Paragraphs of the Week's Happenings
Clipped from the Tribune's Exchanges.

Eruxton's new cheese factory opened last week and is getting a large patronage.

A Pennsylvania man has in his possession a bond printed in 1764 by Benjamin Franklin.

Editor Bird of Sidney has sold 350 copies of his book, "Looking Forward," in that village alone.

Many predictions are being made in Herkimer county that hay will command $20 a ton before spring.

The Chenango county fair netted about $500 this year, the first time it has more than paid expenses in several seasons.

A western editor observes that it is difficult to build a church of the right size. Every one he ever saw was too small for weddings and too large for prayer-meetings.

Eli Perkins' summer cottage at Essen was damaged $25 by a fire caused by a defective chimney Saturday. Eli "got there" with a pail of water and saved his home.

Gov. Pingree of Michigan seems to utter severe and cutting things about the newspapers, and yet when the papers cease to pay attention to the political freaks Mr. Pingree will quickly sink into oblivion.

E. D. Baker, the Norwich crank, who has been the main opposition to the paving of East Main street in that village, has been sued for defamation of character to the extent of $100,000 by the members of the village board.

While Henry Phillips of Syracuse was walking along the cinder path at Addison Sunday morning, a bundle of papers thrown from the New York newspaper train struck him, breaking his neck and fracturing his skull.

A well-known farm on the outskirts of Ithaca was permitted to grow weeds this year, and not a stalk was turned nor a thing done to cultivate the land. The owner has been in the penitentiary for the last three months.

Cyrus Norwood, who was a soldier in the First Wisconsin cavalry, was taken to the county almshouse recently by Fay Townley from Lansing. The soldiers say that this is not right and that they will take him out of the poorhouse and send him to the Soldiers' Home at Bath.

The price of beef, owing to the recent, went up a quarter of a cent over the top-notch price in New York last Friday. This supplementary band-bagging of the poor people's purse puts this week into the beef feast an extra profit of $23,000 in New York and New Jersey alone.

Lincoln's famous "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe, traveling in their own special car, carrying the finest scenery and the most perfect and elegant equipment of any company on the road, will appear at the Moravia Opera House Saturday evening, Oct. 1, for the benefit of the Athletic Association.

Leake McHenry, publisher of the Chenango Times, was selected by the Hon. B. H. Henry of Jackson, Miss., recently elected president of the National Editorial Association, as one of the fraternal delegates to represent the association at the annual meeting of the National Typothete, held at New Haven, Conn., Sept. 12 to 15.

Wednesday we had an interesting talk with a traveling man, who has spent five years in Cuba, three of those in the insurgent army, where he was five times wounded. He said he had traveled in the Eastern, Central and Southern states, and never had seen such a "garden spot" for agriculture and fruit, as we have in the lake country of New York. He thinks it the best section he ever saw, and was delighted with the scenery.—Farmer Review.

West Winfield is taking steps toward the organization of a hose company and the purchase of hose for fire protection.

Ira E. Smith is rebuilding his furniture store, burned at DeRuyter some time ago, and will also put up a fine residence on the same lot.

The Dryden fair was well patronized by the people of this vicinity last week. The unfavorable weather, however, kept many from attending.

According to the annual report of Col. H. Clay Evans, the commissioner of pensions, Hiram Cronk of North Western is the only surviving pensioned soldier of the war of 1812. He is 99 years old.

The Madrid court-martial has found Admiral Montojo guilty of having been whipped by Dewey. We fear that any other Spanish Admiral if subjected to the same temptation would have been guilty of the same offense.

Miss Minerva Dwight of Cincinnati, aged 89 years, took the first ride of her life on the cars, recently when she took a trip to Cortland as a plaintiff in a lawsuit. Only twice before in her existence has she even seen a railroad car.

A gentleman and lady riding wheels near Verona one day recently collided and were both rendered unconscious. They were riding, after dark and neither saw the other, but was entirely unaware of the collision until consciousness had been regained.

Printers are confronted with a big advance in the price of paper. The sharpness of the increase will not last long, probably, since opposition to the trusts is sure to materialize. But old-time prices are not likely to return.

The milk station at Solon has closed, the farmers having sold their milk to Charles Ellis, who runs a factory in the western part of the town, at 90 cents per can. They received 74 cents at the station up to Sept. 11 and were offered 80 cents thereafter.

It is claimed, says the DeRuyter Gleaner, that Frank Hartwell, the Smyrna thief, is dead. He was pursued so closely by the officers on the American side of the Niagara river that he finally jumped in and went over the falls. The body was recovered and brought home for interment.

A resident of Summerhill tells us his town is the banner town of Cayuga county. It boasts of the birthplace of a president of the United States, of no intoxicants being sold over a bar in thirty-seven years, no inebriate pauper to support, and the least number of mortgaged pieces of real estate.

A Groton young man became so interested in talking baseball on the train, coming from the Dryden fair, Tuesday evening, that he rode right by the home plate and was nearly to Locke when the conversation ended. He stopped off there and whether the fast freight or a livery took him back to the bosom of his family we do not know. He was in the bank in the morning anyway.

The Masonic fraternity in this state is in a flourishing condition. There are 98,100 members distributed among 754 lodges. Cash in reserve and on hand $332,410.23. Add to this comfortable sum the Masonic Home of Utica and the Masonic Temple in New York, valued together at $2,200,000, and it can readily be seen that the sun shines on Masonry in the Empire state.

On Dec. 14 the people of the United States will commemorate the last historic centennial of the nineteenth century. It will be 100 years on that day since the death of George Washington. Already arrangements are completed for the centennial services at the tomb of the Father of his Country, at Mount Vernon. A dignified and impressive commemoration will then be held under the auspices of the Masonic order, of which he was an honored member.

dare say we can find a clergyman on the other side of the mountains." So toward the mountains they made their way, driving the chestnut at a rapid gait. At first the road afforded an excellent opportunity for the horse to display his good qualities, but as they gradually drew nearer to the mountains it became more and more rugged and Polly placed her lantern close to the paper, hilly, obliging them to slacken speed. On reaching the foot of the range, it deteriorated into a mere trail, sometimes passing through dense thickets, and again following the course of raging torrents, yet all the while pursuing a westerly direction toward the frontier settlements on the Delaware.

At last they reached the summit of a steep precipice that overlooked the valley they had recently left. Here Roblin drew rein to take a survey of his surroundings.

Below him stretched the dim plain, around and above, an impenetrable forest, humming with a multitude of insect voices, and the harsh, wailing cries of creatures of the night.

"Oh, tell me, Edward, have we lost our way?" asked Polly in terrified tones.

"I'm afraid we have, my dear," he replied, pressing her little hand to reassure her.

"Oh, what will become of us!" she exclaimed, beginning to cry. "These mountains are filled with all kinds of wild beasts, and we'll certainly be devoured before morning."

At that instant a stone came tumbling down the rocky trail.

It was a mere pebble, but to Polly's frightened ears the sound of its fall was like the crash of an avalanche. With a cry of terror she glanced quickly into the darkness ahead, fully expecting to see a bear or a catamount emerge from the gloom, but she could distinguish nothing.

"Did you hear that, Edward?" she whispered fearfully.

He motioned her to keep silent and listen.

Not a sound broke the stillness of the solitude.

It seemed that even the buzzing insects with which the forest abounded were conscious of the approach of an enemy. They were beginning to breathe more freely when they heard a rustling noise in the bushes to their right. It approached nearer and nearer, and presently a shadowy figure pushed out of the thicket and stood motionless in the middle of the trail.

It was a man.

Scarcely had they recovered from their surprise at his sudden appearance when he covered them with the long barrel of a rifle and cried out in a tone of command:

"Surrender!"

CHAPTER IV.

IN WHICH A NOTORIOUS CHARACTER IS INTRODUCED.

Fully believing the fellow to be one of a party of pursuers sent to recapture him, Edward Roblin was overcome by despair. If he had been alone, he would not have hesitated to take a desperate chance of escape by attempting to ride him down, but Polly's presence rendered such a course impossible. He would willingly have risked his own life, but felt that he had no right to endanger hers. So throwing the reins upon the horse's back and raising his arms above his head to show that he was unarmed he called out to the man:

"Don't shoot! I'll give up!"

At this the stranger lowered his rifle, and advancing to the side of the chaise said gruffly:

"Ye've kept me waiting a long time for this chance, Joe Westbrook, but I've got ye at last."

Roblin looked down at him bewilderedly.

"Come!" continued the speaker in peremptory tones. "Out with ye! I've had my eye on that chestnut nag of yer'n for a long time, and now I mean to take it."

"It's pretty hard on me, my friend," he said bitterly, "to be dragged back to the Goshen jail after getting so far away from it. However, if you treat this poor girl kindly, I'll not complain."

The man turned toward him in astonishment.

"Why, blarst my eyes!" he exclaimed. "Ye're not Joe Westbrook after all."

"I never claimed to be," answered the young man.

"Then who be ye?"

"A poor fellow whom you would assist, if you had a heart," Polly interposed warmly.

The man turned to her with an amused chuckle.

"And what may pretty Polly Westbrook be doing up here in the mountains along with a stranger and her father's nag?" he asked gayly.

The girl made no answer.

"Oh, I reckon I understand yer case, my gal," he continued. "Ye're running away with this lad to git married. Why it's quite romantic, I declare!"

While speaking he looked from one to the other with an amused, patronizing air, and then went on:

"Well, Claudius Smith is not the kind of man to part true lovers, specially when their courting is objectionable to a mortal enemy."

Claudius Smith!

On hearing this name pronounced the lovers exchanged terrified glances, for it was that of a notorious bandit chieftain, who, espousing the British cause at the outbreak of the Revolution, had devastated the entire Shawangunk region with his band of robbers ever since. Realizing that the surest way of engaging the sympathies of such a man was to acknowledge himself an outlaw, Roblin no longer hesitated to reveal the truth.

"If you are indeed the renowned leader, Claudius Smith," he said, "I am sure you will befriend me. My name is Edward Roblin, and I have just escaped from the Goshen jail, where I have been confined for many long months on a false accusation. With the assistance of this honest girl," he continued, with a wave of the hand toward Polly, "I succeeded in making my escape tonight. We are on our way to get married, Mr. Smith, and I trust you will not detain us longer."

During this little speech the face of the Tory chieftain expressed amazement, admiration and satisfaction by turns, and when Roblin had finished he grasped him warmly by the hand.

"Ye're a lad after my own heart, sir!" he exclaimed warmly. "A youngster who has the pluck not only to break jail, but to make off with his jailer's darter commands my respect. I'll not only help ye to marry yer sweetheart, my lad, but I'll protect ye from the law as well."

Roblin thanked him fervently, and was on the point of assisting Polly into the chaise again when the Tory interposed.

"Not so fast, my lad," he said, laying a hand on his shoulder. "Ye must remember that ye're now an outlaw and not safe away from my protection. If I let ye drive off now, ye'll certainly be captured, for Joe Westbrook will raise the country round to bring back his runaway darter. So ye'd better join my band, lad, and live secure in the mountains."

Roblin hesitated. He fully realized the truth of the outlaw's words and appreciated the dangers that threatened him. As an escaped prisoner he knew that he must henceforth lead the life of a fugitive—notwithstanding that he was innocent of crime. As circumstances had made him an outlaw why not accept his fate? On the other hand, consideration for Polly urged him to pursue a different course. So after a brief period of reflection he replied to the bandit in these words:

"I thank you for your offer, Mr. Smith, but I am bound in honor to marry this girl; therefore I must refuse it and trust to my own resources."

Without paying the slightest regard to his refusal the Tory turned to the girl, saying:

"If ye love this young spark, Polly Westbrook, ye'll urge him to do as I say. Remain here with me, and I'll see that ye're married by a parson. Then ye can live here without fear of having yer husband run down by the constables and landed back in jail. I've more than one cozy retreat in these mountains where ye can set up housekeeping and live most romantically together. What say ye?"

Fear for her lover's safety influenced Polly to accept his advice.

"I think we had better remain here, Edward, and accept Mr. Smith's kind offer," she said. "I know my father well, and we could hardly hope to escape him."

"What! You consent to become the bride of an outlaw?" he asked.

"Rather than have you taken from me and put back in the dreadful jail," was the reply.

The truth was that the idea of living a wild, lawless life in the mountains had appealed strongly to the imagination of the romantic girl from the first. To become the wife of a bandit seemed to her a fitting climax to her clandestine courtship and elopement, and the fact that this destiny was forced upon her was sufficient to allay all her scruples. As to Roblin he argued that he had no choice in the matter. He must either become a bandit or risk capture, separation from his sweetheart and imprisonment. The law had oppressed him, and now he would bid it defiance.

"I will join your band, Captain Smith," he said after a pause. "Now conduct us to a place where we can rest without fear of interruption."

The bandit appeared to be greatly pleased at this decision, and immediately started up the trail.

"Take the nag by the bridle and follow me," he said.

The young man obeyed, and they all three began clambering up the rough ascent, the bandit leading the way. After proceeding about half a mile, they arrived at a little clearing, where their conductor bade Roblin unharness the horse, as they were now about to enter the woods. When this was done, he led them into a thicket to the right and pushed ahead so rapidly that they found it exceedingly difficult to keep up with him.

At last they came to a part of the forest where the scenery was chaotic. Huge fragments of rock lay tumbled together on all sides—where they had evidently been piled by some tremendous convulsion of nature—the whole forming an impregnable stronghold in which a dozen men might bid defiance to a thousand.

"I've a snug little retreat up yonder," said the bandit, pointing upward to the rocks. "Ye'll be as safe there as birds on a nest."

With these words he conducted them by way of a winding, dizzy ascent to a vast platform of stone, and pushing aside a screen of brambles revealed the entrance to a cavern. As it was by this time broad daylight they could see that the interior had been rendered quite comfortable. The floor was covered with the furs of wild animals, deerskins were stretched on the walls, and articles of furniture, evidently procured by the bandit from some farmhouse he had pillaged, added a homelike appearance to the place.

"Enter and make yourselves at home," he said cheerily, "while I go off to fetch ye a parson. Then I'll summon the entire band to the wedding, and we'll have a famous merrymaking."

Roblin led Polly into the cavern, while the bandit turned to go upon his mission. As the latter had a considerable journey to perform he pressed Joe Westbrook's horse into his service and disappeared in the direction of the trail. When the last sounds of his departure had died away in the distance, Roblin turned to Polly and exclaimed in tones of consternation:

"Alas, I am undone! Undone!"

"Undone, Edward? What do you mean?"

"That I have joined fortunes with the enemies of my country. Oh, why did I not think of that before?"

In truth his mind had been so bewildered by his sudden encounter with the outlaw and his eagerness to escape pursuit had been so great that it was not until he had reached a place of safety that he became calm enough to realize the significance of his act. That he, a professed patriot, should have consented to join a band of Tory outlaws appeared to him now as the basest treason. But there was a chance yet for him to escape from the abhorrent situation, and he resolved to avail himself of it.

"Come, Polly!" he cried, taking her by the hand and starting toward the entrance of the cave. "I may save my honor yet if we make haste."

It was his intention to take advantage of the Tory's absence to make his escape across the mountains, but just as he reached the platform outside he was confronted by two armed men and brought to a sudden halt.

"Good day to you, friend!" said one. "The captain sent us here to guard your slumbers."

"It is too late to attempt escaping

He was confronted by two armed men, now, Edward," whispered Polly close to his ear.

And realizing the truth of her warning he bowed his head upon his breast and returned dejectedly into the cavern.

GENERAL OTIS IS SATISFIED.

He Says in an Interview That Things are Moving Nicely in the Philippines.

HAS PLENTY OF SUPPLIES

Aguinaldo's Offer to Release American Prisoners Thought to be a Sympathy Dodge.

Over 2,000 Filipino Prisoners Given Their Liberty—Otis Thinks Natives Will Tire of Independence. Reports of Dissension Among the Native Troops.

Manila, Sept. 26.—Gen. Otis said in regard to the Filipino offer to release certain American prisoners that he believed it was intended as a bluff to play on the sympathy of foreigners. Gen. Otis has been stated before has repeatedly released Filipino prisoners of war; in fact, he has already set over 2,000 of them at liberty.

In order to test Aguinaldo's good faith, the Spaniards have asked Gen. Otis to authorize the sending of a steamer to Dayupan to get the Spanish prisoners there and transport them to Spain. Aguinaldo had offered to release these prisoners. Gen. Jaramillo, who is in charge of Spanish affairs, said that at the beginning of August the natives had 6,700 Spanish prisoners, including 400 officers. Since that time 30 per cent. of the prisoners had been starved. Each man gets only five cents a day for his food allowance.

Gen. Jaramillo recently received a letter from Gen. Pena, who surrendered Cavite, dated at Vigan, urging the Spanish Commission to use every endeavor to secure the release of the Spanish prisoners. Among other things he said: "If this thing does not end in a few months, there will be few left to tell the tale."

The Filipinos have abandoned San Francisco de Malabon and Noveleta, and have disappeared from the vicinity of Imus. This may mean a number of things. One conjecture is that they are tired; another that they mean to attack Calamba, where Gen. Hall has his headquarters.

A newspaper correspondent had a long interview with Gen. Otis about the state of affairs in the Philippines. The general, in reply to questions, said:

"Things are going along in a very satisfactory manner. Our own forces are in good condition. We have plenty of commissary supplies here or on the way. We also have all the transportation facilities necessary either here or on the way. When the weather conditions permit we shall be ready to make an active campaign.

"The Filipinos are having a hard time holding their forces together. They have no commissariat and no voluntary support from their own people.

"Reports are constantly coming to me from all parts of the island showing dissension, demoralization and disintegration among their troops and the dissatisfaction of the people with the 'insurrectionary government.'

"Letters come to me daily from persons of education and intelligence, men of property and prominence among the Filipinos, asking me to send troops to protect 'us from our army.' They call their 'army of liberation' nothing but bands of robbers and cutthroats.

"The southern and northern provinces have repeatedly begged protection from me. I have replied to these people: 'What's the matter with independence? Go back and enjoy it a while longer.'

"It is not surprising that the Filipinos thought they could whip the Americans. They defeated the Spanish under Gen. Jaramillo at Zapote and they licked Gen. Rios at Noveleta when they were armed only with bolos. They expected to repeat this performance with us.

"Aguinaldo had eight months in which to organize his campaign. He accomplished a great deal in that time. He sent his Tagals to every island of any size and importance throughout the archipelago and got his government operating so thoroughly that the people cannot fail to understand what such self-government means."

Enlistment of Volunteers.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Of the 13,000 men required to fill the ten volunteer regiments now in course of organization, 9,231 have been secured up to date. Saturday 418 men were enlisted. The Thirty-eighth regiment with headquarters at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., had 1,277 men when the enlistment offices were closed Saturday night, and will probably reach its full strength today. Curiously enough the two regiments next in the number of enlistments made are being organized in Massachusetts and Nebraska, where the self-styled anti-imperialists are supposed to be strongest. These regiments are the Thirty-ninth, with headquarters at Fort Crook, Neb., and the Forty-fifth, with headquarters at South Framington, Mass. Up to Saturday 1,179 men had been enlisted in the Thirty-ninth and 1,023 men in the Forty-fifth.

Enlistments for the two negro volunteer regiments, the Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth, began very recently. The Forty-eighth has secured 341 men and the Forty-ninth, 166 men.

Olongapo Bombarded.

Manila, Sept. 25.—The monitor Monterey, the cruiser Charleston and the gunboats Concord and Zafre bombarded ed Olongapo for six hours. The town caught fire from the shells and was consumed. Two hundred and fifty marines and bluejackets landed and were fired on by the natives, who used a sixteen-centimeter Krupp gun, the shells of which were loaded with gun-cotton. One American was wounded.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 20, 1899.

DEAR HENRY: You have perhaps realized ere this that your spring suit must soon be discarded and no doubt you have been bothering your mind to know what you shall wear for Fall. Well, Henry, I have always looked after your wants and feel that it is now my duty to acquaint you with the leading novelties for the coming season. Confidentially I'll tell you the suit that is going to be all the go this season. It is the single breasted fancy worsted suit in a stripe or plaid with a double-breasted vest. Now mind I say double-breasted vest, for without one you'll not be in it. These, Henry, are swell. They are cut and trimmed like those tailor-made suits you used to pay $40 for. Honestly you couldn't tell them from custom-made.

But perhaps you don't care for the worsted goods. Well, why don't you get one of those handsome double breasted blue serges, with single cut vest. They are certainly rich in appearance. Then there are those herring-bones in brown or blue. These are new goods and are bound to be popular. I know you'd like them. There are also the tweeds, the fancy chevrons, the clays and the cassimeres—in fact all the odd weaves, but made up in new and pleasing effects that are bound to suit you. Well, I guess I have written you enough about suits. I want to say a word about your new overcoat and then I'll close. If you're going to get a new one—and I suppose you are—I'll tell you the kind you want. Get one of those light top covert coats with the fancy back (1-2 satin lined.) They are certainly racy because they're all the go. They are going to be worn an awful lot this fall, and I want you to have one. Of course there are the Meltons and the Kerseys, in blue, black and brown, but if you want a handsome garment get a covert. Well, Henry, I can't think of anything else to write. Yes I can, too. If I recall correctly when you purchased your last suit you had some difficulty about the price. Either you didn't have money enough or the price was too high. Say, Henry, before purchasing would you do me a favor? Would you just as soon come around and see me? I can assure you there'll be no such difficulty this time, no not a bit of it. Now, Henry, I hope you'll take advantage of this advice. It will be for your own interest to do so. In the past you have been benefitted, so heed the suggestion that I have given you today. If you do, no matter where you go you will always experience the pleasure and satisfaction of being a well dressed young man.

Sincerely yours,
BEN MINTZ.
P. S. I am still at 29 and 31 East State St., Ithaca, N. Y.

HERE'S our hand to George Dewey, Admiral of the U. S. Navy.

NO MAN has had a better opportunity to determine the real facts regarding the Philippines and Aguinaldo's course than Hon. John Barrett, minister to Siam under President Cleveland. That he has reached his conclusions which are favorable to the cause followed by President McKinley is shown by a recent statement over his signature in the "Review of Reviews" which says: "My conclusion I have only reached after most patient study, because I was loath to believe it, and originally felt and expressed much sympathy for Aguinaldo and the insurgents."

THE GERMAN school system is quite generally regarded as far superior to anything else in existence, but that it is not perfect even if it equals the American system is shown by the statement of a writer in a German paper to the effect that the schools of Germany are slowly sapping the heart-blood of the nation. Within the ten years ending in 1896, 407 children in Prussia alone succumbed under the strain of education and took their lives, before they were 15 years old. Lack of proper food partly explains such a condition of things. But it would seem that this were not the only defect. Taken altogether the American youth are pretty well provided for.

IT IS GRATEFUL to note that the use of American flour abroad has reached its high-water mark in the fiscal year just closed with an exportation of 18,000,000 barrels. The average price per bushel of wheat exported during the year was 74.77c, and the average price per bushel for the wheat exported in the form of flour was 87.67c, calculating that 4 1/2 bushels of wheat are utilized in the production of a barrel of flour. This adds 12.9c to the amount of money received for each bushel of wheat sent abroad in this form, thus making over $10,000,000 during the year as a compensation to the American labor which transformed the 80,000,000 bushels of grain into the 18,000,000 barrels of flour exported during the year.

A Will Contest.

A case came up before Surrogate Turner this morning which promises to be interesting before it is finally settled. It was that of the proof of the will of John M. King, of Genoa. Petition was made for the proof of the will by Floyd Buck, the main legatee and executor named in the instrument, and objections to the same were vigorously entered. King died on May 25 last. His only heirs are brothers and sisters and their descendants. The will, it is claimed by the contestants, was drawn only one week prior to King's demise and made when the deceased was in such a condition as to render him incompetent to make a will. The instrument, it is also stated, was drawn at the instance of Buck by whose own personal efforts he was made chief legatee and executor of the estate, which is worth about $8,000. The attempt to probate the will today was frustrated and a preliminary hearing in the case was held. Testimony as to the time of King's death and also as to the time of drawing the instrument was taken and the matter was adjourned until Oct. 20. Objections must be filed on or before that date or letters will be issued to Buck.—Bulletin.

Reunion of the Ninth.

The annual reunion of the Ninth New York Heavy Artillery Veterans' association will be held in Newark, Wayne county on Thursday, Oct. 19, which is also the date of the thirty-fourth anniversary of the battle of Cedar Creek, where the Ninth Heavy held the victorious legions of General Early in check until the arrival of Sheridan from Winchester, twenty miles away. Abram H. Vanderbilt of Newark, a member of Company D, is president of the association and Frank Tallman of Company E, of Auburn, is secretary and treasurer.

A notice has been sent to every member of the association and survivor of the regiment to attend the reunion. Since the last reunion of the regiment twenty-two members have died. There are several hundred members of the regiment alive today who served in the Civil war and an effort will be made to have them all present at the reunion. A special effort is being made to have the colonel of the regiment, Colonel James Snyder of Los Angeles, Cal., present, and he will probably attend. Brigadier General Seward of Auburn, former colonel of the Ninth, will be present, also Lieutenant Colonel Anson S. Wood of Wolcott, past commander of the G. A. R. of New York state. Other well-known members of the regiment are, Hon. A. W. Litchard of Utica, Rev. R. E. Barton, Hon. Alfred S. Roe, historian of the regiment of Worcester, Mass.

Ex-Governor Oates of Alabama was also elected a member of the Council, as was H. H. Blunt, a Louisiana negro, who was a lieutenant in the Ninth Immunes. Gen. J. W. Keifer of Ohio was elected commander-in-chief of the new organization, which hopes ultimately to embrace all the state organizations of Spanish war veterans which have been formed.

Clayton A. Buckingham, supervisor of the town of Cazenovia, conducts a cheese factory at New Woodstock and has become well-known as a cheesemaker. He has sold the entire amount of cheese produced at his factory for the months of September, October and November for 9 1/4 cents per pound net. By terms of the agreement he has the privilege of taking two pounds of butter from every 100 pounds of milk before converting the milk into cheese. Under this arrangement the milk will net the patrons from $1.10 to $1.15 per hundred pounds.

Proceedings Dismissed.

The case of Wayne Gallup, to inquire into whose competency a commission was recently appointed at Lyons, is over as far as Wayne county is concerned, for a while at least. Saturday at Lyons argument was to have been made before Justice Dunwell to show cause why the temporary injunction staying the hands of Commissioner Ennis should not be made permanent, but a change of front on the part of the principal in the case, Wayne Gallup, resulted in the withdrawal of the application of the petitioner, Wayne Gallup, second, son of Silas N. Gallup, for a commission.

Special County Judge Searing appeared for the principal, Harry T. Dayton for the petitioner, and Frank M. Leary for Mrs. Mary Wallace, the niece, of Venice Center, who contested the appointment of a commission.

The proceedings were dismissed by consent of counsel and no argument on the injunction was made. The old man, it is stated, has an end in view—what, it has been impossible to determine—which he decided to try to obtain through some source other than a commission and Saturday morning, it is stated, he made known that fact with the result that the effort to have his competency decided was abandoned and when the array of local counsel appeared before Justice Dunwell the proceedings were dismissed by consent.

Judge Searing stated to the court that the old man said he recognized his infirmity and need of assistance.

Attorney Dayton said to the court that on the first suggestion on the part of Wayne that he preferred some other method of attaining the end he had in view the petitioner consented to a dismissal of the case; that all that was done was by the old man's knowledge and consent and no step taken was taken without his approval; that his insanity was never alleged, simply his defective condition.

It is highly probable that the case will not be allowed to rest where it is at present and some more on the part of Attorney Dayton is expected within a few days.—Bulletin.

Relief for Stout Men and Tall Men

The man of regular shape has always been an object of envy to his stout and tall brethren because of his ability to wear ready-made clothing; we have always believed that the time would come when we could invite our stout and tall citizens to come in and be fitted for half what they are paying the merchant tailors, and here it is: We carry a line of —Cards announce a social party at the Lansingville hotel hall next Friday evening, Oct. 6, to which all are respectfully invited.

—Vance Avery, Ernest Mead, Earl Young and Herman Taylor are among the Genoa students at the Moravia High school this year.

—The Model Clothing Co. occupies a conspicuous corner in this issue. Frank Mosher, formerly of Poplar Ridge, is with this firm.

—B. M. Ives returned home Wednesday after an absence of some six years, the greater part of which he spent in Arizona. His health is quite feeble.

—The Candor Courier very consistently says: "In every instance where possible would it not be well to patronize home institutions? Our home merchants certainly sell goods as cheap, if not cheaper, than outside firms, and then, too, there is the satisfaction of knowing that should the purchase not prove satisfactory they will cheerfully make a change or rectify errors. Surely the home merchants should be the ones to be encouraged, first, last and always."

—Rodney Shurger visited Syracuse relatives this week.

—Mrs. Carrie E. Bouton of Ithaca made quite an extended visit at S. Howe's recently.

—Charley Morton returned to Austin Wednesday after a few days' visit with relatives here.

—Rev. W. A. Pugsley was in Genoa a day or two this week. He will preach his first sermon Oct. 15.

—E. H. Tift and wife, D. W. Gower and wife and Charley and Jay Morton spent Sunday at Farley's.

—Miss Marion Mead recently returned to her home in Ludlowville, after a pleasant visit with friends in this vicinity.

—The schools of the state are closed to-day in honor of the triumphal return of Admiral Dewey, who arrived in New York harbor early Tuesday morning.

—Mrs. Henry Underwood while at the home of her daughter in this village, fell and injured her arm severely. She is improving and will soon be able to return home.

—Charles Tupper, wife and little daughter attended the county convention of the W. C. T. U. at Auburn this week. Mrs. E. Beardsley also attended on Wednesday and Thursday.

—We have been shown an aged document, now the property of L. A. Goodyear. It is a deed bearing date of July 16, 1799, and conveys from Gilbert Brownell and his wife to William Goodyear, a parcel of land situate in the town of Milton, a part of lot 23, comprising 104 3/4 acres, more or less. This deed was recorded in the county clerk's office May 6, 1803; Sam Ledyard, clerk.

—The Summerhill fair was quite largely attended the first day in spite of the most disagreeable weather, and yesterday there was an immense crowd. The exhibits were first-class and the other attractions fully up-to-date and interesting.

—Three dogs made a raid upon two flocks of sheep belonging to farmers at Quaker Basin last week and as a result thirty-six sheep are dead and twenty-one others are so badly bitten that some of them will die too. The assessors appraised the value of the lost sheep at $234.

—Whatever may be said in relation to the shortcomings of the press, it is the most effective bulwark that stands between the pockets of the people and the public plunderers. Nothing else is so thoroughly dreaded and hated by the party bosses and thieves as an honest newspaper which can be neither bought nor bulldozed.

Fine Boat Building.

But few of our citizens are aware of the existence of the fine boat building carried on in town. Mr. G. T. Hartman builds what is known as the Hartman model of the St. Lawrence cedar boats. Mr. L. C. Smith of Syracuse is having one built at a cost of one hundred dollars, while L. H. Smith of the Ithaca Gun Works and Chas. E. Treman of Treman, King & Co., have each ordered one of the same model and cost. Orders are already on hand for six hundred dollars' worth of boats for Mr. Hartman to work on this winter. There are quite a number of these boats already on the lake.—Ithaca News.

Pretty Home Wedding.

A very pretty home wedding of the early autumn was that of Mr. J. B. Richardson, of New York, and Miss Anna C. Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Longley, of Tomkins Cove, N. Y., which took place at the home of the bride, on Wednesday, September 6th, 1899, at high noon. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion by florist Hillerman, of Haverstraw. Palms, ferns, roses, smilax and white satin ribbons were tastily used in the decorations, producing a pretty effect. Precisely at the hour named for the ceremony, the bridal party assembled at the head of the decorated stairway, the ushers forming an aisle with white satin ribbons, preceded the best man, maid of honor and bride and groom. The officiating clergyman, Rev. John H. Elliott, of the Reformed Collegiate Church, N. Y. City, awaited the bridal party in the parlor, under a marriage bell of white carnations. Lohengrin's wedding march was played as a processional by Miss Marie Searing and at the close of the ceremony, Mendelssohn's march was rendered. The bride was becomingly attired in a handsome gown of blue silk with front of embroidered white silk and garnitures of lace and velvet. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Sadie M. Carter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a pretty gown of pink mousseline-de-soie, with medallions of white lace and satin and chiffon ruchings. Her bouquet was composed of pink roses. Mr. T. S. Thomas, of N. Y. City acted as best man and the Messrs. Ernest Searing of Tomkins Cove, and Harold M. Pitman, of Brooklyn, were the ushers. After Mr. and Mrs. Richardson had received the congratulations of the assembled company, a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served by caterer Fantozzi, of N. Y. City. The bridal couple left the same afternoon for an extended wedding trip which includes Albany, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Cleveland, Detroit and Fitchburg, Canada. The bridal presents were many and both beautiful and and costly. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will reside in N. Y. City. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tomkins, Mr. and Mrs. Rutledge Odell, Rev. Spahr and wife, W. T. Searing and daughters, of Tomkins Cove; Mr. Frank Vickere and wife, of Salem; Mr. W. B. Atwater and wife, Mrs. Samuel Atwater, Mrs. Fred Carter, Mr. Anson Carter and wife, Mr. Fred Atwater and wife, of Newark; Mr. Snowden Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Luckey, Mr. and Mrs. James Pitman, Mr. Harold Pitman, Mr. and Mrs. Conklin, of Brooklyn; Rev. and Mrs. Elliott, John T. Mills, Dr. and Mrs. Henson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mills, Jr., Mrs. John Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Sirrine, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott, from N. Y. City; and friends from Staten Island, New Jersey and Canada.

Teeth! Teeth! Why Dread Your Teeth?

I dreaded for a long time having my teeth extracted, but finally called on Dr. Dommett and had 17 extracted at one time, with scarcely any pain. I can recommend his method. MRS. OWEN CONNOR.

For the first time in my life I had extracting done without pain. I heartily endorse Dr. Dommett's method of painless dentistry. ALLEN FELLENGER, Jeweler and Optician, Union Springs.

ashore at False Ras Gharib. The Oak Branch has returned to Suez, where she is being examined by divers.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 25.—William Darling, charged with the murder of Harry Dunham at New Market in August, 1895, has just pleaded non vult to an allegation of murder here. He was sentenced by Justice Gilbert Collins to twenty years in the State prison at hard labor.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25.—Frank McIlvain, the young man who was shoveling coal on a barge near here, when told that his half interest in a California gold claim had proved to be worth $40,000, will not take any chance on it. He said, when told, "Well, I'll hold my job until I get the money."

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Once more Walter Jones, the comedian, is not going to marry the heiress picked out for him by matchmakers. Miss Daisy Young, daughter of Millionaire Otto Young, returned from Europe and announced that she and the comedian will not be married on next Monday evening, as announced, nor at any other time.

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 25.—For an hour Mrs. Emil Pouchet waded up and down in the cold waters of the Little Cuyahoga River searching for the body of her three-year-old son, who had wandered away from his home and fallen from the river bank. Friends who came to the woman's aid found the body. The mother is crazed with grief.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 25.—Hugh E. Thompson's photograph gallery was the scene of a duel with swords. A handsome young woman was hired by Thompson as his assistant. Later a man in a state of great excitement entered the gallery. He said his name was Maguire and that he was the husband of the girl. Exactly how the fight started is uncertain, but hanging on the wall were two sabres, and in a moment Thompson and Maguire were engaged in deadly conflict.

The girl called for help, and as Arthur Rickard, a furniture man, rushed into the gallery he saw Thompson on the floor covered with blood, and Maguire apparently about to run the sword into Thompson's chest. Rickard pulled Maguire off and the latter fled. No arrests have been made. Thompson's injuries may prove fatal.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 25.—The body of Mrs. Frederick Bridgens, who had been missing since Tuesday night, was found this morning in the mill pond in this village. She tried to procure poison at two drug stores, and falling in this had jumped into the mill pond. Her husband died about one year ago. Her suicide was the result of melancholia, to which she had long been subject.

Washington, Sept. 25.—It was decided at the meeting of the Cabinet to reduce the letter postage rate between the United States and Porto Rico from five cents to the regular domestic rate of two cents. The Postmaster-General was directed to issue the necessary order. The step was taken chiefly on account of the poverty of the people of the island resulting from the recent hurricane.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 25.—The residence of Absolom Kesler, a miserly farmer, aged eighty, living on the West Virginia side of the river, near Papaw, was discovered on fire. Neighbors hurried to the scene and were horrified to find Kesler and Albert Gross, his hired man, lifeless in the yard. The housekeeper, Anna Doman, had also been murdered, and her body was consumed in the flames. The object of the crime was evidently robbery.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—The Cook County Democracy's marching club will take part in the Kentucky campaign in the interest of Candidate Goebel. The club will leave Chicago on a special train immediately after the Chicago day parade, on Oct. 9, in which the club will participate. From Louisville it will go to Lexington, Covington and Frankfort, and then cross over into Ohio and give a parade for John R. McLean, at Cincinnati.

Hamilton, Ohio, Sept. 25.—Although the formal opening of the Republican campaign has not made its appearance in Akron, Senator Foraker really fired the first gun at the Emancipation celebration, on the Butler County fair grounds. The feature of his address was a strong declaration for expansion and an exhaustive argument on the trust question, in which he declared that the tariff is not responsible for the formation of trusts and defended them where they are conducted as legalized bodies.

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—The strikers at Cramps' Ship Yards, have been joined by the blacksmiths and their helpers, who have been at work at the dry dock. Several machinists and joiners who at first refused to join the nine-hour movement also deserted their posts. Although the blacksmiths who left the dry dock were only five in number, the defection included all employed at that particular point, and resulted in a total suspension of work. Only a foreman was left to look after the forges, the helpers refusing to remain behind.

New York, Sept. 25.—The following despatch has been received from Governor Roosevelt in regard to the G. A. R. controversy in the Dewey land parade: "I have telegraphed General Roe that if the matter is one purely for the city authorities and in which I have no power, then, of course, I withdraw my former telegram. I had understood that General Roe was acting as Major General of the National Guard in the management of the parade, and in that event I, of course, had the power to direct that the right of line be given the veterans, and accordingly did it. If, however, as appears to be the case, it is a matter purely for the city officials, I, of course, have nothing to say, and no advice to give."

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 26.—Warrants have been sworn out by Vice Consul Witte, acting for the Government of Norway, against Anderson and Thomas, the Norwegian sailors from the bark Drot, who, according to their own story, killed and ate a companion while drifting in mid-ocean on a raft. The men are still very sick, and the warrants were not served, but a guard was placed over them. They will be sent to Norway as soon as able to travel.

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Arthur Gordon, an employee of the McNamara brickyard, was struck on the fast south-bound Atlantic Express on the New York Central. The train was going at the rate of fifty miles an hour, and the result of the accident was a broken collar bone and a few bruises for Gordon. The train which struck him is one which went over the embankment into the river at Garrison over a year ago.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK to George Goodyear, if living, and if he be dead to his heirs-at-law, next-of-kin and personal representatives, if any, all of whose places of residence are unknown:
Geo. W. Wood, Sheriff of Cayuga County, N. Y., has lately applied to our Surrogate's Court of the County of Cayuga for the proof and probate of a certain instrument in writing, dated the 2nd day of June, 1893, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of George W. Wood, late of Genoa, N. Y., in said county, deceased, which relates to both real and personal estate.
Therefore, you and each of you are cited to appear in our Surrogate's Court before the Surrogate of the County of Cayuga, at his office in the Court House in the City of Auburn, on the 3rd day of November, 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, and attend the probate of said Last Will and Testament.
And those of you who are under the age of twenty-one years, are required to appear by your general guardian, if you have one; or if you have none, you will appear and apply for the appointment of a guardian, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the surrogate to represent and act for you in this proceeding.
Witness, Hon. George B. Turner, [L.S.] Surrogate of the County of Cayuga, at the Surrogate's office in the city of Auburn, this 26th day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine.
G. EARLE TREAT, Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

To Abram

THE OLD BEAU.

How cracked and poor his laughter rings,
How dull his eyes, once flashing warm,
But still a courtly pathos clings
About his bent and withered form.

To-night, where mirth and music dwells,
His wrinkled cheeks, his locks of snow,
Gleam near the grandsons of the belles
He smiled on forty years ago.

We watch him here, and half believe
Our gaze may witness while he prates,
Death, like a footman, touch his sleeve
And tell him that the carriage waits.

—Edgar Fawcett.

A SUMMER IDYL.

It was a summer idyl. Both were young and possibly as beautiful as is given the average of mortals to be. The idyl developed within the limits of Greater New York, for both principals in the little drama were artists and, though it is the practice of the world to associate artists with pastoral scenes, they are a class apart, and if they choose to remain in the city during a hot summer, while the rest of the world is away, who shall question them? Certainly nothing better could have been chosen to fan the flames of a burning passion than such scorching heroes as swept lightly through New York during the past season.

Mr. Palette painted Titian-haired maidens upon sea-green backgrounds, and Miss Brushes the portraits of soulful young men. The spark of love was first kindled at the studio of a mutual friend. Madam Third Party was such a charming woman they each declared.

"Madam," he said, with the appreciation of an artist, and almost the tenderness of a lover, "you have such beautiful eyes."

"Such talent," she murmured, half under her breath in a tone of respect, admiration and envy that was most flattering, as she gazed around the studio.

Miss Brushes had first seen the work of Mr. Palette at the studio of Mrs. Third Party, and her admiration knew no bounds. Then would she like to see the portrait of the rising young artist who had done the fine work? Certainly she would, and though even a young woman artist may not express her admiration openly for the personal beauty of a young man who is still in the flesh, she gazed at the portrait for a long time, and when she turned from it to the work of its original artist, the rapture with which she expressed her admiration made her previous words seem cold and pale.

Young Mr. Palette saw pretty little Miss Brushes' work also at the studio of Mrs. Third Party. He, too, was in raptures.

"Why," he said, "why"—searching his vocabulary for words to express his strong admiration—"why, its beauty."

"I think I have Miss Brushes' portrait around here somewhere," said Mrs. Third Party, carelessly, as she went on with her work. "If you care relevant around I think you will find it."

Mr. Palette found the portrait, and, being a man as well as an artist, he did not hesitate to express his admiration, and in no measured terms. In fact, if he had not been an artist, it might have been thought that his heart had been seriously touched. Any outsider would have thought that, and Mr. Palette thought so himself. He said so.

"Mrs. Third Party," he said to the mistress of the studio, as he took her hand at parting and gazed, but with a far off look, into her "beautiful eyes," "I have seen the picture of the one woman I can love, the one whom I would like to marry."

Then, in a serious mood, he departed. But Mr. Palette was young, and with a sigh Mrs. Third Party returned to her work, and speedily forgot about him, about little Miss Brushes, and, if she knew it, that she had become the medium of a desperate love affair.

But neither Mr. Palette nor Miss Brushes forgot her. They called with remarkable frequency. Little Miss Brushes conceived an affection for the older artist that, if she had cherished before, she certainly had never made manifest. Mrs. Third Party was not surprised. Perhaps she liked to study human nature.

"What funny children they are," she said to herself, "and they are clever, too, both of them."

She repeated with discretion, the remarks of each about the other. It was certainly a nice thing to do to show the appreciation of one artist for the work of another. She even let Miss Brushes into the secret that young Mr. Palette raved over her portrait. An artist's raptures, of course, but little waves of color chased each other over Miss Brushes' fair forehead and ran up into the little curls of hair that nestled there. She was something of a coquette and she did not object to being admired.

Little Miss Brushes was to pose again for Mrs. Third Party, and on the day she was to arrive young Mr. Palette, favored by his good genius, happened in. There was a difficulty though, for Miss Brushes had insisted that she should be alone when she posed. Mr. Palette must be disposed of, and he was sent on an errand.

"Miss Brushes is going to be here, and we shall have luncheon together," said Mrs. Third Party, "and you must go and order the things we need." That would take some time. It was not an errand Mr. Palette would enjoy upon ordinary occasions, but for Miss Brushes! That was a different matter, and he hurried off. If he confused the shop men by ordering nectar and ambrosia for his goddess, no one was wiser. He came back breathless.

"You know I am not to see anyone," said Miss Brushes, as the step was heard upon the stair.

"That is Mr. Palette," said Mrs. Third Party; "how would it do if I introduced you as Miss Brown?" That would do very well. Miss Brushes' eyes sparkled with fun.

Now, Mr. Palette had heard of Miss Brown, a little model and friend of Mrs. Third Party's. He was not particularly interested in models. He came in and sat down, but he was uneasy. He could not sit still.

"I say," he said, "how much Miss Brown looks like Miss Brushes. There is the same turn of the head."

"That is because you have not seen Miss Brushes herself," said Mrs. Third Party seriously. "You cannot form a good idea of a person merely from the picture. Then she proceeded to entertain her little friend, Miss Brown, with the story of young Palette's infatuation for Miss Brushes. An artist's love affairs are public property; he tells them himself! They are artistic conditions.

"He beguiles a little cousin out to walk that he may have an excuse for hanging around her house," she began mischievously, "and—"

"I'll get to talking with someone there and get acquainted with her yet," interrupted Mr. Palette, walking up and down the room, uneasy, but unsuspecting.

"He is furiously jealous of a handsome young man she has painted, and—"

"To think of wearing a coat of that style at 10 o'clock in the morning!"

"He vows he would know her anywhere if he should meet her among thousands."

"I should. She would wear a little sailor hat, a trim little tie"—Mr. Palette's affections were apt to center, not so much on artistic as up-to-date young women—"and she would walk so."

Throwing back his shoulders, Mr. Palette walked across the room with the air of a fashionable young woman.

Mrs. Third Party was beginning to be alarmed at the success of her joke. Just then there was a diversion that called every one for a moment to the windows. She scribbled three words upon a slip of paper, and handed it to Mr. Palette.

"It is she," he read.

Then followed a genuine introduction and for the few moments longer that Miss Brushes remained, Mr. Palette was quiet, pale and intense.

When she was gone he was in raptures. He must pour out this feeling. He did so for an hour at least. Then he went home. He held both of Mrs. Third Party's hands in his as he said good-bye.

"I shall never marry any woman," he said, seriously, somewhat worn by the strength of his feelings, "but this has been a wonderful experience to me."

Later in the day Mr. Palette dropped into the studio again on a matter of business. He was gay, debonaire, and quite himself again.

"And you find Miss Brushes quite as beautiful as you expected?" asked Mrs. Third Party, curiously, as he turned to leave for the last time that day.

"Yes; oh, yes," he answered, carelessly. Then, as he held the door half open, suppressing a yawn: "But she had the figure of a rabbit."

That was the end of the idyl.

WHY WE ALTER AND REBUILD THIS STORE!
A SMALL BUSINESS
Selling goods at all you can get for them, grumbling all the while at high rent, business and living expenses. The Old Method

A LARGE BUSINESS
Selling goods cheap at a small reasonable profit because the large business enables buying in larger quantities, and consequently buying cheaper. The New Method

The larger business costs so little more than the small, that the entire expense is reduced many percentages, the living expenses are important items to everyone and cost no more when a large business is being done than small, consequently merchants can sell a large lot of goods at a smaller advance more profitably than a small lot at a large profit. We tried the old method 14 years, the new one year, and before the first year is over we are obliged either to go back to the old method or to find a larger store. Our neighbor "E. J. Burritt" wanted to get out; we grasped the chance and rented his store in addition to the old quarters and thus obtained enough room to do the business of the "new method." We ascribe the past year's large business because people advertised us who wear our goods which at the time of purchase they may think only worth what they paid for them, but as time rolls on and the clothes don't change, but keep looking good, don't rip, don't muss, they gradually begin to believe they bought a bargain. They try it again they recommend their family and friends, and by always furnishing good clothing at our small prices, each of them in turn recommends others—that's what makes a large business. That's what compelled us to get a large store. We are now at it, and will be all fixed up in our new quarters by August 20. And when we get this big store finished we want you to drop in to see us, look around in the new place, wish us success if you like, but always be assured that you are welcome here, whether you come to look; to see what a certain thing when you need it will cost you, or whether you come to shop or visit.

MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME—YOU ARE WELCOME.
We want your good will, and if honorable business methods will do it, we'll have your trade and shall hold it.

Thanking the Public for their liberal patronage of the past Fifteen years. Respectfully, BENJAMIN RICH.
