GENOA, N. Y., FRIDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 24, 1911.

EMMA A. WALDO

From Nearby Towns.

Ludlowville.

Feb 20—C. H. Cohoon has been spending several days visiting friends in East Lansing.

James Clark, who was critically ill of appendicitis, was operated on and is recovering nicely. It was a critical operation, this being the fifth attack.

A short time ago, Dr. W. G. Fish gave the High school reference books in science, history and mathematics. A number from this place attended the funeral of Culver Blue.

Mrs. J. C. Beebe, who has been visiting her son in Elmira for two weeks, has returned home.

Geo. Sweazy, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. J. C. VanAuken, has returned to Montour Falls.

John Brown, Jr., was happily surprised on Thursday evening by a sleigh load of his High school friends.

B. M. Halladay recently sold a house to Dr. W. G. Fish.

Hugh Grant has accepted a position in Mt Jewett, Pa.

Mrs. Gibson Malone, who has been very ill, is slowly recovering.

Miss Grace Nicholas was operated on Monday for appendicitis.

Alexander Wilson is ill with grip. A number of ice houses were filled last week.

John Simon has moved his family to Fulton.

P. H. Underwood, an instructor in Cornell University, has secured a six months' leave of absence, from that institution and accepted a position as assistant engineer on the Panama Canal. He sailed from New York City last Thursday.

Mrs. Jessie Howland, east of this village, is ill of the measles and complications and is not expected to live.

The six-months old son of Oscar Hanson, who died on the 16th inst., was buried last Friday.

S. W. Underwood expects to spend a few days this week with Arthur Myers at Harford Mills.

The chicken pie supper served by the Ladies' Aid on Town meeting night was well attended. About $26 was cleared.

Ledyard.

Feb 20—We certainly cannot complain of not having sleighing enough this winter, and it looks to-day as though it might continue indefinitely.

Charles Starkweather is at his son Fred's here and assisting at the work on the Montgomery place.

A. J. Hodge of Syracuse was in town for a few days and visited old friends at East Venice, before returning to the city.

Roy Holland and family are sadly afflicted, having been under quarantine for more than five weeks. Roy and little daughter Mildred were first to come down with scarlet fever and they have so far recovered that they were allowed to leave their room the last of the week, and a week ago Muriel was taken with the malady and was very sick, but is improving now. The last of the week Mrs. Holland was attacked and is very sick at this writing. Two nurses are in attendance. Little Ruth still remains to have it. Their many friends express much sympathy and would be glad to show it in other ways, but for the nature of the disease.

Our school opened again this week. Mrs. Fred Avery is entertaining a friend from Binghamton.

Services will be held as usual at the church here next Sunday morning. District Superintendent Jewell will preach at Belltown in the evening.

Toronto Male Quartet.

This company of singers gave an entertainment in Groton recently and The Journal gave the following account of it: "The entertainment given Monday evening by the Toronto Male Quartet as the fourth number of the entertainment course was much enjoyed by the audience."

The program was varied being interspersed with humorous readings by Mr. Gardner, solos and selections on the March by the quartette. The Scotch selections presented in genuine Highland Scotch costume were finely rendered."

North Lansing.

Feb 21—Little Miss Lola Singer has the measles.

Mrs. Fred Wilcox has returned from her visit in Cortland.

The W. O. T. U. dinner at Downing Robinson's was well attended and an enjoyable occasion.

Sidney Ketchum and wife have returned to Locke; they will tarry there a short time and then return to Auburn.

Quinton Boyles and wife have gone to Chemung for a few days. Addison Boyles and wife are looking after the home interests in their absence.

Colds, Colds, Colds! Every home seems to have some sick ones. The new cases this week are Mrs. Dana Singer and Edd Buck.

Martin Stowell is better.

Rev. and Mrs. Allington are improving. Mrs. Allington is only just able to be out of bed.

Mrs. George Fosbinder and daughter Cora were at Catherine Lobdell's one day last week.

There were no services on the charge last Sunday, Rev. Mr. Allington not being able to preach.

Rodolphus Miller made a business trip to Syracuse on Monday.

Mrs. Benton Buck has a very severe attack of grip. Willard is better.

Camilla Beardsley was quite sick last week but is better.

Mrs. Andrew Brink is improving. Mrs. Eugenie is staying with her.

Mr. George Townley has gone back to the hospital at Syracuse.

A physician from Syracuse on his way to see a patient in Ithaca, made a mistake and got off at North Lansing. He hustled and secured a conveyance to take him to South Lansing and got there in time for the trolley to Ithaca, had a sleigh ride, spent a little more money, but got to Ithaca on time.

Sherwood.

Feb 21—For once Dame Fortune smiled on the Old Scholars' Association of Sherwood. "Is Marriage a Failure" which was presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of last week was a howling success, both financially and otherwise. Saturday night crowned the whole. The house was packed till there wasn't standing room even in the vestibule. About one hundred people were obliged to go home, a disappointed lot. By the unanimous request of the public the play will be repeated Saturday evening, Feb. 25, and those who were late last week best be on time as "First come first served" you know. Messrs. Floyd Loveland and Dayton E. Atwater will again favor us with some of their rare solos. These alone are worth the price of admission. Miss Bernice White of Ithaca was with us last Friday evening and sang two beautiful solos. Saturday evening Miss Marjorie Leonard gave two vocal selections. The same orchestra will furnish music. Joseph Titus is present every evening to help fill in between acts with impersonations, etc. Now come one and all and spend an evening always to be remembered with pleasure and also learn a lesson in morals and in bearing and forbearing.

Miss Mary Brewster is quite ill with tonsillitis.

Herman Phillips is a very little better.

Mrs. Fred Slocum entertained Mrs. Fanny Slocum and Miss Mary A. Simkins to tea last Saturday afternoon.

Joseph Hodgson of Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ward were over-Sunday guests at M. Ward's.

Louis Houghton and several other farmers from here are spending the week in Ithaca, hoping to be benefited by what they see and hear concerning farming.

Howard Chase attended the wedding of his brother last week.

The Way to Find Him.

"My wife and I are going to spend a few months with her people at Strong's Corners," said the meek little man, "and I want you to mail your paper to me."

"Yes" said the clerk. "What's your name?"

"Well—or—to make sure, I guess you'd better address it: 'Mary Strong's Husband, Strong's Corners.'"—Catholic Times.

King Ferry.

Feb 22—Mrs. W. D. Seybolt of Union Springs visited her sister, Mrs. Husted Bull, this week.

Geo. Lanterman of South Lansing visited his parents last week.

Miss Mary Grant of Scipio is spending the week at Frank Holland's.

W. H. Peckham is gaining slowly. Mrs. E. Stark is reported very sick at this writing.

Mrs. Mary Tilton is spending some time with her son at Genoa.

Mrs. R. Baker of Aurora spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Tilton.

Miss Lyda Mae Dempsey and Thos. Neville were married at Our Lady of the Lake church on Tuesday, Feb. 21.

H. W. Smith and wife attended the wedding of Miss Elvina Mallison and Walter Lawton at Poplar Ridge on Wednesday last week.

Mrs. May Mallison of Cortland visited friends in this place the last of last week.

Feb 21—Rev. T. J. Searls of Genoa, occupied the pulpit on Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church here. Mr. Searls gave an interesting talk on Prison Life and the evils of intemperance.

L. A. Goodyear was called to Auburn on Saturday last by the death of his brother, Horace Goodyear.

The condition of Mrs. Edwin Stark is very serious.

The funeral services of the late Horace L. Goodyear of Auburn and formerly of this place, were held from the Presbyterian church on Tuesday afternoon. The remains came from Auburn Tuesday morning by train accompanied by funeral director Newkirk, the family consisting of the wife and daughter, also Mrs. Hall, Jesse G. Atwater, and King Atwater. Brother Rev. Robert Ivey and Brother W. W. Atwater conducted the F. & A. M. services. Deceased was a member of lodge No. 421, F. & A. M., and about sixty years of age.

Archie Smith has sold his fine draft team to New York parties.

Feb. 16—There is more sickness in this section than has been for several years. Among the ill reported are Wm. H. Peckham, Alfred Lanterman, Jason G. Atwater, Fred Stillwell.

On account of so much illness the Eastern Star lodge did not convene on Tuesday evening.

Many from here attended the funeral service of the late C. H. Blue which was held from the family home near Belltown on Sunday last. Rev. Robert Ivey from this place and Rev. T. J. Searls of Genoa were the officiating clergymen after which the F. & A. M. took charge of the services, W. W. Atwater officiating. About fifty members of the fraternity were present. The remains were placed in the vault at Five Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burgett entertained on Valentine's day, relatives from Auburn, Ithaca, Moravia, Genoa, Venice and Five Corners.

Genoa Lodge F. & A. M. and Genoa Chapter are to hold a social and supper at Masonic hall Wednesday evening, Feb. 22.

Dr. Hatch keeps four horses going most of the time.

David Miles is spending some time at Sennett.

East Genoa.

Feb 21—Mrs. Nellie Hill has been sick with a bad cold.

No new cases of measles in this place.

Oscar Tift and Al Burtless visited a Holstein farm north of Moravia and purchased six head of registered cattle on Monday.

John Smith and wife are spending some time with his brother, Lewis Smith of Cortland.

Fred Bothwell spent Tuesday in Auburn.

David Nettleton attended the Farmers' Institute at Ithaca Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Lizzie Strong is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Taber of Ithaca.

Miss May Sharpsteen was home from Moravia over Sunday.

No service Sunday evening as the pastor has a bad cold. Come out to the Thursday evening prayer meeting.

Subscribe for THE TRIBUNE.

Five Corners.

Feb 14—The snow is fast falling this morning and possibly we are going to have sleighing.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hollister visited at her brother's, Andrew Brink and wife at North Lansing this week Monday.

Wilbur Cook spent last Sunday with Kirby Sharpsteen and wife near Ludlowville.

The West Genoa and Five Corners W. C. T. U. business meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Ferris Wednesday afternoon, March 1.

Mrs. Major Palmer and Miss Elizabeth Palmer are both ill with the grip and under the care of Dr. Skinner of Genoa.

Mrs. Joel Corwin was called to Newfield last week Thursday by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Kellogg, who passed away Thursday evening. Mr. Corwin went on Saturday to attend the funeral. They returned to their home here Monday.

Mrs. Corwin has the sympathy of her many friends.

Robert Ferris went to Moravia last week Wednesday and got a load of goods for his son, Wm. Ferris. He found them both very ill with the prevailing distemper, lagrippe.

Miss Iva Barger and friend, Libbie Heycock, both of Ludlowville, spent this week Monday with Mrs. Chas. Barger.

We have known of people when making sausage to sometimes put beef in with it, but Smith put the end of his finger, nail and all in theirs, but he has the sympathy of his friends as it must be very painful.

The community at large was shocked to hear of the death of Culver H. Blue last Thursday. He had not been well for a long time but still no one thought he was so near the end. He died on his eightieth birthday. He will be sadly missed by his many friends but nowhere as in his own home. He leaves besides his widow, two daughters, Mrs. J. G. Barger and Mrs. S. C. French, and three grandchildren. A kind husband, a loving father, and a good neighbor has gone. The funeral obsequies were held from his late home on Sunday last at 2 o'clock. Rev. Robert Ivey of King Ferry, assisted by Rev. T. J. Searls of Genoa, officiated, and the services of the Masons of which he had been a member 47 years, were very touching and impressive. It reminds them that their broken ranks are closing fast. As one by one they are passing away, one by one the reaper is calling them to the land of cloudless day. The many friends of the family have their sincere sympathy. Mrs. S. C. French was unable to attend the funeral of her father which was a very sad feature. There were several brother Masons from North Lansing lodge in attendance.

Mrs. Ella Algert was called to Auburn Tuesday by the illness of her sister.

Feb 21—George Curtis and wife visited at Andrew Brink's at North Lansing last Thursday.

John Morey and wife have been assisting at the home of Z. Alexander during his illness.

Robert Ferris and Earl Mann went to Moravia last Thursday after two loads of household furniture for Wm. Ferris. Mr. Ferris expects to soon open the store here with his father, Robt. Ferris.

Dr. Hatch was called to E. C. Corwin's last week on account of the illness of their son. The little fellow is improving at this writing.

Rev. Robert Ivey of King Ferry delivered a splendid sermon here at the church last Sunday afternoon. Philo W. Meade rendered two songs with Miss Cora Goodyear at the organ.

Mr. Allie Palmer is under the care of a physician.

We are anxious to learn how town meeting will end—license or no license. We sincerely hope no license. We honor the people of the town of Lansing for their having no license, and we hope this town will have the same honor.

District Superintendent C. E. Jewell will be present at the evening services at Belltown and will preach and administer the Lord's supper next Sunday evening.

Frank Corwin and wife are with

This place is in need of two good things and that is a good physician to locate here and Sunday evening preaching services.

B. B. Goodyear spent last week Tuesday and Wednesday with relatives in Ithaca and took in Both-child sale. There were a few things left in the store after she went home.

Funeral Directors John and Claude Palmer went with the remains of Mrs. Mary Bartlett from Genoa to Groton last Saturday.

Philo W. Meade was greeted with a large audience last Saturday evening at the church at Belltown and his remarks were grand and to the point. His songs were highly appreciated and the audience could have listened much longer.

Mrs. E. B. Stewart and daughter, and Jay Swartwood have returned to their home in Trumansburg.

Henry Barger and daughter Iva of Ludlowville spent Friday night with his parents, Chas. Barger and wife. Iva remained until Monday morning. Mildred Corwin spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend Iva at the same place.

Mrs. John Palmer spent a few days in Groton last week, returning home Monday evening.

George Atwater and wife, Mrs. Robert Ferris and Mrs. George Ferris were all ill with the prevailing distemper last week, but are all recovering at this writing.

Mrs. S. C. French is slowly recovering from her severe illness.

Mrs. Fred Mann is also recovering from her illness.

East Venice.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith

PROLOGUE.
This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly entrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

bled us, Hardwick—bled us to death while you had the chance. You are justly, if not legally, in debt to every man in this state who had ever shipped a carload of freight or paid a passenger fare over your line before the present rate law went into effect." The vice president sat up and put his elbows on the edge of the table. "You are too many for me, Blount, and I'm no apprentice at the game either. In all the years we've dickered together you've always been a consistent fighter for your own hand. What's happened to you? Have you acquired a new set of convictions, or is this only a different way of whipping the devil around the stump?" "Oh, I don't know," returned the guest. "We are all growing older—and wiser perhaps. You don't deny the debt you owe us, do you?" "Do we owe you anything, Blount?" asked the magnate pointedly. "If we do we are willing to pay it in spot cash on demand." The big man on the other side of the table was leaning back in his chair with his hands in his pockets, and the smile wrinkling at the corners of his eyes was half genial, half satirical. "It's lucky we are alone, McVickar," he said. "A third party might imagine that you are trying to bribe me." "That's all right, Blount. We understand each other. Nothing for nothing is the accepted rule in this world of ours, and we all recognize it. You are figuring on something. I know you are. Name it. If it is anything less than a mortgage on the earth and one or two of the planets I'll get it for you." "I am afraid we are more than a mile or two apart yet," said the man who was not smoking after a long

"A THIRD PARTY MIGHT IMAGINE THAT YOU ARE TRYING TO BRIBE ME." minute. "Let's go back to the beginning and start over again. I said that Gordon is going to be the next governor." "I know you did, and I said he wouldn't be, not if we can help it," said the railway magnate, with equal determination. "The methods you will take to defeat him will insure his election, McVickar. You fellows are mighty slow to learn your lesson. You don't know anything but bribery. The times have changed, and you have not changed with them. I say Gordon will be the next governor." Again there was a strained silence. It was the vice president who broke it. "If we had the safest kind of majority in the legislature we couldn't be sure of accomplishing anything with Gordon in the governor's office," he asserted. "You don't need to be told that." "Oh, I don't know," was the calm rejoinder. "Gordon is an and a fair man. If you could go to him with clean hands, but you could not do that, McVickar. You're too badly out of practice." "You are not putting it quite fairly, senator. We are too badly whipped to take any chances." "I know. That is what you always say, and you have said it so much, you and your fellow railroad managers, that you have lost the straight-forward combination. You don't know how to make a clean fight, and it's your own fault." Once more the man with the square jaw took time to consider. "You're sparring with me, Blount," he said finally. "You are talking to me as you might talk to a committee of the Good Government league. Let's get together. You control the political situation, and we recognize that fact. Meet me halfway and tell me what you want." "I want a square deal all around, Hardwick; that's all. And you've got to make a clean fight this time if you want me with you. A new day has dawned in American politics. I and my kind recognize it, and you and your kind don't seem to recognize it. That is the difference between us. In the present case it comes down to this: You are going to fight for a railroad majority in the legislature, and you want Reynolds for the head of the ticket because you know that you can depend upon his veto if you don't get your majority. You are not going to get Reynolds or the majority either without the help of the party organization."

"We can put it simpler than that," said the railroad man. "We get nothing without your help as the head of the party organization. That is why I asked you here to dinner with me tonight."

"I have been wondering for the last half hour if you really believe that you need me, McVickar. When I gave you fair warning two years ago you wouldn't take it, and we did you up. Are you sure you are ready now to boller enough?" Once again the vice president refused to be hurried into making an admission. When he spoke it was as the fighting corporation commander. "There is a limit to all things, senator, and you are pushing us pretty well up to it. I suppose you can swing the legislature, and you can have it and be banged! We'll have our governor and our attorney general."

"You are betting on that, are you?" smiled the man in the opposite chair. "Is that your declaration of war?" "Call it anything you like. We are not going to be legislated off the map if we can help it. Strong as your machine is, you can't swing Gordon in against Reynolds if we put up the right kind of fight, and when it comes to Rankin for attorney general you simply haven't another man in the party to put up against him."

"You've settled this definitely in your own mind, have you, Hardwick?" was the quiet question. "I'm sorry. I've been hoping you had learned your lesson—you and your tribe. I came here this evening prepared to show you a decent way out of your troubles, so far as this state is concerned."

Again the railroad magnate put his elbows on the table edge. "What was your 'decent way, major?' he asked, using for the first time the courtesy title by which the ex-senator was best known in his home country. "I don't mind telling you, though you will call it an old man's foolishness. I have a grown son, McVickar. Did you know that?" "Yes."

"He is a lawyer, and a pretty bright one, they tell me. As I happen to know, he is well up on the corporation side of the argument, and I have been afraid he would marry and settle down somewhere in the east. I'm getting old, Hardwick, and I'd like to have him with me. Out of that notion grew another. I said to myself this: If McVickar could have a good, clean cut young man representing his railroad, a man who not only knew his business in the courts, but might also know how to plead his client's case before the public—if McVickar could have such a man as that for his corporation counsel and would agree to live somewhere within shouting distance of such a young man's ideals we might all be persuaded to bury the hatchet and live in peace and amity."

A slow smile spread itself over the strong face of the railway magnate. "Why didn't you say in the beginning that you wanted a place for your boy?" "I'm not saying it now," was the sober retort. "You forget that you have just been telling me that you don't intend to comply with the condition."

"What condition?" "That you turn over a new leaf and meet the people of this state halfway."

"There isn't any halfway point in a fight for life. You know that as well as I do. But we'll give your son the place gladly."

The man who had once been his own foreman of roundups straightened himself in his chair and smote the table with his fist. "No, by thunder, you won't—not in a thousand years, McVickar! Maybe you could buy me—maybe you have bought me in times past—but you can't buy that boy! Listen and I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I telegraphed him this afternoon, telling him to throw up his job in Boston and come out here. If he comes pretty soon he will be legally a citizen of the state before election. You said we didn't have anybody but Rankin to run for attorney general. I'll show you if we haven't!"

Mr. Hardwick McVickar was not of those who fight as men beating the wind. What time the deft waiter was clearing the table and serving the small coffees he kept silence, but when the time was fully ripe he said what there was to be said.

"You've got us by the nape of the neck, as usual, Blount," he said. "Name your terms."

"I have named them. Get in line with the new public opinion, and we'll do what we can for you." McVickar had anticipated the thing which was about to happen, not precisely in its present form, perhaps, but in some form which would involve the providing of a place for the senator's son, and he smiled inwardly when he remembered that he had given Gantry, the division traffic manager of the Transcontinental, instructions to look up one Evan Blount, a young lawyer, on his next visit to Boston.

By all odds it would be better to wait for Gantry's report before taking any decided steps in the bargaining with Evan Blount's father, but unhappily the crisis had arrived, and quite probably it could not be postponed. None the less the vice president tried for the postponement.

"You're asking a good deal, Blount, and you don't seem to realize it. If we should agree to meet the people of this state halfway, as you suggest, what guaranty have we that we won't be compelled to go all the way?"

The fine lined wrinkles were appearing again at the corners of the hereditary Blount eyes.

"You can't quite rise to the occasion, can you, Hardwick?" smiled the boss. "You'd like to be good, of course, but you want to be cocksure beforehand that it isn't going to cost too much."

"I'm only asking for a little time in which to consider it," was the vice president's final word.

"You have all the time there is between now and election. I've told you what I am going to do."

"You know very well that we can't allow you to do what you propose. With an unfriendly attorney general we might as well go out of business first as last."

"It is up to you, McVickar," was the calm reply.

CHAPTER III. A FALSE GALLOP OF MEMORIES.

AS a churlish fate decreed it turned out that Blount was not to have Gantry for a traveling companion beyond Chicago.

On the second day of westward faring the railroad man, whose business followed him wherever he went, had instructions to meet Mr. Hardwick McVickar, his vice president, in the Illinois metropolis, and on the morning of the following day Blount continued his journey alone.

Twenty-four hours later the expatriated westerner had crossed his Rubicon, otherwise the clay colored stream of the Missouri river, at Omaha, and had entered upon scenes which ought to have been familiar—should have been and were not, so many and great were the changes wrought during his fourteen years of absence. In the smoking car he fell into talk with a prosperous looking man whose thin, hawklike face was so out of keeping with the air of prosperity—a lone passenger who had boarded the train at Omaha.

At first their conversation was baldly desultory. The hawk faced one, it seemed, was a mine owner whose property, vaguely located somewhere "in the mountains," was involved in litigation. It was the reference to the litigation which first drew Blount beyond the commonplaces, the awakened interest being wholly professional.

Oddly enough, since he had never expected to use it, he had specialized somewhat in mining law, and before many miles had been clicked off under the drumming trucks of the Pullman he found himself giving opinions and laying down plans of procedure for the man who, investing in mines, had apparently purchased more trouble than profits.

Into the cleft thus opened by the ax of business the hawk faced man inserted a wedge of cautious inquiry. In addition to his mining properties, he had been making investments in timberlands—bad investments, he feared, since the government had lately taken such a decided stand against the cutting of timber in the new forest reserves.

second hand a working knowledge of the forestry situation in the west and of the legal status of the western timber pirates. Moreover, he had very clear and decided opinions upon the question of the conservation of the nation's timber resources, and he was frank enough to express them emphatically.

If he had been less unsuspecting he might have remarked the quickened attention of the prosperous looking person who seemed so willing to take advice from a chance acquaintance.

"If you were a government man yourself you could hardly put the case stronger," was the smiling commentary of this person, who was as yet nameless to Blount.

"How do you know I am not a government man?" said the expatriate, willing enough to play the game as the cards should fall.

"Because you are not traveling on government transportation," was the shrewd reply.

"You can't tell anything by that," Blount said, laughing. "A good many

"ESPECIALLY IF THEY ARE TRAVELING ON A SECRET MISSION." civilian employees of the government travel on regular tickets like other people."

"I know they do," admitted the other, and then, with a sharp side glance which Blount missed, "especially if they are traveling on a secret mission."

"You needn't be alarmed. You have not told me anything the government could make use of," returned Blount, carrying the jest one necessary move further along.

It was precisely at this point, as Blount remembered afterward, that the forestry subject was dropped. Later on, after the talk had drifted back to mining and from mining into politics, the hawk faced man announced his intention of going back to his section in the body of the car to take a nap.

A little further along toward evening the great range which had been visible for hours in the west began to define itself in peaks and high, bald shoulders of wind swept mesas, and Blount was glad to find some stirrings of the homecoming wanderer's quickened pulse answering to the nearer view of the mountains.

At the dining car dinner, which was served while the high peaks of the main range were still reflecting the crimson and gold of the sunset, Blount missed his luncheon companion.

AN IRISHMAN'S WIT.

Why Malaney Disobeyed the Order of the Boss.

Several years ago, while managing the gas and electric property at Madison, Wis., I came in daily contact with an Irishman by the name of Malaney who was then superintendent. He had a keen appreciation of humor and wit and was never so happy as when he could make you wonder whether he was extremely foolish or extremely witty. His bulls were often and perhaps always premeditated. I liked to joke with him, although I generally got the worst of it.

He had a persistent habit of working on Sunday, and it seemed to me that he always picked out a job of trenching in front of some church or equally conspicuous place. While in spirit he was one of the most loyal and obedient employees I ever had, in reality he did not know how to mind.

Whenever I spoke to him about his Sunday work he would always say, "When the ox falls into the pit he shall be taken out."

The whole difference was between his opinion and mine as to what really constituted an ox in a pit. Finally I had to give him orders that he was never to work on Sunday without my consent.

For several weeks there was no cause for complaint. I was absent from the city for two or three weeks and returned unexpectedly on a Sunday. While out for a drive I saw a ditch open in a side street and guessed in a moment that Malaney was at work there with some of his men. I drove down to the ditch and found him on his knees trying to blow up a fire in a lead kettle. He would not have seen me at all if I had not spoken to him; but, coming up immediately behind him, I said, "Mr. Malaney, have I not told you repeatedly that you must not work on Sunday?"

He almost collided with my last words by his ready response, which was, "Ye did, ye did; but I forgot to ask you whether you were a Jew or a gentile."—Henry L. Doherty in Sunday Magazine.

Fencing! Fencing!

For the next ten days I will sell Michigan wire fencing at cost. This fencing is made of a good quality of carbonized steel wire, having a tensile strength, nearly double that of common annealed steel wire. When using this wire you are getting a much heavier fence as it contains about 2 lbs. 7 oz. more wire to the rod; as it is a solid steel wire much stronger.

This is the time of year, Mr. Farmer, you should call and look over the Oliver Sulkey Plow and Superior Grain Drill. You have heard about them. They are the one's you hear your neighbor farmers talking about. Do not wait until you are ready to go to the field. Call and look them over. No trouble to show goods. Sold by

WANTED: 50 MEN AND WOMEN

To Take Advantage of Special Offer Made by J. S. Banker

J. S. Banker, the enterprising druggist, is advertising to-day for fifty men and women to take advantage of the special half price offer he is making on Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia and get a fifty cent package at half price, 25 cents.

So positive he is of the remarkable power of this specific to cure these diseases, as well as sick headaches and liver troubles, that he agrees to refund the money to any customer whom this medicine does not quickly relieve and cure.

With Dr. Howard's specific at hand, you can eat what you want and have no fear of ill consequences. It strengthens the stomach, gives perfect digestion, regulates the bowels, creates an appetite, and makes life worth the living.

This is an unusual opportunity to obtain 60 doses of the best medicine ever made for half its regular price, with the personal guarantee of a well known man to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

If you cannot call at J. S. Banker's store to-day, send him 25 cents by mail and he will send you a package, promptly, charges paid.

J. S. Banker has been able to secure only a limited supply of the specific, so great is the demand, and you should not delay taking advantage of the liberal offer he is making this week.

VALUE OF PLAYGROUNDS.

How They Help in Making Children Good Citizens.

Children, as well as their elders, can help in making towns attractive by keeping their home surroundings clean and neat, by refraining from throwing rubbish and paper on the streets and in many other useful ways. But to accomplish this a great deal depends on the character and training of children.

Healthy, pure minded and carefully trained youngsters usually prove the best town improvement workers, and anything that can be done to benefit their health and morals should be encouraged. Public and private playgrounds have been found to be very helpful, and in the Los Angeles Times George E. Bettinger tells as follows of the benefits children have derived from playgrounds in Los Angeles:

"The playground cannot be excelled as an instrument in clearing the streets of boys and girls and furnishing them with a place to spend their leisure hours. The lessons learned here do more toward making good citizens of boys than any number of lectures or books can do. These lessons of law and order are imbibed as the boy goes about his play. They become a part of him, and he obtains the true essential ideas of good citizenship.

GIRLS' RACE ON A PLAYGROUND.

[From the American City, New York.]

An incident that happened in Los Angeles will show the efficiency of the playground in taking the boys off the streets. In a certain part of this city it had been the custom of the police department to put on two extra officers when the summer vacation of the schools began. This was necessary because it did not take long for the children to get into mischief. The year that the playground was opened the force of officers was increased, as usual; but, much to the surprise of the police, they were not needed and were removed in less than two weeks. This was made possible by the playground. The children went there instead of loafing around the streets and getting into trouble."

"NOTHING TO DO."

Dull Times Not Discouraging to the Man Who Keeps Himself Busy.

Nothing wins so well as constant work. Often we hear a merchant complaining about dull times. Perhaps his neighbor is doing a rushing business, for the simple reason that his neighbor keeps busy. If customers are not coming in so rapidly as he might wish the busy man takes time to get busier and devises some new scheme to bring trade to the store.

Perhaps he busies himself in rearranging his goods in attractive manner on the shelves and in the show-cases. If he finds some of the clerks who are complaining of its being dull he immediately gets those clerks busy getting out old goods, arranging them in a manner that he can carry on a cleaning up sale to advantage.

There is always lots of work to do. How many times do we find merchants who complain of dullness sitting inside and vainly endeavoring to look through windows covered with dust and dirt! How many times do we find the man who says there is nothing to do looking at a display of dirty goods in the showcase!

Don't you forget it—if you have any business to look after you have something to keep you busy all the time. Nothing like keeping busy about the store. It is sure to pay in the end. Even the novice can keep busy reading some good trade paper and posting up on commercial ideas and make a winning thereby.

No Longer an "Eyesore."

Columbus, Ind., became metropolitan in a twinkling when Mayor Charles S. Barnaby turned on the water in the fountain that graces the center of the new City park and Louis J. Scheidt, president of the Commercial club, turned on the colored electric lights in the fountain. Hundreds of people saw the formal opening of the park. The new park is situated where the vacant city square owned by the Pennsylvania lines used to be. A year ago it was an eyesore to the city. Now it is graded, flowers bloomed in the beds last summer, there is a big fountain playing in the middle, inviting seats are placed along the cement walks, lights mark the entrances and the circle around the fountain, and 150 maple trees are growing rapidly for the first season. The park was furnished by public subscription, and C. J. Ruesh, chief engineer at the waterworks, gave the fountain.

Billboards and Landscape Views.

In many eastern cities and towns there is just now an increasing activity of the crusade against billboards, and, strange to say, many of these fights on the part of the cities and towns are directed against the billboards in the country—along the roadsides—where they mar or hide beautiful natural landscapes. Increased travel through the medium of the automobile and suburban trolley lines is largely responsible for this increased activity against an inexcusable evil.

READY FOR WORK.

Men's "Undress" as Women's Dress.

WEARING THE OVERALLS.

The up to date housewife has discovered that she can work better when she is wearing overalls or pajamas than she can when she is hampered by skirts; hence the fact that in many cases she has taken to wearing one or the other of these articles of men's apparel when her duties call for housework in which the ordinary dress is something of a handicap and acts as fetters.

One woman who always puts up her own lace curtains says that she had a most serious accident by having her skirts catch on the stepladder and that now she always puts on pajamas for the work. If a caller comes in unexpectedly it is easy to throw on a kimono over the masculine attire.

The illustration shows a very active housewife prepared to do a little whitewashing below stairs without spilling a frock.

wearing a large specimen in her hat, another as a corsage flower and a third rose to complete the trilogy on the end of her scarf. The effect is most pleasing when color values are understood.

What Suggestion Will Do.

There is nothing that plays so important a part in the daily life of men and women as does suggestion, says H. Ad-dington Bruce in the Delinctor. No matter how many setbacks come, keep repeating to yourself optimistic auto-suggestions. Repetition is one of the most powerful instruments of suggestion. There is a great truth underlying the familiar saying, "As a man thinketh so is he." Not only the people with whom you associate, but the books you read, the clothes you wear, the pictures on your bedroom wall, the very wall paper itself, convey to you suggestions which have an influence in the making of your character, the shaping of your ideals, the determining of your life. See to it that so far as possible you banish the tawdry, the coarse and the garish from your sight. Surround yourself with objects of beauty. Keep your clothes neat and clean, but do not, as so many people seem to do, regard them as your chief aim in life. Be especially solicitous with regard to your choice of books.

ADVICE TO CLERKS.

By ELBERT HUBBARD.

To the clerk who would succeed I say, CULTIVATE CHARM OF MANNER.

Courteous manners in little things are an asset worth acquiring. When a customer approaches rise and offer a chair. Step aside and let the store's guest pass first into the elevator. These are little things, but they make you and your work finer.

To guy visitors or to give short, sharp, flippant answers even to stupid or impudent people is a great mistake. Meet rudeness with unflinching patience and politeness and see how much better you feel.

Most inaccuracies come from not really listening to what is said or not really seeing what you put down. The chewing of gum, tobacco or paper as a jaw exercise should be eliminated. The world is now pronouncing it vulgar, unbusiness-like, useless and silly. Keep ahead of your employer and of the board of health in this thing.

If your business is to wait on customers be careful of your dress and appearance. Do your mauling before you reach the store. A toothbrush is a good investment. A salesman with a bad breath is dear at any price. Let your dress be quiet, neat and not too fashionable. To have a prosperous appearance helps you inwardly, and helps the business.

Give each customer your whole attention, and give just as considerate attention to a little buyer as a big one. If asked for information be sure you have it before you give it. Do not assume that the location or fact is so now because you once thought it so. Don't misdirect. Make your directions so clear that they will be a real help.

WASTE CAN FOR USE ON STREET CORNER POLE.

Substantial Receptacle of Which Any Town Might Make Use.

The accompanying illustration shows a self closing can for receiving paper and other waste which has been in successful operation during the past four seasons, and any town that cares for the appearance of its streets might adopt it with advisability. The can is semicircular in horizontal section, with a flat back, and is made to fit into the iron street railway poles used in most cities, being held in place by a hook which engages in the lattice-work of the pole. This permits easy removal for the purpose of emptying the can. The bottom of the can is perforated with half inch holes, allowing water from rains to drain off.

The top is a cover which is made somewhat smaller than the can itself, allowing about one inch play between the edge of the cover and the sides of the can. The cover is fastened to a horizontal rod which extends through holes in opposite sides of the can and serves as a swivel, allowing the cover to swing downward. This rod is fastened a short distance from the back of the cover, and at the back a weight is fastened to the underside of the cover sufficiently heavy to draw the latter back to place, thus making it self closing. The material used in the construction of the cans is heavy galvanized iron, painted. For guidance, the words "Push Down" are printed with stencil on top of the cover, and the request to "Put It In Here" is stenciled on the outside of the can.

Good News For Retailers.

It is reported that the mail order houses experienced a shrinkage in business during the past year, and the head of one of the biggest mail order houses states that this shrinkage is due to the retail merchants learning to advertise their prices in big figures.

Playing at Death.

The mother of Ivan Turgenev, the Russian novelist, was a trying person to live with, irritable, capricious and unreasonable. On Ivan's birthday in 1845, we are told in "Two Russian Reformers," after a day of festivities, Mme. Turgenev pretended to be dying. "She sent for her confessor and, placing before her the portrait of her son Ivan, exclaimed 'Adieu, Ivan! Adieu, Nicolas! Adieu, my children!' Then she ordered her forty servants and all the men employed about the house to say goodby to her. When they had fled out of the room Mme. Turgenev declared that she felt better and asked for tea. The next day the following 'order' appeared:

"I give orders that tomorrow morning the disobedient servants, Nicolas Jacovlef, Ivan Petrof and Egor Kondratief, shall sweep the court in front of my windows."

"Those names were those of servants who had not appeared at her bedside, possibly because they were a little drunk that evening. 'Good for nothings! Drunkards!' exclaimed Mme. Turgenev. 'They rejoice at the death of their mistress!'"

The Bank Beat the Prince.

The Gentlewoman of London recalls the following story of the prince regent and Count's bank: "When George IV. was a regent he had a grudge against Count's and determined to play a trick on the authorities. In those days even the great banks kept very small reserves of cash, and the playful prince thought out a plan to close Count's. So he sent his querry round from Carlton House with a check for $100,000, fondly hoping that the bank would not be able to pay over the counter. The prince's trick, however, failed of success, as the wary old partner of the Strand bank proved equal to the occasion. He said at once to the querry, 'How will his royal highness take the amount, in gold or notes?' The querry hesitated and then said he had better go back to Carlton House to inquire. So he departed, and Count's had time to send to the Bank of England and get the cash required, but it was not needed, as the prince regent, seeing that Count's had got the best of him, did not return the check in question."

Eggs That Can't Be Found.

The eggs of some common birds of the present day have never been found. There is the robin snipe; its eggs have never been seen. An English zoologist kept a man going up and down the coast of Labrador for weeks purposely to get a robin snipe's egg, but it was in vain. The bird is known by thousands of people, but it breeds so far north and so remote from any civilization that no scientific observer can ever get to its nest ere the young are hatched and have taken to wing. The frigate bird that is so commonly seen at sea on the Pacific and off the West Indies is such a solitary bird and is so seldom seen in its nest during the hours of daylight that its egg is rare. It seems strange, but the eggs of so well known a bird as the sandpiper have never been found and are almost priceless.—London Globe.

Reversed the Proposition.

Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the writer, found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket 10 cents in change, his smallest bank note being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor. "I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill, "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change."

MRS. MARY BARTLETT.

THOMAS SILL.

Brother and sister whose deaths occurred within nine days of each other, in the same house.

Mrs. Mary S. Bartlett.

The death of Mrs. Mary S. Bartlett, at the home of Mrs. Thomas Sill on Friday morning last, was a peculiarly sad one. Mrs. Bartlett came from her home at Groton on Thursday of last week to attend the funeral of her brother, Thomas Sill. On Sunday she was suddenly taken ill with pneumonia—the same disease which caused her brother's death—and was very ill from the start, her death occurring about 9 o'clock Friday morning.

Mary Bartlett was born in the town of Genoa, May 15, 1853, and was the fourth child of the late John and Catherine Sill. She was married to Clarence Shaffer of Genoa in November, 1870. Mr. Shaffer suffered serious injuries in an accident and died Oct. 12, 1872. Mrs. Shaffer remained at the old home near this village, until her marriage to Mr.

Fred Bartlett of Groton on March 1, 1896. Since that time her home has been in Groton. The death of Mr. Bartlett occurred June 28, 1907.

The deceased was a member of the Baptist church of Groton, and several societies connected with that church. Her remains were taken to her late home at Groton on Saturday afternoon and funeral services were held in the Baptist church on Monday at 1 o'clock. The pastor being ill, Rev. S. S. Bradford, pastor of the Locke Baptist church, officiated. There were a number of beautiful floral pieces from friends in the church and from relatives. Burial in Groton cemetery.

Besides her three sisters, Mrs. Wm. Starnor, Mrs. Ida Hand and Mrs. Frank Tarbell, and three brothers, William, Charles and Oliver Sill, she leaves a large number of friends in this locality and in Groton.

Death of Horace L. Goodyear.

From the Auburn Journal of Feb. 21:

"Horace L. Goodyear died Saturday morning, Feb. 18, at his home, No. 15 Havens avenue of bronchitis after a brief illness. He had not been in good health for a number of years, but the news of his death came as a shock to his many friends who did not realize that his recent illness would be fatal. Mr. Goodyear was in the 60th year of his age. He was the son of William H. and Fanny Rice Goodyear, old residents of Genoa. He was born at the Goodyear homestead, one mile south of King Ferry, Aug. 15, 1851, where he resided until 1888, when he moved to the village of King Ferry and twelve years ago came to make his home in Auburn. In the autumn of 1890 Mr. Goodyear, then a strong and rugged man, injured his spine by a fall from a wagon of farm produce at the village of Aurora. From the effects of this he never entirely recovered though his strong constitution and cheerful disposition aided him to survive until his last illness. For a number of years he has been an interested employe at the works of the Bowen Manufacturing Co. and among his shopmates and wherever he was known throughout the country his genial spirit and brave struggle for health has made him a host of friends who sincerely mourn his loss. He was a member of the Genoa Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 421 at King Ferry and of the society of the Golden Spur of this city. Besides his wife he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Frances Price of this city, and one brother, Lucius Goodyear, of King Ferry."

Funeral services were held at King Ferry Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of Genoa lodge, No. 421, F. & A. M. Burial in King Ferry cemetery.

Expression of Thanks.

The widow and son of the late Thomas Sill of Genoa, N. Y., desire to thank their friends for the many kind acts and sympathy extended to their husband and father in his last sad illness.

Farm Journal Wisdom.

Make your life a blessing to every body about you.

Some men are born good, but more are made good by their wives.

To keep clothes from freezing to the line put a handful of salt in the last rinsing water.

After peeling apples drop them into cold water. This will prevent their becoming discolored.

To suit both those who like beef-steak rare and well done, cut it in two and partly cook one piece before putting the other one on.

A greater than Luther Burbank has invented a collar-button that will not roll when dropped, but will lie just where it falls.

One of the rewards of wide reading is the broadened outlook it gives one on life. The well-told experiences of others seem to become a part of your own and hardly distinguishable from them in the memory.

A small square of blanket folded over and sewed up, leaving one end open, makes an effective foot warmer for any one troubled with cold feet, and will add greatly to one's comfort these cold nights. This is more convenient and satisfactory than the usual hot-water bottle.

It seems as if almost anybody could bake an apple so that it would be nice eating; but here is a way that is extra good: With a narrow-bladed knife take out the core, fill the hole with sugar, set the apple into the oven in a dish that will hold water and keep plenty of water around it until it is soft, and it will be fit for anyone to eat, farmer or king.

Raw potatoes are better for frying than cooked ones. Slice them very thin into cold water; have a frying pan well covered with boiling-hot fat; throw the potatoes in with all the water that will adhere to them—it lightens and puffs them. Season and turn over them another frying pan. Lift it often and turn the bottom ones on top. When nearly done take off the covering pan and let them brown.—February Farm Journal.

He Gave It.

The Girl (rather weary, at 11:30 p. m.)—I don't know a thing about baseball. The Beau—Let me explain it to you. The Girl—Very well; give me an illustration of a home run.—Life.

Simplicity is, of all things, the hardest to be copied.—Steels.

FALLS VICTIM TO THIEVES.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, F. T. Atwater's King Ferry.

House Cleaning Time

brings its pleasures as well as many trials and we are apt to look on these as dark days, but there is always a bright side to everything and one of the pleasures for the good housewife at this time is the satisfaction she has in looking at a room after it has been papered with some pretty, clean paper. How it adds to the appearance.

We will be glad to show you our line of samples for we know they will please you. There is a great variety in colorings and the prices range from 2 1-2c to $1.00 a roll. Look them over early before the new stock is exhausted.

Village and Vicinity News.

—More new cases of measles this week.

—Lent begins next Wednesday, March 1.

—Mrs. Cora Green returned Saturday last from Fayette.

—Miss Pearl Norman is the guest of Mrs. Chas. Morris at Cortland.

—Among those on the sick list this week are Mrs. D. C. Hunter and Mrs. J. H. Rease.

—B. D. Banker of Meridian has been in charge of the Banker hardware several days recently.

—Eggs dropped to 15 and 18 cents this week, but have since raised to 17 and 20. Butter is 22 cents.

—Miss June Skinner returned to Syracuse Monday afternoon, after spending a few days with her father, Dr. Skinner.

—Eugene Seymour, who has rented the Sill market, has been in town part of the week getting the market in readiness for business next week.

—There will be a meeting of the Genoa Fire department next Monday evening, Feb. 27, in the school building at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

—Dr. C. W. House of South Norwalk, Conn., who was a practicing physician in Locke some years ago, has decided to locate in Locke again and has purchased a residence there.

—George J. Morrison died at his home near Five Corners yesterday morning, after a long illness. At the time of going to press, no arrangements had been made for the funeral.

—Remember the date of the Toronto Male Quartet concert—Friday, March 3. We have no hesitation in recommending this company to the public, as all who heard them last year will certainly want to hear them again.

—It was reported a few days ago that there was not a single prisoner in the jail, nor one on bail, awaiting the action of the grand jury in Yates county. It is significant that Yates is the only completely "dry" county in the state.

—The Jesse Jacobs farm of 97 acres near North Lansing, was recently sold on the Court House steps at Ithaca, to settle the estate and was purchased by Mr. Jacobs' eldest son, Henry Jacobs, who has always lived on the farm. The price paid was $4,650.

—The play "Is Marriage a Failure?" at Sherwood three evenings last week proved such a success and the attendance was so large that, by general request, it will be repeated on Saturday evening, Feb. 25, at Association Hall, Sherwood. Admission 25 and 15 cents.

—Sunday morning theme at the Presbyterian church, "Cutting Down Cherry Trees." Evening, "He Arose and Came." Sunday school and young people's meeting at the usual time. The Sunday school will have a special Washington's birthday program and each scholar will receive with the program a 1911 calendar. All are invited to these services.

—Rev. Robt. Ivey of King Ferry preached a fine sermon Sunday morning last in exchange with the pastor, from the text, "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." In the evening Philo W. Meade addressed a good-sized audience on the topic, "Save the Boy." His remarks were interesting and interspersed with stories which illustrated the points he wished to make. His arguments were good and presented in a forceful manner. During the service Mr. Meade sang a number of appropriate songs, which were much enjoyed. Mr. Meade was a resident of Genoa about 30 years ago.

—Miss Florence Norman is spending a few days at Groton.

—Miss Flora Alling has been numbered among the sick ones recently.

—Miss Hazel Brogan is ill with the measles, instead of the mumps as reported last week.

—Chas. Haskins is one of the victims of the measles. He has been quite ill this week.

—Mrs. Ray Searls and son returned to Auburn Wednesday. Mr. Searls also spent Sunday here.

—Mrs. H. L. Bronson of Cortland was the guest of her parents, J. H. Rease and wife, over Sunday.

—Are you reading "The Hon. Senator Sagebrush?" This serial began in the TRIBUNE of Feb. 17, and is the story of a young man who is worth knowing.

—"What do you do for a living Mose?" "I se de manager ob a laundry." "What's the name of this laundry?" "Eliza Ann."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Mrs. Robert Armstrong is very ill with pneumonia. Dr. Besemer of Ithaca was called in consultation Monday. Miss Lena Sullivan is nursing her, and she is reported as quite a little better.

—Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Searls entertained the officials of the Presbyterian church last Friday evening. A three-course dinner was served at 7 o'clock and a pleasant social evening was passed.

—That bee keeping is more profitable than poultry keeping, was the conclusion announced at the recent bee keepers' institute held in Utica. They require very little care and no feeding, while hens demand expensive feeding and lots of time.

—The Schuylerville (Saratoga county) Standard gives an account of an interesting and unique event in Masonic circles in that village. Recently a candidate was initiated into Schuylerville lodge in which the entire work was performed by his six brothers. It is believed the event stands alone not only in Masonic, but other fraternal organizations.

—It is reported that 256 farms, advertised through the publication of the State Agricultural Department, were sold during 1910, the combined value amounting to more than $1,000,000. Over 10,000 letters of inquiry from persons in Western states and some from Europe concerning possibilities of New York State farms have been received and answered during the year.

—The Toronto Male Quartet, who gave such general satisfaction here last year and whose singing was enjoyed by a large audience, will be in Genoa for a concert on Friday evening, March 3, in the Presbyterian church. Admission 25 cents. It was the original intention of the committee to raise the price of admission to this entertainment, but on consideration they have decided to leave it at 25 cents, the same as the others.

—Orson is a small town in Sweden, but it is a most remarkable place. The Orson railway is free to every citizen of the town. The telephone service is free. Schools and libraries cost the citizens absolutely nothing. All because a generation or two ago the patriotic people of Orson planted trees. Orson has a municipal forest that has yielded the town $5,000,000 in the past 30 years. And the $5,000,000 has paid the running expenses of the town.

—A Laymen's convention will be held at Cortland, Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 28 and March 1. The convention will be under the management of the Laymen's Movement of the M. E. church and will consider all the benevolent work of that church. A banquet will be held on Tuesday evening. Those who will have charge of the convention include Bishop Harris of Korea; Dr. Stuntz, Missionary secretary; either Dr. Headland of China or Dr. George Heber Jones of Korea; Dr. Kynett of Philadelphia and the Rev. W. E. Doughy of the Young Peoples' work.

—Miss Edith Hunter returned Wednesday from Moravia.

—Mrs. F. C. Hagin, who has been quite ill this week, is improving.

—The cut of the late Thomas Sill, which appears in this issue, should have been used in last week's issue, but was delayed in the mail, having been sent to Geneva by mistake. This error is one that is frequently made and is very annoying to the business people.

The Scrap Book

A Slight Omission.
A Scotch laird, with his man John was riding to market, relates S. R. Crockett in "Raiderland." The laird and John were passing a hole in the moor, when the laird turned his thumb over his shoulder and said, "John, I saw a tod (fox) gang in there."

"Did ye, indeed, laird?" cried John all his hunting blood instantly on fire. "Ride ye your lane to town; I'll hokk the crautur oot!"

Back went John for pick and spade, having first, of course, stopped the earth.

The laird rode his way and all day was foregathering with his cronies at the market town, a business in which his benchman would ably and very willingly have seconded him.

It was the hour of evening, and the laird rode home. He came to a mighty excavation on the hillside. The trench was both long and deep.

Very tired and somewhat short grained in temper, John was seated on a mound of earth vast as the foundations of a fortress. "There's nae fox here, laird," said John, wiping the honest sweat of endeavor from his brow.

The laird was not put out. He was, indeed, exceedingly pleased with himself.

"Deed, John," he said, "I wad hae been muckle surprised gin there had been a fox in the hole. It's ten year since I saw the tod gang in there!"

Humility.
Lord, from far severed climes we come To meet at last in this, our home, Thou, who hast been our guide and guard, Be still our hope, our rich reward.

Defend us, Lord, from every ill, Strengthen our hearts to do thy will. In all we plan and all we see, Still keep us to thy service true.

Oh, let us hear the inspiring word, Which they of old at Ezech heard! Breathe to our hearts the high command, "Go onward and possess the land!"

Thou who art light, shine on each soul, Thou who art truth, each mind control. Open our eyes and make us see, The path which leads to heaven and thee.

Perfectly Sober.
A man who hadn't been home to dinner and who didn't arrive in time for midnight luncheon—if there had been one—finally landed at his apartment and was greeted with a silver "Is that you, dear?" from his wife's room.

"It is," he responded succinctly, not caring for much conversation.

"What time is it?"

"Oh, not so late!" he answered, and then, observing a large bunch of roses on a table in the hall, he braced up and sought to change the conversation by remarking, "What a beautiful bouquet of flowers!"

"They are lovely," assented the wife. "Beautiful!" continued the late arrival enthusiastically. "Fresh, too, I should say. Their perfume is delightful."

"Can you smell them?"

"Oh, yes. Their perfume goes through the entire place. It is lovely."

"You always did like the perfume of roses," cooed the wife.

"Yes, and these are especially fragrant."

"Well, go to bed if that is the case. You see, my dear, those are paper roses."—Saturday Evening Post.

Went Her One Better.
Two young women who had been great friends in their youth met after the lapse of many years. They had much to tell and to hear of all that had happened in the interval.

Both had been married, and among other things one said: "You know, I live in Africa on an ostrich farm, and my husband is often three whole days at a time on an ostrich."

"Oh, that's nothing," said the other. "My husband is often three whole weeks at a time on a lark!"

In a Bad Way.
The remarkable resemblance of Victor Herbert and Wilton Lackaye has often been the subject of comment. It also happens that both gentlemen possess decided opinions, are not averse to airing them and rigidly refuse to yield a point taken in argument. The other day they were standing on the pavement in front of the Lambs club loudly discussing some matter of immediate interest. Another member of the Lambs stepped out, looked at them and then retreated to the club's interior. He went to the telephone and called up William Muldoon, the rest cure man.

"Come get me, Billy," said he. "I need a rest. I know I've been hitting it up lately, but I didn't think that I was that bad. What's the matter? Why, I just saw Victor Herbert standing in front of himself having a fight with himself."

MADE HIS POINT CLEAR.

And Got His Cross Examiner's Goat at the Same Time.

The following anecdote of the late well known English actor and musician, Tom Cooke, is included by Mr. F. L. Wellman in his "Day in Court" and affords a good illustration of the important part played by emphasis and accent:

At a trial between certain music publishing houses as to an alleged piracy of a popular song Cooke was subpoenaed as an expert witness by one of the parties. On his cross examination by Sir James Scarlett that learned gentleman rather flippantly questioned him thus:

"Sir, you say that the two melodies are the same, but different. Now, what do you mean by that?"

To this Cooke promptly answered, "I said that the notes in the two copies are alike, but with a different accent, the one being in common time and the other in six-eight time, and consequently the position of the accent of the notes was different."

Sir James—What is a musical accent?

Cooke—My terms are 9 guineas a quarter, sir.

Sir James—Never mind your terms here. I ask you what is a musical accent? Can you see it?

Cooke—No, Sir James.

Sir James—Can you feel it?

Cooke—A musician can.

Sir James (very angry)—Now, pray, sir, don't beat about the bush, but explain to his lordship and the jury, who are expected to know nothing about music, the meaning of what you call accent.

Cooke—Accent in music is a certain stress laid upon a particular note in the same manner as you would lay a stress upon a given word for the purpose of being better understood. Thus if I were to say "You are an ass" the accent rests on ass, but if I were to say "You are an ass" it rests on you, Sir James.

Reiterated shouts of laughter by the whole court, in which the bench itself joined, followed this repartee.

Cutting It Short.
Old Farmer Donald Macdonald was induced to attend a concert. After several solo performances a duet was commenced, when Donald turned to his friend and remarked:

"D'ye ken, Tammas, now it's got to 10 o'clock they're singing twa at a time so as to get done sooner!"

Wifey Fixed It.
A young storekeeper who had failed the previous day was so diffident about meeting his creditors that he gave his wife the following instructions:

"Now, Marie, if any one rings, you answer the door and tell them that I'm not in. I'll hide."

Nor had he long to wait until a loud jangling of the bell assured him that an irate creditor stood at the door. It was only a reporter, however.

"I wish to speak to your husband."

"But he isn't in," protested the woman.

"Well, I understand," said the reporter, getting out his notebook and pencil. "That he is insolvent?"

"Oh, yes," cried the wife, a happy inspiration seizing her. "He went over there on the 2-40 train yesterday, and I don't expect him back until tomorrow."—Lippincott's.

The Charms She Lacked.
An English diplomat at a dinner in London told this story on Mrs. Langtry, the once famous "Jersey Lily":

"When Mrs. Langtry was at the summit of her beauty and her fame—when crowds followed her in Bond street and the Row—she met at a semi-royal dinner an African king.

"Mrs. Langtry, dazzling in her beauty, sat beside this king. She was in good spirits, and she did her very best to amuse and please him. And she must have succeeded, for at the dinner's close he heaved a deep sigh and said to her: "Ah, madam, if heaven had only made you black and fat you would be irresistible!"

A Historic Occasion.
There is something in this story that savors of the dry wit of the late Charles Hoyt, the farce writer, says Irvin Cobb in the New York Tribune.

Hoyt was leaning against the bar at a well known chophouse one night when an actor who was notoriously stingy came in accompanied by two friends. The close fist one and Hoyt were not on the best of terms, but the former was feeling a bit mellow him self and, moved by a sudden and almost unprecedented burst of generosity, he turned to Hoyt and said patronizingly:

"Charley, will you join us? I'm buying this drink."

"Certainly will," said Hoyt. "I am always glad to assist in the celebration of any truly historic occasion."

PROSPERITY IN FREE LIBRARIES

Every Town Should Be In Possession of One.

CONDITIONS OF CARNEGIE

Why Some People Are Against the Acceptance of Libraries From the Steel King—Most Cities Now Have Libraries—Majority Given as Gifts.

There is no doubt that where there is a free circulating library there is an intelligent community. Every town, whether it has 400 or 10,000 population, should furnish some sort of center where the inhabitants can procure an insight into the labors of the mighty and know what is going on in the world to increase knowledge.

The great majority of cities of 25,000 inhabitants and upward in the United States, says a New York educator, have a public library of some sort, and the same is true of many of the smaller cities and towns. But there are still quite a number of towns that are minus them, towns that really need them. A few public spirited citizens could easily advocate a library or reading room and get the support of the rest of the community if not of the town itself.

Books will always be forthcoming either from the shelves of individual libraries or from contributions solicited through various means. The newspapers will always help their town to gain the financial support of the citizens.

Many of the libraries already established have been founded on gifts of individuals, some have developed from subscription libraries, but the majority are now supported mainly or entirely by funds appropriated by the city government. A considerable number are still in the formative stage, this being true of those for which buildings are being erected from funds provided by Mr. Carnegie and for several hundred others for which he will probably provide buildings.

The conditions upon which he provides funds for the erection of municipal library buildings are simple. The city must provide a site, which it may obtain by gift if it can, and it must agree to provide annually for the maintenance of the library a sum equal to at least 10 per cent of the cost of the building. Practically this offer is open to any city or town which has no public library building.

Some good citizens think that the city should provide its own building and not ask for it as a gift.

The people who have no taxable property and who therefore often erroneously suppose that they contribute nothing toward the payment of the taxes are usually quite willing to have a higher tax rate imposed for the purpose of securing for themselves and their families free library facilities, although in exceptional cases religious or sociological opinions may lead them to oppose it.

A considerable number of taxpayers are more or less reluctant to have their assessments increased for this purpose. They say:

First.—That they should not be taxed for things they do not want and never use.

Second.—That the furnishing free books tends to pauperize the community and to discourage the purchase of books for home use.

Third.—That there is no evidence that free public libraries improve the community materially or morally.

Fourth.—That the greater part of the books used are works of fiction, and that these are injurious to the readers.

Fifth.—That most of the arguments used in favor of free public libraries are merely sentimental and emotional, and that those who urge them most strongly do so for advertising and political reasons or to make a place for themselves or some of their relatives.

While it is difficult to trace to either specific instances of material or moral improvement, it is certain that the general diffusion of intelligence which both certainly effect does result beneficially in these directions. Communities with flourishing free schools and libraries are usually more prosperous and better than those without such facilities, and while there is doubtless room here for a confusion of cause and effect it is probable that there is both action and reaction. Prosperity calls for increased facilities for education, and these in turn tend to make the community more prosperous.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Foreclosure.

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage, dated Oct. 24, 1904, executed by Esther B. Taplin and Phineas R. Taplin, then of Genoa, N. Y., to Minnie S. Palmer, of the same place, and recorded in Cayuga County Clerk's office on the 22nd day of April, 1905, at 11:15 o'clock a. m., in Book 146 of Mortgages, at page 417, and which mortgage is now held and owned by the said undersigned, Minnie S. Palmer, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted for the recovery of said money or of any part thereof, and the amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is $112.87, all of which is due; now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and duly recorded therewith, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, by the undersigned owner, on the 18th day of March, 1911, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Moravia National Bank, in the town and village of Moravia, N. Y., the said premises being described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Genoa, aforesaid, and being part of lot No. 35 in said town, and bounded as follows, viz: Beginning in the north line of said lot at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by Benjamin Kniffin, thence east along the north line of said lot one chain and sixty-seven links, thence south three chain s, thence west one chain and sixty-seven links to lands formerly owned by Benjamin Kniffin, thence south along the east line of said Kniffin's land three chains to the place of beginning, containing half an acre of land.

Dated December 15, 1910.
MINNIE S. PALMER,
Mortgagee and Owner.

S. EDWIN DAY,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Moravia, N. Y.

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a Mortgage dated the 13th day of April, 1897, executed by John J. O'Brien and Nora E. O'Brien, his wife, of the Town of Montezuma, Cayuga County, N. Y., to William C. Toll of the town of Mentz, Cayuga County, N. Y., which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Cayuga in Liber 132 of Mortgages at page 384, on the 28th day of April, 1897, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and which said mortgage was by the Executor of the estate of the said William C. Toll duly assigned to T. Fayette Dixon, and was further duly assigned by said T. Fayette Dixon to Will L. Miller, who is now the owner and holder thereof; and WHEREAS, the amount claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of $166.00 principal and the sum of $6.40 interest thereon from the 1st day of April, 1910, which said sum of $166.40 is the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and duly recorded as aforesaid, and in pursuance of the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Auburn, on the 4th day of March, 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Said premises are described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Montezuma, County of Cayuga and State of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the north west corner of the school house lot in the center of the highway in the northeast corner of the farm formerly belonging to John S. Pratt; running thence westerly along the center of the highway to a stone wall, thence south along said stone wall far enough to make four acres of land by running a line due east from said wall to land of John Clark, Jr.; thence north along Clark's land to said school house lot; thence around said school house lot to the place of beginning, containing four acres of land, being the premises conveyed by Sarah J. Tuller and another to Ann O'Brien by deed bearing date November 11, 1880, recorded in Cayuga County Clerk's Office December 16, 1880, in Book 155, page 409.

Dated, December 1, 1910.

XVIII.—Long Life In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
 Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Our care should not be so much to live long as to live well.—Seneca.

A WISE man said: "There appears to exist a greater desire to live long than to live well. Measure by man's desires, he cannot live long enough; measure by his good deeds, and he has not lived long enough; measure by his evil deeds, and he has lived too long."

Mere length of days as measured by the calendar is but a poor thing to write about. The "filling" that goes into those days is the real measure of life.

To encourage a selfish and punctilious regard for the attainment of a phenomenal span of life is not in keeping with the higher ideal of philosophy or science.

Life is a Trust Fund.

In considering this problem we should bear in mind, however, that life is something that we hold in trust. At least that is the dictum of the best thought that has come to us through the ages. We have no right to handle this trust fund with careless spendthrift indifference; neither may we hoard it with such miserly care that it shall earn no interest in good deeds and human achievement. Society condemns the suicide in the same degree that it lauds the patriot or the hero who gives up his life in a good cause.

But some people lack a sense of proportion. The degree of their sacrifice is out of all proportion to the cause in which it is offered up and the possible evasion of higher responsibility, and the reflex injury to others is often unrealized.

Barring the emergencies of war and accident, there are few circumstances that warrant the deliberate forfeiture of life or persistent neglect of health. It is better that the worker, whether humble breadwinner or lofty statesman, should be spared to work long and under proper restraint and poise than that his life should be burned up prematurely in feverish and often misdirected effort.

The first step, therefore, in planning for long life in the higher meaning of the term is to acquire a sense of proportion.

What is Old Age?

Casalis said, "A man is as old as his arteries." True enough, but far from being a definition of old age. To define old age we must first define life.

Herbert Spencer tried to define life and succeeded admirably in some respects, but there is nothing in his definition that explains why the human clock runs down in less than a century instead of running for several centuries.

Preparing For Old Age.

Preparation should begin in youth. One original observer, Charles Bage-wick Minot, has advanced the seeming paradox that we grow old faster in infancy than in old age; that cell change is far slower in the sixth decade of life than in the first six months of babyhood. In a certain physiological sense this is true.

The hardened arteries at forty may be the result of poor feeding, lack of physical training, improper breathing habits and deficient oxygenation during childhood. Give the child a fair start in the race. This is far better than to devise drugs and potions for the relief of the maladies of maturity and old age.

The Effects of Life Strain.

It is true that long life is often a matter of the quality of one's "tubing." The diseases that are responsible for the larger part of the death rate after middle life are of the degenerative class, involving the heart, blood vessels and kidneys. Indeed, where one of the conditions exists the others usually are present to a greater or lesser degree.

These conditions may be due to nerve strain affecting the heart and arteries or to the circulation in the blood of poisonous principles, the products of indigestion and insufficient combustion. In fact, these troubles are usually the result of intemperance in eating, drinking, working or playing.

Degenerative Diseases.

A most commendable and enthusiastic campaign is being waged against tuberculosis and other infectious diseases, but deaths from heart disease, kidney trouble, paralysis, etc., excite no comment and are taken as a matter of course. The death rate from tuberculosis has been reduced about 50 per cent in the past thirty years, while during that same period the death rate in the United States registration area from diseases of heart, blood vessels and kidneys has increased 105 per cent.

This is a nut to crack for well-meaning people who shut their eyes to all that is unpleasant and sinister in our civilization and hug the thought that the world is necessarily growing better every day.

The mean duration of life has undoubtedly greatly increased in the past century, but the increase is due to the lowering of the death rate among young people. After middle life there has been a decided increase in the death rate. At least the evidence available in this country warrants this belief. No such increase is shown by British statistics until the age of sixty-five is reached.

The "high cost of living" may be a factor in that the struggle for existence is harder and involves more strain. I am inclined to the belief, however, that too much prosperity is a much more potent cause of the high mortality at the advanced ages.

The amount of food that is wasted in the average American family is appalling, and this surplus of nutrition, combined with the strenuous life and intemperate habits fostered by our rapidly developing and complex civilization, may well account for the regrettable increase in the mortality from degenerative diseases.

Principles of Prevention.

As I have already suggested, a good start in childhood thrice arms a man against these degenerative affections. But the strongest constitution in maturity may yield to abuse, and the time is coming when the man who throws away the splendid asset of sound health will be looked upon as a social enemy. Since the degenerative affections that lead to premature old age are the result of intemperance, using the term in its broadest sense, temperance, also used in its widest significance, is the keynote of prevention.

Importance of Exercise.

As middle life approaches and there is a slowing down of the vital activities a disinclination for exercise often develops. This is to a certain extent normal. The man of forty who attempts to keep up with football, baseball or even tennis is taking heavy chances. The strain on heart and arteries may lead to chronic changes more than counterbalancing the benefit from exercise. But with the abandonment of active sports and with neglect to exercise there is often an increase in the amount of food and stimulants taken, and with increasing business care or social activities the "furnace becomes clogged."

It is important, therefore, to preserve a proper balance in these things. Slow down in the matter of strenuous competitive exercise, but get enough exercise to burn up your food and prevent the accumulation of fat and food poisons.

Slow down in the matter of diet and do not let the pleasures of the table tempt you to gradually increased indulgence in rich food as the more active pleasures of life are relinquished.

Golf, billiards, hill climbing, hunting, fishing, are all beneficial forms of exercise which may be indulged far into old age.

Alcohol in Old Age.

It used to be thought that wine was a good stimulant in old age, but the wisest physicians now pronounce against this view. There is no sound physiological reason why alcohol should be beneficial in old age, and in clinical practice it is found to be injurious. How the feeble tissues of the aged can be benefited by a cell poison like alcohol it is difficult to conceive.

Value of Bathing.

Regular bathing, preferably the cool shower or plunge, by keeping up a good skin action relieves the heart and kidneys of extra work and favors the maintenance of a normal tension in the blood vessels.

Danger of Constipation.

Metchnikoff believes that the absorption of toxic matter from the large intestines is an important influence in causing old age. He suggests the use of sour milk or a preparation of the bacilli which cause milk to become sour to combat the microbes that infest the large intestines.

Some painstaking experiments have been made along this line, but the results thus far are negative.

However, buttermilk and other sour milk preparations are healthful and may be tried, especially where there is constipation or intestinal fermentation. All natural means should be tried to prevent constipation by avoidance of concentrated meat diet and by the use of fruit, spinach or other green vegetables, water between meals, exercise of abdominal muscles, etc.

How Would a "Full Jewelled" Typewriter Appeal to You?

Every important bearing in an expensive watch is a small gem of a hardness not susceptible to wear. The purpose of the jewels is to insure by reduction of friction and wear, the accuracy which makes a timepiece valuable.

The first successful use of a ball-bearing typebar in a writing-in-sight machine was by the manufacturers of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Ball Bearings not only for the typebars, but at all vital wearing points of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter are made to serve exactly the same purpose as the jewelled bearings of an accurate, expensive watch. They prevent play and false motion, banish friction, and insure to the operator, for every ounce of energy applied, a full equivalent of perfect work. You demand a full jewelled watch. Why not a full ball-bearing typewriter?

TREATMENT OF SEED CORN.

Proper Methods, According to Washington Authority on the Cereal.

In farmers' bulletin No. 415, on "Seed Corn," C. P. Hartley, one of the corn experts of the United States department of agriculture, asserts that the same day seed corn is gathered the husked ears should be put in a dry place where there is free circulation of air and placed in such a manner that the ears do not touch each other. This is the only safe procedure. The writer has repeatedly seen good seed ruined because it was thought to be already dry enough when gathered and that the precaution mentioned above was unnecessary. Many farmers believe that their autumn is so dry that such care is superfluous. Seed corn in every locality gathered at ripening time will be benefited by drying as suggested. If left in the husk long after ripening it may sprout or mildew during warm, wet weather or become infested with weevils.

The vitality of seed is often reduced by leaving it in a sack or in a pile for even a day after gathering. During warm weather, with some moisture in the cobs and kernels, the ears heat or mildew in a remarkably short time.

The best possible treatment immediately after gathering is shown in the illustration. Binder twine will support fifteen or twenty ears on a string arranged in the manner illustrated. Ordinarily the best place to hang these strings of ears is in an open shed or loft.

Permanent seed racks, with a separate compartment for each ear, are more convenient than the use of binder twine, and when they are located in a dry, breezy place the ears dry successfully.

There are no unsightly ash heaps on the farm of the man who knows their fertilizing value.

Keeping Away Moles.

I have noticed that moles will avoid tarred corn put in holes. It occurred to me to guard pumpkins, squash and similar crops in this same way. I tarred stones, chips and corn-cobs well with gas tar and placed them about a foot below the surface, so the roots did not come in contact with the tar, and for several years I have had no trouble with moles, bugs or grubs.—American Agriculturist.

Poultry Pointers.

Forcing the molt by starving the hens is not considered a good practice. Clean the coops thoroughly before you put them away. Get them under cover, too, if you can. They will last so much longer.

Two parts lard and one part turpentine will often cure "limberneck" in the afflicted bird if discovered in time and the remedy given promptly.

Ducks intended for breeding should be separated from those intended for market. It will be an advantage if they can have plenty of range and swimming water.

Cut hay into about one inch lengths and pour enough hot water on it nearly to cover. Allow it to stand overnight and feed in the morning. Feed about three times a week during winter.

Warm wheat for breakfast makes the Biddies shell out the eggs.

Fresh air is all right for the hens, but not when it is sifted through knotholes and cracks between the boards.

Meat meal and beef scrap are rich in protein and mineral matter and especially desirable for molting hens and pullets kept for layers. Where insects are not abundant meat in some form should supply a portion of the ration of laying hens.

If the roosts in the henhouses are high the heavier birds are almost sure to suffer from bruised feet, commonly known as bumblefoot. This is caused by jumping from the roost to the hard floors.

EASILY MADE IN WINTER.

Plank Drag For Use Later on Worth Taking Up Farmer's Spare Time.

An effective plank drag which can be made easily in winter by any farmer, in order to have it ready for later use, is thus described by an Ohio correspondent in the Rural New Yorker: The writer has used several kinds of drags on plowed fields and has seen a large number in use, ranging from a sled upside down to the lever harrow with the teeth set back. Of all the devices used for dragging the soil the drag shown in the diagram is probably most effective. The plank drag made by lapping some 2 by 8 inch planks works all right in very dry soil, but is all wrong for soils properly moist for best results in working. The drag shown here will work anywhere and at almost any time. Such a drag is easy to make and not at all expensive. In the diagrams a and b are 2 by 6 or 8 inch plank 7 feet long for two horses or 11 feet for three, and d are 2 by 4 pieces bolted to the plank. c is a draft chain and may be fastened where shown or farther back, while xx are two short boards nailed in place for the driver to stand on. The latter pieces, xx, should not be too wide, as they might cause the soil to collect and pack underneath. The plank a and b should be set at an angle of 30 degrees to d-d, and the joints should be secured with two bolts each. This drag is simple and strong and will stand a lot of rough usage in the field, and its use will give satisfaction to the user, and particularly where it is desired to level up inequalities of the surface. This drag cannot take the place of a harrow, roller or disk harrow, but it can do a few things more easily and quickly and in some cases far better.

FRONT VIEW OF DRAG. [From the Rural New Yorker.]

The farmer driving through town with his prancing horses drawing a fine rig is the farmer on parade. The farmer in the field behind the plow is the farmer proving his right to be on parade.

Winter Keeping of Vegetables.

The matter of keeping Irish potatoes, cabbages, onions, beets, etc., all winter for family use depends on climatic conditions. Irish potatoes, as also beets, should be guarded against freezing. Beets and carrots can stand a little of it, but are better off when kept from it. Cabbages stored in the cellar should be wrapped separately in double thicknesses of newspaper, folding and tying it around the stem. Hang each head upside down on the side of the wall or from the beams overhead. Cabbages can stand some freezing, but not too much of it, nor much freezing and thawing. Onions to keep well must be put in a cool, dry, airy place.—Farm and Fireside.

Manure From the Barnyard.

Manure from the barnyard adds humus to the soil, and humus acts like a sponge, retaining moisture in the soil, making it more capable of absorbing a heavy rainfall and of holding it there longer. The moral, therefore, is to save and carefully spread all barnyard manure over the fields. Manure is worth dollars and will put dollars into the farmers' pockets.

Plants For Winter Pasture.

Many plants can be used for winter pasture. Of course it is more difficult to secure winter than summer grazing, but with the proper use of bur clover, rye, oats, vetch and crimson clover, all fall sown, there is little trouble to secure grazing areas through the winter.—Home and Farm.

Why Clover Fails.

Clover fails to grow on many farms, but the prime causes is that much of the humus of the soil is worn out and an acid condition exists that is detrimental to clover. A liberal application of lime will be beneficial.

TRUST THE WOMEN FOLK

The farmer who thinks he can "run his business" without taking his wife into his councils is pretty apt to run against a snag before he knows it. While women may not always understand all the fine points of farming, they are often able, through some divine instinct, to tell how things ought to be, and the man who trusts that instinct is not very apt to come out wrong.

The Country Newspaper.

The real bulwark of the country is not the great metropolitan newspaper, but the neighborhood weekly in the country newspaper office, remarks Editor and Publisher.

Seventy-five per cent. of the population of the United States is located in the rural districts. The farmers who are the real wealth producers, rely for their news upon the small daily or weekly published in the nearest town or village. They want to know what their friends and neighbors are doing, what prices are being paid in the markets for their products, and what the Legislature or Congress is up to. They like to read a good short story, an article or two on crop conditions or about improvements in farming machinery, etc. All these things the farmer finds in his home paper, which he prefers to the larger and perhaps better edited metropolitan daily. He cares little about what society people are doing in New York, Chicago or Kansas City, but he does want to read about the last sociable or entertainment given at the church or town hall.

The country paper has other admirers besides the farmer. You will find a copy of it on the desk of the bank president in Philadelphia or the broker in Wall street. Other papers may be thrown into the waste basket unread but not the weekly from the prairie town or little New England village, where its recipient was born. Every line of the local columns in which is chronicled the fact that "Deacon William Smith has painted his barn," is eagerly read, for although he may be one of the city's richest and most influential business men he has not lost interest in the neighbors and friends of his childhood home. The little paper is to him a message from another world. It brings to him the breath of the fields and glimpses of a simpler life in which he once found an all satisfying joy.

A Special Term.

Because there are several excise and other criminal cases in the hands of District Attorney Burritt, and to avoid congestion at the regular June term, Judge Greenfield has called a special term of County Court for Monday, April 3, for the trial of criminal cases. The following is a partial list of jurors drawn for service at this term, being those from this part of the county:

- Fleming—Thomas Head, Joseph Pollard, Edward Sevier.
- Genoa—Frank Holland, William H. Peckham, Burt Smith, D. W. Smith
- Moravia—W. E. Greenfield, Eugene Harris, Timothy Twoomey.
- Niles—Jerry C. Murray, Floyd B. Selover.
- Owaeco—George Boynton, Walter Debingham
- Scipio—William Hathaway, Gail Mosher.
- Sempronius—B. Spafford.
- Springport—B. F. Johnson, Theodore Myers, William E. Schepck.
- Venice—Lowell Mason, William C. Tripp.

Newspaper Advertising.

Advertising pays if the man that has something to sell so regulates his advertisement as to convince the people that it is worth buying.

All the substitutes for newspaper advertising can be easily avoided or disregarded by the people the advertiser tries hardest to attract—the man or woman that can afford to buy.

They do not stand gaping at billboards and they do not bother with circulars in the mail because they are too busy, but their old friend the newspaper, is taken into the inmost privacy of the family circle. It is discussed at the breakfast table and at the supper table, it is read at leisure in the evening, and its pages are scrutinized with the interest born of long habit and all discriminating taste.

An advertisement in that newspaper goes into the family circle and cannot be excluded. It is welcome because it is a part of something else that is welcome, and it goes there at the very time when the occasional domestic economical council takes place. There is no substitute for newspaper advertising.—Allentown (Pa.) Item

Just in Time.

"Oh, mamma, look!" said Tommy. "Baby's grabbed a piece of raw bacon and is tryin' to swallow it!" "Save it!" hastily exclaimed the father of the family. "I—er—meant the baby, of course, Maria," he added a moment later. "Why are you looking at me in that horrified way?"—Chicago Tribune.

Fresh Air in Pneumonia.

The following timely article appeared in Youth's Companion of Feb. 9:

"In talking of pneumonia to people in general, it is necessary to say and repeat many times that pneumonia is not a bad cold run mad, for this conviction appears to be invincibly lodged in the lay mind. Pneumonia is first, last, and all the time an acute local disease of the lungs, which, according to the gravity of the case, become more or less consolidated or choked up. The more of the lung tissue that is thus choked, the less the lungs are able to breathe. The first consequence of this helplessness on the part of the lungs is that the heart—that gallant organ—labors to get enough blood to keep things going, and this is why we see the distressing rapid and shallow breathing so characteristic of the disease.

With all the heart can do it can only pump blood, it cannot oxygenate it—that is the function of the lungs. Presently, therefore, the blood stream becomes more and more impure, owing to lack of oxygen, and in those cases ending in death one of two things happens—either the heart gives out entirely, unable to stand the strain put upon it, or else the system is overcome by toxins, that is to say, by the impurity induced by the lack of oxygenation.

It has long been recognized that what the pneumonia patient needs is oxygen, and we are now sure that this is best supplied by a direct current of air from outside, and that this fresh air should be the basis of all treatment from the very beginning.

Too often has life been lost by a failure to recognize this truth, or by a belief that rushing in canned oxygen at the last moment would effect a cure. There is less pneumonia among country dwellers than among city people. There is less pneumonia among people who ventilate well than among the stuffy. And there is less pneumonia in the summer than in winter, because in the summer there is a free circulation of air through all our houses. The ideal treatment of pneumonia is to carry the patient into the open air and keep him there with proper precautions against wind and weather. But as this cannot always be done, the patient can at least be placed in the largest, sunniest and best ventilated room in the house.

If possible, a room with windows on two sides is much to be preferred to one which can be opened only to one point of the compass. By a system of screening, it can always be managed that a direct current of very cold air shall not blow right on the bed, but the air of the room should be constantly renewed and always cool.

Of all "cranks" the "fresh-air crank" is the sanest, and his reward in the pneumonia sickroom is a rich one."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
