Venice Center--West Hill.

JULY 10—The new moon storm came with a rush on time, as a kind of aftermath to the many showers preceding.

The glorious Fourth was as quiet in this region as a New England Sabbath. Like many other "old things" it seems to have lost some of its prestige and is quite forgotten if not dead.

The Oregon Medicine Co. still remain at Poplar Ridge. Strange to relate we hear of some of their patrons being quite ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Wood returned from Cortland via Moravia. H. H. Wood, wife and daughter dined with them at L. E. Wood's on Sunday.

As it did not rain the first Sabbath in July we hope for pleasant ones during the month. Will some of our good Germans who make the 2nd of July as a weather guide, please explain to us the meaning of the legend "Mary went over the mountain wet" or "Mary went over the mountain dry," just as the weather happens to be on that day?

John Beebe went to the funeral of Eugene Cooper at Union Springs. Burial at that place.

The many friends of Mrs. Dr. Slocum of Genoa are much saddened over her continued illness and hope for her speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Andrews visited at Lowell Mason's last week. Mrs. Mason has not quite recovered her former health.

Those who met Mrs. E. T. Curtis and daughter two years ago will be pleased to know that Miss Bertha graduated with full honors especially in music, and is solicited to sing in future in the First Congregational church in Fargo.

L. E. Wood and family are expected when berries are ripe. They are few and green at present.

Miss Maggie Donovan has rendered kind and helpful attendance at intervals on Mrs. Dr. Slocum.

Mrs. Samuel Wheat while gathering eggs chanced to fall on the reaper, one of the guards inflicting a serious injury on the right lower limb a few inches below the knee. Though a painful wound it is doing as well as can be expected.

What are others' faults to me?
I've not a virtue's bill
To pick at every flaw I see
And make it wider still;
'Tis quite enough for me to know
I've failings of my own;
And on myself my care bestow
And let my friends alone.

If a Man Lie to You

A Great Change.

Such a change from cold to warm and even hot weather at this time of the year always brings flies, bugs and insects of all kinds to bother the housewife and make everyone else miserable. The only remedy for this is to secure screens for the windows and doors, and these goods we carry in stock in all the common sizes and at small cost. With the same change the farmer will soon be into haying, and as the very first load is drawn in on the barn floor, a pulley may be missing, a floor hook broken, or some thing will be out of order that was not thought of. We wish to say that we carry a large stock of Harpoon Forks, Pulleys and such things that go to make up a haying outfit, and also Scythes, Snaths, Forks, Rakes, Scythe Stones, etc.

We have also just added to our stock a complete line of Steel Agate Ware, such as tea kettles, tea pots, coffee pots, stew pans, stew kettles, pails, dippers, etc. and from the experience of many housewives we've learned that it would be impossible to get along without these goods after they were once used—especially the stew pan during the canning season. We also have a large stock of Mason's improved fruit jars on hand in pint and quart sizes, as well as the best can rubbers to fit same. We pay the highest market prices for butter and eggs in exchange for goods; come and try us once and be convinced that here's a good place to trade.

Ludlowville.

JULY 16—Several serious washouts in different parts of the town occurred during the storm of last Wednesday night. One was near the former Morey place two miles west of the Lake road and the most serious one on the Melville Brooks place. Here an immense cut five feet deep was made through one of the finest fields, the whole amount of gravel being washed into the ditches on either side of the road, causing serious havoc in the roadway. Commissioner Buck put a force of men at work to rectify the damage.

While working on the road near S. Townsend's on Friday last, Clarence Buck was bitten in several places by Mr. Townsend's dog. Heavy clothing prevented the wounds being very deep and Mr. Buck has resumed his work.

David Clark, who with the other members of his family has been suffering from the measles epidemic, is critically ill.

On Saturday M. E. Sperry was kicked by a colt which he was leading and his left arm was fractured.

Mrs. N. D. Chapman and daughter of New York are guests at N. E. Lyon's. Miss Amie Lazar who has been visiting friends here has returned home.

AUBURN.

AUBURN, July 16—William N. Mosher, who has been in trouble before, has renewed his residence at the county jail where he arrived Friday evening from Locke. Mosher has a criminal record that is not enviable. His latest offense against the law is the alleged crime of larceny and burglary, as preferred by one Ebin Reeves and on which charge he was held by Justice Brooks to await the action of the next grand jury. He is alleged to have stolen a silver watch valued at $6.50 and $1.50 in money from Reeves. He is 30 years of age. Mosher already has an indictment hanging over him charging him with manslaughter. He and another fellow named Brown became involved in a squabble in a pool room at Locke conducted by Ralph C. Stark some time ago. Stark took a hand in the fight as peace maker and dropped dead. The inquest that followed proved that he was suffering from a heart difficulty. However, both Mosher and Brown were arrested and their cases were taken before the grand jury, which body failed to indict Mosher but found a true bill against Mosher for manslaughter in the second degree. Subsequently he was released on bail and his case has never been brought to trial.

The flour and feed store of W. L. Noyes in East Genesee street was entered by burglars Thursday night and about $5 in change taken from the money drawer. It is believed that an entrance was gained by climbing over the transom of the front door. Exit was easy, as the door is fitted with a spring lock. Officer Keagan reported the door as found open when he made his rounds that night and it is thought that the burglars escaped in a hurry, pulling the door shut but without sufficient force to spring the lock. The door, according to Mr. Noyes, was securely shut when he left the store.

Dr. Burton K. Hoxie died Saturday morning at his home, No. 42 Elizabeth street, after an illness of four months. Pneumonia was the cause of death. Dr. Hoxie was a son of Jonathan and Lany Hoxie and was born in the town of Sempronis March 23, 1830. For 20 years he practiced medicine in Scipio and for the past 30 years he had been a resident of Auburn. He was for several years prison physician. Besides his wife he is survived by one son, Dr. Burton K. Hoxie, Jr., and two brothers, Nelson of Owasco, and Evelyn, of this city. Dr. Hoxie was a mild mannered man who made many friends. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, of the City club and an ardent lover of horses, having been prominently identified with the old Turf club. Funeral services, which were in charge of Salem Town commandery No. 16, Knights Templar, were held at his late home Tuesday. Burial at Van Etten cemetery, Owasco.

Wesley Scott, of Fleming Hill, died Friday evening after a long illness. Mr. Scott was a member of Company E, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Infantry, and served in the Civil war from Aug. 28, 1862 until he was honorably discharged June 19, 1865. His regiment was on Dec. 19, 1862, changed to the Ninth Artillery. Faithful as a soldier and citizen, his death will be a cause of sorrow to all who knew him. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. John L. Murdock, of Maeksburgh, Oregon; Miss Harriet Scott, of Auburn; Miss Eva Scott, of Fleming; and two sons, William, of this city, and Irvie D. Scott, of Fleming.

Perhaps after a time Auburn young men will come to understand that they cannot come to this village and abuse horses by fast driving and otherwise without suffering the penalty of the law. Saturday, Officer Bennett arrested Thos. Dugan for fast driving, and when he was arraigned before Justice Harrington he was found guilty and fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $14.50. On Thursday Officers Rude and Moll hauled up Albert LaBuff and Frank Simons, both of Auburn, for a similar offense, and they were fined $50 apiece or fifty days in the county jail. They decided to board with Sheriff Colton and were taken there yesterday by the officers making the arrests—Weedsport Chief.

The whereabouts of Core, who skipped away from the officers, is still unknown. Perhaps no desperate effort is being made to locate him.

The Yates county Republican convention was held at Penn Yan Saturday and the following delegates, instructed for Representative Sereno E. Payne, were named for the Congressional convention: George R. Cornwell, J. Monroe Lown, Edmund Crossie and Allen Loomis. Resolutions were adopted commending Representative Payne.

A dispatch from Albany tells about an investigation that has been set on foot by the State Excise department into all of the hotels throughout the State with a view to determining those that are what are commonly known as Raines law hotels. The county treasurers of the several counties have furnished lists of the hotels in their respective counties to State Excise Commissioner Cullinan and the latter will report the list back to chiefs of police, district attorneys and other proper authorities of the several communities for their investigation of the hotels for the purpose of determining if the hotels are living up to the letter of the law. Some time ago County Treasurer Loughborough furnished Commissioner Cullinan with a list of hotels in this city and county.

John Everitt, who shot Joseph B. Englerth, one of the striking wood workers in Rochester Friday evening last, is a former resident of Union Springs and Cayuga, this county, owning property in both places, and is well known throughout the South end of the county. He is now under arrest in the Flower City on the charge of assault with intent to kill and his victim lies in St. Mary's hospital with a 32 calibre bullet lodged so deeply in his left hip that it cannot be extracted. Unless blood poisoning sets in he will recover. Everitt shot Englerth because a party of strikers, of which the latter was a member, called him a "scab." After wounding Englerth Everitt fired a second shot that went wild.

James Sims of Cazenovia was 100 years old last Wednesday. His health is remarkably good. He cast his first vote for John Quincy Adams and has voted at every presidential election since. The whole village did him honor at the anniversary of his birthday.

Mrs. Carrie Parks of Genoa was examined in supplementary proceedings Monday before John H. Sawyer as referee. Judgment was rendered against Mrs. Parks before Justice of the Peace Elder in favor of John Durston, who now seeks to determine whether or not she is good for the judgment. Wright, Gady & Wright appeared for Durston and A. J. Parker for the judgment debtor.

Three victims of conviction in Justice's courts were committed to the care of Sheriff Colton Friday. Fred C. Harris was convicted of stealing a bicycle in Locke, and in default of a fine of $25 imposed by Justice of the Peace Brooks, he will have to serve sixty days in jail. Frank Simons and Albert LaBuff were convicted of cruelty to animals in Weedsport, and Justice Harrington sent them to jail for fifty days each in default of fines of $50.

Wont Follow Advice After Paying For It.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patients to carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent; has but one resort left, the drug treatment. When medicines are used for constipation the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale by J. S. Banker.

Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera & Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and is always on hand at the home of every family. This is not intended as a free puff for the Co. who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy reach of a doctor. No family should be without a bottle of it in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing (Iowa) Journal. Sold at Banker's drug store.

A ROMANCE OF THE WAR.

Began During the Great Civil Contest and Ended Many Years After Its Close.

"There was a time in the life of the confederacy," said the southern colonel, relates the Chicago Chronicle, "when we had so little regard for the north, or so much for ourselves, that we didn't think a roll of greenbacks was worth any more than a roll of wall paper. Out of this feeling grew a very pretty little romance, which began in Holly Springs, Miss., and ended at the Fifth Avenue hotel in New York city."

"I was a young fellow of the enthusiastic sort, that believed utterly in the final success of our cause, and when in 1862 Van Dorn swung around into Holly Springs and captured Grant's money and stores I was on hand with the boys, whooping it up in great shape. Among the articles captured was a big lot of greenbacks, two or three million dollars, more or less, and we had plenty of it."
 "I had about $50,000 in my saddle bags that I was taking along with me to give away as souvenirs. It wasn't good for anything else, in my opinion, but it was worth carrying along for that, as part of it was in thousand dollar bills, and didn't take up much room."

"I knew a pretty girl near Holly Springs, and incidentally I called on her. We had a good deal to say about the success of our arms, and as a little remembrance I got out one of my thousand-dollar greenbacks and stuck it in her autograph album, writing my name and date below the bill. I don't suppose there is a picture page in any of the best illustrated magazines of to-day that represents $1,000 in cash, as did that illustration I put in that girl's album."

"Later I rode out to our camp, some miles away, and, putting up my horse, I adjourned to the banks of a little stream near by, and was pouring my soul out through a flute. There was only a small bunch of our men, and we weren't thinking much about Yankee soldiers. I know I wasn't."

"I wasn't even thinking about my saddle bags full of money, which were lying under a convenient tree, where I had thrown them. I was thinking about the girl. Suddenly there was a row and a ruckion, and a troop of Yankee cavalry swooped down on us."

"There was no time given for preparation, and, thinking only of how to get away, I made a grab for my horse, and without saddle or bridle, and guided only by his halter, I cut through the woods. The saddle bags I left under the tree also the flute; and I haven't played a flute since. How I got away I don't know, but I did, and that was all I had in mind just then. I reckon those Yankees knew what to do with the saddle bags."

"The next chapter begins long after the war—only about ten years ago, in fact—and I hadn't seen the girl in all that time. One day I was passing along in front of the Fifth Avenue hotel when a gray-haired man, standing near the door, stopped me. I didn't know who he was, and he begged my pardon and asked if my name wasn't Stuart. I told him that was my first name, and gave him my last name. Then he grabbed me."

"You saved me and my family," he said, putting his arms about me and steering me toward the bar. "We'll have a drink and I'll tell you about it. You don't know how glad I am to see you."

"I instinctively felt that it was no case of bunko, and went with him. He had told me his name before we reached the bar, and I knew he was the father of the Holly Springs girl. We had the drink, several, indeed, and he explained how I had saved him and his family."

"When the war was over he had lost everything, and it was decided that the family should gather itself together and leave Mississippi for some point in the west to make a new start. In the process of packing up what was left, the daughter came across the autograph album in which I had pasted the $1,000 bill.

"Thousand-dollar bills of United States money had somewhat appreciated in value to the southern mind by that time, and instead of tossing it aside as waste paper, the girl made a running jump with it to her father. Very, very carefully they soaked the album leaf in warm water, and very, very carefully they detached the bill. It was taken to the bank and pronounced sound in every respect."

"There isn't much more to the story. When a man hasn't a cent in the world, and the people around him aren't any better off, $1,000 is a great big pile, and the Holly Springs girl's dad had it. He hurried off to Memphis, laid in a stock of all kinds of necessities, and, coming back to the old place, he braced himself and held on."

"He hadn't grown rich, but he had enough to give me back the thousand by a little squeezing, and he wanted to do it, but I was pretty flush myself just then, and I told him to keep it and make more with it to give to his daughter's children, for the girl was married and had a houseful."

MONITOR-MERRIMAC FIGHT.
 Stirring Incidents Related by a Civil War Veteran Just Before His Recent Death.

Gen. Egbert L. Viele, the soldier of the Mexican war and the civil war who died the other day, gave some bits of civil war history in a speech made at the Westchester County Grand Army association dinner on April 17. It was in connection with the Virginia campaign, and he led up to the Merrimac-Monitor fight, which has always been regarded as a turning point in the civil war. It was in the winter of 1861-'62 that Gen. Viele accompanied the president, secretary of war and secretary of the treasury to Fortress Monroe, where he planned and later led the advance on Norfolk, and on its surrender was made the military governor. The occupation of the navy yard by the confederates; the raising and rebuilding of the Merrimac (subsequently named the Virginia by the confederates, but popularly known as the Merrimac) as an ironclad; the destruction by her of the frigates Congress and Cumberland; the opportune arrival of the Monitor, under Lieut. Warden, by which the Merrimac was driven back to Norfolk and afterward held for months blockaded in the Elizabeth, and the recapture of Norfolk by the United States forces, under the immediate direction of President Lincoln, in May, 1862, are all well known matters of history.

Gen. Viele held his audience of 200 old veterans, full of personal reminiscences, while he told of how he established a cordon of pickets under most minute instructions to inspect all persons before they were allowed to cross the lines, and to take from them anything that was supposed to be contraband. No one was permitted to pass beyond the pickets except with a special permit from Gen. Viele. One day there came to him a woman with a little girl, and she told a most heartrending story of the child being separated from its parents and that she wished to reunite them about ten miles out from Richmond. Gen. Viele had his suspicions aroused, but having great confidence in his pickets he issued the permit. The woman and child were examined by the inspectors, and within the child's clothing was found a paper which was intended for the commanding general of the confederates at Richmond. The woman was so incensed with the search by the pickets that Gen. Viele was summoned, which resulted in the pickets being reprimanded by him in the woman's presence and the restoration of the papers. But notes had been made from the papers, and after the woman had gone on with the child Gen. Viele recalled his reprimand of the pickets and assured them that it was policy to deceive the woman. This suggested to Gen. Viele the idea of establishing a post office more freedom given to the transmission of correspondence outside the lines of the union forces. But Gen. Viele also appointed an assistant, who was not suspected by the confederate postal superintendent to be friendly with the federals, and he often intercepted correspondence which was of help to the union forces. One day a communication was found within a copy of one of the Richmond papers which outlined a plan to attack the federal fleet and to destroy Norfolk. This communication told that the Merrimac would be ready for service about the first of March and that it would then pounce upon the federal vessels and destroy them, and then she and other confederate vessels would bombard Norfolk. The information was communicated to the president at once, and the Monitor, which was then in course of construction at Greenpoint, was hurried to completion, and she arrived at Hampton Roads on the night before the memorable Sunday of March 9, the day that she engaged with and defeated the confederate ironclad.

A DOUBLE KNOCK.

Brutality of Drunken Husband Opens the Eyes of a Liquor Manufacturer.

"In knocking down his wife the man knocked me out of the liquor trade." In these words Mr. F. N. Charrington, so well known in connection with religious and temperance work in East London, closes his account of the way in which he was led to sever his connection with the head of the great brewing firm of Charrington, Head & Co., of which he was a partner. The man in question was drinking in a public house which Mr. Charrington happened to be passing. His wife just at that moment pushed open the door, and appealed to her husband for money to buy bread to feed her starving children. By way of answer her husband felled her to the ground. Mr. Charrington noticed that the signboard bore the name of his firm. He reflected that this particular house probably furnished many such cases, and that the same was true of hundreds of other houses owned by the company. The responsibility was more than he could bear, and from that hour he resolved to give up his partnership, worth about £20,000 a year.

Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, says, "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from strain and was greatly pleased with the relief and cure it effected. For sale by J. S. Banker, Genoa."

Pat's Test.

A good story is told of an Irishman, more patriotic than clever, who enlisted in one of the smart-cavalry regiments. The fencing instructor had experienced rather a difficult job in the matter of explaining to him the various ways of using the sword. "Now," he said, "how would you use the sword if your opponent feinted?" "Bedad," said Pat, with gleaming eyes. "I'd just tickle him with the point to see if he was shamming."—St. James' Gazette.

Service of Indiana Troops.

The record shows that Indiana troops participated in 305 engagements in 17 different states, the first being at Phillipi, W. Va., June 3, 1861, the first battle of the war, and the last being at Palmetto Ranches, Tex., the last battle of the war.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in nearly every neighborhood, and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy using it according to directions with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I had used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale at Banker's drug store, Genoa.

Announcement.

In another column of today's issue appears the advertisement of the wonder book of American publications—the acme of the compiler's and printer's art where mechanical excellence, literary perfection and the zenith of accuracy of detail are combined in a volume of over 600 pages that sells at the popular price of 25 cents.
 We refer to the 1902 New York World Almanac and Encyclopedia, better known as "The Standard American Annual."
 And so it is. It is more to Americans than is "Whitt-ker's" to the British.
 By special arrangement with the publishers of the World Almanac we offer it in connection with one year's subscription to this paper at $1.25.
 The new features enumerated in the advertisement published today are alone worth the price of the book. Besides the features announced there are more than 1,000 other topics discussed and more than 10,000 facts touched upon.
 Read the announcement and send in your subscription.

The Union School Question.

As was stated in THE TRIBUNE last week, the resolution for a union free school in the village district was defeated by 20 majority. It was also stated that a large number who voted did not understand the situation, and the acknowledgments of several people since the school meeting prove that to be a fact. Nearly every voter present was satisfied that a union school would be a good thing, but the abject fear of a few shillings' extra tax kept most of them from casting a ballot in favor of progress and material improvement, in which, we regret to say, our village is sadly deficient. There are two reasons for this lack of public enterprise. One is the fact that property has depreciated in valuation to a considerable extent, which naturally places property owners under certain financial restraints. The other is the small circle of chronic kickers who live in the past century but exist in the present, whose watchword is "What was good enough for grandfather is good enough for us," and who are ready to oppose all plans for the benefit of the future—not more because they believe they should than because they can't help it. Such people have their uses, and possibly they saved this school district a hundred thousand dollars in taxes the other night, but we don't believe it. Those advocating a union free school did not anticipate the opposition that was arrayed against the project and were not prepared to give, on short notice, the full treatment of the question, while the arguments presented in opposition were too silly to require answer. In regard to the higher taxes which would come with a union school we reproduce two letters which appear to cover that point very thoroughly. The first is from State Superintendent Charles R. Skinner, and reads as follows:

I have your letter of July 1st and would answer the questions you propound as follows:

Q. What is the necessary amount of assessed valuation in any district to establish a union free school?

There is no law or custom regulating this.

Q. Can a union free school be established in an unincorporated village?

Yes; they frequently are.

Q. What is the difference between a common school and a union free school district, if any, first as to expense of maintenance; second, as to the powers of trustees?

There is necessarily no more expense in a union free than in a common school district. Of course, a better school costs more money. There is practically no limit to the amount of money which a district can spend if it desires, but the expense is always subject to the control of the local inhabitants. The chief difference between a union free school and a common school district is that in the former the board of education must transact its business at regular stated meetings; must keep a record of its proceedings; must prepare estimates of proposed expenditures to be submitted to the voters; must publish or post annual statements of all disbursements, and in general, its business is done in a much more business-like and orderly manner. This always leads to an improvement of school facilities. The trustees have more power than they have in common school districts, but at the same time, the inhabitants retain a check upon all their disbursements, by reason of the statute requiring proposed estimates of expenses to be submitted at annual meetings.

The second is from the postmaster at McLean and says:

Yours received in regard to our union free school. We are on our third year of school under the Regents system and despite the opposition to it when we were trying to get the new system, we are well pleased and not a man, woman or child would vote to go back to the old system. We have as good a school here as there is in Tompkins county, outside of the city of Ithaca. We have Regents' examinations and draw a goodly number outside of the school for Regents' examinations, and there is one great advantage—you can school your children at home, so that when they enter a Normal school they have their Regents' credits and it shortens their work in a Normal by a year. We employ three teachers and are considering the matter of the employment of the fourth teacher. Since we voted to establish Regents' our taxes have been reduced nearly one-half for the school year. For 1899-1900 we raised by tax $1,015.00 and for 1900-1901 $668.72. So you see there was a large reduction. We draw a good many foreign scholars which under the district system we never got.

This article is not printed with a view of stirring up a subject that is practically dead and buried for a year, but it is intended to enlighten the taxpayers of school district No. 6 upon some points which they should have known before the school meeting and which should not be forgotten another year.

The Grange and the Farmer.

One of the greatest benefits which the grange is bringing to the farmers of the country, is the knowledge that the calling of agriculture is fraught with as much dignity as any calling pursued by man. We have been prone to think that heroism and nobility were inconsistent with the practice of supplying people with food and clothing, and was confined to the more renowned calling of conquest and strife. The grange is teaching the farmer that it is as truly noble and heroic service, to win a victory over a barren and unproductive field, and make it "blossom as the rose," as it is to lay waste that field with a devastating army. The true dignity of the farmer's life is in its serviceableness to humanity.

The grange is doing an educational work for the farmer, so unselfish, so utterly without hope of reward, except the reward which comes from the consciousness of work well done, that it is without a parallel. To be sure history is full of evidence that good useful work, of either hand or head, has, in the past, been either ill paid or not paid at all. People pay for being amused or cheated, but not for being served. None of the best work in art, literature, or science was ever paid for. How much, think you, did Homer get for writing his Iliad? or Dante his Paradise Lost? In science, the man who discovered the telescope was paid with a dungeon, and the man who invented the microscope died of starvation, while St. Stephen who preached to the Pharisees did not get bishops' pay, but was paid with stones.

Political Campaign Opened.

The Prohibition party is the first in the field with a ticket for the fall campaign. The party conventions were held in the pavilion at Island park, Auburn, Saturday morning and a mass meeting in the afternoon. The ticket named is as follows:

County Superintendent of the Poor—Joshua Underhill of Auburn.

Coroner—Chas. H. Bresee, M. D., of Auburn. Member of Assembly, First district—Harrison L. Hoyt of Auburn.

Member of Assembly, Second district—John McMillan of Summerhill.

H. L. Hoyt was chairman of the county convention and G. L. Reynolds was secretary. Following the nomination of the two candidates for county offices—no district attorney being named, there not being a lawyer in the county affiliated with the party—the following delegates to the State convention were chosen: John Gilmore, John McMillan, Samuel Searing, C. H. Wheeler, G. L. Reynolds, Austin Devoe, P. C. Freese, H. L. Hoyt, J. W. Barrus, J. J. Gardner, D. L. Struble, A. J. Sprague.

The first district convention organized with Charles H. Wheeler chairman and George L. Reynolds secretary. Harrison L. Hoyt of Auburn was unanimously nominated for member of assembly. The second district convention was presided over by John McMillan of Summerhill, and Samuel Searing of Poplar Ridge was secretary. Mr. McMillan was the unanimous choice of the convention for member of assembly. He is a former supervisor and is well known in the southern part of the county.

Origin of Star Spangled Banner.

The words we all know were composed by Francis Scott Key during the war of 1812 while on a visit to a "British post" under a "flag of truce." The rain prevented his return that night, so he was compelled as a prisoner to witness the military attack on Fort Henry. The words came to him in the early dawn (like many other poems as an inspiration) as he watched for the flag. The tune, "Anacronine in Heaven" to which it is now sung, was composed by John Stafford Smith sometime between 1770 and 1775, set to words by Ralph Tomlinson, Pres. Anacreonite society, so the music, like Yankee Doodle, is of English origin. So our great flag song is only an "old English air." The above facts were obtained from an ancient book, "Bradbury's Flag Song." Both words and music are much better adapted to the history of our country and its standing as a nation. A few years ago it was proposed in our Congress at Washington on a certain occasion to sing "The Star Spangled Banner," but not one of the members knew the words well enough to sing and only one member could sing it and he an Irishman—knew but one line of it.

Dr. Wetherill Skipped.

Dr. George M. Wetherill, a physician who two or three years since took up a practice at Ludlowville, is receiving considerable notoriety just now because of his marrying propensities. During his residence at Ludlowville, he is said to have passed as a single man, and was quite popular with some of the ladies, being engaged to two or three there. However, he found it necessary to move to Newfield. There he met a woman whose invalid husband died suddenly a short time after and he (Wetherill) married the widow. Then there appeared from somewhere a woman who claimed to be Mrs. Wetherill No. 1, and she telephoned from Ithaca to the doctor, who joined the woman at Ithaca, and suddenly left for parts unknown. He was a smooth talker and won his way into good society in short order, but his character did not hold the qualities necessary to keep friends.

—In other towns they have "bees" to put the cemeteries in order. Why not organize one to renovate the old east burying ground? The need is evident. It would seem that nearly every public spirited resident would gladly donate a whole or half day to the task; and if the ladies chose to help they could serve the workers with cake and coffee and make a picnic affair of it. Who will start it going?

—A singular fact in regard to the postoffice department is, that every year hundreds of money orders are not paid; those to whom they are made payable, for one reason or another, fail to present themselves at the paying office, and, as a result, the money reverts to the government after one year has elapsed. Last year the department realized nearly $500,000 from this source. It is strange that a man will carry a money order around in his pocket until it is outlawed or lost, but such things have occurred right here in Genoa.

—This is a very good country for a man who has any disposition to get along. He can generally find a way and a place to earn his living and if he saves there is independence coming his way some day. When he counts on having a good time as he goes along by spending all he earns, there is lean and want in store for him, no matter what he thinks. The young man who does not have business at the savings bank regularly for a dozen years before he is thirty stands a small show of ever having any business there after that age. If they act on the principle that they will not always be young, and squander their money foolishly, they will have none to spend when old.

Paris Green That's Pure.

Chemist Hamilton of Auburn is having an unusual demand for his own Paris Green. The farmers throughout Central New York have discovered that the Paris Green known as Hamilton's Green is an absolutely pure article. One pound seems to go as far as two of that commonly sold still he sells it at the same price. Many farmers in this locality will use nothing else but Hamilton's Green. The farmers have also discovered that every purchase, whether a bottle of medicine or a package of Paris Green, it is the best obtainable if it bears the name of Chemist Hamilton, of 51 Genesee street, Auburn.

SHE TOOK HER PAPA HOME.

A Touching Story Which Forebly Illustrates a Sad Phase of the Liquor Question.

The following story of a pathetic incident which occurred in Atlanta, Ga., is told by the Southern Star, a prohibition paper of that city. It is not an unusual incident at all, its counterpart has been witnessed in every large city where the open saloon tempts weak men to their ruin:

It was nine o'clock at night, bitterly cold, and the winds whistled around the police barracks in Atlanta. Hardly a person was on the street, it was so bleak and cold.

The officers at the barracks had gathered around the warm heater telling their experiences in the past when a little, gentle rap was heard on the door.

"Come in," cried the call officer.

There was silence for a moment and the rap was repeated again.

"For Heaven's sake, tell whoever it is to come in out of the cold," called the station sergeant.

Then an effort was made to open the door, but it failed, and then for the third time the tap on the door was repeated and the call man jumped up and opened the door.

Out in the cold, on the stone steps, stood a tiny little girl. She was thinly clad, although it was freezing outside. Her thin brown hair hung in damp threads about her pale forehead.

"Great God," exclaimed the officer, "come in, little girl, and get warm."

The child shuddered either from fright or cold and slowly walked into the office.

"What do you want?" asked the astonished sergeant.

"Is—is papa here?" said the child, her eyes filling with tears.

"Your papa?" said the sergeant, "who is your papa, and why do you think he is in such a place as this?"

Brushing away the tears, the child replied in a trembling voice: "Mamma said to-night that papa was sick and the police had him. So I came here to find him. Is he here?"

The little one then gave the name of her father and the sergeant found that he was docketed as being drunk. He called the turnkey and asked him to see if the man had sobered up.

The turnkey reported that the man was sober enough to go home.

"Then let him out," said the kind-hearted officer, "and give him a copy of charges. It's not business, but the little girl shall have her papa."

The man came out haggard and weak from the effects of his spree. The child ran with a glad cry into his arms and kissed him again and again.

"Mamma told me you were sick," she said, "and I have come to take you home."

The man made no reply. His hands trembled as he tried to smooth back his brown hair. In silence he passed from the barracks with his trusting, loving little girl.

"If that man doesn't reform and let this be his last drunk," remarked the station sergeant, "he is made of stone."

Yet a Christian nation, for a few dollars, will legalize a traffic that renders such sad cases possible.

LATEST DOINGS.

"Mida's Criterion," a leading liquor organ, says: "The bottom has dropped out of the liquor business in Bridgeton, N. J., and the 15 saloonkeepers who are paying a $1,000 license fee are much discouraged."

The supreme court of Iowa has affirmed the judgment of the lower courts against William Manderscheid, a saloonkeeper, of Sioux City, for $6,000, in favor of the wife of a man who was so badly frozen while under the influence of liquor as to lose his feet and hands.

A late report from Paris states that 8,000,000 bottles of absinthe were consumed in Paris last year. This appears to be an increase of over 1,000,000 bottles from the year before. The report is very emphatic in calling this one of the most ominous signs of peril to the future growth of the country. Evidently some very strong measures must be used or this increase will continue and extend even to this country. —Journal of Inebriety.

Teetotalers in Canada.

The Toronto Mail makes claim that "if the teetotalers were counted it would probably be found that in proportion to population they are more numerous in Canada than anywhere else in the civilized world."

POISONS FOR INSECTS.

Pure Paris Green or Green Arsenoid, Applied in Liquid Form, is Always Effective.

It will soon be time again for using poisons to kill all sorts of injurious insects. The first application I have to make usually is on my fruit trees, to prevent the ravages of bud worm, cigar-case bearer, etc., and to be effective the applications must be made very early, or as soon as the buds begin to open, and repeated soon after. Paris green has for many years been my main reliance as an insect poison. If pure and properly used it is reliable enough and harmless to the foliage. I have always preferred to apply it in liquid form, and if used in this way the addition of lime surely prevents injury to the foliage, liable to occur through the action of the free acid in the Paris green. For two or three years, however, I have used green arsenoid in place of Paris green, and always had very satisfactory results from it. This newer poison is lighter than Paris green and stays in suspension in water, requiring far less "constant stirring," and besides is much cheaper. So long as I can get such results from arsenoid I shall use it in preference to Paris green. But where the latter (being more available in most out-of-the-way places) has to be used there is need of caution in order to get the pure article. Some of the samples of Paris green on the market are reported to be badly adulterated, and if this is the case best results cannot be expected from their application, and much loss of labor may be caused thereby. Be sure you get a genuine article. You may make your purchase now and test it. In New York state the Geneva experiment station, I believe, offers to test any sample sent to it, free of charge. But each buyer and user of Paris green may just as well help himself. Pure Paris green dissolves perfectly in strong ammonia, giving a beautiful clear blue liquid. Put a little Paris green in a vial or small bottle, pour a little strong ammonia over it, cork it up and shake up well. If the clear blue liquid is obtained without mud-colored sediment you may be sure that the Paris green is all right. —Farm and Fireside.

AMERICAN APPLES.

Steady Demand for Them Can Be Created in All Sections of Germany.

Vice Consul Liefeld, at Friburg, reports to the state department that a prominent fruit and produce dealer in the grand duchy of Baden recently told him that a large demand for American apples and apple products could be created in Germany if a little more care were taken by the producers and exporters. He said that the dried apples arrive in fair condition, but that the evaporated apples do not; nor can they be kept in the market for any length of time, for they soon become moldy and decay. The dealer suggests that the apples should be more thoroughly evaporated and then properly packed for the export trade. He says there is a great demand for American evaporated apples, and if they can be received in a better condition there are prospects of a still further increase of trade.

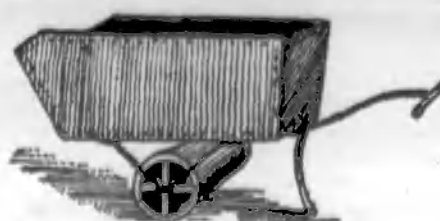

He also referred to the unsatisfactory condition in which raw apples are often received, and suggested that the same care should be taken in handling and packing apples as is used with oranges. If they were packed in paper or in layers of straw it might be a guaranty of their arrival in sound condition.

If these points are taken into consideration this gentleman claims that the market for American apples and products thereof will be enormously enlarged.

the roller and is bedded in strong wooden cross pieces. The top is of strong material well screwed or bolted. Instead of the bent handle illustrated, a pair of straight handles may be used. The rest piece at the front edge of the barrow may be of wood, or better a piece of strap iron bent V-shape and attached point down.—G. B. Fiske, in Farm and Home.

Death of San Jose Scale.

There are three kinds of treatment now being recommended for San Jose scale. There is the fumigation method, which is generally believed to be the most effectual, and which is known to be the most expensive, but which cannot be used practically except on comparatively small trees. Secondly, there is the lime, salt and sulphur spray, which seems to be the favorite in New York state and Ontario orchards, where the scale has become established. Third, there is the crude petroleum treatment, which is highly recommended by some, and which has proved emphatically dangerous with others.

Saves a Woman's Life.

To have given up would have meant death for Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass. For years she had endured untold misery from severe lung trouble and bad cough. Often, she says, I could scarcely breathe, and sometimes could not speak. All doctors and remedies failed till I used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was completely cured. Sufferers from coughs, colds, throat and lung trouble need this great remedy, for it never disappoints. Cure is guaranteed by J. S. Banker. Price 50c and $1.00, trial bottles free.

DECEPTIONS IN CIGARS.

Extremely High-Priced Ones Are Not All That They Are Represented to Be.

One reads from time to time of the fabulous sums paid for cigars. A favorite story is that Mr. Chamberlain never touches anything cheaper than a five-shilling cigar, and that every time Lord Rothschild smokes ten shillings vanish into the ambient air.

According to Mr. Weingott, the well-known tobacco merchant, all such stories are the purest invention. As far as mere quality of tobacco goes, the best cigar in the world can be purchased for one shilling sixpence, and anyone who gives more than this sum is paying for size, peculiar shape or for some peculiar brand which is only valuable for its rarity and not for its excellence, says London Tatler.

Those torpedo-like cigars which one sees in tobacconists' windows incased in glass sheaths are mainly traps to catch the unwary. The most remarkable thing about them is their size and their startling variation in price, according to the locality in which they are sold. In the West end they are priced at anything between £11 shilling and 15 shillings; in the less gilded precincts they are sold for 7 shillings 6 pence apiece.
