

Confidence

when eating, that your food is of highest wholesomeness—that it has nothing in it that can injure or distress you—makes the repast doubly comfortable and satisfactory.

ROYAL Baking Powder Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made with Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

There can be no comforting confidence when eating alum baking powder food. Chemists say that more or less of the alum powder in unchanged alum or alum salts remains in the food.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Ensenore Hechts.

Feb. 10—Mrs. Cora M Morgan recently spent several days in Syracuse as the guest of her niece, Miss Ruth Caykendall.

Lansingville.

Feb. 10—Orlando White is visiting his sister, Mrs. Jane Harris, in New York city.

Venice.

Feb. 8—Stella Bishop has been spending the past week with Genoa relatives, also taking Regents examinations.

Scipioville.

Feb. 8—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. DeShong are at her father's, Wm. McCormick, after an absence of three months in Washington, D. C.

Ledyard.

Feb. 10—Ledyard has been in the grip of the blizzard for the past week, but we only failed to get our mail one day.

Forks of the creek.

Feb. 5—The bear saw his shadow Feb. 2, so we may look for six weeks more of winter.

North Lansing.

Feb. 11—The donation for last Friday evening at the hall, was put over until Tuesday evening, because of the severe storm.

King Ferry.

Feb. 11—Floyd Abby is attending the Colby Telegraph school at Auburn.

Five Corners.

Feb. 11—It seems good to see the sun again after such a blizzard as we had all last week.

Ellsworth.

Feb. 11—Carter Husted is suffering from a kick of a horse which he received on the limb above the knee.

Five Corners.

Feb. 11—It seems good to see the sun again after such a blizzard as we had all last week.

Dr. J. W. Whitbeck, DENTIST

Genoa, N. Y. OFFICE AND RESIDENCE, Corner of Main and Maple Streets, Dentistry done in all branches; best of materials used; satisfaction guaranteed.

Lake Ridge and Vicinity.

Feb. 12—Mrs. Harriet Fenner is entertaining her aunt, Miss Biggs, of Troy.

Advertisement for Scott's Emulsion featuring a fisherman carrying a large cod fish on his back. Text includes: 'Is your baby thin, weak, fretful? Make him a Scott's Emulsion baby. Scott's Emulsion is Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites prepared so that it is easily digested by little folks.'

Advertisement for Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Text includes: 'Coughs of Children Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is—give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also. He knows best. Do as he says.'

Racing as a Game.

While agitation against evils that tempt the young and the weak members of society is at its height, the great racing associations of the country will be blimped to their interests if they fail to wipe out some of the ugly practices brought about by the system of putting horses on the course merely to win. Winning and perhaps losing by trickery simply to shift the purses of a crowd of enthusiasts is not calculated to make racing a matter of tests which first and last shall have educational value and develop a love of fine horsemanship.

Even when decent men are disposed to back up their opinion of a certain horse whose history interests them they are often disgusted with the way this must be done as things go around the average track in racing centers. The field should not be left to mercenaries, who may be able to combine and force a race to suit themselves, sometimes taking a rakeoff of 20, 30 and even 40 per cent on all the money put up. Everything is done to stimulate gambling in small sums. Some of the track owners raised the price of admission under the pretense of wishing to keep out the small fry, who could ill afford to lose. But with all the noise about "favorites," the princely stakes raced for and the eclat of betting on the so called gentlemanly plane, the increased cost of admittance only serves to sharpen the craze among young clerks with their hands in their employers' till and young boys. Admission comes high, but they must see the race and have money on it. So they stint themselves to indulge in track gambling, as poker tends to do for cards. Honest racing might prove to be less sensational and all that, but it would be wholesome sport for everybody interested and not a vulgar commercialization of what has been and can be made to be again—a noble diversion.

Water Worse Than Wasted.

Government experts estimate the value of the water which annually runs away in time of floods in this country as worth $500,000,000. While on its rampant course this water actually destroys values to the extent of $100,000,000. If the water could be made to fulfill its proper function it would prove an incalculable blessing, but let loose without guidance it is a curse to all communities visited by its devastating force.

The ideal remedy for floods is the retention of the water in the soil, where clouds deposit it until it can be drained off by the natural course of things. Vegetation will help hold it in storage, and where forest shelters have been destroyed the reforestation of vast tracts is necessary to counteract the annual floods. This is an old story and cannot be repeated too often. In France, where the science of forestry has been at work for hundreds of years, a new and extensive system of reform has recently been planned looking to the future for results. Every land holder in this country can help some toward preserving the forests for posterity. But if this primary remedy is neglected then there remains the tedious and expensive construction of reservoirs on headwater streams to catch and hold the overflow. This is said to be more desirable than to attempt to hold the water between high and expensive levees after it reaches the lower levels. Water retained in reservoirs may be gradually let loose when the streams are low, but the best regulator of the water supply is porous soil, kept so by a perpetual shade of foliage.

It is to be regretted that the stay of the Pacific fleet at Rio Janeiro should have been marred by conflicts between the sailors and the roughs on shore, but the strong waters of Brazil are quite as effective as those of other lands, and Admiral Evans is not the superintendent of a Sunday school.

The Count Boni de Castellane is habitually identified as the "divorced husband of Mme. Anna Gould." This seems hard on the titled husbands of American millions who fondly imagine they were giving prestige in return for those same millions.

"Japan may strike us at any moment," says Inventor Maxim. Well, if she does, at every second time ticks off we'll strike back until there ceases to be a Japan able to do the striking turn.

The Roumanian baroness who committed suicide because at fifty she was beginning to look old should have come over and taken counsel from some of our most eminent stage beauties.

If the women of England keep up the fight they will get the franchise, and the men of England will get at least a part of what has been coming to them for some time.

Placing Ex-Presidents.

Grover Cleveland's suggestion that something in the nature of a pension settlement should be provided for our ex-presidents is considered by some people as nothing more than throwing them on the shelf with a bone to gnaw. Mr. Cleveland says that the people not only place upon a survivor of the White House the obligation of living up to a high standard of dignity, but also to continue an active interest in the affairs of the country—for instance, to deliver addresses "on topics and for purposes that are bewildering and at times and places that are impossible." In other words, the voice of the ex-president must not be silent.

In order to provide an income for the support of dignity and also an opportunity for the voice of the retired executive to be heard by the whole country it has been proposed that ex-presidents have a seat for life in the house of representatives. With the seat would go the pay and allowances of an elected representative, together with the privilege of debating, but no vote. Commenting upon this method of treating a problem which is generally recognized to be real, the Washington Post says:

Under such a provision ex-presidents would truly go into the house as friends of the people and not as parts of any political machine. The country would get the benefit of their wisdom and experience. The house would feel the weight of their influence. It would be dignified by their presence, and they would be earning their emoluments by a full measure of service. Only their ripened views and not their votes could influence legislation. As men who had stood in a position of responsibility toward the whole people they would have a wider vision than men who chiefly represented the wishes of their limited constituents, and the legislation influenced by former executives would undoubtedly be for the benefit of the whole country rather than for the aid of a few at the expense of many.

Having for a constituency the whole body of voters, ex-presidents would be likely to avoid close party affiliations.

The Short Land Haul to the Pacific.

The short land haul between Atlantic and Pacific ports made possible by the Tehuantepec railway, which has been opened only a year, is said to be the chief cause for the trebling of traffic between eastern and western coast centers of the United States. Over $40,000,000 worth of merchandise originating in the United States territory crossed from ocean to ocean via the Tehuantepec and the Panama trans-isthmian railroads in 1907, more than three times as much as that of any earlier year. Of this traffic the Mexican line carried between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000. This road connects the waters by a land haul of 190 miles.

In 1907 the Panama rail route materially increased its business over that of the preceding year despite the fact that large demands were made upon it in the transportation of material for use in the construction of the canal. The value of merchandise originating in United States ports and shipped over that line to other parts of the United States and to foreign countries amounted during the year to between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000.

All merchandise originating in or leaving any port of the United States and crossing Mexico by the Tehuantepec line is sent across the isthmus in sealed-cars and is readmitted free of duty on reaching any other port of the United States. The time occupied in the transfer of merchandise from the hold of one ship to that of the other is less than forty-eight hours. Hawaiian sugar shippers to the Atlantic ports of this country have adopted the Tehuantepec route and abandoned the all-water route around the Horn.

Word comes from Guatemala that the railroad enterprises in that part of Central America are well advanced and that it will soon be possible to make the journey from St. Louis to Guatemala City in six days. The projected Pan-American line, of which the Central American system will be a vital link, ought to be and will be completed by men of the present generation.

It will be interesting to see how much gratitude of a practical and enduring nature the remission of the Boxer indemnity by the United States will awaken in the minds of the foreign hating Chinese.

While he is getting 30 cents a word for his work, and the dictionary is full of words, Mark Twain need not worry very much over the trifling loss of a few thousands of the long green.

It is stated that there are 100,000 unemployed in New York, but the figures probably include a good many who wouldn't work if they had the chance.

Mr. Stedman's reputation as the banker-poet will last all the longer because so few poets are known to have anything to do with banks.

The extent to which a prohibition law is being enforced can always be judged by the falling off in the demand for cloves.

This winter the weather bureau keeps on the safe side by making its predictions read "rain or snow."

Sometimes a little thing like an automobile catalogue will make a man discontented with his lot in life.

Those Roving Japs.

In spite of the protestations in Tokyo that Japan is peacefully disposed toward all the world at present, the year opened with many signs that complications over the Japanese immigration problem may at no distant day involve both England and the United States. Our own position as a people and a nation is well known. With 80,000,000 souls here, we can well afford to put the bars up against undesirables of any color and can assimilate a few thousands, more or less, of any strange race open to assimilation on the American plan.

With the Japs on the Pacific shores of Canada the case seems to be different, both for the Dominion and the mother country. It is said that the "yellow peril" there is not due to numbers or the prospect of numbers, but to the fierce clannishness, the barbaric aloofness of the few thousands in the Japanese settlements. They stand in a perpetual state of war against their white neighbors. A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Vancouver, says that at the time of the trouble last year the whites of Vancouver were astounded and alarmed at the efficiency shown by the Japanese. The Japanese quarter was seen to be an armed camp, and an hour after the riot started the yellow men were so well organized and equipped for actual battle that they could have defended themselves against an army. Here were the subjects of an Asiatic power on foreign soil prepared to fight to the death, and that not for individual rights, but for the glory and honor of the mikado's realm. Indignity toward the meanest Jap in the bunch is resented by the totality as an insult to the fatherland.

The Times man says that on the scene the matter has been treated by Canadian officials merely as a local political question. He lays it all to labor unions' influence and suggests that this should not affect the statesmen of Ottawa in their dealing with the question. But there are British statesmen in London nearer the throne than those in Ottawa, men who will be influenced perhaps by considerations broader and greater than those which center in Ottawa.

Trade Prospects For 1908.

A sign of the healthy conditions of trade in this country is found in the increase of values in the exportations of manufactures last year. An increase of approximately $50,000,000 in this class of exports is reported. The increase was felt in nearly all of the important items of this commerce notably cars and carriages, agricultural implements, copper, structural iron and steel, locomotives, pipes and fittings, boots and shoes and lumber.

Trade conditions of the world do not threaten a decline of the demand for any of these articles. We may not export the same values this year, but a considerable decline might take place and yet not seriously affect our industries. A real stagnation of industry and commerce is generally a matter of slow growth. When a market is vastly overstocked a slump may be expected, but the articles enumerated in the list of exportations in 1907 which show an increase are, with few exceptions, of the kind which would not be shipped on speculation. The only material decline in the exports of manufactures was in cotton cloths, and this falling off was due to unusually heavy exportations to China in 1905.

A Frenchman claims to have invented an ideal ice making machine. This contrivance has a sealed cylinder of chemicals which will last as long as the machine itself, and the whole arrangement is very simple, the smaller models being operated by hand power. If the inventor makes good his claims the new machine will be a boon to the general public.

Rehall Cherry Juice for Colds, Cherry Juice Cough Syrup cures over night 25 cts. Sagar Drug Store, Auburn.

Farmers' Supply House,

GENOA, N. Y.

-NOTICE-

To make room for spring stock we will offer our entire stock of winter goods such as Cutters, Light and Heavy Bobs, Fur Coats, Gallaway and Montana Robes, Blankets, &c., at cost until closed out.

Call and see for yourself. No trouble to show goods.

W. P. Parker, Prop.
B. J. Brightman, Mgr.

FARM FOR SALE!

If You Are Thinking of buying a Range or Heater, or in fact anything in the Hardware line call and let us show you our goods.

The estate of the late Roswell Beardsley offers for sale a farm of about 51 acres, known as the "Frank H. Thayer farm" located at EAST GENOA, on main road from Ithaca through North Lansing to Auburn and within about one mile of the AUBURN AND LANSING ELECTRIC RAILROAD. A new modern house, suitable barn and wagon house. Thrifty bearing orchard and land under good cultivation. Terms reasonable. Address the executors,

William P. Beardsley,
Auburn, N. Y., or
Fox Holden,
North Lansing, N. Y.

To Break In New Shoes Always Use Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It prevents Tightness and Blistering, cures Swollen, Sweating, Aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, A. S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

The old standby—Perry Harrow—we have them. B. W. ARMSTRONG.

Peck Hardware Co., Genoa
MILLER PHONE.

Mr. Farmer

Are you in need of a Binder, Mower, Reaper, Hay Loader, Hay Tedder, Rake Manure Spreader, Farm Wagon, Buggy, Grain Drill, Land Roller, 2 Horse Cultivator, Gasoline Engine, Cream Separator, Light or Heavy Harness, Lever, Peg tooth or Floating Harrow? Call and let me give you prices.

The Drill That Makes Competitors Tremble.

We ask you to take a look at the Superior. This drill is sold on its merits. After using same one day and you do not find it the most accurate, most simple of any drill you ever used return same to me. No questions will be asked. 73 sold at the State fair last year. Compare this drill with other makes. No exceptions. Sold by

R. W. Armstrong,

Genoa, N. Y.

AGENT FOR SWIFT'S HIGH GRADE ANIMAL FERTILIZERS.

Holidays Are Over

and now is the time to settle down to business for a new year. We have some great bargains to offer in several lines which we wish to close out to make room for spring goods as they come in.

Don't forget that we have a few horse blankets left which must go very cheap.

AIKIN & KING,

Both Phones. KING FERRY, N. Y.

