutely dodged the school-having a well-founded distrust of how the boys would feel toward his passage with the pig-and took the car for home. By that time the pig had freed itself from the bag, and, as he explained, he fourneyed in with a 'small squealish pig' under his arm; but as the conductor was a friend of his he was not put off. He bought it for a dollar and sold it to Schmidt for a dollar and a quarter, and feels as if he had found a permanent line of business. Schmidt then festooned it with ribbons and sent it to parade the streets. I gather that Quentin led it around for part of the parade, but he was somewhat vague on this point, evidently being a little uncertain as to our approval of

Their own teacher scolded them, but it did no good, for they fought again on the way home that very noon. The teacher went to the principal. "I want you to say something to them," she told her. "I'm sure they will be more impressed then."

That afternoon the principal did as she was asked. She talked long and earnestly on the evils of fighting, but neither of the cuiprits seemed the least bit moved. Finally she ended, 'Now. I say you must not fight, and I mean it." Grimly she eyed them, "And you both know who I amdon't you?"

Both nodded their heads and Joe said cheerfully. "Why, you're the lady who rings the bell for the other teachers-aren't you?"

Knows Dog's Importance. The night watchman at the Henry

Lehrman studios in Culver City came around early one afternoon last week, trying to exchange his magnificent buildog for some kind of a pup. He was willing to accept anything on four legs, apparently, if some one would only take the big bull off his hands. "What's the trouble?" queried Billie Ritchie. "Is there anything wrong with your dog?"

"I tell you." said the watchman; "My dog, he fights all the time. Some day he's gonus lick Mr. Lehrman's dog. "I don't think it was exactly that," and then I get fired."-New Orleans Times-Picayune.
