PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly intrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

"Do you think it was intended?" she sked when he had finished his story.

"I haven't the slightest doubt of it how. More than that, I think the telegram bearing Mr. McVickar's name was a bold forgery. But I am bringing them to time," he went on. exulting over his one small victory. "There is to be an evening up of freight rates, and one more room of the railroad house will be clean. I believe Mr. McVickar has meant to be fair all along, but the overzealous subordinate is always the hardest man to handle.'

"I am glad," she said. And in the sunshine of her approval the young man spent a very happy afternoon.

At breakfast Monday morning Evan Blount again made the senator's party of three a party of four and at table found a puzzling surprise lying in wait

The critical day of days in the campaign had arrived, and it was sup- ager knew the railroad forces were posable on every hypothesis that the ready to meet the issue at the polls. commander of an army would choose At one point, and only one, the deany other day rather than this to be absent from his post. But at 'the deal," he explained. "It has been rathbreakfast table he heard his father an- er awkwardly handled, and if Evan nounce calmly that he was going to Blount should happen to stumble upon drive out to Wartrace, for no better it any time during the day I shouldn't stated reason than a purely routine like to answer for the consequences." purpose of having a talk with his ranch manager about the shipment of a trainload of beef cattle.

While Blount sat in open eyed astonishment the day was planned for there and then. The arrangement made was one that left Patricia free despair. to keep an engagement at the Weatherfords' while the senator drove to Wartrace in the roadster. The little car, which Patricia had been told to tried every way we could to muzzle call her own, was to be left at the garage, and she was to drive out in the afternoon, bringing Evan with her if he cared to come.

It was Mrs. Honoria who made this arrangement, and in the midst of his astonishment Blount acknowledged a warm kindling of gratitude. If the little lady whom he was trying so consistently to dislike had seemed to do her best to keep him and Patricia apart during the early part of the girl's visit she now appeared to be doing what she could to atone. Blount ventured one question and one only, as it was addressed to his father.

"Do you happen to remember that this is the final day before election?" he asked,

"So it is; so it is, son," was the even

"I thought maybe you had forgotten it," said Evan quietly.

"I have in a measure," smiled the boss, "and if you'll take my advice city and think up some scheme that you'll forget it too. The political spellbinder who hasn't said his say and done his do before sunrise this morning needn't expect that he's going to be able to dig the tree up by its roots between now and tomorrow morning." It was not until the younger man was leaving the table, excusing himself on the plea of business, that the senator's wife clinched the arrangement for the afternoon. "You'll come out with Patricia, won't you?" she said, putting it fairly up to him to consent or refuse.

"Of course," he stammered. "I shall be delighted." "You don't say it quite as if you meant it," laughed the one who was to drive him out to Wartrace, "but I'll be charitable and give you the benefit of the doubt. Where can I pick you up, say, between 1 and 2 o'clock? Mrs. Weatherford's luncheon is to be really a French dejeuner, and I shall be able to get away early." "If it wouldn't be too much trouble for you to stop by for me at the Temple court," Blount began, and when she nodded her acquiescence he went away, still wondering at his father's calm indifference on the very bour striking eve of the great battle.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE ROORBACK.

was on this same Monday morning, day of preparations for politcall on the long distance line, hastily out guarding the telegraph wires up editorial rooms of the Daily Capital.

the Railway club garage. Kittredge's car was in its place over one of the pits, and the chauffeur was polishing

"Get her in commission in about three shakes of a dead lamb's tail. Haberstro," said the traffic manager briefly. "I've got to go somewhere in a hurry. Do you want an order from your boss?"

The chauffeur shook his head. "No: I guess it's all right, if you say so, Mr. Gantry," he replied. And a little later he had taken on his supply of gasoline and the motor was whirring merrlly under the hood. "Where to?" he asked when Gantry climbed to the mechanician's seat beside him. "Out of town to the north by the quietest streets you can find. Then take the Quaretaro county road. We are due at Cliffcrest inn just about fifteen minutes sooner than we can get there."

No more than a quarter of an hour was consumed before the car had wound its way to the summit of the mesa and was wheeling to a halt before the entrance of a small summer resort hotel perched among the pines at the edge of the canyon cliff. There were no guests on the hotel verandas, and Gantry knew that the inn's season had closed two weeks earlier. Yet he sprang from the car and went in as if he expected to find the place open and occupied.

It was open, and in the cozy guests' writing room at one of the tables drawn up before a cheerful wood fire sat the vice president of the Transcontinental seemingly in solitary state. But in the room beyond a battery of telegraph instruments clicked busily. and a close observer would have remarked that the small table before the fire was fitted with a row of electric call buttons.

Cliffcrest inn, deserted of guests, had been transformed into the hidden headquarters in the field of the commander in chief.

"Well!" said the great man, looking up quickly when Gantry entered. "You took your time about getting here. Whose car is that?"

"It is Kittredge's," said the traffic

"Better tell him to get one that will make time," was the impatient comment. Then: "Sit down and bring the situation up to date, and talk fast. Time is precious today."

Gantry drew up a chair and gave a hasty resume of the political situation. Everything had been done that could be done, and so far as the traffic manfenses were weak. "It's that Gryson "You ought to have made sure by getting him safely out of the way," was the rasping comment of the great man. "You are just common bunglers -you and Kittredge-both of you." Gantry's gesture was of humorous

"There's a limit, Mr. McVickar. We couldn't very well garrote him and carry him off to a dungeon. We have him. So far as I know, he hasn't been doing anything incendiary since you were here last week, but I had to put one across on him about the equalizing of the freight rates."

"What did you do?" snapped the vice

"I mailed him what purported to be a carbon copy of the legal notice of a reduction. He doesn't know yet that he has the only copy-that the notice hasn't been posted in our stations, as the law directs. I'm hoping that he won't find it out until after tomorrow. when it won't make any especial dif-

Mr. McVickar frowned again,

"Your expedients have all been pretty crude, Gantry. You seem to persistently forget that you are dealing with a mighty sharp, shrewd young lawyer; that the chances are ten to one that young Blount discovered your plous fraud at once. Go back to the will keep him busy today, too busy to smell out the facts in the Gryson back to the fire. "I'm all in, Mr. McVickar, and that's the humiliating fact. There isn't another idea left in me," he confessed despairingly. "Can't you help us out a little, Mr. McVickar?"

Being thus put face to face with the inventive test, the vice president did not hesitate a moment.

"Of course," he grated, "if I have to do your thinking for you. Go back and get into communication with Gryson. Tell him the time has come to play the same game on young Blount that he played four years ago on Hetheredge, the speaker of the house. He'll understand."

But now Gantry was shaking his head dubiously. "I'll do what you say and do it quickly. But candidly, Mr. McVickar, I'm afraid of Gryson. If Blount should happen to go at him just right there might be consequences of another sort. Gryson is pretty sore as it is." "Never mind about the consequences. Go and do as I tell you to. Then go around to the telephone exchange and tell the manager that I want a special operator-s man if he's got one-put on this long distance wire; that you want the connection broken between the capital and David Blount's country house and that my wire is to be ical battles, that Mr. Richard kept open to you and to Kittredge all

It was only a little after 9 o'clock when this conference was held in the guest deserted mountain resort house at the head of Shonoho canyon. At 11 o'clock Blount, who was dictating to three stenographers in succession in his offices in the Temple court, had

"It's that fellow Gryson," said Collins, who had gone to answer the anteroom bell. "He says he's got to see you whether you want to see him or

"Send him in," said Blount briefly And a moment later the ex-bad man of the mining camps entered and carefully closed the door behind him.

"Well, what is it?" queried Blount snappingly when Gryson drew up a chair and sat down.

"I'll tell you first what it ain't," said the ward boss sullenly. "I ain't here to beg for no rakeoff. I've been given the double cross, and I'm sore."

Blount's smile was contemptuous. You doubtless got what was coming to you," he said coolly. "But go on and tell it out and don't waste time. This is another of my busy days."

"I want to get hold of a newspaper man," said Gryson; "that's what I want. If they're going to throw me down I'll squeal. It ain't too late yet. Money talks with me every time. Your boss, McVickar, thought he had me coopered up in a barrel, but the other side saw his bid and raised it."

"What other side?" queried Blount. "There ain't but one other side in this state when your daddy gets into the ring and pulls off his coat," said the bribe taker, with an evil leer. "You ain't been fighting round here a couple of months without finding that out?"

"Go on," was the terse command. "As I was a-saying, money talks, and right now, when everything is ready to pull off, Sheehan turns up and says the barrel's run dry. There ain't nothing left in it for me. By cripes, I'll show besitant pause. "It's in the registration lists in four wards of this town. They've been cooked up two to one. I've got the lists of the crooked names right here in my pocket. Sheehan knows, 'the committee of six' knows, and the senator knows. But I'm the man that can swing in them extra votes, and, more than that, by grabs, I'm the only man! When I told Sheehan that a little while ago he invited me to go to h-l. I'll show him."

There is much discussion of late about keeping the boy on the farm, but we have seen nothing more forcible or that gets down to bed rock more than the following: "Make the farm more remunerative and it will become attractive quickly enough." The boy on the farm is not pining half so much for the attractions of the town as he is supposed to be. Show him a sure way to transfer dollars from the soil to his bank account and the farm will look plenty good enough to him. David Rankin, the "corn king" of Missouri, who died recently, worth several millions, was driven back to the farm because they would not have him in a store, and he lived to bless the day he refused a job behind the counter, for he soon found out that there was money in growing corn and feeding it to stock.-Fairport Mail.

Infantile Paralysis. Infantile paralysis is a communicable disease. It was long considered so, but in the last year or two it has been definitely determined as an infectious disease, and epidemics of it have occurred. It is more prevalent in hot weather. The posson, it has been found, enters through the nose and the throat. Generally it attacks the spinal cord, that part of it which is concerned in the movement of the muscles, which is the reason it causes paralysis. The attack comes on between two and thirty days after exposure, the usual time being seven to ten days. It begins suddenly with fever. There may be vomiting and even convulsions. The child is restless and sleepless, and the joints and muscles in some cases are tender and paintui. Sometimes as early as twelve hours after the attack-but generally a longer period ensues, up to two or three days-paralysis of one or both legs occurs. The paralysis is much more extensive in severe cases. It is not yet known how long a time it takes for the infection to pass away. The whole subject is one over which the physicians are studying and trying by experiments and laboratory work to come to more definite conclusions. Up to a few years ago the cases were rare. The most important fact which has been determined is that the poison enters prices are within the reach of the body through the nose and throat. Since it has been learned that the virus of infantile paralysis lurks in the throat, either to pass into the system or to infect another, it becomes essential that the nose and throat should be disinfected and cleansed to prevent the spread of the disease. The best way is to use a spray of saturated solution of boric acid two or three times a day, or if there is much infantile paralysis about, get a doctor to prescribe something stronger .- The Ladies' World for June.

HOW TO GROW ANNUALS.

Success With Tender Plants Is Possible Only Under Glass.

The gardener who wishes to attain success in growing tender annuals must sow his seed under glass. It is not safe to sow in the open ground until all danger of frost is over, which in the north means some time in May. according to the latitude. Seed sown as late as that is not given a chance to give a full season's bloom.

In sowing under glass be careful not to begin too early and as a result have weak or weakened plants for planting outdoors. Get the seed in the ground not more than a month before it will be safe to plant outside -that is, in the north, sow not later than April 10.

Cosmos and Brazilian morning glory are worth the attention of gardeners who desire a tall growing plant and a climbing one. For cosmos March is not too early to sow the seed.

If you sow nasturtium seed under glass you can get blooms a month earlier than if you wait to sow outdoors. Salpiglessis, one of the most fascinating of all annuals and one of the most neglected, should be sown under glass, in a hotbed preferably. Six separate colors-crimson, primrose. purple, scarlet, rose and white-can be obtained, and such a collection will be one of the chief joys of a garden.

How to Grow Tulips In Pots. Some varieties of tulips are well adapted to the flowerpot. The clusiana grows to a height of eighteen or twenty inches, with a slender stem. The leaves are long and narrow, and the flower sometimes measures two inches across. This variety is of the funnel form with bright lemon yellow flowers, with light shading of green or white, sometimes streaked with pink. It is very fragrant and when properly cultivated is one of the most beautiful of all the tulip family.

The tulip is easy to cultivate, as it thrives well in either heavy or light soil. It does better, however, in rather light soil, well drained and fairly rich. Those grown in heavy black soil produce smaller flowers, and the colors are not nearly so bright

CHEAP PERFUMES.

Made From Musk Supplied by Many

Varieties of Civet Cats. Most women who indulge freely in the use of cheap perfumes do not know of what they are compounded. The principal ingredient of low priced perfumes is musk, animal musk, which is obtained from several creatures.

The muskrat is probably the best known of these, and a few decades ago the wives and sweethearts of men who set traps around ditches and ponds in the countryside carried proudly the bags of musk obtained from this source. As an article of commerce the musk supplied by several varieties of civet cats is probably the best known today. The odor is strong and sweet. The strength is the particularly noticeable feature and is the reason why it is the foundation of the perfumes. In the small mammal house at the zoological gardens are two sizes of civets, and any one with an investigating turn of mind may stand near the cages and catch the musky odor.

The musk is used in the cheap perfumes, as only a little is needed to give a most lasting odor to an ounce of perfumery, but the musk itself is not cheap, and it is one of the duties of the attendant of the mammal house to collect it. It is then sold through regular channels and is one of the sources of revenue to the zoo, although a small one.-Philadelphia Record.

SHIPS THAT KICK.

Seamen Don't Like Them and Dodge Them if They Can.

When sailors join a ship almost the first question asked by each one as he takes the wheel for the first time is, "Does she kick?"

Kicking, as it is called by the seamen, is due to the action of the water under the lee of the rudder when the vessel's stern, which has for a moment been borne skyward on the crest of a wave, falls back again into the trough with such terrific force as to make her tremble fore and aft and perhaps wrench the wheel from the grasp of the steersman.

Sometimes it happens that he is taken unawares and, being unable to let go in time, is flung right over the wheel to the other side of the deck, often receiving serious injuries. Sometimes a man will be pitched right overboard into the sea, and a recent case is known of a man who received a blow under the chin from one of the spokes and died a few days later from the effects.

In some of the worst types of kickers kicking straps are used regularly ors refuse to go to sea in ships which are known to be confirmed kickers,-London Tit-Bits.

Dumas' Riot of Extravagance. Dumas' Monte Cristo villa was a lordly pleasure house, tropical in its taste and its extravagance a weird confusion of Bohemia and the Arabian Nights. The spoils of the bazaars of Algeria and Tunis lay about the house, commingled with costly treasures of home manufacture, in a supreme disorder, and there was every embellisbment which the caprices of a luxuriant and undisciplined imagination could suggest-gothic turrets, pavilions, minarets, an artificial lake with an island and a cascade, a picture gallery, a studio, an aviary, a monkey house, a stable, a bijou theater, a klosk with a blue ceiling studded with stars to serve as a workroom for the master, who had the titles of his principal plays and stories graven conspicuously on the stones of his dwelling .-"Passions of the French Romantics."

Old Time Smoke Nuisance.

We are accustomed to think of the smoke nuisance as a modern phenomenon, but Professor V. B. Lewes shows that it raised so much indignation in England 600 years ago that a decree was made forbidding the use of bitu minous coal for fuel. Such fuel was then a new thing.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth another attempt to use bituminous coal was defeated by public opposition to the smoke. The third effort attained complete success in the nineteenth cen tury, and now the quantity of smoke belched into the air is so great that Professor Lewes likens it to a cumulative poison which aids in shortening life, killing vegetation and begriming and destroying buildings.-Youth's Companion.

By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

[This poem was written in 1882, a ver short time before the poet's death, which occurred on March 15 of that year.] LEEP, comrades, sleep and On this field of the ground ed arms, Where foes no more molest Nor sentry's shot alarms, > Ye have slept on the ground before And started to your feet At the cannon's sudden roar Or the drum's redoubling beat.

But in this camp of death No sound your slumber breaks. Here is no fevered breath, No wound that bleeds and aches

All is repose and peace. Untrampled lies the sod. The shouts of battle cease. It is the truce of God. Rest, comrades, rest and sleep.

The thoughts of men shall be As sentinels to keep Your rest from danger free Your silent tents of green We deck with fragrant flowers.

Yours has the suffering been:

The memory shall be ours.

A Farmer's Wise Remark.

In the department called "About People," in the June Woman's Home Com panion, is the following paragraph about Angus Campbell, the man who invented the machine that picks cotton: A farmer, when he saw the machine the first time, said very wisely: "It will put the children to school." "Twenty-five years ago a Chicago pattern-maker went on a pleasure-trip to Texas, where he saw hundreds of men, women and children laboriously picking cotton and dragging their slowly-filling sacks behind them as they toiled through the hot fields. Like others before him, he wondered if a machine might not be devised to do this work better, and to accomplish in the South a marvel paralleling that which the great grain-harvesters have worked in the wheat-fields of the West. Others had tried and failed, as he also might have failed had he not been of the persevering Scotch strain guaranteed by his name, Angus Campbell. Comparatively, the grain-harvester presented a simple problem, for grain ripens uniformly and the entire field may be cut at once. But the cotton-bolls mature at different times. A cotton-harvester, therefore, must be a machine that thinks--a machine with sufficient discrimination to pick out all the lint from the ripened bolls, yet to pass over those not yet matured, leaving the delicate plant unharmed. Mr. Campbell wrestled with the problem nearly twenty years and suffered many discouragements and failures before he at last devised a wonderful contrivance with countless delicate fingers that will really pick cotton. It is hard to realize all that this invention may mean to the cottongrowing states. That it will cut down the cost of harvesting cotton two thirds is a moderate estimate. And, as a farmer's wife thankfully observed, 'You don't have to cook for it.' Indirectly it will enormously increase the natural production of the chief export staple and will save the Southern farmers tens of millions of dollars each year. Moreover, where farmers have actually been compelled to limit their cotton acreage Lecause of the difficulty of securing labor in the picking season, this everready servant will enable them to increase their crops without fear, perhaps doubling the value of their lands. Bet- of Flour. ter still; it will release from the drudgery of the fields thousands who should be otherwise employed."

How to Wash Lace. Rare old lace should be steeped in milk for twenty or twenty-five minutes to give it the correct yellowish tint. And Yet the Man Who Owned It Didn't Feel Flattered.

They had been speaking of namesakes, and one of the group had mentioned with pride that not only were four paphews and two grandsons his namesakes, but that a business block lately built in his parive town had taken its name from him.

"And I like it," he said heartily. "I consider it an honor "You know how I feel," he added, turning to one of his friends. "I badn't been in your little town more than an hour before I saw your name at the turn of a road. 'Howard's Corner.' You must admit it's gratifying."

"May be to you," said the other man dryly, "but, as it happens, the reason that's called 'Howard's Corner' is because, when I was about twenty and knew more than I ever have since, I took the girl that I was courting out in a new top buggy with a livery stable horse and tried to show off how sharp a turn I could make.

PREVENTED TOOTHACHE.

The Old Romans Did It by Devouring Two Rats a Month.

If it be true that ancient remedies are always the best it may be of interest to those afflicted with dental troubles to know how the ancient Romans dealt with such ills. The Qui rities recognized two types of treatment, the magical and the medical. The following are some of the prescriptions advised by the magicians;

Take the head of a dog that has died of rables, mix the ash with oil of cyprus and inject the product into the ear of the affected side.

A water snake's vertebra will serve to scarify the gum provided that it be obtained from a white skinned snake, or for the same purpose may be used peated in the evening. Mrs. Soper and girls twenty years old and over have a lizard's frontal bone obtained when chicken bone will do, provided that it be dried in a hole in a wall and thrown away immediately after used.

It is good treatment to inject into an aching ear oil of lemon in which have been macerated mallow bugs, even should this last give rise to itching.

A worm fed on a particular herb or a cabbage caterpillar can conveniently be placed in a hollow tooth, but it is equally simple to chew an adder's

Many Generations.

The case of six generations living is given by Tennyson thus: "Daughter, arise; thy daughter to ber daughter take whose daughter's daughter crieth." George Hakewell in the seventeenth century had imagined one descent more, for in his "Apologie" he writes that the mother said to her daughter, "Daughter, bid thy daughter tell ber daughter that ber daughter's daughter bath a daughter," a credible injunction in the case of a centenarian only.

The class picnic of the two organized Bible classes—the Philathea and the Baraca-at the home of Gladys Decker, Decoration Day, was a great success. Twenty-five members with boxes and baskets after arriving at the Decker farm started for the cool and refreshing shade of the woods on the hill and how the girls did hustle around and empty the backets on the table cloth, while the boys stood anxiously around holding their sides waiting for the word ready-and my, how they did eat ! After dinner then came games in the shade of the woods and then in Mr. Decker's yard and the pastor, well all he could do was to smack his lips and look on. Some one discovered about supper time that not even one basket full was left after the dinner and so the good mother of the house baked a fine chocolate cake and made some sandwiches out of her newly baked bread and it was hardly in sight before it was all gone Before they left they gave a rousing vote of thanks and all agreed it was one of the best picnics they had been to in a long time.

CANAL ZONE CHURCHES.

Uncle Sam Provides Buildings, and Attendance is Large.

Although it is the common thought that most of the men now working on the great Panama canal have left their religion behind them in the States. those who live in the canal zone know there are many who observe the laws of Moses and lead the same pure lives they did at home.

When the canal was begun and made his famous speech, saving, "We must provide for the families of the men who are to build this canal or we shall have a hell on earth." he was even wiser than he knew.

Finally quarters were built, many men brought or sent for their wives and children, and it has paid. Family life and the presence of good, pure women in their homes have been powerful influences for good.

These families, coming from every Uncle Sam met the need and at every town along the line of the canal built schoolhouses and churches. Teachers were obtained from the States. Chaplains were employed to attend to the religious needs of Americans.

Eight chapels were built, and every one has at least one service each Sabbath. These are two story buildings, with lodge rooms on the second floor. The room on the ground floor, known as the church, is capable of seating 250 people. A pulpit at one end of the room, piano and some folding chairs constitute the furnishings.

All authority rests in a body elected by the people attending the church. The executive council of the church in Cristobal is composed of men of every denomination. There are one Methodist, two Baptist, two Presbyterian, one Congregationalist and one Lutheran.

The membership is made up of "those who love the Lord." Membership in the home church is not changed, for no one in the "zone" expects to stay long. The service is broad, the hymns are those well known in all denominational circles, and altogether we afford a good illustration of the "Dated Dec. 10, 1910.

The audiences are interesting. There are many young couples here just of Cayuga County, notice is hereby given that starting on their married lives, coming all persons having claims against the estate of to the isthmus with the "golden mist" still about them. In the back rows are many keen, clear cut faces among the bachelors. There are a few, a very few, young ladies. Nearly all of them are nurses from nearby hospitals, nographers.

In Cristobal church a social is held once a month with a little entertainment or refreshments. These are managed by the ladies interested and are a means of welcoming the never ending newcomers. As there are no financial demands upon the church (our fuel bill doesn't perplex us in the tropics), these socials are never given for the purpose of raising money. The temporary feeling that prevails on the isthmus is not conducive to an established church, as the average length of time men stay is but two years .-Christian Intelligencer.

"EASTER" FROM "EAST."

Celebration of the Festival Dates Back to Ancients.

The foremost of the great Christian festivals is Easter, and when we trace the word-itself etymologically we find it has embodied the idea of a universal celebration that dates from the very beginning of human thought, for we can trace no great thought behind

We get "Easter" from the Anglo-Saxon goddess Eastre, whose festival was in April, at the opening of the spring, and who was worshiped by the Teutonic people. The Germans call her Ostara, and her worship under any name has been and is an expression of the universal outburst of rejoicing over the awakening of nature after the long sleep of winter.

But why is the rejoicing done under the name of Ostara or Easter? Both names are the outgrowth of a little Aryan root that was old long before they were used to signify anything. This root also gives us "east," because it signifies what the east is. as the place of the coming of the light of the new day. This little root is "us," meaning to burn and to shine with reference to the increasing light and warmth of spring.

It was quite natural for it to grow into the names of gods and festivals of spring, when the brightness of the coming season of crops is first told by the increased shining in the east.

Our brothers of the Sanskrit have the root in their "ush," signifying to Practically a Daily at the Price of a burn, and it is in the other languages of the Aryan tongue and notably so in the Latin, whence many of the words from it come to us, all having the mark of brightness on them. In the Latin we have "urere," to burn; "aurora," the east, and "aurum," gold, because the gold shines like the cloud of the coming spring morn.

Cardinal Logue's Joke. Cardinal Logue during his visit to this country was asked how many sermons a preacher could prepare in a Smiling, Cardinal Logue answered,

"If the preacher is a man of extraor- strong features, serial stories, humor, dinary ability be can prepare one sermon; if a man of average ability, two; if a blockhead, ten or twelve."

Smith's Get Mixed.

The following account of a mix-up, caused by two men having the same name, was recently published in the and Shirt Waists. New York Journal:

"There was a comedy of errors on board the steamship Saxonia before she sailed for Mediterranean ports, according to persons at the pier to-day before W. George Smith, of Philadelphia and dresses and waists. White W. George Smith of Atwater, Cayuga county, N. Y., finally discovered that embroidered one-piece dresses they were really two separate and distinct persons.

"Both men secured their reservations in their home towns and by a coincidence both were assigned to room No. 61. "W. George Smith of Philadelphia, was the-first to reach the room. He found some mail there addressed to W. George Smith, opened one of the letters and dropped it with a groan. It was signed 'Yours lovingly, --- and W G. S. of Philadelphia, didn't know any

"Quickly he rang for the steward and ordered the letters and trunk taken out of the room. When this had been done W. George Smith of Atwater, came along. Explanations followed and W George Smith of Philadelphia apologized As he hadn't read anything but the last part of it, he was forgiven."

Not all city folks are as ignorant of the farmer's surroundings as the farmers sometimes suppose. This was evidenced by an incident in the stay of a young New Yorker on New England farm.

ROAD CULVERTS Scrap Book

The Remedy For Worst Places In Highways.

THIS PROBLEM IS NEGLECTED.

Plain or Re-enforced Concrete Is No Doubt the Best Material to Use For These Small Structures Either In the Flat Top or Arch Form, Says Kansas Highway Engineer.

Much as we need improved roads we seed permanent culverts more, says W. S. Gearhart, state highway engineer of Kansas. It is more important that all the bridges and culverts be in good condition than that all the roads be kept in first class repair, for if the road is to be used at all the culverts and bridges must be kept up. It is not often that a road gets so bad that It is impassable, but this is a common occurrence with culverts and bridges. The old ford is a thing of the past, and almost without exception the worst places in the road are at the culvert sites. They generally are from two inches to ten inches above or below the road surface and often have a mudhole on either side and are in such wretched condition we would gladly drive around them if we could and often have to do so. And many of the stone and concrete culverts are only covered sufficiently to keep them rels half buried in the road, no attempt Different state highway commissions have defined culverts as structures having spans of less than four feet to ten feet. In this discussion I assume that all structures under ten feet are culverts.

At the present time practically all culverts in Kansas are too small to carry the water that comes to them. The matter of the required area is one that has been given very little atten-

Good stone laid in cement mortar is very satisfactory either in arch or flat top slab construction for culverts. If slabs are used a four foot clear span would require that the flagstones should be twelve inches thick. Six feet is close to the safe maximum span for the flat top stone culvert. Many times stone abutments are built and a re-enforced concrete slab placed on top,

In the arch construction the base of the foundations should be sufficiently wide to resist overturning and be staple under any system of loads without any consideration for the earth fills. Plain or re-enforced concrete is no doubt the best material to use for these small structures either in the flat top or arch form. The arch is sometimes objectionable in a flat country because it is found necessary in order to get a sufficient amount of waterway to make a raise in the road, which in many cases is very disagreeable. In the case of the flat top bridge the required waterway can be obtained by lengthening the span without making a hump in the road, which hump would in most cases result in a mudhole on either side of it. Where the foundations are not first class and there is danger of the structure settling the flat top is also to be preferred, as the forces are all vertical and the top is self supporting. If the abutments do settle the top can be readily jacked up into place and adjusted, while in the arch form there is very little that can be done to repair injury by settlement.

> Properly Resented. An extremely timid widow living afraid that agents and tramps would discover she had no protector, so she wasted no words upon them. Answering a ring at the front door, the man standing before her asked: "Is the gentleman of the house s home?" "No, he is not," said the widow shortly.

"Do you think," the stranger mildly persisted, "he would be interested in a chemical fire extinguisher warranted to put out the fiercest fire if taken in the beginning?"

"No," replied the widow, deeply shocked; "I'm sure he wouldn't be, for he's in no need of one."

The agent is still wondering why she lammed the door so hard in his face.

The Scottish View.

How an English church service struck the Scottish Presbyterian of the fifties of the last century is told in Mrs. L. B. Walford's reminiscences " 'There was the twa o' them,' cried one of her Scottish handmaidens in mingled terror and indignation, relapsing into the broadest vernacular, 'thae twa men, dressed oot like folk at a fair, bowin' to each ither an' answerin' each ither across the table and the rest cryin' ower an' ower, "The Lord ha' maircy upon us!" Value of Lemonade.

The Femi y Doctor says: Lemonade from the juice of fresh fruit is one of the best and safest drinks for any one, whether in health or not. It is useful for most stomach diseases, being one of the best antiscorbutics we know. If the gums are rubbed daily with a little lemon juice it keeps them in good condition, and used for the hands once a day in washing it makes the skin soft and smooth and removes dirty stains. It is good for a cold if taken in hot water on going to bed, and in intermittent fevers it has been found useful when mixed with hot black coffee without sugar.

Reunion of 75th Regiment.

The annual reunion of the survi vors of the 75th N. Y Vols. was held in Genua on Saturday last. The pecial train from Auburn brought over forty of the veterans and mem bers of their families, and others came by auto. Headquarters were at Hotel Carson, where a fine dinner was served to 125 people. The national colors floated from all the business places on Main street and from many residences. The Presbyterian church, where the exercises of the day were held, was very elab orately decorated with flags, in honor of the veterans. A short assembly was held before dinner, during which officers were elected as follows: President, George G. Annable of Syracuse; vice president, William M. Hosmer of Auburn; secretary and treasurer, Charles H. Lakey of Auburn; historian, Frederic Cossum of Auburn; chaplain, Thomas G. Hudson of Skaneateles. In this connection it may be said that Comrade Lakey has served as secretary of the organiza tion for 28 years and during 17 years has acted as both secretary and treas-

There were 41 veterane of the 75th pregent, including five from Onondaga county, which county, furnished 35 of the original battalion. Nine members were reported to have died during the past year. The three surviving officers who went out with the regiment were present: General C. D McDougall of Auburn, who was captain of Company A Major John E.Savery of Cato then a captain, and Chaplain Thomas B Hudson of Skan-

A fine group picture of the veterans was taken on the lawn opposite the hotel.

The address of welcome was given by Rev. T. J. Searls of Genoa who said:

Mr. President, and I wish I might say fellow comrades, but only those who served with you are entitled to that

This is an unexpected pleasure to bid you welcome to our beautiful village of of the battle of Winchester. Genoa. And may the tongue be palsied that refuses to voice a hearty welcome m abers of the 75th who were presand the hand be paralyzed that will not eut Saturday. extend a cordial greeting.

This is at present a peaceful nationthe farmer is getting the soil ready for the growing and harvesting; the business and professional men are busy with their work and the mechanic Is looking forward to a prosperous future. But fifty years ago a great war-cry rang through the land, and the farmer left his plough. the business man his counting room, the professional man his desk and the mechanic his tools and started for the drill ground and the field of battle.

The old 75th was one of the first regiments to answer to the call. And of the 199 regiments that passed in review between the national capitol and the White House May 23, 1865, of the 1,034,064 mustered out of the service. only a few scattered over the United States remain to tell the story of what the war really cost.

Do you remember Winchester? speak of this one battle for I believe it was one of the greatest and most important battles of the war. How you struggled against overwhelming numbers until the odds seemed so great against you that you faced to the rear and fled from the enemy. But what was that dust cloud in the distance? Nearer it came, when suddenly out of that cloud a black charger appeared, and on cellus. that charger gallant Phil Sheridan. "Right about face, boys, we'll lick them out of their boots," and as on he pushed his way, every man that could hold a musket sprang after his leader and the victory was won.

But what was all this for? Not se much for your benefit do you bear the scars received in battle, but for the chil dren of to-day and that they might have a united country, free and independent, white wash brushes, a quantity of But only the liberty to do right, never carpenter tools, guns and fixtures, to do wrong; not to defy the law, but to chunk stove and many articles not obey it. C'And I would like to say to all our school children whenever you look into Ferry, Wednesday, June 7, commence these scarred veterans' faces, remember ing at 12:30 the following property: they went into the heat and shock of battle that those coming after them would be loyal and true, and the best way we can show our love and respect for the old soldier is to see that the laws they struggled to maintain are respected and enforced.

Again I bid you welcome. May your last days be your best days, and when it ticles not mentioned. is your turn to answer to the final call, may you have an abundant entrance to the land where they have no war; where the sign of the blessed Immanuel, the Prince of Peace, the Great Captain of our Salvation, is universal and eternal.

Annable of Syracuse gave some reminiscences of Port Hudson, Satur day was the anniversary of the first as-ault on Port Hudson.

Maj Savery of Cato was next called upon and spoke of the 75th as one of the best regiments that ever went out to service. They were fortunate in selecting their officers (he was one of hem) as they were well drilled men Major Savery considered it a high honor that the badges worn that day by the members of the association bore his likeness, and thanked the association for that honor He was proud of the members of the 75th. A good soldier always makes a good citizen, he said [Applause]

Chaplain Hudson of Skaneateles had a few items of interest regarding Pensacola which he read to the audience and also had some pictures on exhibition of views of the city and harbor. He called the attention of the veterans to the change in the city since they were there during the war

General McDougall was called upon for remarks and was greeted with applause. He paid a glowing tribute to the men of the 75th and said he always enjoyed meeting with them on occasions of this kind.

Frederic Cossum of Auburn voiced the thanks of the association to the people of Genoa for their bountiful and hospitable entertainment.

Brief remarks were made by Comrades Caldwell and Root, and Maj Horton being called upon responded in a happy manner.

C. H Lakey spoke in high praise of the officers who commanded the 75th, and he thought they were fortunate in having men who proved equal to the officers who were in command. [Applause] He paid a tribute to Geo. C. Robinson of Genoa, who was a member of the regiment, and referred to the stability and manhood of the 75th.

Mr. Annable gave a fine description of the battle of Cedar Creek in rhyme, which received due applause.

The next meeting will be in Auburn, Sept. 19, 1912, the auniv reary

Of course nobody ever comes to our home and goes away to talk about the silverware or the furniture, but let us suppose that the party is at Mrs. Brown's of Uptyup street. Every lady upon leaving assures her hostess she had "just the loveliest time," and before the party passes the front gate Mrs. Felix Andersville renches over and whispers into the coral ear of Mrs.

Ambition is a wonderful thing. It is the whip that has stung thousands to great achievements; but, too, it awakens in us much of the ignoble and the thoughtless, is the mother of many of our jealousies and our inhumanities. The desire to get on and up is the reason we speak slightingly of Mrs. Brown's bananas. Not Doing The Best.

A. J Chandler, who was so seriously injured in the Lehigh Valley disaster near Horscheads on May 8, is not recovering as rapidly as might be desired. He complains of pains in his back and a heart difficulty. He is a tended by Dr. Charles A wood and Dr. Skinner. Claim adjusters were in Moravia yesterday endeavoring to effect a settlement with Mr. Chandler but the latter was unwill ing to enter into any agreement until the extent and permanency of his injuries were definitely known. Two men who were injured in the wreck have died .- Moravia Rep.

Cayuga Pomona Grange. A meeting of Cayuga Pomona will be held at Sherwood on Saturday, June 10, 1911. His Choice.

Elizabeth White, who tells women how to dress tastefully, was displaying some pretty gowns shown off by living models and a young husband and his bride were in the audience. Seven of the models gathered on the stage at one time, and the young wife surveyed their gowns critically. "Which one do you like the best?"

she asked. The young husband is still explaining, for his answer was "That little brunet,"-Boston If You Want the Best Flour for Pastry Buy the Silver Spray.
