GENOA, N. Y., FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 30, 1910.

EMMAJ. WALDO.

From Nearby Towns.

North Lansing.

SEPT. 27—The Ladies' Aid dinner at the parsonage was largely attended. The ladies at the close were able to present to Rev. and Mrs. Allington $11 as a slight token of their appreciation of his work during the repairing and painting.

A large delegation went to Ithaca on Thursday, many of them to attend the W. C. T. U. convention.

The evaporator is being put in order. The people wonder where the apples will come from.

Rev. and Mrs. F. Allington and Dana Singer and wife attended the concert in First M. E. church, Ithaca, by the Welsh choir, driving home by moonlight.

Glady's Tarbell is attending High school in Ithaca, making the trip each day by train.

A few evenings ago a man and woman going from Auburn to their home in Ithaca made the mistake of getting off at our station, thinking they were at South Lansing. They soon saw their mistake but the train had gone. They found a comfortable shelter for the night at Wm. Singer's.

Mrs. Helen Bower returns this week from a visit of three weeks at Honeyoe.

Mrs. Fred Gallagher's mother has come to care for her.

There is one case of diphtheria in the family of Will Buckley.

Quinton Boyles is working for Frank Moran.

Miss Emily Boyer has a new roof on her barn.

On Tuesday morning, Sept. 20, the last quarterly conference of the year was held in the church; Rev. C. E. Jewell was present. It is expected the pastor will return another year.

Manning Austin is home after a visit in Groton.

Mrs. Nelson Kelly is still very poorly.

Mrs. Kate DeCamp visited in Groton City recently.

Mr. Halsey, our teacher, took dinner with the ladies at the parsonage on Tuesday, bringing a large part of his school with him.

Mrs. May Darling is spending some time with Mrs. Cassius Holden.

Edith Teeter, who is in school at Groton, was home for Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Allington left on Tuesday to attend Conference.

Charles Bacon and Charles Bower were the invited guests of Charles Divine and wife in Venice, on Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Rodolphus Miller is failing very fast. Mrs. M. Linderman is helping care for her.

Mrs. Cicero Miller visited her sister, Mrs. Eva Miller, over Sunday.

Rev. George Fosbinder died very suddenly last Wednesday morning at the parsonage home in Phoenix, N. Y., where he had been pastor for four years. The funeral was held on Friday in his church. There were thirty ministers present, Rev. E. M. Mills, district superintendent in charge. The remains were brought to North Lansing for burial on Saturday afternoon. A large number of the relatives had gathered at the cemetery. Services were in charge of Rev. F. Allington. Only a part of the flowers were brought, but they required a carriage. No such display ever came at one time into our cemetery. The friends returned on the same train in which they came. Mrs. Fosbinder was Anna Schenck, daughter of Geo. and Electa DeCamp Schenck has a large number of relatives here. Rev. George Fosbinder was born in Newfield, but spent most of his life in Ithaca until he entered the ministry, so Ithaca was his home. He entered the ministry in 1880. Venice Center was one of his first if not his first charge. He never had good health, but he has been a faithful pastor. He had good appointments and did good work. He, with his wife, visited here during the summer and while here selected a burial plot in our beautiful cemetery, little thinking that before conference he would be brought here. "One by one" we cross the river.

The TRIBUNE job printing is first-class in every respect and prices are reasonable. Send for estimates.

Miss Emily Weeks of Auburn is visiting relatives in town to-day.

A council has been called to meet at the Scipio Baptist church on Thursday of this week to consider the propriety of ordaining Rev. A. E. Wright, pastor elect of the Fleming and Scipio churches. The council will organize at 2:30 p. m., conduct the examination of the candidate, listen to his narration of Christian experience and call to the ministry, and decide on a program for the ordination services proper, which will take place in the evening. The public are invited to be present at both services and as a number of ministers from out of town are expected to be present, the exercises should be unusually interesting and profitable. Supper will be served at the church and all who will remain over night will be provided for.

Third Rail for Central.

At a cost of $1,000,000 the New York Central Railroad Company will take steps at once, it is said, to electrify the Auburn road between Syracuse and Geneva, a distance of 54 miles. It is proposed to have the construction work completed, the car equipment ready and the road in operation under its new system of power by State fair week next year. Final plans incidental to the change are being made under the direction of Central officials and contracts for the work will be let in the next few months.

The system is to be of the third-rail type between Syracuse and Geneva, and the majority of the trains are to arrive at and depart from the electric terminal in Clinton Square, using the tracks of the rapid transit lines between Solvay and the electric terminal.

Old newspapers, for shelves and putting under carpets, at this office 5 cents a package.

The Scrap Book

He Got the Key.
A night clerk in a fashionable hotel sat dozing at his desk along about 2 o'clock in the morning when a man faultlessly attired in evening clothes entered the lobby. He steadied himself for a moment, and then with a brave attempt to assume a dignified air he approached the desk as if laboriously trying to walk a chalk line. Then he addressed the clerk:

"I'm Misser Fergshun. Gimme key to room 44."
The still sleepy clerk handed Mr. Ferguson the key, and the guest disappeared in the direction of his room, which was on the next floor, only one short flight up. In about ten minutes a badly messed up man in his shirt sleeves, with a flattened silk hat on the side of his head and with one shoe on a foot and another shoe in his hand, came in and lurched up to the desk and said to the startled clerk:

"I'm Misser Fergshun. Gimme key to room 44."
"You're not Mr. Ferguson," said the now wide awake clerk. "Mr. Ferguson took his key and went up to his room ten minutes ago."
"I'm Misser Fergshun all ri'. Misser Ferguson just fell out er window 'n' left key inside. Kindly lemme have 'nother.'"—Lippincott's.

Whatever is in Right.
Know thy own point: This kind, this due degree of blindness, weakness, heaven bestows on thee. Submit: In this or any other sphere secure to be as best as thou canst bear. Safe in the hand of one disposing power, or in the natal or the mortal hour. All nature is but art unknown to thee; All chance, direction which thou canst not see; All discord, harmony not understood; All partial evil, universal good; And, spite of pride, in erring reason's spite, One truth is clear—whatever is right. —Alexander Pope.

Saved Him the Suggestion.
"Soon after our marriage my wife and I went to live in an east end flat, where everything was lovely except the janitor service, and that was abominable," said a Cleveland man. "The janitor was one of these fellows too big for their jobs. He reckoned himself superior in every way to the people he was paid to serve. "One night in midwinter when we had company all semblance of warmth went out of our rooms, and we sat there and shivered like all get out. I was hopping mad, and when I had finally located the janitor I ripped him up the back from Jericho to breakfast."

"Well," he said tantalizingly, "what are you going to do about it?"
"I'll tell you what I'm going to do about it," I said. "I'm going straight to a place where there's always plenty of heat."
"That's just what I was going to tell you to do," said the janitor calmly. —Cleveland Leader.

Last Beyond Recall.
A fussy old Scotchwoman, traveling to Glasgow, seated in a corner of the railway carriage, was provided with an india rubber cushion for her greater comfort, but unfortunately, owing to the heat and continued pressure, the cushion suddenly exploded. The old lady was in despair, even to tears, over the misfortune to the windbag and again and again reverted to her misfortune.

"Tut, woman," said a commercial traveler in another corner of the carriage. "It's not worth making a fuss about. You will get it repaired in town for about 18 pence."
"It's no' that I'm vexed about—it's no' the price. That's easy sorted. But the last time that bag was blown up it wis by Auntie Jean, almasht w' her very last breath, an' that canna be restored!"

He Did.
"Excuse me, but does Walter Halter live hereabout?"
"Thus the English tenderfoot, polite and timid, addressed himself to the grizzled native in the slouch hat and whiskered trousers."
"No," replied the native.
"Well, do you happen to know where I shall be able to find him?" politely pursued the Englishman.
"No."
"Dear me!" The tenderfoot stood puzzled. "I must have lost my way. Perhaps you can tell me where Mr. William Bluff, popularly known as Grizzly Bill, hangs out?"
"I can."
"Where?"
"Right here! I'm Bill!"
"But," expostulated the tenderfoot, "they distinctly told me at the settlement that Halter lived within a gunshot of you."
"Well," responded Grizzly Bill, "he did."

Timely Warning.
The recent publication of the memoirs of a celebrated English university professor, Oscar Browning, recalls a famous epigram, said to be one of the most admirable ever composed. It was perpetrated by a brilliant pupil, J. K. Stephen, upon the professor, who was somewhat inclined to complacency:
O. B., oh, be obedient
To nature's stern decrees,
For, though you be but one O. B.,
You may be too obstinate!

IT WORKED WELL

His Scheme Succeeded Even Though It Did Upset the Family.

An excited man rushed into the office of a banker with his mouth full of words.

"Say," he panted, "you remember well enough that I was in here for two hours this morning, don't you—maybe two and a half, but two anyhow?"
The banker nodded that he recalled that fact.

"Uh, huh," went on the excited man, slightly relieved, "and those two hours or more included the hour between 10 and 11 o'clock, didn't they? You remember that, don't you?"
"Ah, I am glad you remember. Now, if my wife calls up and asks you if I was here right in sight every minute of the time from 10 to 11 you could tell her so truthfully enough, couldn't you? Good! What do you think? You know that fellow Smith that lives right next door to us? Always seemed like a nice fellow, but what do you s'pose he did this morning? On his way by the house he tells my wife that I've just been arrested for insulting a woman down on the public square about 10:30 and that I then got into a fight with her husband, who managed to punch my face for me before the police got there."

"Smith thought it'd be a great joke, I s'pose. Yeh. Funny one, wasn't it? And now my wife called me up and won't believe there wasn't anything to it. Says the reports may have been exaggerated, but surely something must have happened. Gee! I'm glad you're able to prove an alibi for me. Well, I must get along. This thing's upset me so that I've had to let my work just sort of slide."
The banker waited for the wife to call him up, intending to do everything in his power for the acquittal of his friend. In about three-quarters of an hour the friend came rushing in again. This time he was smiling and was less excited.

"It's all right," he said. "Here's how it all happened. My wife had an awful spell of hiccupping and ran over to the Smiths to see if they knew any way to stop it. Smith had heard that sudden fear or sudden consternation would stop it, so he faked up the story about me insulting the woman. His scheme worked, except my wife wouldn't believe him at first when he told her that he'd just said it to stop hiccupping. Everything is all right now, though. Smith's terribly sorry about it, but he meant well enough." —New York Herald.

Why He Laughed.
Miss Mattie belonged to the old south, and she was entertaining a guest of distinction.
On the morning following his arrival she told Tillie, the little colored maid, to take a pitcher of fresh water to Mr. Firman's room and to say that Miss Mattie sent him her compliments and that if he wanted a bath the bathroom was at his service.

When Tillie returned she said: "I tol' him, Miss Mattie, en he laughed fit to bus' hisself."
"Why did he laugh, Tillie?"
"I dunno."
"What did you tell him?"
"Jus' what you tol' me to."
"Tillie, tell me exactly what you said."

"I banged de doah, and I said, 'Mr. Firman, Miss Mattie sends you her lub, and she says, 'Now you can get up and wash yo'self.'" —Lippincott's.

He Was Lucky.
An Irishman who was always cheerful and happy go lucky appeared on the street one morning in a badly battered condition, but still smiling and chipper. He met a friend, and the following dialogue ensued:
"By th' powers, it's bor-rrn lucky I am!"
"Phwy do y' think so?"
"I was hit by a automobile just as I was startin' fr' th' shop yisterda' mornin'." It made me stagger, an' a cop pinched me for bein' drunk. I

Corner Ball.
Four players stand on the four angles of a square and the four adversaries in the center. The ball is passed from one to another of the players in the corners and finally thrown at the central players. These last, if they can catch the ball, may fling it back. If the player in the corner hits a central player the latter is out, and vice versa.

The Thieving Magpie.
A few weeks ago a large tree in England in which several magpies had nested for years was blown down during a gale, and in a hollow which was unsuspected was found over $300 worth of articles stolen from various houses. The principal thing was a diamond ring worth $200. The largest article was a silver backed hairbrush.

All Together, Sing!
Sparrow, swinging on a branch, sang the softest trill.
Low and long it was, full of lovely meaning.
Robin, tugging at a worm, paused and wiped his bill.
Paused and perked his head, stood his feathers preening.
To sing his song it really seemed he had forgotten quite.
A bee that flew from rose to lily lingered in her flight.
Hummed and buzzed and hummed again, tried to give the keynote.
Wren, though busy with her nest, stopped to sing a wee note.
Thus reminded, robin chirped cheerily and sang.
Sparrow trilled his very loudest, sang his sweetest, best.
Wren, upon the arbor perched, looking at her nest, sang with robin and with sparrow till the garden rang. —Youth's Companion.

For the Children

Interesting Family of Five Clever Boys.

One of the most interesting families in the diplomatic corps and, for that matter, in the whole city of Washington is that of Count de Buisseret, the minister from Belgium. The children are great favorites at the national capital, where they have become known through their skill as linguists and musicians. The children are all boys, and there are five of them. Even the youngest is a good musician, for their education began at an early age. On occasions when the count and countess entertain the youngsters are often called upon to show their skill in music, and so well do they perform that their efforts have won universal commendation.

Who Was Touched?
The two players who know the secret remain in the room long enough for the trick to be made sure.
One stands in a corner, and the other in the middle of the room calls out, "Ebenezer, do you hear?" Ebenezer says nothing, but listens attentively to hear who among the company speaks first. The other partner repeats the question, and still no answer. Some one will be likely to make a remark soon, and then Ebenezer will rouse up and answer, "Yes, I hear." "Then leave the room," says the other player, and Ebenezer goes out. The partner then makes a great show of choosing which one he shall touch, but of course ends by touching the person who first spoke after the game began. This done, Ebenezer is called in to say who was touched, and every one is puzzled to know how he can tell.

My Lady's Toilet.
The players are all seated except one, for whom no chair must be provided.
Each player takes the name of some article of a lady's toilet—her necklace, chain, bracelets, rings, comb, gloves, hat, shoes, gown, etc. One stands in the center as lady's maid and says, "My lady is going out and wants her hat." The hat must instantly jump up and spin around. If she forgets to do so she pays a forfeit. Each article must spin around when "wanted." Occasionally the lady's maid says, "My lady wants her toilet changed," when all the players must rise and change seats. In the scuffle the center player tries to get a seat. If she succeeds the one left chairless becomes lady's maid for the next turn.

The Ticket Collector.
One of the boys in the back of the room was evidently thinking of something besides his lesson.
"So the teacher, merely to attract his attention, put the question:
"Harry, can you tell me where Noah was when the animals were going into the ark?"
"S'pose he was takin' tickets," was the prompt response.

The Waiting Championship.

An Atchison woman who looks for good in everything is glad she married. "It has taught me patience," she said. When a girl she flew into a temper if she had to wait five minutes for something she wanted, but now she waits and waits and waits and says nothing. She waited nine years for her new front porch, six years for her husband to take her to the theater and eleven years for him voluntarily, when there was no company around, to offer her a rocking chair. "This," she said recently to a friend who heard she was sitting up half the night waiting for her husband to come home, "is nothing. I can wait longer and say less about it than any woman who ever lived. I am glad I married; otherwise I could never claim the waiting championship belt."—Atchison Globe.

Work of the Beavers.
The formation of the plateau on which Dubois is built is a matter of great curiosity. Beavers are responsible for it. Long before the white men saw that section of Pennsylvania beavers built a huge dam in a well set valley. Year by year the stream washed rich mud into the dam, and when the body of water was destroyed 640 acres of land flat as a table top were left. On this stands Dubois.—Altoona Tribune.

His Hardships.
"I suppose," said the kind lady as she handed the husky hobo a generous wedge of apple pie, "that your lot is full of hardships?"
"Dat's de proper word fer it, ma'am," replied the h. h. "In de winter w'en de farmers ain't doin' nothin' but eatin' apples an' drinkin' hard cider it's too cold fer me to be trampin' aroun', an' in de summer people's allers offerin' me work."—Chicago News.

Mr. Pride—What is it? Mrs. Pride—The cook says we won't have enough chicken for dinner, so I wish you would take this bird down to the shop and see if you can get it matched.—London Mail.

Doting Mother—Tell me, professor, is my son a deep student? Professor (dryly)—None deeper, ma'am. He's always at the bottom.

The Sweet Innocent.
"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you must stop worrying about household details."
"What's the trouble now?"
"You were talking in your sleep again last night. Every once in a while you would use some expetive and say, 'Gimme some more chips.' You really must get your mind off the wood pile." —Washington Star.

The Lash of a Fiend would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough or hayfever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. SAVE MONEY—SAVE TROUBLE

Every woman dreads the difficult task of shampooing her own hair. To do so thoroughly leaves her exhausted with aching head and neck. With the Knickerbocker Shampoo Brush all the trouble of shampooing one's own hair, or the expense of having it done, is ended forever. The rubber teeth of the Shampoo Brush, made like finger tips, vigorously massage the scalp, get the dirt and dandruff out, as nothing else will, and the water flowing through the teeth thoroughly rinses the hair. You can use eggs or soap—the Shampoo Brush rinses better than any other device.

EASTERN TOWNS BEING IMPROVED

Civic Centers Beautiful and Playgrounds Provided.

WOMAN'S ENERGY BIG HELP.

Wayland, Mass., Will Have Parks and Recreation Places Under Direction of an Association Formed by Mother Who Lives Two Miles Away.

Many splendid improvements have been made in New England towns and cities this year, and one of these has been the beautifying of the civic center of Belmont, Mass., where a fine bridge has been constructed to facilitate the handling of traffic.

Mainly through the energy of Mrs. James Lowell Moore the people of the town of Wayland, Mass., have secured a charter for the Wayland Park and Playground association. Although plans have long been under way and there was strong hope for a playground in Wayland Center this summer, it has been found impossible to do all the people desired, and the only playground this year was allotted to Cochituate village, in the extreme southern end of the town. Wayland Center is a comfortable village in the center of a farming district, while Cochituate is a manufacturing village where the conditions are not so favorable for the children. This is a most progressive move for a town so thinly settled as Wayland. But Mrs. Moore and her associates recognize that Wayland must grow because of its proximity to Boston, and they propose to make an early start in developing the playground possibilities and to secure permanent areas for park and playground ideas. The movement is well received by the people, and there are good prospects for a successful first year.

In this connection Mrs. Moore's example ought to be pointed out to those who hesitate. Her home is on a farm two miles from Wayland Center. Her boys are not particularly in need of playgrounds, and yet, as has been said, it is through her leadership that the progress to date has been made possible. And the example of all in starting first in the extreme end of the town because there the need is greatest is much to be commended. Such unselfishness, for it must be remembered the whole movement is in the main directed by Wayland Center people, must do a great deal among reasonable people to weld the town together and to dissipate those petty animosities which so often spell disaster.

Station Gardening on the C. P. R.
N. S. Dunlop, superintendent of the floral department of the Canadian Pacific railroad, recently started to send out a circular to station agents and section men all over the system, offering a number of prizes with a view to encouraging gardening around stations and section houses. Each general superintendent will award a prize of $25 to the station agent having the best flower garden and nearest ground, and there will be prizes of $10 and $5 for locomotive foremen and also for section foremen. In addition, each superintendent will give a prize of $10 and a second prize of $5, while a first prize of $10 and a second prize of $5 will be awarded on each general superintendent's division for the best photograph of a flower garden at a station on the division.

Excellent Sweeping Ordinance.
An ordinance that would be of great benefit to any town has been passed in Columbus, Ind., making it unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to sweep dust, dirt, refuse or any accumulations from any building or from any premises to any sidewalk, gutter, street or alley. Instead, the sweeping must be done to the rear and the sweepings then gathered up, placed in a receptacle and left for the garbage collectors to remove. The local board of health fathered the ordinance and it was aimed at business houses where clerks were in the habit of sweeping into the public streets.

Mail Order Buyers, Attention!
Listen to the Chicago Association of Commerce, speaking to other cities: "We want to know you and have you know us, not as merchants and manufacturers, but as men and associates, feeling that you are agreed with us that the interchange of commodities is more strongly influenced by social relations than by mercenary motives and that there is greater incentive to the warm grasp of the hand than in any other association."
Doesn't this apply to men living and doing business in the same town?

SELL TO SATISFY.

How the Habit of Buying in One's Home Town May Be Encouraged.

The headline sounds peculiar, yet I thought it a fit one for the subject I wish to discuss. The general comment is that we always sell to satisfy. But do we? That is a question that only the customers can answer. As far as our own satisfaction is concerned, it is probably true, but that is not as far as business nowadays extends. To pocket the cents now and lose dollars afterward is mighty poor policy.

How many salespeople—and I might say proprietors—pride themselves on merchandise they see on their customers' after they have once sold them? During the time of the making of the sale they use every phrase found in the vocabulary to tell of a garment's merits and suitability to a particular customer, but once the customer has bought and paid for the garment no more attention is paid her on her purchase.

The clerk may have noticed that the color or the lines were not befitting, but since the customer showed an inclination toward that particular piece of merchandise the clerk urged her on toward the purchase of it regardless of its becomingness.

Such sales are wrong. They reflect upon the good taste and judgment of a store.

A store should pride itself upon its capability of having the best dressed clientele regardless of price, be it high, medium or low priced garments, of any store in its vicinity.

Just as an architect prides himself upon the results of a carefully planned and tastefully built house, so should the business of a store be planned and followed out.—Dry Goods Reporter.

DO YOUR OWN THINKING.

Business Men Ought to Get Out of Their Mental Ruts.

Some men seem to think their heads fulfill the purpose for which a beneficial Providence intended them when they absorb three meals a day and afford a means of displaying the latest ideas in hats. Like the dog with the chronic "tired feeling" that used to lean against the fence to bark, the process of thinking is so exhausting that with many it is only indulged in at long intervals.

People let out their thinking. In politics there are few men who can give a reason for being on one side or the other beyond echoing the sentiments of some wily politician or loud mouthed demagogue. Religious opinions and convictions in a majority of cases are the absorbed product of other minds. A good deal of intellectual swallowing is done by those who would doubtless resent the imputation of credulity.

This is an age of brilliant mental effort, but the brilliancy seems to be largely borrowed. What the world wants is more independent individual thought. Let business men quit the ruts and cut out thinking paths for themselves. An hour of careful thought and wise planning is worth a whole day of aimless plodding. "Ponder the paths of thy feet and let all thy ways be established."—Canadian Shoe and Leather Journal.

Forming a Country Club.

Every community should have a country club. More important perhaps is the fact that every community can have one if there is just one man to go ahead, work up enthusiasm and carry out details. Almost every club in the country owes its existence to the public spirited efforts of some individual.

Two or three things seem reasonably certain to successfully start such an enterprise:

One or two persons must do most of the work.

The initial dues will prove to be insufficient and will later be raised.

When the success of the venture is sure every one will want to join.

If the club survives the first year of disappointment and complaints it will go on.

A membership waiting list is the best asset of all.

Big Lesson From a Little Town.

The Boston Transcript, noting that the Democrats of the town of Revere, Mass., put forth a platform in the recent campaign duly signed by the chairman and secretary of the party committee, calls attention to the fact that one of the planks pledged the party to a "comprehensive scientific study of the town for the purpose of adopting a general plan for the development of the water, sewer and fire systems and the streets of the town." It says in comment: "If this were the general practice, if development did not depend so much on the operations of 'cliques' at town meetings, many a town would be better off than it is to-day. In the 'little democracies' fights between 'quarters' rage for the control of the appropriations."

Beware of These Knockers!

The men who do a town more harm than good may be classed as follows: First, those who oppose improvement; second, those who run it down to strangers; third, those who never advertise their business; fourth, those who distrust public spirited men; fifth, those who show no hospitality to any one; sixth, those who hate to see others make money; seventh, those who oppose every movement that does not originate with themselves; eighth, those who put on long faces when a stranger speaks of locating in their town; ninth, those who oppose every public enterprise which does not appear of personal benefit to themselves.—Beverly (O.) Dispatch.

NOVEL PREACHING TOUR.

Maine Man's Trip to Cover Lumber State in a Gospel Wagon.

The Rev. E. S. Kimball of Bangor, Me., who is one of those preachers who labor not for material gain, but solely for the betterment of mankind, will travel through Maine this summer with a gospel team, and until well into the fall this man will drive about the state, visiting every city, town and hamlet, to try to persuade men to live as they should live—upright, honorable lives.

On top of his wagon is a sign, 3 by 10 feet, upon which the entire verse of John III, 16, appears in pretty lettering. The blankets for the horses bear the words, "Come unto me all ye that are heavy laden and I will give you rest," and the bells on the back saddles are lettered, "Holiness unto the Lord."

This is, according to Mr. Kimball, the first attempt to cover Maine thoroughly by gospel wagon. About fourteen years ago Mr. Kimball was converted, and since that time he has been engaged in the work. Seven years ago he made a trip through New Hampshire with a gospel wagon.

Mr. Kimball is not in the business for gain of gold or even of coppers, and it is this largely that gives him the power to do so much real good as he is able to do. He says himself: "I depend just upon prayer. My work is done under the auspices of no church or creed. I only try to tell people wherein they may be wrong and how possibly they may get right. When I have held meetings in towns or cities I have asked only $10 a week for myself, and in every case where I have in any way received more than that during my stay I have given the balance to some Sunday school or for some good cause in that town or city."

Mr. Kimball will make the trip through Maine alone. The churches of the places visited by him will provide singers, and he will have no difficulty in getting assistance to help in every way, he says.

FOREIGN MISSION WORK.

Many Denominations Unite in Common Work in Distant Fields.

At Chentu, in western China, the Methodist church of Canada, the Methodist Episcopal church of America, the Friends' Foreign Missionary Association of England and the American Baptist Union of America have joined hands in the erection of a distinctively Christian college to supply the needs of their immediate and contiguous fields. At Nanking, in east China, the Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Quakers are planning a union medical college where medical instruction shall be given wholly in the Chinese language.

At Peking, the capital of China, already exists a union women's college supported by the American board, the Presbyterian board, two Swedish Lutheran missions, a German mission and the Canadian Presbyterians. In southern India the London Missionary society, the Arcot mission, the English Wesleyans and the Scotch United Free church are preparing to erect a union theological seminary. A union seminary for the four different Presbyterian missions working in Korea has been for some time occupied in Pyongyang. Whatever the obstacles to union at home may be, workers abroad are rapidly lowering the walls which have heretofore divided them.

Odd Religious Belief.

"The liver was the temple of the soul among the ancients," Dr. Morris Jastrow of the University of Pennsylvania started his hearers by saying at Drexel institute in Philadelphia the other afternoon in an address on "The Religions of Babylonia and Assyria." Continuing, he said:

"Recently discovered evidence has demonstrated beyond a doubt the exaltation in which a man's liver was held 2,000 years B. C. There are many men today, I'll grant, who think more of their livers than their brains, but the sages and scholars in the Euphrates valley in those days literally worshipped the liver, made a creed out of their devotion to it."

The Christian Superiority.

From Ceylon comes a message which shows how even the enemies of Christianity are compelled to pay tribute to it. A Buddhist monk who was acquainted with both Christianity and Buddhism was once asked what he thought was the great difference between the two. He replied: "There is much that is good in each of them and probably in all religions. But what seems to me to be the greatest difference is that you Christians know what is right and have power to do it, while we Buddhists know what is right, but have not any such power."

Spiritual Possessions.

The things granted to us all, without partiality, by Providence for our asking and knocking are the spiritual possessions which are the unfailing cause of real success in life.—Rev. H. Vrooman, Presbyterian, Providence, R. I.

Woman's Purity.

Like a calla lily so is the purity radiating from the character and life of a good woman, changing the atmosphere about her and making the world better for her having lived in it.—Rev. W. M. Vines, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Ready For What May Come.

The serious mind never forgets the hard side of things. It does not live in fear, for it is prepared for whatever may come, nor does it yield to any delirium of pleasure.—Rev. E. N. Brown, Unitarian, Boston.

The Lions and the Roses.
"An admirer in my younger days," said a woman lion tamer, "once sent me a bouquet of red roses, and I wore them in the ring to do my act. They came near doing for me. I had got my eight lions arranged in their pyramid when the lion at the top saw the red roses in my corsage. He mistook them for meat—lions have poor sight—and down he leaped. He came for me open mouthed. Though I fired a blank cartridge in his face, he made with his paw a sweep at the roses that ripped me open from chin to waist. The other lions bounded forward. They weren't angry. They were hungry. I had intelligence enough to perceive that, and just as they were leaping on me I tore off my roses and threw them across the ring. The big brutes left me at once, and while they sniffed the roses with disappointed growls I staggered out of the iron door. I was young at the time, young and light headed, or I'd have known better than to wear anything red among hungry and nearsighted lions."—Buffalo Express.

A Coin in the Sea.
A coin dropped into the sea will sink to the bottom, however deep it is, owing to the fact that the metal is heavier than the volume of water it displaces. It is a common but mistaken notion that the density of the sea increases with its depth and consequent pressure, as does the density of the atmosphere, which we all know is greatest at the earth's surface. The air, however, like all gases, is elastic and when under pressure (as with its own weight) shrinks in volume and gains in density. Water, on the other hand, is absolutely incompressible, and although the pressure in the sea increases at the rate of one pound for every two feet we descend, the density of the water remains the same; consequently the penny continues to outweigh the water it displaces, and the coin sinks until it finds a solid resting place. The pressure of the water has no influence at all on the coin, acting as it does on all sides equally.

Decline of the Mustache.
Permission to wear a mustache was eagerly sought after in the middle of the last century. But now the virile decoration is discarded. Why? In those old days the Bank of England would not allow its employees to wear it and issued an order which might have come more appropriately from a bank of Ireland. It was to the effect that the mustache was not to be worn in business hours! A large drapery firm in London objected not only to the mustache, but to hair parted down the middle. There is more tolerance now. Men look younger when clean shaved. They are also more readable without the protection given by the mustache to the upper lip. If hearts can be worn on sleeves thoughts can be read on upper lips. But is it always wise to leave the legend unhidden? Men seldom like to be divined, as La Rochefoucauld remarked once and for all time.—London Express.

An Old Alarm Clock.
At Schramberg, in the Black forest, there is a respectable alarm clock that warned sleepers it was time to get up when Charles I. was king of England. This was made in 1680, and it is deemed a remarkable piece of workmanship. In form it resembles a lantern wherein is a lighted candle, the wick of which is automatically clipped every minute by a pair of scissors. The candle is slowly pushed upward by a spring, which also controls the mechanism of the clock, and at the required hour of waking an alarm is sounded, and at the same time the movable sides of the lantern fall, and the room is flooded with light.

A Spurned Gift.
A charity expert was discussing promiscuous almsgiving. "Promiscuous giving," he said, "is money thrown away. Nothing should be given to beggars except work. A friend of mine said the other day to a beggar: "I can't give you any money, my poor fellow, but if you call at my house I'll give you plenty of work." "Thanks," the beggar answered, "I've got plenty of that at home."

Conscience.
"On what grounds do you desire to withdraw the plea of 'not guilty?'" "On the simple ground that we are guilty. However, we must call the attention of your honor to the regrettable fact that the statute of limitations lets us out. Too bad we were not asked about this matter earlier."—Philadelphia Ledger.

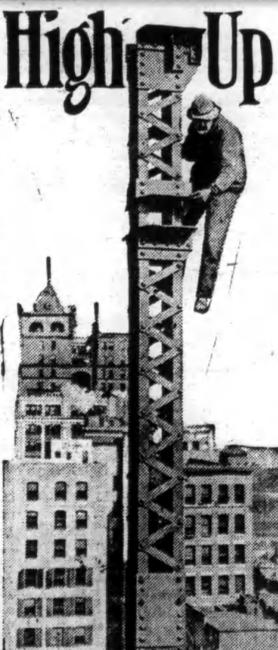

The Very Good Man.
"He's forever prating about what his conscience tells him. What does his conscience tell him, anyway?" "It usually tells him apparently what awful sinners his neighbors are."—Philadelphia Press.

Keeps Him Busy.
The Skeptical Aunt—What does he do, Dolly, for a living? Dolly (greatly surprised)—Why, auntie, he does not have time to earn a living while we are engaged!

Made Him Think.
Sapleigh—Ah, speaking of electricity, that makes me think—Miss Keen—Really, Mr. Sapleigh! Isn't it remarkable what electricity can do?—Boston Transcript.

Shady.
Gyer—They tell me Sharp is engaged in a shady business. Myer—You don't say! Gyer—Yes; he's putting up awnings.—Chicago News.

CHIVALRY.
Be chivalrous. In nobility of spirit, high courage, magnanimity and gallantry there dwells chivalry. Exercise it. Wherever a child can be helped, wherever a stranger can be guided or a friend who is shy set at ease, wherever a weak brother can be saved from falling and shame, wherever an old man's step can be made easy, wherever a servant's position can be dignified in his eyes, is the chance for chivalry to show itself.

THAT'S WHERE PRICES ARE GOING.

But Our Rates for JOB PRINTING REMAIN THE SAME.

They Are Still Low Down.

Remarkable Violin Test.
An ingenious test of old and new violins, in which an instrument of modern make was voted the finest, has been made in Paris. During the performance both critics and performers were in complete darkness, so that it was impossible to see which one of the seven violins selected for the test was being played. Then immediately after being used the instrument was placed under a cloth, and the lights were turned on for a few moments to enable the critics to write down the votes. All the violins were played by two musicians of high standing, and the compositions were written especially for the test. The two violinists tried to bring out the best in each violin, and the result, decided by the votes, was interesting. The modern make of violin led the list with 102 votes, and its nearest rival for favor was a Stradivarius with 96 votes. Other old and famous makes of violins received 82, 85, 83, 82 and 80.—London Telegraph.

The Devil's Knell.
Among the famous bells of Dewsbury, Yorkshire, England, is one known as "Black Tom of Scythill," which was presented to the church in explanation of a murder. "Black Tom" is always rung on Christmas eve. Its solemn tolling as it strikes the first tap at exactly midnight is known all over Yorkshire as the "devil's knell," it being the notion that when Christ was born the devil died.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c, at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

Important To Dry Towns.

An order of the court has just been obtained by the State Department of Excise for the destruction of a quantity of "malt mead," which was seized in the no-license town of Cornwall, Orange county, in proceedings instituted by State Commissioner of Excise Clement. The beverage is manufactured in the State and it is understood it is distributed over the so-called "dry territory." According to the labels, it is represented to contain less than one-half of one per cent alcohol, but this is unimportant, because the definition of "liquors" in the New York State law does not in any way refer to the per cent of alcohol contained in a liquid. Chemical analysis made by the State officials shows that the beverage seized varies from a minimum of 1.21 per cent of alcohol by volume to a maximum of 2.56 per cent. The State Excise Department has called the matter to the attention of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, as it seems to be a violation of the federal pure food and drug act, as well as of the liquor tax law of this state.—Moravia Rep.

Funeral of Mr. Mastin.

The funeral of the late George J. Mastin was held at the family home on Saturday afternoon last at 3 o'clock. The house was filled with relatives and friends of the family. Rev. T. J. Searls read passages of Scripture, offered prayer and made some fine remarks, taking the words: "Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth" and "Therefore be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh" as a text.

Miss Edith Hunter sang very sweetly a favorite hymn of the deceased, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone," and also sang "Saviour Breathe an Evening Blessing". Many beautiful floral tributes testified of the esteem and love of friends and relatives.

Burial was made in the family lot in Genoa cemetery.

Among those in attendance at the funeral were Mrs. John Mastin, and Mrs. Mary Hunt, George Bryant and little son of Auburn, Orrin Mastin and family of Locke, Arthur Mastin of Moravia, Mrs. Jane Thome of Cortland, Henry Whitten and wife of Auburn, Mrs. Minnie Ward and son Paul of Sherwood, Mrs. Erwin White of Scipio, Sylvester Morgan and wife of Poplar Ridge.

Gard of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the death and burial of our beloved father and to those who sent flowers.

Found in Mill Pond.

Thomas Tupper, who had been living in Genoa for the past four or five weeks, was found dead in the mill pond near the east shore on Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

Two young boys, Gordon Smith and Clare Sullivan, were rowing up the channel when they saw the head of the man above the water. They rowed back and called F. C. Hagin from his hardware store, and he went back to the spot with the boys, and after seeing who it was, he notified Mr. Tupper's daughter, Mrs. Thomas Brogan.

Coroner Atwood of Moravia was immediately sent for, and after the investigation that evening he gave out that death was due to accidental drowning. It is stated that Tupper left his boarding place at Mrs. E. Eddy's some time after supper Saturday evening, and that no one saw him after that until he was found in the pond. His daughter had tried to locate him, but no trace of him could be found.

Thomas Tupper was a son of the late Volney and Charlotte Mosher Tupper of the town of Venice and was 57 years of age. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Brogan, and two brothers, Allen P. Tupper of Auburn, and Fernando C. Tupper of Sennett.

The funeral was held at the home of his daughter on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, Rev. Stephen Hancock of Moravia officiating. Burial was made in the Indian Field cemetery, near the Purinton place.

Allen P. Tupper of Auburn, and Charles Tupper and wife of East Genoa attended the funeral.

Scipioville.

SEPT. 28—Mrs. Beard, the blind soloist of Auburn will give a musical entertainment, assisted by Frank Wood and wife, in the Presbyterian church, Friday evening, Sept. 30. Admission 10 and 20 cents.

Mr. Wirt Groom of Corona, Calif., and Mrs. Ward Groom of Auburn spent Tuesday at W. F. Buckhout's. Mrs. Ed Whitten and daughter, Oella, are visiting her sister, Mrs. Anthony.

Mr. and Mrs. Berlew of Union Springs and Ed Whitten of Ithaca were Sunday guests at Gaylord Anthony's.

Mrs. W. J. DeShon of Syracuse is visiting her parents for a few days. Miss Mary Sellen and Robt. Dills of Union Springs were callers in town Sunday.

Claude Buckhout has been quite ill for the past week, but is improving.

Geo. Cooper of Auburn visited his mother on Sunday.

Miss Susie Howland, who has been in Auburn for a few weeks, is visiting at Geo. Hoxie's.

Mrs. Anthony and Miss Bancroft were in Syracuse on Monday.

The family of James Jones are enjoying ripe raspberries from their garden, having enough to supply the table.

Boyce-Greenleaf.

The marriage of Miss Florence Greenleaf and Henry F. Boyce, both of Locke, occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Day Greenleaf, on Wednesday, Sept. 21.

The ceremony was performed at twelve o'clock, by Rev. S. S. Pratt, in the presence of a company of seventy-five relatives and friends. After congratulations, a wedding dinner was served. After a brief honeymoon trip they will reside in Locke where the groom is in the employ of Hewitt Brothers.

CONSTANCY.

Whatever is genuine in social relations endures despite of time, error, absence and destiny, and that which has no inherent vitality had better die at once. A great poet has truly declared that constancy is no virtue, but a fact.—Tuckerman.

ANN MERWIN'S HOLIDAY.

A Farmer's Wife Who Demanded Her Rights as a Toiler.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.
[Copyright, 1916, by American Press Association.]

It had been a long day of hard work for Ann Merwin. Now, when the sun was casting slanting red rays from the west, she stood within the pantry surveying the results of her labor.

"Two apple pies, loaf of gingerbread and a layer cake, pot of cookies, rice pudding, four loaves of bread, a boiled ham and half a peck of potatoes ready to fry! I guess there'll be one holiday that I ain't cooking all day. There's enough food to last us all day tomorrow and Monday. If there ain't I say let those that want it cook it!"

Mrs. Merwin closed the pantry door vigorously and proceeded to set the supper table. Small and trim and neat and looking much younger than her fifty years, she flew about the dining room and kitchen as if she had not

"DO YOU SEE ALL THAT BAKING, HOSEA", been flying from one duty to another all day long with weary feet and tired hands.

Her husband, Hosea, and Jacob Lane, the hired man, were preparing for the evening meal. From the shed outside came the creak of the pump handle and the splashing of water.

When supper was over the ham had been depleted by a third, and one of the apple pies was half gone. Ann's lips were set in a thin line as she hurried the dishes into the pan, washed them and set them away.

Afterward she sat down beside the red covered table and picked up the weekly newspaper. Hosea sat on the other side figuring with a stubby pencil on the back of an envelope. Ann watched her husband furtively over the top of the paper. At last she spoke:

"What are you going to do Monday? It's Labor day, you know?" she said.

"Great guns, Ann! I forgot it was so close to hand and"—He paused and surveyed her set face with some apprehension.

"What have you gone and done now, Hosea?" she flared angrily. "I suppose you've invited a lot of people here to eat, same as you've done every holiday?"

Hosea reddened guiltily. "Not a whole lot, Ann. It just happened that I met Frank Perkins awhile ago, and he said they thought of driving over on Labor day. I couldn't say anything except 'come along,' could I?"

"Who else?" demanded Ann.

"The fact is I forgot all about Frank's coming, and I engaged Drayton to bring his new wood cutting machine along and cut up that cordwood. His time's all taken up to Thanksgiving, and if I don't have him Monday I don't know how it will get done."

"How many does it take to run the machine?"

"Two, besides Frank," admitted Hosea uncomfortably.

"That makes three, and you and Jacob make five men, besides five Perkinses. I suppose they're all coming?"

"I—guess so."

"And Fanny will bring Henry Smith—seven people to provide two meals for! Who do you think wants to work all of a holiday stewing over a hot stove?"

"I'll help you, Ann," murmured Hosea contritely, although he realized that Ann in this aggressive mood was not to be placated.

"Help eat the victuals!" she cried sarcastically. "Come into the pantry, Hosea," she added, rising and leading the way.

Ann picked up a lamp and, holding it high above her head, entered the pantry.

"Do you see that baking, Hosea?" she asked, pointing to the well filled shelves. "I was up at 4 o'clock this morning getting my Saturday's work done so I could do this extra baking. 'Twas cooked enough today to last till Monday night, and I don't care if a man, woman and child in Sufgnty comes to spend the day on w—I shan't lift my hand to do Men warm up a few victuals 23 time."

and make a pot of coffee! I'd calculated to take the holiday that's due to every laborer. I wasn't going to wash a dish all day. I was going to read and work some embroidery. You don't know how little chance I get to do those things. I'm too tired at night when my work's done."

"I'm dreadful sorry, Ann," wavered Hosea helplessly. "I wish I was dumb sometimes. I'm always asking folks to dinner. Seems somehow as if they hinted in such a way I can't get out of it. Suppose I get Rachel Brien to come up and do the work?"

"Never!" retorted Ann. "Rachel Brien's going to the horse trot along with Tim. Everybody's made plans for the day and can carry 'em out except me. I almost suspected you'd fix it so I couldn't have a day of rest, and so I've got it planned."

"Planned what?" asked Hosea.

"Mrs. Plympton, over to Riverside, asked me to join the woman's club she's been getting up. They're going to organize and fight for women's rights, and they're going to parade on Monday afternoon through the two villages in carriages with banners on the outside. I said I'd wait a little longer and see if I'd really have to fight for my rights. I really don't want any outside my home." She paused for breath.

"Well?" ejaculated Hosea amazedly. "I guess I'll have to join the club Monday morning," announced Ann conclusively.

"And parade with banners?"

"Of course!"

"What about all these folks coming on Monday?"

Ann shrugged her shoulders indifferently. "Here's the victuals. They can help themselves. I shan't be here."

Without a word Hosea returned to the sitting room. He wound the clock with his usual care, locked the walnut secretary where he was wont to sit and figure his accounts on Saturday nights, pumped a pail of fresh water, thrust the cat out of doors and, with a brief good night to Ann, tramped upstairs to bed.

Ann sat with her eyes fixed on the newspaper, but she did not read. Her heart was palpitating wildly, and an unusual color flickered in her cheeks. She hated the very thought of the woman's club, and the parade on Monday afternoon made her sick at heart. What she really wanted was her husband's recognition of her rights as a toiler to an occasional holiday.

Ann's anger returned as she remembered the hungry horde of Perkinses. Frank Perkins always made a point of hinting that he expected a boiled dinner at Hosea Merwin's.

"Phoebe Perkins can stay home and cook her own boiled dinner," spluttered Ann as she went to bed, too agitated to remember a Bible lesson unlearned for the morrow.

Sunday was a dreary day indeed. To begin with, it rained heavily all the morning. In the afternoon clouds hovered threateningly close until sunset.

In the evening Jacob Lane came and begged the next day off. "Gosh darned if I didn't forget it was a holiday," he explained. "I'll come and git the chores done up at daylight, and then I'll be off to the fremen's picnic. Seems like I asked Miss Cheddie Bemls to go, and I forgot all about it till she reminded me of it."

"Go along," granted Hosea morosely, turning back into the house. "Seems as if the hull town was possessed over Labor day—horse trots, picnics, wimmin's rights, and what not! Every day is Labor day for me."

After dusk Hosea left the house and was gone for an hour. When he returned there was a spring to his step and a return of the genial light in his eyes.

"I shall be up pretty early tomorrow morning, Ann," he said soberly. "If you'd like to drive over to Riverside I can take you if you'll be ready about 7 o'clock."

"I'll be ready," said Ann, concealing her surprise under a stiff demeanor. "I can wait at Cousin Henry's till it's time to go to Mrs. Plympton's."

"Very well," Hosea performed his evening chores and went to bed.

When she awoke at 6 o'clock there was the smell of boiling coffee and frying ham. It was evident that Hosea was exerting his knowledge of cookery and preparing breakfast for her. He had done this often in the first years of their married life, but lately he had seemed to overlook all those little attentions that had made her labor light and sweet even at the close of a wearisome day.

Ann hurried into a fresh lawn dress and took time to fluff her grayish brown hair into a becoming halo about her delicate face. When she went downstairs there were many evidences that Hosea had been astir for some time.

Black Bessy, hitched to the covered buggy, stood before the side door, and Hosea was in the act of placing breakfast on the table.

"Heard you stepping around," he said. "Better set down, so's we can get off by 7."

"It smells real good," said Ann somewhat dejectedly. "Somehow I don't feel hungry this morning. I'd like a cup of coffee."

Rather silently they ate the meal and together cleared it away. Ann permitted Hosea to carry the food into the pantry. She did not want to see the shelves, for she guiltily knew that, although she had prepared generously for Hosea and herself, there was not enough for one good square meal for the hungry crowd that would descend upon Hosea that day.

"Frank Perkins 'll be expecting a boiled dinner, Hosea," she said tentatively.

"Let him expect," returned Hosea cheerfully. "This is your holiday, Ann. Don't you worry about a single thing. Everything will be all right."

As they drove away from the house they heard the screeching creak of the wood cutting machine approaching from the opposite direction.

"Drayton's men 'll be expecting to find some one at home, won't they?" questioned Ann.

"Nope. I saw Drayton last night. He'll go right ahead."

"What time are the Perkinses coming?" asked Ann.

"About 10 o'clock. Now, Ann, stop your worrying over those folks. You haven't got any cause to be anxious over anything."

They drove along in silence for an hour. The leafy tunnels of the woods were gratefully cool and afforded welcome relief from the hot sandy roads.

At the crossroads Ann spoke again: "You've made the wrong turn, Hosea. This left hand road is the back road to Riverside."

"Sit quiet, Ann," said Hosea calmly. "I know where I'm going."

Thoroughly unhappy, Ann Merwin sat back in the buggy and closed her eyes. She thought of the hungry people whom poor Hosea must try to feed, and she longed inexpressibly for the privilege of helping him with his labor.

Suddenly the buggy stopped, and Ann opened her eyes in amazement. They were on a high wooded bluff jutting out into the blue waters of the sound. A hundred feet below the waves were breaking on a snowy beach. A narrow path zigzagged down to the water's edge. Up here a fresh sweet wind was blowing; down on the beach the bluffs cast long cool shadows on the sand.

Ann looked at Hosea smiling down at her.

"Whatever are we doing away over here at Gull Point?" she faltered. "I was going to Riverside," she added.

"I've eloped with you, Ann," laughed Hosea, kissing her with unexpected tenderness. "I'm so afraid you'll be getting some rights you don't need that I'm going to see that you have some that you can really enjoy! Now, you want to picnic here with me all day?"

Ann nodded tearfully.

"And have a clam bake? I've brought along my clam rake."

"Yes."

"See here, Ann," said Hosea, helping her down from the carriage—"here's the lunch." He lifted a huge basket from the back and opened it before her wondering gaze—"ham sandwiches, boiled eggs, apple pie, two kinds of cake, cookies, pickles, cheese, roasting ears for the clam bake and a bottle of milk! How's that?"

"Hosea," cried Ann, clinging to him with sudden remorse, "you're so good to me, and I've been so mean! I wish you'd turn around home and let me go and cook for those folks. I'd rather do it than feel so mean."

"There won't be anybody to cook for," explained Hosea. "I told Drayton his men must bring their own lunch along, although I did set the OPENED IT BEFORE HER WONDERING GAZE, cooky pot and a pail of milk in the shed for them. I telephoned Frank Perkins that we was called away today and he'd have to excuse us.

"I'll bitch Bessie under the trees here, and then we might as well get down to the beach. The tide's coming in, and I want to get the clams while the long spit is bare. Look here, Ann—I found your fancy work on the table this morning. I brought it along so's you could sew on it."

When Ann withdrew from the loving embrace she had exchanged with her husband they went down to the beach. "You might have brought the newspaper or something, Hosea," she said solicitously. "What you going to do to pass the time?"

"I'm going to fix the eating part, and when that's over I'm going to lie down here and watch you do embroidery work. Then, Ann, we're going to talk it over, you and me, how we can fix things so you won't have to work so hard—how we can make holidays into rest days so's we can enjoy doing our work better. You see, I never thought much about it until night before last, and now I understand. I want to make it right. What do you think, eh?"

What Ann thought was embodied in the tender kiss she laid on his forehead and in the happy smile about her lips. "I've got all the rights I want, Hosea," she said contentedly.

America's Greatest Weekly THE TOLEDO BLADE

Toledo, Ohio.

The Best Known Newspaper in the United States.

Circulation 240,000 Popular in Every State

No Whiskey Advertising

The seventy-sixth year of its existence finds the Toledo Blade more popular than at any period of its remarkable career. It is now read each week by more than a million people. Its field is not circumscribed by State boundaries, but involves the length and breadth of the United States, giving it an unquestionable right of claiming to be the greatest weekly newspaper in the country.

The Weekly Blade is distinctly a family newspaper. The one object of its publishers has always been to make it fit for the American home, for the fire-side, and of interest to every member of the family. To fulfill this purpose it is kept clean and wholesome. The news of the world is handled in a comprehensive manner, and the various departments of The Blade are edited with painstaking care. The Household page is a delight to the women and children; current affairs are treated editorially without prejudice; the serial stories are selected with the idea of pleasing the greatest number of fiction lovers; the Question-Bureau is a scrapbook of information; the Farmstead columns are conducted with the purpose of giving the patrons a medium for the exchange of ideas and information on farm topics. No department is neglected, but every feature is taken care of with the idea of making The Blade worth many times the price of subscription—one dollar a year.

PRESBYTERIANS INCREASING.

Prosperous Year For the Church Shown by the Annual Report.

Presbyterians donated toward all purposes the sum of $22,968,968 during the year ended March 31 last. The total communicants in the church number 1,339,000. These figures were recently given out by the Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts, stated clerk of the general assembly. According to the figures, the Presbyterian church is increasing its membership. The contributions also have kept pace with the increase in membership and are considerably larger than last year.

Contributions were as follows: For congregational purposes, $16,648,300, against $15,712,070 last year; $1,497,271 for home missions, as against $1,541,665 last year; foreign missions, $1,311,413 ($1,541,665 in 1909); for education, $149,437 ($137,832 in 1909); Sunday school work, $205,177 ($171,456 in 1909); church erection, $211,786 ($150,557 in 1909); relief fund, $172,988 ($139,019 in 1909); for freedmen's work, $238,352 ($154,722 in 1909); colleges, $460,203 ($424,687 in 1909); temperance, $136,181 ($133,504 in 1909); miscellaneous, $1,777,074 ($1,650,396 in 1909); total, $22,968,968 ($21,694,756 in 1909).

At present, according to the report, there are 37 synods, 203 presbyteries and 10,011 churches. Last year there were 9,907 churches. The number of ordained ministers in the church is at present 9,073, the greatest number in its history. Candidates for the ministry numbered 1,152, also a record for any year. The Sunday school membership of the church is 1,211,527, this number of children in the Sunday schools, it is pointed out, being larger in proportion to the number of communicants than in any other denomination.

HONOR FOR BELMONT ABBEY

Pius X. Makes It a Cathedral Abbey, the First in North America.

The Benedictine fathers of the Sacred Heart church at Savannah, Ga., announced recently that Pope Pius X. had raised Belmont abbey, at Belmont, N. C., to the dignity of a cathedral abbey, with its own territory and jurisdiction. Eight counties in North Carolina are attached to the new see.

This honor is the highest the Catholic church ever confers on an abbey. Belmont is the only one of this rank in North America and one of only eighteen of this class in the world.

All future abbots of Belmont, by virtue of its raised dignity, will have with few exceptions, the rights and privileges of a bishop, with all a bishop's obligations. This honor is principally due to the zeal and energy of the venerable Abbot Bishop Haid, who in 1885, with eight young Benedictines, went to Belmont from the great monastery of St. Vincent's in Pennsylvania. The college and monastery was erected in a North Carolina wilderness.

The canonical erection of the abbey will be formally promulgated some time in October, when Abbot Bishop Haid will celebrate his silver jubilee in the presence of high dignitaries of the church.

A Christian Grammar.

The bishop of Cambridge once gave a lesson in "Christian grammar" to a class he was teaching. He said: "We have all learned to say in school: 'First person—I; Second person—Thou; Third person—He.

"But that is wrong in Christian grammar, so wrong that to put it right one has to turn it quite upside down. The Christian grammar is: 'First person—He; Second person—Thou; Third person—I.

"And 'he' means God, the first person in the first place. Then 'thou' means one's fellow man, and 'I' myself comes last."—CHRISTIAN INTELLIGENCER.

Nearness to God.

It is only in and through an awakened and active conscience that we realize our nearness to God—his interest in us and our interest in him. Without a moral nature of our own we could not recognize the moral character and moral government manifested in him. We might tremble before his power, as we might admire his skill, but his righteousness would be hidden from us. His moral laws would be meaningless to us, and their practical advantages or physical disasters. But a God without righteousness is no true God, and the worship which has no moral element in it is no true worship.

Religious Bodies of London.

London has at least forty-five different denominations of Christians. Glasgow boasts its thirty-four religious bodies and Edinburgh its twenty-five. In spite of the Methodist union three years ago, there are still five or six varieties of Methodist societies in London, while there are two other "reformed" offshoots from the Church of England, three different Baptist bodies and three kinds of Presbyterians—English, Scotch and Welsh.

Christian Endeavor's Growth.

At the last meeting of the United Society of the Christian Endeavor it was reported that new Endeavor societies are being organized in the United States at the rate of six a day. The supporters of the movement are confident that by next summer they will have reached the goal set at the St. Paul convention last summer—10,000 new societies and a million new members.

Electric Bitters

Succeed when everything else fails. In nervous prostration and female weaknesses they are the supreme remedy, as thousands have testified.

FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND STOMACH TROUBLE

It is the best medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter.

Staggers Skeptics.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove it's a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Milady's Mirror

If you would keep your looks beyond their natural limit practice self control. Nothing so quickly wrecks the nerves, hence the looks, as letting oneself go.

It may be easier to fly into a rage at trivialities, to pucker the face with worry or to shake with fear, but the woman with regard for keeping young learns to quell these emotions in the interest of nervous force.

Have you ever stopped to consider what unchecked anger takes out of you? Leaving consideration for your victim or a regard for conventions out of the question, "getting mad" weakens one physically and mentally, and nerves suffer.

Have you never said "I feel as weak as a rag" after indulging in a temper? The next time you make that remark put the blame in the right place. Learn that rage is weakening and aging and you will have taken a long step toward self control.

Cowardice as an emotion is debasing to the soul. It is also wrinkling to the flesh and destructive of nervous force. The woman who lives in a tremor of fear, getting into an equal panic whether she sees a mouse or a murderer, who lies awake half the night listening for possible marauders, who gets pleasure in nothing through her insensate fear of horse, mink, canoe or yacht, is the woman who will soon look her years—and more.

If nervous peace is to be yours keep a grip on your emotions. Love not hate nor fret nor fear not, envy not nor rage not—to excess. Better a colorless character than a wornout body—if the choice must be made. The mistake lies in thinking emotions controlled are emotions lacking. One makes for strength so surely as the other is a sign of weakness.

A White Throat.

At this season the girl who has gone collarless the summer through is beginning to be anxious about the state of her throat. The day of drastic treatment is at hand if her neck is to look well in winter. The skin is browned from exposure to the sun.

To whiten it rub it each night with lemon, letting it stay on all night. If there are rough places in the skin it can be gone over with a fine pumice stone dipped in lemon juice.

In the morning rinse off with warm water in which a little almond meal has been dissolved. This whitens and smooths the skin.

A more decided bleach is made from eight ounces of alcohol, four ounces of rosewater and a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin. Saturate a thin piece of linen in the liquid and pin around the throat and let it stay on for an hour. Then massage with a good cucumber cream.

Take It For What It's Worth.

Pork is not commonly reported to be a hygienic food, and assuredly it has no aesthetic associations. It is therefore somewhat surprising to hear a diet of pork recommended to the beauty seeker. Such is the latest dictum, however, and in proof of its wisdom we are asked to note the clear, velvety skins of the country girls with whom pork is a staple article of diet. Pork is supposed to produce this velvety effect by supplying oily matter to the skin. It acts as a sort of natural cosmetic and is much less expensive than the creams city women employ to counteract the harshness and dryness of their complexions. In the absence of pork bacon is recommended.

The Curse of Red Hair.

Even Titian did not succeed in removing the curse from red hair, for it is variously accused of causing anything from temper to freckles. And now comes an English scientist who is trying to blame it for shortness of stature. By a system of statistics all his own he has figured that among boys and girls at the age of fourteen the shortest invariably have red hair. Among girls those with black and blond hair take first place in height, and among boys the light browns are easy winners. The figures look conclusive, but those who do not like them may reflect with Mark Twain that all statistics are watered stock.

Use a Medicine Ball.

A medicine ball is a good possession for any one shut up in an office all day. A few minutes spent in throwing it will send the blood coursing through the veins. Fencing and bowling are both admirable sports for those who need exercise, and every office worker should seek out some opportunity of practicing them. And in any case she ought to do all the outdoor walking she can get into the day without overwearying herself.

To Restore Fair Hair.

When fair hair begins to lose luster it is a good plan to apply olive oil liberally, comb the hair thoroughly and then to expose it for some hours to the direct rays of a warm sun. The exposure may be repeated on the following day, and on the third day the hair may be washed if deemed necessary with warm soap lather and be rinsed.

"CREATORS OF SALOON KEEPERS."

Every man is a moral being, created with moral instincts, written on his heart so plainly that each man discerns moral right from moral wrong. The untutored Indian of America knows his duty to his fellow men, in his sphere of life, and when met with tokens of friendship, by his white neighbor, will in turn partake of the salt of peace.

The question here raised is, Does man know moral evil from moral good; will light and knowledge obtained by study, association and environment, increase his responsibility, rather than diminish it? Is the road to hell made any smoother, when D. D.s give their vote to make drinking popular? Is it the voter who runs the saloon to-day, and by his consent enacts laws by his agent, that his own soul condemns? The D. D. now turns to distillers, brewers and saloons and with great pathos cries aloud saying, "I have voted with you, but my friends, who are your friends, have asked me to serve them, as their nominee on the local option party, for the legislature, and I greatly desire to serve them."

It is better for the trade to have some local districts in which no sales will be made by saloons. To support "a good man," who stands on an evil platform, is building your house upon the sand. Who would entrust his liberty in the hands of an Arnold, or his faith to the keeping of a Judas? "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" is received as universal law of the highest order, in all lands in theory, but is not applied in practice, else there would be no saloons in all the land, and every man, engaged in the trade, would let his own soul go out, in native love to his fellows, as to his own son. I plead in love for your son—your brother.

The man, who, himself has voted with and for distiller and brewer, is himself a promoter of the trade, no matter what his profession, trade, or occupation, and in condemning those that sell and drink, condemns himself morally, with the seller and drinker. And no words spoken against the trade, will ever ease the drunkard's pain and remorse, or wash away the ruin, reproach and shame entailed on his wife and children.

Oh! that I had God's law observed,
For it I knew so well,
Then had I sought to free my friend,
From paths that lead to hell,
It was rum's curse that laid him low,
And led him into strife,
That made him seek his brother's blood,
And penned him up for life,
And every man, who votes for rum,
Is selling the cursed cup—
His act condemns his soul to woe,
Though he ne'er takes a sup.
—John C. Moore.

Explodes a Favorite Plea.

With unflinching regularity apologists for the beer traffic point to Germany, and paint entrancing pictures of the quiet German and his family, as they repair to the beer garden to enjoy their harmless pleasures, etc., etc., and we are told that Germany is a paragon of temperance and that through the beer garden lies America's way to prosperity and peace and happiness. The current rapid progress of the temperance movement in the Fatherland, caused as it is by the alarming increase of drunkenness and attendant evils in this home of beer, has the "put a crimp" in all of that.

And the awakening of thought on the question of temperance is not to be wondered at. Circulars by the German Abstaining Physicians Society show that hospital cases of alcoholism have increased five hundred per cent. in twenty years and that cases of delirium tremens have increased a hundred times as fast as the population in that time. Twenty-five per cent. of the convicts in Prussian penitentiaries are habitual drunkards. Reports of the Building Trade Insurance Society of Zurich show that the accidents reported on Monday exceed those of all other days of the week by 42 per cent., and the Sunday drinking is noted as the chief reason for this remarkable circumstance.

Bean Soup for Dipsomania.

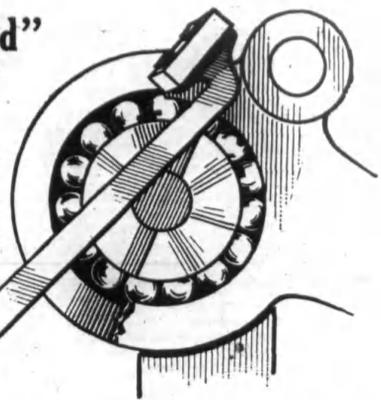

At Burlington, N. J., the "bean soup" remedy introduced by Sheriff William W. Worrell as one of his economy and reform plans is not only saving Burlington County several hundred dollars monthly but is making more real converts to temperance than any cure yet discovered. Criminals who have studied the phenomenal results of the bean soup programme pronounce it a greater success than the "wash and work" edict by which the new Sheriff has cleaned the county of tramps.

Has the Danger, Gets No Pay.

An attempt was made to blow up the residence of Mr. Fultz, a well-to-do merchant of Leetonia, Ohio, doubtless because of his activity as a member of the local vigilance committee which is endeavoring to enforce the law against saloons, while old party officials draw the pay and do nothing. A dynamite bomb with the fuse burned to within two feet of the explosive was discovered inside his door.

How Would a "Full Jewelled" Typewriter Appeal to You?

Every important bearing in an expensive watch is a small gem of a hardness not susceptible to wear. The purpose of the jewels is to insure by reduction of friction and wear, the accuracy which makes a timepiece valuable.

The first successful use of a ball-bearing typebar in a writing-in-sight machine was by the manufacturers of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Ball Bearings not only for the typebars, but at all vital wearing points of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter are made to serve exactly the same purpose as the jewelled bearings of an accurate, expensive watch. They prevent play and false motion, banish friction, and insure to the operator, for every ounce of energy applied, a full equivalent of perfect work. You demand a full jewelled watch. Why not a full ball-bearing typewriter?

ALL THE WRITING ALWAYS IN SIGHT

DYSPEPSIA ON THE DECLINE
Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure Forty-nine Cases out of Fifty.

Why anyone in Genoa should continue to suffer with indigestion when a box of Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets, will cure, is certainly a mystery. J. S. Banker has been selling Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets for some time, and I know from actual experience right here in my own store just what Seaver's Famous Dyspepsia Tablets will do, and if you will inquire of J. S. Banker, the druggist, he will tell you he never knew a remedy to prove so decidedly beneficial in the treatment of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation, sleeplessness and other forms of stomach trouble.

It certainly ought to give you confidence when you know that every 50c box of Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets contains 20 days treatment, and at the end of that time if you are not decidedly benefited all you need to do is to go back to the dealer and get your money. Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold right on their own merits. They cure indigestion simply by toning up the stomach and digestive organs so that the food will assimilate and give strength to the system just as nature intended. Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets are such a good nerve tonic, too. Just try a box and see if it don't give you new energy, new ambition and new courage to carry out your plans and daily work. If it doesn't your money back.

It Saved His Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis., "Ten years of eczema, that 15 doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles, 25c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

Whistler as a Horseman.
Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler, with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."
"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler!" cried the dragoon. "Yours is a war horse, sir!"
"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler. "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."
"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man. "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Among Those Present.
Commenting with light irony on the pretensions of a certain nouveau riche, a contributor to Paris Figaro questions whether men of this type are any sillier than those of a past generation who belonged to well known families of long descent.
"There was one of the family of Croy," this contributor writes, "who was fond of showing an old painting of Noah entering the ark and crying out:
"Sauvez les papiers de la maison de Croy!" (Save the records of the house of Croy!)"

Corrected His Error.
With the Germans the absentminded college professor is a stock source of witticisms.
One of these deeply absorbed gentlemen, sitting on a rear seat, thought he knew a person sitting in front and was about to speak to him when, the stranger by chance turning a little, the professor saw that he was mistaken.
Nevertheless, touching him on the shoulder, he remarked politely:
"You will excuse me, but you are not the person I thought you were."

About Face.
Miss Prude—I just heard that Mr. Upton had an accident—in fact, that he broke his—er—limb, you know. Do you know how it happened, Mr. Jones?
Mr. Jones—Why—er—he was gathering apples, you see, and he fell from the—aw—er—that is, the leg of the tree.—Ladies' Home Journal

A Possible Remedy.
"The ocean doesn't seem to agree with you," consoled the ship's doctor, who had prescribed everything conceivable.
"Perhaps it would," moaned the other. "I haven't tried it yet."—Puck.

Talent Recognized.
"Jeppers doesn't appear to have the slightest idea of practical politics."
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "his assumption of ignorance on the subject proves him a most astute politician."—Washington Star.

Eating Time.
Friend—So you dined at a way station. What did you have for dinner?
Traveler—Twenty minutes.—Kansas City Journal.

Justice is the bread of nations. They are always famishing for it.—Jordan.

The National Flag.
The first display of the national flag at a military post was at Fort Schuyler, on the site of the present city of Rome, N. Y. The fort was besieged early in August, 1777. The garrison was without a flag, so one was made according to the prescription of congress by cutting up sheets to form the white stripes, bits of scarlet cloth for the red stripes, and the blue ground for the stars was made from a piece of the blue cloak belonging to Captain Abraham Swartwout of Dutchess county, N. Y. This flag was unfurled over the fort on Aug. 3, 1777.

The national flag was first unfurled in battle on the banks of the Brandywine Sept. 11, 1777. The flag was first hoisted over a foreign stronghold June 28, 1778, when Captain Rathbone of the American sloop of war Providence captured Fort Nassau, on the Bahama islands. Captain Paul Jones was the first man to display the American flag on an American vessel. This flag was made by the women of Portsmouth, N. H., for the Ranger, which was fitted out at that port for Captain Jones. The Ranger sailed from Portsmouth on Nov. 1, 1777.

Buried Landscapes.
One of the most curious results of geological exploration is the discovery of "buried landscapes," by which is meant parts of the former face of the earth now covered under later deposits, but yet retaining so many of their original features that the geologist can ideally reconstruct the scenes that would have been presented to the eye of man if he had been present among them. Sometimes buried landscapes exist in countries now densely inhabited. Investigation has shown that one lies beneath the region in England known as Charwood forest. The rocky projections seen there are the peaks and arêtes of a buried mountain chain belonging to the old red sandstone period. Several different phases in the history of this landscape have been traced. At one time it contained salt lakes and desert expanses. In its modern form it is a pastoral region, with barren, stony tracts and rocky eminences where the ancient mountains project through the soil.—Detroit Free Press.

How He Took It.
"In training," said an instructor in athletics, "the strictest obedience is required. Whenever I think of the theory of training I think of Dash, who, after eighteen years of married life, is one of the best and happiest husbands in the world."
"Dash," I once said to him, "well, Dash, old man, how do you take married life?"
"According to directions," he replied.

The Sixth Sense.
In a primary school examination over which I once had the pleasure to preside one of the questions was with regard to the five senses. One of the bright pupils handled the subject thus:
"The five senses are sneezing, sobbing, crying, yawning and coughing. By the sixth sense is meant an extra one which some folks have. This is snoring." — Woman's Home Companion.

Merely a Question of Comfort.
"Now, doctor," complained a bibulous patient, "my great trouble is elephants—ink ones. Not that I object to elephants, you understand. I like them, but they do crowd one so."—Success Magazine.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary.
Fifty friends and relatives gathered at the home of Edget Shurger and wife at Ithaca, Friday evening, Sept. 23, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The yard was decorated with Japanese lanterns and a long table enclosed, lighted with lanterns and trimmed with flowers to which the guests were seated at ten, and refreshments served by Harry Atwell, Roy Shurger, Misses Alice Slight, Mabel Corey and Viola Fuller. Mr. and Mrs. Shurger received many costly and handsome presents including twenty-five twenty-five cent silver pieces and other pieces of silver money, showing the esteem in which they are held. Mrs. Charles Shaw, Walter and Clarence and Miss Minnie, of King Ferry, Mrs. Thad Corey of Ledyard, Wilbur Genung, Mrs. Artnar Genung, and daughter Ethel, of Dryden, Oscar Baker and wife, LeVere Baker and wife, Truman Baker of Danby, Misses Alice Slight of Enfield and Viola Fuller of McKinney's. Several were present who attended the wedding twenty-five years ago.

LaRowe Re-union.
The reunion was held at Mr. and Mrs. Frank LaRowe's on the old LaRowe homestead near Oakwood, Saturday, the 24th inst. Thirty-one people were present, only one brother and one sister with their families in Ohio and a few grandchildren being absent.
The house was prettily decorated with flowers. At the noon hour the brothers and sisters assembled in the dining room where the table was tastefully decorated with large bouquets of white asters and red dahlias. All did full justice to the bountiful dinner of meats, vegetables, cakes, ice cream and candies and other good things.

The day was given to visiting and playing football and baseball, even having a fat man's race. As the day grew old the reunion broke up pleasantly, all looking forward to the next reunion.

Those present outside of Springport were: Mrs. S. M. Cornell and son of Venice, Reed LaRowe and family of Fleming, David LaRowe, wife and son of Aurelius, Mrs. L. Banks and Mrs. P. Cornell of Fleming and Arthur Leader, wife and daughter of Poplar Ridge.

Minister's Salaries.
In a bulletin just issued by the government there are given to the public many interesting facts relative to the number and salaries of ministers in our leading cities and as to church finances generally. The figures show that there were in 1906, 164,830 Christian ministers in the United States, besides 1,084 Jewish rabbis, and they increase at the rate of nearly 4,000 a year. Their average salary is $663 and there was paid to them in 1906 a total of $69,667,587. Baptists and Methodists have more than half the whole number of ministers in the country. There are in Manhattan and Brooklyn scores of ministers whose salaries exceed $5,000 a year. The highest salary ever offered a minister in New York was $18,000 a year and a house, offered last year by the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, and declined.

Several ministers receive $15,000 a year, and there are a dozen or more who get $12,000. These salaries are the highest in the world.
The average salaries of ministers in cities having 300,000 population and over, for the principal religious bodies are: Baptists, $1,793; Congregational, $1,938; Methodist, $1,842; Presbyterian, $2,450; Protestant Episcopal, $1,873; Reformed, $1,938; Catholic, $684; and Jewish Rabbis, $1,491. Methodist ministers get most of all, the salaries amounting annually to $16,150,000. Baptists receive the next highest, $10,323,000; Presbyterians, $7,610,000; Roman Catholics, $6,779,000; Episcopalians, $4,887,000; Congregationalists, $4,154,000; Reformed, $1,682,000; and Jews, $801,000.—The Christian Herald.

It Saves You Money.
The special half-price sale of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia by J. S. Banker means the saving of a few dollars on every family's yearly bill for medicines.
Mr. J. S. Banker has so much faith in the superior merit of this medicine that he says: "If Dr. Howard's specific does not cure you, come back to his store and he will return your money."
This remedy is not an ordinary medicine. It is the favorite formula of a well known physician, and has the endorsement of hundreds of physicians of eminence in their profession, who prescribe it in cases of constipation, dyspepsia or liver trouble, knowing from experience that it will make a complete and lasting cure.

Charity.
Did universal charity prevail earth would be a heaven and hell a fable.—Cotton.

Bradley-Cleaver.
A brilliant wedding took place at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cleaver at West Gaines, N. Y., on Saturday, Sept. 24, at 7 o'clock, when their second daughter, Edith Mae, became the bride of Mr. Eugene A. Bradley of King Ferry.
The house was profusely decorated for the occasion, palms and pink and white asters being used. The ceremony took place beneath a floral bell, suspended from a floral arch, and was performed by Rev. S. D. Waterbury, pastor of Knowlesville Presbyterian church, the ring service being used. The bride's gown was embroidered net over white silk, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses. Her only ornament was a diamond necklace, the gift of the groom.
The matron of honor was the older sister of the bride, Mrs. J. W. Sinclair, who wore a gown of gray silk crepe, and Mr. Sinclair acted as best man. Miss Freda Cleaver, a sister of the bride, gowned in blue, and Miss Florence Pratt in yellow silk, were the bride's maids, and Ruth E. Bradley acted as flower girl.
The bride gave her attendants gold brooches and lockets, and the best man received a signet pin.
After congratulations, a very fine three course supper was served to about sixty-five relatives and friends. Music was furnished by the Lutten-ton orchestra.
The bride received a large number of gifts, including silver, cut glass and linen. A linen shower was given for the bride by Miss Florence Pratt at her home in Albion on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 20.
The newly wedded pair were driven to Albion station, where they took the midnight train for the West and Lima, O., where the groom has two brothers connected with the Lima Packing Co. The bride's going away gown was blue French serge with hat to match.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Dan Bradley and two daughters, Misses Antoinette and Helen, Archie, Eugene and Ruth Bradley, all of King Ferry; David P. Bradley of Lima, Ohio; Mrs. George L. Ferris and Harry S. Ferris of Atwater; Mrs. George Shaw of Olcott; Mrs. Karl Kimball and son, Misses Florence Pratt and Cora Lutten-ton, all of Albion; J. Harris and wife of Kenyonville; Allie Kelsey and wife of Kent.

Old Cayuga Lake Pilot.
Albert E. Smith, aged 67 years, died Saturday, Sept. 17, in the City hospital, Ithaca. Deceased is survived by two sons. Mr. Smith is said to have been the most skillful pilot that ever navigated Cayuga Lake's waters. He was employed as deck hand on the steamer Frontenac when it made its first trip, and he was acting as pilot when the craft was burned on July 27, 1908, with considerable loss of life. He was struck by lightning on one of the lake steamers three years ago and had not been in good health since. For a number of years he was a member of the Ithaca police force.
