The house on Park street, Moravia, recently purchased by Floyd Breese was entirely destroyed by fire at an early hour Tuesday morning. The loss is estimated at $2,000 and is said to be partially covered by insurance.

The Farmer and His Son.

Does the average farmer want his son to be a farmer? Some do, some do not. If we judge the question by the amount of farm education the majority of farmers give their sons, we can certainly say that they do not want their sons to be farmers. Yet the villages and cities are full of men who have lived their life with nothing of consequence to show for it, who are failures, but who would have made a fair success if they had stayed on the farm. Hundreds of these men have told us so. Yet there are just as many foolish young men as He will long be remembered as a ever rushing away from the farm to modating friend and eighbor, and stopped this folly had they given his old friends will miss the cheer of the boy a term or two in the Short

Nervous Collapse

"I have traveled for thirty years continually. I lost a great deal of sleep, which together with constant worry left me in such a nervous state that finally, after having two collapses of nervous prostration, I was obliged to give up traveling altogether. I doctored continually but with no relief. Dr. Miles' Nervine came to my rescue-I cannot describe the suffering which this Nervine saved me. Whenever I am particularly nervous a few doses relieve me. A. G. C. LIBBY, Wells, Me.

There are many nervous wrecks. There is nervous prostration of the stomach, of the bowels, and other organs. The brain, the kidneys, the liver, the nerve centers are all exhausted. There is but one thing to dobuild up the nervous system by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Its strengthening influence upon the nervous system restores normal action to the organs, and when they all work in harmony, health is assured. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

Admiral Robley D. Evans told this story against himself. He had a congressman for a guest, but had almost run out of his favorite brand of whisky and had stocked up with something he could not guarantee. He explained this and added, "Here, however, is some brandy that I've kept untouched for a good deal more than twenty years."

"Just hand me the whisky decanter," was the reply.

"Why," said the admiral, "what's the matter with the brandy?"

"That's just what I want to know, Bob," said the guest. "But if you have had it untouched in your possession for more than twenty years there must be something pretty bad the matter with it!"

Trouble Ahead.

-Percy Bysshe Shelley.

"This happened to me, and I want to publish it as a warning to other married men," said a business man the other day. "I was busy at the office until late, and there dropped in unexpectedly a friend whom I hadn't seen for some time. Of course we immediately adjourned to a popular Chestnut street cafe, where we set 'em up a couple of times. Then my friend insisted it was due us to have dinner right where we were. Well, I had said I was coming home to dinner, so I knew there would be explanations coming if I tried to break that off, but I also knew that there would be more if I didn't let the wife know. Anyhow, I marched to the telephone, which hung conveniently near, and called up my house. As soon as I heard my wife at the other end I pathetically murmured: 'Can't get home to dinner, dear; I'm crowded with work at the office and will stay late." There was silence for a second, and then I nearly threw a fit. My wife an- the charge of "repeating." swered back firmly, 'Well, of course, I believe you, and we will not wait din-

There were some deficiencies in the early education of Mrs. Donahoe, but she never mentioned them or admitted their existence. "Will you sign your name here?" said the young lawyer whom Mrs. Donahoe had asked to draw up a deed transferring a parcel of land to her daughter.

Exonerated the Crowd.

"Somebody's got my pocketbook!" piped a shrill, agonized voice in the crowded street car, and a hump shouldered, watery eyed man with a ginger colored beard on his chin jumped up and began convulsively clapping his hands on his various pockets.

"Sit down, you fool," exclaimed the portly, resolute matron by his side, assisting him by a vigorous pull on his coattail. "I've got it. I knew you'd lose it if I didn't take it. You'd lose your head if it wasn't fastened on your shoulders."

Meekly he sat down. Raising his head presently, he gave a comprehensive glance around the car and said in the same shrill voice:

"I beg everybody's pardon." For which voluntary acknowledgment that he no longer considered everybody in the car a pickpocket he was rewarded by the glassy and unanamous stare.

The Light That Does Not Fail. It is grand to look forward and see the heavens brighten with the dawn of a new day, but there never yet was light upon the sky which was not meant to illuminate the ground about our feet and show each of us his bit of work waiting for him there.-George Adam Smith.

A Friend In Need.

In the Hungarian parliamentary session of 1841 a certain Baron Szjel lived in Pressburg with two intimate friends, George Majiath and Barthel Szemere. One day the baron became envious of their laurels. He called-Szemere aside and said to him, "My good Szemere, write me a speech." "Most willingly, my dear friend. About what would you like to speak?" "It is all the same to me, if the speech is only a nice one-wonderfully nice." "You will be satisfied with me," he answered, and next day brought the manuscript. The baron memorized the speech and delivered it on the third day. The chamber reechoed with "vivas" and applause. At this moment the president rose and asked, "Is anybody here to answer this speech?" The baron looked sneeringly around. The members all remained silent. Then Bartholomaeus Szemere arose. He began, "Worthy gentlemen, what the orator said is from beginning to end incorrect." And then he began to show, in an able speech, the mistakes the baron had made. "Don't you believe him, gentlemen!" the baron cried angrily, interrupting him suddenly. "It was he himself who wrote the speech for me." Every one of the fifty-two members rolled in his seat nearly convulsed with laughter, and then and there the baron made a vow never again to speak in public.

He Wanted More.

A prominent western sheep raiser ran short of hands and hired a green man, who boasted that he could tend sheep with any of them. He received a big drove to herd and returned at the end of the month.

"Do you want me to herd sheep? he asked of his employer.

"Do I want you to herd sheep!" said the latter. "Why, what did I hire you for?"

Would Change the Bill.

A repertoire company was walking into a small town, says the Saturday and hope. They bring before us a Evening Post, where they were billed to play "Romeo and Juliet." The leading man approached the manager, who strode moodly ahead on the ties.

"I want it for a shave, that's what I event of His not exercising that powwant it for. I can't play Romeo with five days' black beard on my face!"

"Oh, well," said the manager, "you won't get no 15 cents. We'll change the bill to 'Othello.' "

Major Blank tried for they lett us for our endless comfort years to secure a Democratic nomination to congress, but signally failed each time. Finally he turned Republican and was given the Republican nomination. He made a "whirlwind tour" of his district and felt confident of the result. I regarded it as a trifle at the time, but an hour later I felt a severe pain in my side. I have always been afraid of appendicitis, and it occurred to me that it had come on to me bigger'n a house. Away I rushed to the village doctor, and he felt of my pulse, looked at my tongue and shook his head and said:

"'My friend, you've got it this time for sure.

"'You shouldn't lose a minute." "With that I took off my coat and vest to have a look at the spot, and a minute later I was a surprised and pleased man. A splinter from the box was sticking in my side. I looked from the splinter to the doctor and back, and he looked from the splinter to me and back. Then I asked:

The rules require when a child reports illness in the family that the teacher shall find out whether such illness is contagious or not, and it is customary to send the child home for a statement of facts. One morning one of the younger boys reported that "his mamma was sick." He was sent home to find out the nature of the illness and soon returned with the information:

"Mamma says it ain't catching." "That won't do," replied the teacher. "You must go home and find out and then come and tell me just what is the matter with your mamma."

Pretty soon the boy came toddling back into the room. "Teacher," said he, "mamma says it's all right. She says it's a boy and it ain't catching."

THEME: "God is Able."

By REV. BASIL BOYS, M. A.

"Our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us."-Daniel 3:17.

Bometimes when a great difficulty presents itself in our lives, or when we are feeling more keenly than usual the power of the great enemy of our souls and his manifold temptations, we act as if we did not fully believe in the almighty power of God, and in "Well," said the herder calmly, "if His being able to give us the help, the strength, the guidance, the deliverance we so sorely need.

The words of deep-rooted trust in God uttered by Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in their hour of danger should inspire us with confidence wonderful instance of the "ableness" of God.

The story is a familar one; we know it well, yet it will repay further careful study and thought, for the more we contemplate the marvelous faith and confidence in God of these three men, the calm certainty with which they confidently aserted their belief in His power to deliver them, their quiet, restful submission in the er on their behalf, the greater will be the courage and conndence and hope with which their conduct will inspire

From the time they first entered the presence of this Eastern despot to the critical moment when they were bound and cast into the burning hery furnace, their trust in God, rar from and assurance an instance or how God rewards those who thus unflinchingly lean wholly on Him.

It is improbable that any of us will ever be called upon to undergo such a severe trial of faith, but the lesson for us is that in any lesser trials, in difficult circumstances, in times when trouble comes and we are well-nigh overwhelmed by crushing sorrow, in our daily and hourly contests against the powers of evil, we just have a strong and unfliching confidence in

We may not be able to see how the deliverance is to come, we may be almost sure that the nery trial has to be gone through; but then is the time to show the reality or our faith, to rest entirely upon God, and to say each one individually, "My God, whom I serve, is able to deliver me."

This is only one verse out of many where the "ableness" of God or of Jesus Christ is solemnly asserted in the Bible. In other places we are told He is "able to succor them that are tempted" (Heb. 2:18), "able to make all grace abound" (2 Cor. 9:8), "able also to save them the uttermost that come unto God by Him" (Heb. 7:25), "able to keep from falling" (St. Jude 24), "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." (Eph. 3:20.)

The late Dr. Joseph Parker regarded St. Paul in the last of these references as "dazzled, overwhelmed, made speechless by the infinite capacity of God to cranscend all mortal prayer and finite imagination," and he suggested that the words might well be used as a kind of refrain after each petition in the prayer the apostle has just been praying.

What a splendid refrain for all the prayers we offer to God! What is our special and particular need? More holiness? More power in prayer? A greater realization of God's pardon and forgiveness for all that is past? Or is it for quietness, confidence and self-control for the life in the present, with all its trials, anxieties, and, possibly, entanglements and difficulties? Or is it hopefulness and restfulness and trust in God for the unknown future, big with possibilities and fraught with boundless opportunities for abundant work in His service? To all and every petition let us add the words, "Able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that I ask or think."

May God enable us each one to learn the lesson of faith and trust conveyed in such a verse, or in the splendid words of confidence and hope given expression to by Daniel's three friends. Having responded to His claims upon us for service, let us go forward, knowing that "all things work together for good to them that love God." Assured that "He is able," let us rest calmly, knowing that He will one day make plain all we cannot understand, and that in regard to all present difficult circumstances, He will either find for us a way out, or give us the needful grace and strength to bear whatever is His will. "He is

THE FIRST MISSIONARY

April 18, '09-(Acts 9:1-30).

Of all the great men who have adorned or developed the Christian Church, St. Paul confessedly stands at the head. What Moses was to the Old Dispensation, that Paul is to the New Dispensation, a teacher to all generations. Great pulpit orators, renowned theologians, profound philosophers, immortal poets, successful reformers, and enlightened statesmen have never disputed his intellectual and spiritual supremacy; to all alike he has been a model and a marvel. The grand old missionary stands out in history as a matchless example of right fiving, as well as a sure guide in Christian doctrine.

Chief of Sinners

And yet, the first thirty years of this man's life was as contrary to the next thirty as light is to darkness. Born in Tarsus, a city of Cilicia, of Jewish parents, he was a freeborn Roman citizen, though in religion, in the strictest sense, a pharisee. His great peculiarity as a young man was his extreme pharisaism, devotion to the Jewish law ! its minutest cere monial rites.

According to his own confessions ne was narrow, intolerant, fanatical. Detesting the religion of Jesus as an innovation he was a bitter persecutor of the disciples. "Breathing out slaughter" he chased them out of the country, and hounded them to death 'even in strange cities." He was no inquirer after truth. He conscientiously believed that he had the truth in all its fullness, and that he was doing God service by his persecuting course in ridding the world of the followers of Jesus.

Transformed in a Flash.

The conversion of Paul is the standing miracle of the ages. Between sunrise and sunset of one day he was completely transformed. He explains the change that tool place in him as due to a direct revelation from heaven. An unsee hand caught this foaming charge: in full headway and hurled him back upon his haunches. Just as this roaring lion was about he was supernaturally muzzled. He saw a light above the brightness of the sun, he heard a voice which spoke as never man spoke, he saw a person whom he ever afterward claimed was the very same Jesus who had been crucified in Jerusalem, "Last of supernatural experience his whole be ing was changed He was a new man in his spirit, his aims, his entire attitude. He had lost his pride and was as humble as a child. He had lost his bigotry and intolerance, and was broadminded and charitable. Within three days he was praying; within a week he was baptized, within the same length of time he had received a Pentecostal baptism of the Holy Ghost, and within the same period he was preaching the gospel of the Son of God, whom scarcely a week before he had hated with all the intensity of a pharisee. The conversion of St. Paul is the marvel of the ages. There is only one possible explanation of it-it was supernatural.

Revolutions in Character. But St. Paul is not the only man who has been thus transformed in a twinkling. Not all men have such a dramatic change of heart, but every converted soul has as real a change. It is not at all an uncommon thing for revolutions to take place in the characters of men as radical and thoroughgoing as the overturning of empires. Many a man has been brought to do the things he once hated, not only to do them, but love to do them. And many a man has come to loathe the things that once were all he lived for. Scales have fallen from their eyes in an instant just as really as they fell from the eyes of Paul. It is still true that many of those who goto church to scoff, remain to pray. People whose whole career has been destructive suddenly become constructive. There are great crises in the sous of men as there are of nations when between daylight and dark thrones are toppled over, scepters are broken, rebellions go to pieces, surrenders are made, emancipations are proclaimed, bondmen go free, enemies are reconciled, reunions are consum-

and women are transformed. Supernatural Explanation. There is no possible explanation of such changes except on the ground of a supernatural light shining in the soul, a supernatural voice speaking to the inner consciousness, a supernatural being putting an omnipotent hand upon the individual, facing him right about, and reconstructing every faculty of his mind, every energy of his soul, and every fiber of his body. The outward manifestations are as varied experience is common to all. As Paul himself puts it: Howbeit for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Christ Jesus might show forth all longsuffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on Him to life everlasting. Paul was a e , in his entire consecration, in his long service, in his triumphant death. We have the record of his sinful life in the Acts, of his salvation in Ro-

ROYAL COMPOSERS.

Henry VIII.'s Anthems Sung by Cathedral Choirs-Prince Albert's Works.

"The first of the English sovereigns who won fame as a composer was Henry VII. Many of his anthems are sung to-day by cathedral choirs. He also wrote a melodious effusion, 'Now Fayre, Fayrest off Every Fayre,' to quote the original title, for the marriage of his sister Margaret with James IV. of Scotland," said Miss Alys Lorraine.

"Charles I, was another composer, and I am including in my programme his effective setting of Thomas Carew's poem 'Mark How the Blushful Morn.'

"I think everybody knows that Queen Victoria was a fine singer and good planist, and the late Prince Consort was most zealous in popularizing the art in this country. The majority of Prince Albert's compositions have been collected and published. Of the present members of the royal family the most distinguished as a composer is Princess Henry of Battenberg.

"Turning aside to foreign courts. the German Emperor has won some fame for his 'Song to Aegir,' which is included in my programme. The late Duke Ernst II. of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the brother of the Prince Consort, composed several operas.

"Marine Antoinette will be represented in the programme by her setting of Florian's 'C'est Mon Ami,' and from the many works of the Saxon monarch Anthony the Good, who died in 1836. I have choser a song he composed in celebration of the birth of his nephew, Prince Clement.

"Who was the greatest royal composer? Well, I should think that honor might fall to the nephew of Frederick the Great Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, who was killed at the battle of Saalfeld."

Some Odd Facts in Geography. New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London. It is, however, despite its far more rigorous climate, nine hundred miles nearer the equator than is the British capital. The bleak coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the southern part of Hudson Bay and Lake Winnipeg; on the other side of the continent it touches through the centre of the Isthmus of Kamchatka, and Siberia and Russia. to Homburg. It is astonishing, likewise, to reflect on the fact that Montreal, with its winters of great severity., is three hund-ed and fifty miles nearer the equator than is London. Montreal, indeed, is on the same degree of latitude as Venice. Another illustration of the unexpected in contrasts is found in a comparison of St John's, Newfoundland, with Paris. Paris has a winter of comparative mildness, while St. John's is a region of bitter cold and fogs, with drifting icebergs along its coast. Yet St. John's is one hundred miles nearer the equator.-Dundee Advertiser.

The oil dealer had pity on the helpless man, took him on his shoulders, gave him his money bag to hold and carried him across. When he deposited his burden on the other shore the blind man refused to return him his money bag, raised a noise and declared that the money was his property. The matter came before the judge, and each man said on oath that the money belonged to him. The judge finally ordered the bag of money emptied into a water tank, and then suddenly announced that the oil dealer was the owner: When asked for the reason for his decision, he declared that the money of the oil dealer must certainly show traces of his business, and indeed, on the surface of the water traces of oil were found.

Strange Wedding Custom. Among the Lolos of Western China it is customary for the bride on the wedding morning to perch herself on the highest branch of a large tree, while the elder female members of her family cluster on the lower limbs. armed with sticks. When all are duly stationed the bridegroom claubers up the tree, assailed on all sides by blows, pushes and pinches from the dowagers, and it is not until he has broken through their fence and captured the bride that he is allowed to carry her off.

USEFUL IN THE BEDROOM.

Medicine Cupboard Inexpensive and Easy to Construct.

A very useful article in a bedroom is some kind of little cupboard in which may be kept medicine-bottles and other things which are better out of sight. It should also be a place from which they may be readily removed and replaced when required. It is to meet this want that we give the accompanying sketches, and a small hanging cupboard may be easily and quickly arranged with little or no expense.

Any strong wooden box of suitable size may be used, and the lid may be dispensed with. A case that has contained a dozen bottles of wines of spirits will answer the purpose ad-

Two holes should be cut in the bottom of the box, and it may then be suspended from the wall by means of two strong nails in the manner shown in the upper sketch.

with a pretty odd remnant of material that we happen to have by us, and an opening arranged in the center so that the articles inside are easily procured when required. The space on the top will form a nice place for perhaps a pot with a fern or other ornaments. A little cupboard of this kind will also make an excellent "smoker's cabinet," In which may be kept a jar of tobacco, cigars, etc. In the latter case it is not difficult to fit up a small rack for the pipes at one side of the cupboard.

POR HOLDING THE LAUNDRY.

Bag More Ornamental Than the Common Linen Receptacle.

The ordinary laundry bag, though it may answer its purpose well, is nc; a very sightly article, and our sketch shows a bag of prettler and more ornamental shape. It is made with a turn-over flap on which a floral design or the words "laundry bag" may be worked, and it is also ornamented with a hem-stitched frill and a bunch of ribbons.

A loop of tape or ribbon can be used for suspending it in its place, and to further improve its appearance the hem-stitched frill may be carried all around the edge of the bag, if desired. The size must be regulated by whether it is intended to hold all the personal linen that is to be sent to the laundry, or only small things, such as handkerchiefs, laces, collars, etc.

To Save the Hands.

If you live in an apartment and have the work of pulling the dumbwaiter up and down, try doing it with the aid of an iron-holder. It will make the task easier, and save the ropes from cutting your hands considerably. Or if you prefer, keep a mitten or loose glove in the kitchen for the same purpose. But although the latter method is perhaps better in some respects, it takes a moment's time to slip the glove on.

Science of Alcohol.

Here is what modern medical authority teaches concerning the pernicious effect of the various preparations of alcohol and other inebriating drugs on the human race. The Twentieth Century Practice of Medicine says under "Alcoholism and Drug Habits":

"There is no form of poisoning which is so wide spread and so rapidly increasing at the present time, as the series of toxic phenomena exhibited in the persons of those addicted to the excessive use of the various preparations of alcohol, opium, morphine, chloral, chloroform, ether, cocaine, and allied inebriating substances

"There is no other kind of poisoning which so degrades brain structure and disturbs mental function, while physically degenerating bodily texture and undermining vital organs, or which is so far-reaching in its operation, transmitting as it does through two generations a great variety of brain abnormalities, mental defects and moral obliquities originally induced in the ancestral stock by the toxicating action of the poison on brain and nerve tissue.

"The more generally employed among such articles, narcotics and anaesthetics, by their characteristic influence, have the property of setting up and thus practically originating a desire for a fresh dose (drink); and at the same time of so disturbing brain-function as to induce moral perversion.

"Such substances are Alcohol (in the form of beer, wine, brandy and whiskey), opium, morphine, cocaine, chloroform and the like, the firstnamed, Alcohol, being a prolific inciter to breaches of human and divine law, ranging from minor offenses to the gravest misdemeanors and

Till about a century ago, there was a general belief that drunkenness was a purely voluntary condition; that men and women could get drunk or refrain from getting drunk as they chose, and that intoxication was a pastime willingly and wilfully indulged in; nor is this erroneous belief even now wholly dead. The many who formerly held and the comparatively few who still cherish this opinion looked upon the whole matter of drunkenness as a mere immorality, vice, or crime; punishment in a jail, confinement in the "stocks." pulpit denunciation, eccelesiastical excommunication, or the administraton of a good whipping being in their view the proper mode of dealing with such wanton and depraved outcasts. Medical science has, therefore, set itself to investigate thoroughly the nature and properties of intoxicant action on body and brain, and the various morbid conditions which operate to render a substantial proportion of human beings an easy prey to some form of that enslavement, by excessive indulgence in intoxicauts, which is the most complete possession and tyranny endured by

This extract from the writings of a world-renowned specialist in the treatment of beer, wine and whiskey inebriates is surely enough to arouse every man, who desires the elevation of society, to war an everlasting warfare against the soul-and-body-destroying rum business.

Financial Investment. A recent writer in the "Nazarene Messenger," a California paper, impressively proves that the liquor traffic is a very poor financial investment for Los Angeles, California. He says, in substance, that Los Angeles has thirty-eight cafes and restaurants where liquor is sold. It has 200 saloons, besides wholesale liquor houses and many "blind pigs." It has raised the saloon license from $75 to $100 a month. Its total revenue from drink is $275,000 a year. But when it raised the saloon and cafe license it added sixty-five men to the police force, which will cost an additional $97,000 a year, or s total of $347,000. The city has forty-two square miles of territory. The saloons are confined to about one mile square, and it requires eighty per cent. of the police for that one square mile, while the other fortyone square miles get twenty per cent. The city receives $270,000 blood money from the drinking hells and pays $216,000 for a police force to watch them.

What Governors Say.

We are glad to be able to set before our readers what the Governors of three States declare: Governor Cummings of Iowa:

The less liquor sold the better morals." Governor Campbell, of Texas: The saving in court expenses from decrease in crime is believed to off-the saloons. Governor Burke, of North Dako-"We have had prohibition so long in North Dakota that in some counties there are no jails."

No Liquor Prescriptions,

Bone County, Missouri, voted dry some time back, and the Boone County Medical Society has pledged its members not to give liquor presoriptions for any cause.

rue Poetry and Modern Poets. The noise of the Poe centennial celebration reverberates. The tributes were higher than had been expected. As the event approached warm admirers of Poe were crying out against the indifference or listlessness of the American public. After the event they began marshaling encomiums and studying their significance. It is even believed that the requisite ten votes to place Poe in the Hall of Fame will be forthcoming at the election next year. The same respect might have been given to Poe's memory had he never written a line of verse, but the gendozen, perhaps two, of his pieces. If to the mind, "The Bells" rings in the ears. A glance at any of Poe's pieces shows that there is something unof view.

Poe said that poetry with him had been "not a purpose, but a passion." He wrote stories and reviews, and he lectured to keep the pot boiling. He did not even deliver messages in verse, because, as he said, "the passions should be held in reverence; they must not, they cannot at will be excited with an eye to resulta." This flies in the face of the idea so often expressed as to the "mission of poetry." In Poe's sense it has no definite mission. It is the song or the shout or the wall of the soul. We know little habitat. of this view of poetry today. What demand there is for poetry impels the poet to go about it with a purpose. It springs from the intellect and appeals to the intellect or to sensation. Poe wrote to express his feeling. Modern poets write to stir the feelings of others. Poe said that Tennyson was the world's noblest poet, yet it is a far cry from "The Raven" to "Locksley Hall" as the wail of a tortured soul.

The stockholders of an English thread combine were recently called together to hear a report on the dullness of trade. Lest they might go out and forget it the directors declared an annual dividend of only 30 per cent.

Conditions In Cuba.

At the end of American provisional government the Cuban people have much to be thankful for at the hands of the stranger. That is to say, from the point of view held here grave evils have been done away with because they were intolerable to Americans. The curses of brigandage and yellow fever have been virtually wiped out. This could have been done before, but the Americans did it. Progress there was handicapped by execrable roads. and under American influence the mileage of good roads has been about

But there is another and a darker side to the picture, one for which this country is in no sense responsible. Economic conditions are almost as unpromising as they were under Spanish rule. A large element of the population goes roaming from place to place, living when they settle down as squatters, much like the Indians before they were put upon reservations or the emancipated negroes at the close of the civil war. Industrial employment it fitful, and there are long periods of idleness. The laborers should be tied to the land near the industrial plants. Then there need be no incentive to roam or to waste leisure at the mills in gaming and dissipation.

When the music composer, Felix Mendelssohn, was a prodigy of nine or ten his father declared: "I used to be spoken of as the son of Moses Mendelssohn. Now I am known as the father of Felix." Many American daddies of boys of that age earn local fame as the father of a "Peck's Bad Boy."

If that "love germ" recently discovared by science were allowed to settle down in Washington, this strenuous administration would stand some chance of going out "at peace with all the world" and no bluffing.

Safe bet that the first "My dear Bill" letter after March 4 will bear an African postmark unless Brother Char-He happens to miss the last inauguration train.

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again" if newspapers crushed to a pulp print themselves again from the Bennation on the Stage.

Some ill advised moralists have re cently been giving free advertising in New York to "five plays that ought to be suppressed." The question is one to interest the whole country, for under the present system of controlling ship in the sale of theatrical attractions the successful sensation of the metropolitan boards is certain to invade the interior with its prestige of a "long run and crowded houses." The question of the responsibility for the continuance on the stage of plays that ought to be suppressed is agitating many communities this winter. Managers and dramatists hang together and blame it on the public. The drift of the public's protest is that the doubtful play 's seldom patronized when there is any other worth while.

In the long run the occasional theater goers support the stage when it is supported. Time hangs heavy, and they want a sensation. The play eral interest in the man would have which makes them laugh and cry albeen immeasurably less but for half a ternately is preferred to the kind which is radical and exciting in its "The Raven," as is often said, clings appeal. The one arouses good emotions; the other disquiets the soul. Van Winkle," "Shore Acres" "Rip and "The Old Homestead" never usual in them from the modern point need fear competition with players like Jefferson, Herne and Denman Thompson in the cast. Under present conditions the public rarely has a chance to express its opinion of this class of play at the box office. The manager's money is invested in a play that must be made to go, and the public has to stand for it, morals and all, or stay away from the theater.

A Modern Lincoln In the Making. The Universalist Leader thinks that Lincoln would have had no chance to "come to himself" under modern educational experts. After he had got through the baby food and kinder garten course and the dentist and oculist were done with him he would be a "young gentleman" of eight. Thereafter his progress toward the goal of nonentity would be unmistakably direct. The Leader continues: At ten he would know more than the old folks at home; at twelve or fourteen he would take up manual training and within two years make a rolling pin and tie it with a blue ribbon; in the high school at sixteen, where in four years he would learn that Mars was the reputed son of Juno and to recite a stanza from "The Lady of the Lake;" then to college, where he would have joined the glee club and a Greek letter fraternity, smoked cigarettes and graduated, and then become a clerk in a banker's office and never, never do any one any harm! Well -perhaps-we don't know and can't tell what might have been, but we can't help feeling thankful that Lincoln's training and education were left to Nancy Hanks and God.

But there is just a possibility that some modern cabin boy will manage to sidestep this curriculum of degeneracy and give to the twentieth century its own Lincoln.

France and England are framing codes for the regulation of doings in the sky. From the way Tom, Dick and Harry monkey with wireless currents it is plain that vested interests in the air line won't be worth a fig unless the law goes into the miracle business too.

The manna of commerce comes chiefly from Sicily. It is a sweet substance obtained from a small tree known as the manna ash. This tree can be grown as far north as England, but in that country it yields no manna and is cultivated for ornament only. The manna is formed from the sap. Dalton's Experiment. The English chemist Dalton was a laboratory and with crude apparatus, mostly made by himself from simple materials. Here is an example described in his own words: "Took an ale glass of a conical figure, two and a half inches in diameter and three inches deep; filled it with water that had been standing in the room and consequently of the temperature of the air nearly; put the bulb of the thermometer to the bottom of the glass, the scale being out of the water. Then, having marked the temperature, I put the redhot tip of the poker half an inch deep in the water, holding it there steadily for half a minute, and as soon as it was withdrawn I dipped the bulb of a sensible thermometer into the water, when it rose in a few seconds to 180 degrees." He then determined the temperature of the water at the bottom after five minutes, after twenty minutes and after an hour and found that it rose gradually from 47 to 52 degrees. This simple experiment proved that water had been denied by no less an author-

Total Abstinence.

In these days of popular education and of widespread agitation for civic betterment and the uplift of the lower classes, it is not surprising that the Temperance Question should have assumed a prominence never before reached in the United States. It is now generally recognized that the liquor traffic is responsible for a very large percentage of the crimes, taxation, poverty and misery that afflict society. This being the case, it becomes the duty of all good citizens to promote temperance. Especially is it the duty of the Christian, by his own self-denial, to give an example of temperance to others.

Anachonis, the philosopher, who lived in an age when intemperance afflicted Greece, was as ed by what means a man might best guard against the vice of drunkenness. "By bearing constantly in his view the loathsome, vicious behavior of the intemperate," was the reply. And surely we of this later age do not lack for object-lessons when we look around us and see thousands of promising careers wrecked by drink, courts busied in the trial of crimes inspired by drink, and jails crowded wth criminals chiefly the victims of drink.

John Wesley's inflexible attitude toward the drink habit was well known. A friend of his related that on one occasion at dinner Mr. Wesley saw him take a small portion of brandy. The great divine in surprise asked the reason and was told that it was for digestion. "Ah," observed Wesley, "you take a tablespoonful now; that will soon lose its effect and then you will take two: from two you will go to a glass and then to two glasses and so on, till in the end you may become a drunkard.' He pleaded with him to stop it altogether, and the friend wisely heeded the plea.

An old man died not long ago in New England who was esteemed as a good citizen. But he had early contracted a fondness for arcent spirits, and drank temperately and daily for the greater part of his life. He gave a little to his children as they grouped around him; and they their father loved mus be harmless. But with their growing years a fondness for the stimulus increased, and this aged man lived to mourn the death of half his sons and forty descendants, who went down to the grave drunkards.

It has been said tersely that "the cup kills more than the cannon.' Drink's death-roll of victims in the United States is estimated at 100,-000 a year! All the wars of all the ages could hardly equal the cumulative slaughter by this monstrous vice.

The late Dr. Talmage emphasized very strongly the duty of parents in preaching total abstinence in the home. 'Let your children grow up with an utter aversion to drink," he wrote. "Make it utterly nauseous. Teach them, as faithfully as you do the truths of the Bible, that rum is a fiend. Take them to the almshouse, and show them the wreck and ruin it works. Walk with them into the homes that have been scourted by it. If a drunkard hath fallen into a ditch, take them right up where they can see his face, bruised, savage, and swollen, and say, 'Look, my son. Rum did that!' Looking out of your window at some one who, intoxicated to madness, goes through the street, brandishing his fist, biasphoming God; a howling, defying, shouting, reeling, raving, and foaming maniac, say to your son, 'Look; that man was once a child like you.' As you go by the grog-shop let them know that that is the place where men are slain and their wives made paupers and their children slaves. Hold out to your children all warnings, all rewards, all counsels, lest in after-days they break your heart."

The Chief Bar. High polworkings of the Holy Spirit of God in the souls of men and women is intoxicating liquor. I know of no antagonist to the Good Spirit more direst, more subtle, more stealthy, mere ubiquitous than intoxicating drink." These are the words of Cardinal Manning and they are the experience of every soul-winner who has touched the life of our great cities. Paul's antithesis was a fair "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit." Drunkenness and spirituality do not go well together.

Made Destitute By Drink,

Of nearly 250 private charitable organizations in Boston, thirty alone spent, in 1906, nearly $800,000 in efforts to relieve distress of various kinds. Using the most conservative estimates, not far from $300,000 of this money went to take care of the results of the use of alcohol, and of this amount, about $150,000 was used alone in caring for children made destitute or abused by drink.

Pointed Pinger Nails Frowned On. Fashions change even in finger nails, and the pointed nails of a few years ago are looked upon as almost barbaric at present. It also seems that women are becoming sensible ishing is no longer the rule, as of course, it never was practiced by women of fine taste. The pointed nail and the high polish have passed out, and the chances are historians in future days will look back and rank them with crinoline as evidence of a crude and undiscriminating age, London has not altogether escaped the ravages of earthquakes. In February and March of 1750 Londoners were startled out of their wits by a terrific shock. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupelying poison. It's strange how some thinks finally come about. For twenty Years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Oplum, Chloroform, or similar poisons. J. S. BANKER.

Equal to the Occasion. The author of "Across England In a Dogcart" once stopped to examine a church in the little village of Enstone: The day was warm, and on leaving the church I rested for awhile in the grateful shade of the building and for the sake of the coolness still kept my hat in my hand. While standing there I overheard one workman ask of another:

"Why do 'e keep 'is 'at off like that out of doors, mate?"

"'Cause 'e's a Quaker, o' course," replied the mate, "Quakers allus do in churchvards." Here was an opportunity not to be lost. "No," said I, "I am not a Quaker, I am an Episcopalian." There was a short, awkward pause. Then the first workman, evidently of an inquiring turn of mind, said to his fellow mason, who seemed to be considered an authority:

"A E-piscopale one, 'e says 'e is. Wot's that, Bill?"

"Oh," replied the learned Bill, quite equal to the occasion, "that's one of them fancy foreign religions, sure!"

The Emperor's Orderly. Frenchmen of every rank and class dearly love titles. The manager of a Paris insurance company was decorated with the Legion of Honor a few days ago, and the clerks in the employ of the company presented him with a piece of plate to which their visiting cards were attached. On looking over these he was a good deal puzsled and amused by the visiting card of the office "boy," an old soldier from the Invalides, who was employed to open the office doors from 9 to 4. Under the man's name was the title "the emperor's orderly." He sent for the old soldier, who stumped in and saluted. "Of what emperor are you the orderly, and how?" he asked. The old Invalide drew himself up to attention.

"I am the orderly of the emperor," he said, "Napoleon, le Petit Corporal." "But he is dead. He has been dead some time," answered the puzzled

"I dust his tomb for him," growled the old soldier.—London Express.

No Morals in Dreamland.

If, as many writers have suggested, it is the soul itself that guldes the imagery of dreams, how are we to explain the f ct that in this chaos of ideas and feelings there is so little distinction between right and wrong that when dreaming we commit acts for which we should weep tears of blood were they as real as they seem to be.

As Professor Hoffman has said, "The familiar check of waking hours, 'I must not do it because it would be unjust or unkind,' never once seems to arrest us in the satisfaction of any whim which may blow about our wayward fancies."

From all of which we must conclude that the dream realm is a world that is entirely oblivious to any moral sense and that, though it may be true that a troubled conscience may produce or affect our dreams, the dreams themselves are never burdened with a con-science,—Bohemian Magazine.

Being pursued by a farmer and his three sons after being caught in the chicken yard, a young colored person had just made up his mind that he was not eluding his followers as quickly as might be when a long eared jack rabbit jumped up from the roadside and started down the road ahead of him. THE HIGHER LIFE

ed Gens of Thought from Press and Pulpin

Religion of the Future, The religion of the future must be interested in and help forward whatever belongs to human nature or is needed for its discipline, development and progress. Our love for God and man, our reverence for ideal truths and righteousness, our ability to provide for ourselves and do our part in the work of the world. all demand that we take proper care of the body, making this a part of our religion just as much as the care of the soul. To be strong in the Lord we must study the laws of our physical nature and seek to obey them, for they also are the laws of God and as binding upon us as the laws of the mind or heart. The life of the body is a matter of religious importance because of our physical nature is the seat or home of habits. Everything we do, good or bad, 'reacts on the body, leaving a little rut there in which we are quite sure to run against the next time we go that way. When the habit is a good one it helps us and tends to virtue, but when it is bad it makes it easier to do wrong again until at length the nabit hardens into vice, whose current ever after tends to sweep the soul downward to lower plains of living, from which the return to the heights of noble character will be very difficult if not impossible. All of us need constantly to be reminded that our bodies are given us by a wise Providence, who expects us to value them for the highest ends, and that the continued happiness and prosperity of mankind on earth, as well as the condition of the soul in the heavenly world, depend on the deeds done in the body, or, rather on the quality of our daily life as expressed in those deeds .- Rev. Dr. Bowser, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

The Best Self.

Much of the consciousness of defeat experienced by true souls is caused by the fact that they do not express the best self. The best self, unless constantly insulted, lingers beside the lower pature, never weary of whispering of the more excellent way; always pointing to a higher path above the dusty, worn one where men sell their birthright for gold, for popularity, or for power. It walks in white amid the foul places where sin goes hand in hand with suffering, without soiling even the hem of its garment. Sometimes the heat and clamor of the highway drives the lower nature into a cool, quiet spot where it sees in vision the old ideals of Truth and Beauty and realizes the possibility of grasping the meaning of the Best. There if the longing soul would tarry would it not receive power to enter in and possess the best self?-Mary R. Baldwin.

God's Tender Mercy.

He knows how sensitive the nerves are, and how delicately strung the physical system of the over-tired. He lays his cool hand on your fevered brow; soothes you as your mother did with his soft touch; whispers some word of tender appreciation, as he assures you that he knows your works, and your patience, and your overstrain, and your heart-sorrow, that he will not let the ordeal be too protracted or severe, and that he will at last bring you to the desired heaven .-Rev. Righteousness the Foundation. A Japanese statesman, an exmember of the Cabinet, recently said: "No matter how large an

The Doctor sends it, with his new free book on "Health Coffee" simply to introduce this clever substitute for real coffee. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is gaining its great popularity because of: first, its exquisite taste and flavor; second, its absolute healthfulness; third, its economy-13 lb. 25c; fourth, its convenience. No tedious 20 to 30 minutes boiling. "Made in a minute" says Dr. Shoop. Try it at your grocer's, for a pleasant surprise. F. C. Hagin, Genoa.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription-Dr. Shoop's Restorative-is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments, the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys, if one its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by J. S. ### THE BEST PLOW YOU CAN BUY

SOME OF THE REASONS

The only sulky plow made with which you can turn either gee or haw equally well, leaving no hard spots, and avoid the necessity of plowing out corners.

It is the lightest draft riding plow made, due to the entire absence of landside friction and the even distribution of the load. The weight of the plow and driver is CARRIED instead of being DRAGGED along.

One share on the No. 11 will outlast four walking plow shares. It holds to the ground at all times, especially in dry weather. May be used with or without tongue. The turning and scouring qualities of the OLIVER PLOW BASES are un-

Feats That Never Happened. A grotesque and foolish view of the west leads many who are not acquainted with that part of the country to perpetrate amusing blunders regarding the possibilities of the typical western weapons, the rifle and the six shooter. To shoot an animal's eye out at a hundred paces is a common feat in wild west literature, Sometimes it is done with a six shooter—in type, not anywhere else. Of course, no man can see the eye of an animal that far. I have had a good rifleman tell me he could cut off a robin's head at a hundred steps. The truth is that he could not see the head clearly that far. You read that the desperado Slade could with a six shooter at fifty or sixty steps hit a man in any button of his coat that he chose, but you may be sure that neither Slade nor any one else could do anything of the kind. Even trick and fancy shooting at its best could ever cover feats ascribed as matters of course to the average frontiersman by those devotees of frenzied fiction who never saw the frontier .-Outing Magazine.

Eluding the Officers.

Here is an amusing description of one of Balzac's periods of impecuniosity. Mery, the poet, a great friend of Balzac, was an inveterate gambler and rarely left the card table before daybreak. His way lay past the Cafe de Paris, and for four consecutive mornings he had met Balzac strolling leisurely up and down dressed in a pantalon a pieds (trousers not terminating below the ankle, but with feet in them like stockings) and frock coat with velvet facings. The second morning Mery felt surprised at the coincidence; the third he was puzzled; the fourth he could hold out no longer and asked Balzac the reason of these nocturnal perambulations roundabout the same spot.

Balzac put his hand in his pocket and produced an almanac showing that the sun did not rise before 3:50. "I am being tracked by the officers of the tribunal de commerce and obliged to hide myself during the day, but at this hour I am free and can take a walk. for as long as the sun is not up they cannot arrest me."

Milk on a Stick.

In winter time milk goes to the buyer in a chunk instead of a quart, says a Glasgow paper. The people in Siberia buy their milk frozen, and for convenience it is allowed to freeze about a stick, which comes as a handle to carry it by. The mikman leaves one chunk or two chunks, as the case may be, at the houses of his customers. The children in Irkutsk, instead of crying for a drink of milk, cry for a bite of milk. The people in winter time do not say, "Be careful not to spill the milk," but "Be careful not to break the milk." Broken milk is better than spilled milk, though, because there is an opportunity to save the pieces. A quart of frozen milk on a stick is a very formidable weapon in the hand of an angry man or boy, as it is possible to knock a person down with it. Irkutsk people hang their milk on hooks instead of putting it in pans, though, of course, when warm spring weather comes on they have to use the pans or pails as the milk begins to melt and drop down the hooks.

The Illusion of Night.

I sometimes fancy that every great city must have been built by night. At least it is only at night that every part of a great city is great. All architecture is great architecture after sunset. Perhaps architecture is really a nocturnal art. like the art of fireworks. At least I think many people of those nobler trades that work by night (journalists, policemen, burglars, coffee stall keepers and such mistaken enthusiasts as refuse to go home till morning) must often have stood admiring some black bulk of building with a crown of battlements or a crest of spires and then burst into tears at daybreak to discover that it was only a haberdasher's shop with huge gold letters across the face of it.-G. A. Chesterton in London News.

Tax on Hats.

Not only have hats at various times been subject to taxation, but have even been made the subject of special laws. Thus in Henry VII.'s reign none was allowed to sell hats at a larger price could be found in the fact that in 1571 on Sundays and holidays every one above seven years of age was required to wear a cap of wool of English make under penalty of 3 farthings fine for
