The Daily Press.

Sir James Crichton-Browne, the eminent alienist, has just given the newspaper press a certificate as an important safeguard of the general sanity. "It is the antidote to corroding egotism and gives a worldwide horizon to the the purblind and short-sighted." This in a sense is true, nor can it be disputed that the press also "furnishes an easily digestible intellectual pabulum." Sir James likewise speaks with a specialist's authority, one must suppose, when he says that "many a man has been saved from melancholy and fatuity by his daily papers," and concludes: "Suppress your newspapers and you will have to enlarge your lunatic asylums." We would gladly accept for ourselves and our colleagues a tribute primarily intended for the British press, and we certainly will not venture to challenge an expert on his own ground. But before the newspaper cure is widely applied in our sanitariums, we should be glad to have the opinion of local alienists on a few specific points, says the New York Post. Does, for example, that peculiar institution, the colored supplement, make for sansteadying effect for young girls to ventilate their blighted state and housewives their marital grudges in columns entitled "Aid for the Enamored," "For the Unequally Yoked," etc.? Sir James seems to regard the press as a bulwark against depression merely; but over-eloquence and hysteria are also abnormal symptoms; and it is possible that yellow journalism contributes just a little too much to the febrile gaiety of this nation.

There is a bride-elect in South Dakota, at Ree Heights, whose wedding is unavoidably delayed because of the non-arrival of her footgear. She went to Miller, the nearest town of any size, but they were unable to supply her and a hurry order was telegraphed to St. Paul. Even the St. Paul dealers were unable to fill the order and wrote back to know if some mistake had not been made in the size ordered. The size was correct, however; but the wedding is postponed while the shoes are being built. This blushing bride takes a shoe known to the trade as No. 11 EE. This size is not regularly kept in stock, leastwise not in women's shoes, so this item of the trousseau is being made to order. It's a brave man who will marry a woman with such feet as that. And pity the poor youngster who is spanked with such a slipper.

Paris honors famous literary men by naming streets after them. The death of Henrik Ibsen has started talk of thus commemorating the great Norwegian. A dramatist of the lighter sort declared his readiness to vote for a Rue Henrik Ibsen on condition that there should also be a Rue Bjornstjerne-Bjornson. This, he explained, would not only be homage to the author of "Beyond Human Power," but would be productive of amusing results in the case of cabmen, as no doubt it would.

Advertisements of apartment houses, of "flats," in New York announce that "magnificent housekeeping suites of eleven and twelve rooms and three baths" may be had for from thirty-five hundred and fifty to six thousand dollars a year. This is enough in many parts of the country to buy a pretty good little farm with buildings. Those who have had the space and freedom of the farm would not be content in such a suite of rooms. It is too much like living in a box of pigeonholes.

In a certain Massachusetts village the town clerk combines business with his official capacity. A notice board at the edge of the town reads: "Automobiles must not go faster than eight miles an hour.—J. Olcott, town clerk. Get your gasoline from J. Olcott."

A few days ago we were informed that when a bank failed in China the officials of the institution were beheaded. Now comes the news that "it is a hundred years since a bank has failed in China." They have apparently found the cure.

In the Arabic there are 600 words with which to designate the camel. Owing to the fact that "the ship of the desert" is about the most ornery brute in creation, some of them are doubtless unfit for publication.

The pure food commission is solicited to give its attention to the Connecticut man who contemplates raising chickens on mosquitoes.

Czar Nicholas is in no hurry about convening a second duma or distressing his subjects with another parliamentary controversy.

Strange that Japan, the land of the cherry blossom, and, necessarily, of the cherry tree, hasn't produced a George Washington.

Collector's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to the taxable inhabitants of the town of Genoa that I, the undersigned, collector of taxes in and for said town, have received the warrant for the collection of taxes for the present year, and that I will attend from nine o'clock in the forenoon until four o'clock in the afternoon for thirty days from the date hereof, for the purpose of receiving payment of taxes at the following places in said town, viz: King Ferry, at the store of F. T. Atwater, January 5, 10, 24 and 30; Genoa, at the store of Hagin & Peck, January 8, 22 and 29; Five Corners, at the store of E. L. Close, January 9 and 23. Balance of time at my residence.

Food don't digest! Because the stomach lacks some one of the essential digestants or the digestive juices are not properly balanced. Then, too, it is this undigested food that causes sourness and painful indigestion. Kodol For Indigestion should be used for relief. Kodol is a solution of vegetable acids. It digests what you eat and corrects the deficiencies of the digestion. Kodol conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law Sold here by J. S. Banker, druggist.

FARM TO RENT.

As my present tenant's lease will expire on April 1st next I hereby give notice that I wish to let my farm, one mile east of Poplar Ridge, on shares, to some reliable man. Please apply to Charles Mitchell, Scipioville, N. Y., or to Eli-ha Cook, Poplar Ridge, N. Y.

THOMAS MITCHELL.

Dr. Day's Notice.

Dr. Day, the Rochester specialist, will visit the Goodrich House, Moravia, on Tuesday, Jan. 15, and every four weeks thereafter, as he has done for the past ten years. Consultation and examination free and private.

Nearly every person who is subject to attacks from the stomach suffers from a morbid dread of a dietetic treatment for relief, that is three fourths starvation, and one fourth toast and milk. On the other hand you can eat as you please and digest the food by the use of a good digestant, thus giving the tired stomach equally as much rest. Eat what you please and take a little Kodol For Indigestion after your meals. It digests what you eat. Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa, N. Y.

Cured of Lung Trouble.

"It is now eleven years since I had a narrow escape from consumption," writes C. O. Floyd, a leading business man of Kershaw, S. C. "I had run down in weight to 135 pounds, and coughing was constant, both by day and by night. Finally I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and continued this for about six months when my cough and lung trouble were entirely gone and I was restored to my normal weight, 170 pounds." Thousands of persons are healed every year. Guaranteed at J. S. Banker's, drug store, Genoa. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

INVENTORY.

This is one part of the business which all agree on that there is no perceptible profit in, yet it is the most essential part of the business. It's the barometer of the New Year's work, by the last year's experience. By it you find your leakages. You find your mistakes. Your assistants for the year are tested by this means of taking stock. You find whether your assistants have wisely administered their trust. Then the stock in itself shows its own defects—whether too many remnants have accumulated, too many odds and ends stored away, too much of one thing, not enough of another. To the public it may not have any significance, but to the storekeeper it shows its value. It indicates its usefulness, and to you, consumer, it means more than what is on the surface. If you are served by a well conducted firm who can stop all these leakages overcomes these losses by installing a good business system, the percentage of losses is cut down to the minimum, therefore the percentage of profit is also curtailed and you are the gainer by a well systematized storekeeper. Old ideas that a certain percentage of profit must be realized from certain commodities do not hold good at the present time of merchandise.
We really have forgotten that this is an advertisement and as such we ask you to drop in (in your store) the people's store, any day for the next few days and you will find in each place and in every department something to pick up, something that has been thrown out as we are measuring, counting and assorting from one to the other. Remember that we are under-price, at the well established store of

Weekly Compendium of Local Happenings—
Various Items of Interest to Genoa People.

—Mrs. Howard Bush is quite ill with the grip.

—Allen Landon of Poplar Ridge was in town Friday last.

—Miss Mary Waldo has been in Auburn a few days this week.

—J. D. Sharpsteen spent a few days with friends in town last week.

—M. G. Shapero has been spending the past week with his family in Syracuse.

—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Whitten, on Monday, Dec. 31, 1906.

—Mrs. F. W. Miller is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Grant at West Danby.

—J. H. Rease started Saturday for Tennessee with two carloads of livestock for H. L. Bronson of Cortland.

Dr. Miller, the eye specialist and optician, was unable to visit this place last Tuesday, owing to the weather. He will be here at Hotel DeWitt next Wednesday, Jan. 16.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. B. VanMarter of Moravia were in town Saturday and Sunday, the former remaining through the week.

—Wm. Robinson suffered a broken rib as the result of a fall at the mill last Friday, and which has caused him considerable pain.

—We publish this week the biggest adv. in the history of this paper—that of Foster, Ross & Co., of Auburn, which occupies two whole pages.

—A number in the village and vicinity are suffering from severe colds which have been so prevalent of late, in many cases being accompanied with loss of voice for some time.

Great bargains will be offered at the Genoa Clothing Store before inventory is taken.

—The Genoa Social Club will hold their third dancing party at the rink on Friday evening, Jan. 18. Good music in attendance. A good time is assured every one and a bountiful supper will be served.

—Shapero & Son have something to say on page 4 in which you should be interested. Other new ads. are Hoyt's, Rothschild Bros., Auburn Trust Co.'s, Security Trust Co.'s, Rochester Trust Co.'s, McCormick & Greenfield.

—Wm. Sharpsteen has two very badly pinched fingers which he sustained while running the job press in THE TRIBUNE office Saturday afternoon. The wounded members are healing nicely and Mr. Sharpsteen expects to soon have the use of them again.

—Mrs. John Hutchison, who has been ill for several weeks in Auburn, was brought yesterday by special train on the Genoa road to Leonard's crossing. From there the trip was completed by carriage to the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. Wright, in this village. The patient endured the journey very well and is as comfortable as could be expected. She was accompanied by her daughters, Mrs. Welty and Mrs. D. W. Smith, Mrs. Streeter of Venice Center, and Dr. Otis of Auburn, who with Mrs. Welty returned immediately to Auburn.

—Mrs. E. L. Bastedo is reported to be quite seriously sick.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Taylor are spending some time at their old home in Venice.

—C. R. Egbert, the Auburn clothier, has a four-column adv. on page 8, which it will pay you to read carefully.

—Several members of Genoa Star Lodge, I. O. O. F., were in Moravia last Friday evening to attend a meeting of Moravia Encampment. A number were also present from Auburn, and a banquet was served at the close. A fine time is reported.

—If you are a woman and want to earn something, try poultry raising. The required capital is small and the returns are quick. Even though you may not like it, it is a whole lot better than drowning yourself in the first matrimonial sea which you come to.

—Willow Glen Union, No. 1637, elected the following officers for the year at a meeting held Jan. 5: Pres., Aurora Reeves; Vice Pres., Jay Boyer; Sec. and Treas., E. D. Shaw. A delegate was elected at the same time to attend the State convention which was held at Ithaca Jan. 9.

—Judson L. White of Locke has been appointed a committee of the person and property of Mrs. Martha Lester of Genoa, who has been declared an incompetent. She owns a farm valued at $3,500 and $595 personal property. The appointment was made on petition of Daniel Fallon of Genoa.

—The three or four sunshiny days of the past week have been as refreshing as the oases of the desert to the thirsty traveler. The succession of sunless days and moonless nights for several weeks past has been very remarkable. All weather records agree that December was the darkest month in many years.

Must Go to Prison.
By a decision of the Court of Appeals handed down yesterday, William Huson, convicted in Cayuga County court one year ago of the crime of assault in the first degree, will have to serve his sentence of one year and eight months in Auburn prison imposed by Judge Searing.

Just two years ago today on Jan. 9, 1905, Huson struck Charles Dernberg, a blacksmith, in the town of Genoa, with a flatiron, causing injuries which resulted in the death of Dernberg 16 days later. Huson was arrested and indicted for the crime of manslaughter in the first degree. He was tried at the December term of County court in 1905 and convicted of the crime of assault in the first degree.

The defendant, through his attorney, Amasa J. Parker, appealed to the Appellate division on the ground that there was nothing in the allegations in the indictment showing any intent to kill on the part of Huson.

The Appellate division reversed the decision of County court. The case was then taken to the Court of Appeals by the district attorney and argument held on Dec. 6 last. Albert H. Clark represented the county and A. J. Parker represented Huson. The Court of Appeals reversed the opinion of the Appellate division and affirmed the judgment of conviction in County court. The decision of the highest tribunal of the State was handed down yesterday. Huson is out on bail.—Auburn Citizen, Jan. 9.

Bill Wright is a country storekeeper in Pennsylvania, and went to Philadelphia to purchase a stock of goods. The goods were shipped immediately and reached home before he did. When the boxes of goods were delivered at his store by the drayman his wife happened to look at the largest; she uttered a loud cry and called for a hammer. A neighbor, hearing her screams, rushed to her assistance, asking the cause of the trouble. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to an inscription on the box which read as follows: "Bill inside."

IN HOC SIGNO VINCES.

(Luke 23:33-46.)

When Constantine the Great was leading his forces against his enemies, he declares that he saw, outlined against the midnight heavens, a flaming cross, with the inscription, "In Hoc Signo Vinces."

Overwhelmed by the spectacle, and believing the portent to be a revelation from the skies, he made a solemn vow that if Providence crowned his arms with success he would make the Christian religion the religion of the State.

He trusted in the efficacy of the good omen, led his troops against his enemies, gained an overwhelming victory, and, true to his word, made Christianity the religion of the Roman empire. By this sign he conquered.

The fact is, the cross, which to many is only a Roman gibbet, a gallows, an executioner's instrument of capital punishment, is the mightiest weapon of warfare the world has ever known.

It has rallied more soldiers, inspired more hearts, kindled more enthusiasm, nerved more arms, gained more victories, waved over more battlefields, comforted more dying soldiers, than any other weapon which was ever forged.

It is banner, bombardment and balm all in one. It is sometimes a rude rough-hewn timber, sometimes a polished jeweled ornament; now it is lifted on the apex of some heaven-soaring spire like a star in the evening twilight, now it is traced upon the forehead of a dying saint, his last conscious appreciation of the things of earth. Vice uncovers in its presence and purity is thrilled when it is lifted up.

There are those who look upon the cross as they look upon the guillotine—an instrument of torture, an executioner's scaffold. But they are infinitely mistaken. The cross is rather an altar where an innocent victim consents to be bound and receive the death stroke that the real culprit may be set free. It means self-abnegation, self-sacrifice, abandonment of life itself to prove its possession of infinite love for the object of its affection.

The mother who yields up her life that her child may live, knows something of it; the soldier who bares his bosom to receive the shot aimed at his country's flag approximates to it; but its full measure was never realized in this universe but once, and that was when, on Calvary's summit, a victim was nailed to it, who cried with his expiring breath, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do!"

Archimedes said if he could find a place for a fulcrum he could move the world. That place has been found. It is the rock Calvary, and the cross is the long lever with which it is being done. The three highest mountains in the world, morally speaking, are Sinai, Calvary and Olivet. And of the three, Calvary is the Mt. Everest, towering above all others. Sinai spells law; Calvary spells love; Olivet spells home. Sinai thunders; Calvary weeps, Olivet beckons. Sinai repels, Calvary draws, Olivet lifts. The first is condemnation, the second is reconciliation, the third is restoration.

The tradition is that the true cross was identified after discovery, by its power to restore the dead to life, to heal all diseases, and to cause wickedness to confess its crimes. That is a parable setting forth the fact that wherever the cross has sway virtue revives and vice expires, a fact to which all history bears witness.

In Paris there is a cathedral 323 feet high, having cost $2,000,000, dedicated to one dead man. Under its burnished dome is a concentration of wonders.

The embalmed and undecayed body of Napoleon, in military suit, in a red sarcophagus of Finland quartzite, polished to the last perfection by skillful machinery, rests on a block of green granite, surrounded by twelve funeral lamps of bronze, and twelve marble statues of great size. One of them has a wreath as if to crown; another has a pen, as if to make eternal record; another has a key, as if to open the celestial gate; another has a trumpet, as if to announce the coming of a King. And on the pavement there is enamelled a crown of laurel, from which radiates on all sides a glittering star.

The great warrior who lies there said, "When I am dead, my spirit will return and throbb in countless revolutions!" But he lies there motionless, and the revolutions have long since died out, never to throbb again.

Out under the Judean skies there is another tomb—but it is empty. It is only a rock-hewn cave in the hillside, its heavy portal was shattered never to be restored. Its occupant long since burst from its confinement, for it was not possible that he could be hidden of it.

He holds in his own mighty hands the keys, the pen, coronets, the trumpet, and to every soul of man facing the problems of time and eternity, he hands the same mysterious, invincible cross which Constantine saw, sits once more the inspiring message, "By this sign you shall conquer."

THE HIGHER LIFE

Selected Gems of Thought from Pious and Pulpit of All Sects.

The Father's Children.

How we need patience and courage and what patience and courage it inspires to think of how the one Father of all has been bringing the world by slow degrees into the light of this great truth. What are centuries to Him! Nations are his alphabet and time is the long scroll upon which He writes. But all nations and ages are under the Father's love. "Look out upon the world afresh and say of it, 'This is my Father's world. These lives around me are all lived beneath the measureless Fatherhood of God.'" To help men to believe it is our highest joy—to realize it in our own lives is our largest blessing. And, brethren, if you and I would have others see what God is like, then we must show them what God can make us like.—Rev. Wm. Chase, Baptist.

Enlarging Our Nature.

The wider a man's nature, the broader his sympathies, the larger his outlook, the more cosmic his heart, the fewer will be the number of those who know him. Real greatness is always an isolation. Jesus seems to pass through the story of the New Testament, the hero of it all, and yet a stranger to it all, misunderstood, misconstrued, and at last betrayed by the ignorance of an apostle unto the equally ignorant hate of his enemies. Strange figure, indeed, He moves among the multitude, yet is not of them. He speaks words of thrilling import to men who feel them, who remember them, yet who cannot comprehend them.—Rev. Charles Brown, Baptist.

Need of Divine Assistance.

The flesh lusteth against the spirit of God, and the spirit against the flesh, and until the end there will be many a hot fight and many a drawn battle. No one can afford to go forth to his life without divine assistance. No one can ignore the means of grace without impairing the hope of glory. The husbandman works his fields and then awaits the sunshine and the rain which come from heaven's windows. The Christian who does his best by count upon God's almighty aid and in some mysterious way there shall be imparted to him the perfect righteousness of the divine man, Jesus Christ.—Rev. Henry Swentzel, Episcopal.

Guarding Against Profanity.

An encouraging sign of the times is the rapid spread of the Holy Name Society in the Roman Catholic Church, which forbids profanity and inculcates reverence for the divine name. A more general organization is the Anti-Profanity Society, which is finding many adherents. Out of consideration for the purity of the Mother tongue, for the careful use of words, for refinement and elegance of speech and for the name of Him of whom it is written, "Holy and revered is His name," simple, clean and chaste language is to be promoted.—Rev. Wm. T. Ellis, Presbyterian.

Attaining the Goal.

Without the hope of heaven the impulse of life is sorely weak. A godly ideal and disbelief in the future are everlastingly incompatible. Tell man that death means destruction and all precious things will be marred. Speak to him of heaven, and how speedily will your message awaken the good slumbering in his heart, and how earnestly will he consider the duty and the privilege of making ready for the glorious change which awaits him. An unending prize stimulates the most sluggish activities.—Rev. Howard Mellish, Episcopal.

Obedying the Call.

The hereafter calls us to make ready for heaven, and to make ready for heaven is only to make the most of ourselves and our opportunities. To make ready for heaven, is to learn to love and worship Christ, to follow in His steps, to cherish His virtues, to battle for the right, and to live in the spirit of a splendid chivalry. Everybody who is an alien to Christ gives the lie to the eternal hope; he is in substance and effect an atheist because he thinks and lives as though there were no God, no heaven and no endless blessedness.—Rev. Henry Swentzel, Episcopal.

Revealing Our Faith.

You remember Christ's words, "Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" The man who rises from his knees with the glow of the divine communion upon his face, the man whose faith hath made him a partaker of the power of God, and who then goes forth to live for life which his faith hath revealed to him, is the man of whom alone Christ will be ashamed when He cometh in the glory of His Father and of the holy angels to judge the world.—Rev. Chas. Woodruff, Methodist.

Faithful to Our Calling.

May God help us to be faithful to our sacred calling: "Freely ye have received, freely give." Around us through the multitude; they are waiting for our ministry; Christ's benediction must reach them through our benefactions. By our instrumentality the Divine supply is to be conveyed to their need! How vast and varied that need! Need of body, mind, spirit!—Dr. Lindsay Parker, Episcopal.

True kindness does not require that we try to suspend for anyone the operation of the laws of human life or that we excuse him from obedience, most of all to the law.—N. S. Woodruff.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN.
 Jan. 6, '07—(Gen. 1:1-25.)

This is a wonderful world in which to live. For six thousand years its inhabitants have been ransacking it from cellar to roof, and every generation has discovered some new adaptation of it, and stood amazed at its vastness, its variety, and its perfect equipment for the home of man.

Look at its carpets,—green grass, interwoven with figures of flowers. Behold its ceiling, frescoed with cloud-tints, and luminous with constellations of stars. Its foundations the everlasting rocks. Its draperies, the rainbow colors of the autumn foliage, or the bursting buds and apple blossoms and green leaves of the spring. Its front door,—the flaming sunrise through which the day comes in. Its back door, the gorgeous sunset through which the day goes out. Its chandelier and candelabra, the sun by day, the moon and stars by night. Its chimneys, Vesuvius and Stromboli, with multitudinous lesser safety valves all around the planet. Its four-bins, the wheat fields of Europe, Asia and America. Its safe deposit vaults crammed with yellow metal, only waiting for business to fit its key to the locked up treasures. Its coal bins stored with fuel to warm the world. Its atmosphere vocal with the music of birds. Its hills populous with sheep and cattle. Its valleys covered over with corn. The cotton plantations clothe the nations, while in all the earth the hum of busy factories is heard turning out richer attire for those who prefer linen, or woollen, or silken or leathers, or furs. The air is just adapted to our breath, the water is just adapted to our taste, sound is just adapted to our hearing. We cannot imagine a better color for the sky, than blue, for the grass, than green, for the water, than crystalline. He who slanders this world, only exposes his ignorance, for those who know it best, and are most familiar with its magnificent proportions and properties, unite in declaring that as a residence for the human race, it could not be improved upon. The fact that people grumble about the weather is no evidence that it isn't all right. It is difficult to imagine some people perfectly satisfied in Paradise itself. They would be uneasy unless they could find something that needed fixing.

Now, how did all this wonderful home of man come about? Who is responsible for its architectural beauty? Who reared the pillars of the universe, and sent this planetary ball spinning down the grooves of time with such well-ballasted machinery that it has never jumped the track? There is only one answer. There are theories enough. Plenty of big men and little men, have taken pad and pencil and figured out a speculation, more or less plausible and acceptable to those who deny the supernatural. They talk learnedly about "star dust" and centripetal motion, and "germs" and "hypotheses," and when they have enveloped us in an Egyptian darkness of "guesses," they declare that the mystery is inscrutable. Very well, leave them there to flounder in the fog-bank of materialism, and turn to the first verse of the first chapter of Genesis, and read the answer. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." It will be just as well to let that stand until some better explanation is offered. I would not be in a hurry to expurgate those first ten words of the Bible.

Napoleon Bonaparte, pacing the deck of a ship overheard some of his skeptical officers scouting the idea of a God, and suddenly pausing in his walk pointed to the midnight heavens, all asparkle with light, and said, "Gentlemen, who made all that?" and in the presence of such a spectacle they were dumb. The Bible is the only book in the world that has the glorious audacity to answer Napoleon's question and it has never been disproved. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

"A fire mist and a planet;
 A crystal and a cell,
 A jelly fish and a saurian,
 And caves, where cave men dwell,
 Then a sense of law and beauty,
 And a face turned from the clod—
 Some call it evolution,
 And others call it God.

"A haze in the far horizon,
 The infant tender sky,
 The ripe, rich tint of the corn fields,
 And the wild geese sailing high,
 And all over uplands and lowlands
 The charm of the golden rod—
 Some of us call it autumn,
 And others call it God.

"Like tides on a crescent sea beach,
 When the moon is new and thin,
 Into our hearts high yearning
 Comes welling and surging in
 Comes from the mystic ocean
 Whose rim no foot has trod—
 Some of us call it longing,
 And others call it God.

"A picket frozen on duty,
 A mother starved for her brood,
 Socrates drinking the hemlock
 And Jesus on the rood,
 And millions that, humble and nameless
 The straight hard pathway trod—
 Some call it justice,
 And others call it God.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Building the Dog House.

Almost every boy has at one time or another some kinds of pets for which he delights in caring. It may be a mongrel puppy, a whelp or a hound of low degree, but to him it is as dear as the thoroughbred Angora cat of his neighbors or the prize guinea pigs belonging to the son of some wealthy man, and in which the owner perhaps does not take as much interest as the less fortunate lad in his motley collection of ordinary animals.

A dog, the most common of all pets, needs a house that is large enough for him to lie down in, to turn around in and to snuggle down in among the straw in the winter time.

Doghouses can be made any size to accommodate the dog, so that no accurate sizes can be given as suitable for all dogs, but for one of average size the house can be made 2 feet wide, 3 feet long, 2 feet high at the sides and 32 inches at the peak, or middle ends.

From narrow matched boards make two ends 24 inches wide, 24 inches high at the sides and 32 inches high.

These ends are built up against the front and back ends of the floor and are strengthened half way to the top with battens, as shown in A in Fig. 1.

DOG HOUSE

At the front an opening is cut for a doorway, and this must be governed by the size of the dog, and not cut too large, for rain and snow would beat in.

The battens are three inches wide and fastened on with clinch or steel wire nails bent over and beaten down.

The floor is 34 inches long and 24 inches wide, nailed to three cross-strips 1 1/2 inches square, as shown in Fig. 1. Between the two peaks a ridge pole 2 inches square is made fast with long steel wire nails, as shown in the figure drawing.

The sides are made of matched boards 36 inches long, driven to the edges of the front and back, as shown in Fig. 1.

For rabbits there are several shapes of hutches that can be made, but the one shown in the illustration is about as easy and serviceable as any to make and will be found a very good shelter for two or more rabbits.

A hutch should not be too small, for it does not give the rabbits room to move around, and if there should be more than two their quarters should be generously large. A good hutch is four feet long, two feet wide, two feet high at the front and back, and 34 inches high at the peak.

It can be made from narrow matched boards, and the lines in the drawing will show which way the seams run.

A large box can be adapted as a hutch if a peaked roof is made to it so as to shed water, but the boards should be not less than seven eighths of an inch in thickness, otherwise they will warp when wet and dried again.

One end of the hutch, 18 by 24 inches, can be enclosed as a compartment, and a floor can be added so as to make it a double deck house.

A feeding door is made at one end just large enough to pass green food through, such as plantains, lettuce, cabbage and other things rabbits are fond of.

Across the open space at the front some galvanized screening can be made fast with galvanized staples. This should be of stout wire, so the rabbits cannot break out nor outsiders break in, for if care is not taken dogs will get at and kill rabbits.

Odd Facts.
 A gale blowing eighty miles an hour exerts a pressure of nearly thirty-two pounds to the square inch.
 Many people in England—and doubtless elsewhere—sleep on mattresses stuffed with a substance made of old clothes that have not been disinfected or even washed.
 A deaf and dumb person who is fairly expert at finger language can speak about forty-three words a minute. In the same space of time a person in possession of his speech will probably speak 150 words.

THE HIGHER LIFE
 Selected Cases of Thought from Press and Public of All Secs.

Law of Honest Dealing.

Honesty is a divine principle. It springs from a conscientious regard to divine law and the claims of Christianity. It recognizes an omniscient eye that inspects character and notices the minutest transactions in business. It is a principle that will hold its possessor to the path of duty in all of the various circumstances of life. It will enable you to meet with honorable losses and to maintain good character and the respect of the world. For no man makes a total failure who lives an honest life. You can afford to lose money rather than you can afford to lose integrity. Be honest in all your dealings. Be conscientious in making bargains as in offering prayer. Make it a principle that your goods, skill, knowledge may be for sale, but never your principles.—Rev. John Phillips, Methodist.

Influence of Environment.

Environment does nothing of itself. It rests with us how we shall react to it. In fact, no man had a better environment for two years than Judas, and still he turned out a traitor. There are two possible effects resulting from contact with any environment. If the environment is bad, one can yield to it and become worse, or conquer it and grow stronger. The dead self is the best stepping stone. If the environment is good a man can yield to it and grow better or constantly repudiate it and grow worse. Perhaps the worst man is he who has a good environment and repels it. The very air and sunshine may be a source of decay to the plant which cannot utilize them.—Rev. Frank Case, Baptist.

What is Your Purpose?

"God made you for some purpose. You are here by chance. There is something for you to do. There is something definite and divine in the way of usefulness for each of you. God did not give you being carelessly. He had an end in view and he expects you to meet it. He has a particular mission for each of you to perform. Attach faith to this idea. This belief must lie down with you at night and rise up with you in the face of difficulty and on the mountain tops of success. Let people say that nothing good could come out of Nazareth, yet have faith in God and hold fast to your convictions and that you are in this world for a definite purpose.—Rev. Louis Van de Burg, Presbyterian.

Doctrine of Immortality.

There are those who have no joyous greeting for the doctrine of immortality because they are not on good terms with themselves, and would really welcome the dissolution of the unhappy relationship. They have had quite enough of life. It is not mercenary, it is sheer prudence, to take in the situation and to be governed by its demands. With things temporal we must have to do, but the things eternal are also indispensable. The two are not antithesis—they are co-ordinate, and they both have legitimacy to the Christian.—Rev. Henry Swentzel.

Why We Blunder.

A great blunder that we make is that of forgetting, in the very beginning of life, to take God into account. He says "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness," but this is usually the last thing in our plans and our living. But whether we do so from mere postponement, or indifference, or skeptical unbelief, or selfish interests, it is from any standpoint a thing of extreme folly. To put off that which is absolutely first, to every reasonable mind, is beyond any gainsaying a very foolish undertaking.—Rev. J. Stephen, Methodist Episcopal.

Our Hope of Heaven.

The hope of heaven is indispensable for individuals, communities and nations. Accounting as something worth the philosophy of history, we perceive how, so long as Rome respected even the heathen notion of the hereafter, the great republic flourished; but as soon as Cicero, Cataline, Pompey, senators and nobles, polluted the people with unbelief in immortality, Rome was doomed. Integrity, public and private, is invariably in ration with the prevalence of a doctrine of the hereafter.—Rev. Henry Swentzel, Episcopal.

In Making Decisions.

"Make wise decisions and adhere to them. The zest of new enthusiasm may pass away and difficulties may rise before you in their full magnitude, for such a crisis occurs in every calling and they cannot be avoided by entering upon new careers. Stand by your professions; stick to your purpose. Remember that nothing great can be reached without arduous effort. Success comes as the result of off-repeated efforts.—Rev. John Brandt, Presbyterian.

THE HIGHER LIFE
Selected Gems of Thought from Pious and Pulp of All Sects.

The God of Love.
God is love. Love is the only hope of life's dark cloud. Love is the perfume of that wondrous flower the human heart. Without that divine passion, without that divine sway, we are less than beasts, and with it earth is heaven and we are God's own, saved by grace. How infinite the office work of the spirit, and how charming the things he waits to reveal to us about God, and about heaven, and about Christ, with whom no mortal can compare. His smile more electrical than Lather's, his eye more flashing than George Whitfield's; wiser than Solomon; pro-founder than Aristotle; more original than Lord Bacon; more philosophic than Jonathan Edwards; more just than Aristides, and more stately in his bearing than Gladstone. — Archbishop Glennon, Catholic.

The Christian Life on Earth.
The new life is an enlarging life. It widens as we advance. Each day's growth reveals new greatness in it. No man has ever yet reached its limits. There are possible heights of loveliness and usefulness which surpass our hopes and dreams. There are depths of communion and peace which exceed our knowledge. The greatness of the new life is inconceivable, though not unattainable. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." This is true of the Christian's life on earth as well as for the inheritance in heaven. — Rev. Frank Crane, Methodist.

Mystery of Christian Religion.
There is a mystery in every Christian life, a mystery apart from which religion is inexplicable. That mystery is the Holy Spirit, whom no man has seen and to whom no man can understand, yet without whom no man can find salvation or Christian character. One secret of beauty is the presence of the Spirit in a believer's heart. He is our great helper. Without Him we can do nothing but by His aid we may grow into the very likeness of Jesus. So in every Christian's daily prayer should be a supplication for the help of the mysterious and mighty Third Person of the Trinity. — Rev. T. J. Crosby, Episcopal.

Conquering Our Foes.
The magnanimous man conquers both himself and his foe. By this gentle principle, strikingly in contrast with the world's cruel way, Christianity has won notable victories. The meekness of the martyr has more than once converted his slayer. The way Christians can endure extreme injustice has power to overcome even savage foes. One consequence of the Boxer outbreak in China has been an extraordinary increase of accessions to the Christian churches, due, at least, in part, to the way Christians conducted themselves during that bloody period. — Rev. Wm. T. Ellis, Presbyterian.

Principle of Forgiveness.
The soul-shrivelling principle of retaliation—"an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth"—comes in for the condemnation of Jesus. Instead of a close reckoning of vengeance and justice He would substitute tolerance and magnanimity. No man can really afford to hate, since hate hurts the hater more than the hated. No harm that may be done to an enemy can equal the harm done to one's self. On so low a basis as that of sheer self interest it is better to suffer wrong than to nurse revenge. — Rev. Wm. T. Ellis, Presbyterian.

The Moment to Decide.
Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide in the strife 'twixt truth and falsehood, for the good or evil side. To each one of us individually comes the choice what to do. Many a one, I think, is kept from the freedom and joy of Christianity not because these things are undesired, but because the call of Christ is unheeded, but simply for the want of the power of decision, of strength to go forward upon a personal quest. — Rev. Wm. Carson, Episcopal.

Saving Grace of Patience.
The worker with human lives especially needs the grace of patience. Natures cannot be changed in a day; tendencies cannot be overcome in an hour. Having done our best by a soul we can only wait. Years alone can test the results of our labor. New impulses, new habits, new purposes are cultivated slowly. Let us not, therefore, spoil our work or our character by impatience. — Wm. T. Ellis, Presbyterian.

Growing in Grace.
We grow in grace by growing in the knowledge of the Lord. One of the divine means of growth is the word of God. As we increase in understanding of its truths we increase in holiness. There really can be no substantial development of Christian character apart from the use of the Scriptures. The man of God is perfected by the word of God. — Rev. Wm. T. Ellis, Presbyterian.

"Thank God for the goodly inheritance of constitutional liberty, of business integrity, of purity, of personal life, of virtue in social life, of righteousness in public life and of faith in God that has been received from our ancestors. Preserve these as the proudest and happiest inheritance of America. — The Rev. John Brandt, Presbyterian.

His Malady.

Nell—She's a professional nurse. I believe.
Belle—Not at all. What gave you that idea?
Nell—She remarked that she sat up last night with a sick man.
Belle—Love-sick, that was all. It was that dance of hers.

Helping Him Along.

Dick—You are such a funny girl I never did know how to take you.
Kitty (cooly)—You never tried.

She Was Curious.

Philomena—I dropped asleep in the hammock, and he came up and kissed me.
Virginia—Did you wake up?
Philomena—Of course. But I didn't let him know it.
Virginia—Why not?
Philomena—Oh, a mere matter of curiosity. I wanted to see if he'd have nerve enough to do it again.

Real Joy.

Friend—Did you and Miss Ethel enjoy the play?
Mrs. Gushable—My, yes! We did nothing but weep and eat caramels for two solid hours!

Wise Guide.

The Guide—It was right here that Washington crossed the Delaware.
Mr. Smart—It is two miles further down, according to what you said last year.
The Guide—I know; but I thought that maybe that was too far for the lady to walk.

Was Familiar.
Redd—Are you familiar with yachting terms?
Greene—Oh, yes; I tried to hire one, once!
