Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

MRS. D. I. JONES,

5800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

New Departure.

After two months of remarkable sales, J. S. Banker, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of J. S. Banker's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa.

"And now, ladies," concluded the lecturer on woman's rights to her downtrodden sisters, "I am ready to answer any questions."

"Would you mind telling us," ventured one enraptured fair auditor, "where you got that perfect love of a hat?"—Liverpool Mercury.

Pain anywhere stopped in 20 minutes sure with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. The formula is on the 25 cent box. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about this formula! Stops womanly pains, headache, pains anywhere. Write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., for free trial to prove value. J. S. Banker, Genoa.

"We're glad to welcome you into our little family, Mr. Slimm," said Mrs. Starvem cheerfully. "Our boarders invariably get fat."

"Yes," replied the new boarder. "I've noticed the same thing in most boarding houses. It's cheaper than lean meat, isn't it?"—London Mail.

Righteous Indignation.

While patrolling his beat in the small hours of a recent morning a Pittsburg policeman beheld a suspicious looking little figure shuffling along in the shadows, bearing a large bundle.

"Look here!" said the officer, halting the wanderer. "Where are ye goin' at this hour, an' what 've ye got there?"

"Me go home," was the short reply.

"Where did ye come from?"

"North 'Ighland," grunted the little chap.

"North iv Ireland? Indade an' ye did not!" declared the officer. "What is yer name?"

"Tara Makata."

"What!" yelled the officer, now thoroughly aroused. "D'ye dare t' stan' there an' try t' kid me? Come along an' talk t' th' cap'n."

Just at that moment a well dressed couple arrived on the scene.

"Why, it is our Japanese servant!" exclaimed the woman. "He is carrying home our fancy dress costumes," she explained. "He is all right, officer."

"Oh, he's all right!" said the officer, releasing him reluctantly. "Well, thin, what th' divvie does he mane he tellin' me he's from th' north iv Ireland an' his name is Terry McCarty?"

Service.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed Whose deeds, both great and small, Are close knit strands of an unbroken thread.

Where love ennobles all, The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells;

The book of life the shining record tells, Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes After its own life working. A child's kiss Set on thy singing lips shall make thee glad;

A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;

Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense

Of service which thou renderest.

—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Avoiding the Rush.

A Mormon wife, coming downstairs one morning, met the physician who was attending her husband.

"Is he very ill?" she asked anxiously.

"He is," replied the physician. "I fear that the end is not far off."

"Do you think," she asked hesitatingly—"do you think it proper that I should be at his bedside during his last moments?"

"Yes. But I advise you to hurry, madam. The best places are already being taken."

The Judge's Interruption.

Marriages in Springfield, Ill., up to the time of Lincoln's own wedding had been rather informal affairs. His was one of the very first, if not the first, ever performed with the full Episcopal service. Among the bridegroom's friends who gathered in the church was Thomas C. Browne, one of the justices of the supreme court. Judge Browne was an "old timer." He had been on the bench from the very beginning, a quaint, rough, curious character. He stood close beside Lincoln during the marriage.

Old Parson Dressar, in his canonical robes, was performing the ceremony in an exceedingly solemn and impressive manner. He handed the ring to Lincoln, who placed it upon the bride's finger and repeated the formula. "With this ring I thee wed; with all my worldly goods I thee endow."

This struck the old judge as nonsense, and he cried out loudly enough to be heard by every one:

"Good gracious, Lincoln, the statute fixes all that!"

The unexpected interruption and its utter absurdity completely upset the old parson, who had a keen sense of the ridiculous, and it was some minutes before he could proceed.

Held Up.

"A friend of mine," said an automobile expert, "was doing some rather tall speeding one summer on a road that had a tollgate every five miles or so. My friend was in a great hurry. He was trying, on a heavy wager, to break a record; hence it angered him when he came to a closed gate to see the tollkeeper continue reading his paper and make no effort to let the car through."

"Now, then, my man, hurry up and open the gate!" shouted my friend. "Are you asleep there?"

"You're No. 7004B, ain't ye?" said the gatekeeper without rising from his chair.

"Yes; that's right. Hurry up!"

"Oh, there's lots of time!" said the gatekeeper. "You ain't due here yet for eighteen minutes, accordin' to what the last gatekeeper has just telephoned me."

Disinterested Kindness.

Treat people kindly, calculating to gain by their gratitude, and you will not receive the slightest remuneration for your so-called kindness, but treat them kindly without any thought of gain and you will have both gratitude and profit.—Ruskin.

First Aid.

The fiancé of a Louisville girl was spending the winter in Florida in connection with his father's business interests in that quarter.

"Marie," said the girl to a friend one day, "Walter has just sent me the dearest little allegator from Florida!"

"Dear me!" rejoined Marie, with affected enthusiasm. "And how shall you keep him?"

"I'm not quite certain," was the reply, "but I've put him in Florida water till I can hear further from Walter."—Harper's Weekly.

COLLECTING A DEBT.

Old Billy Bulger's Method involved a Division of Labor.

"Got any work this mornin', Mistah Boyd?" asked old Billy Bulger, safe in the knowledge that no work would be entrusted to him.

"No," was the response, and then, before Billy could ask for the customary contribution: "But wait a minute. Lawyer Phillips has owed me $20 for twenty years. Collect it and I'll give you half." And the merchant, knowing now bad was the debt, winked at a waiting customer.

The old man found the lawyer in the middle of a group of prospective clients and influential citizens. Thrusting through the group, he called in stentorian tones:

"Mistah Phillips, suh!"

"Well?" queried the lawyer, much annoyed.

"Mistah Boyd done tell me that you've owed him $20 for about a hundred years, and he wants to know kin you pay him, suh."

The lawyer hurried to Billy's side. "You idiot!" he said sotto voce.

"Do you want to ruin my business? Here!" And he thrust a ten dollar bill into the old man's hand.

Back to the merchant toddled the old man.

"Well, Billy," said the merchant "did you get it?"

The old man grinned.

"I got my half, all right," he chuckled. "But you'd better look out when you go back to get your half! He's right smart hot over it, suh!"—Success Magazine.

His Title.

A newspaper man once asked the late J. K. Hudson whether he should call him "major" or "general."

Hudson was a major in the civil war and was made a brigadier general in the Spanish war, but in the latter conflict he did not get into active service.

"Call me major," said Hudson in reply to the question. "I was vaccinated for general, but it didn't take."

Woolly Art.

Frederic Remington, the illustrator, fresh from a western trip on which he had been making studies of Indians and cowpunchers and things outdoors, met an art editor who insisted upon dragging him up to an exhibition of very impressionistic pictures.

"You don't seem enthusiastic," remarked the editor as they were coming out. "Didn't you like them?"

Remington, remembering what he had been told as a boy, counted ten before replying. Then:

"Like 'em? Say! I've got two maiden aunts in New Rochelle that can knit better pictures than those!"—Everybody's.

We Touch One Another on All Sides.

No individual can be happy unless the circumstances of those around him be so adjusted as to conspire with his interest, for in human society no happiness or misery stands unconnected and independent. Our fortunes are interwoven by threads innumerable. We touch one another on all sides. One man's misfortunes or success, his wisdom or his folly, often by its consequences reaches through multitudes.—Blair.

Insult Plus Injury.

"Well, did he pay you?" asked the wife of a dentist who had been to collect a bill for a full set of false teeth that he had made for a man almost a year before.

"Pay me?" growled the dentist. "Not only did he refuse to pay me, but he actually had the effrontery to gnash at me—with my teeth!"—Everybody's.

An Interesting Drive.

An eminent Irishman, famous as a historian and man of letters, arrived one morning at Dublin in a brown study. Scarcely had his feet touched land when he was seized, bag and baggage, by an alert car driver, who soon had the dreaming gentleman ensconced on a side of his car. They drove off at high speed and made a tour of the principal streets. They doubled on their tracks, flashed round corners and appeared in most unexpected places, all in the most aimless fashion and at a breakneck speed. At the end of an hour's brilliant car driving the fare woke up from his reverie in amazement.

"In the name of heaven, Pat," he exclaimed, "where are we going?"

"Oh," said Pat, "the sorry one of me knows, your honor, but we're drivin' like blazes to it anyway!"

A Good Word For Him.

An old Scotchwoman was famous for speaking kindly. No sheep was so dark but she could discover some white spot to point out to those who could see only its blackness. One day a gossiping neighbor lost patience with her and said angrily, "Wumman, ye'll hae a guld word to say for the deevil himself!"

Instantly came the reply, "Weel, he's a vera industrious body!"

She Did.

One day, while performing for the inmates of an orphan asylum, Kellar, the magician, walked up to a sedate little girl in the audience and asked, "Will my little lady please examine this handkerchief?"

The blushing child did as she was told.

"Now," proceeded the conjurer, "we will see if we can find in it some candy," and, slowly rolling the handkerchief into a ball, he held it out to the small maid.

"Please blow on it," he said.

The next moment there was a shriek of laughter from all sides. The child had taken the request literally and had noisily performed the habitual rite.—Success Magazine.

WHAT ONE PERSON CAN DO

How a Woman and a Pastor Helped to Improve Two Different Towns.

A young woman in a western town is responsible for the remarkable improvement which has lately taken place in its appearance. She had been away to college and during her vacations had visited in the beautiful homes of her friends, and when she returned after graduation to the paternal roof it struck her as being extremely shabby. She had the house painted a pretty colonial yellow. She put awnings on the windows and verandas, had the fence taken down and lawns properly cared for. These she served tea every afternoon on the veranda, and her friends thought it all so nice that they went home determined to do likewise. The fences came down all along the street, and in other streets the houses took on new colors and the lawns bloomed with velvety greenness. The value of the property rose, and the municipal government, seeing that there was financial profit in beauty, went in for pavements, parks, fountains and drives. Now there is not a more beautiful place in the west than this town.

A score or more of years ago the pastor of a rural New England church led in organizing a village improvement association. The neglected common on the main street was made over into a smooth, green lawn, and rows of shade trees were planted. The inhabitants as they came to the store, the postoffice and the church were impressed with the change, which constantly grew more pleasing. Some of those who lived along that street purchased lawn mowers, set out trees and shrubs around their homes and made new paths to their doors. Their neighbors felt obliged to follow their example. Visitors one summer who had not seen the town for several years were surprised at the transformation. Nor was it confined to the streets and houses, though it had extended into remote corners. The improvement was evident among the people, young and old. The churches, which had depended on missionary societies for annual appropriations, have assumed their own support. An honorable pride in their town is manifest among the inhabitants everywhere. Its reputation is high among the neighboring towns and is extending into many other towns around about.

RURAL UPLIFT.

How Sociability and Study Have Been Promoted in Many Country Towns.

In Nebraska much is being done to make farm life interesting. Women's auxiliaries to the farmers' institutes and homemakers' clubs are taking up the problem of making home life on the farm more attractive. There is a boys and girls' organization for the purpose of interesting young people in agriculture and the farm home. In certain towns in Nebraska and Indiana rest rooms are provided for the use of farmers' wives.

A woman's improvement club in a small town in Iowa has had astonishing results. Social conditions have been improved. The bazaars, suppers and meetings of this club attracted such crowds that it became necessary to buy a hall for its own use, and raising money to meet this debt has given the club a new incentive. This institution has effaced all tendency to gossip at its meetings by substituting other interests.

The Home Culture club of River Falls, Wis., is devoted to sociability and the study of history, art, etc. The membership is twenty-five, with a waiting list.

If conditions are to be bettered, it is the women of the small town who must better them. It lies with them to get things out of the rut. They must be brought to realize that the country town should be a place where plenty of good times shall be possible for old and young, where educational opportunities may be afforded for all ages, and where the talents of all may have a chance of development. If the women could only be brought to desire earnestly a broader life and to realize that such a life lies within their reach, the country town would take on a different meaning for young and old.—Good Housekeeping For March.

Value of a Park Commission Law.

Every state should pass a law similar to the one introduced in the Ohio legislature through the efforts of the Columbus park commission, whereby any city in the state may have a park commission should the people vote for it in majority. The duty of such commission will be to purchase and lay out parks, playgrounds and boulevards, levy taxes and dispose of bonds but another vote of the people will be necessary to permit of the issuance of such bonds. It will become the sole duty of five men selected in each city to give special attention to this important question and to study the problem for present and future needs and systematize each municipality's holdings. By this legal method it would be possible for a park commission to handle in its entirety any park or playground proposition without interference by the city councils, the whole matter resting with the people.

Care of Street Trees.

In the west side district in Chicago the street trees are provided with devices for furnishing both air and water. Around each tree is a grating five feet square, and each tree is also provided with a four inch tile through which water is conveyed to the roots throughout the summer. Through these pipes the trees are fed liquid manure. All of the parkway save the five feet about each tree is covered solidly with concrete of material similar to the sidewalk.

COUNTRY LIFE COMMISSION.

President Roosevelt recently transmitted to congress the voluminous report of the country life commission which he appointed about a year ago to investigate into agricultural conditions and life over the country and report to him and make recommendations which they thought would be instrumental in improving conditions. The commission consisted of four men of exceptional qualifications both in breadth of view and keen insight into the agricultural needs and problems of the country. Their report to the president consisted of a digest of the data and evidence secured at thirty public hearings held at different points and attended by the farmers and farmers' wives of forty different states and territories and from 120,000 answers to printed questions, which were very generally distributed. In the executive letter of transmittal to congress, which is really an admirable digest of the committee's report, it is pointed out that the general level of country life is high and compares favorably with that of any previous era in the history of the country. Yet, notwithstanding this condition, farming does not yield the financial returns it ought to give. Added to this, there is much discontent, and even discouragement. Three ways are suggested which, it is thought, will help to improve this condition—namely, a better type of farming, better business methods and a better type of living on the farm.

With a view to realizing these ends the president makes the following recommendations:

"First.—Effective co-operation among farmers, to put them on a level with the organized interests with which they do business.

"Second.—A new kind of schools in the country, which shall teach the children as much outdoors as indoors and perhaps more, so that they will prepare for country life and not, as at present, mainly for life in town.

"Third.—Better means of communication, including good roads and a parcels post, which the country people are everywhere, and rightly, unanimous in demanding."

The federal department of agriculture, state experiment stations, the agricultural press and other agencies are recognized as agencies which are doing an excellent service in favoring a better type of agriculture, which, realized, would mean a doubling of crop yields in many sections of the country. The president asserts that, rightly viewed and carried on, agriculture should be one of the most dignified, desirable and sought after ways of earning a livelihood. In bringing this condition of things to pass emphasis is placed on the need of organization and co-operation for business and social reasons. The religious need is also recognized and an important place given the country church in this connection, while an especial tribute is paid the home as the most powerful factor in the development of character and personality, the presence or lack of which tends to make life rich or poor. At the close of his message the president emphasizes the fact that the permanency of our civilization depends upon the wholesomeness, attractiveness and completeness as well as the prosperity of country life. An appropriation of $25,000 is recommended in order that the commission may be able to digest the material it has collected and to collect and digest other valuable data which are within easy reach. While this is but a beginning, the work of the country life commission is bound to result in untold benefit.

AN IMMEDIATE PROBLEM.

Tillers of the soil in all the older agricultural sections of the country are up against an economic proposition which it would be well worth while for them to take into serious account. We refer to that to be found in an increase in the value of farm lands in the sections referred to, a corresponding increase in rental charges, and this coupled with the fact of a continually decreasing soil fertility. Those who have thought of this problem even superficially can realize at once that this condition of affairs cannot continue long. Either the soil robbing methods of tilling land will have to be abandoned and a more rational system adopted in their place in the shape of dairying and stock raising or else farms of the class referred to will themselves have to be abandoned. The wise course to follow would seem to lie along the line of a reformation of agricultural methods, which is the only way out of the difficulty consistent with financial consideration and patriotic regard for the dignity of agriculture as a vocation and the marvelous original endowment of soil fertility. We should quit this dishonorable business of soil robbery and develop a keener regard than we feel for the agricultural bankruptcy which it will lead to if persisted in.

Money in circulation in the United States on Feb. 1 this year is placed at $3,091,312,546, which, divided among the 68,328,000 population, gives a per capita circulation of $35.

The denatured alcohol output of the country for 1908 was 3,874,625 gallons, a gain of 15 per cent over the 1907 product, which amounted to 3,364,590 gallons. Prospects for the present year are for a largely increased production.

In all of the northern states where the cold winters, with alternate thawing and freezing, give the orchardist concern it is well to give the young orchard tree a low head, which will protect the trunk from intense heat in summer and do much to dissipate the rays of the sun in winter.

Good times are said to be quite accurately measured by the condition of the pig iron trade. This has been given still further illustration of late in the figures of the iron trade for the past two years. In 1907 the output was the largest on record, being 25,181,361 tons, while last year, following the financial depression, the production of pig iron fell to 15,936,018 tons, a slump of 38 per cent.

Missouri and Kansas horticulturists are beginning to realize the danger to their orchards from a spread of the dreaded San Jose scale and have joined in a petition to the legislatures of the two states for laws which will provide for nursery inspection as well as the location and isolation of infested orchards and the taking of such precautions as will prevent a spread of the scourge.

A reason which will account for young orchard trees not bearing sooner than they do after being set may lie in the soil being too rich in nitrogen as compared with the other chief elements, potash and phosphorus. To correct this condition manure should be kept from the trees and the vigorous growth checked by putting the trees in grass for a couple of years. It is possible to be too kind to young fruit trees, and overmanuring them is one of the easiest.

An Oklahoma lady reader of these notes reports that a field of alfalfa which is located near her poultry yard is frequented by her flock during all the winter months when the weather will permit, and in that latitude this is virtually the whole winter season. The field with its plants rich in protein makes an ideal pasture, furnishing not only needed exercise, but a most valuable ration of nourishing green food. In the north these advantages can be but poorly imitated with the scratching shed and clover hay.

The farmer who would make any headway in either stock raising or dairying is taking a very long and hazardous chance when he picks out a sire for his herd from a bunch of non-descript bovines at the local stockyards and tenders in pay for him the princely sum of $25. The purchaser may not know any more about the pedigree or merit of a sire selected in such fashion than he does of the character or qualifications as a son-in-law of the hobo who asks a hand-out at his back door. In both cases he would be going it blind and could hardly escape being dubbed a fool.

An interesting fact was brought to the writer's attention the other day in showing the contrast in the type of farm help which is to be found in Wisconsin, Michigan and other north central states and some of the more recently settled portions of states farther west. This was in the attitude which was to be observed in the two communities of hired men who were irresponsible in keeping their word with their employers, in the older section such men being comparatively rare and held in public scorn, while in the newer they were so common and the reliable kind of help so scarce that they had to be accorded a treatment that was much more courteous than they deserved. This difference is due fundamentally to difference in character and ideals, which in a way are a matter of development and evolution so far as community life is concerned.

A thoughtful article in a recent issue of a leading farm paper points out the fact that the value of many of the experiments conducted by state agricultural experiment stations is greatly lessened because so many of the tests are carried out on a very limited scale and under conditions which it would be impossible for the average farmer to duplicate because of lack of help and time. In a measure this criticism is well founded in that experiments may be conducted on a small scale with remarkable results which would not produce any such results were they carried out extensively with the amount of land which the average farmer undertakes. At the same time it is well to take into account the fact that one of the truths which the experiment stations are trying to drive home to the minds of the tillers of the soil is that they are working from two to three times as much land as they can handle to advantage and that if an amount were kept under cultivation which could be given the attention that it ought to receive some of these same invaluable intensive experiments—so viewed by some—would be considered of a much more practical nature than now. Perhaps the experimenters should increase by threefold the land which they devote to grain raising tests, while it is just as plain that the farmer should in many cases decrease his plow land by the same threefold ratio to handle it in an effective and satisfactory manner.

One can hold a penny or nickel close to his eye that it will obscure the distant dollar or gold eagle. The fellow who scripps on the price of his seed grain is a victim of this very illusion when he ought to know better.

Wise parents should keep the title of a good portion of their hard earned property in their own name as long as they live. Considerate children should not only acquiesce in this arrangement, but should in good faith see that it is carried out.

Experiments conducted by the animal husbandry department of the New York experiment station at Cornell give a value of 54 cents per hundred-weight of skim milk fed to growing pigs. If these figures are correct, one of the common byproducts of the average farm has been grievously underestimated in past years.

Before the small grain is put into the reeder it should be given a good blast of air in the fanning mill in the granary or taken to the elevator, where a still more thorough job can be done. This treatment will remove dirt and dust, shrunken kernels and a great majority of the weed seeds. This will assure a more even stand and will mean less weeds and more satisfaction in every way from the growing crop.

The secret of the prosperity and contentment to be found in sections of the country largely devoted to dairying lies in the fact that in the marketing of a ton of butter but 26 cents' worth of soil fertility is removed from the farm premises. More fertility is marketed in the shape of live stock and still more when the raw cereal products are sold, which makes the last named the most spendthrift type of agriculture which can be followed.

It is hard to understand why so many sections of the country which are already well embarked in a dairy and stock raising type of agriculture should be so slow in adopting the silo as one of the best possible means of utilizing economically one of the most important home grown products of the farm. It would seem that a silo and ensilage gospel needs preaching in a good many benighted sections of the country which agriculturally at least are not living up to their opportunities.

Where a locality is especially favorable to a growing of apples or other kinds of fruit it is well for several to unite in the growing of the same well known standard varieties. This makes it possible to handle fruit of one kind in car lots, while buyers will come from a distance if a considerable quantity of given varieties may be had. More than this, the spraying, pruning and cultivation of similar types of fruit in the same neighborhood would be much the same, and one fruit grower could learn from his neighbors and perhaps in turn help those of less experience.

About the only argument which we have heard urged against the growing of alfalfa is that this responsive legume produces so many crops in one season—sometimes five or six—that it keeps a fellow at home cutting and curing it almost as closely as if he were a widower and had a family of eight kids and a weekly washing on his hands. A feature that makes the matter somewhat worse is that alfalfa requires more attention in the curing than do most other kinds of hay. A thought that may give general consolation, however, is that the closer most fellows stay at home the more circumspect citizens they usually are.

A conception that is quite general among people of eastern states is that the horse raising business of the Rocky mountain and Pacific slope states is still in the broncho stage. The picture of the proverbial cowboy mounted on his mustang, so common in the newspaper and magazine illustrations of the day, is doubtless in large measure responsible for the misconception referred to, but a very different status of the horse raising business of the west in the case. Many of the large farm and ranch owners have been buying and shipping in the best types of speed and draft horses which could be secured, with the result that some of the finest horses which the country produces are raised west of the Missouri river, and a number of western cities are already taking a high rank as horse markets, which are frequented by big eastern buyers.

The success of many a farmers' co-operative enterprise is jeopardized if not made entirely impossible because of an undue closeness or economy on the part of directors or stockholders, shown in an unwillingness to pay a reasonable price for competent superintendents and managers. It is a dead sure thing that such enterprises will not manage themselves or succeed financially without close and thoughtful supervision. In view of this it seems plain, since any individual stockholder or director cannot give the supervision required, that some one must be hired who will be able to do it if the business is to succeed. There is no type of undertaking which has to encounter more serious obstacles from the economic point of view than those which are co-operative, where no one has a paramount but many a comparatively slight and equal interest, and none of the obstacles referred to is more serious or worthy of more careful attention than the one mentioned.

A Bad Man.
Herman Whitaker wrote a story of the Tehuantepec rubber plantation. Guadalupe, the mandador on one plantation at which Mr. Whitaker stayed, was informed that he was to be one of the characters in his story. "He never failed to question me each day as to the things I had made him do—in the story," said Mr. Whitaker. "When one morning I informed him that I had killed him off, he expressed great surprise.
"Porque, señor, porque?"
"Because you are a bad man, Guadalupe." Which was perfectly true.
"I, señor?" he questioned, greatly surprised.
"St. Guadalupe, you are bad. Think of how many men you have killed, according to your own count."
"He thought for a while, then looked up with a humorous smile. 'Oh, well! Did I put up a good fight?'
"You bet you did, Guadalupe."
"Whereupon eyebrows and shoulders went up in a shrug. 'Bueno! Bueno! Then it ees all right.'"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Colleges of Oxford.
Each college is built round a quadrangle with a large entrance gateway which often rises into a quasi tower. The rooms immediately over the gateway are invariably designed for the residence of the warden, provost or principal of the college, so that the eye of the master may be over all who enter or leave the place. This mode of building still exists in India, having been introduced into Europe by the Moors when they conquered Spain, where we find that the compound, or quad, is still used for the tethering of all kinds of animals. Around the quad are arranged the chapel, library, hall or refectory, president's lodgings, buttery and kitchen. The students' rooms generally occupy the upper floors. William of Wickham, the celebrated architect, wisely placed his taller buildings—the chapel and hall—on the north side to keep off the cold winds, the lower buildings on the south more freely admitting sunshine.

Rainbow Upside Down.
Not very many persons have ever seen an inverted rainbow, although the phenomenon sometimes appears. At the Italian geodynamic observatory of Rocca de Papa not long ago the director and a party of visitors were fortunate enough to see one. The morning was showery, and as the party looked down from an elevation of 2,900 feet they saw in the Campagna a perfect rainbow with its concave side up, the middle point bearing to the northeast. From the Eiffel tower in Paris one has also been seen. In this case the rainbow being double and extending above and below the horizon to form two concentric circles nearly complete. Generally the inverted rainbow is to be seen only in the mountains and then very rarely. The phenomenon, of course, is due merely to the position of the observer, which must be above the refracting agent instead of below.—Pathfinder.

An Old Ash Wednesday Custom.
At one time it was on Ash Wednesday the custom to appoint an official of the English palaces to crow the hours of the day, like a cock, as a reminder of the denial of St. Peter. This practice excited the furious indignation of George II. His ignorance of English made it very difficult for the courtiers to explain that the royal cock crower was not making fun of him. The cock crower was a salaried officer at the English court as late as 1823.

A Boy's Idea of Parsons.
Not long ago a class of boys in an elementary school had an essay set, the subject being "Clergymen."
This is what one youngster wrote:
"There are 3 kinds of clergymen, Bishops, rectors and curats. The bishops tells the rectors to work, and the curats have to do it. A curat is a thin married man, but when he is a rector he gets fuller and can preach longer sermons and becomes a good man."—London Scraps.

A Dreadful Analogy.
The hypothetical question had just been asked, and the prisoner fell forward in a faint. All was confusion in the courtroom.
"What is the matter with the prisoner?" demanded the judge, hammering his desk madly.
"Nothing, your honor," groaned the unhappy man as he came to. "I was only thinking how long I should have to serve if my sentence was as long as that."—Harper's Weekly.

Irving Washington (wiping his lips) —That was really the sweetest kiss I have ever had! Louise Barkis—I thought you would think so, Irving. My face powder gave out, and I used confectioner's sugar.—Judge.

Very Gently.
"How do you tell bad eggs?" queried the young housewife.
"I never told any," replied the fresh grocery clerk, "but if I had anything to tell a bad egg I'd break it gently."—Christian Guardian.

The Very Highest.
"What is the highest form of animal life?" was a question set for the pupils in a school some time ago, and one little girl was heard to reply, "The giraffe."

Suggestive S. S. Questions.

JUNE 18th, 1909.—Heroes of Faith
Heb. xi:1-40.

Golden Text—Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb. xi:1.

Verses 1-3—In what respects are faith and hope similar?
If a desirable thing is possessed by faith, does that give as much, or similar, satisfaction, as the possession of the thing itself?
What is the ground of our faith, that "the worlds were framed by the word of God?"
Why do we admire the men of faith of past years?
Verses 4, 5—Abel had a truly religious nature; now was this nature the result of his faith, or was his faith the result of his nature?
Does this record mean that Enoch's translation was directly caused by a specific act of faith, or that his general life of faith made him such a good man that God translated him without death?
Verse 6—Faith is sometimes based upon outward evidence; sometimes upon personal revelation; sometimes upon intuition, and sometimes upon composite grounds; what moral or spiritual qualities, therefore, are necessary for becoming a man of faith? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)
Why is faith necessary in order to please God?
Verse 7—What was Noah's faith based upon, and wherein was his faith meritorious?
Verses 8-12—What was the difference, if any, between Abraham's faith and that of the Pilgrim fathers, when they left the old country for the American land of promise?
I take it that Abraham, and the Pilgrim fathers, while in communion with God, felt a drawing to go to the rich country in the distance about which they had heard; that they took this drawing to be the voice of God; and in this faith they started out; what evidence is there that their faith was true, and that such faith is always dependable?
Verses 13-16—Why is it that all nations and peoples, in all time, so far as we have any record, believe in, and "desire a better country, that is an heavenly?"
Verses 17-19—Give from memory the account of Abraham offering up his son Isaac
What is the particular virtue, in Abraham obeying God in the matter of offering up Isaac?
Would it be a virtue or a vice in these days, if any man should do the same thing as Abraham did?
Verses 20-31—Suppose the persons mentioned in these wonderful verses, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses and Rahab, had been lacking faith in God, in these critical moments of their lives, what would have been the difference in the results?
Does faith in God always make the present happy, and picture in glowing colors the future?
Verses 32-40—Have men distinguished for their faith, always been noted for their goodness?
This is a thrilling account of the exploits of the man of faith; give me an account of the achievements of men noted for their lack of faith.

People Tell Each Other About Good Things
Fourteen years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merit of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by one gratified person to another, there are millions who would as soon go without a dentifrice as without Allen's Foot-Ease. It is a cleanly, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which has given rest and comfort to tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials of cures of smarting, swollen, perspiring feet. It prevents friction and wear of the stockings and will save in your stocking bill ten times its cost each year. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit, otherwise you would never be offered a substitute when you ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original powder for the feet. Imitations are not advertised because they are not permanent. For every genuine article there are many imitations. The imitator has no reputation to sustain—the advertiser has. It stands to reason that the advertised article is the best, otherwise the public would not buy it and the advertising could not be continued. When you ask for an article advertised in this paper, see that you get it. Refuse imitations.

Many attribute it to the comfort which Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, gives to the millions now using it. As Weston has said, "It has real merit."

About Ourselves.

By sticking everlastingly at it we have succeeded in establishing a trade in the farming districts that we have every reason to feel proud of—that we have deserved this patronage goes without saying for the average farmer is a shrewd buyer, he knows instinctively when he is getting his money's worth, and unless we had satisfied them they would not have stuck by us so loyally—if you are unacquainted with our methods ask your neighbor, then come and see for yourself. We sell reliable merchandise at reasonable prices.

VILLAGE AND VICINITY NEWS.

—June 14, next Monday, is Flag day. Hang out the stary banner.

—Miss Dora Miller is spending some time in Waverly.

—W. R. Mosher has been painting his residence and making other improvements about the place.

—Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Upson of Lockport, N. Y., are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Upson of this town.

—Regents examinations will be held in Genoa school next week as follows: Monday a. m., Geography; p. m., Spelling. Tuesday a. m., Arithmetic; p. m., El. English. Wednesday p. m., El. U. S. History.

—The Whatsoever class of the Presbyterian Sunday school will have an ice cream social on Thursday evening, June 17, on the church lawn, if the weather is suitable. If not other arrangements will be made. Everybody cordially invited, and the young people hope for a large attendance.

Did you see the nobby red, tan, hat and gunmetal oxfords at the Genoa Clothing Store? Come in and get them over before buying.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoskins and daughter, Mrs. A. J. Parker, of Auburn went to Rochester on Monday, and on Tuesday morning at Dr. Lee's hospital, Mrs. Hoskins suffered an operation for the removal of a tumor. Although the operation was a serious one, she is said to be doing well.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Bastedo left Monday for Malcolm, Neb., where their home will be in future. They came from Nebraska to this place several years ago, having resided here in former years, and purchased the Potter farm on west hill. This spring they disposed of the farm and are now returning to Nebraska, where their only daughter resides, to spend their remaining days.

—Genoa has a second Weston in Mr. E. B. Thompson, aged 80 years, who on Monday walked from the Leonard place, north of the village, to Auburn—a distance of 18 miles. The aged pedestrian started at about 5 o'clock in the morning and arrived in Auburn at 9:30, without showing fatigue or any ill effects from his long tramp. This is quite a remarkable feat for one of his years to perform, and Mr. Thompson has a right to feel proud of it. He returned from the city over the Auburn-Ithaca Short Line on Wednesday.

Having sold my store at Genoa all persons having accounts made at the above named store are requested to settle same before July 1, '09, at that store with E. J. Brightman. After the above date the book will be in other hands for collection.

—The Genoa, Ledyard and Venice Sunday School association will meet in Genoa Baptist church on Tuesday, June 15, for their annual convention. The program announces addresses by Revs. A. A. Nellis of Auburn, S. Hancock of Moravia, Thos. Packard of Fleming, E. G. Evans of North Lansing, and H. E. Springer of Locke. There will also be violin solos by Rev. Thos. Packard and vocal solos by Miss Hunter and Mr. Foster of Genoa. The afternoon session begins at 2 o'clock and the evening session at 7:30. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance.

—This was Commencement week at Wells college, Aurora, and among the most interested visitors on Wednesday was Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland, widow of the late ex-President, who came especially to attend the trustees' meeting. She was obliged to leave immediately after the meeting, in order to catch an evening train for New York. An important Commencement feature was the address by Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., of Boston. Another pleasing incident was the presentation of a purse of $1,000 to Miss Mary Emily Case, who has been professor of Latin in the college for the past 26 years, and who now retires from that position.

—R. W. Armstrong has been in Auburn this week as jurymen.

—Mrs. Earle F. Keefe will return Monday from a visit with her parents at Richford.

—Mrs. W. C. Rogers and daughter Elizabeth of Albany are guests of the former's sister, Mrs. F. C. Hagin, for a few days.

Everything in up-to-date hats at Mrs. Singer's, Genoa.

—There are 12,500 newspapers published in United States; about 1,000 of them are published daily, and 120 are managed, edited and published by negroes.

—W. G. Frisbie, who has been the principal of the Freeville High school for the past few years, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Board of Education for the coming year.

—Wm. Ewell of East Venice underwent a serious operation on Sunday at his home. Dr. Besemer of Ithaca performed the operation. Miss Isabelle Norman was the attending nurse until Tuesday when Miss Lena Gilkey arrived from Rochester to relieve her.

—“What are they moving the church for?” “Well, stranger, I'm mayor of these diggin's, and I'm fer law enforcement. We've got an ordinance what says 'no saloon shall be nearer than 300 feet from a church.' I give 'em three days to move the church.”

—Isaac Morse, an old resident of Cayuga county, died on Saturday last at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Reynolds, at Varna, where he went about two weeks ago. He was 90 years of age and had always lived in the towns of Scipio and Moravia.

Mrs. S. Wright, Genoa, wishes to announce to the public that she is now located on South St., only a step from Smith's store, and has on display a large stock of up-to-date millinery, also a fine line of ladies' taffeta and Heatherbloom skirts. Pleased to see old and new patrons.

—Rev. E. L. Dresser will occupy his pulpit in the Presbyterian church again next Sunday morning, speaking on “Some Impressions from the General Assembly.” Sunday school following this service. Mr. Dresser will preach at Five Corners in the afternoon and evening. Union service in the Baptist church at 7:30. All cordially welcome to these services.

—Once upon a time a child who was asked on an examination paper to define a mountain range, replied, “A large-sized cook stove.” The same method of reasoning seems to go with older growth. A recent examination paper at the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale contained the question, “What is the office of the gastric juice?” And the answer on one paper said: “The stomach.”—Everybody's Magazine.

Dr. J. W. Whitbeck, dentist, Genoa, N. Y., is prepared to do painless extracting of teeth by the use of Sleep Vapor or Somnoform, the latest and safest anaesthetic known, which can be had at his office administered by a physician. He also has for extracting the best preparation for hypodermic; and also a local application for extracting children's teeth, perfectly harmless. In fact, everything in the dental line can be found at his office. Charges as reasonable as in the city or elsewhere, consistent with first-class work.

—Did you see the eclipse of the moon on Thursday evening of last week? There will be an eclipse of the sun on June 17 which, it is said, will be unlike any other eclipse known to man. For a few seconds it will be an annular eclipse, then changing to a total eclipse, then back to an annular eclipse for the second time. There is no record of any such occurrence in any history of astronomy, although we have records of annular eclipses for 400 years and of total eclipses for thousands of years. The eclipse, as a partial phase of greater or lesser magnitude, will sweep over the North American continent from the north, decreasing in size as it passes down through Canada and the States.

—E. L. Bower has been home a few days this week.

—Cards are out for a party at Armstrong's hall, Friday evening, June 18. Daniels' orchestra in attendance.

—Commencement week at Cornell University will begin on Monday, June 14. The forty-first annual commencement exercises will be held in the Armory on Thursday, June 17.

—In response to the item in last week's TRIBUNE asking for the names of other soldiers who were buried in Genoa cemetery, D. W. Smith has received the following names: Horatio N. Jacobs, Lucius Thorpe.

—The State Sunday School convention met in Rochester this week. President G. B. Stewart of Auburn seminary was the speaker on Tuesday evening. S. S. Salisbury of Auburn was elected a vice president of the Bible Class Union from the Seventh district.

—Mr. T. B. Thompson of Auburn Seminary filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian church last Sunday in a very satisfactory manner. He expects to go to Waverly soon to supply the Presbyterian pulpit during the absence of the pastor on a trip abroad.

If you want stylish millinery go to Mrs. Singer's, Genoa.

—George F. Heath, of Ellenville, believed to be the oldest printer in the world in point of active service, recently took a short vacation before starting in another year at the case. Mr. Heath has spent 64 years setting type and although he is 82 years of age he is still able to do a good day's work on the Ellenville Press.

—Burdette Parsons of Ludlowville, aged 70 years, was struck and killed by a Lehigh Valley train at McKinney's crossing, near Ithaca, on Saturday last. The man had been to the city and had started to walk back to his home. He evidently did not see or hear the coming train, which was running at high speed and was 11 minutes late.

—Apple tree wood is in great demand of late. It is used for making handles for saws. Buyers are going through the country, in some parts making offers for the timber. Where the San Jose scale has injured orchards the farmers are glad to sell. Much of this wood was used a century ago for clocks.—Yates County Chronicle.

Oxfords! Oxfords! Oxfords! We have just unpacked a case of oxfords in red, tan, patent and gunmetal leathers. All snappy and up-to-the minute styles in W. L. Douglas make. All sizes. Genoa Clothing Store.

—The bee sting treatment for rheumatism has been pronounced a success at the Roosevelt hospital, New York. Dr. Arthur W. Swann, who conducts these treatments, receives his honey bees from Winsted, Conn., in weekly installments of 100. Three stings at a time to each case is a treatment, and a fortnight's treatment is said to effect a cure. None of the original cases are in the hospital and none of them return for fresh treatment.

—One of the graduates of Syracuse University this week, in the classical course, with the degree B. A., was William Claire Rogers of Albany. Mr. Rogers' college career has been a rather peculiar one. He had nearly finished his sophomore year in the university in 1898, when he left to go to the Spanish war, and was in the service fifteen months. Since that time he has held several important positions, having been superintendent of the National Republic at Annapolis Junction, Md., for two years, field secretary for the George Junior Republic one year, inspector of almshouses under the State Board of Charities for five years and since January, 1908, has been superintendent of state, alien and Indian poor with headquarters at Albany. It is quite remarkable that, aside from the onerous duties of the position he holds, he has been able to make the work required by the university, and which he has accomplished in the past four years.

It is unsurpassed for thorough elementary work, while the knowledge gained is as useful for other instruments as for the piano.

It is applicable for children of any age over five years. Tangible materials such as time-division blocks, scale ladder, separable keyboard, etcetera, interest them at once and dispense with drudgery formerly considered unavoidable. Closest inspection cordially invited.

British Savings Clubs.

The working people of England are great patrons of savings clubs, all sorts of agencies being created to enable them to save money that they may have it to spend during the festive season of the year. There are clubs of all kinds, ranging from the shop club, to which the workmen contribute, to the little clubs run for the purpose of letting school children have a shilling's worth of sweets for a Christmas treat. There is hardly a workshop of any importance in London without its workmen's saving club, besides which there are many dividing clubs carried on at public houses, and the deposits amount in the aggregate to a very large sum. The withdrawals begin in the early days of December, and it is not uncommon for the banks to pay out £300 ($1,400) to £500 ($2,433) to a single club, and the problem of storing the money is one of some difficulty. As the amounts have to be divided among many people they are wanted in cash, and in some cases the proportion of gold, silver and copper is specified.

Easter Island.

Easter Island is a lonely Pacific islet, forty-seven square miles in area, entirely volcanic and containing several extinct craters, some of which are more than a hundred feet high, discovered by Roggeveen on Easter Sunday, 1722. Little is known concerning the curious remains which have made the island famous. They consist of more than 500 rudely carved stone statues and busts, varying in height from three to seventy feet and said to be portraits of famous men, not idols. There are also hundreds of stone houses on the island, with painted interiors and incised tablets which, strange to say, have never been deciphered. Between 1860 and 1862 the population, by reason of polyandry and emigration, dwindled to 150 souls, and in 1863 most of these were carried off by the Peruvians to work guano. The few inhabitants left are fair haired Polynesians. Since 1888 the island has been a Chilean convict station.—New York Telegram.

Then and Now.

Act I.
Tilkins—How is business, Wilkins?
Wilkins—Can't make it go. At this rate I shall be bankrupt in another month. I don't seem to have any head for business.

Tilkins—No; you haven't. But you have a good start, and if you'll promise to let me run things I'll go in with you as partner.

Wilkins—Done. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Act II—Ten Years Later.

Guest—What a magnificent place you have—everything that wealth could buy or heart long for! You have been wonderfully prosperous, Mr. Wilkins.

Mr. Wilkins (sadly)—True, but after all, I get only half the profits of my great establishment. I tell you, my friend, the mistake of my life was taking a partner.—London Scraps.

Fear of Premature Burial.

The fear of premature burial, which prompted the late Lord Burton to direct by his will that his heart should be removed from his body, has caused many well known men and women to order a surgical operation to be performed upon their bodies. Harriet Martineau left her doctor £10 to amputate her head, and Lady Burton directed that her heart should be pierced with a needle. The late Edmund Yates left instructions that his jugular vein should be severed, with a provision that a fee of 20 guineas should be paid for the purpose. Literary persons appear to have been particularly afraid of premature burial. Bishop Berkeley, Lord Lytton, Hans Andersen and Wilkie Collins all took measures to protect themselves from it.—Westminster Gazette.

Locations of Promotion.

Elzema, aged four, revealed in kindergarten lore and each day imparted to her young mother the many interesting things that the sweet faced teacher had told them. Among the vicissitudes of school life to be encountered was that of vaccination, which was new to the little one. After much explaining and reassuring this difficulty was safely passed. A few weeks later she returned one day from kindergarten in a whirl of excitement, exclaiming: "Mother, mother, I'm going to be promoted! Mother, will I be promoted on my arm or my leg?"—New York Times.

German Way of Serving Asparagus.

When living in Germany we noticed that the asparagus served there was unusually tender and of a much more delicate flavor than that which we got in America. We learned that the Germans do not consider asparagus fit to eat unless the outside skin is scraped from each stalk before cooking. This sounds like slow work, but if a sharp knife is used it can be done quite rapidly and is well worth the trouble.—Good Housekeeping.

Told You So.

"It's the unexpected that always happens."
"Oh, I don't know. Somebody always claims to have predicted it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Robbins—I imagine so. He said he wished I had sent for him sooner.—Puck.

Charles Hawtrey's Twang.

"Once on a time"—It is Charles Hawtrey who tells this tale—"I tried to sink my identity in the part of a man who was my dearest friend. I had copied him since he was a baby. I wanted to sink my own identity and copy him. I was not allowed to. This is how it happened:

"De Wolf Hopper had put on in London a burlesque of a play in which Mrs. Langtry and myself were acting. Some one burlesqued me, of course. He had merely a few lines to say, but he did it very well. It so happened that on the night it was produced I was not acting. So I strolled round to Hopper's theater and suggested to him that I should take the part myself that night. The idea of parodying oneself seemed to me rather original. He consented, and on I went just in dress clothes, as the character called for. It was a great success, all except the identification. I lost that, but not enough. The London Times came out the next morning with the following: "The resemblance to Mr. Hawtrey was certainly remarkable and would have been more so had it not been for the pronounced American accent." "That was the first and last time I have ever been accused of a twang."—New York Tribune.

Sixteenth Century Meals.

Judging from a passage in Harrison's "Description of Britain," breakfast eating in the sixteenth century was held to denote effeminacy. "Heretofore," he writes, "there hath been more time spent in eating and drinking than commonly is in these days; for whereas of old we had breakfasts in the forenoon, beverages or nuntions, after dinner, and thereto reare suppers when it was time to go to rest, now these od repasts, thanked be God, are verie well left, and ech one (except here and there some young hungry stomach that cannot fast till dinner time) contenteth himself with dinner and supper onlie. The nobilitie, gentrie and students ordinarie go to dinner at 11 before noon and at supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 6 at night, especially in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the tearme, in our universities, the scholars dine at 10."

Saved by His Wit.

The French author Martainville was a royalist and did not hesitate to attack the French revolution and its authorities. Presently, of course, he was summoned to appear before the revolutionary tribunal, with the terrible Fouquier at its head. The revolutionary tribunals at that time did not hesitate to send everybody to the guillotine who had ventured to attack them. Martainville expected to go with the rest of the victims. "What is your name?" asked the revolutionary judge. "Martainville," said the young author. "Martainville!" exclaimed the judge. "You are deceiving us and trying to hide your rank. You are an aristocrat, and your name is De Martainville." "Citizen president," exclaimed the young man, "I am here to be shortened, not to be lengthened! Leave me my name!" A true Frenchman loves a witticism above all things, and the tribunal was so much pleased by Martainville's grim response that it spared his life.

The Krakatoa Eruption.

Perhaps the most remarkable volcanic eruption known was that which took place in August, 1883, at the island of Krakatoa, in the strait of Sunda. Streams of volcanic dust were thrown seven miles high, and more than a cubic mile of material was expelled from the volcanic crater. The air waves started by the eruption traveled around the earth seven times. The noise was heard at Macassa, 969 miles away; at Borneo, 1,116 miles distant; in Western Australia, 1,700 miles away, and even at Rodrigues, distant more than 2,900 miles. The dust and powdered pumice thrown out of the crater made the entire circuit of the earth before settling down and were the cause of the strange sunsets that were observed for many months.—New York American.

A Crusher.

A consequential little man entered the commercial room of a big hotel not long back and gave a vigorous pull at the bell. As no one answered he rang again more loudly than before. A maid-servant then came in, and the following colloquy took place: Servant—Who rang that bell? Little Man (making most of his height)—I did. Servant (scornfully)—And who lifted you up to it?—London Telegraph.

Their Troubles.

"You've got no grounds to envy me," said the millionaire to the beggar. "I've got just as many troubles as you have."

"No doubt yer right, boss," said the beggar humbly, "but the difficulty with me is I ain't got nothin' else."

Didn't Pass It.

A missionary in Trinidad once asked a negro sitting in idleness by the roadside how he managed to pass the time. "I sit in de sun, massa, and let de time pass me," was the quaint and philosophical reply.

Tommy's Choice.

Fond Mother—Tommy, darling, this is your birthday. What would you like to do? Tommy, Darling (after a moment's reflection)—I think I should enjoy seeing the baby spanked!—Paris Figaro.

The highest manhood resides in disposition, not in mere intellect.—Beecher.

A Thrilling Rescue.

How Bert R. Lean, of Cheny, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." Women Who Are Envied.

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry, drug stores.

THREE TAFT GIRLS.

Daughter of President and Two Cousins Will Be White House Belles.

During the next four years three young women of the Taft family will take prominent parts in the social life of Washington and especially in all the functions at the White House.
They are cousins—Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the president; Miss Louise Taft, daughter of Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, and Miss Louise Taft, daughter of Henry W. Taft of New York.

Miss Helen Taft will be the most important figure in the trio because of the position her father occupies, and she will be known as the White House

HELEN TAFT AND HER COUSINS.

belle. During the school year Washington will see very little of her, for she will continue her studies at Bryn Mawr, near Philadelphia.

She is a modest girl with attractive features and an unusual fund of sound common sense.

Her cousin Louise, daughter of Charles P. Taft, is a pretty young woman. She is rather slender, possesses an olive complexion, has masses of black hair, and her eyes are dark. This young woman has a most graceful carriage and a sprightly temperament.
She is already known to Washington, having spent considerable time in the capital.

Miss Louise Taft, daughter of Henry W. Taft, has only recently returned from Europe, where she spent a year traveling. Her taste in matters of dress is said to be excellent.

All three of the Taft cousins were at the inaugural ball.

"Dearie" or "Girlie." Which Are You?
How long can this last? Must we be "dearied" and "girlied" forever?
A while ago it was the dearie girl that flourished. You were called dearie when you went to buy a suit, you were called dearie when you tried on a hat, and you were told just what was and what was "not becoming to you, dearie," until you felt thoroughly surfeited with affection.

And then just as it ceased to be the fashion to be called dearie you found it was quite the thing to be called girlie. So now you are girlie.

"See here, girlie; I want to see the manager," she says to you in a confidential tone. "Could you tell me where to go?"

Or if you are doing the buying instead of the selling it is, "Say, girlie, now that is the collar for you," or "You know, girlie, you ought to have a bag like that; it's the thing." Yes, you are called girlie if you are little and winsome and sixteen; you are called girlie if you are thin and gaunt and intellectual or if you are fair, fat and forty. Let not "forty," indeed, think that she escapes being girlied, for she doesn't. Before the summer is over she will have been girlied into buying her new suit and into taking a hat that she doesn't want. She will be girlied when she gets a shampoo, and she will be told that she ought to rub a little cold cream into her nails at night, girlie, by the young person who attends to her manueuring, for youth, age and station are all alike to her.
The girlie girl is no respecter of persons. Once in her presence you are girlied till you escape.

We thought we had achieved something when we found ourselves rid of the dearie girl, but it begins to look as if we didn't know when we were well off, for now she puts her arm around you and calls you girlie. And what are you going to do? Slapping her really isn't to be thought of, for it wouldn't be polite—not at all.

Old Books as Jewel Cases.

A new idea was shown in a collection of fine old books scattered in a heterogeneous heap on a glass case in a famous jewelry house of New York, which attracted the attention of every book lover who saw them. They were charming books—genuinely old, with hand tooled and gilded and with fine engravings and woodcuts on the inside. They were real treasures for the bibliophile. That was until a dozen or more pages had been turned, when the secret was revealed.

The heart of every book had been cut out and sides of strong paper filled in to make a receptacle of greater or less capacity, according to the size of the book, for a jewel case. With jewels in one of these it can go into a bookcase, where it is impossible for it to be recognized, for it is genuinely a book. Then, with the case door locked, as would naturally be done to protect volumes of more or less value, the chief among burglars is likely to be deceived.

The book jewel cases vary in size from tiny volumes of prayer or religious exercises to books as large as the ordinary novel. They are all of a more or less serious nature or historical and the greater number in French. One of these is the "Advice of a Mother to Her Son and Daughter." Another is dedicated to a daughter of France, 1700 and something.
There is a historical volume with fine engravings of Louis XV. and Queen Marie of France, and a large woodcut of a Biblical scene in the frontispiece in another book. The frontispiece, the title page and a few other leaves are left intact in every volume.

A small religious book jewel case large enough to hold a pair of solitaire diamond earrings, a few rings and a pendant will cost $6, and the prices range up, according to size of the volume or perhaps with reference to the original value of the book. A set of handsome books, French, sell for $18 a volume. These would hold a fortune in jewels. The idea is interesting and appeals to women of taste, if they are not too much horrified at the destruction of the books.

What Woman Forgets.

Woman sometimes forgets—
That there are two sides to every question.

That the "school for scandal" is not a recognized educational institution which fits her for the "school of life."

That there are two essentials to her success—tact and charm of manner.

That nerves are not conducive to a Vere de Vere manner.

That children are just as susceptible to "mothering" as dogs.

That the reason they are less contented than men is that women magnify their troubles and men pass over the small things. They are content to "let the little world pass by."

That the hope of every woman lies in one of two directions—to make or take a name for herself.

That her personality, her little airs and graces, her faults and follies are all instrumental in shaping the manners of men and that she has only herself to blame or praise for their attitude toward her.

That it is good for her to close her eyes to all externals at least once every day and soar quite away into oblivion, then to come back and be happy for the rest of the hours.

Traveling Milk Bottles.

When traveling with an infant the question of warm milk is a serious one, as cold milk often causes colic. Place a flannel cloth in the bottom and around the sides of a satchel or covered basket. On this lay a hot water bag full of hot water. Fill the required number of nursing bottles with milk or prepared food. Cork the bottles and put a fresh nipple on each one over the cork. These corks must not be forgotten at feeding time. Lay the bottles on the bag and cover with another bag filled with hot water. Place a thick flannel over this, and the milk will keep warm all day. If too hot, a bottle may be cooled at the water cooler in the train or taken out of the satchel an hour before using. If this method is followed there will be no sour nipples and no disagreeable washing, as each bottle may be laid aside after being used.

Bathroom Fittings.

Among the improvements in bathroom fittings is a shaving brush holder so devised that the bristles may hang downward when the brush is in position. In this way the water drains away instead of remaining at the root of the bristles. It is in nickel, so is easily kept clean, and the price is 30 cents.

Another dainty furnishing for the bathroom is a pear shaped handle of white celluloid fitted with a snap hook for attaching to the chain. The usual handle is wooden. It is claimed that the celluloid is more sanitary. The price of it is 35 cents.

Wicker Sewing Table.

One of the prettiest sewing tables seen among the novelties this season is of green and white wicker, carried out exactly like a suit case.

Opened it reveals one-third of the basket fitted with cretonne, forming bags into which sewing may be dropped, and above are shelves, some of which have a row of tall pins or spikes for holding spools of cotton. It is most compact and so light that it can be easily carried if necessary. The price is $6.50.

School Lunches.

A young woman, a public schoolteacher in a New York suburb, has formed a lunch club for the mothers of her pupils to assist them in putting up suitable school lunches for their children. She noticed that the majority of her pupils brought a few cents to school each day and with the money bought their lunch at a shop near by. As a rule, they bought the very things they should not have.

Placing Him.

"Papa," inquired little May after Sunday school, "was George Washington an Israelite?"
Before her father could answer this somewhat unexpected question May's six-year-old brother broke in:

"Why, May, I'm 'shamed of your ignorance! George Washington is in the New Testament, not the Old."

Antiseptic Toothbrush.

eye to keeping us germproof; therefore the antiseptic toothbrush.

Cough Caution

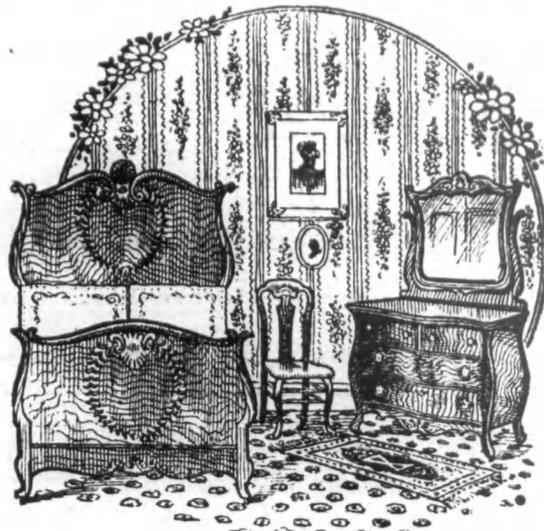

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good!
Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must be law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

An Eloquent Address.

The Watkins Review of June 2 had the following to say concerning the address given by Rev. C. L. Shergur on Memorial day in that village:

"After the Post ritual, decoration of the monument to all the soldier dead, prayer by Rev. C. W. Brooks, music by the band, and recitations by Hazel Welshans, Mary Parker, and Mildred Green, Commander C. W. Hurd introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. C. L. Shergur, of Millport, who gave one of the most eloquent and patriotic addresses ever given here on a similar occasion. Mr. Shergur was himself one of the Boys in Blue who went to the front in the country's hour of peril and he spoke with an authority based upon actual knowledge and personal experience. He spoke fluently for about an hour, devoting much of his time to reminiscences of the mighty conflict which for a time sundered the nation and set father against son and brother against brother. His descriptions of the battle of Gettysburg and other notable engagements of the war were fine word pictures intensely thrilling and were such as could have been given only by an eye-witness of the terrible scenes of carnage and death. Mr. Shergur spoke with passionate earnestness of the sacrifices made by the defenders of the flag, and he paid a warm tribute to Southern valor as well. He had been warned, he said, not to be too lavish in his praise of the soldiers, but declared that if the Angel Gabriel touched his tongue with fire he could not do justice to the men who gave so much for home and country. The war was not fought in vain, he said. There is good feeling between the Blue and the Gray. The North and South are more firmly united than ever before, cemented by the blood of more than a million men. The war was inevitable, he declared, as its seeds were sown in the Old World long ago. The struggle was terrific because it was fought by men of heroic mould—the Puritan of New England against the Cavalier of the South, men whose fathers fought side by side under Washington. The Cavalier was forced to surrender and his surrender was complete."

HANGED BY THE NECK

Our Summer Cravats impart distinction to your manly countenance. Who would not look distinguished when he can do it for half a dollar? If you want to see your favorite hue at its best, here you are.

Speaking of the neck, how about the neck-band of the shirt you're wearing? A little close, isn't it? While about it get shirts and cravats together to assure harmony. Further the artistic theme with appropriate half hose.

Good feeling goes with square dealing.

A Just Rebuke.

"I am," he said, "deformed. Pads hide it. Still, deformed I am, and I want to know why writers always make deformed persons villains? Take Quasimodo in Victor Hugo's 'Notre Dame.' Why, Quasimodo was little better than a wild gorilla, swinging from the great bell and hurling the priest down from the high tower. Take the housemaid's clubfoot father in Ibsen's 'Ghosts.' There was a nasty old man for you—a nasty, perverse, evil minded old rooster, eh? Take Dick Crookback in the immortal William's play. Take Nosey the Dwarf in Hauff's classic fairy tale. Take the villains in all fairy tales, for that matter. They are a one eyed, lame, hunch-backed, clubfooted lot. "It makes us deformed folks red hot, this literary imputation of villainy. It causes people to think we really are villains. Where's the child, after a course of fairy tales, that can be persuaded a hunchback's soul doesn't match his body?" — Cincinnati Enquirer.
