The Union Signal says the national organization touched "high water mark" in the organization's history at the thirty-fifth annual convention just closed. The note of victory sounded at Nashville, Tenn., one year ago was caught up at Denver with greater enthusiasm and determination, for the rapidly whitening map of our country was the best possible evidence that we have wrought to some purpose. The year's accomplishments, aside from the gain in prohibition territory, include an unprecedented gain in membership—20,463 above all losses. Plans for the coming year provide for an extension of the work in many directions.

This is Thanksgiving month, the month sacred to pumpkin pie and roast turkey with cranberry sauce fixings. Have we not all something to give thanks for? On the whole it has been a good year. Our barns and storehouses are well filled. We have cozy, comfortable homes, and the dear faces surround the evening lamp while the log crackles and sputters on the hearth. Some of us may be light in pocket, but there is no reason why we should not all be light in heart. If we have done some soul a kindness, and helped some stumbling burden-bearer over a hard place, we are certain to have that singing in our hearts which makes us think of the angel chorus. —From November Farm Journal.

Asking too Much.

I believe there's a story told of Mark Twain that in youthful days, being sent out by his mother to weed a certain flower bed, and finding more weeds than flowers, he came back in and asked if he might not "flower the weed bed".

Our little Alfred probably has as great an aversion to work as had the youthful Clemens. Admonished to pull some rather large weeds in the back yard, after a faint-hearted lift on one of them, he shouted: "Mamma, how do you think I'm going to pull these weeds when the whole world is hitched on to them?"—November Woman's Home Companion.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by. When strength is full and spirits high we are being refreshed—bone, muscle and brain, in body and mind—with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

"Rabbi, Bredderen."
Shortly after Lee's surrender at Appomattox a convention of negro ministers was held in Washington. A white haired old Pennsylvania veteran attended one of their meetings and as an after dinner story went to tell about it. "Some of these preachers were surprisingly intelligent," he said. "One told of a talk given at a religious meeting by an old elder of his district and almost literally 'brought down the house.' This elder took for his text, 'And he said unto them, rabbi.'"
"Bredderen," he went on, "dis am berry significant. It means you. It means me."
"And he said unto them, rabbi!"
"My bredderen, he meant it then, and it am jus' de same now. We must all of us rabbi, and if you don't rabbi, here your souls will rise up in hell and rabbi there!"

NIGHT AND DEATH.
Mysterious night, when our first parent knew
Thee from report divine and heard thy name
Did he not tremble for this lovely frame?
This glorious canopy of light and blue?
Yet 'neath a curtain of translucent show,
Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
Hesperus with the host of heaven came,
And, lo, creation widened in man's view!
Who could have thought such darkness lay concealed
Within thy beams, O sun, or who could find
Whist flower and leaf and insect stood revealed
That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind?
Why do we then shun death with anxious strife?
If light can thus deceive, wherefore not life?
—Joseph Bianco White.

Pulled In Two Feet.
The motorist was working under his machine when a farmer drove up. After observing the car, which stood in the very middle of the road, and measuring the distance to the ditches upon either side the farmer shouted:
"Hey! Can't you pull in a little and let me past?"
The hammering ceased.
"How much?" asked the prostrate man.
"About two feet 'll do."
The motorist obligingly pulled in his two protruding feet and resumed hammering and swearing.
Concluding that Saturday would be a better day to go to town anyway, the farmer turned around and drove back home.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

All Well.
A certain Mme. Cresswell died in Bridewell, says an English journal, and bequeathed £10 to have a sermon preached in which nothing but what was well of her should be said. The sermon is said to have been written by the Duke of Buckingham and was as follows:
"All I shall say of her is this: She was born well, married well, lived well and died well, for she was born at Shadwell, married to Cresswell, she lived at Clerkenwell and died in Bridewell."

Smile Early and Often.
"Smile early and often. The more blue you feel the more you must smile," says a physician. "The philosophy of the smile cure lies in the fact that, the body being the means by which the mind expresses itself, there must be co-operation. If the body refuses to express the mental suggestion of depression the mind will change its attitude and accept the body's suggestion of joyousness. If, on the contrary, the physical admits the mental 'business,' the body in a short time becomes languid, the head feels dull and often aching, the blood flows sluggishly, and actual sickness results in some degree. The facial muscles being those through which the greatest play of expression is possible, it follows that their reaction upon the mind is quickest. The mere effect of smile produces a revolution of feeling, and the artificial soon becomes a real laugh."

Why He Joined the Sunday School.
"Tommy," said a young lady visitor at his home, "why not come to our Sabbath school? Several of your little friends joined us lately."
Tommy hesitated a moment. Then suddenly he exclaimed, "Does a little red-headed kid by the name of Jimmy Brown go to your school?"
"Yes, indeed," replied the new teacher.
"Well, then," said Tommy, with an air of interest, "I'll be there next Sunday, you bet. I've been laying for that kid for three weeks and never knew where to find him."—Judge's Library.

Let Her Burn.
"Is this Mr. Rockford?" said the tall insurance agent as he slipped quietly into the office.
"Yes; that's my name."
"Mr. Rockford, I represent the Commercial Insurance company, and"—
"I'm afraid you've come to the wrong place."
"But I understand, sir, that you own a large industry on the outskirts of the city. Am I correct?"
"Yes."
"And I hear that you carry no insurance," continued the wily agent.
"No; I don't need insur"—
"Now, as I was saying, a man with a large industry should certainly protect himself from fires. I am in a position to give you a fine rate, Mr. Rockford."
"But I don't have any fires."
"You can't tell, Mr. Rockford. No one knows what tomorrow may bring. A destructive conflagration would wipe out your immense industry, and you would be penniless. Now, by taking out a neat policy with me you can save yourself thousands upon thousands of dollars. Your industry will be safe, all for the small amount of insurance that!"

"But I don't need insurance. I don't have any fires," persisted the proprietor.
"But your industry may be burning up right now," replied the agent triumphantly.
"Let her burn. It'll be the first time a stone quarry ever went up in flames."—Bohemian Magazine.

Caught the Czar.
Peter the Great was once very neatly caught in a trap by a jester attached to the court. The jester was noted for his cleverness in getting himself and his friends out of difficulties. It happened one day that a cousin of his had incurred the czar's displeasure and was about to be executed. The latter therefore presented himself before his imperial majesty to beg for a reprieve. On seeing him approach, the czar, divining his errand, cried: "It is no good to come here. I swear, I will not grant what you are going to ask."
Immediately the jester went down on his knees, saying, "I beseech your imperial highness to put that scamp cousin of mine to death."
The czar, thus caught in his own trap, could only laugh and pardon the condemned man.

The Puritans.
If the Puritans suffered bull baiting, it was not because it gave pain to the bull, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators.—Macaulay.

A Too Familiar Ego.
Deacon Stebbins, though a good citizen, was noted for getting more work out of the men who labored on his farm than any other agriculturist in the county. Late to bed was considered ample reason for an early rising. Timothy Flannery was engaged by the deacon, but stayed one week only. A neighbor hailed the departing helper and said:
"Hello, Tim! Did the deacon work you too hard?"
"No; the worruk was all right. It was seem' too much of meself that I couldn't stand."
"Seeing too much of yourself?"
"Yes, sor. I very night when I went up to bed I met meself comin' down to breakfast!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Good Time to Die.
The following is told concerning an old golf caddy and his wife. The minister, who was called in, tried to comfort the wife, saying that, while John was very weak, he was evidently ready for a better world. Unexpectedly, however, John rallied and said to his wife: "Jenny, my woman, I'll maybe be spared to ye yet."
"Na, na, John!" was the reply. "Ye're prepared, and I'm resigned! Dee noo!"—Dundee Advertiser.

Floored by an Epithet.
When a boy at Frankfort, just starting out on his career of public speaking, Senator Vest penetrated the knobs of Franklin county, Ky. He was making a speech to a small crowd which had scattered about the stump on which he stood. The audience either sat or lolled back on the ground while he spoke. As he expressed it afterward, he thought he was playing the old Harry with the opposite side, when, at the height of what he considered a splendid flight of oratory, some long, lean, lank, one galloosed, shrill voiced fellow rose from a lounging position about the middle of the group and said:
"Go it, my peckerwood!"
Vest's hair was very red, and he wore a blue suit. He was knocked clear off the stump and adjourned the meeting.

Three Nights Only.
Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema designed scenes and costumes on several occasions for leading English actors and actresses. His success has often been artistic rather than financial. In this connection there is a story of a stage hand who was reading a preliminary announcement of a production of "Coriolanus" at the Lyceum. The following words appeared in the notice:
Coriolanus—Sir Henry Irving.
Incidental Music by Sir A. C. Mackenzie.
Scenes designed by Sir L. Alma-Tadema.
"There y'are," remarked the stage hand in a disdainful tone to a fellow employee, "three bloomin' knights, and that's about as long as it will run."

He Gained the Peerage.
On the 1st of August, 1798, Captain Hood of the Zealous made the signal for the French fleet. For many preceding days Horatio Nelson had hardly taken either rest or food. He now ordered dinner to be served, while preparations were made for battle, and when his officers rose from the table and went to their separate stations he said to them, "Before this time tomorrow I shall have gained a peerage or Westminster abbey."

A Complication.
Two Irishmen were telling conundrums one day, and when their supply ran out Pat suggested that they make some up.
"All right," said Mike. "Phwhat is it that goes around a barnyard in feathers and on two legs and barking like a dog?"
"My, that's hard. I give it up," answered Pat after some moments of thinking. "Phwhat's the answer?"
"A chicken!"
"My, that's fine. But how'd the barking of a dog get in there?" inquired Pat.
"Oh, I just put that in to make it harder."

SHORT SERMON FOR A SUNDAY HALF-HOUR

By T. Calvin McClelland, D. D.

The Art of Going Without.

Text: I know how to be abased—Phillipians, iv., 12.

St. Paul says he has learned the art of going without. It is easy to lose, but it is hard to lose and keep one's spirit. It is easy to lose one's money, but it is hard for made to order feet to walk gracefully in bargain counter shoes. Old age comes without trying, but after working forty years a man must have learned how to give up—to retire gracefully.

The secret learned by St. Paul had two parts. First he looked on loss as intrinsically useful. The loser gives up, but he gets; adversity has a value. Tolstoy's Peter, the richest man in Russia, taken prisoner of war, learned for the first time, hunger and fatigue, but he learned more, the pleasure of eating when hungry, of sleeping after hard work; lying on the bare ground for the first time, he saw the sun rise and took in the meaning of the midnight with its myriad stars. Poverty brings the feeling of the primary happiness; bankruptcy is a great teacher of the higher values. When a man lies prostrate with convalescence he appreciates love's patience. When traditional opinions buckle one discovers that the plain face of duty has the features of her father God. One never forgets the ineffable moment when, feeling the hand he has always held slip away, he looked up and through his tears saw the heavens open and the assurance of personal immortality descend upon him. Wealth, health, faith and life have their revelations like the sunshine's panorama of mountain, river, flower and bird. But poverty, doubt, sickness and death, like the night, let in the host of heaven and widen creation till it reaches the fiery margin of infinity. The first part of St. Paul's secret of going without is, accept loss as a condition with a character of its own.

The second part of his secret is, he had a masterful purpose. "I can do all things in Him that strengtheneth me," he said. He was able to go without because he lived for one thing to make men Christlike lovers and doers of the good. An overbearing purpose makes a man put up with anything. Last summer the family slept in the attic with only blankets to cut the place into make believe rooms, but every one slept well because the mountains were just over the sill. When one goes for mountains what boots a bit of publicity and corn husks instead of curled hair? That wealthy man is known less by his riches than by his hobby for settlements. Then he who made dollars a minute works for dollars a month without winning, because when work is over he goes down to the clubhouse his wealth built and by association with the lads makes them love character even more than they love the clubhouse. And the hobby is the secret of retiring gracefully.

The man who has to give up the old ways of thinking about truth saves himself from skepticism because before the time of transition he devoted himself to doing good as well as believing good. And when he is compelled to say farewell to his heart's companion at that door which swings only outward, what will save him some forewandering in his loneliness? By living deeply, earnestly while his friend is with him for the things that abide, faith, hope and love. A mutual interest in the eternal gives one a great sense of the infinite companionship when the old companion goes away. So one must have an imperative work, must be taken up with something that is worth fitting into God's scheme to stay; then when money goes, or health or friend, a man has no chance to brood over himself. It is worth-while knowing how to lose gracefully. This is how—to accept loss with a positive experience with bitter-sweet gains; to be commanded by an interest, and this is the greatest interest, to get folks to be Christian lovers and doers of the good.

When Hearts Rejoice.
The living heart rejoices in every opportunity to express its love. True love is measureless. A love that that can be measured is unworthy of the name of love. The fragrance of her Master's love was more precious to Mary than the costly book of perfumed ointment. True love never complains of the value of the gift. Our greatest joy and richest blessings come from the giving that costs us most. The alabaster box of precious ointment was not comparable with the blessing Mary received from the Master in return.

CORONATION HOURS.

Nov. 22, '08—(I. Kings 1: 32-40.)

That was a crucial period of Solomon's career when the anointing oil of Zadok, the priest, was put upon his head and the crown of dominion was handed to him by David, his father. Adonijah, the younger brother of Alsalom, aspired to the throne and by faro' and clamor, was attempting to stampede the people in his behalf. But David had his own ideas in regard to the succession and with promptness and vigor he abdicated in favor of Solomon, that he might see the favored son firmly established in the seat of government while he was yet alive. The conspiracy came to naught, the people caught the enthusiasm of the hour, and cried out, "God save King Solomon!" And thus began the reign of one, under whose direction the kingdom of Israel reached the high water mark of national greatness. From the first moment that the crown of royalty rested upon his head he bore himself in a kingly fashion. Solomon was every inch a king.

Crowned Scoundrels.
The American youth is not eligible to royalty, thrones and scepters are not in our line. In this country there is no hereditary rank entitling the possessors thereof to place and power above the common throng. Yet there are coronation days in this land of equal rights and diadems are sought and won by American citizens. In Old World kingdoms it has often been true that crowns have rested upon unworthy heads. Many a monarch in rank has been a criminal and a slave in character. The writers of history are compelled to expurgate and disinfect their story before giving it out to popular use. Every careful student knows that the private lives of multitudes of kings and queens will not bear investigation. The rulers, "by divine right" are few, judged by the standard of morals taught in the Bible. One of the reasons for the disruption of the empire of Solomon after his death is to be found in the fact that Solomon's son, Rehoboam, followed his father's example instead of his preaching. The thousand wives of Solomon's wholesale adultery, were more influential in some respects and made a deeper impression on the empire than his thousand proverbs. Solomon's reign was the golden age of the Jewish kingdom, but he, himself, before his death, almost fills the poet's description. "The greatest, wisest, meanest of mankind."

Crowns For All.
It is said that when the Princess Victoria was called to the kingdom, the messengers who were the highest dignitaries of state, arrived at her palace from the death-bed of the king very early in the morning. They had great difficulty in arousing any one; but at length the princess' maid appeared, who said that her mistress was asleep and must not be disturbed. "Tell her," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, "that we have come on business of importance to the Queen, and even her slumbers must give way to that." Such a message was not to be put aside, and the princess appeared and was soon invested with royal robes and prerogatives. And what was true of Victoria is true of every young person in whatever land they live. We are all called to kingship and queenship. "They shall be kings and queens unto God, and they shall reign forever and ever." "Fold your arms over your breast, and you have covered a realm vast enough to engage the efforts of an archangel. "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city." Many a man who has rode at the head of a troop has been unable to put down one rebel lust camped upon his own soul. That young man has come to coronation who is a ruler of his own body, soul and spirit. That is a crown that does not descend by the law of primogeniture, it must be won by personal struggle.

Crowns Are Credentials.
Many a man and woman are wearing a crown of royalty. We come to epochs in life, great crises of existence, turning points in our history, hours fraught with destiny, moments when eternal issues hang upon the decisions we make. If in those crucial times we shrink, falter, fail to measure up, shut our eyes to glorious possibilities, choose present satisfaction rather than future expansion, we push away the crown of earthly dominion, and it passes to another more worthy than we. But the world is full of people who have come to coronation. It is not necessary to postpone to a future existence crowning days. He who is not crowned here, will not be crowned there. Thrones and dominions are not arbitrarily bestowed. He who would be a candidate for promotion in another world must carry his credentials with him. It does not necessarily follow that the world must recognize royal qualities, but they must be in the soul's possession. Men and women have been cast out, and assassinated by their fellow men as unworthy of life, but they have been hailed as monarchs by the angels. The eternal crowning day is coming by and by.

WHAT TO WEAR AND HOW TO WEAR IT.

Our Special Correspondent Writes Entertainingly to Women.

FROM THE METROPOLIS

What to Wear When Yachting is a Serious Question to Women of Fashion—Simple and Jaunty For Mid-Season Wear—A Flowered Silk With Embroidered Fillet.

BY JULES THEROW.
The striped linens are carrying all before them just as the striped cloths did. In fact one cannot get away from striped effects no matter what material may be selected for a gown, for they are the design ideal for all smart fabrics.

There are divers ways of employing stripes in self-decorative schemes but none more attractive than the idea exploited in the accompanying illustration. The skirt and jacket are of different design. Broad bias folds of brown and white linen trim the skirt, forming a large diamond in the front. The waist line is elevated and the skirt hung from a belt of plain brown linen trimmed with small brass buttons.

The jacket, too, has the short waistline and is trimmed with tucked bands of plain brown linen stitched under triple rows of linen soutache braid in the same tone. The front is vestless, nor has it revers, an artistic finish being effected by a flat stitching of fancy braid. The neck is collarless and embellished in the same way. Long, rather loose sleeves make the coat serviceable for late season wear and the hat is a smooth brown straw trimmed with satin and brown wings.

A costume which might be duplicated in any of the soft fabrics of the season is depicted above, and through originally fashioned of figured Japanese silk, silk finished nun's-veiling or challis would be quite as effective in addition to the economic advantage gained.
The material has a delicate cream background with a pattern of pale lavender and pink flowers. The skirt is gauged around the waistline below an elevated girde of broad fillet lace embroidered with narrow silk soutache braid. A band of this same trimming finishes the bottom, being stitched over the hem.

An odd feature of the girde is the way it is laced at both the right and the left side, though one side only is used in the adjustment, of course. The dress is made in one-piece, but the blouse has a simulated opening formed by a box plate in the front with ruching of soft cream Val lace on either side of the plait.
Broad revers of the soutache embroidered fillet lace trim the upper part of the blouse, suggesting the lines of a sailor collar, while the full sleeves and at the elbows with bands of satin ribbon tied in soft bows.

What to wear when yachting has become a serious question in the mind of the woman of fashion, for the sport has grown so popular during the past few years that it constitutes one of society's principal pastimes in summer. The blouse shirt and plain skirt of former years has given way to a dressier costume which follows the lines prevailing in street and house gowns. The lovely white and black suit pictures is carried out in two materials the skirt being of soft French flannel with a silk finish and the coat of heavy black taffetas, stitched with bands of white silk braided with narrow black silk soutache. The skirt is very close-fitting, extending above the waistline and finished at the top with bands of its own material stitched in girde effect. A soft white linen blouse is worn under the coat, which has a collar of plain white taffetas.

The second costume in palest biscuit color mohair is trimmed with sea-green pongee with large polka dots of white silk. The skirt has a narrow tuck about the knees, piped with green silk, which gives it the effect of being made in two parts. The blouse, joined to it, with a bolt of the same material, is laid in small plaits and cut in one with the sleeves. A deep turn-over collar is faced with green pongee and the sleeves are finished with cuffs of the same material.

Fragments of Useful Information.

Do you know—
That you can make a faded dress perfectly white by washing it in boiling water?
That salt dissolved in alcohol will often remove grease spots from clothing?
That two potatoes grated in a basin of warm water give better results than soap in washing delicate flannel or woolen goods, ribbons, etc?
That linen blinds can be cleaned by being laid flat and rubbed with powdered bathbrick?
That piano keys can be cleaned as can any old ivory, by being rubbed with muslin dipped in alcohol?
That a little thin, cold starch rubbed over windows and mirrors and then wiped off with a soft cloth is an easy way of producing most shining results?
That a spoonful of mustard in a gallon of water will kill insects in the earth? This is good for potted plants?
That a few drops of essence of sassafras will keep flies away?
That cloves or salt sprinkled on a pantry shelf will rid it of ants?
That you can remove the odor of fresh paint from a room by leaving there a pail of water into which several onions have been sliced?

Scraps.

Egg Stains—To remove egg stains from silver, rub the stained part briskly with table salt, then wash in warm soapsuds.
To whiten clothes, put one teaspoonful of borax in the last rinse water. Powder the borax, so that it will dissolve easily.
For settling coffee—When eggs are high, one may be economical in this way: Break an egg in a jelly glass, fill it with granulated sugar, mix, then cover closely. Use one-half teaspoonful to a pot of coffee. This keeps any length of time.
Apple Jelly—When making apple jelly, try putting a drop of oil of cinnamon in it. It improves the flavor.

Canned Tomato Recipes.

Stock tomato soup.—Take any sort of meat soup and add half a can of stewed and well-seasoned tomatoes; strain, and serve with croutons.
Tomato toast.—Stew down a can of tomatoes till thick, with a table-spoonful of chopped onion, a table-spoonful of chopped parsley, salt, and pepper; when the juice is somewhat absorbed pour over slices of buttered toast and serve at once. Do not strain.
Tomatoes au gratin.—Take a can of tomatoes, add salt and pepper and a teaspoonful of minced onion; put them into a deep baking-dish in layers with soft bread crumbs, and put bits of butter on these; repeat till the dish is full, with crumbs on top, and bake till brown.

Promoting Flower Culture.

Flower culture has reached the point among the women in the fashionable Lenox colony where plans have been made for a show upon a large scale.

Destroys Hair Germs

Recent discoveries have shown that falling hair is caused by germs at the roots of the hair. Therefore, to stop falling hair, you must first completely destroy these germs. Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly do this. Then leave the rest to nature.
Does not change the color of the hair.

Recent discoveries have also proved that dandruff is caused by germs on the scalp. Therefore, to cure dandruff, the first thing to do is to completely destroy these dandruff germs. Here, the same Ayer's Hair Vigor will give the same splendid results.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself! and see. Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa.

"You don't care for a big house and lots of servants, do you?" he asked.
"Not at all," she replied promptly.
"Don't you think that love in a flat would be delightful?" he persisted.
"Yes," she answered. "Love in a flat, but not life with one."
He postponed his proposal.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa.

The tub or cask that Diogenes lived in was a jar of the kind used for wine, as engravings on ancient monuments show. A bas-relief at the Villa Albani suggests, moreover, that the jar was a cracked one, unsuited for any other use than as a movable grotto for the Greek philosopher to dwell in.

Here is Relief for Women.

If you have pains in the back, Urinary, Bladder or Kidney trouble, and want a certain pleasant herb cure for woman's ills, try Mother Gray's Australian-Leaf. It is a safe and never-failing regulator. At Druggists or by mail 50 cents. Sample package free. Address, The Mother-Gray Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grip, in a very few hours. By subjecting minerals containing various metals to the spark of a high tension induction coil characteristic colors are imparted to the spark by the different metals. It is not the heat that produces these colors, but centrifugal force, which puts the corpuscles of the molecule in motion.

Read the pain formula on a box of Pink Pain Tablets. Then ask your Doctor if there is a better one. Pain means congestion—blood pressure somewhere. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets check head pains, womanly pains, pain anywhere. Try one, and see! 20 for 25c. Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa.

Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is created from pure parched grains, malt, nuts, etc.—no real coffee in it. Fine in flavor—is "made in a minute." No 20 or 30 minutes tedious boiling. Sample Free. Sold by F. C. Hagin, Genoa.

Gone Forever.

Ten years ago an Allen County, Kas., farmer put his initials on a dollar bill. The next day he went to the nearest town and spent it with a merchant. Before the year was out he got the dollar back. Four times in six years the dollar came back to him for produce and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he got it back five years ago. He sent it to a mail order house. He has never seen that dollar since, nor never will. That dollar will never pay any more school or road tax for him, will never build nor brighten any of the homes of the community. He sent it entirely out of the circle of usefulness to himself and neighbors. —Maxwell's Talisman.

Only a Lack of Facilities.

Olara's aunt took her for a visit to Niagara Falls. After viewing the great waterfall for some time, and the little girl failing to make any remarks, aunt tried to draw some expression from her as to what she thought of the spectacle. Finally she said:

"Olara, don't you think the falls are beautiful, wonderful?" and was amazed at the child's nonchalant reply:

"Oh, yes, I s'pose so; but I sink our creek at home could do it if it had a place." —November Woman's Home Companion.

FIBRE SATURATION.

The Effect of Moisture Upon Wood is Easily Perceptible.

The effect of water in softening organic tissue as in wetting a piece of paper or a sponge, is well known, and so is the stiffening effect of drying. The same law applies to wood. By different methods of seasoning two pieces of the same stick may be given very different degrees of strength.

Wood in its green state contains moisture in the pores of the cells, like honey in a comb, and also in the substance of the cell walls. As seasoning begins the moisture in the pores is first evaporated. This lessens the weight of the wood, but does not affect its strength.

It is not until the moisture in the substance of the cell walls is drawn upon that the strength of the wood begins to increase. Scientifically, this point is known as the "fiber-saturation point." From this condition to that of absolute dryness the gain in the strength of wood is somewhat remarkable.

In the case of spruce the strength is multiplied four times; indeed, spruce, in small sizes, thoroughly dried in an oven, is as strong weight for weight, as steel. Even after the reabsorption of moisture, when the wood is again exposed to the air the strength of the sticks is still from 50 to 150 per cent greater than when it is green.

When, in drying, the fiber-saturation point is passed, the strength of wood increases as drying progresses, in accordance with a definite law, and this law can be used to calculate from the strength of a stick at one degree of moisture what its strength will be at any other degree.

Manufacturers, engineers and builders need to know not only the strength but the weakness of the materials they use, and for this reason they are quite as much interested in knowing how timbers are affected by moisture as they are in knowing how they are weakened by knots, checks, cross-grain and other defects.

It is clear that where timbers are certain to be weakened by excessive moisture they will have to be used in larger sizes for safety.

So far, engineers of timber tests, while showing that small pieces gained greatly in strength, do not advise counting on the same results in the seasoning of large timbers, owing to the fact that the large timbers usually found in the market have defects which are sure to counterbalance the gain from seasoning.—"The Strength of Wood as Influenced by Moisture," Department of Agriculture.

Plucky Puma Cub.

Hissing like a sullen geyser, the great puma mother crouched with flaming eyes. Ridge of her tawny back brushed up in rage, tail a-switch, steel sinews rigid beneath soft skin, she glared at her four cubs in the cage corner. A fluffy ball of spotted fur sprawled on unsteady legs across toward her. Out shot a mighty forepaw; the baby was hurled suddenly back among his cowering brother and sisters.

"Nasty temper," I remarked to the keeper; "has she been long like that?"

"Started this forenoon," he shook his head in anxiety. "I don't like it. I'll have to separate them, I fear."

The unnatural mother commenced pacing her prison, sparring viciously at her offspring in passing. Three huddled together in a pitted heap, but one stood up and defied her. A jungle terror in miniature, his tiny rage was manifest. Tensely alert before his trembling mates, he shifted warily to meet each blow, dodging, spitting, striking out an awkward paw at the great thrusters.

"They don't turn on their cubs often. Only knew it once before. You notice, mein Herr, her claws are not out when she strikes. That may come —then we will lose some promising babies here." The young German keeper was greatly distressed. I returned in the morning to see how the affair had progressed. Entering the Frankfurt Thiergarten, I found the lion house. My friend stood in the empty corridor looking into the cage, sleek forms shifted restlessly on every side a pale light came from above, the place was close with a heavy odor.

He greeted me mournfully. "The little beggar was too spirited. She got him last night. Just a second in her paws and the taxidermist won't attempt to stuff the skin." The remaining cubs peered wonderingly at us from an adjoining cage, the murderer paced in silence, but her eyes were alive with a strange fascinating light. The tragedy had stirred the rows of imprisoned beasts. An uncanny howl in a chilling key came from the leopards, the lion's deep throated guttural sent unwelcome quivers through one's nerves.

I left the building, relieved to feel the breeze and see the sunlight. Poor little chap of a puma, he surely had tremendous pluck! —Travel Magazine.

MONEY A NEW YORKER MADE.

At a Premium Now Though Uncle Sam Rejected It.

New York has been the birthplace of many curious coins of private manufacture which for a time have passed as money. Of these no series is more interesting or has left more metallic reminders than the coin struck in the metal known as "Feuchtwanger composition."

In 1837 Dr. Lewis Feuchtwanger, a New York druggist and chemist, invented a white metal, very much of the color of silver, from a compound of copper, zinc, nickel and iron. He struck a number of coins of the denomination of one and three cents, the latter being the first coin of this value ever issued in the United States.

Specimens of these coins he forwarded to Congress with a petition that his metal be adopted for United States subsidiary coins instead of copper. R. M. Patterson, Director of the Mint, reported adversely on the petition, and the metal was rejected by the Government.

Dr. Feuchtwanger continued to strike coins of the repudiated metal, and many of the tradesmen's tokens of the period were also made of the so-called "American silver," some of which are now of considerable rarity and value.

The rarest of the regular Feuchtwanger coins from the standpoint of value is a three-cent piece dated 1837 which shows an eagle on the obverse. On the reverse is a laurel wreath, between the two ends of which is the Arabic figure "3." The wreath encloses the words "Three Cents," while around the border is inscribed "Feuchtwanger's Composition." The edge of the coin is reeded, and a specimen in uncirculated condition has brought $40.

A similar variety of the three cent piece shows an eagle standing on rocks, with the date 1837 beneath. On the reverse there is a wreath, but the figure 3 is omitted from between the ends of the wreath. This variety when in fine condition is worth $10.

The next piece in point of value is what evidently was struck as a tradesmen's token for use in this city. In seven lines, on the obverse, the inscription reads: "Feuchtwanger American Silver Composition 1 Cortland St., New York." The reverse in six lines is inscribed "House and Household Furniture, Instruments, Beer Pumps, Pillars, Grates, Spoons, Forks and Dining Sets." This piece, which is about the size of a half dollar, has brought $16.

Another tradesmen's token of rare variety, somewhat similar to the reverse of the foregoing piece, shows the inscription on the obverse, "Dr. Feuchtwanger's American Silver Composition, 277 Broadway, New York."

One variety of the three cent piece, while not rare, is of interest to New Yorkers, for it is a New York three cent piece, showing on the obverse the arms of New York with the word "Excelsior" and the date 1837 underneath.

The commonest of the Feuchtwanger pieces are those of the denomination of one cent, the principle design of which shows an eagle grasping a snake.

The scarcest of the Feuchtwanger pieces, not considering premium, is a three cent piece of the 1837 issue struck in copper, of which only one specimen has been mentioned.

The record price paid for a coin struck in Feuchtwanger metal is $72.50, which was paid for a specimen of the "Philadelphia shilling" at the Morris sale, held in Philadelphia in 1905. The piece shows the arms of the city of Philadelphia on one side, while the other bears the inscription around the edge, "Corporation of Philadelphia," in the centre being stamped the words, "One Shilling Token."

A second variety bearing the arms of Philadelphia, like the foregoing, showed on the reverse a wreath in the centre of which are the letters, "F. S." (which are supposed to stand for "Feuchtwanger Silver") and "50 Cents." This variety also is very rare, and a fine specimen sold for $47.50 at the same sale as its companion coin.

In 1837 a New York firm struck from the Feuchtwanger metal a coin representing the denomination of 12 1/2 cents. On the obverse was an eagle holding in its talons a snake, with the date "1837." On the reverse was the inscription, "E. E. Russell, I. O. U. 12 1/2 c." It was a little larger than the old time copper cent. At a recent sale a fine specimen brought $14.—New York Sun.

The Wake of a Bullet.

Experiment have recently been made with an inflammable paste on bullets. When the bullet leaves the muzzle the paste ignites, leaving a stream of smoke behind it, and enabling the marksman to watch its course, and, if necessary, correct his aim for the next shot.

THE HIGHER LIFE

Selected Cases of Thought from Pious and Palps of All Ages.

To be a true Christian.

One who would be a Christian must not simply believe in God much less any truth or dogma about him; he must love him, and, if he would attain a high degree of Christian perfection, he must have the same passion which characterized Mary in this act of announcing.—Rev. M. Edwards, Baptist.

Love as a Weapon.

"Perfect love casteth out fear, because fear hath torment." It worries us, causing fretting and anxiety, because it keeps our thoughts circling around self and self-interest. There is no fear in love, because it takes us out of ourselves and makes us spend ourselves in the service of others.—Rev. M. Edwards, Baptist.

What Christ Asks.

A surrendered heart makes music in heaven. For God's gift to us he asks the gift of ourselves to Him. Nothing less will satisfy Him. By His mercies He is moving us to Him. His every gift is a repetition of His invitation. "My child, give Me thy heart."

Just to be glad is praise.—Rev. J. B. Clark, Methodist.

Duty of Self-Concentration.

A life often fails to make a lasting impression because of its diffusion. What we call genius is frequently only the child of application. To attempt everything and to accomplish nothing is a fatal folly. While we are striving to know something about everything we must zealously try to know everything about something.—Rev. Edw. Clark, Baptist.

Our Vain Seeking.

How unlike God we are. We have not time to enjoy to-day, because we are forever seeking to live to-morrow in to-day. When our to-morrow comes, we shall then fix our attention on the succeeding day or days. We try to express its joys, its sorrows, and again and again we find in this anticipated attitude the cause of the wrinkled brow, the apprehensive eye and the hesitating tone.—Rev. R. Boyd, Unitarian.

What Christ Suffered.

We know that Christ's was a sensitive nature, but this is not saying that He was not brave. And there is no reason to believe that He, in anticipation of His death, would yield to the thought any more than an ordinary man. So, therefore, because He suffered "even unto death," as He did, in the Garden of Gethsemane, is, in itself, an argument that He was hearing more than the anticipation.—Rev. D. Anderson, Baptist.

Equality for All.

Oh, it does not matter much at what degrees between the Equator and the Pole of earthly experiences we have to pass our lives; when the account comes to be made up at last we shall be all pretty much on an equality. All earthly conditions have nearly the same quantity of the raw material of pain and pleasure, and the amount of either actually experienced by us depends not on where we are, but on what we are.—Christian Herald.

Mystifying the Public.

Mesmerist, astrologer, sorcerer, mind-reader, medium—whatever the title of the panacea or the platitudes, there is always a considerable percentage of the community that loves to be mystified or fuddled with long words, and there are always quacks ready to gyp a shilling by stroking the large bump of gullibility creeping into houses to lead captive silly women (as Paul says)—and, we may add, sillier men.—Rev. D. Anderson, Baptist.

The Ritualistic Tendency.

The Puritan simplicity in public worship, a simplicity so rigid and severe as to be a trial to sinners and an act of penance on the part of saints, was but a recoil from Romanist mummeries, and like all recoils went to the other extreme. For some years the pendulum has been swinging in the contrary direction, until ritualizing tendencies are appearing in churches whose denominational lineage would seem to point them otherwise.—Rev. H. P. Dewey, Presbyterian.

How we Should Love.

"Fatherly love carries with it the brotherly love. John affirms that love is not love when it is set only upon God the Father and restrained from our brothers. 'He that loveth not his brother knoweth not God,' when our love to God and to our brother has grown into full strength it proves a splendid power in our lives, elevating us from all fear, giving us grand inspirations and even making us bold to meet the test of judgment day.—James Block, Congregationalist.

Trusting Ourselves.

To trust to one's self alone, however resolute, is to lean on a broken reed. The faith which, above all, insures the victory is faith in God. Do not leave him out of the reckoning. To have such a patron is to make sure of success, for he has infinite resources. To have such "backing" is to laugh at difficulty, for Omnipotence is behind us. If God be for us, who can be against us? "By my God have I leaped over a wall!" said David, reviewing his part in the siege of Jebus, when he climbed the ramparts with a prayer on his lips.—Rev. F. Willis, Reformed.

WILLIE EATS EM ALIVE.

Bosco of the Freak Museum Not the Only Worm Exterminator.

W. B. Proctor the well known soap millionaire, imputed a part of his success to his soap's popularity among children.

Mr. Proctor claims that habits of scrupulous cleanliness could be formed in children if, at first, they were made to bathe. He had at the tip of his tongue a number of amusing anecdotes about the extraordinary mercenary character of the small boy.

One of these anecdotes concerned a little boy who came to his mother one day for a nickel.

"Oh," said the lady, "be industrious and earn your money. I am tired of always giving, giving to you."

The youngster departed in thoughtful silence. Thereafter for some time, he did not make a single demand for cash. His pleased mother discovered the reason for this obedience late one afternoon, when, in a secluded part of her garden, she found her little son standing in the centre of an appreciative crowd of urchins.

Directly behind him, quite neatly printed on cardboard and tacked to the arbor, was this announcement:

WILLIE JONES WILL EAT

1 small worm for.....1 cent
1 large worm for.....2 cents
1 butterfly for.....2 cents
1 caterpillar for.....3 cents
1 hop toad for.....5 cents

And the boy, as mother plainly saw, was doing a tremendous business.

Where Eels Come From.

The public just learns, it does not know where eels are bred, but it seems the problem long has puzzled biologists. Danish marine investigators have completed researches proving that so far as the European eel population is concerned the creatures spawn at a depth of 5550 fathoms in the Atlantic Ocean, contiguous to the British Isles, and southwest of Europe.

From innumerable eggs there appear tiny larvae called leptocephali, which are transparent, jelly-like, and flat, having something of the contour of a all-less herring. It is not known how long the eggs take to develop, the leptocephali, but the latter occupy six months in transition to the familiar evers, which are about two inches long.

The evers then migrate in countless swarms to the shores of Western Europe, traveling in columns sometimes several yards wide and miles long. Nothing stops their progress. If they encounter a ship, they separate to the right and the left and rejoin it, the vessel's wake. They invade every river and water way along the coasts ascending small falls, penetrate streams and wriggle over swamp grounds into ponds and ditches.

Elgin Butter.

Prof. O. P. Huazker, head of Dairy Division of Purdue University has the following to say regarding Elgin Butter:

"Elgin butter is supposed to come from Elgin, Ill., and it is claimed by butter merchants that butter made in Elgin territory is of superior quality, because of more ideal climatic conditions, better cows, and better pastures. The truth of the matter is that the Elgin region makes but very little butter. That section of the State of Illinois in which Elgin is situated is largely a city milk supply and milk condensing country. A large proportion of all the milk produced there goes into milk condensing factories and city milk plants.

"Though the consuming public may be ignorant of the fact, it is nevertheless true that most of the butter wrapped in Elgin wrappers and sold as Elgin butter, has never seen Elgin, Ill., nor any section of that region. It comes from any creamery or butter merchant that chooses to use the Elgin wrapper."

Sand.

Sand is used at the seashore as material for lovers to sit on and by wholesale grocers. It is also useful in proposing and driving away creditors.

Sand is present in almost every locality. It can be heard on the vaudeville stage during the clog dance, and can be tasted in strawberries, and can be seen in choice New England farm lands, shortly after they have been purchased.

Sand is composed of a large number of individuals. When the waves come up and washes these individuals about maybe they protest ("he knows"—human beings do), but the wave doesn't care. The wave would be glad of it, if it knew.

Sand is often used as a foundation for houses. The people who build the houses on sand do it because they like to save up for a rainy day.

Sand is also used for scenery in deserts. Indeed, without sand, no desert would have any scenery at all.

Sand sometimes makes storms. When there is a sand storm, it is hard on the eyes. But this is good for oculists, thus proving that all things have a use.

Buttons That Suggest Virtue.

The five buttons on the coats of Chinamen are intended to remind them of the five chief moral virtues which Confucius recommended. These are: Humanity, justice, order, rectitude and prudence.

PARKER'S

MEN NEGLECT TO DRAW WAGES.

One Railroad Told $9,000,000 in Unclaimed Pay Checks.

Not less than $9,000,000 in unclaimed wage checks is awaiting claimants in the treasury of the Sunset lines of Texas. Not a thousandth part ever will be claimed, or the owners would have called for it long ago. The money is kept in a special fund, and if a laborer shows up twenty years later and can prove his claim, the money will be paid to him. In this way the railroad company differs from the United States, for on all government work unpaid wages are accredited to the general fund after the expiration of a year, and the government is just that much ahead.

It is hard to believe that such an immense sum as $9,000,000 could accrue, through the laborers not drawing their checks. But most of the work was done by Mexicans who disappeared without saying a word as to their whereabouts. Ignorant and untutored, the Mexican when he wishes to quit, simply packs up his belongings, and hikes out without a penny, never stopping to draw the pay he is entitled to.

Negroes, too, add to the fund, but their contributions are not so frequent as from the Mexicans, for the negro knows more about how to get what is coming to him. But it frequently happens that a negro working on the section gets wind of retributive justice being on his track for some offense committed elsewhere, and he promptly takes leave. Sometimes he sends for his wages later on, but often it goes to help swell the unpaid wage fund.

What to do with the money is a question that has never been answered by the railroad company. The practice in the past has been to keep it in trust, but the amount is looming to such large proportions that some other disposition may be sought. It will probably will reach $10,000 in the next year, and no doubt many of the claimants are long since dead.

Houses of Sawdust.

Sawdust is of great value in the construction of house building materials in Germany at least. In Berlin already a number of buildings are in process of erection, in whose formation sawdust plays an important part.

The sawdust is mixed with certain inorganic mineral salts, and is formed into bricks, plastering and so forth, by means of strong hydraulic pressure.

It has been demonstrated that the building materials constructed in this manner are impervious to dampness, and are quite fire-proof as well. They are also remarkably firm and of extremely light weight.

A still further advantage is said to be that the material of this sort can be tinted and colored to suit the most exacting taste with a slight amount of trouble and expense, so that the ornamental part of house building can be carried on from the time the first sawdust brick is laid in its place.

The Way of the Rothschilds.

A New Orleans man said the other day of the great house of the Rothschilds:

"The Rothschilds push their stridency to the point of eccentricity. They once had for an agent here in New Orleans, a fine fellow. They telegraphed to this agent at a certain season to tell their cotton holdings, but he knew the price would go higher, and therefore he didn't sell until four days later. In consequence he netted an extra profit of $40,000 for his firm.

"When he sent the Rothschilds the money and told them joyously what he had done they returned the whole amount, with a cold note that said:

"The $40,000 you made by disobeying our instructions is not ours but yours. Take it. Mr. Blank, your successor sails for New Orleans to-day."

Dining Late and Long.

In Sir Algernon West's early days society often dined late and long, and the late Lord Clanwilliam once told him of one occasion when he dined at a friend's villa near Putney and the meal did not begin until 8 o'clock.

When they at last arose from the table and went to their room, Lord Clanwilliam swung open his window and saw the haymakers coming into the field. "I wonder," he thought, "what time they begin work," and on consulting his watch he found it was 8.30. The haymakers were returning to their work from their breakfast.

A Defense of Newport.

From time immemorial it has been the journalistic habit to brand Rhode Island's former seaport as the happy hunting ground of Mammon and its votaries. Newport has become the synonym for all that is obnoxious to the great majority which has never felt the magic of its influence or tasted the sweetness of its delights. The accepted view of those who hold the Newport colony in contempt, albeit that scorn is tinged with a generous flavor of envy, is that the dwellers of the exclusive city by the sea are a group of degenerates upon whose hands time hangs so heavily that they are ready to snatch at any prospect of amusement, no matter how absurd or depraved, that will serve to release them from a moment of boredom.

At last an energetic apologist for the maligned Newporter has risen in the well groomed person of Mr. Gouverneur Morris, whose very name should carry conviction, even though his pen fail to do the trick. He comes to the defense of the rich leisure class with a vim that must excite the wonder and admiration of the most languid cliff dweller. What are the facts? he demands. Instead of waiting for some one to answer he does it himself. "The facts, of course, are," he declares, "that the rich leisure class contains perhaps as large a percentage of honest fathers, good mothers and well brought up children as the poor working class; that in this respect it compares favorably even with the poor leisure class."

Then Mr. Gouverneur Morris makes a statement which must have required all the courage he could summon to his aid. Hear him: "Now, if there is one thing that the American people cannot and will not (if they can help it) stand it is the person who endeavors to live his own life in his own way and mind his own business. The American considers those who differ with him in life, means and point of view not merely inferior but immoral characters."

Is it possible that Mr. Morris has made an original discovery?

The Awakening of China.

According to Minister Wu, the Chinese emperor's able representative in Washington, the Celestial Kingdom is in dead earnest today in its efforts to deserve and maintain its place among the world's powers. The old regime has passed, and progress is in the saddle. Twenty-five years ago Minister Wu was himself a student of western institutions. He described his troubles in a recent speech to 126 Chinese boys now being educated in an American school:

When I began learning the English language competent teachers were not easily obtainable. Western learning was despised, and those who wished to study it had to do it privately. Foreign educated Chinese were slighted and looked down upon. They were considered almost barbarians and traitors. In cases of necessity when their services were required they were principally employed as translators or interpreters. They were not intrusted with responsible functions or appointed to important posts in the government service. It is a well known fact that upon the return of the 19th government students to China in 1881 they were not properly or fairly treated.

But times have happily changed, and the conditions are at present different. Western science and knowledge are eagerly sought after now. What was despised before is now appreciated. Schools and colleges for western sciences are being established everywhere, and students are sent abroad; hence you are here.

The general cry in China today is for reforms and for competent men to carry them out. The reforms demanded are social and professional as well as political. China's eyes have been opened by the wonderful success of the Japanese in mastering the methods in trade, diplomacy and war of the white race. Her farighted men know that she must learn western ways, and learn them rapidly, or she will perish as a nation. In referring to the proposed Chinese-American alliance Minister Wu, pointing to the Chinese students, said:

The cordial way in which these young men are received everywhere is gratifying as showing how kindly the American people feel toward those of China. Later these young men will go home and go to work, every one a friend of America. This, you see, is something of an alliance in itself.

Bats were the only family of native mammals found on the thousands of small islands in the Pacific. These islands are so far away from the great continents that no mammals but the flying bats could reach them. The variety of bats known on earth is about 400.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

On Alcohol Production.

In the early part of the last century, the problems of transportation constituted a powerful incentive to the production of spirits in Sweden.

In the mountainous regions of the South, there exists a breed of men called "moonshiners." They are not inherently "bad men." Many of them are men of standing in their communities, workers in the mountain churches and who have the confidence of the communities in which they live.

The fact that they live far removed from railroads or other means of transportation has much to do with their being "moonshiners." They cannot find a market for their surplus corn, owing to the natural difficulties of getting it to the market.

In the Southern States, the refuse of the sugar factories is now pure waste.

In seasons of unusual crops in potatoes, the price often drops far below the cost of production and often they are not dug at all.

In the far West, the inferior grades of corn find no market and total loss is only averted by using it to feed stock.

The removal of the tax from alcohol, after it has been chemically treated under Government supervision so as to make it undrinkable, will solve this problem of waste of these products of the farm by providing an outlet for them for a useful purpose and at a reasonable price.

It will result in a heavy increase in the production of alcohol, of course. This, under the old conditions, would be a cause for alarm. But science has provided methods for the treating of alcohol in such a manner that none but the most confirmed dipsomaniac can drink it or does drink it.

In France, Germany and Switzerland, where the largest use has been made of the tax free denatured alcohol legislation, the temperance leaders are even more enthusiastic over the results than in Britain.

In England, where there has been a boom in the use of industrial alcohol, there has been an accompanying radical decrease in the consumption of beverage spirits.

Society's Gain. It has been demonstrated by statistics that the average gain to society for every wage-earner is $300 per annum. This average—less than a dollar a day—is produced by the lowered earning capacity of the beer-drinker, tobacco-poisoned, workingman, demoralized by the fellowship of whisky.

If alcohol and beer will eat off the finger ends of bartenders and eat up their shoes, what will it do to a drinker's stomach. — California Searchlight.

The back yard isn't looking at all bad. A wagon load of fresh soil helped matters wonderfully, and Myra and I have found uninitiated joy in watching the little lives come up.

Myra lived in one of a long row of houses, very similar outwardly, which ran the whole length of the block.

"You are a good boy, George," she said, beaming upon me. Still I felt I was going against my better judgment.

"When we are married," said Myra—she is not so shy of the word as she was a year ago—"when we are married, George, we must have a garden."

"Oh, George, how horrid you are!" "How horrid they are you mean. But you will want some butterflies in your garden. And then we can study entomology as well as botany."

"Oh, we can study a dictionary without those things," she said. "Well, and I didn't say 'caterpillars' so we're quits." Myra's reasoning is sometimes too profound for me.

"It's a pickaxe that's wanted here," I said, mopping my brow, and regarding the little patch of broken clay ground.

"The ground is full of stones," I explained, as I lit my pipe again. "Do you thing the soil is rich, George?" she asked.

"Nonsense, George! Dig away and you'll soon be finished with it."

"Well?" said I encouragingly. "I was going to say something, but I didn't. I knew she glanced swiftly at me to see if I had noticed her blush, and then, thinking I had not, she resumed talking.

"Let's go to a hooster at once, then," I exclaimed, catching her arm. "Oh, dear me! Will you never be sensible!"

"But, George," she interrupted, "about the serious business of a garden—the digging, and weeding, and so on!"

"Why, of course, that'll have to be done, won't it?" she asked. "I will try to dig," I murmured humbly.

"Can you weed?" she inquired. "I can sow," I said modestly.

"Oh, I'll do the sowing, George," she said kindly. "So you'll only need to dig, and weed, and rake, and, of course, cut the grass and trim the borders."

"Don't be cross, George," she said. "What's the matter? I know I don't deserve to be forgiven, but—" "It isn't that, dear," she said gently, "it's simply because I—"

"Let me see your hands, Myra," I cried, seized with a sudden inspiration. She held them up after some persuasion. And then I understood. I drew her over to the window.

"How on earth did you do it?" I asked, with a queer feeling in my throat. "Don't be cross, George," she said. "I'm a little bit tired."

"Oh, Myra! Myra!" "S-h-h. Never mind, dear," she whispered.

WE MUST HAVE A GARDEN.

rate we had never discussed the subject before. Perhaps that was because we were both city bred, and had not fully realized, although we had decided, that our future home was to be set in the country.

"Yes," I said, after a pause, "I think a garden is the very thing. It's so healthy, and it needn't cost much if we do the work ourselves."

"I'm very glad you like the idea, George," returned Myra, in the quick utterance which always tells me when she is pleased.

"And then," ran on the sweet enthusiast, "we'll be able to send lovely bouquets to mother. Oh, George, I wish we— she stopped abruptly.

QUEER WEDDING EFFIGY.

Mock Attention Paid by Bride's Party to Bridegroom's Relatives.

There is a curious custom still prevalent in the Bellary district of India in connection with the wedding ceremonies among certain Brahmin families.

Just prior to the close of the feast, a hideous effigy of a male figure, fantastically robed in rags, supposed to represent the bridegroom's father, is carried along the streets in procession, under the shade of a sieve adorned with tassels of onions and margosa leaves.

Every few yards during the procession the feet of the effigy have to be reverently washed and its forehead decorated with a caste mark by its living spouse, the bridegroom's mother. The bridegroom's other female relatives have several mock attentions paid to them by the women of the bride's party.

As to Potatoes.

Our pomme is about as worthless as our pomme de terre. Match the American apple against the American potato and you will have a stand-off. Germany is the largest producer of potatoes in the world. If anybody should ask you, she has grown as many as 48,000,000 tons in a year, and some of them were actually fit to eat. When will America learn to grow potatoes and to preserve them? Our bread has as many diseases as a mangy dog. Too many family marriages; too much wedded bliss among cousins.

A Kansas Girl's Advice.

A Lincoln county girl writes this advice to the Kansas City Star: "Why do young men do so much loafing? Go to work. Push ahead! I am but a young girl, but I clothe myself and have money in the bank. I lay up more money every year than any young man within three miles of my home. When they get a dollar they go to a dance and go home a dollar out. I advise all girls to cut clear of loafing boys. Stand by the boy who works, and never put your arm through the handle of a jug."

Hanging Scaffolds.

With the modern skyscraping office building has come a new kind of building scaffold. Instead of constructing the scaffold from below, which is impossible in the case of buildings ranging from 10 to 50 stories high, platforms are suspended from the steel girders above. On these swinging scaffolds the bricklayers work and the scaffold is raised as the work progresses.—System.

School of Waiters.

It is often a matter of wonder why foreign waiters are preferred to English ones, even in English hotels. The foreigner is a far better waiter. His aim is not always to remain a waiter, but to rise in the hotel business to a higher position. In Lausanne there is a school for waiters. They are taught there foreign languages, and not only to wait well, but everything else connected with the working of a hotel.

Where Impoliteness Reigns.

New York men have just earned the reputation of being less polite in their treatment of women in public conveyances than are the men of other cities. Figures obtained from other cities show an average of thirteen per cent. of men seated while women are standing, and New York city shows about seventy per cent.

Growth of City of Baltimore.

In 1790 the population of the city of Baltimore was only 13,503; it was in 50 years or in 1840, before Baltimore had climbed up into the 100,000 class; she could first count half a million in 1900; and to-day the official records disclose a population of 680,810.

Live Long in Africa.

In the course of a report to the British colonial office a resident of Borgu province, Nigeria, mentions that the chief, Kokafu, is said to have reached the age of 205, while his son did not die until he was 157. The latter visited Sokoto not many years ago.

New Zealand's Coal Supply.

It is estimated that New Zealand has an available coal supply of 1,200,000,000 tons, of which not more than 20,000,000 tons have been touched. This was the first of the British colonies to try the experiment of state ownership of colliery property.

Egyptian Hieroglyphics.

Egyptian hieroglyphic inscriptions consist of figures of objects, animate and inanimate; men and animals, and parts of them; plants; the heavenly bodies, and an immense number of different weapons, tools and articles of miscellaneous character.

A Meaty Bit of Truth.

When a man in New York or elsewhere, loudly boasts that he is a "southern gentleman" he is a poor, cheap fraud. A gentleman from anywhere, is a gentleman anywhere, and he does not need to proclaim the fact.

Chicago Wholesale Trade.

The first wholesale store was opened in Chicago in 1844, but in 1906 the wholesale trade of the city was conservatively estimated at $1,700,000,000.

Disinfected Transmitters.

A number of suggestions have been made from time to time with a view of disinfecting properly the transmitters of public telephones, but the proposals have usually involved a great deal of expense. An Englishman has invented an inexpensive apparatus which can be fixed to any mouthpiece. The apparatus consists of a small nickel tube resembling a cartridge, which can be half filled with a disinfectant, and which is fixed immediately above the mouthpiece. From the tube a diminutive blind, soaking in the disinfectant, is drawn by means of a loop or hook. The little blind is drawn down over the mouthpiece and fastened to a button underneath it, so that the user of the telephone speaks through the blind, which springs back and disinfects itself when the subscriber has finished his conversation. The blind is made of ramble fibre which is extremely strong and becomes even stronger when soaked in water. Ordinary linen would probably wear badly. The blind is exactly 1 3/8 inches wide and does not in the least interfere with the sound.

On a Windy Day.

An absent-minded gentleman was going along the street on a very windy day, when suddenly his hat blew off. He few along the street, and after a long chase picked up what he supposed was his hat. Another bareheaded gentleman arrived on the spot at the same moment, and, holding out his hand, said "Thank you."

"What do you mean?" asked the absent-minded man.

"Thank you for capturing my hat."

"But this is not your hat."
"Excuse me, it is."
"Where's mine, then?"
"Hanging down your back."

Then he remarked that he had secured his own by a hat-guard that morning.

Cotton Pickers.

There are machines that will pick the ripened cotton from the plant, but it can hardly be said that, all things considered, there is as yet a "successful" practical cotton-picker. The machine is still in the experimental stage, and there are plenty of cotton raisers who are firmly of the opinion that there will never be any all-round successful cotton-picking machine but the human hand. If the cotton crop opened all at once, then the problem of machine picking would be an easy one.

Significance of Decorations.

The decorations, the illuminations, the display of uniforms, and the fireworks serve a triple purpose when they are arranged in honor of a visitor. They serve to show that visitor that there is a real and hearty attempt to express pleasure at his coming; they give pleasure to those who take part in arranging them; and they delight high and low, great and simple, who see them.

Cheap Gas Production.

Prof. Blau of Germany has discovered a new process of developing illuminating gas that may be bought by the bottle at the rate of 15 cents a pound. A 22-pound cylinder at 15 cents a pound would give a 50-candle power light for four months used four hours a day. That is to say, the cost would be 1 1/7 cents an hour or, say, $1.25 a month, or even less.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Future for Egypt.

An Egyptian paper says that the native families pay an average tax of $4.65 an acre, 28.5 per cent. of the crop. Foreigners and land companies hold 655,000 acres. Through their insolvency and liquidation, and the redistribution of the estates formed since 1902, it is probable that large amounts of gold may be unhoarded.

What, Indeed?

What is the cruel pleasure which carries sorrow and bitterness to the heart of your brother? Where is the innocence of an amusement whose source springs from vices which ought to inspire you with compassion and grief?—Jean Baptiste Massillon.

Congratulations.

At the age of seventy-five when, to everybody's surprise Cranworth was asked to be Chancellor for the second time by Palmerston (who could not endure Roundell Palmer) someone congratulated him with "Well, Cranny, Kingsley is right; it is better to be good than clever."

A Stimulating Diet

Harry Gosney by mistake fed his horse a quantity of poultry food, thinking the same to be condition powder for the animal. The mistake was not noticed until the horse had scratched up half the garden and showed signs of wanting to see.

Fine Memory in Old Age

Although in her ninety-seventh year, a woman who is an inmate of the Wareham (Dorsetshire, Eng.) workhouse recently recited one of Dr. Watts' poems without a break at an entertainment given at the institution.

Not What He Was After.

"I trust we shall make you feel quite at home," remarked the hotel proprietor. "Don't you try it," expostulated the married man. "I'm away for a good time."

ANIMALS ALL AMBIDEXTROUS.

Why Man Gives Preference to Right Hand Over the Left.

Right handedness and right eyedness came with genus homo. Dr. George M. Gould has watched for them in squirrels that use their front paws to hold nuts, cats that strike at insects in the air or play with wounded mice and in many other animals, but he is certain no preference is given to the right side over the left.

But in the lowest human savages all over the world choice in greater experience of one hand is clearly present. One cause for its development is in primitive military customs. In all tribes and countries since man used implements of offence and defence the left side, where the heart lies, has been protected by the shield, and the left hand was called the shield hand, while the right hand was called the spear hand.

Next to fighting came commerce. The fundamental conditions of bartering was counting with the low numbers, one to ten. The fingers of the free or right hand were naturally first used, and all fingers today are called digits, as are the figures themselves, while the basis of our numberings is the decimal or ten fingered system. Every drill and action of the soldier from ancient Greece to modern America is right sided in every detail. Fling from the right shoulder and sighting with the right eye brings the right eye into prominence.

It is significant that with the decline of militarism comes the suggestion of schools for ambidexterity and the establishment of a movement for promulgating the gospel of two handedness and its obvious advantages.—Chicago Tribune.

Paper Bullets.

Bullets of paper or tallow, produce far greater damage than metal ones when used for short-distance firing. It was found on trial that whereas a metal bullet penetrated a deal plank one inch thick and left a neat hole, a paper bullet broke up the plank. A paper bullet passing through six pieces of tin placed one foot apart, buckled them up and made them useless, whereas a metal bullet merely left a small round hole.—London Tatler.

The Foolish Patentee.

One of the principal reasons why so vast a majority of patents fail to reimburse the patentees is that the latter, having lost all their vitality on the invention, do not know how to place an article on the market. Every patentee should have a publicity man. Not one in 10,000 knows how to describe his own invention in brief, strong, clear, simple, fetching style, so that all the world may understand.

Bricks of Sawdust.

Sawdust is turned into a transportable fuel by the simple device of being coated under high-pressure steam until the resinous ingredients become sticky, when it is pressed into bricks. One man with a two-horsepower machine can turn out 10,000 bricks a day.

An Oldtime Outlaw.

Robin Hood is a traditional English outlaw and popular hero. He is said to have been born at Locksley, Nottinghamshire, about 1160. He lived in the woods with his band, either for reasons of his own or because he was outlawed.

Where Crime Thrives.

Criminal records kept in New York County for six years shows that a trifle more than one-half of the persons charged with crimes are found guilty, while expert opinion is agreed that not two out of one hundred are innocent.

Political Hypocrisy.

The politician who, on the eve of an election, knocks on the poor man's door, shakes his hand and kisses the baby, illustrates the maxim that hypocrisy is the homage that vice pays to virtue.—Toronto Star.

Taxation on Guns.

In Texas the state imposes a tax of 50 per cent on the gross proceeds of the sale of firearms. None is, therefore, for sale. They are "rented" for 50 years at the regular price.

Drink in Switzerland.

One never sees a boisterously drunk person in a Swiss town, except in the tourist season, and then the offender invariably proves to be a foreigner.

Voting in Belgium

Married men of Belgium have two votes and the single ones only one. Priests and some other privileged persons have three.

Making of Wine.

Grapes are squeezed six times in making champagne, yielding wine of different qualities.

Some of the ice fields of Greenland are said to be a mile and a half in thickness.

Korean bachelors wear skirts and are not promoted to trousers until they marry.

In Denmark girls insure against becoming old maids.

The sperm whale can stay under water for twenty minutes.
