LETTERANS OF BIG POW-WOWS

Oldtime Republicans Exchange Reminiscences of Conventions in Which They Were Prominent.

Chauncey M. Depew and Joseph G. Cannon got into an argument as to which had been attending national conventions the longer.

"Now, Joe," said Senator Depew to the former speaker, "you know you are only a comparatively young man in convention history and cannot figure in the same class with me. I was at the convention of 1864 and I know you did not come along until later."

"You're both children," declared former Marshal Louis F. Payn of Chatham, who was doing his regular quadrennial turn as a member of the New York delegation. "I was here in 1890."

GAVE HIM UP IN DISGUST

Colored American Put Algerian to the Supreme Test and Then Delivered Stern Verdict.

The total lack of comprehension between the American negro and his Algerian brother will go down in history as one of the outstanding features of the war.

There was, for instance, the case of the dusky stevedore at Brest and one of the colored French troops on duty there. Long and laboriously the Yank tried to establish some means of linguistic communication, but there was no response.

Then a brilliant thought struck the boy from Georgia. He produced a pair of ivory cubes and rolled them enticingly under the Algerian's nose. Intelligence still registered zero.

"Man," said Sam in disgust. "You ain't no culud pusson. You ain't even no human. You is just a corpse." —The American Legion Weekly.

Boy "Policeman" Gets Results.

Bill Zerbe, formerly of Indianapolis, is motorcycle policeman in the Logansport police department. Both the young and old know Bill because of his record as a tamer of speeders.

A few days ago the driver of an automobile permitted the motor of his machine to run while he went into a store. When he came out he found a piece of paper in the front seat of the car. On the paper were these words: "You are pinched for permitting the engine of your machine to run over 15 minutes. Bill Zerbe."

The driver of the car went to police headquarters to pay his fine and exhibit the evidence that he had been caught. On being assured that the paper presented had not been prepared by Zerbe, the driver of the machine recalled that he had seen a small boy with a broad grin on his face standing near when he started toward the police station.—Indianapolis News.

Electricity to Locate Metal.

The idea of using current transmitted through the earth as a means of locating metal ores is familiar, the belief being that the greater conductivity of these metaliferous regions can be clearly indicated, and the area mapped out, says the Scientific American. The location of oil deposits, which according to the Electrical Review is now being investigated electrically, presents a converse problem. In this case the insulating properties of the oil diminish the current, and oil-bearing regions are detected accordingly. In view of the great depth to which it is often necessary to bore for oil—that only exists simultaneously with an almost oil-free area above—the method would seem to have limitations, but it has doubtless possibilities in dealing with surface oil areas.

Why Mice Dread the Weasel.

All the weasels, and there are upward of 40 species of them, are distinctly carnivorous, says the American Forestry Magazine, and it is not known that they ever touch anything else, as berries or any herb or vegetable growth. All of the smaller weasels live principally upon mice, and these they are able to follow straight down into their holes. Through such places they squirm in and out with as much ease as the mice themselves, the latter being thoroughly terrorized when it becomes known to them that there is a weasel in the neighborhood.

Acrobatic Spider.

My oldest boy saw a spider making a web from the ceiling. He exclaimed: "Come quick and see the spider. He has a string tied to his leg, kicking himself down."—Exchange.

Advertising a Sale!

YOU don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill do you? Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your announcements while seated at his bedside.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your sale. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad, and it's a poor ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after.

Bills may be a necessity, but the ad is the thing that does the business.

Don't think of having a special sale without using advertising space in this paper.

One Extra Buyer
at a sale often pays the entire expense of the ad.

Why Quail Should Be Protected.
The most expensive meat in America is that of the quail. The price of the bird may be moderate enough, but the loss caused by killing it is another matter.

Competent authorities estimate that each quail is worth from $10 to $25 to the American farmer as a destroyer of insects and devourer of weed seeds.

This is particularly true in those parts of the South afflicted by the boll weevil. Quails are as fond of weevils as weevils are of cotton, and more than one farmer has noticed that when his fields are well-stocked with quail the cotton crop is safe.

There is liable to be some very vicious game preserving in Dixie on economic grounds rather than for sport, during the next dozen years.—Chicago Journal.

SENATOR HARDING GUARANTEES FAIR DEAL FOR FARMER

Declares Definite National Agricultural Policy is Vital to Country's Welfare.

WOULD PUT END TO PRICE FIXING OF FARM PRODUCTS

In Address Before Minnesota State Fair Republican Nominee Shows Profound Understanding of Farming and Its Problems.

Minneapolis, (Special).—"The time has come when, as a nation, we must determine upon a definite agricultural policy. We must decide whether we shall undertake to make of the United States a self-sustaining nation—which means that we shall grow within our own boundaries all of the staple food products needed to maintain the highest type of civilization—or whether we shall continue to exploit our agricultural resources for the benefit of our industrial and commercial life, and to leave to posterity the task of finding food enough, by strong-arm methods, if necessary, to support the coming hundreds of millions.

"I believe in the self-sustaining, independent, self-reliant nation, agriculturally, industrially and politically. We are then the guarantors of our own security and are equal to the task."

So declared Senator Harding in a masterly address before the Minnesota State Fair here, in which he revealed a most profound understanding of agriculture, its problems and its relation to the farmer and the consumer in the cities. This speech has been described as the greatest speech on agriculture which has ever been made by a Presidential candidate.

Among other things he said:

"A good many years ago a Chinese philosopher uttered a profound truth when he said: 'The well-being of a people is like a tree; agriculture is its root, manufacture and commerce are its branches and its life; if the root is injured the leaves fall, the branches break and the tree dies.'

Cause for Concern.
"It may seem strange to many good people that at this particular time any one should quote the saying of a wise old Chinese. Never in all our history have prices of farm products ruled so high, measured in dollars, as during the past four years. Farm land in the great surplus-producing states has advanced to unheard of prices, with every indication that, but for the tight money conditions, it would go still higher. Apparently the farmers of the land are enjoying unprecedented prosperity. Why then, even by implication, suggest that something may be wrong with our agriculture, and that the trouble may be communicated to our manufactures and commerce? People in the cities are disposed to think that if there is anything wrong it is in the cities where food is selling at such high prices, and not in the country where the food is produced. But both farm and city students of national problems see in the present agricultural situation certain conditions which give cause for real concern to every lover of his country."

He then referred in a most interesting way to the development of the great central west and sketched briefly the settlement of the great central valleys, as follows:

"Through the homestead law the government gave a farm of the richest land in the world to every man who wanted one. Railroads were built, the prairies were plowed up, and almost overnight the agricultural production of the United States increased by 50 per cent. Grains were produced and sold at the bare cost of utilizing the soil, and the farmers of the older states to the east were smothered by this flood of cheap grain. The only thing that could be done with this superabundance of food was to build cities out of it. And great cities we did build, not only in the United States, but across the seas."

He spoke of the hard conditions which came upon the farmers of the central west as a result of their over-production, and then of the gradual improvement which began about 1905, when the increased population in the cities began to catch up with farm production, and how this increased demand for food was accelerated by the great World War.

Speaking of the part played by the farmer during the war, he said:

Splendid Part of Farmers.
"The splendid part played by the farmers of the nation during the war probably never will be understood or fully appreciated by our people. More than 25 per cent of all our fighting men came from the farms, and after sending their sons to the camps, the fathers and mothers, with the help of the younger children, turned to and produced more food than was ever before produced in the history of the world in the same time and from the same area of land. Their working days were measured not by the clock, but by the number of daylight hours. They took to themselves the responsibility of feeding not only our own people, but also our allies across the sea. In more ways than one, our farmers made the war their war, and counted no sacrifice too great to help fight it through to a successful finish. The story of what they did, written by some one who understands it, will furnish one of the most glorious chapters in American history. One thing I may say—in every American conflict, from the revolution for independence to the world war for maintained rights, the farmer has been 100 per cent American and ready for every sacrifice."

He then pointed out some of the unfortunate results in agriculture, growing out of war conditions, especially the premium put on grain growing at the expense of livestock production. He referred to the heavy losses suffered by many livestock producers and feeders, and pointed out the urgent need of restoring the balance between livestock and grain production as quickly as possible. On this subject he said:

"For two outstanding reasons the maintenance of a normal balance between livestock and grain production is a matter of national concern. One is that we are a meat-eating people, and should have a fairly uniform supply at a reasonable price. Conditions which either greatly stimulate or greatly discourage livestock production result in prices altogether too high for the average consuming public or altogether too low for the producer. The other is that the over-stimulation of grain production depletes the fertility of our land, which is our greatest national asset, and results in a greater supply than can be consumed at a price profitable to the producer, and finally to widespread agricultural distress from which all of our people suffer."

Speaking of the trend of prices of farm products during the next two or three years, he said that no one could forecast them with any accuracy. That as a nation we are undergoing the same experience that the individual undergoes when recovering from a long and dangerous illness. And then he made this significant statement:

"It must be evident, however, to any one who has given the matter even superficial consideration that we have now come to the end of the long period of agricultural exploitation in the United States. No longer are there great and easy and awaiting areas of fertile land awaiting the land hungry. We have now under the plow practically all of our easily-tillable land, though idle areas await reclamation and development by that genius and determination which ever have made nature respond to human needs. Additions of consequence, which we may make to our farming area, from this time on, must come by putting water on the dry lands of the arid and semi-arid country, or by taking water off of the swamp lands, of which we have large areas in some sections, or by digging the stumps out of the cut-over timber lands of the north and south."

Other Alternative an Unhappy One.
"If we should unhappily choose the course of industrial and commercial promotion at the expense of agriculture, cities will continue to grow at the expense of the rural community, agriculture will inevitably break down and finally destroy the finest rural civilization, with the greatest possibilities the world has ever seen. Decreased farm production will make dear food and we shall be obliged to send our ships to far-away nations in search of cheap foodstuffs, the importation of which is sure to intensify agricultural discouragement and distress at home."

"If, on the other hand, we shall determine to build up here a self-sustaining nation—and what lover of his country can make a different choice?—then we must at once set about the development of a system of agriculture which will enable us to feed our people abundantly, with some spare for export in years of plenty, and at prices which will insure to the farmer and his family both financial rewards and educational, social and religious living conditions fairly comparable to those offered by the cities. A sound system of agriculture can not be maintained on any other basis. Anything short of a fair return upon invested capital, and a fair wage for the labor which goes into the crops, and enough in addition to enable the farmer to maintain the fertility of his soil, will drive large numbers of farmers to the cities."

Senator Harding made it perfectly clear that this is a problem in which city people have just as much interest as the farmer. That unless we can work out a rational and fair agricultural policy, the drift to the city will continue and our trouble will grow constantly worse.

Speaking of farm organizations, he said the farm organization of the present day is quite different from the organization of the past; that farmers have learned sound principles of organization; that they are adapting to their work the methods which business men and working men have found successful in furthering their own interests. He referred especially to the successful organizations established by the fruit growers of the west and by the grain growers of the northwest, and said the farmers of the corn belt states are also rapidly perfecting the most powerful organization of farmers ever known in the country. He pointed out very frankly the danger that would come to the nation if the problems of the farmer were not frankly recognized, and if the farmer was not given absolutely fair treatment.

He said we have witnessed restricted production of manufactures and of labor, but we have not yet experienced the intentionally restricted production of foodstuffs, and expressed the hope that we never may have that experience.

While frankly recognizing the need of a national agricultural policy, he disclaimed any intention of suggesting that the government should work out an elaborate system of agriculture and then try to impose it on the farmers of the country. He denounced such an effort as utterly repugnant to American ideals. He said that government paternalism, whether applied to agriculture or to any other of our great national industries, would stifle ambition, impair efficiency, lessen production and make us a nation of dependant incompetents. He said the farmer requires no special favors at the hands of the government. All he needs is a fair chance and such just consideration for agriculture as we ought to give to a basic industry, and ever seek to promote for our common good.

Senator Harding then spoke of the definite policies to which the Republican party is committed, and which he, as its candidate, endorses.

Farm Representation.
First.—The need of farm representation in larger governmental affairs is recognized. During the past seven years the right of agriculture to a voice in governmental administration has been practically ignored, and at times the farmer has suffered grievously as a result. The farmer has a vital interest in our trade relations with other countries, in the administration of our financial policies and in many of the larger activities of the government.

Second.—The right of farmers to form co-operative associations for the marketing of their products must be granted. The parasite in distribution who preys on both producer and consumer must no longer sap the vitality of this fundamental life.

Third.—The Republican party pledges itself to a scientific study of agricultural prices and farm production costs, both at home and abroad, with a view to reducing the frequency of abnormal fluctuations here. Stabilization will contribute to everybody's confidence. Farmers have complained bitterly of the frequent and violent fluctuations in prices of farm products, and especially in prices of live stock. They do not and such fluctuations in the products of other industries. In a general way prices of farm products must go up or down, according to whether there is a plentiful crop or a short one. The farmer's raw materials are the fertility of the soil, the sunshine and the rain, and the size of his crops is measured by the supply of these raw materials and the skill with which he makes use of them. He cannot control his production and adjust it to the demand as can the manufacturer. But he can see no good reason why the prices of his products should fluctuate so violently from week to week and sometimes from day to day.

To Stop Price Fixing.
Fourth.—We promise to put an end to unnecessary price fixing of farm products and to all considered efforts arbitrarily to reduce farm product prices.

Government drives against food prices such as we have experienced during the past two years are vain and useless. The ostensible purpose of such drives is to reduce the price the consumer pays for food. The actual result is unjustly to depress for a time the prices the farmer receives for his grain and live stock, but with no appreciable reduction in the price the consumer pays. Such drives simply give the speculator and the profiteer additional opportunities to add to their exactions.

Fifth.—We favor the administration of the farm loan act so as to help men who farm to secure farms of their own and to give to them long time credits, needed to practice the best methods of diversified farming.

We also favor the authorization of associations to provide the necessary machinery to furnish personal credit to the man, whether land owner or tenant, who is hampered for lack of working capital. Unfortunately as land increases in value tenancy also increases.

An Increasing Evil.
This has been true throughout history. At the present time probably one-half of the high priced land in the corn belt states is farmed by men who, because of lack of capital, find it necessary to rent. This increase in tenancy brings with it evils which are a real menace to national welfare. The tenant who lacks sufficient working capital and who too often is working under a short time lease is forced to farm the land to the limit and rob it of its fertility in order to pay the rent. Amid such conditions we have inefficient schools, broken down churches and a sadly limited social life. We should therefore concern ourselves not only in helping men to secure farms of their own and in helping the tenant secure the working capital he needs to carry on the best methods of diversified farming, but we should work out a system of land leasing which, while doing full justice to both landlord and tenant, will at the same time conserve the fertility of the soil.

Transportation Systems.
Sixth.—We do not longer recognize the right to speculative profit in the operation of our transportation systems, but we are pledged to restore them to the highest state of efficiency as quickly as possible. Agriculture has suffered more severely than any other industry through the inefficient railroad service of the last two years. Many farmers have incurred disastrous losses through inability to market their grain and live stock. Such a condition must not be permitted to continue. We must bring about conditions which will give us prompt service at the lowest possible rates.

Seventh.—We are pledged to the revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, American agriculture and American industry. If we are to build up a self-sustaining agriculture here at home the farmer must be protected from unfair competition from those countries where agriculture is still being exploited and where the standards of living on the farm are much lower than here. We have asked for higher American standards; let us maintain them.

So long as America can produce the foods we need I am in favor of buying from America first.

Fewer Land Hogs.
Under a sound system of agriculture, fostered and safeguarded by wise and fair administration of state and federal government, the farmers of the United States can feed our people for many centuries—perhaps indefinitely. Farming is not an auxiliary; it is the main plant, and geared with it, inseparably, is every wheel of transportation and industry. America could not go on with a dissatisfied farming people, and no nation is secure where land hunger abides. We need fewer land hogs, who menace our future, and more fat hogs for ham and bacon. We need less belligerence in cultivating a quadrennial crop of votes and more consideration for farming as our basic industry. We need less appeal to class consciousness and more resolute intelligence in promptly solving our problems. We need rest and recuperation for a soil which has been worked out in agitation and more and better harvests in the inviting fields of mutual understanding. We need less of grief about the ill which we may charge to the neglect of our citizenship and more confidence in just government, along with determination to make and hold it just."

Scientific Study.
Third.—The Republican party pledges itself to a scientific study of agricultural prices and farm production costs, both at home and abroad, with a view to reducing the frequency of abnormal fluctuations here. Stabilization will contribute to everybody's confidence. Farmers have complained bitterly of the frequent and violent fluctuations in prices of farm products, and especially in prices of live stock. They do not and such fluctuations in the products of other industries. In a general way prices of farm products must go up or down, according to whether there is a plentiful crop or a short one. Child Welfare Committee.

The personnel of the newly formed Cayuga County Children's Welfare committee, organized for constructive welfare work among the children of the county, is made public by Mrs. Fred J. Manro, chairman of the committee.

The following from the south part of the county are named on the committee: Miss Anna VanSickle, Cayuga; Mrs. E. I. Wyckoff, Aurora; Mrs. William Frost, King Ferry; Mrs. Archibald Bradley, Genoa; Mrs. E. G. Fish, Union Springs.

Miss Margaret C. Carey, assistant superintendent of the New York Charities Aid association, has been in Auburn for the past week aiding in the organization of the committee.

On Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Bradley in Genoa in the interests of the movement. About thirty ladies were present. Mrs. F. J. Manro, the chairman of the county committee, accompanied by Miss Margaret Carey of the State Charities' Aid association, Mrs. Charles A. Wright and Mrs. Brinkerhoff of Auburn, had charge of the meeting.

Miss Carey gave an interesting and instructive talk on Child Welfare and the proper development of the child from birth to years of maturity. She stated that 150,000 children under 5 years of age die annually from lack of proper care and nourishment. Every child is entitled to its chance to have a good body, the best education possible to best fit it for its work in life, and proper moral and spiritual upbringing.

Among the points emphasized were the mother's care of herself as well as the baby, birth registration, (which is very important), prevention of illness, accuracy in things pertaining to food and recreation for children of all ages. This program can best be carried out for homeless, dependent children by means of a trained worker and it is with this end in view that the committee are working. The speaker made a strong plea for a trained child welfare worker for Cayuga county.

Mrs. Manro spoke briefly in regard to the work and needs of the Cayuga County Home for Children, and Mrs. Wright presented the claims for support of the Babies' Home in connection with the County Home. A drive is now being made to secure funds to equip this part of the Home. Teams will soon be organized in this town and every one will be asked to assist in the work.

At the close of the meeting, the hostess served light refreshments.

Holschbach - Bartnick.

A pretty autumn wedding took place Tuesday morning, Oct. 19, at Our Lady of the Lake church in King Ferry, when Miss Hedwig Bartnick, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bartnick, became the bride of Ernest Holschbach of Manitowoc, Wis. Rev. T. M. O'Connor, pastor of the church, celebrated the nuptial high mass. Mrs. Lee Connell presided at the organ.

The bride was becomingly attired in a taupe colored traveling suit with large velvet hat to match. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and rosary beads. She was attended by Miss Emma Bartnick of Syracuse as maid of honor, who wore a tailored suit with hat to match and carried pink roses and rosary beads. The groom was attended by Mr. George Bartnick, a brother of the bride, as best man.

A wedding breakfast was served to the immediate family at the home of the bride's parents after which the young couple left for their future home in Wisconsin. They have many friends who wish them much happiness in their future life.

On Saturday evening last a surprise shower was given the bride-to-be at her home by a number of friends. A very enjoyable evening was spent with music, games, etc. Dainty refreshments were served. Many gifts were presented the bride, suitable for her new home. They consisted of cut glass, silver, linen, pyrex and money.

There have been ten weddings in the White House.

ON WAY TO SEE SECOND ADVENT

Members of Unnamed Sect Are Headed for Palestine.

TRAVELING IN AUTOMOBILES

Five Men and Eighteen Young Women Are Following Gray-Whiskered Faith Healer From Northern Maine—They Have No Funds but Declare the Lord Provides for All Their Needs.

A strange little caravan of six men and eighteen young women gathered in Bangor, Me., recently from distant parts of the world to begin a wandering which they believe will eventually lead them to Palestine in time to witness the second coming of the Lord. They expect to augment their forces by hundreds and thousands before the Holy Land is reached.

Meanwhile they remain nameless pilgrims, who have severed all home ties and profess to have left behind them all worldly desires and pleasures. They live in tents until they set out on journey from point to point in three large automobiles, to their first stopping place, being in the neighborhood of Boston.

"Jehovah Provided."

Their leader, a tall, gaunt, gray-whiskered individual, had already created considerable interest in northern Maine by the practice of faith healing. Hundreds visit his tent seeking cures from various ailments.

Perhaps the most astonishing fact about this sect is their ability to provide for themselves on the proposed journey to Jerusalem.

"We neither beg, borrow nor steal," said the chieftain of the little band. "We don't lack for anything, Jehovah provides. We know that God has sent us on this mission, and he works on the hearts of people. The expressman drove up to our camp yesterday and left two bags of potatoes. I have no idea who sent them."

He denied that anyone in the party had funds. During their stay in Bangor the men folk made necessary repairs on the motors. Small contributions left by visitors to the camp were hoarded to buy gasoline.

Their Meager Fare.

A kettle of boiling water, in which were poured two cans of cocoa, and a few loaves of bread, constituted breakfast for the pilgrims. Only one other meal was served each day, usually consisting of potatoes baked in the open, bread and whatever is brought by neighboring residents, occasionally a few strips of meat, but usually vegetables.

"Most of us started from Philadelphia," said their leader. "Our first stop was Washburn, Me., where we were scheduled to hold a number of meetings at a certain date. Now we are actually on our way to Palestine."

The elder plays mechanic as well as preacher. He repaired the motor of an automobile which had been functioning poorly. The cars were bought second-hand and have seen considerable wear. He said that the automobiles would be sold when the necessity arrived and his following would travel on foot, by boat, train, camels, and in the end possibly by airplane.

Practice Faith Healing.

He declared that none in the party ever visited a physician.

"Last night one of the sisters was very ill," he said. "We prayed with her for a few minutes and then she was well again. I am glad to know that churches in Boston are taking up with faith healing. I have many come to me, and the results have been wonderful."

No one in the sect smokes or uses tobacco in any form, according to the leader. Although none in the group is of the Jewish race, pork is taboo for those who follow him.

NOW IT'S THE "QUADRANGLE"

Peculiar Matrimonial Tangle Puzzles the Ellis Island Officials.

Ellis Island officials are struggling to straighten out a peculiar matrimonial quadrangle. Romolo Georgini and Catherine Mellissari, acknowledged "common law" husband and wife, former New Yorkers, are seeking to re-enter the country with their three children after living in Italy for the last five years. The man has a legal wife, who left him in New York and is now living in Italy, and the woman has a lawful husband, Henry Bombara, who has arrived in New York from Chicago.

Bombara expressed willingness to take back his wife and the children by the common law husband. Georgini said he would marry the woman if he could get a divorce from his wife in Italy. Bombara has appealed to Washington for a final ruling and the common law family will be kept on Ellis Island pending the ruling.

"Movie" Led to Boy's Death.

After witnessing a Wild West "movie" Gustave Essling, thirteen years old, of Philadelphia, went into the cellar of his home and tried to enact a scene in the "thriller" he had just seen. He apparently stood on a box, and knotting a rope about his neck he threw it over a rafter. Then the box either slipped or he kicked it farther away than he intended, and he choked to death. He had been missing three days before his body was found.

HE LIKES PRISON BUT MUST GET OUT

Inmate of Sing Sing to Be Ousted Forcibly When His Time Is Up.

Officials of Sing Sing have announced that they are making preparations to throw Charles Ortner, a stubborn inmate, out of the prison. He could not be coaxed to leave.

Ortner was eligible for parole nearly two years ago, but refused all invitations to sign his parole application and leave. He received an indeterminate sentence of from two to four years in Queens county. He had been charged with assaulting Alexander Gross, a fellow employee in a mill in Whitestone, L. I., with an iron weight.

When his minimum sentence expired two years ago Warden Moyer tried to induce Ortner to sign a parole application and leave Sing Sing. He refused to sign anything. Later Warden Edward V. Brophy coaxed him to go home.

"The judge said two to four years," protested Ortner, "and nothing about signing anything. So I will not sign. I'm perfectly contented here."

Maj. Lewis E. Lawes, the warden, admitted that Sing Sing officials have given up all hope of getting rid of Ortner by peaceful persuasion.

"His time is nearly up," said Maj. Lawes, "and we are going to put him out bodily."

Ortner has been doing hard, laborious work in Sing Sing, but this has not prejudiced him against prison life there. Because of his "staying qualities" the officials let him work outside the walls as a "trustee." He is the only prisoner attendants would wager could not be tempted to escape if left unguarded.

When his maximum four years' sentence expires, very soon, Ortner need not sign a parole application, as he will have served the full sentence in prison, and therefore must be discharged absolutely free and not placed on parole.

FIRST WOMAN TO CAST VOTE UNDER AMENDMENT

Women in many states have voted under the operation of state laws, but Miss Margaret Newburgh of South St. Paul, Minn., probably was the first woman in the United States to cast her vote directly under the provisions of the Nineteenth amendment. On the occasion of a special election on a municipal bond proposition, Miss Newburgh appeared at the polls at 8 a. m., Friday, August 27th, and was the first to vote in her precinct.

NEW FOREST PROTECTION

Wireless Telephone Being Used Along the British Columbia Coast.

The airplane forest patrol system, as adopted in California and Oregon in the national forests for fire protection is giving good service this season, a marked improvement being shown over last year in accurate location of fires, says the Forest Patrolman of Portland. Plans are being made to protect Colorado national forests by air patrol.

And now the wireless telephone is being used on the British Columbia coast covering an area where the greatest concentration of logging operations exists. The coast line of British Columbia is deeply indented with inlets varying in length from 10 to 90 miles. Launches for cruising or examining logging operations would be out of touch for perhaps two weeks at a time from the district forester if this means of communication did not exist. Now they can be easily reached and sent to the scene of coast forest fires. The range of the wireless telephone for land stations, of which three have been already erected, is 70 to 100 miles, and for the launch receiving sets 40 miles, although it may be much greater under unusually favorable atmospheric conditions.

Airplane Volplane 19 Miles.

Caught with an empty gasoline tank 10,000 feet above Washoe lake, Nevada, Daniel Davison, San Francisco and Los Angeles aviator; John Woolley, Oakland, and James McKay of Reno were forced to volplane 19 miles to the Wheeler ranch, south of Reno. Landing was made without injury.

Jehovah-Jireh

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE

Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh (the Lord will provide) . . . in the mount of the Lord it shall be seen.—Gen. 22:14

"Every word in this story is like a hot blood drop upon the cold pavement," and in it there is heard another story—a story that comes from heaven and one that God delights to tell.

"Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering." "In Isaac shall thy seed be called," God had said, and now, this strange command that would make that promise of none effect! But in these carefully measured words: "Take now thy son, thine only one," we are listening to the heart-beat of God who "gave his only-begotten Son" to die for others.

A three days' journey—the distance of death and resurrection—brings Abraham and Isaac to the appointed mountain, the place where, centuries later, another well-beloved Son laid down his life for men. "They went both of them together," we are told, for the Father and Son are one in the great work of redemption.

And now the beloved son is upon the altar and the glittering knife held aloft for the fatal thrust, when a restraining hand is laid upon the upraised arm, and "a ram caught in a thicket by his horns" is offered up in Isaac's stead.

If in Isaac, Christ is seen as the devoted servant of his Father's will, in the ram he is seen as actually suffering death in the place of his people. The horns are the symbol of power, and the thicket tells of the curse upon creation because of sin. Christ, held by the power of his love to the cross for your sins and mine.

"And Abraham called the name of the place, Jehovah-jireh." Jehovah will provide. And what will he provide? A sacrifice! A substitute for the poor sinner! A holy sin offering! Some one to die in my place! One who, in his own breast will receive the awful stroke that I deserve! One who will drain its terrible dregs for me—the bitter cup of divine wrath against sin, that he might turn it into a cup of bliss for me to drink! All the hidden meaning of the One Great Sacrifice is seen! The Father's heart disclosed in the command, "Thine only one whom thou lovest." The beloved Son, the Lamb, entangled at the altar of sins, the very power of his love holding him there!

Abraham is spared the pangs of slaying his son, but God spared not himself that pang. No voice from heaven, no pitying angel of the Lord at Calvary! The stroke falls upon the Beloved, and by the Father's hand. "The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." "It pleased Jehovah to bruise him."

"Jehovah lifted up the rod, O Christ, it fell on thee!"

As Abraham stood at the smoking altar he saw Christ's day and was glad; saw, on a spur of that same Moriah, a cross upraised against the blackened sky. By that cross we take our stand and there our hearts, once desolate because of sin, have learned a song:

"Not all the blood of beasts on Jewish altars slain, Could give the guilty conscience peace or wash away its stain."

"But Christ, the heavenly Lamb, takes all our guilt away; A sacrifice of nobler name, and richer blood than they."

Jehovah-jireh! But will he provide only a sacrifice? Nay. "My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." And the very sacrifice that he has provided is the guarantee of this, for thus it is written: "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" O soul, believe it! That unspeakable gift of God's Son upon the cross for thee pledges to thee all things beside! Alas! that God's people do not prove this with every passing day!

Jehovah-jireh! But where will he provide? Mark well the place: "In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen." The meaning of that blessed name of our God is for those alone who have been at Jesus' cross. It is not for the scoffer and the scorner. It is not for the rejector of the Lord. "In the mount of the Lord" where stands the cross. "In the mount of the Lord" where God reveals himself. "In the mount of the Lord" where the heart is fully obedient to the will of God. "In the mount of the Lord," reached by that "three days' journey" that tells of the effect of the cross—crucifying me to the world and the world to me, separating me unto God, of fellowship in the sufferings of Jesus. "In the mount of the Lord," there "it shall be seen."

103 YEARS YOUNG; HE'S FOR HARDING

"If I should live to be another 100 years old I certainly would never vote for a member of the Democratic party for President or any other national office."

So declares "Grandpa" Albert Vogel, 103 years young, of Jeannette, Pa., who cast his first vote in a presidential election for Polk, voted for Abraham Lincoln and has voted the Republican ticket ever since. Next month he will vote for Harding and Coolidge.

"Tell the country I am for Harding and Coolidge and America first," says Mr. Vogel. "I want no Wilson League of Nations. President Wilson's autocracy and the wastefulness of those he gathered about him as his official family was to be expected. It has been a Democratic trait for years."

"Grandpa" Vogel takes a daily constitutional over streets near his home in Jeannette. Occasionally he preaches a sermon from one of the Western Pennsylvania churches with old time vigor. He started life as an assistant lamplighter in the Capitol grounds at Washington when he was fifteen years old. He often ran errands for members of Congress and can vividly recall the eloquence of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster and other famous statesmen of that period. He saw Andrew Jackson inaugurated in 1822. Later he became a Methodist minister.

EDITORS PAY VISIT TO MARION STAR AND FIND A REAL PAPER.

"If President Harding is as big a success as Editor Harding he will go down in history in the Hall of Fame," writes J. Gabbert of Riverside, Cal., in an article just published on his return from Marion, where he visited Harding's paper.

"We found just the sort of a paper a future President might be expected to edit," says Mr. Gabbert, "and the visit, to us came nearer to being an editorial conference than a political crusade."

"We found men working for Editor Harding who had been with him for periods varying from 20 to 25 years. We found that Editor Harding follows closely every detail incident to the publication of his paper. He knows what pay the helpers on the floor get, just as he knows the amount he pays his manager. He can handle type, like the rest of us, and it would keep my foreman busy to beat him on setting up a stick of 8-point type. He knows how to make up a paper like a veteran and he is just as much at home in the business office looking over the advertising accounts."

World's Glass Industry.

Glass factories of Bohemia are filled with orders and working at full capacity, but are likely to suffer in the future because of the competition that arose in this trade during the war. Japan is one of the largest competitors. New glass factories also have been founded in Belgium, the Ukraine, Roumania and Poland.

Reduce Tire Bills

Back of McClaren J & D Tires is the full service of our complete tire organization.

This service consists in showing you how to get full tire mileage.

Full tire mileage does not simply mean buying or selling tires.

You must use the right tire equipment.

Possibly with a larger tire on the present rim you can get greater tire mileage.

Perhaps your car is over-tired—sometimes a costly economy.

Put your tire troubles up to the McClaren service man.

He can tell you the right tire equipment to use and thereby cut your tire bills.

Besides his advice will cost you nothing.

AMERICAN WOMEN DOING FULL SHARE FOR THE COUNTRY

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Wife of Republican Nominee, Praises Her Sex.

DISCUSSES HIGH LIVING COSTS Declares in an Interview That Present High Prices Can Be Reduced by Votes.

By Estelline Bennett.

Mrs. Coolidge sat in a day coach on a slow local train between Boston and Northampton and talked about her husband, her children, the high cost of living and the domestic problem. The conductor and the brakeman stopped as they went through the car to talk to her. She had made friends with them in her frequent journeys back and forth to keep in touch with her children in school in Northampton and her husband at his duties in the state capital. She knitted diligently as she talked. During those trips she knits all the winter stockings and sweaters for her two boys—John, aged fourteen, and Calvin, twelve.

"Too many people are afraid of work," she thinks is the fundamental reason for the high cost of living and the much discussed domestic problem. "I think the only thing the women of the country can do now," she said, with the quiet conviction of one who has thought it all out, "is to vote for the men whom they think will make the right laws and see that they are enforced. They have done all they can in the home. I think the reason there is so much sugar on hand now is because people are doing without it in their homes."

Women Have Done Their Share.

"American women have done, and still are doing, their full share. They have sacrificed and saved and substituted and made over. But that isn't enough. They'll have to vote the high cost of living down."

"Here in New England, where it is a little hard for us to give up pie," she laughed at the tradition that has become a joke, "we have learned to use all kinds of cheaper substitutes for butter and lard, and in my own household we have experimented with different fruit combinations to find something we like and that will take the least sugar. Apples must be tart to make good pies, but we have found that blueberries take less sugar and the combination of apples and blueberries, half and half, is delicious, requires less sweetening than apples and has more character than the blueberries alone."

Knows No Domestic Problems.

The domestic problem, which is closing homes all over the country and increasing the hotel population, is something of which Mrs. Coolidge thinks she has no personal, practical knowledge. She never keeps but one maid, and she never has been without one. In the fifteen years of her married life she has had only two. The first one she inherited with the furnished house into which she and Mr. Coolidge moved when they were married and took with her when she moved. The second came when the first left to go and live with her sister.

There must be a reason for their staying, it was suggested to Mrs. Coolidge, and she thought possibly there were several. She thought the type of maid had something to do with it. Her's both have been American women old enough to have a sense of responsibility to their work and intelligent enough to respond to reasonable courteous treatment.

"A good many women who keep only one maid have trouble in their households because both mistress and maid, but chiefly the mistress, are afraid of work. A woman expects one maid to do the cooking and scrubbing and everything else and still be dressed up in black dress with white cap and apron, ready to answer the doorbell any minute. It isn't humanly possible. I always answer my doorbell myself. I do it for two reasons. In the first place, there is no one else, and, in the second, I like to greet my friends at the door myself."

Have Home Orchestra.

Mrs. Coolidge is of medium height, with brown hair, hazel eyes that hold a good deal of merriment and a very quick sense of humor. At home she and her children have a little orchestra. Mrs. Coolidge plays the piano, John the violin, and Calvin, after considerable discussion, in which he favored a bass drum, compromised on a banjo-mandolin. They play hymns and war songs usually—the hymns they learn in the Congregational church and Sunday School of Northampton. They avoid difficult and unfamiliar music because the object of the orchestra is entirely recreational and not educational. That is a part of Mrs. Coolidge's educational policy—that children should work when they work and play when they play and keep the two separate. That was why she sent her boys to the public schools of Northampton when they were five years old.

Every morning when she is in Northampton, Mrs. Coolidge takes her Boston bag and goes to market. If the neighbor next door is going Mrs. Coolidge goes with her in the car. Otherwise she walks. She has no domestic policy. She buys, she says, "what the family need and can afford."

TREES NEEDED ON ROADWAYS

No Reason Why the United States Should Be Behind Europe in Matter of Beautification.

One of the pleasant impressions which our soldiers brought back with them from overseas was of miles of country roadways beautified with magnificent trees. In this country a shade tree by the roadside is so rare as to cause comment. Once in a while during a trip of many miles one will come to a place where some wise man of the past has set out in a row along the side of the road maples or oaks or elms. But an even commoner sight are the stretches where somebody has cut down the trees and left the roadway bare and unsightly. Not infrequently telegraph or telephone companies have gone hacking their way through a stretch of fine old trees.

It appears that a land owner residing on any country road may cut down trees along the highway for cord wood and plow the land to the very edge of the road without interference, and that the law has permitted him to set out saplings in the spring and get 25 cents each in reduction of taxes. Public service corporations, it is stated, also have certain rights under the law which seem to work to the disadvantage of private citizens seeking to beautify the highway adjoining their property by planting valuable trees.

The State Forestry association will submit a proposition to its entire membership this fall by letter ballot, with a view to determining whether codification and revision of the state's shade tree laws shall be one of the objectives in the campaign for necessary forestry legislation. The association is appealing for the support of all citizens interested.

This is something which we well command our favorable attention. The movement should provide not only for the protection of such roadside trees as still exist, but should also make provision for the replanting of those already destroyed.—Buffalo Express.

BACKYARD ORCHARD AN ASSET

Can Be Depended Upon to Pay Dividends of Pleasure and Health for Many Years.

The orchard behind the village home has always been an asset of great value. We knew one once that had cherries, pears, plums and apples for the entire fruit season—early and late—and it yielded enormous dividends of pleasure and health for a full quarter of a century.

A few fruit trees may be grown with profit in the back yards of cities not too closely built. One exists in a nearby city, where ten years ago a wise husbandman planted fruit trees in his back yard, and for ornament set out Japanese apricots and dwarf quinces in his front yard. From his trees he now has two crops, one of surpassing beauty during blossom time and another of palatable and healthful fruit later. There are also berries on his lot in abundance, and a wild goose plum tree that carries prodigious crops.

It may be stated as a fact that no man ever planted fruit trees who did not thereby become a benefactor. There is room for thousands of them in the rear of Omaha homes.—Omaha Bee.

Roads of Remembrance.

The trees planted at the technical high school were in honor of former pupils in the service and not for the dead. Women's clubs, highway associations, state forestry associations and the American Forestry association are taking an active interest in the movement. No more beautiful way of paying tribute to the boys who went to war could be devised than the planting of trees, and it is an undertaking to be encouraged. Memory trees, singly or in groups, or along "roads of remembrance" will be known for what they are quite as well as a carved monument and may be far more beautiful.—Indianapolis Star.

Vacant-Lot Gardens.

According to C. O. Davis of the Milwaukee garden commission, more than 1,000 vacant lots are now under cultivation. One of the benefits of the planting of gardens is that it stops people from using the vacant lots as dumping grounds for their garbage and rubbish. The heaps of refuse often form breeding places for flies and mosquitoes.

Yet greater benefits are realized in the profits derived from the garden produce, and the healthful exercise gained in caring for the tracts.

Now for Tree Planting.

Trees for city street planting may be of the same kind for a dozen blocks and must be evenly spaced, says the American Forestry association of Washington, which will send a free tree planting guide to any one. When trees are planted along a country roadside it is better to have them in groups of a few kinds and informally located.

Well to Remember.

Well-kept back yards pay better dividends than well-kept cemeteries.

Auditorium Attractions.

The season's greatest event to music lovers will be the appearance of the famous Creator Grand Opera company at the Auditorium, Friday and Saturday of this week with a special matinee on Saturday. The company which is the largest of its kind traveling numbers 100 people. There is an orchestra of 30 musicians and a complete ballet and chorus. The costumes are gorgeous and there are two carloads of scenery and effects carried for the presentation of the operas. Giuseppe Creators will personally conduct. Three of the most popular operas ever composed have been selected for the Auburn engagement. This (Friday) evening "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be given. Saturday matinee "Faust" and Saturday evening "Carmen."

Thursday, Oct. 28, matinee and night, the weekly burlesque attraction will be the "Tittle Tatties of 1920." This is a brand new show headed by Frank X. Silk, the original "Atta Boy Horace" comedian, who made such a hit here last season. He is supported by a whirlwind cast and the famous silk stocking chorus. The prices are so low as to place these great entertainments within the reach of everyone. Seats on sale Tuesday, Oct. 26.

Coming to the Auditorium Saturday, Oct. 30, matinee and night, is the famous cartoon musical comedy "The Katzenkammer Kids."

Dies in Cortland.

Charles C. Calhoun, aged 60 years, died at the Cortland County hospital, Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock, following a three weeks' illness.

The deceased was a native of Genoa and went to Cortland to make his home eight years ago. He was an employee of the Allen-Brownhill company of Cortland. He is survived by a wife and one son of Cortland. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Clara Frederick and Mrs. Hudson Halspin of Cortland, and two brothers, John Calhoun of Ludlowville and Alvin Calhoun of Cortland.

The funeral was held at his late home, 18 Maple Ave., on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the family lot in Cortland Rural cemetery.

Getting in Touch with the Best.

Edward Everett Hale used to counsel young people to converse every day with some one older, better and wiser than themselves. We cannot all do that, but we can do the next best thing: we can get in touch with them through the printed page and enjoy the fruits of their wisdom and experience. Probably no publication contains so much from the writings of men and women distinguished in many ways as The Youth's Companion. A constant reading of the paper is a liberal education of mind and heart.

The Companion has no age limit. Professional men, business men and busy women prize it as highly as the young folks.

The 52 issues of 1921 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

Football at Cornell.

With a squad of 75 candidates for this year's Cornell team at work twice daily on Schoellkopf Field, Gilmore Dobie, the new football coach at Ithaca, is busy developing a first team which took the field in the opening game of the season against University of Rochester, played at Ithaca on Saturday, Oct. 2.

Cornell has arranged an attractive schedule this year, one that will appeal to all Central New Yorkers who are interested in football. Six games are to be played in Ithaca, three of them sure to be high-class attractions, namely the Colgate game on Oct. 23, the Rutgers game on Oct. 30, and the Columbia game Nov. 13. These dates and all others on the schedule are Saturdays. Out of town games scheduled are with Dartmouth Nov. 6, and Pennsylvania Nov. 25.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home in Fleming. Burial in Fort Hill cemetery in Auburn.

Homespun Yarn.

So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.—Psalms 90:12.

There is value in neatness. Most folks realize that a goodlooking farm is a good farm.

Lawn, shrubs, flowers and paint are the simple elements in the making of an attractive home.

The more farm products sold near home the less demands on an overburdened transportation system.

Don't forget that the first point in table manners is to be on time at meals.

Don't envy a neighbor's display of flowers this year; resolve to have a better lot of your own next season.

Write down your garden plans for next summer now before you forget what you learned this year.

Who'd board a hired man all winter if he didn't work? Then why board the hen that never lays an egg?

Profitable farming is a matter of business and farms can be most successfully operated only on a sound business basis.

Every housewife needs reference books for her work. Cornell has them. Send to Ithaca for a list of publications, any of which will be sent free.

There is no one remedy for the exodus of young folks from farm to city; but one of the cures is a better money return to the farmer.

There are two methods of preparing food, accurate measuring and mixing, and the look-and-feel method. The former is the safety-first rule; the latter is only for the experienced hand.

Miss Morris Resigns.

Miss Helena Morris, who has resigned as superintendent of the Auburn City hospital, expects to accept a position as superintendent of the Homeopathic hospital, Syracuse. Miss Morris has filed her resignation with the officials of the Auburn hospital to take effect on or before Dec. 1.

Miss Morris, who has been in charge of the City hospital for two and one half years, came from the Memorial hospital, Syracuse, where she had been night superintendent. Doctors and nurses who have been associated with Miss Morris since she came to Auburn express regret at her decision to leave the city. Miss Morris' successor has not been decided upon.

Pilgrims Tercentenary.

The Cayuga County Historical society has appointed Charles G. Adams and William P. Beardsley to represent that organization on the joint committee arranging a public meeting in Auburn to celebrate the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims, the speakers for which are furnished by the American Mayflower Council. The other organizations which are being asked to join in these arrangements are the Chamber of Commerce, Ministerial Association, Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club. It is expected the event will take place Nov. 17, as that is the date that the speakers sent out by the Mayflower Council can visit Auburn.

—There appears to be another reason for the shortage of help. Automobiles are killing the population at the rate of one every thirty-five minutes.

—While Martin Griffin was driving his car in Oxford, last week, the machine "kicked" a stone about the size of a hen's egg with such force that it broke a plate glass window in an ice cream parlor.

—The hop growers are not so elated as they were before picking, when they anticipated prices of $1 a lb. or better. There are no inquiries and the market appears to have disappeared. There are some sales reported at 80 cents and some offers of 40 cents a pound.

—A mail bag left hanging on the mail crane at Bainbridge station, was stolen before the train arrived, and was discovered a few rods above the station, cut open and the letters gone. There were 20 letters and $60 in money orders in the bag, none of which has been recovered.

—M. J. Clark of Newark Valley brought home from Arnot, Pa., a rattlesnake 40 inches long, which he had killed with a club. The snake was "charming" a rabbit when Mr. Clark came upon it. The rabbit did not move, and he picked it up and set it in the bushes.
