Died in Maine.

Intelligence has been received of the death of Newell Lyon at his home in Portland, Me. He was a native of this town and graduated with honor from the Homer academy. During the civil war he was actively engaged in New York City as an agent for advancing enlisted men to vacancies. He engaged in business at Boston in 1867 and was successful and much respected for his obliging disposition and frank integrity. As a church worker he was untiring and conscientious. Besides the widow, he leaves three brothers, Brainard Lyon of King Ferry, Lewis E. Lyon of Auburn and Wm. R. Lyon of St. Joseph, Mich.

North Lansing.

Aug. 4—There will be an ice cream social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winnie Tuesday evening, Aug. 11th.

The series of lectures on Pilgrim's Progress have been both instructive and entertaining. We hope to have another series before Conference.

The social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tarbell last Wednesday evening was very enjoyable. The large rooms and spacious porches were decorated with flags, a large one being draped over the entrance. Mrs. Dana Schench presided at the organ which was placed in a corner of the porch and Wm. Metzgar played the violin. The old patriotic pieces were greatly enjoyed by the large gathering. Miss Ida Haring read a selection and Mrs. Hattie Buck gave a recitation, also Master Russell Ober. The following officers for the Monument Association were elected: Frank Tarbell, president; Dana Schench, vice-president; Glenn Bacon, secretary and treasurer. Rev. Wm. Jacques made some very appropriate remarks after which all were invited to the barn which had been turned into a diningroom to eat ice cream and cake. A monument committee is to be appointed at the next meeting. Subscription papers will be circulated and all will have the opportunity of helping on this worthy enterprise.

East Genoa.

Aug. 4—Mrs. Mary Searles of Groton has been visiting at James Westmiller's.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Beach and daughter Lillian of Groton spent Sunday at F. Bothwell's.

Henry Miner and family spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. M. Armstrong.

Mrs. Delilah Sharpsteen and daughter Amy have returned from their prolonged visit at Weedsport.

Miss Ida Haskell has returned home from Auburn.

Miss Belle Bothwell spent part of last week with Chas. Shapley and family of Auburn.

Miss Hilda Roscoe of Ithaca is visiting her cousin, Eva Addy.

Bessie Younglove who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Lane, at Peruville has returned home.

Miss Clara Bannister of Syracuse is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tift and Miss Minnie Tift of Moravia called on friends here Monday.

Miss Mary Bothwell leaves Thursday for a trip to Toledo, O., where she will visit her uncle, D. H. Bothwell and family.

Belltown.

Aug. 3—E. H. Shangle was in Ithaca one day last week.

Mrs. Fred Mosher of Poplar Ridge and Miss Edith Gifford of Aurora visited Mr. and Mrs. Jos. B. Grant on Sunday last.

Mrs. Mary Dickerson of Farmer is visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity.

Miss Viella Sellen of Genoa was the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. Young over Sunday.

Mr. Herman Bradt of New York City is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Rev. and Mrs. George Laughton of Corning are spending their vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith.

Miss Bertha Cheesman has returned from camping with Dr. Fish and family on the west side of Cayuga lake.

Mrs. Ann Palmer left on Friday last for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. C. Jacobs, at Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Atwater have gone to Moravia which place will be their home.

Armour's Packerhouse Fertilizers come from the farm; put them back.

The Citizens Bank of Locke buys and sells mortgages on real property.

Cortland.

Aug. 4—The past week has been so showery it has been very hard work for farmers to get their hay, but vegetation grows rapidly.

Great preparations are being made in Homer for the fireman's convention. Thirty-seven companies are expected to be in line and 11 bands. Everything is being done to make it pleasant for the visitors.

About 1000 people joined the Wickwire excursion to Sylvan Beach on Saturday. Thirty of the employees of the Gillette Skirt factory went. All reported a fine time. The day was perfect.

The City band gave a fine concert last week for the First M. E. church on the lawn. Tonight they give one for the benefit of the Congregational church.

Rev. Charles Hoyt of Kansas supplied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday.

Some one entered the house of Rev. Robert Clements last week and turned things over generally in search of valuables. What they carried away cannot be ascertained until the return of Mr. and Mrs. Clements from Europe.

Rev. W. C. Brass of King Ferry preached Sunday morning in the Congregational church.

It is reported that Rev. U. S. Milburn of the Universalist church thinks of leaving Cortland. He is much respected by all classes and it will be a loss to the city if he leaves.

Patsy Conway with his band of Ithaca finished a week's engagement here Sunday afternoon. The weather was not the best, still large crowds attended every concert as they always do when Patsy comes.

Yager & Halstead of the canning factory have prepared a camp near the Lehigh R. R. where they have about seventy-five Italians imported from Syracuse and vicinity to work in beans of which they have some twenty-two acres.

Five Corners.

Aug. 5—The threshing machine has begun its annual tour.

Frank Reeves and wife of Cortland are visiting her brother, Allie Palmer. H. B. Hunt and wife visited in Auburn a few days last week.

Misses Eliza Clark and Lena Garey of King Ferry spent Sunday at H. B. Hunt's.

Mrs. A. T. Smith of Belltown and sister, Mrs. Warren Dimmick of East Genoa spent a day last week with friends here.

The following officers were elected last evening in our school district: Clerk, W. D. Hunt; trustee, E. Burr Stewart; collector, C. D. Palmer.

Don't Wait for the Railroad Before taking advantage of the unusual values now offered at Moser's Busy Drug Store in Hair Brushes. A recent purchase of ours makes it an easy matter for us to quote prices which gives you one of the best of brushes at the price of a cheap one.

Electric Batteries are recognized as among the best of curative methods. Electricity cures Rheumatism, Nervousness, stimulates the circulation and imparts new life to the nerves. We sell the best batteries.

Not the least of the attractions at our store will you find the Soda Fountain. We make the finest flavored drinks possible. Our eggs and chocolates are incomparably delicious. Visit us for cooling drinks.

A variety of corns which many of our readers continue to cultivate but against their wills grow on their feet. Our Corn Cure will remove them easily and quickly or we return the money.

We keep always in stock Condition Powders and other remedies for stock, Paris green and drugs used especially by country people. We want their trade and are making a strong effort to obtain even more of it than we have at present.

Your plants can't live on air and water alone any more than you; you must feed them Armour's Animal Fertilizers if you want them to grow. They need it; it's natural plant food.

Poplar Ridge.

Aug. 3—Mrs. H. D. Wheeler of Auburn is spending some time in this vicinity.

Arthur Landon spent Sunday in Moravia.

A number from this locality went on the King Ferry and Belltown S. S. excursion to Cayuga Lake Park on Friday last.

Mrs. D. H. Castor of Auburn and her aunt from Canandaigua are visiting at Jas. Nichols.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Atwater spent Sunday with Mrs. S. A. Haines and family.

Although this is a busy season for farmers, it does not keep the wedding bells from ringing. Bert Longstreet brought a bride to his home on Wednesday last. If all reports are true, we shall hear the bells again in the near future.

Daniel Nichols spent Sunday with his brother, Jas. Nichols.

Venice Center.

Aug. 3—Mrs. John Owens went to Rochester last week to attend the funeral of a relative. She returned Sunday.

Miss Sadie Jencks of Syracuse is visiting her friends, Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Lewis. Samuel Housman of Alton was also a guest at the same place a few days last week.

Walter Wood of Dryden, formerly of this place, with a companion passed through town with a fine automobile on Sunday morning last. After calling on a few friends they left for Ithaca.

The Sunday school class of Mr. Lewis gave a reception in the church on Friday evening of last week. After a social time, refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, were served. This was followed by a program of songs, recitations and readings. A good crowd was present and a pleasant evening was passed.

The ringing of the church bell in the small hours of Wednesday morning, July 29, aroused many from their slumbers who, upon investigating, found the cause of the disturbance to be the burning of the old hotel property owned by J. Barron.

It made a clean sweep as there was not a building of any kind left upon the premises. The horse, a dog, and a number of hens were cremated and the family nearly shared the same fate. Only a few articles of furniture were saved. The store belonging to T. Cannon and occupied by F. Saxton caught fire several times and it was only by the most strenuous efforts that it was not also burned. Mr. Barron and family are now occupying the Hoskins house, just north of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wood of Cortland are in town for a few days.

Sunday evening, July 26th, Mrs. Mabel Cranston occupied the pulpit with the echoes from the International Epworth League convention at Detroit, Mich. Using very few notes she spoke for over an hour in a very interesting and enthusiastic manner. There was an extra large attendance at the Sunday morning service, the theme being "How Christ Shall Come." Miss Bryant of Union Springs led the Epworth League Sunday evening and the meeting was very impressive to all. Miss Mary Moore, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Syracuse, and one of the best personal workers and evangelists of the state, will be here Thursday and remain over Sunday, having charge of the service Thursday evening. She will assist in the pastoral work and occupy the pulpit morning and evening on Sunday. The blessings of God are with us, but we expect greater things from the Lord by her presence among us.

Armour's Fertilizers grow biggest crops. White & Stewart, agents at Locke; Clinton Miller, agent at Ludlowville; Jay Myers, agt., Ledyard.

West Venice.

Aug. 5—This is rather poor harvest weather; quite a good deal of hay to get in yet.

Mosher and Beebe have started their threshing machine. Wheat is yielding from 20 to 30 bu. per acre.

The animal which has been roaring through the Venice woods and adjoining neighborhood terrifying women, children and timid men is not a lion but a large bull who goes where he pleases. He will do some damage and cost the owners more than he is worth. The law is quite strict about such animals running at large.

At the annual school meeting in Dist. No. 11, Jesse Corey was elected chairman, George Brown and Thos. Owens tellers, J. W. Cook district clerk, Frank Mosher trustee and Jesse G. Corey collector.

Jesse Corey was in Ithaca Monday to see his son who is in the hospital. He reports him as getting along nicely.

William Tait's children had a reunion at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Eliza Corey, to celebrate his 75th birthday.

Tim Sullivan is quite sick, threatened with appendicitis.

Great Days For Moravia.

September 1, 2 and 3 will be lively days in Moravia. These are the dates of what promises to be the largest and best fair ever held in Cayuga County. The management is sparing no expense to make the exposition attractive and pleasing. The premiums offered are substantial and embrace live stock, produce and all branches of domestic manufacture.

The racing program offers excellent sport for lovers of fast horseflesh. Liberal purses ensure a good list of starters.

Pleasing attractions have been secured for each day of the fair and there will be much to amuse and instruct. An exhibit of school work will be a pleasing feature of the show. Besides there will be the ever popular baby show, driving contests, floral bicycle parade, base ball game, etc. Address J. P. White for a premium book.

News of Auburn.

AUBURN, Aug. 5.—Mr. C. E. Wetherby of Fulton, N. Y., has purchased through Hoyt's Agency the elegant residence of Deputy Postmaster Charles Abbott on East Genesee St., and will remove here in November. Outsiders are coming to see the advantages of Auburn as a residence town and we predict that they will come in increasing numbers in the future.

A Fleming man is before the court charged with killing robins which were eating his cherries. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been pushing the matter and claims to have evidence that the defendant had killed twenty birds. The penalty is $60 for each bird killed and an additional fine of $25 for the offense in each case. The defendant denies that he shot the birds in a spirit of cruelty or wantonness, and says they have destroyed several fruit crops during the past few years. It is not likely that the matter will be brought to trial.

Lewis Kern, convicted at a recent term of court for uttering forged instruments in the fish net cases, and sentenced to six years in Auburn prison, commenced serving his sentence Friday. He has been assigned to work in the broom shop with a squad of convicts under the charge of Keeper John H. Donnelly.

Since the trolley line has placed Auburn and Syracuse in easy communication with each other, the number of visitors to go through Auburn prison has been very large and the month of July saw a total of 1,610 passing through the gates and into the prison to see the sights. Tuesday of this week was the big gest day and 129 went through. The record for July is the biggest in several years. The number for the other six months is as follows: January 434; February 420; March 636; April 606; May 411; and June 794.

Rural letter carriers have been appointed in Cayuga county as follows: Atwaters, Joseph McBride, carrier, and Allen J. Barger, substitute; Cato, George A. Cooper and John Marshall; Ira, Floyd C. Pulsipher and Mae L. Pulsipher; Martville, Frank C. Way and Alanzo M. Way; Port Byron, William H. Barrus and Norman Tryon; Sennett, John W. French and Will N. Glass; Sterling Station, Howard A. Viele and Arthur Amphrey; William H. Bellingger and Adrian Bellingger; Weedsport, George W. Vannatter and John E. Vannatter.

At the Lackawanna station at Binghamton, the other day, a blind man wearing goggles was led on the platform to take a train. All at once the man screamed; "Why, I can see!" jerked off his goggles and began to dance for joy. The man was Jerome Brink, an Elmira horseman, who had been stone blind for many years and had spent a fortune on his eyes. He said his sight came back in a flash, the first thing he saw being the train he was to board approaching. He continued to see everything perfectly after he took the train for home and could not contain himself for joy.

The ball game Saturday afternoon between the Osborne works team and Seneca Falls resulted in a score 6 to 0 in favor of Seneca Falls. George Arnold pitched for the Osbornes and did good work, striking out six men, but his support was ragged. The home team made 12 errors, McElroy and Baird contributing largely. The delegation from Moravia who were here to see the former Moravians put up a star game, went home much disgusted.

Lyon & Lyon, attorneys for John H. Osborne, editor of "The Index," Saturday served on Taber & Brainard, attorneys for John P. Jaekel, an answer to the complaint in the $50,000 libel suit brought against Mr. Osborne by the former State treasurer. The answer contains among other things general and special denials and alleged justification.

Zachariah Ward, who conducts the skimming station at Brackenbury's Corners in the town of Fleming, took a drink of milk Monday morning from a can in which a corrosive sublimate tablet, which is very poisonous, had been placed. He discovered his mistake a short time later. He went home immediately, took an emetic, and is now all right.

John A. Kraus has sold his cigar and tobacco business at No. 4 Genesee street to John C. Finch, formerly proprietor of the Avery House, possession being given Aug. 1. Mr. Kraus will hereafter devote his entire time to the conduct of his floral store.

Pope Casler, a farmer from Venice, went to the City hall about 11 o'clock Saturday night with a tale of woe, alleging that he had been robbed of about $70, somewhere about town. He was somewhat intoxicated when he went to police headquarters. In company with Roundsman Parker, several places that he had visited during the day, were again visited, but no trace of his money was found until the Peacock House was reached when $50 of the alleged $70 was found locked up in Landlord Durston's safe. It seems that Casler was brought to the Peacock House by a companion named Buckley about 6 o'clock Saturday evening and wished to be put to bed. Mr. Durston refused to give him a room and he then decided to sleep in the barn until sobered up. He was advised to leave his money in the hotel office and he gave Mr. Durston his roll containing just $50 and then forgot all about it. Casler also remembered buying a suit of clothes somewhere but didn't remember where he had left it. He had just $69 when he left home, and it is not at all probable that he was robbed of any great amount when the clothes, the $50 returned, and his tour of saloons Saturday is taken into consideration.

Officer Holmes brought a woman to police headquarters from the 12.23 train Sunday night. She wished to go to Hamilton avenue, but as there were no carriages at the station and she did not know the location of the street, the patrol wagon was utilized as a livery rig and she was conveyed to her destination in that vehicle.

William J. Orchard of Scipio, was about the "drunkest" man that the police have been compelled to drag to police headquarters in a long time. He was found in Chapel avenue Saturday afternoon. This morning he paid a fine of $5.

Hamilton's Drug Store

Moves this week to the new and large quarters at 39 Genesee street, Auburn, five doors east of the present location and next to the Cayuga County National Bank. The increasing demand for the Hamilton medicines requires larger facilities both for their manufacture and sale. The name Hamilton has become a household word in connection with his line of family medicines. That significant advice is often heard, "You buy the Hamilton medicines; they cured me, they will you." No remedies have ever caused so many heartfelt expressions of gratitude as Hamilton's. Every Saturday he has a special sale at his new store as follows: Colgate's 40 and 50 cent perfumes at 19c. per ounce. Superior 30 and 35 cent candy at 10c. a pound. Other days 15c. per pound. These goods are fresh from the factory each week. Fridays, special sale of 5 and 6 cent flavoring extracts lemon, peppermint and wintergreen only 3c. per ounce. Best 19c orange, vanilla and almond only 6c. per ounce. You will know the store by the big golden yellow sign over the door which reads, "Hamilton's Drug Store."

Armour's Fertilizers for Mr. Anthony

When a conservative farmer like Mr. Hicks Anthony of Aurora says that he has this year the best piece of wheat he ever raised or ever expects to raise, and when he gives Armour Grain Grower Fertilizer credit for a share of the work, it ought to mean something to other good farmers in Cayuga county, and there are many others who will say the same thing. One is Mr. Clinton Miller of Ludlowville, and another is Mr. John Y. Davis of Union Springs, who says that the Grain Grower not only produces a big crop but helps his grass in the following years. This is a very important matter to the farmers of Cayuga county as hay is the best paying crop they have, and Armour Fertilizers, filled with their bone and tankage product, do not leach but stay by and build up the soil in fertility.

DARING ENTERPRISE

VALUABLE INFORMATION SECURED BY GLEVER WORK OF UNION SPY.

One morning while Grant was besieging Petersburg, Va., a man of Jewish cast was riding on a train between Richmond and that city. He seemed to be taking pains to conceal his features behind a newspaper. Several persons in the car whispered that he was the confederate secretary of war, Judah P. Benjamin.

When the train reached Petersburg, the Jewish gentleman took a carriage, and, having driven several miles out of the city, alighted at the entrance to one of the principal forts. A sentry endeavored to stop him, but he paid no attention to the man, who threatened to shoot him if he did not halt, relates the Dallas (Tex.) Herald.

"Call the corporal," said the gentleman, turning impatiently.

"Corporal of the guard No. 4!" cried the sentry.

The corporal came, and the gentleman ordered him in authoritative tones to conduct him to the officer commanding the fort. When they reached headquarters, they found the colonel commanding engaged with a party of officers at a game of draw poker.

"A gentleman wishes to see you, sir," said the corporal, saluting.

The Jewish gentleman pushed by the corporal and stood glaring at the poker party.

"Colonel," he said, "I came out here expecting to find the place bristling with bayonets. Instead I find the commanding officer engaged at cards with his subordinates and most of his men asleep. If the enemy surprises you and captures this fort, our source of supply will be cut and our cause lost forever. While the president and his

"Colonel," he said, at departing, though more gently than before, "we are in a desperate situation. You better watch day and night; never sleep."

The next morning a facetious story appeared in a Richmond paper describing how a member of the cabinet had given a lesson of watchfulness to a confederate officer.

Meanwhile the Jewish gentleman, while driving through a wood north of the city, alighted from his carriage and dismissed the driver. As soon as he was alone he took off a wig, a piece of his nose, rubbed some paint off his face and, divesting himself of his frock coat, a loose sack appeared beneath. Tossing a silk hat aside, he took a cap from his pocket and put it on. Then he started on foot in the direction of the enemy's works.

The next day while Gen. Grant was sitting in his headquarters at City Point one of his principal secret service men was announced.

"Glad to see you back," said the general.

"The bullets that sang by me assured me the signal was seen."

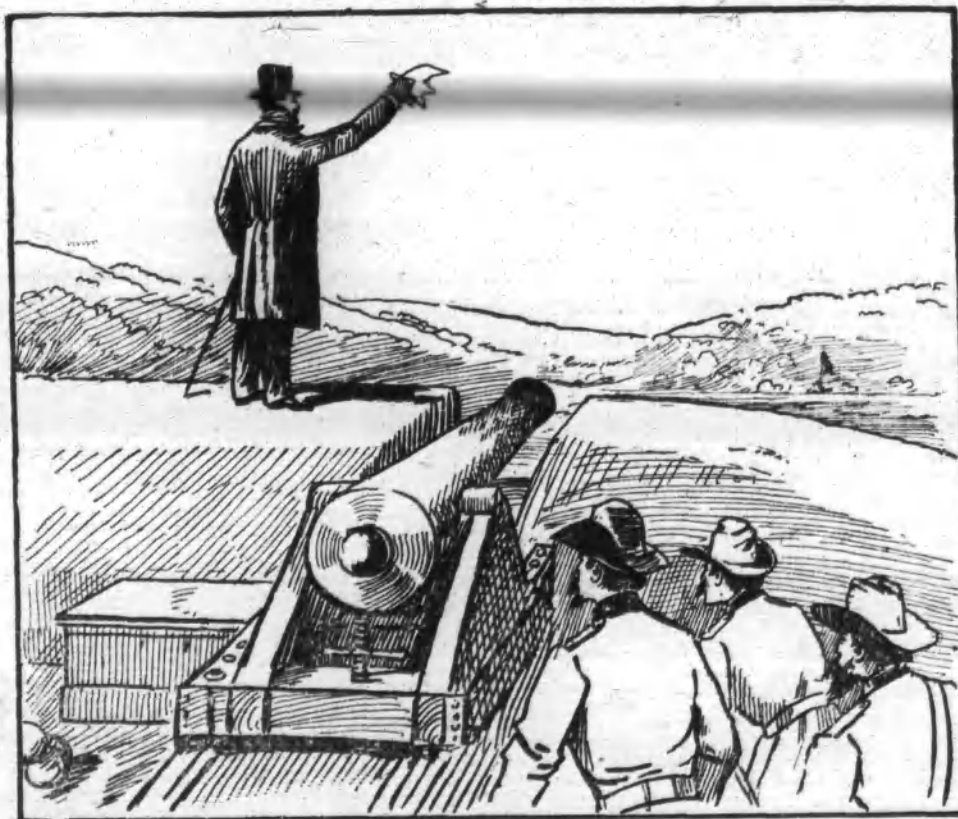

"Yes, and your exact position was ascertained with a theodolite."

"The magazine is ten paces to the south of where I stood, the center of the fort 30 paces to my rear."

"Very good. The engineers can now tell just where to locate the end of the tunnel. You have achieved a work as important as it was bold."

"I could never have accomplished the make-up necessary to play the part if I had not been an actor."

Three days later the fort visited by cabinet, the congress and the people of the confederate states are straining every nerve, you, defending a point which the enemy is determined to break through, are unwatchful. Do you know, sir, that in that line of works out there are men ready to take advantage of the slightest neglect?"

"May I know who you are, sir?" asked the officer, scrutinizing the speaker.

"You may not, sir. If President Davis were to come here to inspect your works, doubtless the guard would be turned out, a salute fired in his honor and everything in order. Mr. Davis knows that as well as you."

"The colonel does not recognize you, Mr. Benjamin," said one of the officers.

"Who said I was Mr. Benjamin?" growled the Jew. "Mind your own business, sir. Colonel, I desire to inspect the fort."

"Certainly, sir," said the colonel, obediently.

Passing into the earthwork, the Jew examined everything with the critical eye of a trained soldier. Nothing escaped him. "What do you mean by such a slight protection for your ammunition?" he asked, hotly. "That run is of no use there. Move it over here. The parapet is too low. You haven't sufficient depth for your guns."

The speaker was about to step into an exposed position when the colonel endeavored to stop him.

"A sharpshooter will pick you off in a second."

"Do you think, sir," said the other, "that we can win our independence by keeping out of the way of federal bullets? Must I, a citizen, show you, a soldier, your duty?"

"Mounting the parapet, he stood in full view of the enemy's picket line, but a few hundred yards distant. The officers in his company expected to see him pitch forward down the embankment. Indeed it is possible they may have wished that he would do so, though the man's bravery astounded them. But when he took out his white handkerchief and waved it in defiance they were appalled. A dozen bullets sang by his head, but none of them hit him, and he coolly descended from his exposed position.

the Jewish gentleman was blown up with several hundred barrels of powder. But that is a matter of history.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga., "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by A. E. Clark's drug store, King Ferry, N. Y. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

VIEWED HIS OWN GRAVE.

Strange Experience of an Indiana Man on a Civil War Battlefield.

William C. Phipps, of Indianapolis, accompanied the governor's party to Shiloh, April 4 last, for the dedication of the Indiana monuments, for the purpose of seeing whether he was still dead. He desired to view his resting place again, says an Indianapolis exchange.

"I am especially anxious to see this old battlefield," said Mr. Phipps, "for here I fought, bled and died in my youth."

"I was staggering about out of ranks when I was ordered to get to fighting. I told the officer that I was shot and he ordered me to the rear. My comrades saw me making for the nearest hospital, when a shell crashed into a decaying ash. The dirt and bark flew everywhere. I escaped with my eyes and mouth filled with the debris. My comrades felt sure that I was killed, and long after ward they picked up the mangled body of a man near the site of the explosion. It was mangled beyond recognition. They tenderly bore it away and buried it, and the rough board above the grave bore the inscription:

WM. C. PHIPPS.
Company A, 11th Indiana.
Died April 7, 1862.

"That night, when the fighting was done, they wrote home that I was killed."

"Strange as it was that I was not killed, I was not even injured by the explosion, and continued on my way to the rear. Finally a soldier overtook me and put me on his horse. Presently we came to a hospital in the woods and I asked the regiment. It was the Illinois regiment of which my brother was surgeon, but his assistant said that he was on Gen. Grant's staff. His assistant was very kind to me. I sat on a soap box while he dressed the wound in my breast."

Marshall's Ragamuffins.

"The pet aversion of the eastern Kentucky unionists," said an ex-confederate captain, "was Humphrey Marshall's ragamuffin regiment, the Fifth Kentucky C. S. A. This was composed exclusively of Kentucky mountaineers, great raw-boned fellows, all good fighters, and the regiment was one of the best in the confederate army. To illustrate their endurance and fortitude their colonel used to tell the story that in the winter of 1861 over 300 of his men were barefoot, and that he had only 100 blankets to 700 men."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Against bowel trouble. All young mothers know the alarm, worry and labor that accompany the complaints of infants and children during the summer season. Colic, diarrhoea, belly-ache, indigestion and the host of stomach and bowel troubles.

No wiser course can be taken by them than to keep on hand a bottle of Walley's "1197," by far the best of the many remedies on the market for such ailments. Unlike most of the others, it is absolutely free from injurious drugs, yet never fails to give relief and cure. It conquers the most extreme cases. Who hasn't heard of "1197"? Old and young alike are sure of speedy recovery in any bowel difficulty. Get a bottle when you visit Auburn if your local druggist does not keep it. Most of them do. Prepared only at the Old Reliable Drug Store.

Pie.

I know the thing's been wrote about
By many another chap;
I know it's said to be wore out,
But I don't care a rap.
I'm filled up with my subject, as
A feller ought to be;
An' I 'll jest die whenever pie
Quits lookin' good to me.

I grewed up in the country, where
They live on pie a heap.
I used to git up in the night
An' eat it in my sleep.
I've outgrewed tastes for other things,
But still it seems that I
Have not misplaced that boyhood taste
That always yearned for pie.

Take some ol' dirty resterrunt,
With fly specks on the bread,
With splinters in the sugar, an'
Some meat that's too long dead;
It al'ays kinder gags me when
I look aroun' the place,
But when my eye lights on a pie
A smile comes o'er my face.

I know I can't explain it, but
I've got it jest the same,
Somehow it sort o' thrills me
If I only hear its name.
Most anything between two crusts—
I ain't a-carin' what—
Jest so it's pie, it stands ace high;
I'll take it cold er hot.

Some says they'd hate to lose their sight,
Some's anxious 'bout their ears;
Some's skeered o' gettin' paralyzed—
Ain't none o' them my fears.
Take all the other things I got,
Don't care to hear ner see,
But let me die whenever pie
Quit's lookin' good to me.

The Law's Delays.

ACCORDING to a statement in a recent issue of the New York World, the number of lynchings, particularly in the northern states, is on the increase. It has been often stated, and we believe it is absolutely true, that the law's delays are responsible for the mob spirit and the mob violence in this country today. All over this country this mob spirit prevails and it will prevail just as long as lawyers and officers, making light of the law, permit delays to hinder justice, allow criminals to escape without strenuous effort to catch them, and consent to trials dragging on month after month to the disgust and contempt of the people who pay the taxes that foot the bills. Others believe as we do.

The New York Times, well known as a most conservative newspaper, deals with this question pointedly and plainly, and says: "When we are told that the supreme court of this judicial department in this state is three years behind its work in ordinary civil cases, we must know that the thing it administers cannot possibly be justice. Within three years plaintiffs die, witnesses die or depart or their memories become dim; no one is benefitted by the delay except the prisoner who has a bad case. Contemplating such a state of things, we perfectly understand why Shakespeare should have put into the mouth of Hamlet 'the law's delay' as one of the most frequent and urgent causes of suicide. In criminal cases, where a defendant, if he has money enough to hire a lawyer, can, after conviction, get his case carried from one court to another and from one judge to another, with every verse of the chapter in his favor, and at the worst protract for years his final punishment, we can readily understand though we cannot excuse a mob of ordinarily decent and law-abiding citizens, upon the commission of some atrocious crime that fires their indignation, refusing to 'abide the law,' such a law as it is, taking the law into their own hands and doing either rank injustice or doing justice unjustly. In many cases they may say that the mobs do not do less justice or justice more unjustly than the courts which are maintained at great expense to do 'justice according to law.'"

And then the Times wants to know what explanation there is. "Why, in this matter of speedy justice, should we be lagging in the rear of all civilized nations? We are inclined to believe that the common lay explanation is the true one, that the administration of law in this country is confined to the trade union of lawyers which includes the judges. The American judge under the system of our fixed terms, was a lawyer yesterday. He may be again, as an ex-judge a lawyer, so to speak, tomorrow. He still belongs to the union and can still show his 'card.'

His sympathies and interests are still with the calling from which he is only temporarily detached. We do not think our judges understand the depth or the extent of the public indignation to which their manner of administering what they say and nobody else thinks is justice, is giving rise. It is, however, a substantial sentiment and a potential source of political action upon the part of every layman whose misfortune it may be to become mixed up in a lawsuit. If this widespread, silent sentiment should some day find voice in a proposition for appointing a commission to revise the judicial system which should not contain a single lawyer, the judges and lawyers would at first simply laugh. But the case is not one for laughter."

Friendship Not a Right of Being Disagreeable.

FRIENDSHIP is a wholesome and admirable sentiment concerning which nearly all the philosophers—Socrates, Plato, Cicero, Montaigne, Bacon, Emerson, Sir John Lubbock and others—have discoursed and it is perhaps impossible to say anything new about it. It is good however, to repeat once in a while that friendship is not a privilege of making one's self disagreeable.

Some persons there are who abuse friendship. They treat friends as they would not dare treat servants; they are continually putting their friends to trouble, calling on them for burdensome or embarrassing services, presuming too much on their forbearance, and generally getting all they can out of them. In this way such people wear out and ultimately lose friends. A friend should be respected as well as loved. He has rights as well as duties, and, having rights, he may be wronged. Friends may be as intimate as they please, but not too familiar with one another. Intimacy is a state of mind, while familiarity is a mode of manners. Intimacy exchanges confidences; familiarity slaps on the back and picks its teeth in public. It is familiarity, not intimacy, that breeds contempt. Even between husband and wife there is a limit beyond which familiarity should not pass. Mutual good manners are not incompatible with mutual affection. A husband should be always as respectful and deferential to his wife as to any woman, and she as courteous to him as to any man. A little appearance of mutual respect will go a long way toward making marriage a success. The usual reason why brothers or sisters quarrel is because they are too familiar with each other. They do not study to make themselves mutually agreeable. A man has no right to use his friend as a mere convenience from whom he may borrow money which he is in no hurry to return; whom he may call upon for an endorsement of a note, now and then, and whose influence and help he demands constantly in a dozen ways. Some men have become so exacting with their friends that they are nuisances. They expect their friends to be puppets. If a friend presumes to have an opinion of his own these tyrannical persons are mightily offended. Unless one votes and thinks and acts exactly as they wish, he loses their friendship; and sometimes it is a relief to be dropped by such people. The exacting friend is very weak and uncertain when his services are really needed. He is fuller of promise than of performance; he is not a full believer in reciprocity—in brief, he is not a friend.

A Free Scholarship.

Any young man or woman who is a bona fide patron of this paper may secure free instruction in music or elocution.

The Ithaca Conservatory of Music, with the desire to stimulate the study of these arts, offers one free and one partial scholarship in each congressional district in New York state. Each scholarship is valued at $100 and is good for a term of twenty weeks beginning with the opening of the school year, Sept. 10, 1903, in any of the following departments: Voice, Violin, Piano, Organ and Elocution. These scholarships are awarded upon competition which is open to any one desiring a musical or literary education. Any one wishing to make application or desiring information should write to Mr. George C. Williams, the General Manager of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N. Y., before Sept. 1, 1903.

Pointer for Genoa.

The Rockland county board of supervisors has decided to abandon the method of putting gravel on top of the mud in working highways. Hereafter roads are to be excavated and a stone foundation put in. The stone method costs more but the results are so much better that it is considered economy in the end. Experience seems to prove that the soil and the climate does not warrant expending money as has been done. County supervisors may well look up the matter carefully and start macadamizing, though less miles be improved in any year.

THE VILLAGE NOTES

Tell me not, in mournful numbers
Life is but an empty dream;
When you dine on green cucumbers,
And finish off with pink ice cream.

—The wet weather continues.
—A big wild blackberry crop is promised.
—The peach crop promises to be a good one.
—The buckwheat crop looks promising.
—We have been having some decidedly cool nights.
—Jay D. Morton of Niagara Falls has been in town this week.
—Miss Emma A. Waldo visited friends at Cortland over the week.
—Frank J. Beardsley of North Lansing was in town on business Friday.
—Robert Denton started Tuesday for his home in Leavenworth, Kansas.

—L. E. Wood and wife of Cortland were guests of Theo. A. Miller on Sunday.
—Good streets and good roads are just as necessary to a good reputation as good clothes.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Heaton of Auburn renewed acquaintances in this town and Venice last week.
—Miss Iva Hoskins of Scipio was the guest of relatives and friends here a day or two last week.

—Jon P. Stickles and family have moved into the Baptist parsonage. John will work for D. W. Gower.

—Ms. Angeline Prince of Orleans Co., and Mrs. Arthur Mead and Ms. Anna Mead were guests at D. W. Mead's Wednesday.

—The new organ which has been hard in the Baptist church has been shipped away, having been sold by the owners to a society at Binghamton.

—The Venice town picnic is announced for August 20th, and the famous orchestra of Smith and McDenott has been engaged to furnish music for the occasion.

—In Montana the remains of a pre-historic man nine feet tall have been discovered. Everything considered we are rather glad that such fellows were pre-historic. They might have had occasion to lick the editor.

—D. V. Smith has added a soda water fountain to his well appointed place of business. The ingredients one from the Sagar drug store (which soda water is so well known) and one is now able to procure fine, pure tasty drink of any desired flavor.

—Repairs to the village school building are now under way. D. W. Gow is doing the carpenter work and S. Weaver and son are doing the painting. The premises will be much improved that perhaps some of us will wish we were back in the old school days.

—City papers frequently sneer at the so-called trivial items inserted in the local papers. Which leads us to remark that a Rochester Sunday paper had a third of a column on the death of a no-account, ordinary, every-day cat. Talk about "stuffing," the daily papers run columns of stuff no respectable newspaper would think of giving space in its columns.

—Seth Lewis, for several years a well known and respected resident of the village, died at his home early Thursday morning, July 30, after many months of illness and pain. He was about 72 years old, and formerly resided at Moravia. He was married and had three sons, who have joined in making his last days as comfortable as possible, survive. The funeral was held at the late residence Saturday at 1 o'clock, R. H. S. Lyle officiating. Burial was made at Moravia.

In spite of all that "tongue or pen" Have said about what "might have been"

There is no getting round it,
We help the situation when
We stop to think it "might have been"
Much worse than we have found it.

—Additional local on page 8.
—Jane A. Louw has returned from Clifton Springs.

—Isn't it about time for sliced cucumbers with ice on the side?

—Will D. Norman is home from his work on the road this week.

—Miss Maud Stacey of Elbridge is the guest of the Misses Sellen this week.

—E. S. Preston, the insurance man from Ithaca, was in town Monday on business.

—D. C. Hunter and F. C. Hagin spent the day yesterday with the finny tribe at Farleys.

—Mrs. John Hutchison has joined Mr. H. at Farleys and they will spend several weeks there.

—School Commissioner Atwater and wife have moved to Moravia where they expect to reside for some time.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Sellic of Canada and Miss Maud Linderman of Cortland visited at D. C. Mosher's the fore part of the week.

—Mrs. A. G. Ellis and Mrs. George Ellis of Levanna and Mrs. Alfred Ellis of Belmont were guests of Mrs. Myran Swayze the first of the week.

—Mrs. Arthur Sellen and sons of Genoa were guests of Mrs. R. A. VanArsdale Wednesday on their way to Auburn.—Moravia Republican.

—Kalvrisky's ad; read it.

—The ball game at Union Springs last week resulted in a score of 16 to 5 in favor of Union Springs. The Genoa ball players were there part of the time, we are told.

—Lansing Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, with their gentlemen friends are to be entertained by Mr. and Mr. Charles Barger this evening, at their home at Five Corners.

—The most unpleasant occupation if in the line of duty, may be enjoyable if guided by a cheerful heart and contented mind. Drudgery rightly improved is always a stepping stone to something better.

Notice to District Clerks.
All clerks of school districts in the town of Genoa are requested to file their reports with the town clerk immediately, as required by law.

The School Meeting.

There was a very small attendance at the annual village school meeting Tuesday evening, less than a dozen taxpayers being present. The meeting was called to order by Dr. Skinner, and Wm. Sharpsteen was elected chairman. The report of the trustees was read by Theodore A. Miller. The receipts for the year ending July 31 were as follows: From supervisor, $400.20; from tax levied $811.31; tuition $66; rent of hall $38.08; balance in treasury from year 1902 $42.08, making a total of $1367.67. The payments were as follows: Teachers' wages $1,144.50; library $20.10; repairs $3.50; other expenses including janitor, printing, supplies, cartage, incidentals, unpaid taxes, etc., $199.57, total $1,367.67. There is a deficiency of about $50, which amount is required to meet unpaid obligations. The estimates for the coming year were then voted on as follows: Teachers' wages $898; janitor $50; fuel $75; cleaning $10; incidentals $50; library $10; also $100 in case it is found necessary by the trustees to engage a third teacher. Of the $500 appropriated at the special school meeting for repairs to the building, one-half is to be raised by tax and one-half by note for one year. F. Sullivan was elected trustee for three years; J. S. Banker treasurer; Thos. Tyrrell collector; D. W. Smith clerk.

F. W. MILLER, - GENOA.
AVERY'S OLD STAND.

A FOOLISH LITTLE SONG.

I have read the wondrous poems of the masters of the pen, The sonnets of the Shakespeares and the odes of other men, And the epics of the Miltons and the Homers and the rest, And the mild didactic measures that the critics call the best; But sometimes the heart grows weary of the big things of the earth, And the great eternal questions, and the laws of death and birth; It turns from all the woes of life that make the years so long, And responds in joyous fullness to a foolish little song!

Just a foolish little song— How it helps the heart along! All the sweeter for a meter that is lame, a rhyme that's wrong! All the better for the fetter of a simple little air; All the nearer, all the dearer—what does anybody care? The words may not be pregnant with a world of hidden truth, But they call to mind the long-forgotten summers of your youth; The tune may not be classic—it may be a hackneyed thing— But a man can't think of Wagner when he only wants to sing! And just as men turn backward when the shadows nearer creep, To a foolish, childish prayer like "Now I lay me down to sleep," So the tired spirit often woos the memories that throng With the rhyming and the chiming of a foolish little song!

Just a foolish little song— How it helps the heart along! All the sweeter for a meter that is lame, a rhyme that's wrong! All the better for the fetter of a simple little air; All the finer for a line or two of nonsense here and there! —Edwin Mead Robinson, in Chicago Evening Post.

A Difficult Client

By MRS. M. L. RAYNE

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

HE had galloped into the little town of Sunup with a nervous assumption of manly excellence and honesty that commended him to the keen regard of grizzled valleymen and miners loafing at saloon doors as a newcomer of some importance, with a justifiable errand to draw him thither. Inside of an hour he was locked up in jail to prevent his being lynched. This was due to a telegram that followed in his wake.

"Joplin, Mo.—Valuable horse stolen here last night from Leonard & Co. Hold any stranger riding such an animal until arrival of deputy. By order of sheriff.

"HIRAM JACKSON."

The only lawyer in the little town of Sunup was the highest official there, and was interested in the stranger to see that justice was done according to the legal code of state law instead of by lynching, as had been the peremptory method in the case of a "hoss thief," for which crime the law had not provided an adequate punishment, according to popular views.

Lawyer Denison knew that the Sunup jail was not strong enough to resist the attacks of a mob. Missouri jails seldom are, for in that state the penal code is sanctioned by tradition—a strong rope and short shrift. Since the young lawyer had succeeded to the profession of his father there had not been a single case of lynching, for the reason that he was cool-headed and too progressive to follow in the easy-going steps of his predecessor, who allowed popular opinion to decide a case for him, throwing the obloquy of an unjust verdict on the shoulders of the people. Andrew Denison—the son—made himself responsible for the administration of law and order. So far he had succeeded even beyond his own expectations, and now, in a moment, here was the wild beast of mob rule growling and showing its teeth. He did not show the anxiety he felt as he hurriedly, but with dignity, went to call upon his client in the jail. He found the stranger a young man of most attractive personality, but he was not banking just then on appearances. "To begin with," said the lawyer, briefly, "what is your name?"

"Andrew Denison."

"What? You did not understand me. I asked your name."

"And I gave it. My name is Andrew Denison."

"But that is my own name. It would be a remarkable coincidence if you should bear the same. If you have chosen it as an alias I must request you to find another. It would be embarrassing to retain it and cause unnecessary comment."

"The name is mine and was my father's before me," the prisoner spoke with conviction, and the lawyer believed him, but the case assumed a new aspect. This might be one of his own kin, and blood is thicker than water.

"You say it was your father's name—I had an uncle named Andrew Denison, who went away from home and was never heard from. Where did your family live—in what state?"

The prisoner shrugged his lithe, muscular shoulders. "Don't ask me," he said, "I did what my father did—ran away from home when a mere lad—but I have never been in trouble until now. It is more than likely that the whole story will come out if I am swung off at a rope's end here. I will be the victim, but it will be a grievance thought the best to name all your life that one of your own blood was sacrificed an innocent man."

"This is too strange to be true," muttered the lawyer, nervously. "Stranger facts are happening every day. But we are wasting time. I must get out of this accursed hamlet, where they do not know an honest man when they see one. I know I have not much of a case. I bought my horse of a stranger when I was footsore and weary, asking no questions. I fancy I know an honest man from a thief."

His tones were cynical, but with good reason. The troubled lawyer saw only one possibility—to liberate him stealthily, and give him the disputed horse to ride over the hills and far away. He was debating this plan in his mind when the prisoner said:

"Here is a roll of money. Give me one chance on my horse's back for life and freedom and I'll put wings to his heels. My trusty revolver has been taken, but I would rather escape without bloodshed. I will find a place where honest men are not accounted rogues, and will write you from that point—remember, as a namesake, if not a relative, I demand your protection."

Early the next morning a deputy sheriff from Joplin put in an appearance. He was new to the office, and he fairly swelled with official importance, and puffed his cheeks until he resembled a cherub in their fatness.

"I'm here to arrest that hoss stealing feller and take the crack roadster of Leonard & Co. back to 'em. Lord, what nerve the thief had to untie that hoss in its stall and ride off with him? In broad daylight, too, and folks that see him thought he were takin' him out for air—in'. Here's my orders and credentials to get the animal and have the feller taken back to Joplin for a trial—if he lives to get there," and he winked at the crowd that was gathering and increasing every minute.

"Can you describe the man?" asked Lawyer Denison, stepping to the front.

"N-o-o," said the deputy, "but I know the hoss, and the feller that rode it is the thief—he can't explain that away."

"Wait a moment, my friend. You are not judge and jury in this case, and I have heard the prisoner's story, that he bought the horse from a man who was a stranger to him. He must be given time to prove that. Meanwhile, can you identify the horse?"

"Yes, yes, fetch out the horse—he's the evidence in this case," called out an authoritative voice from the crowd.

"Read a description of the animal first," commanded Lawyer Denison, in cool, curt tones.

"Certes. Here it goes. A red bay, black mane and tail, white star in his forehead—high stepper—gets over the ground like a bird."

"That's him, an', he's a beaut," bawled a loafer, who had not seen the horse or its rider. The heart of Andrew Denison sank within him. To gain time he began to badger the deputy.

"You are positive that your description of the stolen horse is correct?"

"Sure. Got it from the owner, the man that raised him from a colt."

"You are willing to swear that the horse which is here is the same animal?"

"Sure. That's what I'm here for—we've had pointers. Why, the star on his forehead will be evidence enough—won't it?"

"Bring out the horse," ordered the lawyer, turning to the keeper of the jail. "We will see if the identification is complete. Keep back"—to the threatening crowd, "the prisoner has not yet been proven guilty."

A murmur of admiration burst on the air as the proudly stepping horse was led forth, also a howl of derision and chagrin. The finely proportioned roadster was a dingy brown instead of a bright bay. He had not a white hair in his coat, and the star in his forehead was not ever so faintly visible. His mane and tail were of the same uniform pale brown, and he gave no evidence of having been carefully groomed during the season. His shape was good, and there was speed in his apparent action—these were his best points.

"Well, I'll be hanged," said the deputy, "what kind of a fool's errand am I on, anyway? I never saw that horse in Joplin or anywhere else. You can give the stranger his nag for all me. I'm takin' the next train home myself."

The prisoner was free. He did not delay for thanks or parley, but, mounting the waiting horse, was off like the wind. A shot was fired after him for luck, Andrew Denison's heart throbbled high with dread and thanksgiving—his namesake had escaped by a very narrow margin. A few weeks later he received a letter from a distant state. It read:

"Lawyer Denison: Your dislike of lynching bees would have saved my life even if my own devices had failed. Only a sure fool like that deputy would have seen that the horse was doctored—a little powder had changed bay to brown and erased the telltale star. I feel certain that you were mind reader enough to know the truth and humane enough to save me for relation's sake. Pardon the ruse. I have sold the horse for a goodly sum, which I would gladly send you, but dare not. My name is not and never will be—Andrew Denison."

The lawyer tore the letter into shreds and cast them to the winds. "Something tells me that I have compounded a felony," he said to himself, "but even so, better that than the death of one innocent of the hands of Judge Lynch."

That one of your own blood was sacrificed an innocent man."

"This is too strange to be true," muttered the lawyer, nervously.

"Stranger facts are happening every day. But we are wasting time. I must get out of this accursed hamlet, where they do not know an honest man when they see one. I know I have not much of a case. I bought my horse of a stranger when I was footsore and weary, asking no questions. I fancy I know an honest man from a thief."

His tones were cynical, but with good reason. The troubled lawyer saw only one possibility—to liberate him stealthily, and give him the disputed horse to ride over the hills and far away. He was debating this plan in his mind when the prisoner said:

"Here is a roll of money. Give me one chance on my horse's back for life and freedom and I'll put wings to his heels. My trusty revolver has been taken, but I would rather escape without bloodshed. I will find a place where honest men are not accounted rogues, and will write you from that point—remember, as a namesake, if not a relative, I demand your protection."

"The Mineral Bath City."

Twenty-one miles north of Detroit is situated Mount Clemens, a City known as "The Carlsban of America," at which place thousands of people visit every year for treatment of different ailments; and the wonderful cures that are made with rheumatic sufferers are almost miraculous. Principal among the diseases cured are those that accrue from traces of uric acid in the blood. But the waters of the Springs are a panacea and cure for bilious and liver troubles, digestive troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc.

A handsome booklet giving all particulars with regard to Mount Clemens can be had by applying to ROBERT BUSHBY, Traveling Passenger Agent, Grand Trunk Ry. System, Cortland, N. Y.

A Real Circus.

Extraordinary interest has been aroused by the announcement that the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth is to exhibit in Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 12, and this locality will be represented by a notably large delegation of circus-goers. As already announced, this will be the first opportunity to see the big show since its return from Europe, but apart from this fact, the magnitude and high character of America's leading amusement institution are sufficient to create a genuine and irresistible demand for it all over the country. The best arene features of the European circuses have been lavishly provided for the present tour, while the spectacular displays surpass in beauty and brilliancy the most fantastic flights of the imagination. A gorgeously costumed ballet, startling aerial feats, in seemingly endless variety; intrepid, thrilling display of horsemanship, wonderful exhibitions of trained animal intelligence, a complete traveling zoo, a congress of freaks, and a glorious, patriotic display of the famous fighting ships of the United States Navy are among the surpassing features of this colossal amusement institution. The Barnum & Bailey tents are lighted with electricity; every ticket to the show has a coupon, and every seat is provided with a foot rest. There are things unknown with other shows. A magnificent free street parade inaugurates the circus engagement. Local ticket agents can give information regarding low rates and special excursion trains.

Gayuga County Directory With Map.

Frederic A. Mohr, publisher of the Cayuga County Directory, wishes to announce his subscribers, and to the public at the greater part of the first volume of his work, (Southern Cayuga) now in the hands of the printer. It will contain an accurate directory of all the towns at the present time with the new rural delivery addresses. The changes caused by the new routes made it advisable to delay publication until this year.

CONTENTS.

Brief historical sketches showing the origin and titles, the settlement of the county and general progress.

An illustrated review of the county districts, villages and cities as they are today.

A complete directory of every town and village, with a list of non-resident owners of each town. A full list of all rents of each town. A business directory of Auburn.

Statistical tables, showing vote of each town and ward for twenty years, also wealth, population, etc., compiled from the recent census.

A great deal of new information of miscellaneous nature, valuable for every person, especially farmers, in Cayuga County.

Classified business list showing the stockholders, poultrymen, dairymen, apists and creameries.

Prices range from $2.00 to $6.00, bound in cloth.

All orders should be sent to Frederick A. Mohr, Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y. Care Greenfield & Aiken. Sample pages at on application. Agents wanted.

Fire, Etna.

The two children of Nathan Lockwood, a farmer residing near Etna, were playing in hay barn Sunday and lighted a fire. Almost immediately the hay caught fire and though Mr. Lockwood and others made every effort to quench the flames, all his tools and a pig were burned. Loss is stated at $2,000 with $750 insurance. Earlier in the day a new mill about half a mile from the place was burned. The engine and saw were not injured by the fire.

FOR SALE—The undersigned will sell as a bargain a 14-horse power Birdsall engine and Stevens threshers, all practically good as new; together with 2 wagons complete; will sell at great sacrifice. Enquire of E. Her, 99 Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y. or C. F. Rich, Cato, N. Y.

FOR SALE—5000 lb sand, only 2 cts. per bushel. Cook & Son.

TWO FRIGHTENED PICKETS.

Thought They Were In Danger from Confederates, But the Disturber Was Harmless.

In July, 1902, down in Alabama, near Woodville, four of our men, only two of them having guns, encountered a band of bushwhackers, who fired upon them from the rear. Gallant Joe Hitchcock, carrying a gun,

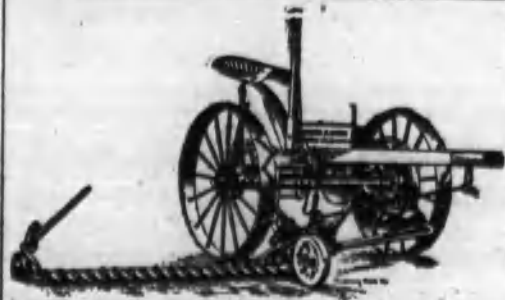

WE WERE BOTH SCARED SO WAS THE HOG.

was the only one of the four not wounded. The bushwhackers then charged, but Hitchcock turned and fired his gun, checking, somewhat, the impetuosity of the bushwhackers' assault. He then picked up the other gun and fired again. The lone Hitchcock had the satisfaction of seeing one of the bushwhackers fall. Losing interest in the proceedings, the assailants gathered up their horse-combat comrades and took to the woods. One of our wounded men subsequently died. I relate this episode by way of preface to my story, says E. Houghtaling, in National Tribune.

One very dark night John Snider and I were on picket in a lane about 50 rods from Woodville. As the encounter with the bushwhackers had occurred near where we were stationed, we kept wide awake, intently listening for the slightest sound. Snider was on one side of the lane and I on the other. Nervously expectant, we were very quiet. Suddenly we heard an awfully terrifying noise, seemingly some four or five rods in our front. Thinking of the dark and devious ways of the bushwhackers, we were duly scared, and, for the moment, paralyzed. Presently Snider crawled over to my position and huskily whispered: "What in the — do you suppose it is?" In a like whisper I replied: "I don't know, but I am not going to stay here in dread suspense. I'm going to move forward and develop the enemy." Said Snider: "All right. You go ahead, and I'll follow." Traveling on all fours, we cautiously advanced, single file, down the lane. Now and then Snider would pull my leg, indicating that he wanted me to halt and hold a council of war. His inquiry, in a stage whisper, was always the same: "What do you think it is?" Shaking him off, I would whisper back: "I guess we shall find out soon enough; keep still as a mouse, and have your gun ready. I think we are right on 'em. Wait and see." Stealthily approaching an excavation made by the roots of an upturned tree, we heard a slight noise. I impressively whispered to Snider: "Get your gun ready. We are right on the spot." As an advanced skirmisher, I pushed myself a little further forward, when, lo and behold, I heard a mighty grunt and then saw a big hog scramble out of that hole and go wabbling off in undignified retreat. I know it was a big hog for two reasons. We had killed all the small ones, and surely no little hog could have scared two big 19-year-old boys with guns in their hands. Concerning that Indian-like advance of two nervous pickets, Snider and I were duly reticent. There is no denying the facts. We were both scared. So was the hog.

THE VILLAGE NOTES.

King Ferry.
Aug. 6.—Newell Lyon died at Port-land, Me., Sunday, Aug. 2. His remains were brought here for burial on Wednesday, Aug. 5.

Died—At her home in Huron, Wayne Co., N. Y., July 29, 1903, Mrs. Sara Riggs, aged 58 years. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Thomas of Ledyard, N. Y., and was loved and respected by all who knew her. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of their many friends.

Rev. J. S. Jewell of Otego, N. Y., a former pastor of this place, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sunday, Aug. 9.

Mrs. Fred Brown and daughter, and Mr. David King of New York City are the guests of W. H. Peckham and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Grant of Scipio spent Sunday at Frank Holland's.

Mrs. Chas. F. Randall and daughters of Boston are spending a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. R. G. Jenkins.

Richard Lyon of St. Joseph, Mich., is the guest of his brother, Brainard Lyon.

W. S. Wilcox of Cortland is spending the week with his cousin, Fred Weyant.

Miss Greenfield of Moravia is the guest of Miss Mary Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Tremaine are entertaining company from Peckskill.

It pays to feed your live stock an abundance of good food, and it will pay you equally well to feed your plants, Armour's Animal Fertilizers; they need it.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Willis spent Saturday and Sunday with their daughter and family in Cortland.

—Mrs. W. C. Rogers and daughter returned Tuesday from a ten days' visit with relatives and friends in Auburn.

—With haying, wheat and oat harvesting in such close proximity, with corn, potatoes and root crops needing attention, the farmers are not likely to have much spare time at present.

—People who are about out of worrying material may now worry about the comet. It has a tail 3,000,000 miles long and, according to the memories of our childhood, is likely to hit the earth and burn it up.

—Mrs. Martha Gilkey suffered a very serious and painful accident Wednesday evening. Some plank which had been used in paper hanging were on the floor of the house and Mrs. Gilkey stepped on one of them which turned, causing her to fall and dislocate and break an ankle. She is doing as well as can be expected.

—Have you seen the comet? On a clear night it is visible to the naked eye but it may be seen to a better advantage with a pair of opera or field glasses. Look between 9 and 10 o'clock in the northeastern sky near the bowl of the Little Dipper and the hazy light you observe is the comet. With a good glass the tail may be distinguished.

LONG-LASTING TASTES.

Flavors of Some Things Come Back to One After the Lapse of Many Years.

"It is a curious thing how the flavors of certain things will come back to a man after the lapse of many years," said an observant man, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "and often without any sort of an excuse, unless we are to rely upon rather finely spun theories for an excuse. Many years ago I took to cod liver oil. Men who have taken cod liver oil will understand that there is no special reason why one should forget the peculiar flavor of this article. But my experience is not simply a question of memory. I have experienced the physical fact, not once, but a number of times since I quit taking it. Even to-day the taste of cod liver oil came back to me, and it was as fresh on my palate as it was when I last put it there. Now, why is this? Why should I taste cod liver oil years after I quit taking it? I cannot say. I cannot be mistaken when I say I experienced all the physical symptoms of the taste. Were it not for this fact I might account for it on the ground of association. Some fact, or something or other, intimately associated with the fact of taking cod liver oil, might have caused me to remember rather vividly the taste. But things remembered, no matter how vivid the picture, no matter how intimate the associated fact which brings the picture back, are not as fresh as the things of the moment. I taste cod liver oil, feel it on my palate, and, in fact, experience all the physical unpleasantness of the dose, and I'm sure the fact cannot be accounted for by the theory of the association of ideas. It is up to the doctor."

JUVENILE REASONING.

An Instance of Mature Wisdom Equal to Any Ever Uttered by the Sages.

"Children have their own way of reasoning out things, and often they are direct, forceful and even eloquent," said a man who takes great interest in children, relates the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "and really, I sometimes think they are much keener mentally than grown folk. There is a world of rich, mature wisdom in the little sayings and doings of children, if one will pause in the hurly-burly of the fast life we lead to gather it. At an uptown home the other evening I was very much amused at a little conversation I heard between the mother and two of her offspring who had become involved in a quarrel over marbles. 'Why, dearies,' said the mother, coaxingly, 'why don't you let your brother have some of your marbles to play with?' 'Well, he keeps 'em,' the youngster said, grumblingly; 'he won't give 'em back.' 'Oh, I guess not,' said the fond parent. 'Well, I guess yes,' the youngster replied, 'for he swallows 'em.' There was logic for you in a nutshell, logic without equivocation, eloquent and convincing. How can you get around reasoning of that sort? You simply can't beat it, and yet it is the kind of wisdom we often get from the lisping lips of children."

The New York World.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION. THE MOST WIDELY READ NEWSPAPER IN AMERICA.

Time has demonstrated that the Thrice-a-Week World stands alone in its class. Other papers have imitated its form but not its success. This is because it tells all the news all the time and tells it impartially, whether that news be political or otherwise. It is in fact almost a daily at the price of a weekly and you cannot afford to be without it.

Republican and Democrat alike can read the Thrice-a-Week World with absolute confidence in its truth.

In addition to news, it publishes first-class serial stories and other features suited to the home and fireside.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 15 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Genoa Tribune together one year for $1.50.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $1.50.

Will also send both papers on trial subscription, 4 months for 50 cents or 3 months for 40 cents.
