Precisely at 4 o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march rendered by Mrs. Claude Wyant pianist and Chas. A. Wyant clarinetist, the bridal party took their places under an arch of green in the west parlor. Rev. A. S. Yantis of Auburn was the officiating clergyman. The bride was lovely in white mesaline and carried white roses, the bride's maid, Miss Edith VanLiew, sister of the groom, was gowned in dove colored crepe-de-chine and carried pink roses. The ring bearer, Ellen VanLiew, little sister of the groom, wore a dress of white Liberty silk. Harold Banks of Moravia, cousin of the bride, acted as best man. The house was tastefully decorated, the color scheme being green and red. After congratulations a fine supper was served by caterers Brewster. All were seated at once and were waited on by young married friends of the bride and groom. The wedding gifts were many and valuable. Amid a shower of rice and good wishes the happy pair were at last permitted to enter a hack and were driven to Auburn where they boarded a train for parts unknown. Their many friends unite in wishing them a long, happy and useful life. The following from out of town were present: A. E. Banks and wife, Harold Banks, Clarence Smith and wife of Moravia, Mrs. Fred Lacey and daughter of Niles, Mrs. Daniel Hunter and daughter, Miss Adelaide Hunter of Genoa, Chas. A. Wyant of Auburn.

The Spaffords Jan. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Spafford give an entertainment that positively has no prototype in this or any other country. Mr. Spafford has had for years a wide reputation as an artist of the platform. Mrs. Spafford, well known in Ithaca circles as "Miss Heine, the Original Lyceumite Girl" is also a versatile entertainer.

The entertainment consists of cartoon and landscape drawing, music on foreign and ancient instruments, fire pictures, sculpture and clay modeling, humor and pathos, with an undercurrent of solid thought which combine to make an entertainment that is entirely unlike any other ever presented to the entertainment going public.

Regarding the entertainment, the following press notices give high praise:

"The best entertainment of the season. Mr. Spafford is truly wonderful as a cartoonist. Mrs. Spafford's performance on ancient and foreign instruments of odd character is marvelous and pleasing and instructive as well."—LaSalle, Ill., Tribune.

"Held the vast audience spellbound. A great entertainment."—Rev. Pennock, Thousand Island Park, New York.

"This was the second appearance in Rockford this season. Already arrangements are being made for a third entertainment so that those people of Rockford who have not heard this master artist entertainer, will have an opportunity of doing so."—Rockford Morning Star, Illinois.

"The Spaffords were high class in every respect. Theirs was the best attraction of the season. We take pleasure in recommending them."—Houston, Miss.

Home Course In Health Culture

X.—"Nerves" In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

NERVES are quite as pernicious an influence in the household as microbes. It is unfortunate that, unlike microbes, "nerves" cannot be boiled, fumigated or killed by antiseptics. It is true that fresh air, sunlight, exercise and simple diet are natural enemies of "nerves," as they are of microbes, but these remedies require time and the enforcement of a discipline which it is difficult to attain in a "nervous" household, and so it is regrettable that we cannot treat these pesky nerves as we do diphtheria germs and drive them from the home atmosphere with formaldehyde gas.

Prevalence of Nervous Diseases.
There is reason to believe that under the strain of modern conditions nervous disease is claiming an increasing number of victims. This belief derives little support from census returns or vital statistics in the large cities, if such statistics are taken at their face value, without close analysis. The bald figures show a marked decline in the death rate from nervous disease during recent years. But on digging beneath the surface we find that much of the decrease is due to the saving of infant lives from death by "convulsions," a cause of death reported under "nervous diseases." On going still further and ascertaining what changes have occurred in the mortality from degenerative diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys, maladies largely caused by nerve strain and abuse of the nervous system, we find that during the past thirty years the mortality from these diseases in the United States registration area has increased 105 per cent.
The question naturally arises, is this excessive mortality falling chiefly among the middle aged and elderly, a necessary accompaniment of our civ-lization? The answer is emphatically, No! Neglect and temporary failure of adjustment to conditions, which have changed with marvelous rapidity in the past half century, are responsible for this heavy loss of life. When the batteries of preventive medicine are fully trained upon this degenerative class of maladies, as they have been trained upon tuberculosis, typhoid and other germ diseases, a reduction in the death rate among the middle aged and elderly will take place quite as remarkable as that already attained among the younger members of the community.

HAVING LEARNED THAT YOU POSSESS A NERVOUS SYSTEM OF AMAZING PERPLEXITY, "SMILE AND FORGET IT."

Causes of Nervous Disease.
The conditions that give rise to nervous derangement are so numerous that they could not be described within the limits of this paper. They may be grouped, however, under three general headings—heredity, overstimulation and understimulation. Between the two extremes last mentioned lies the "golden mean" of a well poised, harmoniously adjusted nervous system.

Overstimulation is the result of the demands and opportunities arising out of our rapidly developing and complex civilization, the strenuous life calling for a continuous and rapid adjustment of our minds to the kaleidoscopic changes which are going on around us. We sometimes forget that the incidents and experiences that formerly would have required a lifetime of 100 years may now be crowded into a tenth of that period.

Understimulation affects those who are outside of the maelstrom, who have drifted into the backwaters, whose lives are so narrow that monotony induces a spiritual starvation, finally reflected in a physical exhaustion of the nerve centers.

First Steps in Prevention.
Having learned that you possess a nervous system of amazing complexity, "smile and forget it." Only the strongest brain can indulge in critical self analysis, especially of a nervous system out of repair, without becoming morbidly self conscious and exaggerating nervous manifestations which are often of trifling importance. With the latent knowledge that you have such a system and a very definite knowledge of the things that will injure it, go on your way with habits formed accordingly and with confidence in your ability to defy disease and the odds are all in your favor. Nerve strain, neurasthenia and a host of other troubles will pass by, leaving you unscathed.

Heredity is undoubtedly responsible for many cases of nervous failure and the maladies that follow in its wake. If individuals whose family history shows a tendency to nervous or degenerative disease would refrain from marrying the face of this globe would be transformed as if by magic within a generation.

Value of Early Training.
For best results we must begin early. Regularity, discipline and the upbuilding of self control are the watchwords in dealing not only with the nervous child, but with all children. Freedom from undue excitement and strain are likewise important. The nervous child must not be asked to compete either physically or mentally with more fortunately endowed children. The very principle of "competition" should be excluded from the home and school life and the principle of "training" substituted. Work and play for their own sake is a higher ideal than the mere desire to "beat the other fellow."

The habit of early retiring should be especially enforced with nervous children. Excitement in the evening hours should be avoided and the child encouraged to seek its rest while in a normal, sleepy condition instead of in a state of high tension from romping or the reading of exciting tales.

Dangers of School Strain.
A clear brain and a sound nervous system are far more valuable possessions than a highly cultivated mind and a shattered nervous system.

The nervous system of the growing child is an exceedingly delicate and impressionable mechanism. If the demands upon it are too heavy the evil influence may reach far into adult life. This is especially true as affecting girls between the ages of twelve and seventeen. The school work should be carefully considered at this period, and if there is any sign of nervous instability or weakness freedom from the strain and confinement of school life is safer until the child's health and nervous control are fully restored. Nervous children and, in fact, all children should be examined for any possible local source of irritation, such as eye strain, adenoids, enlarged tonsils, defective teeth, etc. Correction of these troubles may change the entire future of the individual and greatly simplify the work of training.

Nerve Strain in Adult Life.
"Overstimulation" has been mentioned as the second great cause of nervous maladies. This term would connote with intemperance in its broadest sense. Many prohibitionists are extremely intemperate not only in their language, but in their manner of life. They drink no liquor, but they often eat too much and drink too much tea or coffee or talk too much or work too hard and too long. I would not be understood as criticizing the prohibitionist, but merely wish to show that "intemperance" covers a wide range of activities and indulgences which may be injurious in their effect. The society "climber," the business "climber," the "man about town," the speculator, the glutton, the debauchee, the average "daily" drinker, the drunkard, are all types of intemperance or overstimulation.

The business drudge, the household drudge, the laboring drudge, the mentally deficient, are all types of the understimulated class, upon whom deadly monotony exerts its lethal power. It seems that when a life is confined within too narrow limits a condition of inequality or strain arises in the nervous system. One set of cells is used until they are "worn to a frazzle," and then the trouble comes.

The Tired Woman.
The tired woman is often the first phase of the nervous woman. The monotony of domestic routine, unrelieved by that daily contact with the outside world which often saves a man from hysteria, is a fertile source of nerve failure among women. It is my belief that every housewife needs a vacation occasionally.

There is reason to believe that latent grief, worry or remorse relating to matters really long since settled is often responsible for neurasthenia and functional nerve troubles. It is desirable to get such things "out of the system." Talk the matter over with your physician or your clergyman and ventilate the chamber of your mind in which it has been confined. The nursing of a "grouch" is a type of this trouble.

Effect of Prolonged Strain.
If the finest quality of bow is kept continuously bent it will lose its resiliency. Likewise the most finely poised nervous system if subjected to continuous and unremitting strain will acquire in time a warp or twist which requires the most skillful and patient treatment to remove. The business or professional man who presses steadily toward some mark, grudging even the time given to meals and refusing to take intervals of rest, often defeats his own ends. It has been contended that it is "worry" and not "work" that kills. Worry is certainly a terrible and often unnecessary health destroyer, but it is contrary to common sense as well as science to contend that the delicate tissues of brain and nervous system are not injured by overwork.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
J. W. DARRROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

FARMING IN NEW MEXICO.

Account of a Visit to the Pecos Valley by a Well Known Granger.

Mr. George T. Powell of Orchard farm, Ghent, N. Y., agricultural specialist and a member of Chatham grange, No. 900, has recently returned from a trip through New Mexico, where he has been selecting farms for several young men from New York state—college graduates who, while their own land is being broken for planting, have hired out to farmers to learn their methods. Some of these have paid $500 an acre for fruit orchards, and they will get $1,200 per acre from the fruit trees the second year after buying their land.

Mr. Powell tells about one farmer who has just stored his wool crop of 300,000 pounds, for which he has a standing offer of $54,000. But fruit growing is the most profitable branch to farmers in the section where Mr. Powell visited. As Roswell, N. M., has an elevation of 3,600 feet the quality of the fruit raised on these high altitude orchards is excellent.

Some of these orchards contain as many as 500 acres, but smaller ones not exceeding fifty acres are the more profitable on account of the better care that can be given them. Mr. Powell says that every orchardist has to spray his trees, and if he fails to do so they are sprayed by the association and the cost is added to his taxes. Irrigation is practiced four times a year. Some times the frost hits the trees pretty hard while in bloom, but most of the large growers have smudge pots, and when the signal service bureau notifies them of a coming frost they fill these pots with crude oil, setting from 100 to 150 pots to the acre and burning them all night long. Each of these pots holds a gallon of crude oil, costing 4 cents. The cost of smudging is $18 to $27 per acre for the pots and $20 for the oil and labor for three nights.

Mr. Powell gives an interesting description of the process of irrigation there. Roswell is in the Pecos valley, and the ever melting snow on the mountain tops gives a great flow of water, which, sinking under ground, sometimes forms vast lakes in the valley, the water table of which lies sometimes as low as 1,500 feet below the surface. From an occasional large stream or even small lake that is situated near the surface ditches conduct the water over 1,000 acres of land sometimes, but in most cases eight inch pipe is sunk down to the subterranean supply and a flow of 1,000 to 35,000 gallons per minute is obtained. Mr. Powell says that he has seen a yield of 110 bushels of oats and 140 bushels of corn to the acre on irrigated land.

Alfalfa is grown there with great success, and at the time Mr. Powell visited Roswell three crops had been cut, and three more will be taken from the same fields. Many farms yield a ton and a half per acre and the good farms from two and a half to three tons per acre. At that time over 200,000 tons were in storehouses, while over the adjoining fields streams of water were flowing, and these fields in less than thirty days would grow another crop. Alfalfa brings $10 a ton in the storehouses. As soon as the alfalfa is cut fifty to a hundred horses and mules are turned in from distant pastures to clean the field, and sometimes as many cattle are run in. After they have been in the pasture for a week or so the water is turned on for several days. Roswell is a town of 10,000 population, and the farmers of that vicinity have $3,000,000 in the banks and they loan to Wall street.

OHIO'S GRANGE DAY.

Interesting Talks at State Fair on Occasion of Grange Reunion.

An exceptional program was that presented by the Ohio state grange during state fair week at Columbus, O. State Master Laylin presided. State Secretary Strode reported a gain in membership in the state since the state fair meeting of a year ago of 4,800 and losses of 1,586, leaving a net gain of 3,214. Among the speakers were Governor Harmon, who discussed the subject of taxation; President McFarland of the state board of agriculture, Alce Pomerene, running mate of the governor; State Master Hull of Michigan, Past Master Ladd of Massachusetts, Past Master Smith of Ohio, R. W. Dunlap, dairy and food commissioner; K. L. Holman, Ohio's grand old man of the grange, and State Lecturer Taber.

Secretary Strode says that the best program and the smallest attendance in ten years tells the story of the grange reunion this year. The program reflected the increased interest and better thought incident to greater activity in grange work, while the attendance reflected the effects of the Columbus street car strike and bad weather. As it was, several hundred grangers registered and were presented with a beautiful golden silk ribbon, which distinguished the wearers from the unorganized farmer and city dweller. It was decided to hold the next state meeting at Zanesville Dec. 13-15.

How Would a "Full Jewelled" Typewriter Appeal to You?

Every important bearing in an expensive watch is a small gem of a hardness not susceptible to wear. The purpose of the jewels is to insure by reduction of friction and wear, the accuracy which makes a timepiece valuable.

The first successful use of a ball-bearing typebar in a writing-in-sight machine was by the manufacturers of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Ball Bearings not only for the typebars, but at all vital wearing points of the New Model L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter are made to serve exactly the same purpose as the jewelled bearings of an accurate, expensive watch. They prevent play and false motion, banish friction, and insure to the operator, for every ounce of energy applied, a full equivalent of perfect work. You demand a full jewelled watch. Use Short Words.

ALL THE WRITING ALWAYS IN SIGHT

Literary aspirants should religiously eschew polysyllabic orthography. The philosophical and philological substratum of this principle is ineluctable. Excessively attenuated verbal symbols inevitably induce unnecessary complexity and consequently exaggerate the obtuseness of the mentality of the peruser. Conversely, expressions which are reduced to the furthest minimum of simplification and compactness, besides contributing realistic verisimilitude, constitute a much less onerous handicap to the reader's perspicacity.

Observe, for instance, the unmistakable and inescapable expressiveness of onomatopoeic, interjectional, monosyllabic utterances, especially when motivated under strenuous emotional circumstances. How much more appealing is their euphonious pulchritude than the preposterous and pretentious pomposity of elongated verbiage.—Life.

A Shock For Tennyson.

If any one asked Holman Hunt about persons he would tell delightful frank anecdotes concerning, maybe, the great men he knew and loved and measured exactly. He liked a spice of fun in everything, too, and his face beamed as he described a walk with Tennyson he had lately taken. They heard footsteps behind, and the great man frowned. "How they dog us, Hunt! How shall we escape them?" "Just sit on the stile till they pass," said the matter of fact artist. They did so, and two lads in knickerbockers paraded by swinging their sticks and not even turning their heads. Tennyson was chafffallen.

"Do you know, Hunt," he said, "I do not think they know who I am."

"Very likely, my dear Tennyson, and they would not even know if you told them!"—"Recollections of Holman Hunt" in London Academy.

Provided For In Advance.

A playwright in an interview in New York said that without attention to the minutest details theatrical success could rarely be attained.

"And yet," he added, smiling, "even this grand virtue of attention to details may be carried to excess. Thus a certain playwright said at rehearsal to his leading man:

"Now, remember, John, after you speak this line, 'Helen, I will save you though I perish,' pause and wait for the applause."

"But the leading man sneered and answered cynically:

"How do you know there'll be any applause?"

"That is my business, not yours, John," the playwright answered with calm confidence."—Washington Star.

What the World Lost.

"It was the worst calamity that ever happened to me," sighed the pale, intellectual high browed young woman. "I had written a modern society novel, complete to the last chapter, and a careless servant girl gathered the sheets of the manuscript from the floor, where the wind had blown them, and used them to start a fire in the grate."

"What a burning shame that was!" commented Miss Tartun.—Chicago Tribune.

Manners Versus Mannerism.

There's a vast difference between manners and mannerism. For instance, manners takes its soup softly and quietly, while mannerism gurgles it. Manners says, "Pass the butter, please," while mannerism bites a chunk out of a piece of bread and stutters, "Slip me the grease, will you?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Contest.

"All men," said the earnest citizen, "are born equal."

"They are that," replied Mr. Rafferty. "But they don't stay equal after they're big enough to get together in the schoolyard."—Washington Star.

Commendable Caution.
"My son, remember this—marrying on a salary has been the salvation of many a young man."
"I know, dad. But suppose my wife should lose her salary?"—Cleveland Leader.

Dear at the Prio.
McClubber—The footpad said "Money or your life!"—so I gave him $2. Mrs. McClubber—Huh! You're always getting stuck, Billy!—Puck.

Bravery has no place where it can avail nothing.—Johnson.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT
Ad Wolgast, Pugilism's China Doll Ornament.

No limelight champion has ever been so unpopular with the fight fans as Ad Wolgast, the present holder of the title. Since he defeated Bat Nelson last February he has evaded all the cracks of his division and has taken on third raters instead. But the so called easy marks have not proved the soft plucking that Adolph thought. In the two last contests he has engaged in Wolgast has broken his left arm twice in different places. This will surely make him timid and injure his hitting powers and perhaps force him to quit the ring. Critics have now dubbed him the prize ring's china doll.

Trades Help Ball Tossers.

A change of scenery often works wonders with a ball player. A star who is practically no use to a certain club may with another team regain his old time form.

For instance, Jim Delahanty was more or less of a failure at Washington simply because the fans wouldn't give him credit for the good things he did, yet criticised strongly every failure to deliver. Detroit secured Delahanty when the team was badly in need of a good second sacker. The fans welcomed him with open arms and gave him all kinds of encouragement. The result was that Delahanty began to play his real game, and his work had a big bearing on Detroit's success in landing the bunting in 1909.

Earl Moore was of no use to Cleveland or New York in the American league, yet after a year in the minors he came back to life and is now regarded as one of the best twirlers with the Philadelphia Nationals.

Pitcher Suggs was of little use to the Tigers; in fact, he appealed so little to Jennings that he was turned back to the Southern league. Cincinnati picked up Suggs, and he has made good with a vengeance for the Reds, he being the winning pitcher of Clark Griffith's club.

Schaefer to Go.

Washington baseball scribes say that "Germany" Herman Schaefer will be sold by the Nationals and that Minneapolis will be the most likely purchaser. McAleer has been in communication with the Minneapolis club owners, and if the Cantillon clan will take Schaefer's Washington contract and fulfill its requirements it will not be strange to see the former Brewer-Tiger and more recently National player cavorting around the Minneapolis infield next year. If he goes he will probably fill in at shortstop, the position being made vacant by the drafting of Altizer by Cincinnati.

Value of Chicago's Franchise.

Asked what he would sell the Chicago Cubs for, President Charles Murphy, who controls the institution, declared the Cubs were not for sale, but were the club on the market nothing less than $1,000,000 would be considered. This is just ten times the price that Murphy and Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati paid for the franchise in 1905.

American League Umpires.

One of the reasons why there is so little kicking against the umpires in the American league is that the club owners believe in sustaining President Johnson in his policy for clean ball. It is reported to be a fact that not a single American league club owner has filed a protest against the work of any of Johnson's umpires this year.

McAleer to Lead Washington.

Manager Jimmy McAleer has signed a three year contract with the Washington club at $10,000 per annum. If Joe Cantillon was worth that sum McAleer is surely entitled on his 1910 performance to as much or more.

FOR THE CHILDREN

What the Colors of Buoys Mean.

When you enter any harbor in the world where the channel is marked by buoys you will find that those on your right as you pass in are painted red and those on your left black. If you should see one painted in red and black horizontal bands the ship should run as close to it as possible, because that indicates the center of a narrow channel.

Buoys with red and black vertical stripes always mark the end of spits and the outer and inner ends of extensive reefs where there is a channel on each side. When red and black checkers are painted on a buoy it marks either a rock in the open sea or an obstruction in the harbor of small extent, with channel all around.

If there are two such obstructions and a channel between them the buoy on the right of you will have red and white checkers and the one on your left will have black and white checkers.

When a wreck obstructs the channel a green buoy will be placed on the sea side of the wreck with the word "Wreck" plainly painted on it in white letters provided there is a clear channel all around it. Otherwise an even number will be painted in white above the word "wreck" when the buoy is on the right side of the channel and an odd number when the buoy is on the left.

The Wise King.

Once upon a time there lived a king who was said to be so wise that he could answer every question that was put to him, so people came from far and near to ask his advice when they were in perplexity, trouble or difficulty.

One day there came an old woman, tired and travel stained, and, bowing low before his majesty, she said:

"May it please your majesty to answer me a question?"

"Speak on," said the king.

"Can you tell me why," said the old woman, "having two eyes and two ears, I have only one mouth?"

"Yes," said the king. "You have two eyes that you may see everything well. You have two ears that you may hear everything well. But you have only one mouth so that you may not talk too much."

Little Nut People.

Queer little dolls may be made from various nuts. To make a "lady doll" take a piece of white cloth and draw tightly over one end of a pecan nut, sewing the cloth tightly on the under side to prevent the nut from slipping out. Wrap the part of the cloth extending under the nut in a little roll. Sew this together, and for the arms make smaller rolls of cloth in the same way. Then sew the arms to the body. Gather the body a little above the middle. Sew on a white petticoat and make a simple dress. Fold a white neckerchief over the shoulders and paint a face on the nut. A bonnet may be added if desired. Using a similar body, other figures may be made with many different styles of dress.—Youth's Companion.

A Queer Australian Bird.

In Australia lives a member of the crow family called the white winged chough, which builds a mud nest in trees. Its arched and pointed beak is longer than its head, and its tail is rounded. Although the choughs which build mud nests live only in Australia, yet other birds of the same name are found on the British seacoasts, living among high cliffs. The bird has many traits of its cousin, the crow. It is easily tamed, extremely curious and pilfers as crows do. Its long hawklike claws enable it to cling easily to tree or rock, but it seems unwilling ever to set foot on the turf. It lives in societies like rooks and feeds on insects, berries and grain.

Peter and the Dogs.

There is a monkey in the Philadelphia zoo, and his name is Peter. Peter got out of the zoo one day, and as he is a valuable monkey all the keepers that could be spared started on the chase. Peter was out for the day, it seemed. He ran across the bridge that leads to an island in the Schuylkill river, and he hid in the shrubbery. The keepers could not find him until they got some dogs and put them on the scent. Then Peter decided that the chase was becoming too exciting, and he jumped on the shoulder of one of the keepers and rode back to the zoo with his arms around the man's neck.

Picture Card Game.

Wherever you go you see picture postcards in abundance. Some very interesting games can be played with these cards. When you have company pass pencil and paper and a picture postal to each one and ask her or him to write a verse about the place the picture represents. If these cards show buildings or famous sights the game will be more interesting and instructive.

The Boundary Line Road.

It went by grandma's, just outside the gate upon the hill. And if we walked beside that fence we always kept quite still. We thought they called it "Lion road." 'Twas safer not to talk. For fear one might be wandering by, just going for a walk. And once we peeped outside the gate. The road stretched gray and wide uphill. We thought the lions lived upon the other side. And in the quiet afternoons, though we would stop our game To listen for a faroff roar, no lions ever came! Youth's Companion.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Hanging Cupboard For Use In the Cellar.

A useful device, known as the hanging cellar cupboard, can be made from an ordinary store box, a pair of hinges and two small pieces of fly screen, the entire cost not exceeding 60 cents. Two sides of the box are covered with netting, one side being in the form of a door. Some of the boards removed from the box are used to form the frame of the door, while the remainder will form the shelf and supports. When completed the outfit is suspended to the joists at a convenient place in the cellar.

This is an improvement over the old form of hanging shelves and may be used for the storage of cooked meats and foods. It has certain advantages even where an icebox is maintained. Where any meat or vegetable has been cooked and it is desirable to let it stand to cool, it may be safely placed in the hanging cupboard in the cellar without fear of molestation by vermin, and at the same time all steam and odors are given an opportunity to escape.

Green Tomato Mince-meat.

Chop up four quarts green tomatoes, drain off the juice, cover with cold water and scald thirty minutes. Drain well, then add two pounds brown sugar, one pound seeded raisins, one-half pound candied orange or lemon peel, one-half pound chopped suet, one-half cupful cider vinegar, one tablespoonful salt. Stir all together and cook till thick. When cold add one teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful ground cloves, one teaspoonful nutmeg. Keep in stone jar. When making the pies after filling with the mince, spread one thinly sliced apple over each pie before putting on top crust. These pies taste very much nicer when eaten warm.

To Hang a Skirt.

Sew on belt and then put on skirt. Use a yardstick and place the end on the floor and mark with chalk at the top of yardstick about every two inches all around the hips. This mark is just thirty-six inches from the floor and the extra hip length is already allowed. Lay skirt on table and subtract as many inches from this length as you want it from the floor. If two inches mark the skirt thirty-four inches in length from the measure, and your skirt will be perfectly even, and one can do this nearly alone.

To Sew in Sleeves.

After seams in waist have been sewed and armhole trimmed to suit hold edges together beginning at shoulder seam. Measure carefully until you find the center and mark it with a thread. If the waist is for a thin person place the sleeve seam one inch forward of this mark. If for medium, one and one-fourth inches, and if stout one and one-half inches. This is infallible if followed with exactness.

Sour Pork Chops.

This is a German dish. Fry the required number of pork chops and remove them to a hot platter. Stir a tablespoonful of flour into the glaze in the pan and when brown add three-quarter cupful hot water, one-quarter cupful vinegar, one-half teaspoonful allspice, pepper and salt. Pour this gravy over the chops.

Cleaning Furs.

Bran of rye is heated in an iron or earthenware vessel, stirring all the time, until it has become as hot as the hands can stand. The bran is then rubbed thoroughly into the fur. Then brush the fur with a clean brush till all the bran has been removed. The fur will regain its former luster.

Green Tomato Pie.

This is sometimes called mock mince pie. One large green tomato, one large apple, both chopped. Add one cup sugar and one common cracker rolled fine, pinch of salt, pinch of cloves, cinnamon and allspice, two tablespoonfuls vinegar. Mix well together and bake between two crusts.

Gelatin Frosting.

One heaping teaspoonful of granulated gelatin dissolved in one-third cupful of boiling water. Add powdered sugar to make a thin batter and one-half teaspoonful cream of tartar. Beat till very light and flavor. Spread at once on slightly warm cake.

Fencing! Fencing!

For the next ten days I will sell Michigan wire fencing at cost. This fencing is made of a good quality of carbonized steel wire, having a tensile strength, nearly double that of common annealed steel wire. When using this wire you are getting a much heavier fence as it contains about 2 lbs. 7 oz. more wire to the rod; as it is a solid steel wire much stronger.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

Fool No. 4-11-44.

A fool there was, and he made his prayer
(Even as you and I)
To a rag and several hanks of hair
(Goodness knows what she wouldn't wear)
But the fool he called her his lady fair
(Even as you and I).

Oh, the jeers we waste, and the tears we waste
And the evil things we've said
Are lost on the woman who does not know
(And, like as not, will never know)
What to wear upon her head.

The fool was frequently horrified.
(Even as you and I).
A hank of hair with a head inside
(She called a van when she had it dyed)
Was all that he had for his bonnie bride
(Even as you and I).

But it isn't the hanks or the woman's pranks
Would win him his decree
If he had the hardhood to sue
The point is that she never knew
(As a matter of fact, they never do)
Whose hair it used to be.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Overheard.
"And while I was down there in the slums I saw a woman feeding candy to a baby that looked as if it were painted."

"The cutest little boy was climbing a tree with overalls on."
"I told John we ought to have systems for company on the half shell."

"He gave her the coffee while she was waiting at the counter in a tin can."

"A big fat man rode by on a skittish horse with a red nose that was scared of the trolley cars."

"I just love to see the soldiers with their guns in khaki suits, don't you?"
"I don't know his name, but he was the lawyer who sat next to the lady in black with long side whiskers and a white necktie."

"He is the man that sells lace with such big red hands and a lip."—Life.

Not Far Him.
"No," said the theatrical manager who had gone to look at a fine place on the seashore. "I wouldn't take it at any price. It's beautiful, I admit, all you represented it to be, but I never could be happy here."

"Why not?" asked the real estate agent. "You'll never have a chance to get another such bargain. Look at the splendid beach! Breathe in the pure air. Everything is perfect."

"From your standpoint, yes. But that lighthouse just across the bay would interfere with my enjoyment. I never could look at it without sadly remembering other light houses."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Rude Barber.
A farmer from Minnesota entered a barber shop at Butte for the purpose of getting his hair cut. The rural one's locks had an odd, ragged look, and, after regarding them scornfully for a moment, the barber demanded brusquely:

"Say, who cut your hair the last time?"
"My wife," said the farmer, with an uneasy smile.

"She did, eh?" said the barber. "What did she do it with—a knife and fork?"—Appalachian.

The Patient Listener.
"They ought to put somebody in charge of this road who knows how to run it," exclaimed the indignant commuter.

"That's what I think," replied the conductor, with a sigh. "I have been listening to advice on how to run this road for years, but the company doesn't take any notice of my superior information."—Washington Star.

Language.
"I don't believe any two words in the English language are synonymous."
"Oh, I don't know. What's the matter with 'raise' and 'lift'?"
"There's a big difference. I 'raise' chickens and have a neighbor who has been known to 'lift' them."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Human Inconsistency.
"Two men were in court today, each making a directly opposite charge against his wife."
"What were they?"
"One wanted a divorce because his wife was so cold to him and the other because his wife made it too hot for him."—Baltimore American.

Usual Tenants.

Stranger—Great Scott! And are they all doing business?

Stranger—All the moving picture shows, of course.—Puck.

Proof.
"Man is a selfish brute," said the suffragette.
"Why so?" demanded one of her hearers.
"Well," replied the orator, "doesn't he always grab the cream on top of the milk bottle for himself?"—Detroit Free Press.

About All.
"Can a man do any good at college at fifty?"
"Well, he's too old for football, of course. He might possibly get on the mandolin club."—Pittsburg Post.

Perhaps.

"So I've heard."
"But why?"
"Because everybody enjoys a joke."—Cleveland Leader.

Agricultural Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York State Agricultural Society will be held in Albany, Jan. 17, 18 and 19, and the principal subject for consideration will be the development of our agricultural resources and the relation between this problem and the cost of living. Eminent speakers will address the meeting, among those secured being President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University, President G. C. Creelman of Ontario Agricultural College, and men high in agricultural, official and railroad circles. It is expected that two state governors will be on the program. Considerable time will be given to the presentation of four standing committees that were appointed last year and it is expected that these reports will be fully discussed. They will be presented by:

Wing R. Smith of Syracuse, chairman of the Committee on Agricultural Education.

Col. Wm. Cary Sanger of Sangerfield, chairman of the Committee on Development of Agricultural Resources.

Ezra A. Tuttle of Eastport, chairman of the Committee on Marketing, Transportation and Grievances.

F. W. Sessions of Utica, chairman of the Committee on Publicity.

At the last session, the Committee on Legislation, of which Hon. C. Fred Boehart of Lowville is chairman, will make its report.

The most important subjects before the agricultural world will be ably discussed at this meeting and a large attendance is expected. The sessions will be open to all. The program has been arranged by Mr. Gilbert M. Tucker of Albany, and Raymond A. Pearson, Commissioner of Agriculture, who is president of the Society.

What the Boys Thought.
A prominent educator, talking to a class in an elementary school he had visited, decided to illustrate a point he was making by a problem in long division, the intricacies of which the class had just mastered. He put down the necessary figures and then said:

"Now, let us see how many times this number will go into the other. Let us try six." He tried six, and, as he intended, six wouldn't do. "Well, let's try five, then," he said. Five was all right, and he went ahead with his talk.

On his way home that evening he overtook two small boys with book bags under their arms and heard this conversation:

"Say, Bill, did a long whiskered, baldheaded old feller come into your room today?"
"Yep," replied Bill.
"And did he talk to you?"
"Yep," said Bill.

"Well, so he did to us, but the funniest thing, by golly, was that the old chump stumped himself on an example in long division."—Philadelphia Times.

Meet Beautiful Water in World.
Little restaurants are scattered along the cliff overlooking the bay of Capri, and here by the water's edge you can sit and sip and gaze at Vesuvius away off in the distance or perhaps at the water in the bay below.

The most beautiful water in the world! The blue water of the grotto is more mystical, perhaps, but the water of the bay of Capri is more exquisite. It is a wonderful pale green, with a greener, darker color streaked through it. There is no other water like it in all the world.

And here in the little restaurant you sit and sit, gazing at the water below, although you know in your heart you ought to be seeing the rest of the place. But the water is so green and beautiful that when the warning whistle of the Naples steamer blows you awake with a start and realize you have seen nothing of Capri at all—noting but the emerald water, so enticing and beautiful.—Mary Sutley in Pittsburg Dispatch.

A "Primitive" Painter.
Henri Rousseau, a man who used to hold a minor government position in France, was for a quarter of a century the joke of artists and art students in Paris. For years in the independent salon he showed daubs which had not the most distant kinship with art. Some of his "famous" pictures were a "Lady on a Sofa in a Jungle," a "Tiger in a Jungle," a "Nigger in a Jungle." He affected jungles, which consisted of innumerable parallel green lines to represent grass; the tiger was a painted wooden toy; the lady looked as if she had come out of a Noah's ark. The unfortunate Rousseau went on exhibiting the same sort of work every year, and the painful thing was that he gradually became a celebrity. Sinister humorists told him he had genius, and he took himself quite seriously. "I am a real primitive," he would say. Some practical jokers even went the length of buying his pictures.

In Honor Bound.
"Here's 25 cents," said a tramp to a bartender in New York. "I want to pay it to you for that free lunch, and then you can throw in five glasses of beer."
"Twenty-five cents will buy the beer," answered the bartender. "The lunch is free, you know."
"I don't want it that way," the tramp insisted. "I want ter pay a quarter for the lunch and get the beer free."

"It's all the same price either way," the barman explained. "What difference can it make?"
"It's a matter o' personal honor, sir," was the tramp's reply. "I promised the old lady wot give me the quarter that I'd spend it fer something to eat! See?"

Keep in the Sunshine.

There are only two kinds of people in the world—the people who live in the shadow and gloom and those who live on the sunny side of the street. These shadowed ones are sometimes called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament; sometimes they are called disagreeable people. But wherever they go, their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel on before them. These people never bear their own burden, but expose all their wounds to others. They are all so busy looking down for pitfalls and sharp stones and thorns on which to step that they do not even know that there are any stars in the sky. These folks live on the wrong side of the street. And yet it is only twenty feet across to the other sidewalk, where sunshine always lies.—Newell Dwight Hills.

Conditions Reversed.

One of the finest examples of "pawky" humor is placed to the credit of an old gardener who was in the service of Admiral of the Fleet Sir Alexander Milne. The admiral was a grand old man, full of goodness and kindness, but a strict disciplinarian. The gardener having omitted to do something which he had been told to do, his master said to him:
"When I was on board ship I would have had you put in irons for disobedience."
The old gardener was not much perturbed at the idea, but, leaning on his spade, replied:
"Aye, maybe, Sir Alexander, but when ye were on board ship ye had a hunder men tae dae ae job, an' noo ye hae ae man tae dae a hunder job."—London Tit-Bits.

Something to Interest Him.

It was the evening when her weekly caller always made his appearance. "I wish I had something new and entertaining to show him," said the girl to her mother.
"If you'd only mentioned it in time," said her father, "I'd have brought home my account book with the dry goods, millinery, stationery and confectionery bills for the last three months all itemized and balanced. I'll venture to say that would entertain him."—Youth's Companion.

The First Anthracite Coal.

When the first two tons of anthracite coal were taken into Philadelphia in 1803 the good people of that city, so the records state, "tried to burn the stuff, but at length, disgusted, they broke it up and made a walk of it." Fourteen years later Colonel George Shoemaker sold eight or ten wagon loads of it in the same city, but warrants were soon issued for his arrest for taking money under false pretenses.

Canine Rudders.

"The dog," said the scientific gentleman, "sometimes steers himself with his tail."
"Uses it to guide his wandering bark, does he?" asked the irresponsible humorist.

The Ruling Passion.

He—I hear that your husband has taken to smoking again. I thought you insisted that he should give it up?
She—Yes, so I did, but I found such a pretty smoking jacket at a bargain sale!

Farmers' Institutes.

The Farmers' Institutes assigned by the Department of Agriculture to Cayuga county during January are in charge of Mr. F. E. Gott, of Spencerport, assisted by Mr. C. L. St. John of Canajoharie, Mr. John H. Barron of Nunda, Mr. E. F. McDonald of Massena and Miss E. F. Genung of Ithaca.

Mr. St. John is owner and manager of one of the twenty-nine or thirty farms in New York State making a business of producing certified milk, and he has demonstrated that this product may be put on the market with a reasonable outlay of time and money. His talks will be of unusual interest to all dairymen who wish to meet the demand for sanitary milk.

Mr. Barron completed a course in agriculture at Cornell University, has held an instructorship in the Pennsylvania State College, and is now engaged in the active management of a large farm. He has made special studies of soils, plant breeding and animal breeding. Mr. McDonald received a degree from St. Lawrence University and has filled various positions in educational work requiring ability of high order. He is a very interesting speaker. Miss Genung has had practical and successful experience in growing small fruits for market. She is also familiar with the life of the farm home and has many suggestions to make for lessening the work of the woman in the home.

GENESEO'S NOVEL HOME TRADE PLAN

Bringing People to Town Was the Object Sought.

HOW THE METHOD WORKED.

Local Interest in Business Stimulated by Monthly Public Auctions—Special Attractions Offered to Farming Folk. Cost to Each Merchant Small.

The life of Geneseo is much like that of other small western New York towns, and it was decided to see if something could be done to develop more local interest in trade. A number of the merchants of Geneseo decided to combine and form a business men's association to advertise the town and help the community, says the New England Homestead.

A large number of the men decided that the thing to do was to arrange some method for bringing the people to town. It was decided, therefore, to try holding a free auction each month. Any farmer could send in anything he desired to sell and the business men would advertise it, catalogue it, pay for an auctioneer to sell it and turn over the proceeds without any expense to the farmer.

At this time the different merchants arranged special prices on certain lines of goods—thus: Seven cakes of soap for 25 cents or nineteen pounds of sugar for $1. One enterprising jeweler on the first public auction day sold 500 solid silver thimbles at 17 cents each.

The public auctions kept the farmers busy—horses, cows, tools and farm products attracted several hundred men. People who would not come to town for any reason came on market day, and those who did not come to purchase came to discuss things and see what was going on.

The first market day was a decided success. The cost to the merchants was made up by a levy of $1 each on the members of the association. It has since been decided that they will contribute $1 each month and try the system for a year. The second auction was held under unfavorable climatic conditions, but was extremely profitable to the merchants, and some $3,000 worth of farm stock was sold, nearly double that sold at the first auction.

At the third auction it was decided to add a new feature. Three weeks before the event notice was sent to all the county papers that a seed distribution bureau would be established by the association. A committee outlined the following plan: All farmers having farm seeds for sale anywhere in the vicinity were invited to send samples with the amounts they wished to sell and the price. In the case of seed corn they could bring ten ears or half a peck shelled, half a peck of oats or beans and ten potatoes; also samples of grass, clovers and alfalfa seeds.

First, second and third prize cards were awarded in each class, the judging being done by Dr. Gilbert of the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. The fact of placing samples in competition added interest.

Since the auction was not to be until after dinner the morning was devoted to an institute, Dr. Gilbert giving an address on the importance of good seed. This allowed time to discuss the samples shown and to give in detail methods for their improvement. The exhibit and address were held in the village hall. On a bulletin board were posted the names of all people having produce to sell and of any person who wanted to buy, and the committee sought to bring the parties together.

In order that the farmers might see whether their soil conditions were similar a soil map of Livingston county was hung in the room, an advance copy having just been received from the United States department of agriculture.

A Flower as Rent.
A dispatch from Flint, Mich., reports that the local school board has secured a ninety-nine year lease of a site for a new school building at the rate of one clover blossom a year. The man who offered to rent the land on these terms is something of a poet, and the board in accepting the offer has entered into his spirit and determined, it is said, to make every year a ceremonious payment of the rent. It is a pity that when sites are given, as they so often are, the generous donors do not exact some such rental as this, that will require a touch at least of beauty in the school yard. The requirement of a bunch of roses or of some other chosen flower which must be grown on the premises under the children's care would inject a new, a much needed and delightful element into school life.

Some Men's Advertising.
Once there was a man who advertised. He inserted in the local paper a one inch card, which read: "James Jones, Grocer. I solicit the trade of the People. 4011 Dead St." This man paid 90 cents for this ad. for one month. No one told him that they traded with him because he advertised, and he told the editor his paper was no good as a trade puller and to pay money for advertising was a waste. One year later the sheriff closed him out, and the man has never advertised since. Those who would advertise take warning.

PUT ON A GOOD FRONT.

If Your Store Windows Don't Attract Trade, What Will?

There is a vast difference in the amount of good which people get out of their window displays. A great many stores don't "work" their windows as they should, and as a natural result the windows do not work for them.

The windows must be kept alive. They must be made to tell a distinct, emphatic story to the people who pass by and look in. You can't make a lively window without putting things there which will attract attention and cause people to keep watch of the windows for interesting things.

One Cleveland grocer adopted a simple plan for a lively window attraction which brings him very good results. About Thursday of each week he puts a big placard in his window saying:

"Watch this window about 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Don't miss it." Then at 5 o'clock Saturday the curtains of the window are drawn, and the merchant puts into the window some especially attractive bargains. It may be a choice line of sundries at 10 cents each; it may be a display of bananas at a low price or in the berry season of berries at a low figure. It is bound to be something which will move fast and attract instant attention. People have learned to watch for this Saturday night window, for it always holds something especially attractive.

About the most discouraging looking thing about a store can be its window. A stale window, which has a tired look, indicates the same sort of stultification of the window and repels rather than attracts trade.

HE'S THE ONLY ONE.

Everybody but the Traveling Salesman Ought to Do His Buying at Home.

About the only class of citizen who may be exempted from the obligation of buying goods, wares and merchandise in the town in which he resides or where he makes his headquarters is the traveling commercial salesman.

Mr. Traveling Man makes his living by the sale of goods to merchants scattered over a wide territory. Perhaps Mr. Traveler has no trade in his home town. In the majority of instances travelers do not sell very many goods at home. There are exceptions to this rule, of course. Naturally the salesman is going to favor his customers whenever he can. The better the customer the more he is likely to buy if he finds the goods he wants. Then, again, perhaps the house for which he travels is located in another city. He is located in another city. He is friendly to that city and boasts that town first, last and all the time. He buys whatever he pleases there.

Naturally, though, the bulk of the family's purchases are made at home, because it's more convenient.—Commercial News.

Vast Stretch of Street Trees.

The example of the progressive little city of Riverside, Cal., in its systematic care of street trees ought to be followed by many other places. The first work was done in 1904, when 350 trees were planted by the chamber of commerce. In 1905 the chamber planted 1,000; in 1906 the chamber planted more, and the city took it up, the total for the year being 1,250; in 1907 the city planted 1,500 more, and in 1908 the number was 2,170. In the short time since the start was made the total of 8,378 trees planted would make thirty-four miles of tree lined streets, with forty feet between trees. In his report the tree warden, J. H. Reed, says: "When I think of these trees as they will be five or ten years from now and from thence on, it was worth doing." A great deal of work, too, has been put on old trees, perhaps equaling the new trees in number.

Answer Promptly.

Don't neglect your correspondence. If you receive a letter from a jobber, manufacturer or customer, calling for a reply, answer at once and show that you conduct your business on business principles. Naturally a great many retail merchants do not have sufficient correspondence to justify them in employing a stenographer, and in such cases the volume of their correspondence is such that it would be no hardship to promptly take care of every communication the day it is received unless it is impossible to furnish the information asked for immediately.—Trade.

LITTLE BUSINESS HINTS.

A sign hung in a conspicuous place in a store at Lawrence: "Man is made of dust. Dust settles. Are you a man?"—Boston Record.

There would be fewer failures if there were fewer men blocking the way to their own success.

Credit should be looked after more closely than cash.

If your religion is better than your business there is something wrong with your business.

Common sense and cash are a combination that has never been defeated.

It is well to be modest, but there is no money in depreciating yourself or your establishment even in a joking way.

A man is apt to get his back up when he is told to hump himself.

The man isn't necessarily conservative because he is slow and foggy.
