From Nearby Towns.

Venice Center.

Feb. 13—Frank Mosher and wife spent Sunday with friends in the town of Fleming near White's crossing.

Carroll Ladd went to Como last week, where he expects to remain for some time, with his sister and husband, Irving Miles and wife. Measles and mumps are very prevalent in this vicinity at present.

The prospect is that there will not be very many changes in this vicinity this spring. The only one which we know of at this time will be at "Murdock Place." Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wyllie who have occupied it for the past year, will return to their own farm near Wyckoff's station, and Francis Mosher and family will take their place.

The Men's Club of this place will hold their annual banquet and entertainment at the church on Saturday evening, Feb. 18.

There were no preaching services on Sunday last, as for some unknown reason, the pastor, Mr. Penny, did not put in an appearance.

There is considerable being said these days about the "bear" not seeing his shadow on the 2nd of February, and that consequently we shall have an early spring. At the same time it is said he did see it in some places not so very far away—Syracuse and McGraw. Are we who were in darkness all day to have spring soon, while those places are still in winter's grasp? We would like to have some one inform us how the weather will be affected under those conditions, when the sun shines a few moments on that particular day in one place and not in another. It looks to us as if that which was fairly exploded and that we shall yet see all the winter we shall care for any way.

Culver H. Blue.

The funeral of Culver H. Blue took place at his home on Sunday, Feb. 12, 1911, at 2 p. m. Many friends and relatives were present, also a large number of the Masonic fraternity. Rev. Robt Ivey of King Ferry, N. Y., and Rev. T. J. Searls of Genoa, N. Y., took part in the ceremony. The Masonic burial service was given in full form by the brethren. Rev. Robert Ivey after reading the following personal history made impressive remarks.

Culver H. Blue died on Feb. 10, 1911, the birthday of his eightieth year and had lived all his life in Central New York. He was born in the township of Dryden, Tompkins Co., and was one of ten children, seven sons and three daughters. When Culver was about 4 years old the family moved to Barton, Tioga Co. Culver lived with them till a young man, when he went to Groton to learn the trade of wagon maker. When in Groton he became acquainted with Miss Hannah D. Buck who was there attending school and after a time they were married and for 53 years they have travelled life's journey together.

This young couple commenced housekeeping at Union Springs, N. Y. They moved to Canoga across the lake, then to Five Corners and lastly in 1876 they moved to this farm and have lived here the past 35 years. From this place our worthy brother is about to be moved to his final resting place. Very briefly we have noted some important events in the life history of Culver H. Blue but the record of his life is indelibly impressed on the minds of those who knew him best. As a husband and father, he was faithful and kindness itself. With full sense of the great praise given we can truly say, our worthy brother was a good man and true. Past-Master W. W. Atwater gave the following Masonic record, and closed the services with a poetic selection:

Our brother was made a Mason in a Masonic lodge at Berrytown, Seneca Co., in 1864 and joined Genoa lodge, No. 421, by demit in 1873. His Masonic history covers a period of 47 years. During the 38 years of his membership in Genoa lodge he was a loyal member of the fraternity, always ready to obey a Masonic summons. Willing to aid in the financial demands of the order, sincerely believing in the uplifting teachings of Masonry, often speaking of his love for his Masonic brethren, and when summoned from earth to the future beyond, he wanted his brethren around him, for with the exception only of his family and kindred ties, he loved his brother Masons best.

"Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness
Of farewell,
When I embark.

For tho' from out our bourne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far;
I hope to see my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar."

Seven Good Reasons.

During a temperance campaign, a lawyer was discussing, with no little show of learning, the clauses of the proposed temperance law. An old farmer, who had been listening attentively, shut his knife with a snap, and said: "I don't know nuthin' about the law, but I've got seven good reasons for votin' for it." "What are they?" asked the lawyer. And the grim old farmer responded, "Four sons and three daughters."—Youth's Instructor.

Lulu Galloway is slowly improving. Wilmer Stout is so much improved that he is able to be out.

In Song and Story.

The women of the two W. C. T. U.'s are putting up an energetic fight to keep our township in the "dry" column. To this end they are holding meetings in different parts of the town, distributing literature, and making every legitimate effort to save the boys and girls of Genoa and vicinity from the allurements of the liquor traffic in any form. A meeting has been planned for Sunday evening, Feb. 19, to be held in the Presbyterian church of Genoa at 7:30 o'clock and addressed by Philo W. Meade of Cortland. Meetings will also be held in McCormick hall, King Ferry, Friday evening, Feb. 17, at 7:30 o'clock and at Belltown M. E. church Saturday evening, Feb. 18, at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Meade has been welcomed to some of the churches in the large cities of the state and has always given great satisfaction as a thorough temperance worker. Mr. Meade's service is unique in a way, consisting largely of song and he has been pleased to call it "A Song Talk" or an evening of "Song and Story." He has many flattering press notices also letters from the pastors of many leading churches, of which we append two of the most brief:

"Philo W. Meade of Cortland gave a temperance song service before a large audience in the M. E. church last Wednesday evening. He is an excellent singer and made some good points in the brief talks which he gave between the songs."—Osego Tidings, Milford, N. Y.

"On Sunday evening, Nov. 29, Philo W. Meade gave a temperance lecture in 'Song and Story' in the First M. E. church of Ithaca, before a large and deeply interested audience. Mr. Meade forces vital truths and telling facts to the attention of his hearers in a very unique way. Our people were very much pleased, and will be glad to welcome Mr. Meade again to our church and community.—W. E. Brown, pastor First M. E. church, Ithaca, N. Y.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly entrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

CHAPTER I.

BECAUSE PATRICIA SAID "NO."

SOME one was giving a crush dance at the Country club, and Blount, though he was only a week end guest of the Beverleys, was ill natured enough to be resentful. What right had a gay and frivolous world to come and thrust its light hearted happiness upon him when Patricia had said "No?" It was like bullying a cripple, he told himself morosely, and when he had read the single telegram which had come while he was at dinner he went out and found a chair in a corner of the veranda, where the frivolities had not as yet intruded.

Blount was a level eyed, square shouldered young man of an up to date world, and the stock from which he had descended was prosaic and practical rather than poetic or sentimental. But just now he was unconsciously giving a very lifelike imitation of the disappointed lover of the world over.

It was thus, and by the merest chance, that Gantry found him. The railroad man at least was unfeignedly glad.

"Pull up a chair," said Blount, not too ungraciously, considering his just cause to be more ungracious. "I was thinking of you just a little while ago, Dick. I saw your name in the list of transcontinental representatives to the traffic meeting, and—well, at the present moment I think you are the one man in the world I wanted most to meet."

"That sounds good to me," laughed Dick Gantry, settling himself comfortably in a lazy chair and feeling in his pockets for a cigar. "The 'effete east' has corralled you, hasn't it, Evan? I thought maybe it would when I heard you were taking the postgraduate frills in the Harvard law school. By the way, how much longer are you in for?" "I am out of the law school, if that is what you mean," said Blount—"out and admitted to the bar. If you get into trouble with the Boston police let me know and I'll ask for a change of venue to the greasewood hills and Judge Lynch's court."

"Are you ever coming back to them, Blount? I believe you told me once in the old college days that you were western born."

"I told you the truth, and until tonight I never thought much about going back," was Blount's rather cryptogrammatic answer.

"But now you are thinking of it?" inquired the railroad man, waking up. "That's good. We're needing a few bright young lawyers mighty bad. Is that why I'm the particular fellow you wanted to meet?"

Blount passed the newly come telegram across the interval between the two chairs. "Read that," he said.

Gantry smoothed the square of yellow paper carefully and held it up to the softened glow of the electric ceiling globe. Its date line carried the name of the chief city in the "greasewood country," the capital of the state, and the time markings sufficiently indicated its late arrival:

To Evan Shelby Blount, Standish Apartments, Boston:

You have had everything that money could buy you, and you owe me nothing but an occasional sight of your face. If you are not tied to some woman's apron string, why can't you come west and grow up with your native state?

DAVID BLOUNT.

It was characteristic of Gantry that he folded the telegram in the original creases before he handed it back.

"Well?" said Blount when the pause had grown overlong.

"I was just thinking," was the reflective rejoinder. "We used to be fairly chummy in the old Ann Arbor days, Evan, and yet I never knew till this blessed minute that Senator Blount was your father."

"He was and is," was the quiet reply. "I supposed everybody knew it." "I didn't," Gantry denied, adding, "What you don't tell people about yourself would make a pretty big book if it were printed. Long ago you admitted to me that you were western born, but you never told me any more."

"Perhaps it was because there was so little to tell. I had a boyhood, like other boys—or, no, possibly it wasn't quite the usual. I was born on the Circle Bar when the ranch was a hard day's drive from the nearest shipping corral on the railroad. At twelve I could 'ride line,' 'cut out' and 'rope down' like any other ranch bred youngster, and I had never seen a town bigger than Painted Hat."

"And what happened when you were twelve?" queried Gantry.

"The greatest misfortune that can ever come to a half grown boy, Dick. My mother died."

"That was hard," Gantry assented; then, "Your father married again."

"Not for some years," Blount qualified. "But for me the heavens were fallen. I was sent away to school, and from school I went to college, to Europe and back here to the law school. In all that time I've never seen the Circle Bar or my native state; have never been west of Omaha."

"Then the senator's—your father's—political life has never touched you?"

"It touched me on the sympathetic side, Dick. I saw a large hearted, open handed old cattle king wading into the muddy stream of politics to gratify an ambition that wasn't his own—a woman's ambition. In order that the woman might mix and mingle in Washington society for a brief minute or two he got himself elected to fill out an unexpired term of two months in the United States senate—bought it, some said. That was three years ago, wasn't it? But Washington hasn't forgotten. When I was down there last winter the 5 o'clock tea people were still recalling Mrs. Blount's gowns and the wild western naïvete of the Hon. Senator Sagebrush."

PATRICIA ANNERS.

Gantry was chuckling softly.

"Land of love, Evan," he said, "you're an educated man, all right, but you've got a lot to learn yet—about the senator and his politics, I mean. Great snipes, man, he isn't in it for the social frills and furbelows; he never was. Let me intimate a few things. Politically speaking, David Blount is the biggest man in his state today. He can have anything he wants, from the head of the ticket down. You spoke rather sneeringly just now of his two months in the senate. He might have gone back if he had wanted to, and he actually did a much more difficult thing—named his successor. I can tell you the situation out in the greasewood country if you want to know it."

"Make it simple," was Blount's condition.

"The outlook for us is precisely what it is in a dozen other states this year—everything promising a renewal of the bullheaded legislative fight on the railroads," said Gantry. "There is only one issue before the people, and that is the Transcontinental railway. The reformers, as they call themselves, would like to legislate us out of existence. We shall beat the tomtom and do our best to stay on earth."

"Naturally," said Blount. "And my father—how does he stand?"

"The idea of your having to ask me!" exclaimed Gantry. "But really I wish I could tell you. There are a good many people in our neck of woods who would like to know. It will make all the difference in the world when it comes to a showdown."

"Why will it?" "Because, apart from the railroad and the anti-railroad factions, there is a very complete and smooth running machine organization."

"And my father is identified with the machine?"

Again Gantry choked over the singular lack of information discovering itself in Blount's question.

"Land of glory!" he ejaculated. "Where have you been burying yourself, Evan? Didn't I just tell you that he is the biggest man in the state? Oh, no"—with heavy irony—"he isn't identified with the machine; he merely owns it and runs it."

"Ah," said Blount, and a little later, "Thank you, Dick; I am pretty badly out of touch, as you've discovered." Then he changed the subject abruptly. "How long will your traffic meeting last?"

"We practically finished today. An hour or two on Monday will settle it."

"After which you'll go west?"

"By the Monday noon train, if I can make it."

Silence for a time until Blount broke in upon Gantry's tapping of the dance music rhythm with: "If I can get ready I may go with you, Dick. Would you mind?"

"Yes; I would mind so much that I'd willingly miss a train and worry out a few more of the chilly Boston hours rather than lose the chance of having you along. Ever meet your father's—er—the present Mrs. Blount, Evan?" he asked suddenly.

"No."

"She is a fine woman," Gantry ventured.

"So I have understood." This time Blount's reply was icy. But now Gantry's eyes were twinkling, and he pressed his advantage.

"You'll have to reckon with her if you go to the greasewood country, Evan. Next to your father, she is the court of last resort. Indeed, there are a good many who say that she is the court."

Blount said nothing. Nevertheless Gantry tried once more:

"Not interested, Evan?"

Blount turned and looked his companion coldly in the eyes.

"Not in the slightest degree, Dick. Will you take that for your answer now and remember it hereafter?"

"Sure!" laughed the railroad man. "I didn't know it was a sore spot with you."

He found a match and relighted his cigar. When he began again he was still thinking of the "apron string" clause in the senator's telegram.

"I can't understand how any man with western blood in his veins could ever be content to marry and settle down in this overcivilized neck of woods," he said.

"Can't you?" Blount smiled, with large lenience.

"No, I can't," asserted the westerner, adding: "Of course I don't know the eastern young woman. She may be all that is lovely and enticing"—

"She is," declared Blount, with the air of one who had lived long enough to know.

"You say that as if you'd been taking a few lessons," Gantry laughed. Then, with the friendly impudence which only a college comradeship could excuse, "Is she here tonight?"

"No."

"Tell me about her," Gantry begged.

"I don't often read a love story, but I like to hear 'em."

"There isn't much to tell, Dick," said Blount. "I've known her for a year, and I've loved her from the first day. That is chapter I, and chapter 2 ends the story with one small word. She says 'No.'"

"The dickens she does!" said Gantry in hearty sympathy. "Tough, isn't it, old man? What's the obstacle?"

"It is Miss Anners' career. She has been studying at home and abroad in preparation for social settlement work in the large cities. Of course I knew about it. But I thought—I hoped—"

"You hoped it was only a young woman's fad, which it probably is," Gantry cut in.

"Yes, I'm afraid that was just what I did hope, Dick. But I couldn't talk against it. Confound it all, you can't go about smashing ideals for the people you love best!"

It was quite late when Gantry, pleading weariness on the score of his hard week's work at the railroad meeting, went to bed.

In the long talk with Gantry Blount had learned many things about the political situation in his native state—things which were enlightening, if not particularly encouraging.

Oddly enough, he had not recognized in Gantry a skillful special pleader for the railroad interests; hence he was preparing to go to the new field with a rather strong prepossession in favor of the defendant corporation. Gantry had intimated pretty broadly that there was room for an assistant corporation counsel for the railroad, with headquarters in the capital of his native state. Blount saw at once that the requirements would be political rather than legal, and in his mind's eye he saw himself standing firmly as the defender of legitimate business rights in a region where popular prejudice was capable of rising to anarchistic heights.

The picture rather pleased him. He would not have been a true descendant of the fighting Blounts of Tennessee if the prospect of a conflict had been other than inspiring.

It was after the ashes had been knocked from the bedtime pipe that Blount left his chair and the secluded corner of the veranda to go and wander among the parked automobiles on the lawn.

Blount had just awakened a sleepy chauffeur to ask him to uncover the engine of a new Italian car when a stir at the veranda entrance told him that at least a few of the dancing guests were leaving early.

He drew back when the little group on the veranda came down the steps, preceded by a club footman, who was calling the number of the car. And it was not until he was turning away that he found himself face to face with a very beautiful and very clear eyed young woman who was buttoning an automobile dust coat up under her chin.

"Patricia!" he burst out. "For pity's sake, you don't mean to tell me that you have been here all the evening?"

Her quiet smile gave the impression not quite of frigidity perhaps, but of that quality of serene self possession which strangers sometimes mistook for coldness.

"Why shouldn't I be here?" she asked. "Didn't you know that the Cranfords, the people who are entertaining, were old friends of ours?"

Blount shook his head. "No, I didn't know it, and because I didn't I have lost an entire evening. It was cruel of you to deny me this last evening, Patricia."

"This last evening?" she echoed.

"Why last?"

"Because I am leaving Boston and New England Monday. It is the only thing to do."

"I am sorry you are taking it this way, Evan," she deprecated in the sisterly tone that always made him hotly resentful. "It hurts my sense of proportion."

"Sometimes I think you haven't any sense of proportion, Patricia," he said half morosely. "If you have I am sure it is dreadfully distorted."

A white haired old gentleman in the tonneau was calling impatiently to Patricia to come and take her place so that he might close the door.

"It is you who have the distorted perspective, Evan," she countered. "Where are you going?"

"I am going west day after tomorrow."

"How odd!" she said. "We are going west, too—papa and I—though not quite so soon as Monday."

"You are?" he queried. "Whereabouts in the west?"

She did not tell him where. The car motor was whirring, the chauffeur was swinging up to his seat behind the pilot wheel, and the old gentleman in the tonneau was growing quite violently impatient.

"I shan't say goodbye," she said hastily, giving him her hand at parting, "nor shall I tell you where we are going. Let it be auf wiedersehen—till we meet again."

CHAPTER II.

THE BOSS.

IN a private dining room in the Inter-mountain hotel, whose entrance portico faces the capitol grounds in the chief city of the Sagebrush State, two men were finishing dinner.

On the guest book of the Inter-mountain one of the men had registered from Chicago. The name was illegible to the cursory eye, but since it was the signature of an empire builder it was sufficiently well known in all the vast region served by the Transcontinental railway system.

The owner of the name had finished his ice and was sitting back to clip the end from a very long and very black cigar. He was a man past middle age, large framed and heavy, with the square, resolute face of a born master of circumstances.

Though he figured only as the first vice president of the Transcontinental company, Hardwick McVickar was really the active head of its affairs and the director of its policy.

Across the small round table sat the railway magnate's dinner guest, a man who was more than McVickar's match in big boned, square shouldered physique; a man whose half century was written only in the thick grizzled hair and heavy graying mustaches.

"I wish I could convince you that it isn't worth while to hold me at arm's length, senator," McVickar was saying. "You know as well as I do that under the present law in this state we are practically bankrupt. We do a losing business from the moment we cross your state line."

"Yes; it seems to me that I have heard something like that before," was the noncommittal rejoinder.

"You have heard the simple truth, then. And it is a bald injustice not only to the railroad, but to the people it serves. We can't give adequate service when the cost exceeds the earnings."

"And you are unable to convince the members of the railroad commission?" asked the man whom the vice president addressed as "senator."

"You know well enough that we can't convince an anti-railroad commission," was the half angry retort.

"Yet you are still running the railroad," suggested the other.

"Yes; luckily the Transcontinental system does not lie wholly within your state boundaries. If it did we might as well surrender our charter and go out of business."

"All of which has come to be a pretty old story, McVickar," said the listener quietly. "You didn't make me motor thirty miles to hear you tell it all over again, I know. What do you want?"

"We want a square deal," was the curt reply.

"So do the people of this state," asserted the man across the table. "You Fencing! Fencing!

For the next ten days I will sell Michigan wire fencing at cost. This fencing is made of a good quality of carbonized steel wire, having a tensile strength, nearly double that of common annealed steel wire. When using this wire you are getting a much heavier fence as it contains about 2 lbs. 7 oz. more wire to the rod; as it is a solid steel wire much stronger.

Toole's Stamp.
Seymour Hicks in his book of reminiscences tells this story about the great English comedian and practical joker, Toole:

"I remember being in London with him once when he went into the general postoffice and asked for a penny stamp. The clerk brought out a huge sheet and Toole said, 'I want that one.'"

"Which one?" said the clerk.
"That one," said Toole, pointing to the center one.
"A long argument ensued, Toole saying that in purchasing a stamp he had a perfect right in law to choose the one he fancied, and so emphatic was he on the point that he had his way, but not before he had created a disturbance and clerks from other counters had left their work to see what was going on."

Open the Door.
Open the door of your heart, my lad,
To the angel of love and truth
When the world is full of unnumbered joys
In the beautiful dawn of youth,
Casting aside all things that mar,
Saying to wrong, "Depart!"
To the voices of hope that are calling you
Open the door of your heart.

Open the door of your heart, my lass,
To the things that shall abide,
To the holy thoughts that lift your soul
Like the stars at eventide.
All the fadeless flowers that bloom
In the realms of song and art
Are yours if you'll only give them room.
Open the door of your heart.

Open the door of your heart, my friend,
Headless of class and creed,
When you hear the cry of a brother's voice,
The sob of a soul in need.
To the singing heavens that o'er you bend
You need no map nor chart,
But only the love of the Master.
Open the door of your heart.
—Edward Everett Hale.

A Heartbreaker.
At a dinner last winter one of New York's prominent bankers was dilating on the dangers of deceit. By way of illustration he told of a society woman who saw in a jeweler's window a beautiful collar of pearls, which she wanted very much. Upon inquiry she learned the price was $6,000. Thereupon she gave her check for $3,000, saying she would send her husband to see the pearls, and if he could be persuaded to buy them he was to be told the price was only $3,000.

The jeweler, being familiar with that sort of game, readily agreed. The husband called during the day to see the pearls and that evening told his wife he had bought them, since they were evidently such a bargain. His wife was more than delighted and immediately asked if he had brought home the collar, to which he replied:
"Why, no, my dear; I had it sent to my mother. You know it is her birthday tomorrow."

A Joke With a Rebound.
John R. McLean stepped in front of a lurching Irishman one evening and obstructed the sidewalk so that the Irishman was obliged to stop and look at him, McLean said:
"Here's that half dollar I borrowed of you. Now you must quit telling the neighbors that I never pay my debts."

Half drunk and wholly dazed, the Irishman took the silver piece, looked at it intently and then said:
"Be dad, yez can't get off that aisy. It wor a whole dollar that yez borryd, so fork over."
And he forked over another half dollar and went his way, laughing heartily at the quick wit of the Irishman.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Real Love.
A young couple married. She loved him madly. He loved her devotedly. They were good and they were young. The good die young, and he died. She did not bury him; she had him cremated and his ashes placed in an urn. In the course of time young fellows came courting her and tried to persuade her that they ought to pay for her board, but she said her heart was with the ashes in the urn, and they withered away into thin air. But there was one desperate and persistent fellow who hung around after all the others had left, and finally she married him to get rid of him—a sort of defensive movement. She grew to love him without knowing anything about it, and he didn't know it either.
One day it rained in torrents, and at night the frost came so that in the morning the front steps were coated with ice. As he opened the door to go to the office she saw the condition of the steps, and a great wave of love swept over her, and she rushed and got the urn and sprinkled her first husband on the steps so that the second husband could walk down in safety. That is real love!

He Was Anxious.
Bret Harte at one time used to plunder the people from the rostrum in the way of fifty cent lectures. During a trip over one circuit he found himself one evening in a small town the very atmosphere of which was depressing. Turning to the committee man who waited on him at his room in the hotel, Harte said, "Is this a healthy climate?" "Passably," responded the committee man. "What's the mortality of this city?" "About one a day." "About one, eh?" said Harte. "Come this way a minute." And he drew the committee man into the recess of the bay window and then said to him solemnly: "Is the man dead for today? I am going to lecture here tonight, and it would be a great relief to me to know that I could get through alive."

She Was Willing.
Man—Well, it's just this way: If I buy you a new coat I'll have to wear my old one another season. Wife—You sweet, generous thing, you!

THE MAGIC BOTTLE.

It Told a Tale, Yet the Wife Didn't Hide Her Husband.

When the young couple married a friend who laid claims to being somewhat of a magician presented them with a tall bottle of transparent liquid, instructing them to place it upon their mantel and explaining that if either of them ever dared to flirt the contents of the bottle would assume a murky color.

After they had been married a year the wife went to the seashore for a vacation. In her absence her husband frequently entertained a group of bachelor friends with amusements thoroughly bachelor-like, but innocent enough. The guests inquired as to the significance of the tall bottle on the mantel, but the host persistently refused to divulge the secret. Finally on the night before the day set for his wife's return he explained the meaning of the mysterious bottle.

One of the guests, who was much given to practical joking, surreptitiously removed the cork of the bottle, into which he emptied the contents of his fountain pen. When the bottle had been thoroughly shaken it was replaced upon the mantel and carefully concealed behind a large photograph. The next day after the wife had returned in dusting the mantel she removed the photograph, thus revealing the tall bottle with its sable contents. She very promptly took the bottle to the sink, emptied it, rinsed it out thoroughly, filled it with clear water and replaced it on the mantel.—Judge.

Why He Wept.
Many good stories are told about the great house of Rothschild. One of the most amusing is that of the poor Jew who when Baron Lionel died is said to have stood at the entrance to the Rothschild mansion weeping bitterly. His apparent distress touched the heart of one of the porters, who, trying to console him, said, "Don't carry on so, old man; it isn't as if you're one of the family."
"Ach, dat's vy I cry!" exclaimed the man, with a fresh flood of tears.

Opportunity's Mistake.
This is the opportunity of a lifetime, madam," declared the smoothed-tongued canvasser as he stood at the door.
"Seems to me I've heard that before," thought the housewife.
"Opportunity knocks at every one's door, but only once," continued the caller.
"That's where you're mistaken, young feller," snapped the woman as

"THAT'S WHERE YOU'RE MISTAKEN," she reached behind her. "Opportunity has knocked at my door eight times this week so far. I'm out $4.10 an' nothin' to show for it. Jest in case he should knock again I be'n savin' this kettle o' hot suds!"
But opportunity departed hurriedly.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Whistler Story.
In "Under Five Reigns" Lady Dorothy Nevill, the author, tells this characteristic story of Whistler:
On one occasion when Whistler was asked to dinner by a somewhat punctilious host the party after waiting for an unconceivable long time eventually sat down to dinner. Soup and fish were served and still no Whistler appeared, and when at last he arrived the host was in anything but the best of tempers, as his countenance showed. Whistler, however, was in nowise disconcerted, for, cheerily grasping a somewhat limp hand, he rattled out, "Don't apologize for having begun without me; I shan't be offended in the very least," after which, taking his seat, he became the life and soul of the party.

The Ideal in Venison.
Among Mrs. L. B. Walford's stories in her "Recollections of a Scottish Novelist" is one of a cook who came to her family from a ducal lodge and positively declined any suggestions as to the stage at which venison ought to be eaten. "Me not know when venison is fit for the table," she said, "me that have sent it up when the ladies was fainting all round, and the duke said it was butiful!"

She Was After the "Joins."
Charley Sheldon, secretary of the Kansas state senate several years ago, was a rattling good humorist. The senate of which Sheldon was secretary was in session during the days when Carrie Nation was crusading in Kansas and making the welkin ring. She came into the senate one day and got to talking with Sheldon about liquor laws, amendments to the prohibitory statutes and that sort of thing, which were before that legislature. She wanted to know about them.
"Oh," said Sheldon very seriously, "I've hidden all the joint resolutions."
And Carrie became rather excited before she "tumbled" and learned what a "legislative joint resolution" is.—Kansas City Journal.

GOLDEN RULE IS GOOD IN TRADE.

Buy From Those Who Help You Along Is the Precept.

DO YOUR TRADING AT HOME.

Otherwise You Will Have No Right to Object When Your Neighbors Fail to Patronize Your Business—Some Instances Cited.

An earnest plea for reciprocity in trade is made in an editorial article printed recently in the agricultural southwest. The points made are well worth the attention of the men deficient in public spirit who spend their money away from home without taking the trouble to ascertain whether or not the local merchants can serve them as well as those of the outside cities. The article reads:

"Grocers in small towns expect that the good farmers of the community shall trade at home rather than at the catalogue houses in the large far-away city. The farmers, too, think that it is hardly right for the merchants to send to some commission house in a large city for their supply of potatoes.

"Both are right. Yet we find farmers buying from mail order houses, and merchants in many cases buying from distant places products of the farm that might better be bought at home. Not alone this, but how many engaged in the grocery trade overlook the importance of buying furniture, clothing, jewelry and other things from their brother merchants at home? How many in the furniture and hardware business buy groceries from some distant house? How many of them buy their clothing from other than home stores?"

"At an implement dealers' state convention in one of the western states the catalogue house competition was being considered. One of the delegates was strong in condemnation of those who bought implements from the mail order houses. He happened to throw his fur lined overcoat over the back of a chair, and plain to be seen was the label of one of the noted catalogue houses of Chicago. Still he had the audacity to appear in a state convention and criticize the farmers who bought farm implements from the same concern from which he had purchased his overcoat instead of buying it from his home store. Thus we find the helpful principles of reciprocity ignored by many inconsistent tradesmen."

Municipal Publicity.
Municipal publicity is rapidly settling to a scientific basis. The day of the glittering generality, the buoyant and complacent claim of advantageous site and situation minus the brass tacks of demonstration, has passed. The advertising of a municipality is analogous to the advertising of a department store in that the varied and manifold phases of the question, though they interlace and cross each other, nevertheless constitute separate and distinct concepts from the viewpoint of the expert who prepares them and the sharp, keen business man who is to analyze them from the other side of the fence.

Prizes For Best Kept Lawns.
A comprehensive plan "to make Rochester, N. Y., more beautiful" has been adopted by the Rochester Florists' association. To arouse interest in a movement looking to the improvement of the streets, lawns and gardens of Rochester the florists intend, with the co-operation of citizens, to start a series of competitions, offering prizes for the best kept lawns and gardens in different sections of the city.

Stick to Your Last.
The merchant who has been trained all his business life in dry goods is not likely to be a great winner in the grocery line, though the principles of salesmanship may be thoroughly mastered by him. It requires exceptional ability for a man to adapt himself to one line of work after he has spent years in some other line.

GUIDEPOSTS ON THE ROAD TO BUSINESS SUCCESS.

If you cannot make your fortune in the same place and in the same way some other man has, make it in a new place and a new way.
The mall of a good precept always needs the hammer of practice to drive it in.
Minutes are to hours what the pennies are to dollars—and he wins who saves both.
It is not the position a man fills so much as the way he fills it that stamps upon him the mark of his quality.
It is all a building process—the rock is built of atoms, the tree is built of cells, the house is built of bricks, success is built of conquered details.
The one who specializes and becomes proficient—in fact, expert—in a single line is surely a winner. He can always find a place at the top notch salary.

Bread Talk

Do You Eat Bread?
What do You Eat Bread For,
A Filler or For Nourishment?

Now listen! There are different kinds of bread, one the quick riser, the big in bulk and little in substance. This we call the filler bread. It has been robbed of its best nourishment. The other kind of bread is made from Winter Wheat Flour and the protein and best nutriment were left. This is worth double the quick riser, filler flour. We claim for Silver Spray flour that it contains more nutriment than any other flour on the market.

We Will Prove This to You.

When you are working sixteen hours a day just try a 25-lb. sack of each. Try it and if you do not decide in favor of Silver Spray Flour, we will give you a sack free. Isn't that fair? We leave it to you. You have nothing to lose, and everything to gain. We mean business. We back our talk. Try a sack of Silver Spray Flour to-day.

Something to You.

"Tis nothing to me," the beauty said,
With a careless toss of her pretty head;
The man is weak if he can't refrain
From the cup you say is fraught with pain."

It was something, when, in after years,
Her eyes were drenched with burning tears,
And she watched in lonely grief and dread,
And started to hear a staggering tread.

"Tis nothing to me," the mother said;
"I have no fear that my boy will tread
In the downward path of sin and shame,
And crush my heart and darken his name."

It was something to her when her only son
From the path of right was early won,
And madly cast in the flowing bowl
A ruined body, a sin-wrecked soul.

"Tis nothing to me," the merchant said,
As over his ledger he bent his head;
"I am busy to-day with tare and tret,
I have no time for fume and fret."

It was something to him when over the wire
A message came from a funeral pyre;
A drunken conductor had wrecked a train,
And his wife and child were among the slain.

"Tis nothing to me," the voter said,
"The party's loss is my only dread;"
Then he gave his vote to the liquor trade,
Though hearts were crushed and drunkards made.

It was something to him, in after-life;
His daughter became a drunkard's wife,
And her hungry children cried for bread,
And trembled to hear their father's tread.

It is something for us to idly sleep,
While cohorts of death their vigils keep
To gather the young and thoughtless in,
And grind in our midst a grist of sin.

"Tis something, yes all, for us to stand Clasping by faith the Saviour's hand;
To learn to labor, live and fight
On the side of God and unchanging right."

Farmers' Week, Feb. 20-25.

A Rural Church Conference has been announced for Feb. 22 and 23 at the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, at Ithaca, in connection with the fourth annual Farmers' Week, Feb. 20-25. In view of the attention that is now centering on the work of the country church, this will be one of the most important conferences to be held. Visitors are assured of a profitable convention, since the foremost students of the problems of the Country Church in America are to be on the program.

In connection with the usual exercises of Farmers' Week, there will be a series of conferences on Wednesday, Feb. 22, dealing with the various problems of country schools. As the day is an official holiday for public schools, it is hoped that a large number of principals and teachers will avail themselves of the invitation to spend the day, or so much of it as they can, at the College.

TORTURED FOR 15 YEARS

by a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Moddersville, Mich., seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. It's surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

His Suggestion.

"Why don't you call your newspaper the Appendix?" asked the enemy of the political boss.
"Any special reason for wanting me to do so?"
"Well, it's a useless organ."—Pittsburg Post.

Conscience.

In the commission of evil another is but one witness against thee; thou art a thousand against thyself. Another thou mayest avoid—thyself thou canst not.—Quarles.

It is better to suffer wrong than to do it, and happier to be sometimes cheated than not to trust.—Johnson.

LIFE SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Tex., as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive to-day is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, it's the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. S. Banker, Genoa, F. T. Atwater, King Ferry.

Vice president—Lynn Searles.

Vice-President—Olyde Mastin.

An Immediate Relief.

The members of the several Granges of Cayuga county have formed a relief association under the name of the Patrons of Husbandry Relief Association of Cayuga county and the officers selected to serve for the first year are: President, A. J. Cook, Cato; vice president, James A. Geuld, Scipio; secretary, W. S. Tanner, Weedsport; treasurer, Charles Atwood, Moravia.

The association will work on the same lines as the relief associations conducted by the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities of this county, that is, each member will contribute $1.10 upon the death of a fellow member. The dollars so contributed go to the beneficiaries of the deceased while the 10 cents is used in defraying expenses of the society. The amount of the relief afforded is limited to $500 and prior to the time that the association has that number of members the benefit will be equal in dollars to the number of members.

WIFE GOT TIP TOP ADVICE.

"My wife wanted me to take our boy to the doctor to cure an ugly boil," writes D. Frankel, of Stroud, Okla., "I said, 'put Bucklen's Arnica Salve on it.' She did so, and it cured the boil in a short time." Quickest healer of Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Corns, Bruises, Sprains, Sprains, Swellings. Best Pile cure on earth. Try it. Only 25c at J. S. Words of a Great Man.

William McKinley once said: "By legalizing this traffic we agree to share with the liquor sellers the responsibilities and evils of his business. Every man who votes for license becomes of necessity a partner in the liquor traffic and all its consequences." It hardly seems consistent to pray, "Lead us not into temptation," and then vote to place temptation in the path of everybody; to pray, "Deliver us from evil," and then vote to retain among us the greatest evil known to society. It hardly seems in keeping with the principles that have produced the greatness of the American nation, to license a business which antagonizes and largely neutralizes every good influence of the home, the school, and the church.

Funeral of Thomas Sill.

The funeral of the late Thomas Sill, whose death occurred Wednesday morning, Feb. 8, after a few days' illness from pneumonia, was very largely attended at the Presbyterian church on Saturday afternoon last at 1 o'clock, the church being completely filled. The members of North Lansing Masonic lodge, with several members of the King Ferry lodge, were in attendance, and the members of the O. E. S. of North Lansing also attended in a body.
The services in the church were conducted by Rev. T. J. Searls, who spoke from the words: "They shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."
C. J. Foster, Mrs. Robt. Mastin and Miss Ida Mastin sang three selections—"Abide with Me," "Rock of Ages" and "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."
The bearers were D. C. Mosher, Edd Buck, Fred Gray, Cornelius Leonard, Chas. Lobdell and A. J. Bothwell.
The floral tributes were exceedingly beautiful. There were several large pieces, besides bouquets of cut flowers.
Among those in attendance at the funeral were Jesse G. Atwater, Mrs. Byron Hunt and Mrs. Eva Hewitt of Auburn; Mrs. Mary Bartlett and Geo. Pickens, wife and daughter of Groton; Mrs. N. B. Ellison of Interlaken; Elmer Starner and wife, P. C. Main and wife and Millard Edsall of Ithaca; Mrs. Sherman Mead and son Clyde of Five Corners.
Burial was made in Genoa cemetery and the services were in charge of the Masons.
It is an interesting fact that John Sill, father of Thos. Sill, and one of the early settlers in this vicinity, came to this country from Westmoreland, England, about 1842. It is also worthy of note that for seven generations preceding the father of John Sill the oldest sons had been clergymen of the Episcopal faith.

The Toronto Male Quartette.
The Toronto Male Quartette, the fourth of the course of the entertainments at the Presbyterian church, was greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience Tuesday evening. The program was made up of unusually attractive features and carried out with a grace and ease that showed knowledge of the art of entertaining. The quartette work, as it should be, was the chief feature, but it was well interspersed with well chosen and well rendered solos and readings. The audience was kept not only entertained but amused, and the new autoharp proved a most enjoyable instrument, well played as predicted. It was the best entertainment of the course thus far and that is saying a good deal.—Skaneateles Free Press, Jan. 27, 1911.

WHEN BUILDING A GRAVEL ROAD

Use No Stone That Is Larger Than a Walnut.

ALWAYS NEEDS ATTENTION.

From the Very Instant of Completion Either Gravel or Stone Road Begins to Deteriorate, and the Longer It Is Neglected the More It Will Cost to Repair.

Following is an extract from "The Maintenance of Gravel and Broken Stone Roads," written by Daniel N.
Lutten, Purdue university, Lafayette,
Ind., in State's Duty:

"The gravel used should contain no stone larger than a walnut and should contain not more than 40 per cent of fine material, which may consist of sand and clay in about-equal

WORN GRAVEL ROAD.

proportions. At least 20 per cent of fine material must be present for ce-menting purposes and to help make the gravel impervious to water.

A Test.

"If after a hard winter's frost the sides of a gravel pit remain steep without caving it may be taken as a satisfactory test that that gravel is a suitable road metal.

"When a business man invests money in a business project, such, for instance, as the purchase of houses for renting, he finds it to his interest to keep those houses in good repair.
If the roof begins to leak it must be attended to at once or the interior may be ruined. If furnace or chimney flues become defective they must be repaired before the dwelling is endangered by fire. So it should be with our highways. A good road surface must not only support loads, but it must act as a roof to shield the softer foundation from moisture. A leak in the surface of a road may be as disastrous to the capital invested as a leak in the roof of a dwelling."

Road Deteriorates.

"From the very instant of completion of either a gravel or stone road, that road begins to deteriorate, and the longer it is neglected the more rapid will be the loss, due to lack of maintenance. What such roads need

GRAVEL ROAD WELL CARED FOR.
[Courtesy Good Roads, New York.]

is not a great amount of new material to replace the wear due to traffic, but attention and labor. Fifty cubic yards of gravel or stone will replace material worn from one mile by a year's traffic.

"The gravel or stone should be applied in small quantities and only when the road is muddy. It should be applied upon the low spots, care being taken to keep the center of the road always crowned and all chuck holes and ruts filled and leveled. Wherever water is found standing upon the road that spots needs new road material and it should be applied before the water dries off. The aim should be to keep the road in such shape that there would be no opportunity for water to stand upon any portion of the road surface. It should have a ready means of escape to the side ditches, and then should escape from ditches before it has time to saturate the foundation."

The sand and oil roads of California are said to be waterproof.

BEAUTIFUL GENOA WOMEN.

The Secret of Their Increasing Charm.

It is really surprising that in such a short time there should be so marked an improvement in the appearance of so many Genoa ladies, but it is not surprising when the cause of this improvement is known. And there is no great mystery about it after all. Drop in most any day now at J. S. Banker's Drug Store, Genoa, and you are likely to see one of the clerks wrapping up a box of the little tablets that do so much to improve the appearance of one's complexion. Bright eyes, a ruddy glow, and a complexion free from pimples, sallowiness and moth spots may be had by every woman who will take one or two of SEEVER'S LAXATIVE TONIC TABLETS at bed time. These tablets contain dandelion and other purely vegetable extracts that are known to have a selective action for skin affections, and being both a laxative and a tonic they quicken the circulation, open the pores and encourage the action of the bowels, stimulate the liver, enrich the blood and at the same time cure biliousness, sick headache and chronic constipation.
Try them. They cost but 25c a box and once used their merits cannot be concealed.

my desk and my daughter's socks and my wee baby's building blocks, three spools of thread, some tatting frames, a box or two of cut out games, some scissors and my wife's new waists, a box of tacks and some tooth paste, a wads of handmae hair, a bottle of shoe polish, too, a hairbrush and a baby shoe, some stockings that are worn a darn, a skein or two of darning yarn, a picture book or two or

DUST LAYING.

Oil Used by Canadian Town to Sprinkle Streets.

Consul Augustus G. Seyfert of Owen Sound, Ont., says that "the sandy lake shore soil upon which Owen Sound is located results in very dusty streets. No matter how much rain falls or how much water is sprinkled on the streets in an hour thereafter the dust becomes a nuisance and a menace to health. To overcome this the municipal authorities experimented with oil, which proved such a success that now all the principal streets in the town are oiled.
These thoroughfares are macadamized and are first swept clean and the oil put on immediately after with the sprinkler.

"The objection at first was that the odor from the crude oil was offensive, but in a day or two this disappeared, and the change for the better to dust-less streets was recognized by all.
The first application of oil lasted six weeks, and the second application was put on the other day, and what were some of the dustiest streets are now perfectly dustless.

"The town officials state that it will be an annual saving of $2,000 over the old water system and at the same time give much better results."

GRADES ON HIGHWAYS.

Three or Four Per Cent Slope Adviseable For Heavy Traffic.

A 1 per cent grade on a road means a rise of one foot for each hundred feet of distance traveled up the hill.
A 10 per cent grade means ten feet rise in each hundred feet so traveled.
A 1 per cent grade, then, means that in traveling uphill one mile an ascent is made of 52.8 feet, while a 10 per cent grade means a rise in altitude of 528 feet in a mile. Accurate tests have shown that a horse which can pull 1,000 pounds on a level road can pull only 810 pounds on a rise of one foot in fifty, and on a rise of one foot in ten he can pull only 250 pounds.
These facts show that the greatest load that can be hauled over a road is the load which can be taken up through the deepest mudhole. It is therefore advised that all highways traveled by heavily loaded vehicles should be kept within a 3 or 4 per cent grade if practicable. To do this may require a change of location to get around hills, always keeping in mind that the lower the grade the larger the load may be hauled and the cost of haulage kept at the lowest point.

Good roads are the earmarks of civilization, the emblem of intelligence, education and refinement, whereas bad roads are the sign of backwardness, indolence and indifferent citizenship.

ONE WAY TO BETTER ROADS.

Automobile Club Gives Free Drags to Farmers.

A plan inaugurated several months ago by the Manhattan (Kan.) Motor club has been successful in bettering the condition of the country roads in a radius of ten miles from Manhattan at least 50 per cent, and the plan is so inexpensive that the club is urging other towns to take it up.

The club gives a road drag to every farmer who will guarantee to use it to keep three miles of road in good condition. The club has given away more than forty drags and is getting calls for them at the rate of about four a week.

The club first made the offer several months ago. The farmers were slow in taking advantage of it, but a few days ago the club's president, Dr. J.
D. Colt, advertised the offer in the local newspapers, and the result has been that the drags are being taken by the farmers as fast as the club can get them made. The club has placed no limit on the territory in which the offer is good, and the drags are in use in all sections of the county. They cost the club about $6 each.

Are you in favor of good roads? If not you don't belong to this age of the world and this town is no place for you.

Tar on English Roads.

The county surveyors in England have reported that the tarring of roads has resulted in a saving of 20 to 25 per cent of the cost of the road maintenance. The average cost of spraying with tar is $195 per mile.
Experienced men say that it pays to spend this much for tarring the roads that cost $750 to $1,000 per mile a year for maintenance. Nothing more satisfactory than tar has been found.
Two methods are used in applying it.
If the road is resurfaced the material is previously saturated with tar. On roads that are not used too much such treatment will last five or six years.
The other system is to spread hot tar on the surface, and this has proved to be more than a dust protector. It makes the road waterproof and binds together the material, making it more resistant to water, wheels and hoofs.

Home Course In Health Culture

XVII. — Stimulants and Drugs In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

AS far back as the memory of man runneth not to the contrary alcoholic drinks have been termed "stimulants," and yet alcohol is not a stimulant, but a depressant.

Exact laboratory experiments have determined that alcohol acts as an anesthetic upon the higher brain cells that preside over the more complex mental processes. In other words, the man who "wakes up" under the influence of alcohol is really going to sleep, so far as the more useful part of the brain is concerned, and thus the lower and simpler mental processes come more into evidence. Analyze the conversation at some convivial banquet and note how trivial and insane it appears in the clear light of day—puerile when compared with some splendid intellectual debate or discussion bringing into play the higher faculties. But these higher faculties are sometimes overworked and unduly active, denying proper exercise to the simple brain elements that control the emotions, the play instinct, the tendency to mix with one's kind in relaxing good fellowship. Something might be said for alcohol as an agent for suppressing that part of the brain which is overworked in the daily struggle for existence and thereby affording opportunity for the nervous balance to be restored by exercise of the simpler faculties.

That some influence is necessary to preserve proper nervous and mental poise is evidenced by the example of philosophers and scientists who have become mentally "lopsided," as it were, by overuse of one portion of the brain or disuse of the other portion. Darwin's loss of the aesthetic faculties and the power of appreciation of music and poetry is a familiar instance. His weird taste in literature, which enabled him to enjoy the lightest and trashiest novels, was merely the call of his simpler brain elements, neglected and suppressed by the constant exercise of the higher reasoning powers. But is it necessary to employ a poisonous drug for such purpose? It would appear not.

Is Alcohol a Food?

Atwater showed that alcohol in small quantities was utilized by the body as a food. It has long been known that alcohol is burned in the body with the production of energy, but poisonous mushrooms also furnish nourishment. Likewise, as Atwater states, human flesh is digestible and nourishing, but that is no reason for using it as a food.

Experience of Life Insurance.

Life insurance companies are quite particular to exclude not only heavy drinkers, but those whose habits show a trend in this direction. They are taking no chances with alcohol, and they do not want to insure people who "feed" on it. This is a business matter with a life insurance company, and the moral phase is not considered, which means that its action is based upon the facts developed by experience.

The most comprehensive experience that has been published is that of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution. In that company the total abstainers were separated from the temperate drinkers in the mortality experience, with the result that a difference of 32 per cent was shown in favor of the abstainers. Alcohol is no longer used in medicine as a direct heart stimulant. It is of some value as a rapidly available temporary food in the crises of severe illness, fever, etc., when it supplies energy to carry on the body work, but even here it must be used with caution because of its toxic effect on the heart muscle and the fact that it lowers the resistance of the body to the poisons of disease.

Excluding the moral phase of this question, therefore, medical judgment, considering solely the scientific evidence available, must pronounce against the daily use of alcohol.

Whether the occasional use of alcohol as a relaxing beverage or anesthetic for overactive brain centers is possible each man must decide for himself. It is right, however, that the grave risks of even occasional indulgence should be known and remembered. Certainly no man of feeble will power or neurotic family history can afford to take the chances.

Narcotics.

Opium, cocaine, chloral, bromides, all are employed either to relieve bodily pain or to stifle the overinsistent and worrying brain. But, as in the case of alcohol, the relief brought by these drugs is usually paid for at a high rate of interest. In fact, the troubles which are temporarily forced into the background by such indulgence seem to grow in direct proportion to the degree of indulgence and simply await the reckoning day, when the long evaded life burden must be taken up with its added weight or life's journey forever terminated.

These remarks do not apply, of course, to the intelligent and proper administration of such remedies by a physician. It is part of a physician's duty to relieve pain, both mental and physical, but it too often happens that a narcotic properly administered in one instance is carelessly again taken without medical advice, and the foundation of a lifelong habit is laid.

Headache Remedies.

A great deal of harm is done by the self administration of headache remedies, mostly of the coal tar class. These remedies have their place, but should be used under a physician's guidance. Many headaches can be relieved by simple remedies. Bathing the forehead with a little bay rum or rubbing with a menthol pencil, simple rest or a dose of salts will often prove sufficient. The constant use of headache remedies is more than likely to prove irritating to the kidneys, aside from the depressing action on the heart. Aromatic ammonia, strychnine or some other heart stimulant should always be within the reach of those who are so ill advised as to use headache powders more or less regularly.

The causes of headaches are so numerous as to cover almost the entire range of diseased conditions. So called "biliousness" is one of the common causes. This is nothing other than poisoning from the retained products of indigestion. Bile may have little or nothing to do with it, but calomel or some other brisk evacuant will clear the system of the poison and relieve the symptoms.

Eye strain is also a very frequent cause of headache. The folly of swallowing drugs to relieve such trouble is evident. It is comparable to knocking a man insensible in order to relieve his pain. Properly fitted glasses will usually relieve eye strain. But in some cases eye strain is due to overuse or improper use of the eyes. Such cases are readily relieved by rest and attention to proper illumination or position while reading.

Abuse of Cathartics.

As a rule, cathartics should only be used as emergency remedies in acute conditions, as colds, biliousness, indigestion, etc. A tendency to costiveness can usually be overcome by natural remedies. Drugging the bowels is very much like drugging the nervous system—the drug becomes master, but the time comes when the slave will not obey the master, and a condition of semi-paralysis of the bowel function exists.

In treating constipation it should be remembered that the intestine is a long muscular tube. This muscle is what is known as an "involuntary" muscle, not under the control of the will, but acting reflexly. Certain centers in the spinal cord preside over the bowel function and respond to certain stimuli. One of these stimuli is the presence of a certain volume of waste matter in the bowel. Another is the tendency to rhythmical action of the spinal center. In other words, spinal centers form habits, just the same as brain centers, and if accustomed to act at a particular time each day will contrive to do so if permitted.

The value of a fairly general mixed diet is evident when the structure and function of the bowel are considered. Concentrated, predigested food would soon abolish the bowel function. Some people eat too little waste matter. Their food is mostly meat and potatoes. A generous allowance of fruit and green vegetables, especially spinach, and the free use of water between meals will act like magic in such cases. The use of drugs is irrational and positively harmful.

Tea, Coffee and Tobacco.

The use of tea, coffee and tobacco in moderation cannot be regarded as harmful, but even the term "moderation" is here used in a positive sense. No doubt much dyspepsia and nervous derangement are due to the abuse of these fragrant and cheering substances. What constitutes abuse can only be determined by experiment in each individual case. For the average man one cup of coffee at breakfast and a demitasse in the evening should be sufficient. Two cups of coffee or tea contain a pretty generous dose of the drug caffeine and amount to drugging the nervous system.

Tobacco should also be used according to personal susceptibility. A cigar after each meal will not, as a rule, injure the average man, although some are better off without tobacco or with an allowance of one cigar after dinner. Constant smoking or chewing is positively injurious, no matter how robust or concealed the man may be who indulges in it.

Summary.

Alcohol is not a food, but a poison; not a stimulant, but an anaesthetic. It impairs mental and muscular efficiency. It shortens life, even if used in so called moderation.

Narcotics mask pain and trouble, but do not remove the cause. They destroy the will power more effectively than alcohol, but do not cause the same tissue degeneration.

Alcohol and narcotics should not be used in the home, except on a physician's orders.

A SUBSTANTIAL ROAD OF DIRT

Illinois Commission Builds One Without Use of Stone.

CONSTRUCTION METHOD EASY

The Severe Wear Caused by Automobiles Has Made It Necessary to Find Something Stronger Than the Macadam Road—Experiments With Mixture of Dirt and Oil Show Results.

Macadam roads have been the world's standard for many years, but under conditions of modern traffic they have so quickly worn away that in the country which boasted the enduring military roads of Napoleon a congress of the road engineers of the world was called to discuss means of preventing them from going up in smoke or dust! The iron tire of the horse drawn vehicle rolled and compacted the limestone road. The pneumatic tire of the motorcar sucks up the dust and draws it into the air to blow away. It was formerly compacted by traffic; now it is suction.

This fact has been strikingly demonstrated by the work of the state highway commission of Illinois. One of the best miles of macadam road ever constructed, and surface bound with a gravel of peculiar cementing quality, has been ripped up and blown away down to the large, sharp pointed rocks that constitute the basic course. Other experiments with oil and tar have proved the binding and protecting properties of those substances.

Value of Oil.

The value of oil of heavy asphalt base—the residuum after refining out the volatile oils—as a binder for rock roads led to experiments with it in the construction of dirt roads without the use of stone. The idea was to compact and bind the dirt so that it would be waterproof and as wearproof as possible—in other words, to bind the particles of dirt together so that traction would produce little dust. One of the most striking experiments with oiled black mud was made at Bement, in Platt county, and herewith we return to our illustrations. The Bement section ranks among the richest in central Illinois. It is rich because it is fairly bottomless. It was low lying and swampy in the olden days before the coming of the steam dredge and the tile and its roads were as impassable as that type of land affords.

It is usable all the year round for maximum loads, it is practically dustless, it requires no dragging or scraping, and it has a resiliency that saves horse and vehicle and adds much to the comfort of the occupants of wagon or carriage. After more than a year's test, the experiment must be pronounced a great success, and the best men about Bement, who have made a study of roads for many years, regard it as the solution of the problem of building mudless roads in the black prairie soils.

The method of construction was simple. The road was plowed six inches deep and the dirt scraped to each side in the bed thus made a layer of oil was sprinkled, the oil in this experiment being what is usually called 80 to 85 per cent asphalt oil. After the oil was applied two inches of dirt were scraped back into the roadway and oil and soil were thoroughly disked together.

Use of Tamper.

Then followed a tamper, an implement like a large field roller, each section of which bears closely set prongs about ten inches long, somewhat like the spikes attached to the wheels of a steam roller to tear up the road, only longer and rounded on the end. This tamper does the work its name indicates—it completes the mixture and the oil and dirt and tamps it down. After its use more oil and dirt were added until three layers had been applied, and then the steam roller completed the work.

About two and a half gallons of oil were used to the square yard. This oil sells, according to quality, at from 4 to 7 cents per gallon. Taking 5 cents as an average and building a road sixteen feet wide, which is wider than is necessary for the oil, we have a cost for oil of about $1.175 per mile. The labor cost is to be added to that. It is certainly the cheapest mudless road that has yet been devised, as the rock roads run quickly into large money when the material must be carried in by rail.

Repairs are readily made in this form of road construction. The top is plowed up, more oil added, tamped and rolled, and the surface is as good as new. It is not a road that does not need repair. No such road is built. Even the city's granite blocks wear out under the creaking wheels of its heavy traffic. The fundamental fault of American country road builders is their idea that a road will stay built. It won't. It is not in the nature of things. The best of roads need repair, and wise is that commissioner who has learned that in road maintenance a stitch in time saves nine. Unfortunately not many of them have learned that fact.

Evidently the black mud regions, far from gravel and limestone, need not sit helplessly marooned in mud. A way out has apparently been found—over a solid, substantial bridge, built of oil and dirt.

How Would a "Full Jewelled" Typewriter Appeal to You?

Every important bearing in an expensive watch is a small gem of a hardness not susceptible to wear. The purpose of the jewels is to insure by reduction of friction and wear, the accuracy which makes a timepiece valuable.

The first successful use of a ball-bearing typebar in a writing-in-sight machine was by the manufacturers of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Ball Bearings not only for the typebars, but at all vital wearing points of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter are made to serve exactly the same purpose as the jewelled bearings of an accurate, expensive watch. They prevent play and false motion, banish friction, and insure to the operator, for every ounce of energy applied, a full equivalent of perfect work. You demand a full jewelled watch. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ALL THE WRITING ALWAYS IN SIGHT
