PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly intrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly pany's good name." believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

This time Gantry's grin was playful, but behind it there was a shrewd flash of the Irish blue eyes that Blount did not see

"Ah!" said Blount calmly, giving the exclamation the true Boston inflection.

"You are either too shrewd or not quite shrewd enough, Dick. You covered that up with a laugh so that I might take it as a joke if I happened to be too thin skinned to take it in disreputable earnest. Let us understand each other. We are fighting in the open in this campaign. Publicity is the word. I have Mr. McVickar for my authority. Anybody who wants to know anything about the railroad company's business in this state can learn it for the asking and at first hand. and I have mine." he returned. "What you say goes as it lies, of course, but I shouldn't be too hard on the little brothers if I were you.

"If by the 'little brothers' you mean the pie eaters I'm going to fire them out neck and crop, Richard. They make me excessively weary." Gantry's playful mood fell away from him like a castoff garment.

"I don't quite believe I'd do that if I were you, Evan. There are pie eaters on both sides in every political contest, and, while they can't do any cause any great amount of good, they can often do a good bit of harm. I wouldn't be too hard on them if I were

"What would you do, or, rather, what did you do when you were managing the state campaign two years ago?" inquired Blount pointedly.

"I cut the pie." said the traffic manager simply.

"In other words, you let this riffraff blackmail you and incidentally put a big black mark against the com-> able fight against corporate capital. Don't you see it?" Gantry shrugged his shoulders.

"I guess I take the line of the least resistance-like the majority of them." was the colorless reply. "When it comes to practical politics"-"Don't say 'practical politics' to me, Dick," rasped the reformer. "We've got the strongest argument in the world in the fact that the present law is an unfair one, needing modification or repeal. We mustn't spoil that argument by becoming lawbreakers ourselves and descending to the methods of the grafters and the machine politicians the country over. If you have been sending these ple enters to me. don't do it any more. I have no use for them, and they won't have any use for me after I open up on them." "I don't believe I'd do anything rash," said Gantry. Dating from this little heart to heart talk with the traffic manager, Blount began to carry out the new policy-"the starvation policy," as it soon came to be known among the would be henchmen. The result was not altogether reassuring. Many of the small grafters were on the payrolls of the railroad company. and Blount was soon definitely assured of what he had before only suspected -that they were merely nominal employees, given a payroll standing so that there might be an excuse for giving them free transportation and a retainer in the form of wages, if need-

In many cases the ramifications of the petty graft were exasperatingly intricate. For example, one Thomas Gryson, who was on the payrolls as a machinist's helper in the repair shops, demanded free transportation across the state for eight members of his "family." Questioned closely, he admitted that the "family" was his only by a figure of speech; that the relationship was entirely political. Blount promptly refused to recommend the issuing of employees' passes for the eight, and the result was an immediate call from Bentley, the division master mechanic

"About that fellow Greson," Bentley began. "Can't you manage some way to get him transportation for his Jonesboro crowd? He is going to make trouble for us if you don't."

Blount was justly indignant. "Gryson is on your payroll," he retorted. 'Why don't you recommend the passes on account of the motive power department, if he is entitled to them?"

"I can't," admitted the master mechanic. "I am held down to the issuing of passes to employees traveling on company business only. We can stretch it a little sometimes, of course, but we can't make it cover the whole

"Neither can I," Blount exploded. "Let it be understood, once for all, Mr. Bentley, that I am not the scapegoat for all the other departments. I have cut it off short. I am not recommending passes for anybody."

"But, suffering Scott, Mr. Blount, we've simply got to take care of Tom Gryson! He's the boss of his ward. and he has influence enough to turn even our own employees against us!"

"Influence!" scoffed the young man from the east. "How does he acquire his influence? It is merely another illustration of the vicious circle. You put into his hands the price of the club with which he proceeds to knock you down. Let me tell you what I'm telling everybody. If we want a square deal we've got to set the example by

The master mechanic went away, silenced, but not convinced. A week later Gryson, who in appearance was a typical tough and in reality was a postgraduate of the lawless mining camps of the Carnadine hills, sauntered into Blount's office with an insolent taunt in his mouth.

"Well, pardner, we got them dickey birds over to Jonesboro after so long a time, and no thanks to you, neither. I just blew in to tell you that I'm going to hit you again about day after tomorrow, and if you don't come across there's going to be something doing-

Blount sprang from his chair and forgot to be politic.

"You needn't come to me the day after tomorrow or any other time." he raged. "I'm through with you and your tribe. Get out!"

After Gryson had gone, muttering threats and curses, the young campaign manager had an attack of moral nausea. It seemed such a huge waste of time and energy to traffic and chaffer with these petty scoundrels. Thus far every phase of the actual political problem seemed to be meanly degrading, and he was beginning to long keenly for an opportunity to do some really worthy thing. Notwithstanding his ideals were still unshaken. That evening at the cafe dinner at the Inter-Mountain he found his father waiting for him and in a burst of confidence told him of the invitation. "That's good," was the senator's even toned comment. "Gives you a little chance to shine the way you can shine best, doesn't It?" Then, "That was one of the things McVickar wanted you for, wasn't it?" "Why, yes. He intimated that there might be some public speaking," admitted the younger man. "Well, what all are you going to tell these Ophir fellows when you get over there, son?" asked the veteran quizzically. "Going to offer 'em all free passes anywhere they want to go if they'll promise to vote for the railroad candidates?"

"Not this year," was the laughing eply, "As I told you a week or so ago we've stopped all that."

tried to be strictly truthful. "I have had but one interview with Mr. McVickar, but in that he gave me to understand that my recommendations would be given due consideration, and I have said my say pretty emphatically." The senator's smile was not derisive.

It was merely lenient. "Sat on 'em good and hard, did you? That's right, son. Never be afraid to say what you mean and to say it straight. "I shouldn't wonder if she was having the time of her life too. I've giv on her the little four seated car to call her own while she is out here, and she and Honoria go coreering around the country, breaking the speed limit every minute in the day, I suppose."

"It's too bad you're going out of town tonight, son. Honoria phoned me a little spell ago that she and Patricla would be driving down after dinner to take in the Weatherford reception. You'll miss 'em, won't you?"

"Isn't that just my infernal luck!" lamented Evan; then, "Give them my love and tell them I hope they will stay until I get back."

The senator rose and gripped the hand of leavetaking. "Shall I say that to both of 'em?" he asked, with the quizzical smile which Evan was learn-

"Yes, to both of them, if you like, only I suppose Mrs. Blount will hold it against me. Good night and goodby. I'll be back day after tomorrow if the Ophir miners don't mob me."

It was only a few minutes after Evan Blount's train had steamed Ophirward out of the Sierra avenue station that a dust covered touring car drew up at the curb in front of the Inter-Mountain and the porter who had put Blount's hand bag into the taxicab opened the tonneau door for two ladies in muffling dust coats and heavy veils. The senator met the two late travelers in the vestibule, and while the three were waiting for an elevator a rapid fire of low toned question and answer passed between husband and

"You got Evan out of the way?" The husband nodded. "That was Miss Anners was watching the elevator lights glow and darken as the car descended, and the wife's voice sank to a whisper.

"He will be at the Weatherfords'?" she inquired eagerly. "He is sure to be. I told him you would be there." The small plotter nodded approval. "Give us half an hour to dress and have the car ready," she directed, and then the senator put the two into the Names In Electricity.

Electricity is the one branch of science that honors the great names in its fundamental terminology. Andre Marle Ampere was the French physicist who first measured the current and for whom the unit is named. The ohm bears the name of George S. Ohm, a German man of science who discovered the law on which the unit of electrical resistance is based. The volt is named for the Italian Volta, the greatest electrical authority of the eighteenth century, who was the first man to construct a rude electric battery. The farad, the unit of electrical capacity, is named in honor of the English physicist Faraday; the colomb. the unit of quantity, for the French physicist Coulomb, and the watt. the unit of power, for James Watt, the Scotch inventor who improved the steam engine.

Herbert Spencer Was Human. Herbert Spencer in the attitude of superintending his household affairs was practical and amusing. At one time the poulterer had not been giving satisfaction, so Mr. Spencer called his housekeeper and gave her directions to transfer his custom to another tradesman whose shop faced the delinquent's. "And, Miss Smith," said the author of "Synthetic Philosophy." "be particular that the first poulterer sees you giving your orders to the secend poulterer!"

VIEWPOINT

SACRIFICES WE MAKE

By BYRON WILLIAMS

HE wife of Deucalion, standing upon Mount Parnassus, cast down stones, and they became women.

Mothers of today, standing upon the pure pastoral hills of America, are casting their pearls at the feet of the city werewolf, and the sacrifices become women, sometimes in a nightwomen who look back through sodden tears and moan:

"Oh, why didn't mother tell me something?"

Yesterday I read a letter written by a modern Mary Magdalene—a woman who a few years ago was a rosy cheeked child, as pure as Diana, as virtuous as Vesta. The world to her was a mellifluous stream, calm and placid. She spoke no evil, saw no e7il, thought no evil, heard no evil. And then she went to the city.

The letter, written to a charity worker, was no different from many others. One could print a thousand letters like this and send them into the country to be used later by unfortunate girls who today are safe and happy.

She had come to the city at eighteen. It was wonderful at first. And then loneliness came, that dull, heavy longing that grips the heart and depresses the spirit, that leaden yearning to see some familiar face, to touch some hand whose pressure you have known in happier days. Thoughts of the roses back home, for it was June,

H HEYER

THAT WAS THE BEGINNING OF THE END. took possession of her, and a mad desire to know some one who could understand swayed her usual reserve. Mephisto, gilded and radiant, strolled in from the wings and understood. He talked to her of home, of the little stream that gurgled and sang its song past the rustic bridge, of the glorious colors of the wood in the autumnal tinted fall, of fireplaces bright with cheer on nights when the storm gods ruled the land, of moonlit nights in May and lovers wandering down them into Arcadia. Oh, he talked of all the things she loved the best! And then one night he talked of love.

And when he had won her love he took her through the "family entrance" to a fashionable restaurant and baited her with lemonade and salads. And when her fears were stilled and her pure as a bird reposing in its downy nest he prevailed upon her to taste

That was the beginning of the end. In her letter yesterday she said, "Help me or I shall kill myself!"

For her the box of Pandora was wide open and even hope threatened to

Why didn't her mother tell her something? What right had she to let false modesty stand in the way? How can she justify the act of casting this innocent child at the feet of Mephistopheles without a warning, without an education, if you please, against the inferno that awaits every girl who goes to the city to make her way?

It is a good thing for the progress of cities that country mothers do not know the real conditions; otherwise the great mills that feed on the flesh of our children would clank and rattle in vain for provender.

Before you let your daughter go to the sacrifice tell her what life is. Remember the girl who from the dregs of despair sent up her cry: ."O God, why didn't mother tell me

THE MERE MAN'S CONCRETE HOUSE IS ATTRACTIVE

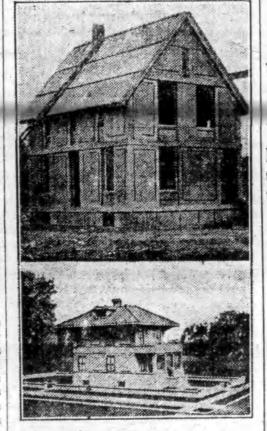

Substantial and Durable and Easily Built.

WILL "DRESS UP" YOUR TOWN

Modern Science Has Given Us a New Type of Home to Take Place of Modest Workingman's Abode and Preserve Our Depleting Timber Supply. By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

Are we approaching the age of cement? Is concrete the answer to the decreasing timber supply? Are we to have ready made houses just as some of us now buy ready made clothes? By standardization the cement houses of the Edison and other patterns are assuming much the same relation to architecture and building as hand-medown suits bear to tailoring. The standardizing process is that of making many houses from the same molds, thus materially reducing the cost.

The Edison method of building concrete houses is the one above described. To save time and to prevent too much sameness in type he recommends the use of 'alf a dozen different molds by each construction company. To build an Edison house the mold is put in place, and the concrete, consisting of a mixture of sand, gravel and portland cement, is poured in. After the concrete bardens the mold is removed. and there is your house. During the hardening process a second mold can be set up and another house built while you wait. He estimates that one outfit consisting of thirty-seven men can thus erect 104 houses each year at an average cost of $1,200 per house of six rooms, with a slightly higher expense per additional room for those of larger size. For variations in pattern he does not depend alone on the different molds, but has changes of porches and other slight details in the same mold; also difference of color. Thus a house confidence in him was as beautiful and of a given pattern looks very different in green from one in purple, red or yellow. The paint is a mixture of cement and practically lasts forever, like the smile that won't come off. Even the roofs are made of cement.

flood proof and wind proof, but rat proof and mouse proof. The concrete is harder than granite, and a rat has about as much chance of getting through that man would have of drilling a hole through a twelve inch steel plate with wooden toothpick. The only thing that can injure a concrete house is an adult earthquake, and even it would have to be some shakes to make much of an impression. There are cement houses in Italy that have stood for a thousand years. The Mexican adobes are so ancient that nobody knows when their ugliness first took form.

The Edison type is not the only one. Another is the house built of immense concrete blocks or sections. These sections are so large that they have to be handled with a derrick, and it is proposed to make them larger still, including the whole side of a house in one block. The plan for these dwellings has been perfected by those connected with the Sage foundation, which is not the foundation of a house, by the way, but of a charity. These estimable people had designs to help the laboring man by giving him a cheap house to live in, but the labor union objected unless the concrete sections could be put in place by masons with mortar and trowel. This especial uplift had an especially rocky road.

As for beauty, we should not be discouraged by the Mexican dabes The homeliness of these domiciles was due not to the material, but to the dians that made the dobes would have put up unly houses even if they bad possessed unlimited quantities of no hogany and Circussian walnut. Indians did not run to the availetic.

Nowadays concrete houses can be brains and pocketbook will permit, and villages should look into this Concrete houses in various tints and patterns could be made infinitely more picturesque than the wooden shacks that disgrace most of the towns. Also they would retain their beauty.

A Tabor Story. Count Boyenta, Mme. Modjeska's husband, was arranging with Senator Tabor for Modjeska's first appearance in Denver, and the founder of dramatic art in Denver asked what parts she played.

"Well," said the count, "there is 'Mary Stuart.' "

"Who wrote it?" asked Tabor,

"Schiller," said the count. "Is he a first class dramatist?" asked Tabor.

"Surely, surely," said the count. "He is most illustrious."

"Humph! Never heard of him," rommented Tabor. "What else does she do?"

"'As You Like It,' 'Antony and Cleopatra,' 'Macbeth' "-"Who wrote them?"

"Shakespeare." "How's he? Good writer?"

"Excellent, excellent." "Well," said Tabor ruminatively,

"those fellows may be all right as anthors, but they ain't well enough known to suit the people out here. What we want is something popular, something that everybody's heard of. I tell you what you do-you get her to give us something of Hoyt's!"

Fearful Fate of Ravaillac.

In these days when executions, if held at all, are mostly carried out in private, it is difficu't for us to understand the feelings of savagery with which an old time mob witnessed a popular execution. Here is Bloundelle Burton's account-from "The Fate of Henry of Navarre"-of the scene when Ravaillac, the assassin of the king, had, after shocking tortures, been torn asunder by wild horses: "The execu tioner had begun to dismember him and was about to cast his remains into the second caldron when the vast crowd prevented him from doing so. They each required a portion of the body of the king's assassin, and most of them obtained one. That night many bonfires blazed in and around Paris, and in their midst were consumed pieces of Ravaillac's frame; on barn doors in other places were nailed similar scraps of his body, as hawks and owls and carrion crows were nailed as a warning to others of their

Grant and Pickett.

New evidence that the great men are the true men-true to themselves, to their country and to their friendsappears in a story told in Colonel Nicholas Smith's book, "Grant, the Man of Mystery."

While Grant was president General G. E. Pickett, who led the fatal charge against the Union forces the last day at Gettysburg, called at the White House to pay his respects. Grant knew that his old comrade at West Point had been made a poor man by the war and offered him the marshalship of Virginia. While sorely needing help, General Pickett knew the heavy draft made upon the president by office seek-

"You can't afford to do this for me," he said, "and I can't afford to take it." "I can afford to do anything I please that is right," Grant replied quietly.

Peppered Ice Cream.

"There's pepper in that," said a restaurant waiter, pointing to a small silver shaker he had placed beside a heaping dish of ice cream he was carring to a guest. "Sure, it's to put on the ice cream, too," he replied when an inquirer failed to see the connection between the two.

"Lots of folks want to put pepper on their ices. You see, if a man's stomach is sensitive the cold cream hurts him, but pepper is stimulating enough to overcome the effects of the cold. And the funny thing is that you don't taste the pepper at all. The ice cream is so cold that it kills the other. If you don't believe it I'll give you some with pepper, and you'll find that there's no taste of pepper there

WORD OF ADVICE TO BOOSTERS

One True Way of Showing Interest in Home Town.

YOUR BUYING

Local Producers and Dealers Deserve and Need Patronage of Their Fellow Townsmen-Straight From the Shoulder Talk From Sedalia, Mo.

No man can be a true booster who is selfish. Nor can one be a booster who harbors petty jealousies and cannot rejoice in the success and prosperity of his neighbor or competitor. Nor can one who bears malice be a sincere booster, for malice is the property of a small soul, and a small soul has no place in the big things of this life. We may proclaim ourselves boosters, we may join the ranks of a booster club and wear a booster button, yet by our acts shall we be known, and until petty Jealousy, enry and selfishness-those things, should they exist, that tend to warp and shrivel men's souls-are eliminated and substituted by unselfish thoughts and a feeling of good will toward each other we cannot hope to succeed.

Men may meet and feast together. they may talk of things that will benefit the city and community, and, while such meetings are always beneficial and instructive to a certain extent. yet it is the acts of men that produce results. How many citizens of Sedalia, active members of the Booster club, a club organized to promote home industry, to build up the institutions we already have, are doing their whole duty in that direction? How many merchants, members of the Booster club, are buying their supplies abroad, goods that could be purchased in Sedalia (and oftentimes at a better price), the same quality, the same brand and free delivery? How many members (not merchants) call for home products when giving an order or making a purchase from their grocer or butcher?

Thousands of dollars that could be and would be kept at home go abroad. There are many worthy enterprises in Sedalia, all employing local help that in turn are spending their earnings in Sedalia, and both employer and employee pay taxes in Sedalla, and the money is being used to keep up our city. Further, do we realize that the continuous employment of the men working in our home institutions is dependent wholly on the output thereof? Other cities that are daily growing in wealth and popularity attribute their growth and prosperity to the loyalty of their home people and speak with pride of their home brands of goods and of how by the continuous interchange of patronage they keep their money at home, thus increasing the volume of their business, the value of their real estate, the population of their city, and, best of all, cultivate a sincere feeling of good will toward each other. There are no petty jealousies in these cities. They haven't time for such thoughts, but instead every one seems trying to be bigger than the other fellow by outdoing him in building up his home institutions

Let us give this matter serious con sideration and let us all be boosters that boost by giving the goods put up or manufactured in Sedalia preference and so tax our minds with this duty (all things being equal) that we will specify these goods when giving an order. We all have a personal interest in the growth and prosperity of our fair city; hence let us during the year demonstrate by our individual efforts that our interest is sincere and loyally support every home institution, large and small, and then we can truthfully say to the world, "Watch Sedalla grow."-Sedalia (Mo.) Democrat Sen-that is fixing its eyes on a definite date when it shall have adopted and carried out a plan making it a better place to work in and to live in. The town criers in petitioning the mayor and council for the appointment of a city plan commission resolved "that this plan be known as the Providence 1936 plan, culminating on that date in the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding in Providence of the first home of absolute religious and civic freedom by an exposition of Providence itself as a city beautiful and a city useful, a pleasant and profitable place for all classes, rich and poor, young and old. to live and work in."

Where the Clerk Chines,

Somebody has said, "The clerks can only wait upon the people who come into the store; it's up to the dealer to bring them in." But that is only a balf truth. It certainly is largely "up to" the clerk to bring them back, and the clerk who has the making of a merchant in himself is continually "bringing them in" to the store-"his" store, as he considers it.

The Vagabond Actor. Moliere raised the status of the actor to a hireling clown who must amuse his king. Sir Henry Irving was even knighted by Queen Victoria, who recognized his magnificent services to dramatic art. But in all the years when Sir Henry was breaking his neck to run back and forth between Victoria's royal residences and the cities where he was playing, to set up his scenes and act for the old queen's amusement and the entertainment of her guests. he was never once officially received by her at court. He had many private audiences, which were much the same for him as to have a chat with any other old lady; but, although he was the possessor of a royal title, a favorite with the royal family and the greatest actor of his age, he never was invited or "commanded," as it is called, to Buckingham palace. The status of vagabondia clung to his gar ments, and he was classed with crooked nobles and other undesirables .-Archie Bell in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Courage and the Flea. Courage is resistance to fear, mas tery of fear, not absence of fear. Except a creature be part coward, it is not a compliment to say it is brave; it is merely a loose misapplication of the word. Consider the flea-incomparably the bravest of all the creatures of God if ignorance of fear were courage. Whether you are asleep or awake, he will attack you, caring nothing for the fact that in bulk and strength you are to him as are the massed armies of the earth to a sucking child. He lives both day and night and all days and nights in the very lap of peril and the immediate presence of death and yet is no more afraid than is the man who walks the streets of a city that was threatened by an earthquake ten centuries before. When we speak of Clive, Nelson and Putnam as men who "didn't know of left lapel of coat. what fear was" we ought always to add the flea-and put him at the head of the procession,-Mark Twain.

The Original Paul Pry. Thomas Hill, familiarly called Temmy Hill, was, says Dr. Brewer, the original Paul Pry. It was from him also that Theodore Hook drew his character of Gilbert Gurney. Planche in his "Recollections" says of Hill: "His specialty was the accurate information be could impart on all the pet ty details of the domestic economy of his friends, the contents of their ward robes, their pantries, the number of pots of preserves in their store closets and of the table papkins in their linen presses, the dates of their births and marriages, the amounts of their tradesmen's bills and whether paid weekly or quarterly. He had been on the press and was connected with the Morning Chronicle. He used to drive Matthews crazy by ferreting out his whereabouts when he left London and popping the information in some pa-

One Thing He Had.

A traveling man who was a cigarette smoker reached town on an early train. He wanted a smoke, but none of the stores was open. Near the station he saw a newsboy smoking and approached him with:

"Say, son, got another cigarette?" "No, sir." said the boy, "but I've got makings.

"All right," the traveling man said. "But I can't roll 'em very well. Will you fix one for me?"

The boy did. "Don't believe I've got a match," said the man after a search through his pockets. The boy handed him a match. "Say, captain," he said, "you ain't got any thing but the habit, have you?"-Every-

Greeley Anecdotes. The distinction of being an illegible writer was one which Horace-Greeley never yielded. On a certain occasion an old compositor ventured to beard the Tribune tion in his sanctum. "Mr. Greeley," he said, "there is a word in this copy that I can't make out. It's either 'pawnbroker' or 'pennyroyal' or 'pantheism.' but I'm not sure which." Mr. Greeley snatched the sheet and stared hard at it. "Well, what blinkity blank idiot wrote that?" he fiercely demanded. "Y-you did. Mr. Greeley." The great man turned back to his work. "Let it go just as it's written." he growled, and the compositor gladly

On another occasion a foreman rushed into the sanctum and told Greeley that the editorial page had just been

The editor sprang to his feet, with an angry bowl, and the foreman fled for his life. The confined sanctum wasn't big enough to hold Greeley in his swelling passion. He rushed down the stairs and out on the sidewalk. A mild little man near the curb was stooping over tying his shoe as the editor emerged. Greeley, mad with rage, rushed at this inoffensive person and kicked him ball across the street. "Ding blame you," he reared, "you

A. Thoughtful Wife.

After weeks of waiting and longing for the sport, rods, reels, gall, erect. everything was in rendinoss for a week's trout fishing. The young wife, the days by working as attendants in amiling joyously, hurried into the the bon hospital, room, extending toward her husband some sticky, speckled papers.

"For goodness sake," he exclaimed. "what on earth are you doing with those old fly papers?'

"I saved them for you from last summer," she answered. "You know you anid you always had to buy flies when they have put several bad checks on you went fishing!"

GOT OUT OF HIS LINE.

And He Felt That the Punishment Fitted the Crime.

Years ago Irvin S. Cobb, the humorous writer, was a correspondent for various out of town papers while working in Paducah. Ky. Not a great deal of genuine news for out of town consumption is manufactured at Paducah. As Mr. Cobb needed the money there was a period during which it appeared that Paducah had become the news center of the middle west. Not a day passed that some astounding story was not printed under a Paducah date. "We stood for them," said the former telegraph editor of a St. Louis paper, "because they were so good, even though we knew they were fakes. But one day the boss called me 'Who is this man Cobb at Paducah?" he asked.

"When I had satisfied his thirst for knowledge he told me to fire Cobb. 'I know all the stories he has written are fakes,' said be, 'but I can't stand for that one he sent us yesterday. I fike some sanity even in a fake story. It must sound as though it might possibly under certain conditions be partly

"So." said the ex-telegraph editor. "I fired Cobb. I thought he would get angry over this, but he didn't. He seemed chastened in spirit, though. He wrote me a letter in which he made no protest or complaint about getting fired. 'It served me right for getting out of my line,' said he. 'That was the only story I ever sent you that was wholly true." - Cincinnati Times-Star.

Dignifying Dad.

The wife of a wealthy business man of Chicago was the daughter of a policeman. As they grew rich both she and her husband concealed the fact as much as possible for the sake of their social prestige. At a luncheon several society women of high position ball been talking about their families. "What was your father's business, Mrs. D.?" was finally asked of the business man's wife. Mrs. D. was not disturbed. "My father was in the copper business," she said, with cool emphasis.

Won His Appointments.

When Hoke Smith was secretary of the interior he was especially generous to Georgians in the matter of dethrow a stick without hitting a Geo. gian. Senator Voorhees of Indiana had been trying to place one or two Hoosier constituents, but had failed. One day the senator came along whis tling "Marching Through Georgia" and keeping step to the tune. "What are you doing that for?" asked Hoke Smith. "Just can't help it," said Senator Voorhees. "It is just like marching through Georgia to come through your department.

He got the appointments that day.

The police of a certain uptown pre cinct in New York have for a long time been trying to get the goods on the keeper of a certain little restaurant. Last Sunday the plain clothes man assigned to the job gave up in despair. "I can't get through the door," he said to a couple of friends. "He knows me. But you take this dollar and go in and buy drinks and then come out and tell me, and I'll make the pinch."

Fine, Bob," said the friends. "Fine Give us the money."

And they went into the restaurant. They were there for an unconscionably long time. By and by they came out, smoking good cigars and obviously pleased with themselves. The detective ran toward them.

"Did you get the drinks, boys?" "Sure, Bob," said they.

Choice of a Wife.,

Jeremy, Taylor very aptly summed up his opinion of the unwise choice of a wife in the following words: "A very fool is he that chooses for beauty principally. His eyes are witty, but his soul is sensual. It is an ill band of affection to tie two hearts together by a little thread of red and white.'

These are indeed true sentiments, and the man is both unwise and unlucky who merely selects his wife because she is a pretty girl. Prettiness alone never yet made for happiness. The girl who can be a true friend, a devoted companion and a loving wife is worth a great deal more to her husband than "the little thread of red and white" which the old time divine condemns.

A Cartographic Curiosity.

Catherine de' Medici once entertained the ambition of acquiring both North and South America as appendages to her crown, and with that object in view she dispatched a couple of her representatives to the scene of operations. The northern section of the enterprise was committed to the charge of the queen's favorite. Troilus de Mesgonez, who was adorned with the Dated Jan. 5-1911. and South America as appendages to Mesgonez, who was adorned with the title of viceroy of France and sailed from Havre with a large fleet, only to be wrecked in the Atlantic. Another favorite, Strozzi, was commissioned to capture South America, but he was no more fortunate than Mesgonez, for he was killed at the Azores. These happenings, however, took a long time to reach the ears of Queen Catherine, and in the meantime she nursed her dreams and prepared a map on which "the new world of the north" and "the new world of the south" figured as new world of the south is new world of the south in the meantime she nursed her the same with vouchers in support thereof to the undersigned, the executive of said deceased, at her place of residence in the Town of Genoa.

Not Liked For Human Food, but Growing In Importance For Forage.

The soy bean, also called the "soja bean," is a native of southeastern Asia and has been extensively cultivated in Japan, China and India since ancient times. The beans are there grown almost entirely for human food. Their them to Caucasian appetites. As a forage crop, however, soy beans have become of increasing importance in parts of the United States, especially

Their culture has greatly increased in recent years, especially in Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and the southern tioned and probably over a much wider area. The earlier varieties mature even in Minnesota, Ontario and Massachusetts.

As a hay plant the soy bean cannot successfully compete with red clover or alfalfa.

The soy bean is especially adapted to the cotton belt and northward into the southern part of the corn belt. The early varieties mature in the northern part of the corn belt, but frequently do not make a sufficient yield to warrant growing them. Farther south, where the later and larger varieties can be grown, the yield is sufficient to make their extensive cultivation very profitable. Generally speaking, the soy bean requires about the same temperature as corn. It is perhaps even better adapted to a warm climate and does not do well in a cool climate.

GARDEN SEED TESTING.

It is important to Know Germinating Qualities of Stock.

As a rule, American gardeners pay very little attention to seed testing, depending mostly upon the seeds they buy as being strong and fresh. However, very often considerable quantities of seed are carried over from one season to another, and these are of more value than any new supplies, because we have proved them by actual cropping on our land and under our conditions. Hence it is very important to know the germinating qualities of such stock to avoid losses or delays. There are several methods of seed testing in common use-placing seeds between layers of moist cloth, sowing in sand and sowing into ground. Each flavor, however, does not commend has its proper place and time. However, unless a test is carefully carried out it is worthless. Thus the operator must know the degree of heat and amount of moisture most suitable. The same treatment will not do for all, We must try to get as near as possible at natural conditions.

We must consider the season. Some seeds are very difficult to sprout in winter, and the nearer we approach their natural sprouting season the better the test, while others again refuse to sprout in great heat, such as the jummer months. Thus we see a test made out of season may prove entirely worthless or, worse than that, very misleading.

During the winter months the sand test is the best, as seeds sprout more readily in clean sand than in moist earth, and the sand gives enough root action to allow us to judge of the strength of the young plants, which the moist cloth test does not permit. The depth at which seeds should be tested must be decided upon according to season. Thus in the dark winter months very little covering is permissible, while later on more covering is needed to allow for higher temperatures and rapid evaporation.-Garden-

THE MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

FINANCES IN WEDLOCK

By BYRON WILLIAMS

OU may recall that the Lord told Abraham he would spare Sodom if ten righteous men could be found in that wicked city. I would not be surprised some day if Cupid should issue a mandate to the effect that unless ten happily married couples be discovered he would destroy matri mony.

In many cases. I believe, selfishness and finances have much to do with divorces "Remember how great friends you and your sister were until your father died and left you £10 to be divided as you could agree?" Money brings discord into many homes. disrupting old loves and well established regards. It separates brother and sister who are of one flesh. Then why should it not be powerful enough to part two people bound merely by those bonds which the divorce court is breaking every day?

This only can be true, of course, where each party to the marriage loves money and is grasping. If the woman gives in and is satisfied to get along on little or no regular allowance, depending upon what she can beg, she may avoid financial friction in the family, and incidentally she may wear her old clothes, turning and burnishing them until her appearance is nothing short of threadbare and dowdy.

On the other hand, the man is apt to be dissatisfied if his wife takes to finery and costly clothes to an extent that keeps him poor and in

Then there was the precious regent. What a creature! Good men and bad men unite in saying that he was absolutely without a virtue. The shrewd. calculating Greville described him in words that burn; the great duke, his chief subject, uses language of dry scorn, "The king could only act the part of a gentleman for ten minutes at a time," and we find the commonest satellites of the court despised the wicked fribble who wore the crown of England. Faithless to women, faithless to men, a coward, a llar, a mean and groveling cheat, George IV. nevertheless clung to a belief in his own virtues, and if we study the account of his farcical progress through Scotland we find that he imagined himself to be a useful and genuinely kingly personage. No man, except perhaps Philippe Egalite, was ever so contemned and bated, and until his death he imagined himself to be a good man. -Runciman "Sidelights."

Her Splendid Economy. Their dinner for two cost $15, but the man's wife argued that in the end it was economy to dine at an expensive restaurant because it gave her a chance to study the fashions.

"If we ate in some cheap place patronized only by dowdily dressed women," she said. "I would have to hire an expensive woman to design my new dresses, but by eating here I get a chance to study the clothes worn by women of position and can design my own gowns."

That sounded convincing. There was no blessing on earth, the man reflected. equal to an economical, managing wife, and he settled the bill with comparative cheerfulness. Three weeks later he was given another bill to set-

Hotels as Hospitals. "Next to a hospital give me an up to date hotel in which to take care of a very sick patient." said a New York trained nurse. "I've nursed in most of the big hotels here in New York. and it's really wonderful the supplies that can be brought at a moment's notice. Ice bags, hot water bottles, crutches and wheel chairs are always on tap, there's always some one avait able to help lift a patient, and if the patient's a man there's always a bar ber at hand to shave him. And there's the woman in the sewing room to stitch a rapidly cut binder. There's an operating room at your disposal if patient to during convalescence. Altogether the modern hotel is the rival of a hospital when it comes to conveniences for the sick."-New York

Curious Transference of Heat. A workman in the observatory at Toulouse has invited attention to a singular phenomenon. A bar of iron is taken by the end, and the other end is plunged into a fire, heating it strongly, but not so much that the hand cannot retain its hold. The heated end is then plunged into a pail of cold water. Immediately the other end becomes so hot that it is impossible to hold it. This phenomenon, familiar to workmen in iron, is ascribed by them to some repellent action they suppose the sudden cold exerts upon the beat contained in the iron, which is thus driven to the opposite extremity.-Chi cago Record-Herald.

Didn't Need It.

A book canvasser went into a barber shop and asked the proprietor if he could sell him an encyclopedia.

"What's that?" asked the barber. "It's a book that contains information on every subject in the world." There was a victim in the chair, and he put in feebly, "He doesn't need it!"

Big Rally for Young People.

The Christian Endeavor societies of the county will hold a big convention on Friday, April 21, in the Second Presbyterian church of Auburn. The sessions will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, at 2 in the afternoon and at 7:30 in the evening A special feature of the convention will be a song service in the evening led by a large chorus.

Rev. Willis L Galston, superinter deut of the Young People's Department of the Presbyterian church of the United States, will deliver the principal address of the convention in the evening. John R Clements of Binghamton, president of the New York State O E Union, will give an address at the afternoon session. Dr. Beecher of Auburn will address the convention at the morning session.

The Junior work will receive coniderable attention in the convention. Miss Grace L Jones of Rochester, a former State Junior superintendent, will deliver an address upon this phase of the Endeavor movement.

Among the other speakers will be Rev W. P Schell of Seneca Falls, Rev. N. S Schenck of Waterloo, and Rev W S Crane of Port Byron.

The first Christian Endeavor society was organized by Dr. Francis E Clark at his home at Williston, Me on Feb 2, 1881, with twenty members, and since then the movement has become world wide All who are interested should remember the date and attend this convention

Wanton Slaughter of Birds.

In a recent lecture George A. Shields of New York, president of the League of American Sportsmen, said: "Scientists compute that farmers and fruit growers in this country are suffering a direct loss of $1,000,000,000 a year because of the destruction of bird life in the last 20 years, and that the cotton grower of Texas are losing from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year because of the wanton destruction of bird enemies of the boil

"Over a half a million shotguns are being sold in this country every Over 775,000,000 shotgun cartridges are being made in this country yearly; a few of these are exported and a der for $1.25 each. few more are used at the traps in shooting clay birds, but it is conservative to say that 660,000,000 of them are shot away on live birds yearly.'

The Vacant Literary Throne. There is, we must admit, today no monarch in any tongue upon the liter ary throne, no sovereign world name in poetry or prose, in whom, as has bappened before now, not so many generations ago, in royal succession to Scott, Byron, Goethe, Hugo, Tolstoy all the civilized world-Teuton, Latin, Celt. Slav. oriental--is interested. for whose new works it looks or where it seeks the gospel of the day. Naborhlish, to use an Irish word that became a favorite with Sir Walter Scott, It does not matter. Do not let us nurse the humor of the despondent editor who mournfully told his readers, "No new epic this month." Nobody can tell how the wonders of language are performed nor how a book comes into the world. Genius is genius. The lamp that today some may think burns low will be replenish ed. New orbs will bring light. Literature may be trusted to take care of itself, for it is the transcript of the drama of life, with all its actors. moods and strange flashing fortunes. The curiosity that it meets is perpetual and insatiable, and the impulses that inspire it can never be extinguished.-John Morley.

Thrifty Harry Lauder. There are many stories told of the Scotch comedian. Once when Lauder S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y. was in New York he was in a wine buying party at the Astor. Everybody but the Scot bought wine. When it came his turn to buy be sighed. "Well, boys," he said, "it's my turn to treat. Come along with me. I've got a fine bottle of old Scotch up in my room. I brought it over with me.' On another occasion he was with a drinking party and instead of liquor he took cigars, for which those who treated him paid 50 cents apiece. Harry put all but one in bis pocket. He spent two hours smoking that one. After the drinking was over the little comedian went to the cigar counter and said to the man in charge, "I say, man, wud ye mind givin' me ten cent cigars for these fafty cent ones?" The exchange bator hatches them right. Come was made, and Harry went to his room and see. with five times as many cigars as he had at the start.
