Mrs. Frank Clark has returned from Saratoga and reports the condition of her daughter Alpha to be much improved.
Misses Kate O'Connor and Florence VanDyne have gone to Auburn for the winter.
Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Havens, a son, Wednesday, Oct. 19.
A. L. Chapman and wife, Norman Misner and wife, Elmer Helm, Miss May Weeks and Charles Wyant were among the Auburnians who spent Sunday in the country.
John Wyant and wife have the sympathy of their many friends and neighbors in the death of their infant daughter, Irene Elizabeth, which occurred Saturday, Oct. 22, aged 4 days.
Master Earl Pickens was lucky enough to shoot a pheasant last week.
Miss Bessie Hanlon was a guest of Miss Clara Cook of Ledyard from Saturday until Monday.
Stanley Balburn is spending some time in Detroit, Mich.
East Scipio Grange will hold a Hallows' evening party in their hall next Monday evening.
About dusk last Friday night Mrs. Etta Pope started for the field. "Well, Jerry," said she to the black and white kitten which trotted along by her side, "Are you going with me to get the cows?" They had not gone far when she noticed that "Jerry" acted very strangely and quickly decided not to accompany him any farther down the lane. Mrs. Pope lost no time in securing a long pole and with one well aimed whack sent Mr. Skunk to the happy hunting grounds.
Miss Blanche Strait of North Lansing is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Sara Mallison.
Merrifield.
Oct. 24—The men of the Baptist church and society will have a bee on Wednesday to shingle the parsonage.
Master Clinton Gould has returned to his home in Newark after spending a week with relatives here.

Mrs. Martha Taylor of East Venice, formerly a resident of Genoa, who is 90 years of age, is spending several weeks with her granddaughter, Mrs. R. J. Coulson, near Venice Center. She is very active for one of her years and is remarkably strong mentally also.
Many thanks and much appreciation are due the Fell Bros., Elmer and Henry, for their munificent gifts to the church in this place. Elmer pays the expense of decorating it on the inside, which has already been done, and Henry is to furnish a new bell, which has been ordered. They do this in memory of their father, the late John E. Fell, who was for many years a trustee, and was always interested in all the affairs of the church society.
On the timber lot in this town sold by J. Fitch Walker of Moravia to the Cady Mfg. Co. of Auburn, is said to be the largest white oak tree in Central New York. It measures 7 feet in diameter.
Considerable enthusiasm is exhibited at the prospect of soon having a new hall to replace the one recently burned. A meeting was called on Tuesday evening of last week to see what could be done in that direction. A committee of five was chosen to solicit subscriptions to the end of forming a stock company. Another meeting was called for Saturday evening, and the committee reported $2,350 subscribed which shows that they have not only hustled, but the people have responded heartily and liberally. They then proceeded to organize with the result that the following officers were elected, viz: Warren Beardsley, president; N. L. Stevens, vice president; Frank Mosher, secretary; and E. Howland, treasurer. After a little more business was transacted, such as appointing estimating committees, etc., they adjourned for one week. The size of the building is to be 40x60 ft.

Mrs. Geo. Rennyson and Mrs. Maggie Wager entertained thirty ladies last Saturday afternoon. A very pleasant afternoon was spent and an elaborate repast was served.
George Curtis has a pear tree on his farm that was set out over 80 years ago by Deacon Caleb Lyon, grandfather of Mrs. E. B. Hunt. This year it furnished about three bushels of pears, and the fifth generation is now eating of the fruit. We know they are delicious, as your scribe and family had the pleasure of eating some of them.
Mrs. Chas. Barger, with her sisters, Mrs. Helen Osmun, Mrs. Benton Brown, Mrs. Andrew Brink, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Beardsley, spent last Thursday with their cousin, Mrs. Alfred Boal, of Ithaca. The trip was enjoyed by all. Andrew Brink was a guest also.
Deafness Cannot Be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mrs. Geo. Sherman is entertaining her brother from Chicago, who was called here by the death of their brother, Chas. Robinson.
Cornell Fruit Show.
Nov. 3, 4, and 5 are the dates that have been decided upon for the fourth annual exhibit of the department of Pomology, Cornell Agricultural College. Elaborate plans are being laid to make this year's exhibit the best that has been held and from present prospects it will afford an excellent opportunity for the study of the progress of fruit growing in the United States, particularly in its commercial phases. Special stress will be laid on the packing of fruit for transportation and there will be exhibits of the different methods of packing.
Professor C. S. Wilson, head of the Department of Pomology in the College of Agriculture, is now touring the West making arrangements to have exhibits sent to Ithaca for the show.
Last year ten states donated specimens of their production and even more are expected to send exhibits this fall, making the coming show one of the finest of its kind in the country. It is estimated that about five thousand visitors were entertained at the Fruit Show last year.
Baptist Missions Society.
The Baptist Home Missions Society of Western New York will convene at the First Baptist church of Auburn, on Thursday, November 3, afternoon and evening, and Friday, Nov. 4, morning and afternoon. Important questions of policy are to be discussed by women prominent in the denomination. Thursday afternoon's leading feature will be an address by Mrs. K. Westfall, corresponding secretary of the National Society. In the evening two missionaries will describe their work, Miss Anna Barkley representing Cuba and Miss Abigail Johnson the Hopi Indians in Arizona. Friday morning Mrs. L. K. Barnes of Brooklyn, will speak on "Oriental Problems on the Pacific Coast." There will be other interesting features. A large number of delegates from Cayuga county are expected. If convenient, they should send their names and time of arrival in Auburn to Miss Lelia Carpenter, Auburn, R. D. 7.
Cannot Be Kept Secret.
Many people seem to think that the issuing of a marriage license can be legally kept secret until after the marriage service is performed and the couple are safely off on their wedding trip. This is a mistaken idea. The moment a marriage license is issued it is "public property" and is subject to publication. No town or city clerk or other marriage official has a right to withhold it from the press. The law intended that all marriage licenses should be published as soon as they are issued.—Brockport Republic.

THE 'ORDERLY' SALOON.

Let us endeavor once more, to disillusion our friends the enemy on an important point.

All through the deliverances of liquor advocates, whether in their national conventions at Atlantic City, or in the empty manifestoes of the "Model License League," or the speeches of Mayor Rose, or the editorials of liquor papers, there runs one strain.—The present uprising of public sentiment is not against the liquor traffic itself, but against the saloon which is conducted in that. If the heedless liquor seller," say they all, "can only be aroused to the necessity of obeying the law the public wrath will be abated and the sun will shine out for John Barleycorn once more."

Once and for all, know all men that the Prohibitionists look upon the so-called "orderly, well-conducted" saloon as the most dangerous and damaging of all, and the one most worthy of death. The agitation for the everlasting wind-up of the whole liquor business will not be stilled by any nien of monkhood the ailing institution may put on, but will instead be accentuated and made more and more determined by that very thing.

The so-called "low" saloon—the liquor men who now so deplore it never discovered or admitted its existence till they felt the need of a scapegoat, is as the lower end of a toboggan slide reaching from the lowest depths to lower still. It offers its easy descent far below the level of average life, and few feet will be started downward by it. But the "model" saloon—the creature of the fond dreamer's imagination—is like the top of the toboggan—there the "good" saloon opens up its treacherous chute. Destroy the top of the slide, and the lower part will lack for passengers. Destroy the "high class" saloon, and the "low doggerly" will transport few from the respectable walks of life—it cannot reach high enough to open before the feet of such as are therein.

The kind of saloon which does the most harm by furnishing downward transportation from the highest levels—the kind of saloon that furnishes the "low" kind with most of its live freight—the kind of saloon without whose pretensions the whole liquor traffic would quickly be stamped out of existence by an outraged public now deceived and temporarily pacified largely through its pretensions—that is the kind of saloon against which the hospitality of the Prohibitionist is most invincible. When the liquor Alphonso's and Gaston's adhere and coax each other to take precedence in the work of "cleaning up" the liquor business (for with all their talk none seem willing to be the first in the undertaking) they are merely planning more trouble for themselves. Much as the Prohibitionists are determined that the "bad" saloon must go, they are still more set against the bad saloon which assumes to be good.—The People.

"Country Without Paupers."

The liquor men in the United States have circulated in large quantities a pamphlet assuming to describe conditions in Belgium, declaring it to be a pauperless paradise, and that, with the highest rate of beer-drinking in the world, it has the thriftiest people.

An overwhelming reply to all this is made by the Scientific Temperance Federation of Belgium. "Instead of Belgium's being a country without paupers, 4,334,000 francs ($800,000) was paid out for the support of paupers in 1905, in the public institutions. Besides, there are many private refuges. The alleged disappearance of tramps is due to the system known as "Tramp Colonies" which the government has established and where the tramps are concentrated and work for their living."

The yearly drink bill of Belgium is more than $20,000,000. And here is a remarkable fact which completely knocks out the theory of the liquor men that if beer is freely used the taste for stronger intoxicants is unknown: Although Belgium holds first place in the per capita consumption of beer, she ranks second in the per capita consumption of distilled liquors.

The percentage of alcoholics among condemned criminals in Belgium in 1905 was 45. The Bishop of Bruges warns his clergy that among all social work the struggle against alcoholism should be first. According to LeBien Socially, the alcoholic scourge in Belgium takes 20,000 lives each year.

To Make Steel Mills Dry.

The United States Steel Corporation has decided to tackle the booze question. Notices have been posted at all plants of the corporation that workmen will not be permitted to leave the mills from the time they enter until their hours of work are finished, except workmen living near and who have been in the habit of going home for their meals. Aside from bad work by those who have been in the habit of leaving work several times a day to drink the loss of time has been great.

Most Uneconomic.

The American tendency to let men ruin themselves with drink if they want to, is most uneconomic.

SEAEVER'S LAXATIVE TONIC TABLETS.

The Correct Laxative for Women
More physical beauty, enticing as it is, will not permanently avail in the absence of a clean, fresh, healthy skin and complexion. A woman may have perfect features, a youthful form and a graceful figure, but without the health and bloom of a clear skin, perfect beauty is impossible.

When the skin is muddy or cloudy or marred by moth spots and pimples, nine times in ten it is due to nature's inability to perform the function essential to perfect health.

Many a Genoa lady could truthfully tell of the remarkable properties of Seaver's Laxative Tonic Tablets as a skin beautifier, and the reason is easy to find. They are purely vegetable extracts known to have a selective action for the skin.

They improve the complexion, clear up the skin, enrich the blood, stimulate the liver, tone up the intestines and cure chronic constipation by encouraging the bowels and assisting nature to do its own perfect work. J. S. Banker recommends them with every confidence and a 25-cent package of Seaver's Laxative Tonic Tablets must do as is claimed of them or you can have your money back.

Announcement.

To old customers as well as new, I wish to say that I am prepared to do all kinds of wood work in connection with my blacksmithing. All work quickly and neatly done. Prices reasonable.

WM. HUSON, Genoa.

His Awed Listeners.

An English scientist was in the habit of taking hunting trips in the north of Scotland. Here, when night came upon them and he and his guides were sitting around their camp, he would become very communicative on scientific marvels, even narrating to his seemingly awed listeners things that he never confided to his colleagues at home.

One night the distinguished Englishman paused in his talk and, turning to one of his guides, asked curiously: "Sandy, what is it that you and your companions keep taking out of your pockets and eating while I'm telling you these things?" "Salt," replied Sandy calmly, "a grain at a time."—Lippincott's.

Forced to Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup, all Throat and Lung Troubles. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at J.S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater, King Ferry.

SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATION.

Upland, Kan., Possesses Three Mutual Concerns.

FARMERS RUN EVERYTHING.

Conduct Business of Insurance Company, Store and Telephone Service Profitably and at Small Cost—Officers Receive $2 a Day For Their Labor.

A very interesting experiment in co-operation is under way in Upland, a town in Dickinson county, Kan. The town itself is not large, but is the headquarters of three successful mutual companies—a telephone company, an insurance organization and a mercantile corporation.

The town is on top of the divide between the Republican and Smoky Hill rivers and four miles from the town of Alda, through which runs a branch of the Union Pacific railroad. A big store building, a telephone exchange which also houses the insurance company, a blacksmith shop, a town hall and four or five residences constitute the greater part of the town.

The community idea took root some time ago. A meeting of farmers was called to take up the question of mutual insurance. A company was formed, and each farmer was constituted an agent without pay to solicit new members. It was decreed that any time a fire occurred an assessment should be levied to make good the loss. Six years later it had 241 members, with $168,000 insurance in force. Today it has 3,500 members, with insurance representing $4,000,000.

When the company started in business it was decided that $2 a day was enough to pay any officer, and that amount has never been raised. This is paid only when the officer works. The average yearly salary list is about $800, due to the simple methods by which records are kept and the fact that everybody pays his assessment promptly under pain of being dropped at once.

Later farmers decided to build a creamery. Then the advent of the farm separator caused it to be closed up, as there was more money in selling the cream to the central butter-making stations. One day when a number of farmers were waiting for their tickets from the creamery it was suggested that it would be just as easy to bring farm produce along with the milk every morning. Why not have a store? Within a few days a co-operative organization with a capital of $25,000 was formed. Only a part of this was used at the beginning, but the store has been so profitable that the stock is quoted at $150 and the cash value of its resources is around $35,000.

Once a year the stockholders meet in the town hall, hear the reports, declare a good big dividend and elect officers. No one is permitted to hold more than $100 worth of stock, and this entitles him to one vote. By the articles each stockholder binds himself to sell all of his grain and produce to the Golden Rule company, which is its incorporated name.

The business is largely done by credit. Farm produce brought in is credited to the man who furnishes it, and he is debited with whatever he buys of groceries and dry goods. Cash settlements are made at the end of each month.

The company owns a grain elevator, but this is at Alda, on the line of the nearest railroad. A few years ago after a full discussion it was agreed that as there was no hope of the railroad coming to Upland the company ought to buy Alda. It did, taking in the elevator, stockyards—everything except the town's name.

The telephone company serves over 4,000 persons, most of them farmers. It is one of the largest concerns in the state. It is purely mutual, with no capital stock, and this serves to make certain the retention of the control in the hands of the farmers. Fifteen or twenty trunk lines radiate from the store building in Upland.

A NEW SORT OF CITY CHURCH

Combination of Business and Religion by Kansas City Methodists.

When a church is overtaken by the growth of a city's business district it usually sells its site and moves out into some residence district. There is an alternative, however, and this is the business improvement of the downtown site. A congregation of Methodists in Kansas City has determined to take this alternative. It has decided to build a combination office building and church. The investment of $350,000, it is calculated, will bring in sufficient returns to furnish the church with an ample endowment. The rental income will, in short, take care of the interest on the investment and also go far toward maintaining the church. It will be easily practicable to provide in the building a fine auditorium and the other rooms needed by a church.

Probably this thrifty combination of religion and business will shock some conservative minds, which cannot conceive of a church without a steeple and which would hold elevators to be destructive to true religious feeling. But there is really no reason why men may not worship God as sincerely and with as much benefit to themselves in an office building as in a cathedral. It is the spirit rather than the surroundings that makes worship. It is true that a spirit of reverence is induced by the "dim religious light" and the churchly air of most sacred edifices. But these outward symbols may be as readily provided in an auditorium built in the center of an office building as in the ordinary structure.

Most church buildings are used very little on other days than Sunday. There is a large investment with comparatively little use except for one day in seven. The Kansas City Methodists plan to make their property useful every day in the week, and its week day use will permit them to use it also on the seventh day. They will be enabled, moreover, to extend their religious and charitable activities very materially. The plan—which, of course, is practicable only for large churches owning valuable business property—is one that will attract general attention, and its workings will be watched with interest.—Minneapolis Journal.

UNITY OF ALL CHURCHES.

Episcopalians Form Society Which Proposes to Bring Them Together.

The Christian Unity foundation, which was recently incorporated at Albany, N. Y., is a society patterned after the Sage foundation, purposing to place at the service of Christianity the same methods employed by the Sage and similar research foundations. Its aim is to bring about organic union of the Christians of all the world—Protestant, Eastern Catholic, Roman Catholic, everybody everywhere.

Twenty-four American Episcopalians, fourteen of them residents of New York city, are responsible for the launching of this big religious trust which shall sink all names and creeds into one great religious body. Twelve of the twenty-four are clergymen and twelve are laymen.

The first meeting was held in St. Thomas church, in New York, on Feb. 20. One layman has assumed the initial expense up to $10,000.

The task before this foundation is tremendous. There are 186 different Protestant bodies in America alone, with innumerable divisions in Europe and more independent bodies in England and Scotland. The new organization hopes to unite these by research, the dissemination of information concerning the faith and works of religious bodies, methods of co-operation, evils of division and points of agreement and by frequent conferences among the leaders.

Its leaders declare that it will take years for the foundation to mature, but that it is bound to become an exceedingly important factor in uniting all religious bodies.

How to Think.

"As a man thinks, so is he," is the teaching of a great philosopher of the seventeenth century. And Faber sings of "the thoughts of God" with much beauty. It is a fine thing to know how to think, to meditate, to give free course to the mind, not in poor day dreams and the construction of impossible air castles, but in earnest consideration of realities.

A Morning Prayer.

O Spirit of Life, who changest duty into privilege, service into character and love into immortality, grant me fullness of life for today that I may spend it as the joint possession of God, my brother and my own heart for the common good. Through all its passing moments maintain in me a filial faith in the Father, a penitent hope in the Saviour and an unwavering love for all humankind. Thus shalt thou grant unto me strength for my tasks, patience for my trials and wisdom for my privileges, and at eventide there shall be peace between thee and me in which I shall behold ladders reaching unto heaven. Amen.—Rev. James B. Clayton.

THREE TRUTHS

Someone gave to the world two solid truths when they said: "The way to know a country was to WALK through it." "The way to know a book was to READ through it." We desire to set forth the third great truth by saying that the way to know a store was to BUY through it.

That's the way you find out just what's in the store, just how the goods are sold, just what kind of a firm it is.

There is no other way to accomplish the same result. You have got to buy through the store to know it. Hundreds of your neighbors have bought their way through our store with deep satisfaction, and after you have once made the journey you will want to repeat it often.

THE REASON so many people are our friends and patrons is, they BUY at this store and they get satisfaction with every dollar they spend here. Pretty good "Busy Store" reasons, ha?

The Tuberculosis Exhibit.

The tuberculosis exhibit sent out by the State Department of Health, under the direction of Dr. A. J. Bellner, was given in Academy hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The exhibit is the same as was made at the State fair. In the evening, the hall was about half filled with people. The importance of the subject and the valuable information given should have called out a much larger audience. The general public ought to show more interest in matters pertaining to public health.

Dr. J. W. Skinner of Genoa introduced Dr. Beller with a few remarks on the subject of tuberculosis. Dr. Beller was not able to use his lantern slides here, but gave a very scholarly and instructive address lasting about an hour and a half. Arranged about the hall were groups of charts under different headings, "Extent of Tuberculosis," "Nature of the Disease," "How it Spreads," "How to Stop its Spread," "No Uncared for Tuberculosis in 1915." Another chart read, "The county tuberculosis hospital is the most effective means to stamp out tuberculosis." A petition to the board of supervisors for the establishment of a tuberculosis hospital-sanatorium, without any connection with the almshouse, in Cayuga county, was circulated through the audience and signed by most of the adults. Eight counties in the state have provided these hospitals. Cayuga county has had 869 deaths from tuberculosis in the past five years and the town of Genoa 10 deaths. There are in the state to-day 50,000 cases. Tuberculosis is responsible for more deaths than any other single disease.

Sunlight and fresh air are the greatest foes of the tuberculosis germ. People afflicted with the disease should, sleep alone, have their own dishes to eat from, be careful in personal habits, never spit on the floor or in public places, have all the sunshine obtainable, outdoor air day and night, good food and rest.

Everybody should beware of the public drinking cup wherever it is found. The house fly is another germ carrier. One chart which the speaker called attention to was the one stating that the disease is rarely inherited, it is communicable, it is preventable, it is curable.

S. Platt Jones, Nov. 9.

The following are a few of the many press notices concerning S. Platt Jones, the character study man, who gives the opening number of the Genoa Entertainment Course on Wednesday evening, Nov. 9:

"S. Platt Jones of Syracuse, N. Y., gave an entertainment at Farley Hall that was genuinely excellent. Jones is the funniest fellow you ever heard tell of, and he can come back to Farley any old time, and be assured of a hearty welcome."—The Farley News, Farley, Iowa.

"The S. Platt Jones entertainment at the Opera House was very satisfactory to the large audience assembled. Mr. Jones entertained the audience to the fullest, every minute, and he is considered one of the best that ever appeared in town."—The Bangor Advance, Bangor, Mich.

"S. Platt Jones, the entertainer, certainly is what he is advertised to be. Not only did he entertain, but he pleased the audience. Mr. Jones, in his character sketches, is superior to any one that has appeared in Poynette."—Poynette Press, Poynette, Wis.

Rachel Palmer Banks.

Mrs. H. B. Hunt of Five Corners, received the sad news last week Friday of the death of her sister, Mrs. Rachel Palmer Banks, who died at her home in Riceville, Iowa, on Oct. 12, being 88 years old. At the funeral service, the minister spoke from Rev. xiv. 13. Mrs. Banks moved from Five Corners in 1857 and the two sisters have never met since. Mrs. Hunt is the only surviving one of her father's family.

The following obituary is copied from the Riceville, (Iowa) Recorder of Oct. 16, 1910:

Rachel Mead Palmer was born March 6, 1822, near Five Corners, Cayuga County, N. Y.

She was united in marriage to Zachaeus Banks March 23, 1857, and immediately came to their new home in Jamestown township, where she has lived until she was removed to her Heavenly home Oct. 12, 1910, aged 88 years, 7 months and 6 days.

Early in life she gave her heart to the Lord. She and her husband were charter members of the Congregational church of Riceville, and has remained a faithful and devoted member until she was removed to the church triumphant. She was a kind neighbor and a loving wife and mother, training her children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Her husband preceded her to the better land April 9, 1908.

She leaves to mourn her loss her three children, Spencer Clark, and Alpheus Palmer of this place, and Edith Winsor, of Princeton, Minn., fourteen grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Esther Hunt of Five Corners, N. Y.

Married.

Thomas White, aged 86 years, for many years a resident of Homer, died Oct. 17, at the home of a daughter in Rochester. The remains were brought to Homer for burial and were accompanied by his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hyde and son Donald of Rochester, and by another daughter, Mrs. Jennie Young and her daughter from Moravia. He is also survived by one son, Joseph White of Chicago. Mrs. White died in 1906 and a daughter, Mrs. Caroline Miller, in 1908.

Over 4,000 barrels of apples were placed in the building of the Albion Cold Storage Company one day last week, and at one time 29 loaded wagons were counted in the street near the company's property waiting their turn to unload.

Orleans county, in which Albion is located, is an important section of the great Western New York fruit belt. It is reported that a syndicate of Wall street financiers is planning to buy up most of the big apple farms of the county as an investment, and has already taken options on several of them. Orchard land in the county is at the present time valued at $400 an acre, where as adjoining property ranges from $75 to $100 an acre.

At a meeting recently held by physicians in Philadelphia to discuss infantile paralysis, Dr. Allen J. Smith, dean of the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, declared that in the blood of sufferers from the disease has been found a protozoa, or a low form of animal life, which he thinks may prove to be the germ which causes the disease. It resembles the germ which causes sleeping sickness and in his opinion is carried from one victim to another by insects. Other well-known physicians corroborated Dr. Smith in his opinion.

Five Entertainments $1.00.

The Entertainment Course to be given in Genoa the coming winter comprises a series of five first-class entertainments. Beginning next month, one entertainment comes in every succeeding month—the last one in March. The low price of the course tickets—$1.00—brings the possibility of hearing the best in music, impersonations, lectures, and wonder-workers with chalk and clay, for a small sum, to the people of this village and surrounding country. How can you secure as much real enjoyment and benefit for as small an outlay, as you can by purchasing tickets for this course? The cost is trifling compared to the pleasure to be derived, and they are not only enjoyable and uplifting, but they are educational, as well. Young people can spend their evenings in no more beneficial way than by attending these entertainments. It has sometimes been said that Genoa lacks in not providing suitable amusements for our young people, but here is an opportunity for them to have the best kind of amusement at a very small price. The course is as follows: S. Platt Jones, character-study man, Nov. 9; Ruby Gray Kelley Concert Co. Dec. 7; The Spaffords, artists in crayon, clay, comedy and harmony, Jan. 12; J. Reed Powell, illustrated travel talk, Feb. 2; Toronto Male Quartette, March 3. It is hoped that the people generally will respond to the opportunity now presented, and give the promoters of the enterprise their hearty support. Tickets may be obtained at most of the business places in town.

A Good Position.

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and Wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O. or Philadelphia, Pa.

The Scrap Book

The Privilege of His Rank.

In the early days of the Philippine insurrection Captain M.'s company had been for some time garrisoning a small town in Mindanao, where the social life consisted mainly of evading the festive bolo knife wielded by the little brown brother. Therefore he seized upon the occasion of his birthday to vary the monotony by brewing a punch and invited his two lieutenants to assist in its consumption. At a late hour the party broke up, and after some maneuvering Captain M. piloted his junior subaltern to his room, where he found the first lieutenant peacefully sleeping on the floor beneath his bunk. Shaking him violently, he roused him at last and said:

"Get up into your bed!"

The senior subaltern shook his head, looked very grave and answered indignantly:

"No, sir; no, sir. You let second lieutenant take upper berth. I'm a first lieutenant, and I get lower one." And he peacefully turned his face to the wall again.—Lippincott's.

To One Mourning.

Dear one, give way to grief, and yet as sure as doth the violet
Smell sweeter wet with rain shall you
Arise enriched to dare and do
Through this black hour whose weight like lead
Bows you in anguish by the dead.
The very silence and the pall
May seem sheer kindness, after all.

So rest in that divine perhaps.
The pain that stabs, the doubt that stabs
The spirit—why, they may be naught
But shadows of the shining thought
That is too splendid and too bright
For the endurance of our sight.
The otherwise o'er radiant spheres
Being tempered for us by our tears.
—Richard Burton.

A ludicrous incident occurred when Carter, the lion king, as he was called, was exhibiting with Ducrow at London. A manager with whom Carter had made and broken an engagement issued a writ against him. The bailiffs came to the stage door and asked for Carter.

"Show the gentlemen up," said Ducrow, and when they reached the stage there sat Carter composedly in the great cage, with an enormous lion on each side of him. "There's Mr. Carter, waiting for you, gentlemen," said Ducrow. "Go in and take him. Carter, my boy, open the door." Carter proceeded to obey, at the same time eliciting by a private signal a tremendous roar from his companions. The bailiffs staggered back in terror, rolled over each other as they rushed downstairs and nearly fainted before they reached the street.

He Had a Cinch.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, the well known editor and divine, addressing a New York city Sunday school, told of meeting a ragged, hungry looking little girl in the street on a wintry day, and when he questioned her she recited a pitiful tale of a sick mother and younger brothers and sisters without food. After giving her a silver dollar the good doctor followed to see what she would do with the money.

"Now, children, what do you suppose was the first thing she bought with that dollar?" said Dr. Buckley. "Hands up."

Up went the hands, and one child after another ventured a guess, but none proved correct. Finally a little boy whose upraised hand alone remained was asked for his answer to the question.

"A basket," he sang out. "Correct," said the doctor. "There's a boy who thinks. Now, son, come up here on the platform and tell us why you think it was a basket."

The boy hesitated, and Dr. Buckley took from his pocket a silver quarter. "I'll give you this," he said, "if you tell us what makes you think the little girl bought a basket first."

"Be-cause," stammered the youngster, at last moved by the sight of the money. "I was in Hoboken last Sunday and heard you tell the story there."—Harper's Magazine.

Valuable Indorsement.

When Tom Reed was speaker of congress he used to be a frequent visitor at the shop of James Guild, the old bookseller of Washington. One day Reed saw a print of Alexander Hamilton in the shop and asked the old gentleman:

"How much do you want for this?" "Oh, about two and a half, I reckon," was the reply.

"I think I'll come in this afternoon and get it," said the speaker. He came back that evening. "I guess I will take that print now," he said. "What did you say it was worth?"

"Ten dollars," said the bookseller. "Why," said Mr. Reed, "you told me $2.50 this morning."

"Yes," said Mr. Guild, "but since then the print has had the artistic approval of the speaker of the house. It's gone up in consequence."

VIGOROUS MEDICINE.

It Did Even More Than the Surgeon Had Promised.

The train had come to a stop at a small village, when the station master entered a coach and shouted:

"Is there a doctor on this train?" No one answering, he repeated the inquiry, without result. Then a native, addressing a tall man with sun browned face and drooping moustache, who had been fidgeting nervously, demanded:

"Why don't you speak up? Aren't you Dr. Jenks?" "I am," admitted the tall man apologetically, "but I'm only a veterinary surgeon."

"You're better than none at all," interposed the station master. "We've got a sick man on the platform—acts as though he had fits. Come out and look at him."

Dr. Jenks reluctantly acquiesced, and the rest of the passengers, in need of diversion, followed him. On the rough boards of the station platform lay a man writhing as though in the grip of epilepsy, surrounded by a group of sympathetic villagers.

"If he were a horse," said the veterinary surgeon after a critical examination of the invalid's mouth and eyes. "I'd say it were a case of blind staggers. What he probably needs is some powerful reactive medicine."

Scrubbing a few lines on a page torn from a notebook and handing the prescription to a porter, he continued:

"I've made this less than a fourth of what I'd give an animal, and it ought to be about right for a human being. Get it filled at the druggist's quickly and pour it down his throat. Chances are it will double him up in a knot for a few minutes while the staggers are being overcome."

The locomotive whistle blew, and the passengers were compelled to hurry aboard, leaving the sick man to his fate. One of them chancing to return that way several days later, it occurred to him to step off the train and learn the result of the veterinary surgeon's treatment.

"How did that medicine work?" he asked the station master. "Did it double him up all right?"

"Rather," was the enthusiastic reply; "once before he died and twice afterward."

Just Stood Pat.

Talk about being between two fires, a Camden man was aroused by his wife the other night, who said she thought a burglar was in the house and wanted papa to go downstairs and chase him. Papa promptly declined.

"What's the matter?" scornfully asked wife. "Are you afraid?"

"No," replied the old man, replacing his head upon the pillow. "But while I'm downstairs chasing the burglar you'll be going through my clothes, so it's about six in one and a half dozen in the other."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Combustible Clive.

As long ago as the middle of the eighteenth century a famous Georgian actress, Miss Kitty Clive, felt the call of the nerves commonly associated with modern women. The whole greenroom, according to the author of "Garrick and His Circle," feared her tantrums.

Her character stood high, but her clean, wholesome nature and honest heart scarcely offset her temper. She was the one player Garrick feared, and he did everything he could to disperse her nerve storms or, if they broke, assuage them. It is among the legends of the English stage that he said to her:

"I have heard of tartar and brimstone, but you are the cream of one and the flower of the other!"

She Was Not to Blame.

A young social worker in Philadelphia who has written a little volume of essays on "Life's Problems," few of which she has ever faced, called upon a woman the other day who informed her that her husband had gone off on a terrible spree.

"Oh, I am so sorry," said the social worker. "He seemed to be doing so well. I can't understand it. Did he read my book, do you think?"

"Oh, no, miss," said the woman reassuringly. "You ain't got no cause to worry. It wasn't that that set him going."

The Wrong Cue.

The children of an infant school in Wales are taught very much by signs. The hand of the teacher stopped signifies "oblique"; the hand held flat, "horizontal"; the hand upright, "perpendicular." One of the Welsh bishops was preaching one day in behalf of the school, when, observing several children whispering together, the teacher held his hand upright in a warning manner, meaning thereby to impose silence, on which almost the whole school, in the midst of the sermon, shouted out, "Perpendicular!" to the amusement of the startled and bewildered bishop.

He Saw She Saw It.

As the man who writes little items for the paper sat getting himself fitted with a pair of shoes the other day he saw this happen. A woman was getting waited on by a clerk who wore on the third finger of his right hand a Hamood twinkler weighing at least a carat and a quarter. He hadn't always worn a ring of that sort. It was new to him. He took a great deal of pride in his new ring. Oh, how it sparkled when the light was just right! Once or twice he got so interested in twisting it around on his finger with his thumb to a position where it would be most easily noticed by the woman customer that he forgot to finish lacing up the shoe she was trying on.

But he had succeeded in bringing the jewel to her attention. She had a sharp, leathery, suffragette face and a disposition to speak right out on things.

"I see it," she remarked in a refrigerated tone. "It's very pretty and attractive. You wear it with a good air at abandon too. I admire it exceedingly. After you've finished toying with it I wish you would go ahead and show me something else—something with not quite such a narrow toe."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Weighing Machines.

Weighing machines and scales of some kind were in use 1800 B. C., for it is said that Abraham at that time "weighed out" 400 shekels of silver, current money, with the merchant to Ephron, the Hittite, as payment for a piece of land, including the cave and all the standing timber "in the field and in the fence." This is said to be the earliest transfer of land of which any record survives and that the payment was made in the presence of witnesses. The original form of the weighing scale was probably a bar suspended from the middle, with a board or shell suspended from each end, one to contain the weight, the other to contain the matter to be weighed. The steelyard was probably so called from the material of which it was made and from its former length. It is also known as the Roman balance and is of great antiquity.

The Spinning Mule.

Same! Crompton, a boy of sixteen, copied the best features of the spinning machine invented by Hargreaves and Arkwright, added to them some of his own and, after three months of anxious and secret experimenting, produced the first spinning mule, so called because it was a kind of hybrid between Hargreaves' jenny and Arkwright's water frame. The raw apprentice lad was, however, no match in cunning for the cotton lords, who soon found out the secret of his new machine and shamelessly robbed him of the fruits of his ingenuity. Many years afterward, it is true, they used their influence to secure for him a parliamentary grant of £5,000, but he was then a broken hearted and disappointed man, to whom the money came too late to be of any real service.

The Human Riddle.

One of the strangest problems of our inexplicable nature is the choice of evil and the rejection of good, even after long experience has proved that misery and evil are synonymous. Virtue, it is true, does not always exempt from sorrow, but crime must ever be wretchedness. Hope loses its balm, and fear acquires a keener sting. The present is anxiety, the past remorse, the future is despair, and yet the wayward man drinks the bitter cup when the sweet is offered to him and launches his boat upon an angry sea, where storms attend his course and shipwreck terminates his voyage, rather than glide down the smooth current of a tranquil stream where peace pilots him on the way and happiness waits him on the shore.—Exchange.

The Term "Bully."

The term bully in the days of Shakespeare had quite a different meaning from that which it has at present, being an expression of endearment and good fellowship. Some suppose that the word, when it is used in approval, is derived from the Dutch boel or German buhle, which stands for the English lover. The harsher use of the word is, however, to be traced to below, the root of bull, with a significance of noisy blustering.

A Frank Reply.

A kind local lady went to Columbus to distribute helpful literature to the convicts in the penitentiary. "What are you in for, my poor fellow?" she inquired of the first prisoner she saw.

"Because I can't get out," he answered. Then she moved on to the next cell.—Toledo Blade.

Reaching the Top.

In any calling in life, demands a vigorous body and a keen brain. Without health there is no success. But Electric Bitters is the greatest health builder the world has ever known. It compels perfect action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies and enriches the blood, tones and invigorates the whole system, and enables you to stand the wear and tear of your daily work. "After months of suffering from kidney trouble three bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man," writes W. M. Sherman of Cushing, Me. 50c at J.S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

They Were Discovered.

When they went into the hotel he was determined to do nothing to betray the fact that they were newly married. He took up the pen for his first registration under the new conditions and, with an old married man's look and sweep of indifference, wrote, "Mr. and Mrs. Mary Tompkins." "Will you have the bridal chamber, Mr. Tompkins?" asked the clerk.—New York Herald.

Home Course In Health Culture

II.—Pure Water In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

In a certain ponderous volume about the size of Webster's Unabridged appear the names and descriptions of the drugs used in medical practice. This book is called the United States Pharmacopoeia. A movement is now under way among progressive medical men and pharmacists to reduce the size of the volume by discarding all but the most potent and useful drugs in each class of remedies.

It is safe to say that if fresh air and pure water could be secured in every home—in other words, if Dame Nature's pharmacopoeia were thoroughly utilized throughout the land—the present formidable United States Pharmacopoeia and the equally cumbersome British Pharmacopoeia would find a place on the top shelf and be succeeded by small, modest volumes that one could carry in the vest pocket.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

[This familiar scene on the farm is poetic, but germs are no respecters of poetry or persons.]

Value of Drugs.

This is not to say that drugs are useless. No one who has practiced medicine and seen the "grim reaper" folled and driven off by the skillful use of potent drugs can truthfully deny their enormous value to humanity when wisely employed. But the keynote of modern medicine is "prevention rather than cure."

It is a splendid thing to drag a man back from the jaws of death by relaxing the strained arteries with nitroglycerin or steadying the weakened and falling heart with strophanthus or digitalis, but it is a far bigger and better thing so to advise and guide your patient in his daily life that he shall retain a sound heart and elastic arteries until a ripe old age and never need your "heroic remedies."

Conceding that water is one of the great necessities of life and a powerful agent for good or ill, a few moments' attention to its constitution and qualities are worth while.

Water is a compound of two atoms of hydrogen with one atom of oxygen, indicated by the formula H₂O. This is not a mere mixture of gases, as in the case of air, but a definite chemical compound. Distilled water is, of course, chemically pure, but it is rather flat and unpalatable. It has been claimed that distilled water is not a healthy beverage owing to its great solvent properties, but its use among large bodies of men in the navy without ill effect would indicate that this belief is groundless. Possibly the drinking of very large quantities of distilled water might impoverish the system, but as between distilled water and impure water contaminated by disease germs there should be no hesitancy in choosing the former.

The principal diseases that are transmitted by water are typhoid fever, cholera, diarrhea and dysentery. All these diseases are absolutely unnecessary and preventable. If a fraction of the time, money and thought that is expended in windy politics and so-called statesmanship were exerted in behalf of pure air and pure water, many of our social and political evils would disappear simultaneously with the stamping out of preventable diseases.

How to Get Pure Water.

One golden maxim we can always keep in mind for our protection against water borne disease: "When in doubt, boil."

Boiled water is flat and unpalatable, but it is better than a sparkling germ laden conveyer of disease. But an effort should always be made to secure a source of pure water supply and keep it pure.

The appearance of typhoid fever should call for rigid investigation. It is not enough for water to be pure at its source; a rigid police system should be maintained to prevent contamination from sewage within a wide range of territory adjacent to reservoir, river or lake from which the water is obtained. A proper filtration plant is also advisable, and before expert advice and engineering skill will prove cheap in the long run.

On farms and places disconnected from a general water supply the matter is under the immediate control of the householder.

If one cannot afford an artesian well, at least a deep well should be sunk and rigid precaution taken against contamination from household sewage. The most horrible and uncivilized condition that can possibly exist is a shallow surface well or spring adjacent to a shallow surface sewage vault.

No community should permit such a combination to exist, and the individual who exposes his family to such risks assumes a terrible responsibility.

The distance which a sewage vault may be located from a well without risk is theoretically sixty feet. As a matter of fact, the combination is always dangerous, no matter what the distance maintained, as the surface water may carry the bacteria of disease to a considerable distance. The best plan is to have a deep well thoroughly protected within a radius of several feet by a cement platform, so that surface water from the dooryard cannot pollute it. The earth closet should be used instead of the pestiferous sewage vault, or if the latter evil is permitted it should be as distant from the well as possible on a lower level and drain away from it. The liberal use of dry earth and chloride of lime may prevent sickness and suffering, not to speak of heavy financial loss.

The Ideal System.

A far better plan is to install a "surface irrigation" system. These systems devised by the late Colonel Waring of New York provide for a disposal of the house waste and sewage through a house drain to a tank or reservoir, which automatically empties its accumulated contents by siphonage into a series of pipes, which distribute the material directly on the surface of the soil in some field sloping away from the house. An area of one-tenth of an acre will receive and care for the waste of a household of twelve persons. This waste when delivered to the field is an inoffensive milky mixture, which the bacterial and chemical agencies in the surface soil soon dispose of if a proper interval is allowed.

The cesspool, like all devices that accumulate sewage and allow it to decompose, may be a focus of disease distribution. It is far inferior to the above described system.

All wells should be screened, preventing contamination by flies, mosquitoes, etc.

If good well water cannot be obtained the rainwater may be filtered and collected in a cistern. Cistern water is not very palatable, but it can be kept pure and tends to purify itself on standing.

Rainwater is soft and, like all soft waters, readily dissolves lead. It should not be stored in metal receptacles, therefore, or run through leaden pipes.

What to Do With Pure Water.

Pure water having been obtained, the question arises, How shall we use it? Inasmuch as about 70 per cent of the body weight is made up of water, no argument is necessary to show that a certain daily supply is necessary if the body weight is to be maintained. About one-half of the solid food we eat is composed of water, but it is estimated that, in addition, the average man requires about two and one-half pints, or three tumblerfuls, daily.

A great deal of nonsense is written regarding the amount of water that should be taken daily, the amount suggested running up into the gallons. No doubt some people do not drink enough water, especially between meals, but the taking of vast quantities of water may work serious injury by overtaxing the heart and circulation and causing an overaction of the kidneys. Dilatation of the stomach may also result from overdistention with fluid. It is believed that some of the evils of beer drinking are due to the excessive amount of fluid imbibed as well as to the alcohol.

TWO EXAMPLES OF WELLS.

[A shows a well arranged so that surface water and germs are kept out by the cement extension outside the walls; B shows a well unprotected, allowing surface water to run in and carry germs from the soil.]

There is no question, however, that water is a good eliminant and that taken between meals in moderate quantities it tends to purify the system. A very active eliminant can be maintained by drinking frequently small quantities of water and thus avoiding the dangers of flooding the system. This is especially important in cases of kidney trouble and heart trouble, accompanied by dropsy, as it is advisable to keep up the action of the kidneys and also carry off waste products from the bowels without overtaxing the heart.

Water at Meals.

Ice water at meals is injurious, as it tends to check the digestive function; also the ice is liable to be contaminated and infect pure drinking water. A certain amount of water at meals is desirable, but it should be cool and not ice cold. Hot water has many advocates, but it must be used with caution. It is of most service where there is a gouty tendency. A glassful taken in the morning and before retiring is sufficient.

How Would a "Full Jewelled" Typewriter Appeal to You?

Every important bearing in an expensive watch is a small gem of a hardness not susceptible to wear. The purpose of the jewels is to insure by reduction of friction and wear, the accuracy which makes a timepiece valuable.

The first successful use of a ball-bearing typebar in a writing-in-sight machine was by the manufacturers of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Ball Bearings not only for the typebars, but at all vital wearing points of the New Model are made to serve exactly the same purpose as the jewelled bearings of an accurate, expensive watch. They prevent play and false motion, banish friction, and insure to the operator, for every ounce of energy applied, a full equivalent of perfect work. You demand a full jewelled watch. Why not a full ball-bearing typewriter?

An Unmanned Lightship.
There is stationed off the island of Islay, on the west coast of Scotland, at the Otter rock an interesting lightship. It is unmanned, yet it can be relied on to display the warning light to guide the mariner on this dangerous coast. It is a very ingeniously constructed vessel and the only one of its kind. In its two steel tanks sufficient gas can be stored to supply the vessel for several months. Experiments have shown that the light may be depended upon to burn continuously for months at a time. The approximate duration of the light can always be predetermined, and there is no danger whatever of the light being extinguished by wind or spray. The light is visible at a distance of from eight to twelve miles. The lightship also has a bell, which is made to ring automatically by means of an ingenious device that utilizes the gas as it passes from the tanks to the lantern to work the bell clapper.—Harper's Weekly.

Always a Harvest Somewhere.
There is a harvest every month during the year, as follows: January—Australia, New Zealand, Argentine, Chile; February—India; March—India, upper Egypt; April—Mexico, Cuba, lower Egypt, Syria, Persia, Asia Minor; May—North Africa, China, Japan and the southern United States of America; June—Mediterranean and southern France, central and east United States of America south of 40 degrees; July—France, Austria, Hungary, southern Russia, northern United States of America, Ontario and Quebec; August—England, Belgium, Netherlands, Germany, east Canada; September—Scotland, Sweden, Norway, Russia; October—Finland and northern Russia; November—Peru, South Africa; December—Burma, South Australia. It is a complete table and shows how the wheat supply pours into England during every month of the year.—English Agricultural Journal.

A Brazilian Household Pet.
Brazilians train a snake called the giboia as a rat catcher. It is fifteen feet long, is harmless to the human being, becomes quite a household pet, is lazy in the daytime, but at night roams about the house in quest of its prey—rats. These animals it promptly kills by twisting their necks. When Brazilians have to pass from room to room in the dark they first put on their slippers. It would not be pleasant to plant one's bare feet on a cold, slimy snake of that size.

Made the Most of It.
A well known French actor became involved in a discussion with an American, grew heated, drew his card from his pocket, threw it on the table with a tragic air and stalked out. The American regarded the card for some moments, then took out his fountain pen and wrote "Admit defeat" above the engraved line and went off to the theater.—Argonaut.

A Reproof.
"Oh, children, you are so noisy today. Can't you be a little quieter?"
"Now, grandma, you must be more considerate and not scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us you wouldn't be a grandma at all."

Inconsistent.
Guest—So your daughter belongs to the Universal Peace and Amiability society? Host—Yes, and she's rapidly fighting her way to the front of that society.

A trick is at the best but a mean thing.—Le Sage.

Observant.
Little Boy—Mummy, dear, why can't I stay up till it gets late?
Mother—That wouldn't do at all, my dear. You'd wake up so cross in the morning.
Little Boy (thoughtfully)—Does daddy go to bed very late, mummy?

Autumnal Wedding.

One of the prettiest of October weddings took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dey Sellen on the west Little York road near Homer at high noon Wednesday, Oct. 19, when their daughter, Miss Edith Sellen, was united in marriage with J. Edward Perry of Blodgett Mills.

The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the main color scheme being pink and green. The bay window in the parlor where the ceremony took place was banked with evergreens and a canopy was constructed of pink roses and smilax. The hall and sitting room showed signs of the season in the profusion of autumn leaves. The centerpiece of the dining-room table was a bouquet of carnations.

Promptly at 12 o'clock to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March as played by Mrs. Benjamin Ames of Moravia, the bridal party descended the stairway and entered the parlor preceded by the ribbon girls, Misses Mabel Gean of Syracuse, Mattie Newell of Skaneateles, Bessie Peck of Cortland and Louise Fisher of Homer, who formed an aisle through which the bridal party passed to the improvised altar. First came the bridegroom and best man, Frank Perry, a brother of the groom, followed by the bride and bridesmaid, Miss Lina Sellen, a sister of the bride, and lastly the minister, Rev. B. L. Herr, who performed the ceremony, the ring service being used. After the conclusion of the ceremony the bride and groom received the hearty congratulations of their many friends.

An elaborate four course wedding dinner was served to 100 guests. The bride's gown was of white lace with lace and pearl trimmings and the bridesmaid wore a dress of golden brown.

They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents which included gifts of money, silver, cut glass, china and an assortment of other varied gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry left on the 4:54 train for a wedding journey amid showers of rice and confetti. They will visit Niagara Falls and spend a month in New Milford and Williamsport, Pa.

Guests were present from Syracuse, Moravia, Truxton, New Woodstock, Blodgett Mills, Skaneateles, Cortland and Shelby, O.—Cortland Standard.

Teachers' Association.

The Interlake Teachers' Association at Sherwood last Saturday was well attended, although the weather was unfavorable, and an active interest was taken in the subjects presented.

The morning session opened at 10:30 o'clock with an address of welcome by S. G. Otis. Response was made by Principal W. B. Manchester of Genoa, who was chairman of the meeting. Miss Clara Cook gave some selections which were much enjoyed, and Mrs. Frank W. Wood rendered a pleasing piano solo. The morning session closed with a paper on "Promptness" by Mrs. Lena Coomber.

A bountiful luncheon was served in the hall, during the intermission.

The afternoon session began at 1:30 o'clock, with a piano solo by Mrs. Wood. Miss Florence Peckham read an instructive paper on "English," and Miss Gifford gave a good paper on "Drawing." This was followed by another piano selection by Mrs. Wood.

Principal Gay of Moravia, who was on the program for an address, was unable to be present. The Question Box was conducted by Prof. Bigelow of Ithaca in a very satisfactory manner.

After the questions had been disposed of, Prof. Bigelow gave an interesting and inspiring address to the teachers.

School Commissioner Anna M. Kent could not be present, owing to the illness of her daughter, Mrs. MacWhorter, who was in the Auburn City hospital to undergo an operation.

The following expression of sympathy was adopted by the association:

Resolved: That we, the teachers of the Interlake Association, assembled at Sherwood, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1910, extend to our honored and esteemed commissioner, Mrs. Anna M. Kent, our sympathy and love in this hour of deep anxiety and burden for her daughter, who is so ill in the Auburn hospital.

Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Moravia, Union Springs and Genoa papers for publication, and a copy sent to Mrs. Kent.

W. B. MANCHESTER,
ALTHEA FOLTS,
CLARA A. COOK.

The Association appreciated the cordial and hospitable reception given by the people of Sherwood.

New Departure.

After two months of remarkable sales, J. S. Banker, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known. He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of J. S. Banker's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.
