It has been suggested that the Madison county insane asylum be fitted up as an overflow soldiers' home. The home at Bath is badly overcrowded and no one would agree that for that reason the worthy and needy veterans should be neglected. It is asserted that at a small expense the asylum buildings could be properly fitted and would make a comfortable, pleasant home for the old soldiers whose annually decreasing ranks would not warrant a large outlay for new permanent buildings.

A DAY-TIME TUNE.

The sun sings out in a dawn-dappled sky;
And a fleeting moon croons a pale reply;
While the star-crowded chorus
Beneath, round, and o'er us,
Comes muffled, uncertain,
Through the day's drawn curtain;
And the waking world lifts a workaday cry
To mate with the martial music on high.

Right good for the soul it is; drifting
through dreams;
But it's braver to plow where the fat
earth teems,
The office is better
Than the lotos-fetter;
And sweeter than the bottle
Is the wide engine throttle.
So, clerk, to your work! and, maiden,
to your seams!
Tradesman, to your trade! and agent,
to your schemes!
There's time for you to loaf when the sun's gone out; it's work-hours
while he beams.

A CHANGE OF HEART.

On a bitter cold winter afternoon, Mr. Jacob Grimmersby sat in his cozy library, resting in his easy-chair, his feet out-stretched to the blazing coal fire, and he told himself that he was "reasonably comfortable, as comfortable as one could be in such weather." But he was not; his heart was cold, and people suffering from that disease are never comfortable.

Jacob Grimmersby was 73 years old, and so far as he knew, he had not one living relative. He was thinking of this, as he sat in his darkening library; the firelight dancing upon the carpet and walls threw weird shadows over the wrinkled old face; it seemed to say to him: "I am merry and happy. Are you?"

He had lived in this same handsome, old mansion as long as he could remember; his father had lived there before him. Of his mother he had a bare recollection; he recalled a tall, graceful lady moving about these rooms. When a little child, he was sent away to school because his noisy play disturbed his father; she had held him in her arms, and kissed him good-by. When he was brought back there was a wisp of hair on the door; his mother was dead, they had told him.

Then followed a dozen years of dull routine. A tutor to attend to his mental growths, a housekeeper to look after his physical wants, a father to supply his purse, but no one to love him, or to sympathize with the eager desires and hopes of his boyhood. Repressed, unloved, at 23 Jacob Grimmersby had found himself possessed of a handsome fortune, and alone.

He was 40 years old, when all at once it seemed to him he began to live; he knew the moment he saw Helen Morrison that she was the one woman in the world for him. From that hour his skies had changed; all things were rose-colored. He loved her—he wooed her—he won her—within a year she was his wife, his happy, gentle wife.

Old Mr. Grimmersby unconsciously turned, and looked toward the door; his thoughts of her were so vivid he almost imagined he heard her light footfall on the floor. If you could have peeped then, as the firelight did, you would have beheld what few living persons had ever seen—Jacob Grimmersby's smiling face.

But the smile faded, his features were once more hard and stern; the vision of those two brief years of happiness had fled, and in their place came the memory of the day when his wife was taken from him. He saw again the cold, pale face; he heard once more a baby's feeble cry, as the nurse bore it from the room; and now, as then, he said, in his heart, that God had been very cruel to him.

You might have thought that pity for his own unhappy childhood would have made him try to brighten his son's life, but no. His wife's death embittered him, and made him, if possible, a colder, harsher man than he had ever been. He rose, and walking across the room, looked out into the now fast gathering gloom. Some boys were going by the gate with their sleds; he could hear their merry voices, as they talked and laughed together.

It was long since a child's laugh had echoed through his house. There was a time when he had heard it, but it was always in the nursery or school-room; the boy had early learned that his father wished him to be quiet when in his presence; the childish secrets and boyish schemes had all been whispered to the good-natured housemaids; he was never told, but he soon felt that his father cared nothing for him.

Only once had Jacob Grimmersby future; that was when Richard had grown to be a man, and his father saw fit to select a wife for him. But his son had other plans, and refusing to court the heiress his father had selected as his choice of a daughter-in-law, Richard had been disowned, and turned adrift. He married the woman he loved, took her to a distant town, and they began life for themselves.

It was over nine years ago that Richard had gone away, on a night very like this one, by the way, only not so cold. But Jacob Grimmersby had never seen his son again; a year since he had received a notice of Richard's death, and that was all. For those nine years he had lived alone, save for the old servants, unloving and unloved. "How much longer would it be?" he sometimes asked; as for himself he cared not how soon the end came.

The old man turned back into the room; once more he stretched himself in his easy-chair. For some time he sat, tracing imaginary pictures in the glowing coals; myriads of fiery sparks, escaped from the iron bars that had held them, fled triumphantly up the chimney. He became warm and drowsy. Presently his head dropped upon his breast, and he slept—slept and dreamed of Richard. Dreamed of him as a child again; the boy stood at his father's knee, and he was kind to him—a pleasant dream.

How long he dozed he never knew. A shrill scream and the jangling of sleigh-bells woke him; then a confusion of voices. The sounds were coming nearer—coming up the driveway to his door. He hurried to the window and looked out. What was it those men were carrying so carefully between them? It looked like a child's form. They were at the steps now;

the next moment the bell rang furiously, angrily, as if indignant that its long silence should be so rudely broken. The servant came hurrying down the hall; she and her master met at the doorway.

"Open the door quickly; someone has been hurt, I think," he said.

Another moment and the men stood in the hall with their light burden. A little boy, perhaps 5 years old, white and motionless and bleeding from a wound in his forehead. "The child was struck by a passing sleigh," was the explanation. "The horse kicked him, and we think his arm is broken. We do not know where he lives, and it was too cold to take him anywhere else. We hope you will excuse us, Mr. Grimmersby."

Excuse them? Yes, he would; the child looked like the little Richard of his dream.

Had they sent for the doctor, the old gentleman inquired.

Yes, the man in the sleigh had gone for him, and would bring him back. It was no one's fault; the little one had slipped just as the sleigh was passing, and fallen almost under the horse's feet.

They carried him, at Jacob Grimmersby's desire, to his own bed-chamber. It was the only warmed one in the house, except the servants' apartments, and there they did all that was possible until the doctor came. It was not long before he arrived, and he knew the boy. "He and his mother live in the little brown cottage at the turn of the Hill road; it is a good mile from here; the child must be nearly frozen going so far, and so scantily clad," the doctor exclaimed.

They found his injuries much as they supposed; presently he was restored to consciousness, the wound on his head dressed, and the broken arm set. Then, for the first time, the boy spoke.

"Do you know where mamma is? She went out; she said she would be back soon, but she stayed so long I got frightened, so I went to find her. Then I fell down, and when I woke up I was here."

"We are going to send for your mother, my brave little man," the kindly doctor said, "with your permission, Mr. Grimmersby. The child ought not to be moved for a few days. If you would be willing to have a room prepared and let his mother stay with him for a little time, you would be doing a very kind thing."

Yes, it would be all right, they might stay and be welcome. To himself Jacob Grimmersby said it would be a sort of comfort to have this little boy, that looked like Richard, in his house for a while.

Pale with fear and apprehension the mother arrived, to find her son resting quietly.

"It is so nice and warm here, dear mother, and it was so cold while I waited for you," he whispered; "and they are all kind to me; I like them. Weren't they good to let me stay?"

"Yes, my darling, very good. I am very grateful."

It was over a week from that eventful evening that Mr. Grimmersby, going upstairs to see the child, as he had formed the habit of doing some time each day, heard the sound of a name that startled him. The mother had called the little one Richard. The old man had never heard him called by any name before. Involuntarily, he stopped outside the door. The boy was lying dressed upon a lounge; his mother sat beside him, holding his hand. They were talking softly together in the twilight.

"Will you be sorry when we go home again, mamma?" the sweet voice asked.

"For some reasons, yes, dear, and for others, no. It is very pleasant to be surrounded by such comfortable and beautiful things; but it is nice to be at home, isn't it, Richard?"

"Yes, mother."

Mr. Grimmersby did not intend to listen. He hardly knew he was doing so, yet he waited to hear more. The child spoke again.

"I will be sorry to go away from Mr. Grimmersby, mamma. I think he is good."

"He has been very good to you, my dear; you have just reason for thinking so."

"I never saw this house before, did you?"

"Yes, Richard."

"Did papa ever see it?" asked the boy.

"Yes, dear, papa saw it many times."

"Was the house my papa lived in when he was a little boy as pretty as this one?" the childish voice inquired.

"Quite as pretty," the mother replied.

"What was grandpa like?" Was he as nice as Mr. Grimmersby?"

"I don't think he was as kind as this Mr. Grimmersby, Richie; but we won't talk any more just now."

Old Mr. Grimmersby turned and showed a marked interest in his son's went downstairs; a strange trembling came over him. Slowly he retraced his steps to the empty library. Ah, the silence and gloom of that room—of the whole house, indeed! He sat down once more before the fire and bent his head upon his hands.

In that hour, "between the dark and the daylight"—that hour when, in happier homes than his, the laughter of children drives the shadows from the rooms, and softens the lines upon the older faces—in this house there was no sound of childish voices, save the trembling tones of the little boy upstairs, and he was a stranger.

Mr. Grimmersby pushed his chair back hastily. Once more he climbed the stairs; again he stood without the chamber door. There, at least, was companionship—he would take comfort in that. The old gentleman listened a moment. All was still; he went in. The child was alone, lying upon the couch where he had lain before. The little face brightened as Mr. Grimmersby came toward him; he held his hand out eagerly.

"Oh, here you are!" he cried joyously. "I am so glad you came. I have been watching for you all day."

"Where is your mother, boy?"

"She went downstairs. She will be back pretty soon. Please, could you tell me a story—a real funny one, please?"

"Oh, child, a story! I don't know how. I never told a story in my life," said the old gentleman.

"Then, I guess you never had a little boy of your own. My papa used to tell me stories every night until he died."

Richard's dark eyes filled with tears. "Never mind the funny story," he said; "tell me about your little boy."

"There is nothing I can tell, child. I can't talk about him."

"Then shall I tell you a story, please, like papa used to tell me?"

"Yes, go on," the old man said—anything to stop this questioning.

"Well," began the boy, "I will tell you the last one he ever told me. This is the way he said it:

"Once upon a time, oh, a great while ago, in a little town near the seashore, there was a house, and it was large and fine, and full of all sorts of beautiful things. But it wasn't very full of people, 'cause the gentleman that lived there didn't like folks much; the only other person that lived there, 'cept the gentleman and the servants, was a little boy, and his name was Richard."

'Cause when Richard was a very little baby his mamma died, so that was the reason he and his papa lived in the big house all alone. Well, Richard thought his papa was about the nicest person he ever knew, but he was so sorry 'cause Richard's mamma died that he couldn't think much about his little boy. So the little boy was lonesome, and sometimes at night he cried, and wished God had wanted him too when he took his mamma. But God didn't, 'cause the boy lived, and grew big and studied his lessons, and his papa gave him money and a pony, but he never kissed him; and sometimes Richard wished he would talk to him 'stead of giving him things. An' after a while he grew bigger and bigger, till he got to be a man, and his father talked to him a long time, and told him he knew a nice lady, and Richard must marry her. But 'way off in another place, my papa said, there was the beautiful lady, and she was so sweet and so good that he didn't want anybody else to come and live with him just 'cept that lady. So when he said this to his papa, his papa said he could go and live with that lady, but he couldn't bring her to the big house."

"Then Richard was very sorry; but he liked the beautiful lady so much he went to where she was and married her. An' after while, God sent them a little boy to keep for their own. An' then my papa kissed me, and said that Richard's father would have been happier if he had kissed his little boy sometimes, too. Was that a nice story?"

But the old man gave no answer.

He sat with his eyes fixed on the child's face. It was all coming back to him now—the strange unrest, the thronging memories, that had taken possession of him ever since the night that brought little Richard beneath his roof, were all explained. The eyes that looked so earnestly into his own were Richard's very own.

At last Mr. Grimmersby recovered himself. "Richard," he said, huskily, "did your father tell you the gentleman's name?"

"No," replied the boy, shaking his head, "but he said it was a true story, and mamma has the picture of Richard's mother; she always keeps it with her. I can get it," he said; and, slipping from the lounge, brought to the old man a little miniature, and laid it in his outstretched hand.

As Mr. Grimmersby raised it his eyes fell upon the sweet and tender face of his beloved wife. He turned his head; there at his side stood little Richard, the pale face full of anxious questioning. And as he gazed, Mr. Grimmersby put both his arms around him and held him fast.

There were many mutual explanations in the next few days that followed; words were spoken that sweetened the past and brightened the present. And in the happy future never again would the old man go unloving or unloved. The stately old halls would ring with the music of a child's laughter; the beautiful lady would live in the big house.

A few years later Richard was taken downstairs, and, lying on a couch in the library, he watched for the coming of his beloved doctor. The thin face looked paler than ever against the crimson cushions. The poor little broken-arm lay helpless on his breast. Mr. Grimmersby, sitting by the fire, watched him silently; the tears sprang to his eyes as he gazed.

For the last week the weather had been moderating. The water dripped from the fast disappearing icicles; little patches of green showed through the snow; the sun was shining brightly. Richard was delighted.

"It is thawing outside, grandpa!" he cried joyously.

"It is thawing inside, thank God!" said the old man.

The good doctor came bustling through the hall. "Everything is melting to-day," he exclaimed, cheerily. "It's a genuine January thaw."—Ledger Monthly.

 Home and Abroad.

THE NEWS CONDENSED

A Review of What Has Transpired
 of Public Interest.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—Peter In-slip, a farm hand in the employ of William Honsif, of Franklin, lies in a serious condition as a result of an encounter with yellow jackets. He was removing a pile of brushwood from a path across a lot when his foot slipped, and as he fell his hand crushed their nest. They stung him to unconsciousness.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 26.—The employes at Cramps' Ship-Building Yards have decided to present to the firm a remonstrance against the recent discharges in various departments. The remonstrance will be presented to the company on Monday, and if a satisfactory reply is not received immediately a strike will follow on Tuesday.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 26.—The "Oregonian" says that while reports of damage to the wheat crop have been exaggerated, it is now estimated that fully 25 per cent. of the wheat of the Willamette Valley has been rendered unmarketable by the wet weather.
 Reliable reports indicate that the damage in the Columbia Basin is also very heavy.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 26.—News has reached here that H. Walter Webb, vice president of the New York Central Railroad and a brother of Dr. W.
 Seward Webb, is critically ill at H.
 McK. Twombly's camp, on Upper Stregis Lake. The dispatch states that
 M. Webb is suffering from a complication of diseases, and the gravest fears are entertained for his recovery.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 26.—A Big Consolidated motorman and conductor were threatened with violence by an angry mob on Broadway. The police had to charge the crowd repeatedly to save them. The Broadway car was almost downtown when, running at a rapid rate, it struck a spring wagon, throwing the four occupants onto the pavement, injuring them badly.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 26.—The Manomet House here was destroyed by fire. The guests had difficulty in escaping from the burning building and were obliged in many cases to crawl on their hands and knees through corridors filled with flames and smoke to a place of safety. Very little of the effects of the hotel or of the guests was saved.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 26.—A leader in fashionable society has been ordered by police court to keep away from the big department stores downtown.
 That is the condition on which she is out of jail. She is Mrs. Annie Meyers, who was a member of the Women's Board of Managers of the World's Fair. She was found guilty of shoplifting and fined $50.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—Mrs.
 Phoebe Hearst denies the statement sent out from Deadwood, S. D., to the effect that she intended to sell her interests in the famous Homestake mine.

London, Aug. 28.—The British bark Simla, Capt. Huestis, from Hong Kong, May 2, and Cebu July 22, for Port Angeles, has returned to Hong Kong damaged in a gale. She was dismantled and her deck was started.

London, Aug. 28.—A Reuter despatch from Labuan, an island near British North Borneo, says that according to reliable advices from Maulla the natives have murdered the crew of the steamer Saturnus, which was burned
 by the Filipinos near San Fernando on Aug. 2.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—The transport St.
 Paul has sailed for Manila with 750 men of the Third Cavalry. General Shafter disregarded a protest of the cavalry officers that the transport was not large enough to accommodate 750 men, the number assigned to her.

Albany, Aug. 28.—Application has been made by the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, to the State Railroad Commission, for permission to issue $2,500,000 worth of second mortgage bonds. The application, not conforming to the rules and regulations of the Board, action was postponed.

New Milford, Conn., Aug. 28.—Because of a refusal to give him money with which to go to New York, Edward Trenkaus shot and killed his brother, Karl, and the latter's wife, and then, after a vain attempt to add the children to the list, put a bullet through his own skull. He is also dead.

Scranton, Penn., Aug. 28.—Chief Arthur, of the Locomotive Engineers, returned here direct from Cincinnati.
 His presence is due to a hitch in the settlement of the grievances of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad engineers, whose conferences with General Superintendent Russell were broken on Tuesday last.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 28.—Sylvester
 J. Sullivan, vice-president of the Maryland Surety Company, whose wife was burned to death in a store in this city early in July as the result of stepping on a match, was struck by a locomotive on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at the Netherwood Station. His left arm was broken and he also sustained serious internal injuries.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 28.—The striking miners at Blairsville, who played hide and seek with the Sheriff's deputy and prevented him from serving the injunction writs granted by Judge White, have leased a strip of land near the main opening of the mine. The strip owned by a woman "sympathizer."
 The men now defy the injunction, and they stand on their own ground.

The leased property runs so near the mine entrance that the strikers can stand on it and block the way of the two hundred men who have been employed by Superintendent Maher to take their places. The mine operators have repeatedly offered the men the union rate of wages, but the strikers demand that the union be recognized and this the operators say they will never do.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The residence of James C. Brush, at No. 262 Liberty street, this city, was entered and robbed of diamonds, other jewelry and money to the value of over $1,000.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Reports are received from the public schools in Manila. They show that one hour a day is devoted to the study of English. All the American holidays have been added to those of the Filipinos and the children have frequent recesses from study.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 26.—Not a single clue has been found to indicate who is the murderer of little Johnnie Wring, who was found dying in a wooded hollow off Chestnut street.
 Practically all the detectives in the city, assisted by many reporters, have been working ceaselessly on the case for twenty-four hours, yet not one ray of light has been shed upon the mystery.

Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 26.—A railway accident occurred here. An entire passenger train fell into the River Mapocha, which runs through the city, and many lives were lost. Although the tremendous storms that have been raging for a fortnight throughout Chili continue, there has been some abatement. Advices from various points indicate widespread distress and misery.
 Valparaiso and other cities have suffered severely.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—The negro who shot and killed William Lawler, white, an engineer employed at the new tunnel at Willock Station on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, has not been captured. The murderer is supposed to be Jesse Reed, of whom the county authorities and the police of Wheeling, Pittsburg, Connellsville and other towns have a good description.

Grinnell, Iowa, Aug. 28.—Five hundred men are under arms ten miles south of this place in the timber of the Iowa River Valley surrounding two unknown tramps, who killed the two brakemen at Marshalltown. The murderers appear to have an unlimited supply of shells and each has three large revolvers.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 28.—Two car loads of zinc ore have shipped to Norfolk, Va., from here for exportation to Europe, and two more car loads will follow in a day or two. The ore is to be shipped to Antwerp smelters.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 29.—The schooner
 Frank W. McCullough of Norfolk is reported to be off Cape Henry in distress.
 Her mainsail and gaff are gone and she signaled asking that assistance be sent her at once.

Asheville, R. I., Aug. 29.—The general conference of the Seventh Day Baptists is being held here this week, with a good attendance, those present including representatives of all sections of the United States.

Toledo, O., Aug. 29.—Ex-President
 A. G. Houston of the Maumee Rolling
 Mills has announced the plans for a $2,000,000 rolling mill to be erected at Toledo. The mill is to be independent.
 The capital is to come from the East.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The scene official surveys along the southern coast of Porto Rico show that the coast line is much more in error than had been supposed. Information now at hand discloses the fact that from Ponce to the eastward, chartered at fifty miles, the actual distance is but forty-three miles, necessitating a contraction of the shore line on maps and charts to the extent of seven miles for that stretch alone. If that proportion of error is found to hold good for the whole island its actual area will be very greatly circumscribed by the results of the surveys.

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 29.—While the family of Charles W. Trippe, an inspector in the New York Health Department, were out driving, a New Jersey Southern Railroad train dashed into their two-seated surrey, instantly killing Mr. Trippe's son, 7 years old, and his two sisters-in-law, and injuring seriously Mrs. Trippe, their two-months old baby and the nursemaid. The dead are: Miss Louise Terry, 22 years old, Juanita Terry, sisters of Mrs.
 Trippe; Charles W. Trippe, Jr., 7 years old. The injured are: Louise Farr, nursemaid; Mrs. Charles W. Trippe, and Baby Trippe, two months old.

 We always like to print for particular people. They know

Peculiar Printing

—Did you ever see any? It is queer looking work. Some times it is all blurred and hard to read, or the ink looks fuzzy, or the paper is cheap and thin, or the periods and commas are of different types, or the anastrophe is missing—we print the other kind. Call or write for samples.

THE RAINMAKERS, who in season of drought are much in evidence in the prairie regions of the West, have done wonderful things on occasions and have so surrounded their works with mystery that the popular credulity has been severely taxed. Last season one of the leading railroad companies, the Rock Island, employed a rainmaker, who traveled about in a special car and made rain from Iowa to Texas. Now the secret of the operation by which rain is produced is out. The Rock Island and other wizards employ the following receipt:

Ten fluid ounces of sup. sulphuric acid.
Fifty fluid ounces of water.
Five ounces of zinc.

Renew every hour and stir every 30 minutes day and night until rain comes. The moment rain begins to fall remove jar or rock. In territory west of Kansas use one-third less; at sea level use double the quantity. In Kansas work only on southerly winds, which are the moisture-bearing winds. Begin an experiment, only in a clear sky. One station of the experiment, if successful, will produce a rain thirty to fifty miles wide in diameter. A better and more certain result can be secured by having three or more stations forty or fifty miles apart.

This process is effectual. The mixture left in an open-mouthed jar generates hydrogen gas, which rapidly ascends, creating a shaft thro' which the hot air rushes, creating a storm center and gathering moisture for precipitation. A rainmaker asserts that of 200 experiments made by him 180 were successful.

Aurora Village.

A novel condition is the subject matter of an opinion rendered today by Attorney General Davies. It concerns the village of Aurora, Cayuga county. This village was incorporated by chapter 438 of the laws of 1837, but has never organized as a village under the act or elected village officers. Dr. Albert Leffingwell wrote the secretary of state to learn if the charter was still valid, although the village had never complied with its provisions.

The question was referred to the attorney general, who writes: "The incorporating act has never been repealed. It is believed that the corporation still exists and may now exercise its functions, notwithstanding the fact that they have been suspended for fifty years. The great weight of authority in this country seems to be to the effect that a municipal corporation, having once been created, cannot be dissolved, except by the action of the legislature which created it. But section 327 of the village law now provides for a dissolution by a vote of the inhabitants."

"The procedure for the election of officers will be governed by the provisions of the act of incorporation. Section 340 of the village law provides that a village incorporated upon a special act has all the powers conferred upon a village incorporated under the general law, not inconsistent with the special law. It is suggested that after an election of officers has been had, it would be advisable for the village to reincorporate under the provisions of the village law."

There is evidently a bit of Aurora history in connection with the above, which we copy from the Albany Times-Union, to which Dr. Leffingwell is a stranger, and which runs thus. In 1836 there were in Erie county two postoffices by the name of Aurora, one East Aurora and one West Aurora. Millard Filmore, then a rising young lawyer of that section, started a movement to have East Aurora changed to Aurora, and at the same time to have Aurora, Cayuga county, changed to East Aurora.

As Aurora, Cayuga county, was an old and aristocratic village, and has been the county seat when Auburn was only a cross road settlement, the people inaugurated a movement to head off the proposed change. As stated above a village charter was obtained, then followed an election at which Samuel Mandell was elected President, and Henry Morgan, Joseph Shepherd and John Marsh, the latter a hale and hearty old gentleman of 86, and the only survivor of the board, and now living in this city, were elected trustees. They drove to Auburn where they were sworn into office by the County Clerk, who, Mr. Marsh thinks was Michael S. Myers. The Board of Trustees held meetings until the question of the postoffice was settled when the whole matter was dropped.

East Aurora, Erie county remains East Aurora but West Aurora was later changed to Willink.

Reward of Labor.

It is always the extra work required to produce the best that pays on the farm. In this, however, it is only the rule which holds good everywhere else. The world is full of slipshod, lazy workers—men who do not want to do any work, but who under compulsion do just as little as they can and still pass. Thousands of farmers object to certain crops, because to work on them is very disagreeable. What they want is the crop that is most easily grown. Such crops are always low in price, precisely because of this habit of human nature to seek the easiest jobs, forgetting that precisely because they are easy jobs they are always overcrowded with applicants.

The Spread of Weeds.

Some idea may be formed of the cause of the very rapid spread of weeds by the following from an authority, showing the number of seeds a natural plant will produce: Wild carrot, 1,200; dandelion, 1,500; chickweed, 2,000; cockle, 3,200; campion, 3,425; chess, 4,500; dock, 3,700; ragweed, 4,372; groundsell, 6,500; ox-eye daisy, 9,600; mallow, 16,500; motherwort, 18,000; foxtail, 19,500; sow thistle, 19,000; mustard, 31,000; Canada thistle, 42,000; red poppy, 50,000; burdock, 400,328; purslane, 500,000; lamb's quarters, 825,000.

A Great Paper Mill.

At Niagara Falls they have a paper factory which consumes 150 cords of soft wood a day, which is converted into 120 tons of print paper inside of twelve hours. The wood is chipped or ground and then treated with sulphuric acid and lime, a white pulp resulting. There is then added a certain proportion of rosin and clay, the whole being boiled some seven or eight hours, when it is run off in the usual way, on endless blankets, between steel, steam-heated rollers, and wound ready for the perfecting presses.

5,000,000 Killed.

A million bobolinks killed last year! Four million other birds slaughtered in the same year—and for what? That their distorted and torn little bodies might be flaunted on the headgear of American women! These figures are not guesswork, but the official report of the Audobon Society of Mass. And what does it mean? It means five million voices stilled in nature's grand chorus. Five million flashes of brightness and cheeriness taken from nature's beauty. It means millions of other young lives doomed to death by starvation. In order that the bright-plumage corpse of the murdered mother-bird may be jammed into hideous shapelessness on some heartless woman's hat.

They look up any improvements that would make the village more desirable to live in or property in the village worth more. There should be an improvement society in this village.

A Lucky Runaway.

Mrs. B. W. Hurlbut and son, Walter, who reside in Genoa, were driving down the Jewett hill, west of the village, enroute to visit Miss Hurlbut of Congress street, Saturday forenoon last. When part way down the hill a hold-back strap broke and the wagon striking the horse frightened him into a run. Mrs. Hurlbut reined the steed into the ditch, thinking thus to stop him, and as a result they were both thrown out and Mrs. Hurlbut imprisoned beneath the wagon. The horse, in his violent efforts, broke loose from the wagon and ran on into the village. Reuben Doty of East Venice, who was coming down the hill a few rods in the rear, could not reach them until the horse had broken loose. He brought Mrs. Hurlbut and son to town and, miraculously, neither was injured, with the exception of a few bruises. Mrs. Hurlbut was considerably unstrung, however, by the accident. A jar of fine butter went to grief in the roadway, and the usefulness of the best part of four dozen of eggs was also wasted, then and there. The horse was not injured, but the wagon will go into dry dock for numerous repairs.—Moravia Register.

Peck Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Peck family was held at the residence of Joseph Kratzer, Saturday, Aug. 26. There were 130 present, relatives and neighbors. Orleans, Ithaca, Auburn and Locke were well represented. A sumptuous repast was served between 1 and 2 o'clock, then we were very nicely entertained with music by several present. Miss Elma Mastin also rendered several selections on her banjo, which were a treat. There was one particular feature of the occasion that was entirely new, "Old Glory" waved on high. The reunion will be held next year at Mrs. Fanny Marshall's the last Saturday in Aug. ONE WHO WAS THERE.

The Profits of Advertising.

The profits of advertising are not direct, as the returns from a sale. Nevertheless, when the proper medium for bringing an advertisement before the public is selected the profits are usually immediate, although, of course, they come in a round-about manner. If at times they seem delayed it is because the merchant's announcement did not reach the people whose patronage he seeks or because there is no pressing demand for the special line of wares which he may have for sale. In either case the profit is sure to come eventually; for the purpose of advertising is to awaken interest in the tradesman's goods, and once having aroused that interest the wary merchant will perceive the necessity of sustaining it—a result sure to be attained by a persistent use of a great newspaper's advertising columns.

INDEPENDENCE FOR CUBA.

President to Issue a Proclamation as a First Step to That End.

ELECTIONS TO BE HELD.

Cubans Will Be Given an Opportunity to Demonstrate Ability to Govern Themselves.

United States Troops to Be Withdrawn as Fast as Local Authorities Perfect Their Scheme of Government—All Cuban Newspapers Will Publish Proclamation.

Washington, Aug. 29.—President McKinley has signed a proclamation which is to be promulgated in Cuba soon. The proclamation is to the effect that the census ordered for Cuba is to be the beginning of the movement looking toward the establishment of an independent government for that island. When the census, the proclamation says, has been completed, arrangements will be made by the United States Government for the holding of local elections in the various provinces throughout the island with the view of establishing civil governments, thus giving an opportunity to the Cubans to demonstrate their ability to conduct in their own way the affairs of the island. As fast as the local authorities perfect their scheme of government, the United States troops will be withdrawn. The proclamation, it is said, will be printed in all the newspapers in Cuba. Its reported object is to contradict the stories circulated in the island that the United States Government does not intend to carry out the will of Congress and give independence to the Cubans. The proclamation will be the first official act on the part of the Administration to give assurance to the Cubans that the present military form of government is not to continue longer than is absolutely necessary. It is said at the War Department that the proclamation can not be given out before it is published in Cuba.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Arrangements for the first parcels post convention between the United States and any country in Europe were made, when Postmaster General Smith and the special German envoy, Mr. M. von Schwarzenstein, signed an agreement between the United States and Germany. It will go into operation on October 1, and will inaugurate a postal service by means of which articles of merchandise may be exchanged by mail between the two countries, provided the packages do not exceed 11 pounds in weight. The postage rate from the United States is fixed at 12 cents for each pound or fraction of a pound. The rate in Germany on parcels for the United States is fixed at 2 marks and 40 pfennigs per parcel, whatever its weight, but a reduced rate of 1 mark and 60 pfennigs may be adopted for small parcels.

Nearly 58 Years Old!

It's a long life, but devotion to the true interests and prosperity of the American People has won for it new friends as the years rolled by and the original members of their family passed to their reward, and these admirers are loyal and steadfast to-day, with their faith in its teachings, and confidence in the information which it brings to their homes and firesides.

As a natural consequence it enjoys in its old age all the vitality and vigor of its youth, strengthened and ripened by the experiences of over half a century. It has lived on its merits, and on the cordial support of progressive Americans.

It is the New York Weekly Tribune, acknowledged the country over as the leading National Family Newspaper. Recognizing its value to those who desire all the news of the State and Nation, the publishers of THE GENOA TRIBUNE (your own favorite home paper) have entered into an alliance with the New York Weekly Tribune which enables them to furnish both papers at the trifling cost of $1.25 per year.

Every farmer and every villager owes to himself, to his family and to the community in which he lives a cordial support of his local newspaper, as it works constantly and untiringly for his interests in every way, brings to his home all the news and happening of his neighborhood, the doings of his friends, the condition and prospects for different crops, the prices in home markets, and, in fact, a weekly visitor which should be found in every wide-awake, progressive family.

Just think of it! Both of these papers for only $1.25 a year. Send all subscriptions to THE TRIBUNE, Genoa, N. Y.

HE AIDS CAPTAIN DREYFUS

Capt. Feystaetter Places Testimony of Maurel and Mercier in a Bad Light.

HE CAUSES EXCITEMENT.

Former Secretary of War Meets Maurel in Courtyard and Reproaches Him Bitterly.

Labor! Once More Asks for Du Paty de Clam—His Request Denied by the Court—Immense Sensation is Created—Maurel Curses and Denounces Judicial Formalities.

Rennes, Aug. 29.—The unexpectedly violent incident at the Dreyfus trial in which Gen. Mercier and Col. Maurel were given the lie by Capt. Freystaetter does not possess the importance that one might be disposed to attach to it. However great may have been the irregularities of the first trial they will change nothing for the present court-martial.

It is evident that Col. Maurel is a weak man and seems rather overcautious than willfully wicked. He made a great mistake, when, desiring to prove to the Court that the communication was willfully wicked. He made no influence on the Judges, he mentioned that he had only read one document.

Half the truth is worse than a complete lie. Col. Maurel found to his cost when Capt. Freystaetter, a splendid soldier and another of Dreyfus's judges of 1894, swore that all the documents were communicated to the Court.

Col. Maurel's jesuitical explanation was that he had only read one document himself. He did not say that others had not read more.

His explanation raised a show of wrath in the audience. For once the audience was not anti-Dreyfus.

The tactics of the Headquarters Staff by which it obtained the conviction in 1894 are apparently disgusting to the majority of the people present. Col. Maurel, who could not survive the initial sin, made a confession. He had been led on dangerous ground by Maitre Labori, and only made matters worse in the eyes of his superiors.

After the sitting Gen. Mercier met Col. Maurel in the courtyard and reproached him bitterly for having allowed himself to be drawn out by Labori's persuasion. Col. Maurel complained of and cursed the judicial formalities and said he had found himself drawn out before he knew where he was.

Capt. Freystaetter's declaration concerning the biographical notes on Dreyfus showing treachery at the Polytechnic School, the military school, and at the Headquarters Staff was a feature in the case which brought a new light to everything. The revelation created a bad impression, showing the determination of the General Staff to obtain a conviction more deliberate than had been imagined.

The sensation in the court was extreme when Gen. Mercier came to the rescue of the Colonel by creating a diversion in saying that he had caught Capt. Freystaetter in a "flagrant delicto" of lying.

But for the difference of ages a duel could not be avoided. Capt. Freystaetter glared at Mercier.

Maitre Labori's intervention in demanding an independent medical examination of Du Paty de Clam seemed severe to the judges, but there is supreme interest in having his evidence now while all the Generals are at loggerheads concerning the contents of the secret papers communicated in 1894. He alone can settle this definitely.

When the Court had refused the request Maitre Labori's complaint that he had to deal only with the dead or dying created an immense sensation. Labori exclaimed: "Col. Sandherr is dead. Henry is dead. Du Paty is unable to come." Truly this affair is made up of cemetery corpses as well as reputations.

May Cause a Revolution.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—If Dreyfus is condemned by the court-martial at Rennes the Socialists of Paris, it is averred, will start a revolution in that city. There is also a threat that the Lycees at Rennes will be blown up by Italian anarchists. The latter threat has greatly alarmed the authorities at Rennes.

Photographs which Bertillon used recently to prove Dreyfus the writer of the bordereau turn out to have been touched to make them fit Bertillon's theories. Labori will demand that the originals be produced so that he can show the truth of this.

Can't do Business in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—William H. Hart, Auditor of the State refused to issue a license to the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York to do business in Indiana, and an investigation is now pending into its condition. The Auditor bases his refusal upon information to the effect that the surplus fund of the association has been greatly diminished and been constantly decreasing for a year.

Cars Wrecked in Collision.

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 28.—Trains on the Jersey Central Railroad, in both directions, were blocked for hours by a freight wreck at High Bridge. An empty coal train broke in two on a down grade, the detached portion broke a second time, and the parts came together again on the bridge just as a loaded coal train was passing. Thirty-seven cars were piled up in a tangled mass, but no one was hurt.

To Prosecute Paris Newspapers.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The authorities have decided to prosecute all the newspapers which have recently incited their readers to rioting. Sebastian W. Faure, editor of the Journal du Peuple, who was responsible for the Anarchist appeal that led to last Sunday's rioting, will be prosecuted for incitements to illegal assembly and provoking street disorders.

GAVE SOLDIERS THE KEYS

Omaha Does Herself Proud in Welcoming the 10th Pennsylvania.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 28.—The soldiers of the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment received an enthusiastic ovation when their trains arrived in the city. As the trains rolled into the station the whole section devoted to railroad service, including the viaducts and tops of houses in the vicinity, was black with cheering thousands. Flags were everywhere in evidence, and thousands of whistles and bells broke forth as the trains came to a standstill. For an hour this bedlam of sounds continued.

Committee and city officials and 100 members of the Pennsylvania Club, with their ladies, acted as the Reception Committee. As the soldiers stepped to the platform they were escorted to informal lunches spread in every available place. Mayor Morris made a speech and presented to the regiment through Lieut. Col. Barnett the keys of the city, inscribed "Welcome Pennsylvania Volunteers. When in trouble call up Telephone 55." The keys were great gilded affairs tied with the National colors.

Each soldier was presented with buttonhole photos of the companies and souvenirs of the programme which was planned for their reception.

Pittsburg Welcomes the Soldiers.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—The Tenth Pennsylvania was given an enthusiastic greeting when the boys who have been so long and so far away from home in the service of the United States in the Philippines arrived here to-day.

The regiment was taken off the trains this morning at New Brighton, Ohio. They marched to the park and reviewed the new flagpole. Governor Roosevelt gave medals to them, bearing a likeness of their major, Cuthbertson, after which they took breakfast and proceeded to Pittsburg, where an elaborate program was prepared for their welcome. The regiment was met at Allegheny City, and headed by President McKinley and the Governors of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio and West Virginia, marched to Shenley Park, where the formal exercises of welcoming the veterans were held.

None of the soldiers was sick, and all were delighted at getting back to their native state.

Thousands of people cheered themselves hoarse as the soldiers marched through the streets. All business houses, private residences and public buildings are lavishly decorated and the display of national colors is the grandest ever seen here.

Big Concerns Incorporated.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 28.—The Interstate Oil Company, with an authorized capital of $12,000,000, has been incorporated here to operate oil wells. The incorporators are Thomas S. Moffit, J. L. Westcott and Rodney Wells, all of Camden, N. J. The Composite Fibre and Manufacturing Company, capital $1,000,000, has also been incorporated to manufacture a composite of rubber, leather and stone for interior decorations.

To Leave Pennsylvania Railroad.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—It is announced that General Agent William J. Latta of the Pennsylvania Railroad, one of the most widely known officials of that corporation has presented his resignation to Vice-President Pugh and will retire from the employ of the company on Sept. 15. Mr. Latta declines to either confirm or deny the report, but other officers of the company give the impression that the story is true.

Brockton Labor Unions Suspended.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—President Tobin of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union has issued a proclamation revoking the charters of the eight unions which refused to recognize the constitution adopted at the recent convention held in Rochester. The document suspends all of the Brockton unions except that of the laggers.

DISCARD THE CORSET

PHYSICAL CULTURE MINDS ARE STILL WRESTLING WITH THE PROBLEM.

Does the Average Woman Think More of Her Good Looks Than Her Comfort?—Men Cry Out Against the Waist-Squeezing Implements.

Recently the legislative and physical culture minds again began to wrestle with the vexed question of the corset. This article of woman's dress has been a bone of contention for many years but one which no amount of legislation or lecturing has ever been able to dislodge from its pinnacle of popularity. Men cry out against it, and yet men unwittingly are the most important raison d'être of its existence and long lease of life. It is amusing to hear men inveigh against the wearing of corsets and in the very next breath criticize some passing woman, a dress reform advocate perhaps, with, "What a guy that woman looks like!" Poot deluded creature, she has discarded corsets and foolishly imagines she resembles the perfect form of the Venus de Milo.

Of course, tight lacing is to be cried down by every man or woman of any degree of common sense; but the American woman of to-day is not given to tight lacing. The girl of the period, in her enthusiasm for athletic sports, has long since discarded the preconceived notion of beauty of form followed so closely by her mother and grandmother.

A wasp waist is not an essential to a beautiful form to-day, though the fashion magazines extol the tall, slender, small jointed woman. Still a girl with a broad expanse of shoulders, a moderately small waist and fair sized hips is more admired than her tightly laced sister.

Men cry out against corsets. If they really meant what they said the women would have given them up long ago. Women dress to please the men they care for. Every man has a horror for a "feather-bed-tied-in-the-middle" woman, and what woman with the slightest tendency to embonpoint is going to run the risk of shocking some man she cares for by courting his derision of her figure without her stays?

If the corset question involves the question of the good of the race, that does not hold good. The race is not deteriorating as a race, though there are here and there "terrible examples" to be found, but these "terrible examples" have always existed, even before corsets were worn.

Whether the average woman thinks more of her good looks than her comfort is something that must be decided by each individual woman for herself. To many women the absence of a corset would mean personal discomfort; to others it would make no difference at all. Had we never worn corsets we might have been better off, but until some good substitute for the obnoxious garment is invented the corset appears to be strong enough to hold its own.

If some inventive genius could fashion a waist which, without the awful rigidity of corsets; would answer the same purpose; many women would adopt it willingly and put an end to the doctor's warnings, the physical culturist's criticisms, and ease the troubled minds of those legislators who claim to have the good of the race at heart.

Women will admit that the corset is suicidal, that it is an abomination, an abortion of nature's most beautiful handiwork, the "female form divine." If we give them up, what are you going to give us in return? What kind of a garment have you to offer us which will give us the support, the figure, which has pleased for so many years, and what will you do for us in return?

A Substitute for the Corset.

A waist without bones, absolutely comfortable, artistic and warranted to develop the figure and make it more beautiful in shape without injuring. It is something long desired and found at last.

It is used by the Parsée girls, and is worn by them from childhood. It is made of well-woven silk, silk and wool, or wool and cotton, and the upper part is cut on the bias in one piece. A circle is cut over each breast, and into this are set five gorges, sewed together in the form of a bowl. A very wide band cut on the length of the goods is sewed to the lower edge of the bodice. The waist laces up the back and buttons up the front. It is laced snugly, but is not tight, and the shoulder bands keep it in place. In this way there is absolutely no pressure on the breast, which is perfectly supported, and develops as it was intended to. The waists is worn next to the skin, put on even before the skirt.

To elope with one's caddis is ever so much more de siècle than to run away with the coachman.

A man may declare that he never notices a woman's gowns, but he is very quick to tell her if it does not look as he thinks it should.

Single women generally read the marriage notices with special interest, while the wedded ones, as a rule, are more interested in the deaths.

A GLORIOUS FOURTH.

Little Adelbert arose at four And crept down-stairs to the big front door.

And down the walk to the garden gate, And there he started to celebrate.

With hursting cracker and roaring gun He wakened the neighbors, every one;

He seized the cat out of all her sense, And blew the slats off the picket fence

And came to breakfast with one black eye, And said, "Hooray, for the Fourth of July!"

He ate with hurry and frantic haste, For never a minute had he to waste; Then out again to the fray he sprang

And turned things loose with a mighty "bang!" He fizzed and spluttered and boomed

And crashed, While dishes rattled and windows smashed; And when, all grimy and sore and lame,

Tom and tumbled, to lunch he came, For his swollen lips was the joyous cry:

"Ain't I glad it's the Fourth of July!" All that day, till the twilight's close,

The powder-smoke from the garden rose; All day long, in the heat and dust,

Little Adelbert "banged" and "bust," Till just as the shadows began to creep,

He blew himself in a senseless heap. —Life.

WHY WE ALTER AND REBUILD THIS STORE! A SMALL BUSINESS Selling goods at all you can get for them, grumbling all the while at high rent, business and living expenses.

A LARGE BUSINESS Selling goods cheap at a small reasonable profit because the large business enables buying in larger quantities, and consequently buying cheaper.

The larger business costs so little more than the small, that the entire expense is reduced many percentages, the living expenses are important items to everyone and cost no more when a large business is being done than small, consequently merchants can sell a large lot of goods at a smaller advance more profitably than a small lot at a large profit.

MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME—YOU ARE WELCOME. We want your good will, and if honorable business methods will do it, we'll have your trade and shall hold it.

Thanking the Public for their liberal patronage of the past Fifteen years. Respectfully, BENJAMIN RICH.
