Five Corners.

JULY 11—We are glad to know that other localities have rain if we do not, but it certainly would be appreciated here.

Mrs. Rachel Sanford and Mrs. Ella Albert spent last Saturday in Ithaca. Andrew Brink of North Lansing attended the funeral of J. N. Beardley last week Friday.

Miss Bertha Ferris returned home last Friday evening from Chester, N. Y., where she has been spending some weeks with friends.

John Brown of North Lansing spent last Sunday at the home of Dell Alexander.

The ladies of Genoa Chapter, No. 413, Order of the Eastern Star, will give an entertainment at the Masonic Hall, King Ferry, this week Saturday evening, July 15. Supper with ice cream will be served from 8 to 9 p. m. The entertainment will consist of piano solos, music by the orchestra and singing by the quartet. An enjoyable time is expected and a very cordial invitation is extended. The ladies of the chapter know just how to make good cream and the gentlemen know just how to freeze it. Come and try it. Supper 15 and 25 cents.

Mrs. George Cook, who has been very ill and under the care of Dr. Hatch, is somewhat improved at this writing.

Jay Swartwood of Trumansburg spent the Fourth with his parents. Will Ferris and wife made a business trip to Ithaca Monday of this week. They brought home a very handsome Angora kitten from George Lanterman at South Lansing.

We forgot to mention last week that Mrs. Ann Palmer of Belltown was one of the guests at the marriage anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Palmer. She is quite along in years and has been in very poor health and her many friends were pleased to know she was able to be present.

The Ladies' Aid society of Belltown have no more meetings until September. A good idea—the weather being so very oppressive.

We had a fine display of fireworks here last Saturday evening. They were enjoyed by all who had not gone to bed as some had and even those large fire crackers could not wake them up.

Mrs. H. B. Hunt is slowly recovering from her illness, which her many friends are pleased to learn.

In the death of J. N. Beardley the community at large loses a good citizen. He was always lively and cheerful with every one—children as well as those of his own age, but nowhere will he be missed as in his own home. He worked in the blacksmith shop here for 33 years and only a short time ago sold it to Floyd Young. Mr. Beardley made the remark when he sold it that it was the first time in years that what he had owned a blacksmith shop and said he was going to live more at ease and leisure. But the all wise Providence knew best. The family have the sympathy of their many friends in their sad bereavement.

E. B. Stewart and daughter and Mrs. Erwin Snaushall and daughter, returned to Trumansburg last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith entertained about thirty friends by invitation last week Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Barber and two daughters from California. Mr. Barber was unable to attend, being with his parents at East Genoa. The evening was very warm, but was one of pleasure to the company. A very elaborate menu was served. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are good entertainers which makes such little gatherings the more enjoyable.

The social which was held on the church lawn the Fourth of July was a success financially, as $7.50 were the receipts of the evening.

No services at Belltown for two Sundays as the Rev. H. E. Crossley is taking a vacation.

E. LaBar made a business trip to Auburn last week Wednesday.

John Morey and wife returned to their home here one day last week. They have been spending some time at Venice Center.

A neighbor not very far away went to milk his cow one morning last week and behold, some one had got in ahead of him during the night and milked her. We hope they enjoyed the milk.

We overheard two ladies talking about churning. One remarked she liked the old fashioned churn the best, while the other admired the barrel churn. The barrel churn is all right if the lady of the house does the churning, but if the man does the churning and forgets to fasten it and lets the cream all out on the floor, then you would wish for a dash churn. Never mind they had to clean it up themselves. Served them right.

The heat is so very oppressive that no one has any ambition. We heard of one lady who went to one of the stores here and wanted to buy two cents worth of ambition and they did not have even that much.

Ledyard.

JULY 10—The Brokaw place of thirty-three acres was sold on Thursday for four thousand twenty-five dollars. Dr. Frost of Moravia was the purchaser.

Mrs. Lisk visited her daughter at Genoa last week, returning home on Friday. Murray also returned the same day from Homer where he had spent the past two weeks with friends. His cousin, Arthur Rogers, came home with him. Miss Anna and Floyd remained with their sister, Mrs. Brightman. The latter will be treated by Dr. Willoughby. His many friends are hoping for his recovery.

Mrs. Veley, Mrs. Bourne and Chas. Veley were in Auburn on Saturday to see the circus.

Miss Abbie Mann is visiting her uncle and family at Myers.

Mrs. Brennan and daughter, Miss Nellie, returned from Auburn on Tuesday where they had been for several days. Mrs. Brennan went to the Auburn City Hospital expecting to have an operation, but it was not deemed advisable.

Mrs. Susie Haines visited her son and family recently.

Mrs. Crossley, who has been the guest of her son and family at the parsonage, returned home last week. One day last week while Benton M. Halladay was working in his barn he fell through the floor, a distance of ten feet, striking on his head and shoulders. One rib was broken and the muscles of his back were torn loose. He is doing well, but the doctor thinks it will be a long time before he will be able to work.

The Fourth was celebrated with a ball game and basket picnic at Riverside Park in the afternoon and a concert in the evening, at which the music by Wright's string orchestra and the patriotic singing by the chorus were greatly enjoyed. There were fire works at the end of the entertainment. Mrs. Sibley Drake held the lucky ticket and drew the carriage, Miss Marie Allen was voted the most popular young lady and received the handsome oak rocker. The I. O. O. F. cleared about $100.

There were three painful but not serious accidents as the result of the celebration. Clarence Howell of Ithaca had his hand quite badly injured while playing ball. Miss Marguerite Scribner of Ishpeming, Mich., who is a guest of Mrs. Albert Bissell, accidentally exploded the blank cartridge in a toy pistol which she was holding, and the palm of her hand was badly burned and filled with powder. During the fireworks in the evening, a cannon cracker exploded in the right hand of Elmer Ludlow of Lansing station, tearing off the little finger at the first joint and cutting his hand. He was taken to Dr. Allen's office where the wounds were dressed and no serious results are anticipated.

A Dituvial Reflection.

"In all this destruction," said Noah as he stepped off the ark, "I see only one consolation."

"What is that?" asked Shem.

She Rewards a Patient Waiter

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The barnyard fence divided Jacob Keene's farm from that of his neighbor, Lorenzo Nettle. Jacob leaned over the fence and looked wistfully at the gaunt framed white mare that drooped dejectedly near the closed door of her stable. Her ragged, unkempt mane was tangled with burs, some of last year's crop. One eye was of that dull blue, denoting a sightless vision; the other optic, of a soft brown mildness, was turned toward the watchful Mr. Keene. The mare shifted her sprung knees and wheezed patiently.

Jacob turned and stumped into the house, scattering the gathered chickens with his sudden impetuosity. "Lizzie," he said, addressing his wife, "it's a confounded shame how Lorenzo treats that mare. I wish I had the money to buy Daisy off of him." Mrs. Keene turned mild blue eyes on her irate lord. "I wish you had, dear," she said meekly.

"Wishing don't do any good," snapped Jacob. "That's what I was thinking," she admitted tactlessly. "Humph! That's all the sympathy I get, Lizzie Keene."

"You're making yourself sick over that horse," objected Mrs. Keene as her husband moved his chair away from his half tasted supper. "If Lorenzo won't sell Daisy to you, why don't you give up the idea?"

Jacob glared out of the window and swallowed hard. "It ain't that Lorenzo don't want to sell the critter, Lizzie," he explained impatiently. "He ain't got no use for her with the brown horse. He's just naturally a mean hunk and because he knows I've been wanting to buy back Daisy ever since Uncle Willie sold it to Lorenzo without giving me first bid on it. I never heard of a Nettle yet that knew how to treat a critter human."

"He gives her enough to eat, don't he?" asked Mrs. Keene deprecatingly. "Yes, after he's kept her waiting long enough, and she gets drink, too, after awhile. But if she only had half the attention that the brown one gets she'd make a mighty good looking horse."

His wife opened her eyes wide. "But she's terrible sprung, and somebody said she had the heaves, Jacob."

"Heaves or no heaves, I'll bet I could make that critter look like a lady inside of a week," asserted Jacob confidently. "I've never forgot how she looked when Uncle Willie used to drive her to church on Sundays. White as snow she was, and her mane all crinkly like silk, with a blue ribbon tied in her forelock. She looks white as snow now, don't she?" he jeered, pointing at the sorry procession entering the Nettle stable. Mrs. Keene arose and pressed her thin nose to the window.

First there frisked the Nettle dog, as if her rasping bark might induce greater speed to the leisurely progress of the blighted Daisy, who shambled in with hanging head. Lorenzo Nettle followed, twirling an empty corn measure on his broad palm and perhaps casting a speculative eye toward the sunset reddened windows of his neighbor. Lorenzo Nettle was not inhuman nor was he hard hearted; he merely loved money, and he had learned that a little apparent neglect toward Daisy would only enhance her value in the eyes of the nephew of her former owner.

Nor was he mistaken, for scarcely had he closed the stable door upon the old mare, now comfortably watered and fed in her stall, than Jacob Keene's rotund form bobbed on the other side of the fence.

"Howdy?" inquired Lorenzo genially. "Quite some," replied Jacob absently. Then, "I say, Lorenzo, what about selling Daisy?"

Lorenzo Nettle straightened suddenly and looked sharply at his neighbor. "Well, what about selling her?" "You said you'd consider my offer of $17," protested Mr. Keene.

"I've considered it, and I don't consider it enough. Now, Jacob, you know your Uncle Willie set great store by Daisy! When he sold her to me he said she'd made her three minutes over to Fray's track the summer the seven year locusts didn't come when they was due, and you know darned well you can't expect to get a three minute trotter for $17! No, sir!"

Jacob Keene sat in thoughtful silence for awhile. "You bought that there Daisy fifteen years ago, Lorenzo," he stated mildly, "and the year the seven year locusts skipped Little River was twelve years before that, so I can figure that Daisy wasn't doing any three minutes when you bought her off of Uncle Willie, and if you paid more'n $25 for her then I'll eat my hat!"

As Lorenzo did not offer to solve the problem of Daisy's cost there was no occasion for Jacob to lurch on his dilapidated headgear. Nevertheless that baffled gentleman nibbled thoughtfully at his frizzled straw brim.

"Did you never hear of anything increasing in value?" asked Lorenzo after awhile.

"Not horses—unless you're trying to argue that the high price of meat has got anything to do with it," returned

Jacob scornfully. "As I remember it, Lorenzo Nettle, the summer my Uncle Willie sold you Daisy was the time when I had the typhoid fever, and I was so sick that I didn't know nothing about the transaction. And when I was up again and found out about it, why, Uncle Willie had died, and you wouldn't sell the horse to me."

"Right enough! Why should I sell it to you, Jacob? She was just the critter I wanted for spare work. You've acted tarnation foolish over that critter for fifteen year, and you might as well spit it out now and tell me why you want that particular boss and no other. You ain't got stable room for her with your two, and she ain't what you'd call fancy looking now, is she?"

"She is not," said Jacob seriously, "but I always liked Daisy, and when she was a colt Uncle Willie promised if he ever sold her to anybody he'd give me first chance on her. I waited twelve years for her, and when I was sick he—"

"I expect he thought you wasn't going to get any better," remarked Lorenzo. "Well, it's all done and gone, Jacob, and the mare is mine. If you want pay fifty for her, why?"

"Fifty!" bellowed Jacob angrily, slipping over into his own yard. "I guess you've got mixed in your mind between horseflesh thirty years old and cold storage beef." And he disappeared in the darkening twilight to sputter his wrath to the patient ears of Lizzie.

The next morning at 10 o'clock he faced a triumphant Lorenzo across the barnyard fence. "Well, you're too late now, even if you've a mind to give fifty," remarked Mr. Nettle.

"What do you mean? You ain't never sold Daisy?" challenged Jacob.

"That's it."

"Who to?" asked Jacob owlishly. "The minister over to Elmville. He saw her yesterday, and he sent word by Dan last night he'd take her. He's giving fifty for her. Seems to know what he's about too."

"Seems to me if I was going to sting a minister on a horse deal I wouldn't take so much from him," declared Jacob, crimson with anger and contempt.

"I am mad because you won't sell for what she is worth. The least you can do to make things right for that minister, Lorenzo Nettle, is to fix that horse up so she'll look respectable for a minister to drive behind."

"What would you do?" demanded Lorenzo, opening the stable door and leading forth the object of discussion.

Jacob surveyed his lost opportunity with tender eyes. "I'd begin by giving her a good scrubbing with warm water and yaller soap and rinse her good till she was white as when Uncle Willie used to drive her. Then I'd soak her mane in warm water and comb out all the burs and tangles till it was white and fluffy, and I'd braid a blue ribbon in her forelock. I'd rub her down till she shined like satin, and I'd cut her fetlocks and trim her hoofs and oil 'em, and I'd have her new shod, and then I'd rub her down good with liniment to take some of the kink out of her muscles. With her tall waving like a white plume she'd look like one of them old battle chargers, eh?"

"By all your talk I reckon she would, I s'pose I might as well do it, though," agreed Lorenzo as a sop to his rather burdened conscience.

Late that afternoon a rejuvenated Daisy, as white as the simple flower for which she was named, was turned into the daisy grown meadow to caper awkwardly about on her singularly trim feet. The blue ribbon dangled above her astonished good eye and gave her a decidedly rakish appearance, but with her knees hidden in the clover and daisies she looked very handsome as she moved slowly to and fro, nipping daintily with her horn teeth and soft white nose. Jacob Keene stood afar and looked on her snow white form with tears in his eyes and was not ashamed. To him she was the one horse he had always desired, and now she would never be his.

That night at 11 o'clock he was called forth by the excited hired man to Lorenzo Nettle's barnyard. "What's the matter?" he demanded anxiously. "She's dead," snapped Lorenzo. "That horse is dead. That comes of washing her and!"

"I've done that lots of times, Mr. Nettle," protested his hired man, "only I guess you let her outdoors too soon."

"And she hasn't been paid for," went on Lorenzo bitterly. "I expect I can sell her to the soap factory for five."

"I'll give you seventeen," said Jacob quickly.

"Well, of all the—I'll take it, cash now," said Lorenzo, and there followed a brief transaction that made Jacob Keene the owner of the long coveted horse, only now she was white and stiff. Jacob said he would bury Daisy in a corner of his meadow where his favorite dog was interred, and it was a silent procession headed by the brown mare which dragged the blanket on which reposed the stiff form of Daisy.

The first thrust of a sharp spade in the moonlighted turf of the meadow happened to glance sharply across Daisy's flank, and to the horror of the onlooker she kicked mildly, relaxed her stiffened muscles, shivered and slowly scrambled to her feet.

"Not dead, but sleeping," quoted Dan Harmon under his breath as the disconcerted Lorenzo turned sharply about and went back to bed, while Jacob Keene, with ill concealed delight, carefully led his long waited for pet into the comfortable stall.

Why She Quit Her Job.

A lady of my acquaintance in Tokyo, says a writer in the World Wide Magazine, possessed a valuable servant of somewhat mature years who rejoiced in the poetic name of Oharu San—"The Honorable Miss Spring."
One day Miss Spring brought in luncheon as usual. All seemed serene; there was not a shadow of a cloud in the domestic sky. But at teatime no tea appeared; neither, in answer to calls at first patient and afterward impatient, did Oharu. After awhile the lady went herself to the back regions and found—desolation. The charcoal box was filled with gray ashes, the kettle cold. Half the luncheon plates lay immersed in a bowl of soapy water; the other half stood on the sink ready to be put away. Oharu herself simply was not.

The next morning, however, she reappeared, very much on her company manners, with a clean kimono and her hair done in a shingling bun to denote the state of a matron, demanding the fragment of wages due to her since the beginning of the month. The lady expostulated and asked why the servant was leaving thus suddenly.
"Oh," replied Oharu, "just as I was washing the plates yesterday I remembered that Salto San, the pawnbroker, wanted a wife. Therefore I went out and married him."

Unjustly Accused.

Andrew Carnegie, when talking about the Scotch dialect once, said: "Scotch dialect is a lingo hard to understand, and it often causes awkward mistakes. Once an American divine spent Christmas in a highland inn. On Christmas morning he gave the maid a tip of a sovereign, and he said, looking earnestly at her, for she was a pretty maid:
"Do you know, Kathleen, you are a very good looking lassie?"
"Of course Kathleen was pleased, but, being modest, she blushed like a rose and answered:
"Ah, na! Ah, na! But my kissing, sir, is beautiful!"
"The divine frowned.
"Leave the room, you wicked young baggage!" he said sternly.
"He didn't know, you see, that modest Kathleen had been simply praising in her highland dialect the superior charms of her cousin Janet of Peebles."

Philosophic Tea.

The famous Adam Smith had all the proverbial absentmindedness of the philosopher. An amusing story of him is told in Mr. Fyvie's book, "Noble Dames and Notable Men of the Georgian Era." "Mr. Damer, it appears, called one morning upon the Scottish philosopher just as he was preparing his breakfast. As they talked the learned man took a piece of bread and butter in his hand and, after rolling it round and round, popped it into his teapot and poured the boiling water upon it. Damer watched with quiet amusement without drawing attention to this peculiar proceeding, and presently he had his reward, for when Adam Smith poured himself out a cup of this queer decoction and tasted it he quite innocently remarked to his visitor that it was the worst tea he had ever met with."

Not Stealing.

David Belasco delicately dissected a certain playwright one evening at a dinner given by the former to some of his friends of the theatrical profession. This playwright is successful and produces many plays, but, it is admitted, owes nearly all his best ideas to others.
"One night the playwright imagined that he heard a noise in his house," said Mr. Belasco. "He lighted a lamp, went downstairs, searched his library, parlor, dining room and kitchen, then went to the butler's pantry and there discovered a masked man kneeling over the chest of silverware.
"Aha!" said he huskily. "Stealing?"
"Oh, no," replied the burglar calmly. "I'm only adapting."

Sir William Phips was appointed governor in chief of the province of Massachusetts Bay in 1692. During his administration the terrible war against witchcraft raged for some sixteen months. When his own wife, Lady Phips, was named as having exercised the powers of witchcraft Sir William began to view this whole terrible madness in a new light, and he put a stop to all trials and discharged the prisoners then awaiting trial.

Confound the cats! All cats, always,

MIDNIGHT MUSIC.

HUS expostulated Orlando Thomas Dobbin years and years ago. Now comes a modern Dobbin, Dr. Charles B. Reed, a brother of Myrtle Reed McCullough, by the way, who says the Felis domestica, otherwise known as "Tabby" or "Tom" or "Tiger," must go.

The doctor has found germs in Tabby's whiskers and bacteria in his fur. In his proselyting about during the wee sma' hours Tom may visit a house where a contagious disease is prevalent or he may track through typhoid fever contamination and bring that home, with the germ of diphtheria or scarlet fever or measles.

According to the doctor, every inch of Tom is a common carrier for disease. Heretofore we have been led to understand that the worst part of Tom was his yowl—the goodness knows that was bad enough—but now we stand in mortal dread of bacteria when we see baby sucking the black cat's tail, mistaking it for a piece of licorice, or burying her infantile nose and lips in the soft, warm fur of Tabby's side.

Take a look at your cat's whiskers. They look innocent enough, but are they? The doctor says they are laden with germs of decomposition, causing ptomaine poisoning, sore throat, intestinal disorders, kidney disease and puerperal fever.

Henry Carey says: "Lauki! What a monstrous tall our cat has got!"
When Tab hears what the physician says of her I fear that her tail, too, will swell, and in righteous anger, at the calumny. The doctor would do away with all cats as household pets, catch mice and rats by mechanical prowess and endow something else with the love now lavished upon the house feline.

Maiden ladies who live alone with their teapots and their cats are especially appealed to and are asked to deny themselves for the sake of the human race. Dr. Reed evidently appreciates the task he has taken upon himself—the ridding of this country of its large aggregation of night prowlers with nine lives each.

But the physician has begun well. He has invented a gibbet trap that is jaller and executioner, judge, jury and the common people. It is baited with catnip and loaded with death. Every time it goes off one more cat is sent to the eternal—I was going to say eternal bowwows, but that would make a cat and dog life of it for the cat sure, and so I say cat heaven. When the trap goes off nine times on the same cat that settles it; puss is dead.

The gibbet trap having been heralded to the world, a lot of cat lovers took up the banner for Tabby and wrote saucy letters to Dr. Reed, who replied sharply, "Women who object to this fight against cats wear aigrets taken from a living female bird, causing her death and leaving her young to starve."

Which would have been nearer the truth if Dr. Reed or the newspaper reporter had said, "Some women," etc.
There may be considerable truth in what Dr. Reed says, and if so we should be grateful to him for his activity, yet I cannot but think the doctor's task is something like one a certain man had in mind when he advertised for a helper. The advertisement appeared in a Sunday paper of recent date and read as follows:

I want to meet a man who is willing to give one evening each week to a task that is thankless, unappreciated by the people he works for, often disagreeable and seldom shown by results. Don't answer unless you are game. Once started you will hate to let go. No compensation. Address S D 148, this paper.

And yet I haven't a doubt but that somebody answered this advertisement and did the work. If it were not for men who are thus prompted to do things for humanity the world would be worse off today than it is. And if Dr. Reed is right off goes Tom's head to save little Willie's and the baby.

Harriet M. Husted.

The death of Harriet M. Husted occurred at her late home in the town of Venice on Sunday, July 9, after an illness of two months. Death was caused by sugar diabetes.

Miss Husted was the last member of her family and was in her 70th year. She was a lifelong resident of the town of Venice, and was born on the farm where she died. When a child, she suffered an injury of the spine which affected her limbs and she never was able to walk after the accident. Notwithstanding her physical disability, Miss Husted superintended the work of the farm after the death of her parents, and took an active interest in the life of the community about her. She was a member of the Friends church at Poplar Ridge. Her nearest surviving relatives are a cousin, Miss Sarah J. Reynolds who has lived at the Husted home for many years, two nephews, George and Carter Husted, and a niece, Mrs. Bessie Wixon.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. Rev. G. P. Sewall, pastor of the Aurora Presbyterian church, officiated and Miss Mary Landon of Poplar Ridge sang very beautifully some appropriate selections. By request of the deceased, interment was made in the family plot on the home farm, where other members of the family are buried.

Beebe Family Reunion.

Holt and sons, Richard Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. FLOWERS FOR EACH MONTH.

How to Have Blossoms Continually Out of Doors.

Flowers grown out of doors by the amateur may be enjoyed every month in the year, during the heat and drought of July as well as the cold and snow of January. The Christmas rose, for instance, frequently puts forth blossoms while the plant is covered with snow. The first sunshiny days bring out the snowdrop and scilla. Then follow the crocus, daffodil, hyacinth and tulip. Thereafter come the lilac and the whole series of annuals or plants raised from seed and making their cycle during one season.

Herewith is a list of plants which may be grown from seeds, bulbs or cuttings and which will give bloom the whole year through:

March—Scilla, chionodoxa, crocus, snowdrop, hepatica.

July—Canada lily, gladiolus, begonia, dahlia, hollyhock, thalicttrum, platycodon sunflower, golden glow, early cosmos, sweet alyssum, nicotiana, stocks, lobelia, poppies, gallardia, balsam, verbena, smoke tree, buttonbush, Douglas spirea, Japanese lilac, crimson rambler, nasturtium.

November—Hardy chrysanthemums, marigold.

December—Christmas rose, winter aconite.

January and February—Winter aconite, California violet, Christmas rose.

How to Shoot a Revolver.

Forgetting all about what you thought was right or what you've seen somebody do or what somebody told you about pistol shooting, poise yourself with all your muscles at ease, right side toward some fixed point on the wall before you, right foot about twice its length from the left and pointing a little to the left of a line drawn from you to the mark on the wall, left hand on the hip, right arm fully extended. This does not mean with the crowbar rigidity of the drowning man grasping the straw nor yet that senseless crook often affected by the inexperienced revolver shot. Merely extend the arm at full length, as though pointing out some interesting object to a friend. See that no muscles are strained and that you are at ease. Take a deep breath and let it go. A couple of them help to steady you down. Now take a half breath and hold it. This is your shooting position and the shooting position of practically every expert revolver shot in the country. The "south paw" are, of course, reversed so far as the arm that is extended is concerned.—Outing

How to Mix Whitewash.

At this season, when so much whitewashing is done, the following rule for preparing the wash, which is used by a large factory out west, may be found useful. Have ready one barrel of unslaked lime and add, while slaking it, three pounds of glue and three pounds of suet, tallow, lard or bacon cut in small pieces. The heat of the slacking will dissolve the fat, which acts like an oil. Add also a pound of alum and six pounds of salt. Half a pound of borax can be added later. Bluing may be added when the whitewash is used, allowing about one tablespoonful to a pailful. The whitewash should be prepared three or four weeks before using, as it improves with age, unlike most mixtures of the kind. Stir it every day up to the time of using. It has been used on outbuildings and wears well.

How to Clean Chamolix Gloves.

To wash chamolix gloves and keep them soft, first put the gloves on the hands, using lukewarm water and pure soap. Wash in this lather until the gloves are thoroughly cleansed, then rinse in clear water of the same temperature, but before taking off the gloves cover them again with a lather of the soap. Allow them to dry in the shape. The soap prevents them from becoming stiff and brittle.

How to Clean Marble.

For whitening boards or cleaning marble take a half pound each of soda, powdered chalk and powdered pumice stone, stir together in a small quantity of water and then add half a pound of soft soap. Mix it as a paste and apply with a scrubbing brush.

How to Drive Out Wasps.

If chloride of lime is sprinkled in the corners and on window sills in attic the wasps will disappear. Then have the windows well screened.

RELIGION IN THE FAR EAST.

Question of Prosperity Not Considered a Fair Test.

One often hears Protestantism and Catholicism compared, to the disadvantage of the latter, because the Protestant countries are more prosperous, wealthier, more powerful. This same reasoning is used when comparing Christianity with Brahmanism, Confucianism, Buddhism, but the argument does not lie, as the lawyers say. To the Hindu mind it is no argument at all. His ideal is to get out of the world, not to get what he can out of it and stay in it.

That one's beliefs should be scientifically true or that they should produce in an individual or a nation powers of wealth getting and comfort making is not only not required of his faith by the oriental, but he looks upon such tests as preposterous. If plague or famine comes to a whole province or loss or illness comes to him individually or the will of a ruler whom he believes to be divinely guided brings disgrace upon him—all these are accepted as inevitable. It is part of the mysterious and incomprehensible divine plan and leads to no questioning, criticism or even complaint of the ways of God with man.

We recognize self sacrifice and unselfishness as spiritual graces to be cultivated, but the great majority of Christians look upon an unsuccessful Christian as lacking in some essential manner the full dower of his faith. If the Hindu believed that his faith forbade working on Sunday or forbade divorce, for example, he would sacrifice himself rather than disobey. We, on the contrary, have allowed laws of economics and laws of health and freedom to override the dicta of the priest.

I am not deciding between the two, though I believe we are right. I am merely noting differences which must be kept in mind by the student of the east if he wishes to gain something more of an understanding of the situation than the mere superficial contempt and cobwebby experiences of a self satisfied traveler.

The conversion of the thousand million brown and yellow men of Asia by the 500,000,000 Christians is so far away in the distance that no eye, even of the imagination, can see so far down the aisles of time.—Scribner's Magazine.

Methodists in India.

About 25,000 persons were baptized in Methodist churches in India last year, bringing the Methodist community in Hindustan up to nearly a quarter of a million souls.

Prayer.

After long days of storms and showers, Of sighing winds and dripping bowers, How sweet at morn to open our eyes On newly "swept and garnished" skies!

To miss the clouds and driving rain And see that all is bright again—So bright we cannot choose but say, Is this the world of yesterday?

Even so methinks the Sunday brings A change o'er all familiar things—A change, we know not whence it came, They are, and they are not, the same.

There is a spell within, around, On eye and ear, on sight and sound, And, loath or willing, they and we Must own this day a mystery.

Sure all things wear a heavenly dress That sanctifies their loveliness, Types of that endless resting day When "we shall all be changed" as they.

Our eyes by faith the Lord behold, For on the week's first day of old From his grave he rose, on death he trod, Was seen of men and went to God.

Whether in meditative walk, Alone with God and heaven we talk, Catching the simple chime that calls Our feet to some old church's walls,

Or passed within the church's door, Where poor are rich, and rich are poor, We say the prayers and hear the word Which there our fathers said and heard.

'Tis something that we kneel and pray With loved ones near and far away, One God, one faith, one hope, one care, One form of words, one hour of prayer.

Then turn we to our earthly home, Not doubting but that Jesus comes, Brushing his peace on hall and hut At evening when the door is shut.

—The sealer of weights and measures of a county in Central New York has reported for his county that thirty-two coal and hay scales were condemned, 54 out of 204 counter scales were found to be incorrect, 21 incorrect creamery scales were found, 541 weights were thrown out, and 143 out of 227 liquid measures were ordered not to be used. It must be that "graft" is not confined to any particular line of business.

—The new law prohibiting the display of the plumage of wild birds on hats will be of immense value to farmers. Scientists claim, and they are undoubtedly right, that the great increase of insect pests is due principally to the slaughter of many varieties of wild birds whose chief diet are just the insects which have become so numerous in the past few years. This, it is said, is especially true in regard to the caterpillars and borers which are now ruining the shade trees in this and other states.—Ex.

The many Civic Improvement Clubs and Horticultural Publications are creating a large demand for the goods they handle, and as they grow all their own stock, are prepared to guarantee it to be strictly first-class in every respect.

For School Superintendent.

Miss Flora A. Alling of Genoa, who has announced herself as a candidate for superintendent of schools in District No. 4, has received notification from the educational department at Albany that she passed the examination which was given the candidates for the position in May last. District No. 4 comprises the towns of Genoa, Venice and Scipio, as we stated in THE TRIBUNE last April when the county was divided into districts under the new educational law. Genoa school is the highest grade of any school in the district, and there are about forty schools in the district, of which the superintendent would have the general supervision. The salary is $1200 a year with an additional $300 for expenses, and the term of office is five years.

Miss Alling has taught in the schools of this state for thirty years, and for the past twenty-two years in Genoa graded school. To have taught continuously for so long a time in one school is in itself a high recommendation. All who know of Miss Alling's work in Genoa school, agree that she is thorough, methodical and practical, and a fine disciplinarian, and in addition she possesses executive ability and common sense in a large degree. It has been said by the various school commissioners of this part of the county that there was no better teacher in their district.

We believe that Miss Alling possesses all the required qualifications for the position which she is seeking, and that she is highly deserving of the honor and the remuneration which it will bring. Public service deserves reward, and a public school teacher who has given thirty years of service should be pensioned for the remainder of his or her life.

Although Genoa would be sorry to lose Miss Alling from the village school, in the event of her appointment as superintendent, her many friends would be glad of her advancement to a more responsible and lucrative position.

Presbyterian Church.

Holy Communion was observed at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning. There was a very large audience in attendance.

After the opening services the pastor, Rev. T. J. Searls, gave a brief talk upon the theme "They followed Jesus," closing with appropriate words to the class before him about to be received into the church. Then came the baptism, confirmation and reception of members. Just before the service the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mack was baptized. Six persons were received into the church by baptism, two by confirmation, and five by letter. The pastor had carefully arranged the three forms of service into one, saving time and making a very beautiful service. After this interesting service the administration of the Lord's Supper and a larger number of communicants partook than for years before.

The Sunday school was largely attended and is increasing in attendance and interest.

The fans provided were nearly all in use and just right for such a hot day.

For the next two Sundays there will be no services in the church except next Sunday when Sunday school will be held at 11 o'clock.

The Baraca and Philathea classes met at the home of Mrs. Beach Monday night for a debate and social evening. Ice cream and cake were served by the hostess.

The Junior Philathea and Ever-Faithful classes held a picnic at the home of Mrs. Brinkerhoff on Thursday of this week.

THE ROADS OF THE WHOLE WORLD MUST BE REMADE

"Old Macadam Will No Longer Stand Strain of Automobile."

Nelson P. Lewis, chief engineer of the board of estimate of the borough of Manhattan, New York city, believes that the roads of every civilized country will have to be rebuilt because the old macadam, the best thing until now for highways, is unable to stand the grind of automobiles. Roads will have to be rebuilt to suit automobiles, because the automobile is a good thing for roads of the kind that can bear its peculiar pressure. Speaking on this subject recently, Mr. Lewis said:

"While I believe that only a bituminous substance, such as tar, asphalt or mineral oil, should be used as binding material for loose rock and sand in place of water and that all our roads should be relaid, as they must be sooner or later, many engineers seem to think that by spreading a cohesive mixture over the surface of the roads as they are will be all that is required. Some others believe that new macadam may be laid and the surface treated with this bituminous mixture. They assume that it will penetrate through and make the rock fittings fast.

"On one point there is no disagreement. It is that no roads anywhere except those newly built according to some of these more modern processes are able to withstand automobile traffic. When vehicles were drawn by horses the only damage done to the roads was by the horseshoes. The drawn vehicle was a benefit to the road, having the effect of a steam roller in packing and hardening the sand and clay.

"Everywhere the cry of bad roads is going up. We are no worse off than the rest of the world. It is a problem which now engages the serious attention of the French government, and England, which spent a hundred years in making her splendid highways, is now rebuilding them as fast as she can to accommodate them to new conditions.

"It is quite generally agreed that some form of bitumen is best adapted for this purpose.

"There are four general methods of using it:

"First.—Coating the surface to form, temporarily at least, a waterproof and dustless road.

"Second.—The penetration method, by which the bituminous matter is forced down into the broken stone, and sand or screenings are used to take up the excess of bitumen.

"Third.—The interposition of the bituminous mixture between the bottom course of stone and the top course, or new wearing surface, and the forcing of the upper course into the mixture, additional material being added to the surface to completely fill the interstices between the stones, while sand or screenings are applied to take up any excess upon the surface.

"Fourth.—The mixing method, under which the stone which is to form the wearing surface is thoroughly coated with the hot bituminous cement, with a proper amount of screenings and other fine material added to reduce the voids, the mixture being spread upon the road while hot, after which it is thoroughly rolled, as in the case of the ordinary asphalt pavement or bituminous macadam of the American type, the surface again being coated with sand or screenings, as in the other cases.

DRAG, DRAG, DRAG!

If every farmer could but see the real figures showing the comparatively small cost of maintaining good roads and the loss caused by poor ones! Get busy with the drag!

New Kansas Road Bill.

A new road bill is being considered by the Kansas legislature. It provides for a state highway commission to consist of the regents of the agricultural college. This commission is to appoint a state engineer, who will pass on all bridges and road improvements.

The highway fund is to be provided by the taxing of motor car owners, dealers and manufacturers. The state engineer is to receive a salary fixed by the commission. The money derived from the taxing of motor vehicles, after the expense of the highway commission's offices has been paid, is to be turned over to the county treasurers in proportion to the amount each county has paid in.

Durable and Dustless.

A durable and dustless road pavement is claimed by Francis Wood, a British engineer, in a combination of two inch granite with Trinidad lake bitumen. It is said to cost less than macadam and to be good for at least twenty years, experiment having shown that it will stand wear, tear and wet better than any other paving ever tried.

BAD ROADS AND COST OF LIVING.

Bad roads are now classed by the experts as one of the contributory causes to the high cost of living and the migration of the farmer boy to the city. The United States government estimates, for example, that in the state of Indiana transportation costs 25.5 cents per ton for each mile. Over a bituminized road between Philadelphia and Atlantic City it is estimated freight can be transported for less than 1 cent per mile, and over some of the good roads in New York state the cost is 5 cents per mile.

A Nourishing Cereal.

Cornmeal porridge and milk is a nourishing and altogether a wholesome food if the liability to swallow it without much mastication be avoided, especially when there is a tendency to constipation. The porridge should be made thick, boiled for ten minutes in a double boiler and finished by four or five hours in the fireless cooker, when it should be solid, inducing mastication more than thin wheat preparations. Cornmeal can be ground from the cob on a common grater, but care should be taken not to grind so close as to include pieces of the cob. A fresh, coarser, more wholesome meal can be made in this way, which, if cooked long and slowly and thoroughly masticated, is preferable to any other cereal preparation.

A Sixth Sense.

An interesting discussion arose at a recent college lecture concerning the "instinct of direction" possessed so marvelously by savage races and by animals. Undoubtedly animals are aided largely by scent. In the case of humans it is different, and some of the pupils argued that the primitive man is able to find his way in the densest forest without taking note of the sun, the wind, the lay of the land or the course of the streams. Therefore it was said he must be guided by a sixth sense because none of the regular five senses could aid him. Other pupils, however, argued that the Indian found his way in places where there were no apparent guides because he knew how, because he had learned all his life how to do it, just as the writer, for instance, will write page after page of copy, spelling all the words correctly, but yet cannot if asked to spell a simple word. This is because he learned the words long ago and his spelling is purely mechanical. It is so with the Indian finding his way through the woods.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Fiction or History.

After all, fiction is not always the worst place in which to look for history. There is a story of Lord Disraeli at the time of his extremely humptious youth when he had just returned from his travels in the east. As a young man, much under thirty, he met Lord Melbourne, who was then prime minister, at dinner. Lord Melbourne proceeded to discourse on the eastern question, but instead of listening to the prime minister with the respect which he ought young Disraeli said, "It seems to me that your lordship has taken your knowledge of the east from 'The Arabian Nights'."

Some prime ministers I have known would have snubbed the young man severely. Lord Melbourne was not of that kind. He rubbed his hands with great cheerfulness and said to the young man, "And a devilish good place to take it from!"—Lord Rosebery in an Edinburgh Address.

BUY AT HOME AND BEAT THE BOGUS SALESMAN.

Too Much Risk Involved in Patronizing the Peddler.

Scarcely a month passes that it does not bring a report from some rural community of fraudulent sales or fraudulent projects of some sort being palmed off on the farmers by smooth talking salesmen. The latest comes from Wisconsin and is in the nature of a kick at the long suffering oil companies. More properly speaking, it is an objection to a certain oil company, a carload of whose product was sold among the farmers last summer and which did not live up to its agreement as to the quality of the oil, says the American Agriculturist.

A canvasser drove through the country from house to house, taking advance orders for kerosene, gasoline and a paint oil which he offered as a substitute for linseed oil. The samples he carried with him were apparently first class, and orders were taken with the understanding that the product delivered was to be equally good. The kerosene was sold at 17 cents per gallon. It was furnished in barrels, which were to be taken back by the company when empty and a rebate of $1 given. The barrels were guaranteed not to leak.

When the oil arrived most of the barrels leaked badly, and in some cases the loss was very heavy. The oil itself proved to be of a very unsatisfactory quality and in many cases entirely unfit for use. Among the number of farmers who consider that they were swindled in the deal is one who writes that he is unable to use the kerosene in lamps at all, but has transferred it to a tight receptacle and will keep it to use on Canada thistles and quack grass.

In cases of this kind there is apparently no practical means of redress. Purchasers either deposit their money in advance or pay it immediately upon delivery. It is much safer and usually more satisfactory to deal with some well established, well known local concern. Then in case of dissatisfaction there is always an easy means of adjustment.

The man who never makes mistakes is the man with no initiative or originality. Better a clerk who does things and does some of them wrong than one who never does anything.

HOUSE NUMBER ON CURB.

California City Adopts Unique Method of Displaying Addresses. Painting the street number of houses on the curbing in front and the names of streets on the curbing at the corners is being tried with satisfactory results in Pasadena, Cal., according to the Technical World.

The numbers and letters are stenciled by painters employed by the city. They are in black and about one and one-half inches high.

This is a system which would please the often puzzled stranger in a city or town. It facilitates the finding of the house he so often wastes hours in hunting.

The Public Health.
In cities having an active board of health with a competent corps of inspectors less responsibility rests upon the individual regarding sanitary precautions, but in lesser cities and towns every home owner should be vigilant to keep his or her premises neat and clean.

Garbage thrown about indiscriminately is just as much of a menace to health in a village as in a city. As to neatness, tin cans and ash piles, with a miscellaneous lot of rubbish, are far too common in small centers of population. Even if not dumped in the home ground the slovenly owners throw it upon the nearest vacant lot or in the alley.

This should constitute a crime punishable only by imprisonment, for it is a menace to public health, and may be the indirect cause of many deaths. Cleanliness in person, in character and in surroundings exerts a considerable influence in molding clean characters. The choice lies with you.

Let Your Goods Be Seen.

In trimming your windows try, if possible, to have the articles you have on display no higher than the level of the eye. The upper part of the window, of course, requires decoration to add completeness of detail, but you will get better results if the goods you have on sale are so placed as to command the attention without effort of all who glance into the window.—Trade.

FIRST AID IN FAINTING.

Lower the Head to Let the Blood Back to the Brain.

Fainting is a loss of consciousness due to the diminution of blood supply to the brain. It occurs most frequently in weak, sensitive women, but may occur also to men as well. It usually occurs in crowds or in crowded halls, theaters and churches, where the atmosphere is close and the air foul.

Fainting usually lasts only a few minutes, and the person recovers immediately when taken out into the fresh air, but there are cases in which it lasts much longer, sometimes for an hour or more. The first aid treatment of fainting is usually very simple. Take the person out into the fresh air and lay him flat on the back, with the head lower than the feet.

This can be done by grasping the feet and holding the body so that the head hangs down, or take an ordinary straight back chair, turn it over so that the back forms an angle with the floor and place the person on the back of the chair with the head hanging down. This position with the head hanging down favors the flow of the blood back to the brain.

All tight clothing about the neck and waist should be loosened. Smelling salts or aromatic spirits of ammonia applied to the nostrils and cold water sprinkled on the face, chest and hands help to restore consciousness.—National Magazine.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.

Many Changes in Its Design Since It Was First Issued.

The silver dollar has undergone a great many changes since it was put in circulation in 1794. On the face of the first dollar there was stamped the head of a young woman turned to the right and with hair flowing, as if she was in a gale of wind. But in 1796 congress came to her relief and ordered her hair to be tied up with a bit of ribbon. The fifteen stars which appeared on the first dollar were after this reduced to the original thirteen in recognition of the number of states.

In 1836 the design was again changed, and the dollar bore the figure of a woman dressed in a flowing garment. The designer forgot, however, to put in the thirteen stars, and the coin was soon called in, the new design having the woman surrounded by stars. Her air was defiant and stiff looking, and in 1838 dollars were issued which were more artistic in treatment. The first dollars bearing the motto, "In God We Trust," were coined in April, 1864, and in 1873 the era of the trade dollar began, lasting just five years.

The Liberty dollar made its appearance in 1878. Miss Anna W. Williams a public school teacher of Philadelphia, sat for the portrait.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sure of a Raise.

An enterprising woman who rents several apartments in a new building and sublets them furnished, room by room, has profited at the rate of several hundred dollars a year by woman's propensity for telling everything she knows. To each applicant for a room she named an exorbitant price to start with.

"Now, understand, this is a concession to you alone and must be regarded as strictly confidential. If you tell a soul in the house that I have made a reduction in your favor I shall have to charge the original price."

Within two weeks rents had gone up. "Mrs. Smith tells me," said the astute landlady to each gossiping tenant, "that you told her you pay only $8 for your room instead of $7." And as no one was in a position to plead not guilty the additional rental was exacted.—New York Times.

The Retort Courtesan.

James Russell Lowell was once a guest at a banquet in London where he was expected to reply to a toast. The speaker who preceded Mr. Lowell said many contemptuous things about the people of the United States, avowing and repeating again and again that they were all braggarts. As American minister at the court of St. James Lowell could hardly overlook this speech, so as he rose he said smilingly: "I heartily agree with the gentleman who has just spoken. Americans do brag a great deal, and I don't know where they got the habit, do you?"

Big Mouthfuls.

"Yes," whispered the man who knows everybody, "the big chap over there at the third table is a great gormand. He's a mountain in the financial world, you know."

"H'm!" commented the quiet observer. "Instead of a mountain he looks to me like a great gorge."—Chicago News.
