Mrs. Alonzo Chase is suffering with her eyes.

The Lakeside Reading Club met at the home of Mrs. E. L. Dillon Wednesday of last week and enjoyed a pleasant meeting with the usual number present.

A very pleasant surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. Kind Tuesday evening of last week. It being the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding day, their friends came to celebrate the occasion. Their pastor, Rev. Robert Ivey of King Ferry, in the name of their friends, presented them with two nice rocking chairs which are highly prized by the recipients as it will ever remind them of the dear friends they found in Ellsworth. The evening was passed with games, visiting and music and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Lake Ridge.

MARCH 13—The robins are returning.

Ivan Davis is recovering from an attack of tonsillitis.

Mrs. Sherman of Auburn visited her daughter, Mrs. Houghton, last week.

Nathaniel Hoagland of Levanna is helping care for Daniel Nichols.

Pomona Grange.

The meetings of Pomona Grange at Auburn last Friday and Saturday were largely attended by members from different parts of the county.

County Master, James A. Gould, of Sherwood presided. An address was given Friday evening by Attorney Irving Bacon of Auburn on "The Saving of the Fruit Tree." Miss Heffernan of Aurora gave some recitations and Miss Rose of the Home Economics department of Cornell, gave an interesting talk.

On Saturday afternoon the fifth degree was exemplified on a class of twenty two candidates and the reports of delegates who attended the State convention at Troy on February 1 last were presented.

The officers of the Grange Relief Association elected to serve for the ensuing year are: President, William Fitts of Moravia; vice president, James A. Gould of Sherwood; secretary, W. S. Tanner of Sennett; treasurer, Dr. Charles Atwood of Moravia.

The Grange adopted the following resolutions in regard to the question to reciprocity with Canada:

"Resolved, That we, as members of Cayuga Pomona Grange, in regular session at Auburn, N. Y., on this 11th day of March, 1911, express ourselves as decidedly opposed to reciprocity with Canada, feeling that the present bill as it now stands, favors the manufacturing interest and not the agricultural interests of the country. Be it further,

"Resolved, That we as a body here assembled strongly protest against the passage of the McCall bill, as favoring reciprocity with Canada and that our secretary forward a copy of this resolution to our member in Congress.

A. H. WHEELER,
LEWIS HIGGS,
A. H. GOEBBICH "

The next meeting of the Grange will be held at Sherwood in June.

Two New Churches.

Two new Catholic churches are soon to be established in the southern part of the county of Cayuga to accommodate the growing number of communicants of the church. At Genoa the First Universalist church has been acquired and the building will be remodelled after the style of architecture of the churches in King Ferry and Scipio.

A church will also be established at Ludlowville, where there has been none heretofore, and for the present, temporary quarters will be occupied. Formerly the Catholic churchmen of Ludlowville were compelled to go to Ithaca or King Ferry in order to attend service, a distance of 10 miles each way. Catholics of Genoa are accustomed to worship at the King Ferry church.

Father Doran has charge of the King Ferry and Scipio churches, and will have oversight of the two new churches, with the aid of an assistant to be appointed later by Bishop Hickey of the diocese.—Auburn Citizen, March 10

On the Verge.

A woman and her daughter were at sea during rough weather. After a silence of some time the mother asked, "Are you seasick, dear?"

"No, I think not," replied the daughter. "but I'd hate to yawn.—Ladies' Home Journal.

PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly entrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

is still needing a name, and I guess yours would fit it as well as anybody's."

The young man, who was so lately out of the well considering east, gasped.

"Heavens!" he ejaculated. "You're not considering me as a possibility on the state ticket before I've been twenty-four hours on the ground, are you?" "No, not exactly as a possibility, son. We'll call it a sure thing if you want to. It's this way: We're needing a political housecleaning pretty bad this year. We have good enough laws, I guess, but they're winked at any day in the week when somebody comes along with a barrel. The fight is up between the people of this state and the corporations. It was up two years ago, and the people got the laws all right, but forgot to elect men who would carry them out. This time I think the voters have got their knives sharpened. We've been a little slow watching step, but the marching orders have gone out. We're going to clean house this fall."

"Not if the slate hangs behind your door or any man's door, father," was the theorist's grave reminder. "Reform doesn't come in by that road."

"Hold on, son; steady go easy's the word. Reform comes in by any old

"YOU'RE JUST A LITTLE BIT LONG ON THEORY, SON."

trail it can find mostly and thanks its lucky stars if it doesn't run up against any bridges gone or any mudholes too deep to ford. We've got a good man for governor—not any too broad, maybe, but good—church good; he's a minister of the gospel and the president of a church university. No man has ever said he'd take a bribe, but he isn't heavy enough to sit on the lid and hold it down. Alec Gordon, the man who is going to succeed him next fall, is all the things that the present governor isn't, so that is fixed."

"How 'fixed?' was queried the young man, who, though he was not from Missouri, was beginning to fear that he would constantly have to be "shown."

"In the same way that everything has to be fixed, if we're going to get results," was the calm reply. "After the governor the man upon whom the most depends is the attorney general. The present incumbent, Dortchier, is one of the candidates, but we've crossed his name off. The next man we considered was Jim Rankin. In some ways he's fit; he's a hard fighter, and the man doesn't live who can bluff him. But he's poor, and he wants to be rich, and I guess that lets him out."

All this was directly subversive of Evan Blount's ideas of the conduct of affairs political in a free country, but he was willing to hear more. "Well?" he said.

"What we want this time is one of your 'hew to the line' men, son. Reckon you'd like to try it?"

The young man who was less than a week away from the atmosphere of the law school and its theories was fairly aghast. That his father should be coolly proposing him for a high office in the state to which he was as new as the newest emigrant seemed blankly incredible. But when the incredibility began to subside the despotism of a machine which could propose and carry out such unheard of things loomed maleficent.

"I'm afraid we are a good many miles apart, father," he said, unconsciously using one of his father's favorite speech forms, when the proposal had been given time to sink in. "America is supposed to be a free country with a representative government. Do you mean to say that you and a few of your friends can set aside the will of the people so far that you can nominate and elect anybody you please to any office in the state?"

The farseeing eyes were twinkling again. "Oh, I don't know about our being so far apart," was the deprecatory protest. "You're just a little bit long on theory, that's all, son. When it comes down to the real thing somebody has to head the stampede and turn it, and if we don't do it the other bunch will."

"What other bunch?"

"In this case it's the corporations—the timber people, the irrigation companies and, most of all, the railroads."

"Gantry seems to think that the railroads are persecuted, or his railroad at least."

The senator pulled his horse down to a still slower walk. "Where did you see Dick Gantry?" he demanded.

Evan told of the meeting on the veranda of the club, adding the further fact of the college friendship.

"Just happened so, did it," queried the senator, "that getting together last Saturday night?"

"Why, yes; I suppose so, Dick knew I was in Boston, and he said he had meant to look me up."

"I reckon he did," was the quiet comment; "yes, I reckon he did. And he filled you up chock full of Hardwick McVickar's notions, of course. I guess that's about what he was told to do. But we won't fall apart on that, son. Tomorrow we'll go down to the city, and you can look the ground over for yourself. I want you to draw your own conclusions and then come and tell me what you'd like to do. Shall we leave it that way?"

Blount acquiesced, quite without prejudice to a firm conviction that his opinion when formed was going to be based on the merits of the case, upon a fair and judicial summing up of the pros and cons.

He felt that it would be striking at the very root of the tree of good government to allow himself to be the candidate of the machine. But, on the other hand, he saw instantly what a power a fearless public prosecutor could be in a misguided commonwealth where the lack was not of good laws, but of men strong enough and courageous enough to administer them.

He would see. If the good to be accomplished was great enough to overbalance the evil—it was a temptation to compromise, a sharp temptation, and he found himself longing for Patricia, for her clear sighted comment, which, he felt sure, would go straight to the heart of the tangle.

It was that thought of Patricia and his need for her that made him distrust and absentminded at the Wartrace Hall dinner table that evening, and the father, looking on, suspected that Evan's tactfulness was an expression of his prejudice against the woman who had taken his mother's place, and when the son, pleading weariness, retreated early to his room the suspicion was confirmed.

CHAPTER VI. ON THE WING OF OCCASIONS.

FROM the time it was heralded in the mammoth New Year's edition of the Plainsman as "the newest, the finest and the most luxurious hostelry west of the Missouri!" the Inter-Mountain hotel in the Sagebrush capital had been the gathering place of the political clans.

After the solid costliness of Wartrace Hall and the thirty mile spin in a high powered roadster, which was only one of the three high priced motor carriages in the Wartrace garage, Evan Blount was not surprised to find his father registered in permanence for one of the private dining room suits at the Inter-Mountain.

It was very evident that the simple life which had been the rule of the Circle Bar ranch household had become a thing of the past, and, though he charged the new and extravagant order of things to the ambition of his father's wife, he could not cavil at it, since he was himself a sharer in its comforts and luxuries.

For the first few days he was left almost wholly to his own devices. Beyond giving him a good many introductions as the opportunities for them came in the semipublic life of the hotel his father made few demands upon him, and they met only at luncheon and dinner, the first of which was usually served in their suite, while for the latter they went to the cafe. But Gantry was back, and he was always available.

Almost before he realized it Blount had been put in touch with the busy, breezy life of the city and was exchanging nods or handshakings with more people than he had ever known in Cambridge or Boston.

"Pretty good little old town, isn't it?" laughed Gantry one day when he had tolled Blount away from the Inter-Mountain luncheon to share a table with him in the Railway club. "Getting so you feel a little more at home with us?"

"If I'm not it isn't your fault, Dick, or the fault of your friends. Naturally I expected some sort of welcome as David Blount's son, but that doesn't seem to cut any figure at all."

Gantry's smile was inscrutable. "The people with whom it cuts the largest figure will never let you know anything about it. Just the same, it's cutting a good bit of ice. I have met a dozen men, more or less, within the past day or so who have discovered that you are the brainiest thing that ever escaped from the law school."

"Tommyrot!" derided Blount. "It's a fact. And they are prophesying all sorts of a future for you." And again Gantry's smile was broadly sly.

"Like what?" scoffed the listener. "Well, for one thing, they are saying that you are pretty sure to run for attorney general this fall. It's all over town. Everybody's talking about it—talking a lot and guessing a good deal more."

Blount was balancing a spoon on the edge of his charet glass and frowning abstractedly. It was the first little discord in the filial harmony—almost a breach of confidence. Without consulting his wishes, without waiting for his decision, his father had committed him—taken snap judgment upon him—was the way he phrased it.

"Dick, will you believe me if I say that I haven't authorized any such talk as this you've been bearing?" he asked.

This time Gantry's smile was a grin. "The honorable senator took it out of your hands, did he? You'll understand that I don't mean any disrespect when I say it's just like him. If he has slated you, you are booked to run, and if he runs you'll be elected. Those are two of the things that say themselves in the Sagebrush State."

Blount was indignant—"Justly indignant," he called it.

"If that is the case, Dick, it is high time that some one should break the charm. I haven't said that I would accept the nomination, and I am not at all sure that I shall say so. And if I don't say so that settles it."

Gantry was plainly shocked. "You don't mean to say that you've got aerve enough to buck the old m—your father, I mean! Why, great cats, Evan, you don't know what that stands for in the greasewood hills!"

"And I don't care, Dick. Up to this present moment I am a free moral agent. I haven't surrendered any right of decision to any one so far as I am aware."

Gantry's eyes dropped to his plate, and his rejoinder was not altogether free from guile.

"Will you authorize me to contradict the talk as I can?" he asked quickly.

Blount was still warm enough to be peremptory. "Yes; you may contradict it. You may say that it is wholly unauthorized." Then he remembered the claims of friendship. "I'll be frank with you, Gantry. This thing has been mentioned to me once, but nothing was decided, absolutely nothing. I didn't even promise to take it under advisement."

Among those who knew him externally Mr. Richard Gantry had the reputation of owning a loose tongue. But none knew better than the real Richard Gantry when to make the loose tongue wag away from the subject which has reached its nicely adjusted climax.

Almost before he knew it Evan Blount was gossiping with his table companion over a social function two days old. A little later the waiter brought the cigars, and the danger point, if any there were, was safely past.

It was when the two young men were on their way to the club smoking room that some one stopped Gantry to talk business with him.

Blount strolled on by himself and, finding the smoking room, went to lounge in a lacy chair, whose chief attraction was that it stood half hidden in a little alcove lined with bookcases. He craved solitude and a chance to think things over fairly and without heat.

A few minutes later Gantry looked in and, apparently missing the half concealed easy chair and its occupant in the bookcase alcove, went his way.

He was scarcely gone before two men entered, coming down the corridor from the grill room.

Blount saw them, and he made sure that they saw him. But when they had taken chairs on the other side of the room he was suddenly assured that they had not seen him. They were talking quite freely of him and of his father.

"Well, the Honorable Sagebrush has got McVickar dead to rights this time," said the elder of the two, a full faced man, to whom Blount had been introduced on his first day in the capital, but whose name and station he could not recall. "This scheme of putting his son up for attorney general is the foxiest thing the senator has ever put across. You can bet the air was blue in the Transcontinental Chicago offices when the news got there."

"What do you suppose McVickar will do?" asked the other.

"He will do anything the senator wants him to do. Blount is land hungry, and I guess he'll take a few more sections of the railroad mesa land under the Clearwater ditch. That was what he did two years ago, when McVickar wanted the right of way for the branch through Carnadine county."

"Don't you believe he's going to take any little Christmas gift this time," was the rasping reply. "He'll sell the railroad something and take good hard money for it! It's a cinch. The railroad can't afford to have the courts against it, and McVickar will be made to sweat blood. You watch the wheels go round when McVickar comes out here."

Evan Blount found himself turning sick at heart. Could it be his father whom they were thus calmly accusing of graft and trickery and blackmailing methods?

His first impulse was to face the two men, to demand proofs, to do and say what a loyal son should. But the sickening conviction that they were discussing only well assured and well known facts crushed him back into his chair, and after that he was anxious for only one thing—that they might finish their cigars and go away without discovering him.

Fate was kind to him thus far. After a little further talk, in which the accepted point of view of the onlooker was made still more painfully evident, the younger of the two men spoke of an engagement, and they both went out together.

One clear thought, and only one, came to Evan out of the sorrowful confusion. Not for any inducement that could be offered would he now lend himself to the furtherance of his father's plans.

Beyond this he did not go in the miserable hour wrought out in the quiet of the club smoking room.

But when he rose to go another prompting was forcing its way to the front—a prompting to throw himself boldly into the scale against graft and chicanery, to redeem by whatsoever means might offer the good old name that had been so shamefully dragged in the mire.

He did not know just how it was to be done, but he would find a way. That it would be full of thorns he could not doubt, since every step in it would open and widen the breach between him and his father. But, though it should lead him to the bar of justice as that father's accuser, he must walk in it. He said to himself in a fresh access of determination that, though he might have to blush for his father, Patricia should not be made ashamed for her lover.

Upon leaving the club he hesitated long enough on the steps to remember that he was in no fit frame of mind to risk an immediate meeting with his father. To avoid the chance he crossed the street and, passing through the capitol grounds, strolled aimlessly out one of the residence streets until he came to the open country.

It was quite late in the afternoon when he re-entered the city by another street and boarded a trolley car for the downtown center. The long afternoon tramp and the conclusions it had bred made it imperative for him to see Gantry before the traffic manager should have left his office for the day.

His business with the railroad man was purely personal. He meant to ask Gantry a few pointed questions, requiring such answers as friendship may demand. If Gantry's answers were what he feared they would be he would seek his father and come at once to a plain understanding with him.

The trolley car dropped him within a square of the railway station, on the second floor of which Gantry had his office. The shortest way to the Sierra avenue end of the station building was through the great train shed.

Halfway up the block-long platform Blount met the incoming overland steaming in from the east. At the Sierra avenue crossing the yard crew was cutting off a private car. Blount saw the number on the medallion, "008," and noted half absently the rich window hangings and the polished brass platform railings.

A car inspector in greasy overalls and jumper was tapping the wheels with his long handled hammer.

"Whose car is this?" asked Blount.

"This Mister McVickar's, sorr—the ## Fencing! Fencing!

For the next ten days I will sell Michigan wire fencing at cost. This fencing is made of a good quality of carbonized steel wire, having a tensile strength, nearly double that of common annealed steel wire. When using this wire you are getting a much heavier fence as it contains about 2 lbs. 7 oz. more wire to the rod; as it is a solid steel wire much stronger.

This is the time of year, Mr. Farmer, you should call and look over the Oliver Sulkey Plow and Superior Grain Drill. You have heard about them. KILLS A MURDERER.
 A merciless murderer is Appendicitis with many victims, but Dr. King's New Life Pills kills it by prevention. They gently stimulate stomach, liver and bowels, preventing that clogging that invites appendicitis, curing Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Chills, 25c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

Asters Big as Chrysanthemums
 During the past ten years the Aster has become one of the most popular flowers, and is grown in most gardens—certainly in all that are owned by lovers of beautiful flowers. The old-fashioned Aster was small, not over three inches in diameter, but many of the newer varieties will easily produce blooms six inches and even more in diameter.

Among these large flowering varieties are the Branching Asters; these are known almost everywhere, and no flower surpasses them for bouquets and decorative purposes. The Comet Asters include all of those with loose, shaggy blooms, and at the head of the list one ought to place the "Rochester" Aster; the flowers are immense, the color is a beautiful avender pink, and the plants strong and sturdy under almost any conditions.

"Cardinal" is another variety that is unsurpassed for bedding. The name well describes the color.
 You may learn all about Asters by sending for a free copy of Vick's Garden and Floral Guide. Send a postal card to James Vick's Sons, 143 Main Street, Rochester, N. Y.

DYSPEPSIA ON THE DECLINE.
 Seaver's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure Forty-nine Cases Out of Fifty.

Why anyone in Genoa should continue to suffer from indigestion when a box of SEEVER'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS will cure, is certainly a mystery. J. S. Banker has been selling SEEVER'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS for some time, and I know from actual experience right here in my own store just what SEEVER'S FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA TABLETS will do, and if you inquire of J. S. Banker, the druggist, he will tell you he never knew a remedy to prove so decidedly beneficial in the treatment of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation, sleeplessness and other forms of stomach trouble.

It certainly ought to give you confidence when you know that every 50c box of SEEVER'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS contains 20 days treatment, and at the end of that time if you are not decidedly benefited all you need to do is to go back to the dealer and get your money. SEEVER'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS are sold right on their own merits. They cure indigestion simply by toning up the stomach and digestive organs so that the food will assimilate and give strength to the system just as nature intended. SEEVER'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS are such a good nerve tonic, too. Just try a box and see if it don't give you new energy, new ambition and new courage to carry out your plans and daily work. If it doesn't your money back.

Why He Wept.
 A medieval sultan had such an alarmingly grotesque and ugly face that he had all the mirrors removed from his palace so that he might avoid the pain of seeing his own features.

This sultan called on his grand vizier one day and by accident happened to catch sight of his reflection. His hideousness overpowered him, and he broke into violent sobbing. In this outburst the vizier promptly joined. Finally the sultan calmed down, wiped his eyes and got ready to smoke and talk, but not so the vizier. He sobbed on and on. His master, tapping his slipper impatiently on the cushions, waited for him to cease.

At length the sultan got angry and exclaimed: "Why do you weep longer than I, vizier?"

"Alas," the grand vizier replied, "you weep, O commander of the faithful, because you saw your face but for an instant, but I see it all day and every day."

Today.
 Say not tomorrow. Today is your own To parcel as you will For who can tell that when the day has flown He shall be living still?

Oh, blest is he whose daily balance sheet Brings perfect work to view, Whose closing day leaves no task incomplete For other hands to do!

Tomorrow's but a jack-o'-lantern sprite That flees the laggard's clasp. Today's the power whose hand of gracious might Holds fortune in its grasp.

Picked Out the Largest.
 There was a good but grouchy shortstop in one of the minor league clubs a few years ago who had a grudge against an umpire. Before the game the player bragged to his teammates of what he would do to the umpire if the umpire started anything on the field. There was no trouble, it happened, and when the club got back to the clubhouse the shortstop told his teammates how lucky the umpire was that he did not try to renew the trouble between them.

"I was ready for him," said the shortstop, "for I would have laid him out. I have two large pool balls in my pocket I brought out from the hotel, and I'd have soaked him with them. They were the largest I could find, too, for I picked out the fourteen and the fifteen."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Worrying the Golfer.
 After the bungling golf beginner missed the ball seven times the caddy held up his hand.

"There's a man ganging across in front of ye," he said.

"What if he is?" retorted the novice, very red from his exertions. "I didn't tell him to!"

"Ye maun cry 'Fore!' if there's anybody in the way when ye're gaun tae hit the ba'."

"That's all very well," exclaimed the novice angrily, "but how am I to know when I'm going to hit the ball?"

A Hot Bird.
 There was a queer prank played by several members of a Walnut street club on a fellow member who a few days ago made the rather rash announcement that he never so forgot himself as to become intoxicated.

The friends of "the man with the iron will," as he was at once named, determined to prove that he had made a false boast. So he was invited to attend a banquet at a fashionable hotel. Sparkling wine flowed freely, and he very soon "forgot." Then his friends paid for a room in the fourth floor. The "man with the iron will" was put to bed.

His friends smeared his body with vaseline and then, that he might not take cold, rolled him in a mass of feathers obtained by slitting open a pair of pillows. They turned on the steam heat full force and left. In about three hours "the man with the iron will" stirred uneasily. In a moment his eyes opened.

In a bewildered fashion he glanced at his hands and saw that he was covered with feathers. He gasped.

Then a thought struck him, and he muttered, "This must be hades and I am a bird."—Philadelphia Times.

Forgetting Himself.
 An elderly gentleman who knew something of law lived in an Irish village where no lawyers had ever penetrated and was in the habit of making the wills of his neighbors.

At an early hour one morning he was aroused from his slumber by a knocking at his gate and, putting his head out of the window, he asked who was there.

JOSH GAVE THE CUP.

But He Couldn't Make Good on the Bear Proposition.

Josh Billings, the gaunt, long haired philosopher, was one of the most genial of men. Many of his ill spelled sayings were meaty, and one of them at least was worthy of Solomon. It was:

"The best way for a father to train his boy in the way he should go is to go that way himself."

Some years ago, when Josh was staying in the White mountains, he was charmed by a beautiful spring of clear, icy cold water which bubbled up at the side of the highway. He made the carriage stop and, removing his slouch hat, lay down on his face and drank a deep, refreshing draft. In compliment to him the residents in the neighborhood named the fountain "Josh Billings' spring," and it has thus been known ever since.

At the nearest village Josh bought a huge tin cup and scratched on its side the warning:

Whoever steals this fine big cup By a big black bear will be eat up. JOSH BILLINGS.

This cup was placed on a broad, flat stone within convenient reach. A few days later the humorist, having nursed a consuming thirst, walked all the way to the spring to quench the same. To his dismay and anger the utensil was gone, and on a sapling near at hand was tacked a bit of paper with the penciled words:

Dear Josh, your cup is gone, I know not where. Now, if you please, trot out your big black bear.

Fortunately for the poet he did not sign his name or give any clew to his identity.—Los Angeles Times.

He Meant Well.
 When Earl Spencer was lord lieutenant of Ireland the people of Dublin called the beautiful countess, one of the loveliest women of her time, "Spenser's Faerie Queene."

But when their excellencies were about to return to England Irish gallantry was shown in a characteristic way. At the farewell banquet in their honor an Irish gentleman who was anxious to pay the beautiful countess a compliment got up and said, with much fervor and many bows:

"We all hope soon to see you back again, you and the work of art by your side."

Willing to Be Fined.
 There was an actor who worked for a manager who had a mania for fining the members of his company. For a bad makeup, for lateness, for noise in the wings, for a hundred things, the players were blicked from a quarter to $2. The worst of all the fines was one of 10 cents for failure to return "properties," for this was a duty that every one, and this actor in particular, continually forgot.

In a financial drama one night the supply of stage money ran out, and the manager loaned our actor $8 or $9 in real bills to use in the next scene.

The manager said sternly to the actor the following Saturday:

"By the way, Booth, you haven't returned that $9 I gave you in act three Monday night."

"Never mind," said the actor. "Just fine me a dime and call it square."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Took His Medicine.
 A famous actor will never take medicine, and his medical man was often obliged to resort to stratagem to impose a dose upon him. There is a play in which the hero is sentenced to drink a cup of poison. The actor in question was playing this character one night and had given directions

When he came to drink it. To have the cup filled with port wine. But when he came to drink it what was his horror to find it contained a dose of senna! He could not throw it away, as he had to hold the goblet upside down to show his persecutors he had drained every drop of it. Our hero drank the medicine, but he never forgave his medical man, as was proved at his death, for he died without paying his bill.

Merely a Dentist's Job.
 MacDougal-Dougal determined to celebrate the christening of his first-born in grand shape and journeyed to London to buy many things for the house, and especially a fine piano.

MacDougal-Dougal decided to have the piano sent on in advance. He didn't want to take it up with him, for it was a somewhat bulky package, so he dispatched it jubilantly before he left town.

When he arrived in Scotland he was met by his trusty retainer.

"Well, did the piano arrive safely?" he asked.

"Aw, weel," replied Donald, "she's as weel as ye could expect. She slipped as she was ganging tae the hoose an' broke a foo of her front teeth, but I dinna think she's really hurt."

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

Cherry Party For the 22d of February.

WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY FAVORS.
 A hostess who has planned to entertain some friends at a cherry party on Washington's birthday has found that the artificial cherries sold by confectioners, etc., are much too expensive for her purse, and she will substitute big red cranberries with excellent effect.

The invitations are written on postals decorated with cherries, which are sold everywhere in February, and begin as follows:

Next Friday night at half past eight We beg you'll help us celebrate Great George and the immortal tree, His gift to all posterity.

After this come the address, date and hour.

The first thing to catch the eye of the guest entering the parlor on the appointed evening will be a cherry tree in a wooden tub. This is constructed of a dead sapling tricked out with tissue paper leaves and at once becomes the basis of a jolly game where each player receives a big cranberry with a thread drawn through it (by means of a needle) and is required to tie it on the tree while blindfolded. All those who accomplish the feat will receive points toward the prize.

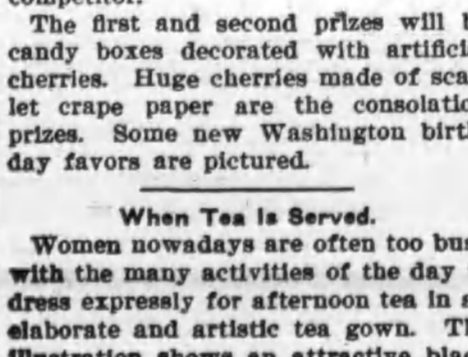

Another jolly contest will be guessing the number of cherries in a basket filled with them. The player who comes nearest to the exact number receives a second point.

When the guessing is over each player thrusts his hand into the basket, palm side down, the idea being to see who can catch up most cranberries on the back of the hand and, so balancing them, walk around the room without spilling one. The player most successful is entitled to a point.

Tossing the cranberries into a bowl at the opposite end of the room is another feat on the program and offers another point for the successful competitor.

The first and second prizes will be candy boxes decorated with artificial cherries. Huge cherries made of scarlet crape paper are the consolation prizes. Some new Washington birthday favors are pictured.

Normal Agricultural School.

Cortland is to have a state agricultural school. The department of education has decided to establish a Normal School of Agriculture in connection with the Cortland Normal and Training school, and it will be the only one of its kind in the state. The design of the school is to train young men to teach agriculture in the schools of the state, and it is the first step in the Normal schools to train teachers for high school instruction.

Two courses will be offered, a two-year course and a one-year course. Young men 16 years of age or over who have a diploma prescribed by the educational department for admission to Normal schools, and who have had farm experience, will be admitted to the two year course, and the year course will be open to young men who are high school graduates, or who have had equivalent education and have farm experience.

For the present at least the agricultural school will be conducted as a part of the Normal school and will be in the immediate charge of Prof. L. S. Hawkins, who will have several assistants.

A school garden or farm will be conducted on Normal athletic field which comprises eleven acres, and arrangements are being made whereby the herds, barns and equipment of the Kellogg, Bronson, Hyde, Bean, Bell and other farms may be used by the students.

The students will take psychology, history of education, chemistry, botany, school economy, grammar and composition methods and manual training methods in class with students in the regular Normal courses. In the agricultural school proper they will study soils, bacteriology, chemistry, botany, horticulture, farm crops, dairying, animal husbandry, poultry husbandry, entomology, farm mechanics, etc.

The school will work with the practical farmers of the community and endeavor to solve with them the problems which yearly and almost daily beset all farmers.—Cortland Standard.

Seventeen-Year Locusts.

The department of agriculture at Washington gives out the information that Central New York is to be visited by locusts next summer. These pests when they arrive in large numbers are destroyers of vegetation and they have been known to strip sections of the country through which they pass of almost every leaf on the trees and to ruin crops of grain. It has been seventeen years since the periodical cicada were last seen in appreciable numbers in this section and if any reliance is to be placed on the old saying, and, in fact, upon the records, they are due to appear here this summer. There is some cheer in the fact that they may not be so numerous in this locality as in the extreme southern and western parts of the state and in Connecticut and New Jersey. According to the prophecies of the department at Washington all the states east of the Allegheny mountains and from New England and New York, south to the Carolinas, are to be visited by the insects this summer.

The locusts which are expected to take toll from the farmers in this vicinity are the 17-year variety and in addition to these a 13-year brood of locusts is expected in the lower half of the Mississippi valley, extending southward from Middle Indiana and Illinois to the gulf, as far east as Middle Tennessee and west to Kansas and Oklahoma. The department has records of the visitations of the 17 year variety for almost two centuries. It has been reported in Connecticut regularly every 17 years since 1724, and in New Jersey since 1775, while almost equally long records have been kept in other states in the territory effected.—Ex

Encouraging Words.

THE TRIBUNE recently received the following from a well known business man of a nearby town: "I want to congratulate you on the success you are making in producing such a bright, clean, new and interesting sheet. The people of your town and surrounding country ought to be very proud of it and should give you all their patronage and support to make it a paying venture for you, as well as welcome to their homes."

Five Corners.

MARCH 14—A thunder shower Saturday night reminds us that spring is here surely. A number of flocks of wild geese were seen last Saturday flying through the air.

Mrs. George Atwater returned from Auburn last week Monday night.

Mrs. George Orouch is home visiting her husband for a while after being at Ludlowville nearly all winter taking care of the sick.

George Cook, who has been so seriously ill with the measles, is somewhat improved. Mrs. Cook is nicely broken out with them at this writing.

Wert Dates and Miss L. Alexander have moved on the late Luther Hedden farm which he purchased.

Miss Florence Stevenson is slowly recovering from her severe illness under the care of Dr. Willoughby of Genoa.

Mrs. Sarah Reynolds of Lansingville is spending some time at John Palmer's.

The infant son of Homer Algard and wife was quite sick a few days last week.

The home of Frank Corwin and wife seems very desolate while they are staying with his mother.

Laselle Palmer is entertaining the measles. Those who have never had them will all be sure to now apparently.

Rose Snushall is recovering from the measles.

Mrs. Angeline Holden still remains very poorly.

Mrs. Sara Algard is recovering from an attack of the grip.

George Atwater and wife were entertained at a dinner party at the home of Asa Coon last Thursday. The day was one of pleasure.

Mrs. Rachel Sanford and Mrs. Ella Algert returned home Saturday from visiting relatives in Auburn.

Adelbert Alexander and family are occupying their new home and are well pleased. They had a phone placed in their house last week Tuesday; also Wert Dates.

A telephone was placed in the store of Robert Ferris and son last week Tuesday.

Will Ferris has purchased a very fine colt of Mrs. Bradford at Lake Ridge.

Claude Palmer is ill with the prevailing distemper, grip.

Harry Curtis is very busy these days with his wall paper and mouldings.

A. L. Palmer and wife of Ithaca came last week Wednesday to assist in the care of their mother, Mrs. M. Palmer, and aunt, Elizabeth. He returned to Ithaca Thursday, Mrs. Palmer remaining for a while.

Mrs. Wm. DeCamp of North Lansing and brother, Fred Sharpsteen of Scranton, visited at George Cook's last Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Hunt and daughter Ethel are visiting relatives in Ithaca.

Mrs. Fred Mann spent a few days last week with her parents, N. R. Sellen and wife of Genoa.

W. W. Atwater met with a painful accident recently. While taking down some hams in some way the wire hook flew and struck his eye. It has been very painful and he is fearful of losing the sight entirely.

The many friends of Mrs. S. C. French are pleased to learn of her recovery from her severe illness. Miss Alida Barger is spending some time with her.

Carl Goodyear is suffering with the grip.

James McCarthy is recovering from the grip.

John Sill and wife of East Genoa visited at Charles Barger's last Friday.

The family of Clarence Palmer have all been ill with the grip. Some are recovering and some are ill now.

It is harvest for the physicians but not much for the sick ones.

Miss Bertha Ferris returned from Auburn last Sunday. Her parents are victims of the grip.

We will mention the holidays of the R. D. carriers and then mark them down so you will not be wondering why the mail carrier does not come—New Year's, Washington's Birthday, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day and Thanksgiving. Please remember them.

Howard Shaw is suffering from an abscess in the head. Dr. Skinner is attending him.

Harry Curtis is painting and papering George Ferris' tenement house.

Will Cook came very near losing one of his horses last week with pneumonia, but it is recovering at this writing.

Mrs. Hilda Bailey has returned to her home in Syracuse after spending some time with her parents, Mr. and

In Memoriam.

With our worthy brother, George J. Morrison, the labors of the day are completed. For thirty five years he has been a faithful and earnest worker among the Patrons of Husbandry. When Granges were first organized in New York State in 1876 he took an active part and has held many positions of honor and responsibility in the organization. In the family, in the church and in society, he has borne a creditable part, and in the Grange we can sincerely say, "Well done good and faithful servant."

We, as members of Five Corners Grange, wish to express in some fitting manner our regard and remembrance of our worthy deceased brother. Although our minds are impressed with sadness and with kindly thoughts, yet we would ask a more substantial record, and for that purpose we instruct the altar be draped in mourning for thirty days; the secretary write this memento in the official minutes and will submit the same to the GENOA TRIBUNE for publication.

By vote of the Grange, March 7, 1911. N. J. ATWATER, Master. Harriet L. Ferris, Secretary.

The Point of View.

Two farmers were heard discussing their local paper. One thought it had too many advertisements in it. The other replied: In my opinion, advertisements are good. I look them over carefully and save at least five times the cost of the paper each week through the business advantages I get from them. Said the other: "I believe you are right—know that they pay me well and rather think it is not good to my taste to find fault with the advertisements, after all. Those men have the right idea of the matter. It pays any man with a family to take a good local paper, for the advertisements if nothing more. And if business men fail to give farmers a chance to read advertisements in the local paper, they are blind to their own interests, to say the least of it. "You never trade with me," said a business man to a prosperous farmer. "You have never invited me to your place of business and I never go where I am not invited; I might not be welcome," was his reply.—Leroy Gazette.

Bees Hatch Chickens.

Finding that the temperature in a beehive was exactly the same as that required for hatching eggs, an American living in Rome conceived the idea of letting his bees do the hatching.

He built a rectangular frame, provided it with a linen bottom, placed twenty eggs, protected by a perforated cover spread over and around them in the box, and placed the whole in the highest section of the hive.

In course of time eighteen of the eggs were successfully hatched without in any way preventing the bees from following their normal pursuits. Repeated experiments proved that a dozen eggs at a time can be successfully hatched in this manner, and that in the course of a season one hive can produce more than eighty chickens.—Popular Mechanics.

Village and Vicinity News.

—St. Patrick's day.

—Some good maple sugar weather during the past week.

—D. N. Rayner returned Saturday last from a trip to New York.

—Robins and bluebirds have arrived, having been seen the first of the week.

—A Miller phone has been installed in the First National Bank of Genoa.

—Mr. Millard Edsall was a guest of his friend, George T. Sill, Saturday and Sunday.

—A masquerade party at the rink to-night with McDermott's orchestra to furnish music.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Loomis of Port Byron, were Sunday guests in town, Mrs. Loomis remaining for several days.

—E. A. Seymour and family have moved into the rooms in part of the Stickle house, lately occupied by John Bruton.

—It is expected that the new Lehigh Valley station at Cortland will be formally opened on Wednesday, March 22.

—M. G. Shapero has been at his home in Syracuse this week. He received news of the death of his father, aged about 90 years, who died in Russia.

—The New York college that has started a department of journalism ought to conserve its energy. Everyone knows how to run a newspaper.—Reading Telegram.

—Quite a severe thunder shower passed over this section early Sunday morning last. At Lyons the storm took the form of hail accompanied by terrific wind and thunder and lightning.

—George Boyer has purchased the Calvin Bower place of thirteen acres near Lake Ridge and will move next week. Bert Dean and family are to occupy the Dempsey farm, formerly owned by George Boyer.

—Asa Colver of Poplar Ridge is employed in J. S. Banker's hardware store, and has moved his family to this place. He occupies the Eddy house on Maple St. Mrs. Eddy goes to Locke to act as housekeeper for Mr. Inglehart.

—Julius Fitts, an old and much respected resident of the town of Despronius, died at his home near Dresserville on Thursday, March 9. The deceased was 83 years old and his entire life was spent on the farm where he died. He is survived by one son, Charles Fitts.

—The officials of the First National Bank of Genoa are much gratified with the first week's business. If you are not yet numbered among its patrons, you should become one in the near future. All accounts are welcome, large or small. See adv. and report of the bank on this page.

—Alterations are being made in the interior of the building occupied by Mrs. D. E. Singer, by which the store space is greatly enlarged, the hall and stairway having been taken out and several partitions having been removed. When completed, the store will be much more convenient and attractive.

—A letter from Mrs. S. J. Hand at Riverside, Calif., dated March 10, says that there has been an epidemic of mumps, measles and grip in Riverside, the same as with us, but the mild climate is favorable and no cases have resulted fatally. Mrs. Hand also states that they had been having rain for three days, and that much damage had been done by high water at Santa Barbara, on the coast. A large section was flooded and the old Santa Inez Mission is in ruins. This mission is one spoken of by Helen Hunt Jackson in "Ramona," and was almost the only one of the old missions left in a fair state of preservation. Mrs. Hand is much better than she was when she arrived at Riverside in November.

—Mrs. Corn Green is spending a few days in Moravia.

—Our spring turned to the wild west of March weather yesterday.

—Miss Clyde Mastin has been quite ill with the measles this week.

—LaVerne Thayer will assist Mead Underwood the coming season.

—Miss Frances Bigelow of Ithaca was a week-end guest of Miss Edith Hunter.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Bruton have moved to their farm, formerly the Amos Main place.

—Geo. DeCamp and family have moved from Venice to the Jones farm which he recently purchased, south of Locke.

—We are obliged to use the simplified form of spelling in some cases. For instance, "la grippe" is too much for a printer, especially in time of epidemic.

—Sidney Smith and family have moved from Cortland to Genoa this week. Mr. Smith is the new operator of the creamery. He occupies the Mead house, opposite the rink.

—Howard Bush and family will move the last of the month from the Sharp farm to the tenant house of L. A. Lester at East Venice, and Mr. Bush will work for Mr. Lester this year.

—Buffalo is the largest city to doom the fire horse. Contracts have been let for the last horse-drawn engine that the city will buy. The fire commissioners announce that all apparatus they purchase in the future will be of the automobile kind.

—Don't fail to call at the new grocery at Walter Smith's when in Genoa.

—The Scipio Dramatic Club will present "The Hidden Hand" at McCormick's hall, King Ferry, on Saturday evening, March 18, at 8 o'clock. Good music by Atwater's orchestra, solos, comic sketches, etc. Frank Smith, contortionist. Admission 15 and 25 cents. The play is a strong drama with plenty of comedy mixed in, and was successfully produced at Scipio last week.

—W. Dent Herman, son of Mrs. Alice Herman of Moravia, died of tuberculosis, at the home of his mother in Moravia, on Thursday, March 9. The young man was 28 years of age and had been employed in Syracuse for the past two years. He returned to Moravia two weeks before his death. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon last and burial was made in Indian Mound cemetery.

—The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Conley, which was held at her late home on Friday afternoon was very largely attended. Those from out of town in attendance were: Mrs. Will Minturn, of Ludlowville; Fred Lester and daughter, Miss Iva, of Bainbridge; Mrs. Charles Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Parke Minturn of Lansingville; Mrs. Irease Wright and three brothers, the Messrs. Rathbun of Moravia.—Locke Courier.

—Fire caused a slight damage at the home of Miss Sarah Hull on the Indian Field road, Sunday morning. The fire caught from the chimney, which is built on the outside of the house. It burned through the siding of the house and some studding, and had reached the second floor before it was extinguished by the "bucket brigade" of neighbors who gathered to put out the fire. The damage from fire was light, but several rooms will require re-papering as they are badly smoked.

—Capt. John J. Brown, a well known Cayuga lake boatman, died suddenly at his home in Ithaca last Friday evening, of heart disease. Since a boy of 13 years Captain Brown had followed the lake, and he knew every foot of it. He was born in Buffalo, in 1858. His first experience was on Lake Erie and the Buffalo Harbor, on tugs and similar craft. Six years ago Captain Brown purchased the steamers Horton and Kellogg. He had run them every summer to carry cottagers to and fro. Captain Brown is survived by a wife and two sons of Ithaca.

—The roof of the Catholic church is being re-shingled.

—Mr and Mrs. Dennis Doyle will soon move to North Lansing.

—Mrs. Al Lanterman, who has been quite ill this week, is much better.

—Miss Jennie Banker was in Syracuse yesterday to attend the automobile show.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Waldo continues to gain slowly, being able to sit up some every day.

—Edward Giltner and family moved to their farm, formerly the Hurlbut place, at East Venice last week.

—Mrs. Robert Armstrong suffered a relapse of her illness and has been confined to the bed again this week.

—W. A. Counsell returned Wednesday evening from a visit of several days at Ludlowville, Five Corners and King Ferry.

—Sunday morning theme at the Presbyterian church, "Stretching Forward." Evening, "Life, Lift, Light." Other services as usual.

—Miss Lucy V. Wade, a well known teacher in Moravia High school, suffered a fracture of the left arm in falling on an icy walk, Monday.

—The Ladies' Aid society of the Genoa Presbyterian church meets at the home of Mrs. T. J. Searls next week Thursday afternoon, March 23. All ladies are invited.

—The taxpayers of Moravia at a special meeting held Tuesday voted an appropriation of $1,200 to defray the expense of defending the criminal suit brought against the village commissioners of education by the Water Board of the city of Auburn.

—All kinds of Groceries, Coffee, Tea, and Spices fresh every week at Walter Smith's, Genoa.

—A new hostelry at the George Junior Republic will be opened to the public May 1. It will be in charge of Mrs. C. Cary, formerly connected with Wells College, Aurora. The hotel will be up-to-date in every respect and will be known as the Republic Inn.

—The South Side school and all the grades in the High school up to the seventh in Binghamton have been closed until Monday, March 27, on account of an epidemic of measles in that locality. This order affects ten teachers and over 500 pupils. Over fifty cases of measles were reported last week.

—The Cayuga County Beekeepers' Society held their annual meeting in Auburn Wednesday. President N. L. Stevens of Venice presided and gave a short address. Reports of the National convention at Albany last year were given by G. L. Ferris of Atwater and O. J. Forman of Weedsport. Several interesting addresses were given and officers were chosen as follows: President, N. L. Stevens of Venice; first vice president, George L. Ferris of Atwater; second vice, G. M. Soward of Ira; third vice, C. L. Wardwell of Union Springs; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Pierson of Union Springs.

A GIFT

on a birthday means more to the person who gets it than a gift at Christmas, for Christmas is everybody's day, while the birthday is her, or his, very own. The beautiful custom of remembering birthdays with gifts has not received the attention in Moravia which is given to it in other places, and yet our people are not lacking in sentiment—and surely not in filial, paternal and maternal love. There is no greater compliment can be paid than the remembrance of a birthday by a gift; each one of the family in town should be thus remembered on the annual recurrence of this most important day in the year to that person. Who'll begin? Who'll start this beautiful fashion in Moravia? And you can feel sure the gift will be just right if you get it at

The First Singer.

We heard a bluebird singing, the song was magic-sweet;
He swung upon the lilac, the snow was round his feet;
The wind blew roughly o'er him, the sky was steely-gray,
But yet he perched there, singing the chilling gloom away.
Brave traveler from the southland, perhaps you came too soon;
For ice still binds the streamlets, the sun is wan at noon;
The violets are sleeping close in their earthly bed,
And not a greening blade of grass has dared to show its head.
But, oh, we're glad to greet you, sweet harbinger of spring;
No sound was e'er so welcome as your gay caroling;
Courageous little songster upon the leafless spray,
A-singing and a-singing our weariness away!

Death of Mrs. Dillon.

Mrs. Margaret O'Hagan Dillon, wife of Michael Dillon of Venice, died very suddenly of valvular heart trouble early Friday morning, March 10, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Mulvaney, west and south of Genoa.

Mrs. Dillon went to the home of her daughter Wednesday to spend a few days and suffered the attack of heart trouble which caused her death. She had been afflicted with heart disease for some time. Mrs. Dillon was born in Ireland 65 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillon formerly lived in Auburn. Fifteen or more years ago they purchased a farm south of Venice Center, and they have made their home at the farm with the exception of a few years. Besides the husband, she is survived by a son, Joseph Dillon, and the daughter mentioned above.

The remains were taken to Auburn Sunday afternoon on the 4:19 train and funeral services were held in St. Mary's church Monday morning. Burial in St. Joseph's cemetery.

We understand there is a place in town to buy wall paper at reasonable prices. Call at his home and see.

MODERN BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

Why Bridges Are Built Less Permanent Today.

ANCHORAGE MOST IMPORTANT.

Missouri Engineer Says He Has Seen Several Structures, Otherwise Firm, Which Have Been Swept Away Because of Their Insecure Anchorage. Tubular Piers as Substitutes.

The question is frequently asked, "Why are the bridges which we build today less permanent than those which the ancients built?" says F. J. Kersting, deputy state highway engineer of Missouri, in Good Roads, New York. One answer is the item of cost, chiefly because we build a vastly greater number of bridges than did the ancients. We build solely for the accommodation of the public, as we live by peaceful pursuits, whereas the ancients lived by conquest, being almost continually at strife, and built mainly for army maneuvers.

Heretofore financial conditions and the rapid growth of progress have made it necessary to do some things in the line of bridge building which were regrettable because the prime object was to build cheap and sometimes quickly built structures. That state of affairs is improving, and I am sure we all agree that the class of bridges we are to build in this state in the future should keep pace with the improved conditions.

There are conditions when it is the best policy to build a masonry arch, a steel deck span, a concrete arch, perhaps a steel arch or a steel through span. There is no doubt but that when the funds are on hand and the conditions at the site are favorable it is best to build a concrete arch. It will also be found to be economical in the long run to build concrete floors on all steel bridges regardless of the length of span.

Many county officials through an erroneous idea that they are saving the county money build spans much too short for the waterway required. This is a serious mistake and the cause of the destruction of nearly all of those smaller bridges which have been destroyed by high water. County engineers should see that bridges are placed at a sufficient height above high water so that they will not catch drift. Particular attention should also be given to the placing of anchor bolts. I have seen several expensive bridges washed off abutments during a time of high water when anchor bolts which had been omitted would have saved them.

The state highway engineer is frequently asked about tubular piers, and the inquirer is generally prejudiced against them. The proper material out of which to build piers or abutments is stone and concrete. Tubular piers are, however, an excellent substitute.

They have been used for years not only on highway work, but also by railroads. There are several reasons for this. In the first place, there is usually a vast difference in the cost, and were it not for the tubular pier many bridges in Missouri could not have been built. Concrete or masonry piers require more excavation, and when water level is reached an expensive cofferdam is required along with much more pumping than is necessary in sinking a tubular pier, which itself always acts as a cofferdam. When there is no rock foundation the difference in cost is even greater.

There have been more failures of concrete and masonry piers than there have been of tubular piers. In most cases this is due to the poor construction of the masonry.

Therefore there are many masonry piers built of the same class of stuff and in the same manner the mason employs when building a cellar wall in his locality.

The pressure against a tubular pier at time of high water is not great owing to its cylindrical form; it is also not apt to hold drift for this reason. It is bad practice to set a tubular pier on a rock foundation in a stream where it has only a foot or two of gravel or clay to penetrate. In this case it is best policy to build a concrete or masonry pier even though the first cost be twice that of a tubular pier.

GOOD ROAD MAKES FREE MEN.

A farmer living on a good road is a free man. He is not dependent on weather conditions. He is able to sell his stock and grain and fruit at the best market prices. The railroads have to serve the man who can get his stuff to a shipping point any day in the year.

WHERE DRAINAGE IS GOOD YOU FIND GOOD ROADS.

Not Simply Surface Should Be Drained, but Entire Foundation.

Drainage may be said to be the most needed condition for permanent good roads, not simply drainage of the road surface, which is very important, but a proper and complete drainage of the entire roadbed and foundation, this in such a manner that there would not be any standing water in the roadside ditches to seep back under and soften the roadbed.

We are all familiar with the manner in which a railroad keeps its roadbed drained—by means of lateral ditches on each side of the roadbed, dug with a grade sufficient to carry the water laterally to some intersecting ravine, creek or other natural drainage way. As applied to highway construction the lateral drainage would be largely by means of open ditches at the road sides, with, in some cases, a covered drain of some suitable material in places where the necessary grades were lower down from the top surface than would be best or advisable for open ditches.

This would mean the working out carefully of the contours not only for the highway, but of practically the whole drainage basin affected in order that size, depth of ditches and location of outlets could all be balanced so that the maximum of results could be obtained with the minimum of labor and cost.

The proper drainage system would be governed largely by the area of the basin, contour of surface, character of soil and location of outlets, and this is a twofold advantage to the farmer—at least to many of them.

There are hundreds of farms all or a part of which would be greatly benefited by tile drainage, but in many cases the work cannot be done because they have no available outlet. Drainage work as outlined above would give a general knowledge of the entire drainage basin and would in a majority of cases provide the farmer with an outlet in one of the highway ditches for his tile drainage. In most cases the benefits to be derived from the opportunity to have an outlet for a tile drainage system would be as great if not greater than those resulting from improved highways.

CALIFORNIA ROAD.

Fine Stretch Between El Monte and Pomona.

Without doubt as fine a stretch of country road as can be found in the United States is that now nearing completion between El Monte and Pomona under one of the contracts of the good roads project. In fact, it probably excels any rural road in any other part of the country, as it is built by a process that has only recently been perfected and tried in Germany.

After the roadway is graded and all depressions filled the earth is packed hard with a steam roller, and then a layer of crushed rock is laid on it, the pieces averaging several inches square. On this is spread a layer of considerably finer rock, and then comes a third and last layer of very fine rock.

These are pressed firmly together with a heavy steam roller and then thoroughly saturated with crude petroleum. Lastly, the roadbed is covered with a layer of rock dust as fine as powder and then smoothed and packed many times again with the steam roller. The result is a road as smooth and firm as any asphalt paved city street and one that with a little care is practically indestructible.

ROADS MADE OF STRAW.

One Hundred and Forty Miles Bedded Down Around Walla Walla.

One hundred and forty-eight miles of straw roads have been made within a year around Walla Walla, Wash. Straw holds down the dust and prevents the wheels from sinking too deeply into the mud in the wet seasons.

Straw is a favorite road building material and is good while it lasts. Sagebrush is also used in some places. This latter is tougher than straw and shreds into threadlike filaments with little travel.

DULL EDGE DRAG.

A King split log road drag with a dull edge will make a road impervious to water if used in wet weather.

Women to Help Beautify Roads.

The Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs has decided to join in the good roads movement in that state.

While the men are agitating the advisability of making drag roads or establishing cross state highways the women will make a plea for the abolishment of landscape disfiguring signboards and that trees be planted along the cross state routes that the roads might be made shady and more beautiful.

JEWELLED DOG COLLARS.

Worn by Pampered Pets of Society Folk.

DOGIE'S EXPENSIVE COLLARS.

The fashion changes in dog collars not quite as often perhaps as in the clothes of the mistresses, but there are sharply defined rules concerning what is correct in canine collar adornment. The latest mode for these collars next spring is a bright green leather, and on the right shade of dog the effect is remarkably striking. Red collars are again in vogue for black coated doggies, and there is a model in silver beads that is much approved. A favorite collar of a dog in the toy class owned by a belle living at the national capital is of brown leather headed with silver nails. On the bangle which dangles from the collar are described the canine's name and address.

But the most curious dog collar on record was ordered by a Baltimore man to celebrate the eleventh birthday of his favorite black and tan terrier Dixie. The collar is of diamonds, of which no fewer than 700 were used. According to the illustration given of this collar, it was fashioned somewhat in the form of a tatra, with a pendant consisting of two graduated pieces higher in the center and narrowing at the back.

Wouldn't You Like This Costume? Burton Holmes, the popular lecturer, seems to be quite as appreciative of the picturesque in costumes as in scenery. Behold him in the illustration arrayed in his latest sartorial find—a Moravian costume which in Moravia is worn by the men of this Austro-Hungary province.

What woman, seeing the modest possibilities of this native dress, would not have purchased it, as did Mr. Holmes, for $9.48 of our money? This same woman would not allow her husband or brother to appear in it at a fancy dress party. Oh, no! Her motives would be less altruistic, much more selfish. This is what would happen: She would pick off, as it were, the leading motifs of this costume—for instance, the fascinating embroidered girdle with its long fringed ends. This lool she would wear about the waist of her new spring house frock of pale gray chiffon cloth. And the bolero, if this smart adornment answers to such a name in the Moravian tongue, she would incorporate into her smartest lingerie blouse of sheer marquisette. And the accordion pointed sleeves, each plait of which is said to be three inches deep—well, these manches would make several summer gowns.

FIGHTING BEE DISEASES.

Work of Department of Agriculture in Keeping Down Pests.

The honeybee annually produces a crop of honey worth at least $20,000,000, and there are vast opportunities for increasing this output. The most serious handicap to beekeeping in the United States is the fact that there are contagious diseases which attack the brood of the honeybee. There are now recognized two such diseases, known as American foul brood and European foul brood. From data recently obtained by the United States department of agriculture it is known that American foul brood exists in 282 counties in thirty-seven states and European foul brood in 160 counties in twenty-four states, and it is estimated conservatively that these diseases are causing a loss to the beekeepers of the United States of at least $1,000,000 annually. This estimate is based on the probable value of the colonies which die and the approximate loss of crop due to the weakened condition of diseased colonies. The distribution of these diseases is by no means fully known, and they are constantly spreading.

The cause of American foul brood has been found by the department to be a specific bacterium, and enough is known of the cause and nature of European foul brood, which is also a bacterial disease, to make it possible to issue reliable recommendations concerning treatment for both diseases. Both attack the developing brood, and

STAGGERS INVESTIGATED.

Moldy Corn Believed to Be the Cause of the Deaths of Many Horses.

According to a bulletin issued by the Kansas State Agricultural college experiment station, blind staggers, sleepy staggers, mad staggers or meningo-encephalitis has occurred in outbreaks of greater or less severity in many sections of the United States. In addition, there seems to be a continual loss of horses from staggers in any locality in which much corn of an inferior grade is fed. A certain green corn mold, known scientifically as Aspergillus glaucus, is blamed.

The contents of the bulletin may be briefly summarized as follows:

Feeding horses upon immature corn badly infected with molds and worm

CORN DAMAGED BY MOLD.

(From bulletin of Kansas State Agricultural college experiment station.)

dirty, with its accompanying bacteria, produces typical cases of staggers. The extract of such corn is rapidly fatal to rabbits.

Aspergillus flavus, Aspergillus niger and Rhizopus nigricans (molds) have been found abundantly on the corn only in localities which lose horses from staggers.

Corn containing any molds should be thoroughly cleaned or "float" before feeding.

Mixing corn with bran and oats seems to lessen the danger.

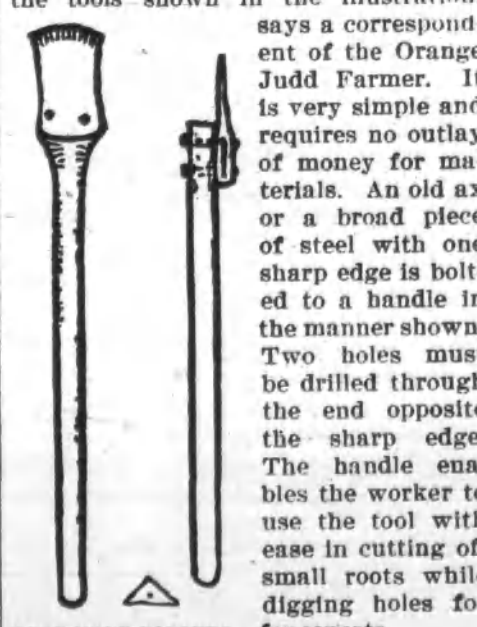

Treatment to be effective must be begun early.

During the course of investigations it was found that in some localities cases which were reported as staggers were in reality typical cases of parasitism produced in horses by the palisade worm in the intestines and blood vessels, the error arising from the similarity of some of the symptoms of the two diseases.

The observations have not been sufficiently extensive to determine the relation between staggers and the so-called cornstalk disease. The latter is the name popularly applied to many disorders of the digestive tract in cattle and horses, some of which are clearly not the result of any poison or toxin. It seems that neither the seasons nor the localities in which many cattle have died in the stalk fields coincide with those in which severe outbreaks of staggers in horses have occurred.

For Digging Post Holes.

Any farmer can easily make one of the tools shown in the illustration.

POST HOLE DIGGERS.

One great reason why some men win on the farm is because they keep the ends tucked in. If you want to freeze on a cold winter night let the bedclothes get pulled out at the foot. Farming is just that way. Don't let the bedclothes get pulled out at the foot.

Live Stock Notes.

The first cross animal in swine breeding makes a good feeder. It is also well known that if crossbreeding is carried further than the first cross one rapidly runs into inferior stock.

Try how the frosted horse feels in your own mouth some of these crisp mornings and you'll warm them up the next time before putting them in the dumb, helpless horse's mouth.

Good bedding is not only comfortable and beneficial to the stock, but it absorbs many juices and liquids which otherwise would be lost, retaining them to be deposited on the fields as valuable fertilizers.

In winter as much variety should be furnished the pigs and cows as possible. They need some roughage. They will eat clover hay and cornstalks.

Pigs intended for market should weigh between 250 and 300 pounds at ten months of age or less. To make this weight they must be pushed from birth to market day.

Sheep are the greatest fertilizers of all the farm stock. The old saying that the hoof of the sheep is golden is true, enough. Sheep return to the soil 80 per cent of fertility from the food eaten.

Some men think they are almost good because they are afraid to be very bad.

No church ever lost by love for the weak sinner and a lash for the strong one.

Counterfeit tickets to heaven are good to almost every point on the other route.

Some have hard work getting any religion out of their hearts because so much was once forced down their throats.

REAL VALUE OF PRAYER.

Discoveries in Psychology Give New Meaning to Religious Act.

The pious man will not pray for a violation or suspension of any of those fixed expressions of the divine will which we call "the laws of nature." A true instinct warns us not to pray that the law of gravitation may cease to operate when we pass by, nor to pray that the moon should fall to attract the tides, nor to ask that the buried dead should rise from their graves. Prayers for changes in the weather held their ground much longer than other indiscriminating forms of petition because people did not realize that the apparent irregularities of the weather are as much the result of fixed laws as the revolution of our earth around the sun or the rise and fall of the tides.

On the other hand, we know that no man has ever prayed sincerely without effecting changes in his character that otherwise would never have taken place, and, unless all the teaching of modern physiological psychology be false, no man can affect his character without affecting his nervous system and through the nervous system his entire physical organism.

Psychology has done much to vindicate the reasonableness of prayer by co-ordinating it with other familiar phenomena of our mental life. For example, some of the workings of prayer are analogous to the results brought about by suggestion and self suggestion. A man, let us suppose, prays, and invites others to pray for him, that he may have strength to overcome the craving for alcohol. These petitions act as powerful suggestions which, if they are continued long enough and assuming that there is no serious lesion of the brain, will accomplish the desired result. We know, too, that prayer under certain conditions has in cases of sickness a therapeutic efficacy. The lives of great religious personalities, such as Augustine, Francis of Assisi and Luther, and the growth of faith healing and prayer healing cults in our own time offer such abundant proof that only ignorance and prejudice can any longer affect to doubt the reality of the alleged phenomena.—Rev. Samuel McComb in Century Magazine.

Church Valuations.

In New York, Episcopal places of worship are worth $25,830,000, Presbyterian $16,400,000, Methodist $10,500,000, Baptist $9,400,000, Reformed $7,900,000, Lutheran $6,300,000 and Congregational $4,200,000. The value of church property in New York is $153,953,740, exclusive of parsonages, hospitals and asylums. The debts in New York are $19,062,419, or about 12.3 per cent. Boston has invested in churches $27,000,000, with debts of 7 per cent of their value. Chicago has the same sum invested, with 15 1/2 per cent debts; Baltimore, $14,000,000, with debts of 10 1/2 per cent; Philadelphia, $45,000,000, with 9 per cent debts, and Washington $10,000,000, with 10 1/2 per cent debts.—Christian Herald.

Women and Missions.

It is just half a century since Christian women of America organized for missions in foreign lands. The action of the pioneers has been copied for missions at home until now women raise money by the millions, not to contribute to societies managed by men, but themselves to administer in work started and controlled by them. Of the $10,000,000 which America contributes to foreign missions each year women give through their own societies $3,900,000. Methodist women of the north gave to foreign missions through their one society last year nearly $800,000.

WOMEN HELPED

By Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for Kidneys and Liver.

Disorders of women are the result of general bodily weakness. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a strength builder and for women it has proved of great value. Thousands testify to this. A sick woman writes: "Always has kidney trouble" and "troubles" all in the back, head, and nervous system and other distressing symptoms. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy helps the kidneys and liver to act properly, purifies the blood and gently moves the bowels. It has cured the cause of kidney, liver, blood and bladder troubles. For over 35 years it has enjoyed steady and increasing success, for it is an honest remedy and has stood the test of time. Write Dr. David Kennedy Co., Rondont, N. Y., for a free sample bottle and valuable medical booklet. Large bottle $1.00 at all druggists.

A FIERCE NIGHT ALARM

is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin of Manchester, O., [R. R. No. 2] for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Asthma, Hay Fever, LaGrippe, Whooping Cough, Hemorrhages fly before it. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Sold by J. S. Banker, Genoa, F. T. Atwater, King Ferry.

ATTACKS SCHOOL PRINCIPAL.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50c at J. S. Banker's Genoa, F.T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

MORE CROPS ON LESS LAND.

The problem is not how much land you have, but how well you cultivate it. Make the hay land produce nine tons per acre, and four or five acres of hay will be enough. Make the corn land produce 200 bushels per acre and cut down the area to one-fourth. Do the same with other crops, and you will soon find that you have much more land than you can possibly cultivate.

The Daily Life of a King.

"King Alfonso is one of the hardest working men in all Spain," says Kellogg Durland in Woman's Home Companion for March. "Ordinarily he rises at seven to seven-thirty and after breakfast in the queen's boudoir he is steadily occupied until half-past one or two o'clock. Mornings when he reviews troops he leaves the palace at six. After lunch he attends to affairs about town—opens exhibitions and bazaars and performs such other social duties as devolve upon a sovereign. At five o'clock he plays polo or goes shooting till about seven-thirty, when he returns to the palace and looks over the news of the day gleaned from forty-six leading newspapers of the world. At eight-thirty he dines, and in the late evening goes to other social functions, the theater or the circus. The circus he is particularly fond of, and during the several months of the circus season in Madrid he attends regularly every Thursday night. He is as delighted with the performing horses, the trained monkeys and the tumbling clowns as any small boy in his kingdom. Anyone who knows how strenuous is the life of King Alfonso from early morning until five o'clock in the afternoon marvels at his strength and energy, yet constantly one hears and sees in the newspapers that he devotes all of his time to polo-playing and shooting! Without this hour or two of daily exercise he could never maintain the energetic routine of his life."

Syracuse to Buy Hotel.

The Syracuse Post-Standard of March 14, announced that the city is to buy the Glen Haven hotel property and says in part:

A contract by which the city purchases for $40,000 the Glen Haven hotel property at the head of Skaneateles lake, thus eliminating the greatest danger of contamination to the Syracuse water supply, was approved by the Common Council yesterday.

The hotel and twelve cottages on the property are to be torn down. With the removal of the hotel, steamboat traffic on the lake will practically discontinue, eliminating another possible source of contamination.

The purchase by the city heads off the plans formulated by the Cortland & Auburn Railroad Company for establishing a summer resort on Hemlock Island, a tract of fourteen acres, which is included in the transfer to the city.

Hereafter, it is contended, it will be next to impossible for anyone to establish another hotel on the shores of the lake as long as it is to be used by the city as a water supply. The Glen Haven Hotel was in operation when the city acquired its rights, which made the rights of the owners prior to those of the city.

Most of the cottages at Glen Haven, it is believed, will be eliminated, as the persons occupying them make their living working at the hotel. This will clean up practically the entire upper end of the lake as far as insanitary conditions are concerned.

The farm land will probably be sold by the city. The property along the lake front will be held to exclude any future contamination. The hotel has been in operation many years, and at times has been largely patronized.

Last season, it is said, it made profits of about $5,000. It is doubtful if the city could have purchased it at this time had it not been for "no-license" being voted in the town where it is situated. The property lies in Cortland and Cayuga counties.

The property contains about 160 acres of land and has a lake shore frontage of 4,000 feet. Besides the hotel and cottages there are several barns.

Under the terms of the contract, the owners of the property have six months in which to remove their personal belongings and to tear down and take away the buildings. The city reserves its choice of the cottages and barns for the use of the sanitary inspector at the lake. The buildings are to be again put up within a mile of the lake.

The city is to receive a warranty deed giving a free and clear title. There is a right of way owned by the Cortland & Auburn Railroad Company across the property. At present there are mortgages against the property for $30,000. The city is to pay these and $10,000 additional. The payments are to be from the surplus funds of the Bureau of Water. The property is owned by Charles Sheldon Bull and the Glen Haven Hotel Company.

1912 Advertising Club.

The following, taken from the Leavenworth Post of Feb. 2, will be of interest to friends of Asa J. Atwater:

"There are conventions and conventions, but during the past few years it had been proven that the convention of conventions in this part of the country is that of the southwest division of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. Leavenworth in 1912 is to have this very convention, thanks to Asa J. Atwater, local delegate to the convention just closed at Oklahoma City, and Carl Mensing, president of the Leavenworth Ad Club, who alone were responsible for putting the stunt over on many others anxious to take next year's proceedings to their home towns.

There is as much difference between a convention of ad men and those of the majority of other organizations, as there is between a dirigible balloon and an ice wagon, almost, and, therefore, it probably would be well to begin preparations at once for the event. The word "Advertising" is magnetic in itself, conveying as it does, all that is up-to-the-second and progressive. Therefore, you can readily understand that the gang engaged in the work in this middle west are there forty ways with the spirit, the jump, the enthusiasm and the go which makes the holding of their respective jobs possible, and when the trains unload them at the various depots it will be the signal for everybody to get busy.

How it was done. Was the securing of this important convention accomplished without effort? No, it was not. Quite the reverse. When Mr. Atwater was delegated he probably gave little thought to the possibility of Leavenworth getting the 1912 meet, inasmuch as there are so many other considerably larger cities in the district which have not yet had it, and would be strongly represented. The first day's session, however, prompted him to exert his every effort to land the prize, and when the proposition was favorably considered by Mr. Mensing—well, there was nothing to it but to win, that's all.

So Atwater got busy and succeeded in persuading several others at the convention to join forces with him to "throw" the sentiment in Leavenworth's favor, and when the storm was over and the heavens cleared there was a great, big "Leavenworth, 1912" inscribed on the wall."

San Francisco 1915

Announcement made of free trip to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

WORD has been received from Sunset, the Magazine of the Pacific and the Far West, of the organization of the Sunset Panama-Pacific Club. The Club offers a four weeks' trip to the Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, including railway fare, Pullman, diner, hotel accommodations, admissions to the fair, side trips to points of interest, all in return for a little time each week to be devoted to the work of the Magazine.

The exposition is to be held to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal, connecting the Pacific and Atlantic. From all indications it will be by far the greatest World's Fair ever held.

The Magazine has issued a very attractive booklet descriptive of the trip, and giving further particulars, which will be sent on application. The membership is very limited and it is not likely that more than one or two applications will be accepted from this vicinity.

Requests for particulars should be sent to
