Five Corners.

MAY 10—A very severe thunder shower visited us last week Monday and by the papers we have noticed it was a severe one everywhere.

Rudolphus Miller of North Lansing and his father, Kenseleser Miller of East Lansing were callers at C. G. Barger's last week Friday, and went from here to Poplar Ridge. They made the trip in their new auto.

Will Ferris and wife visited relatives at South Lansing last Sunday.

John Beardsley, wife and granddaughter, Rose Snushall, returned from Trumansburg last Thursday.

Miss Florence Todd returned to her school at Oakwood Seminary this week Monday after being ill with the measles for about three weeks.

Kenneth, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ford, is slowly recovering from a very severe attack of measles.

Miss Myrtle Crego has returned to her sister's, Mrs. George Hunt.

Mrs. J. D. Todd does not improve very fast as yet.

Miss Hattie Todd and cousin, Ned Todd of Lake Ridge, were callers at J. D. Todd's this week Wednesday.

Mrs. Clarence Hollister is again under the care of Dr. J. W. Skinner of Genoa.

The Ladies' Aid Society of this place has come to life once more and a meeting is to be held with Mrs. S. B. Mead Friday afternoon of this week. A very cordial invitation is extended.

Mrs. D. E. Singer's assistant, Miss Thompson, is having a nice lot of millinery work and is doing fine.

Rev. E. L. Dresser of Ithaca was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hollister a week ago over Sunday and last week was entertained at Jay Smith's.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barger spent last Sunday with their son Henry and family near Ludlowville.

The preaching services at the Presbyterian church here will be held in the morning hereafter at 11 o'clock.

Rev. E. L. Dresser will occupy the pulpit during the summer.

Dist. Supt. C. E. Jewell, delivered a grand sermon at Belltown church last Sunday morning at the quarterly meeting service.

George Curtis is confined to the bed and is under the care of Dr. Hatch.

George is one that does not like to give up; he has been ailing for a few weeks past, but kept up until Monday of this week.

Scipio Quarterly Meeting.

Scipio Quarterly Meeting of Friends was held at Oakwood Seminary during the past week-end. This is the first time for about thirty-three years that the Quarterly meeting has been held in Union Springs. It has proved to be a very successful arrangement, the interest and attendance has been good and Union Springs Friends are hoping that it may be an annual occurrence here.

Miss Margaret A. Holme, for fifteen years a Friends missionary at Lu Hob, China, and Mr. M. K. Ts'en of Chungking, West China, were the only visiting Friends from without the Quarterly Meeting. Miss Holme is engaged in raising funds for a new building for the Boys' school at Lu Hob and a collection for that purpose amounted to $21 81. Mr. Ts'en is one of the seventy Chinese students sent by the Chinese government to this country to be educated. The expense is met from the balance of the Indemnity fund which the United States returned to China after deducting all just and proper claims from the amount of indemnity paid to this country by China as a result of the Boxer troubles. Mr. Ts'en is a friend and a former pupil of Robert L. Simkin, a missionary in West China who graduated at Oakwood in 1899.

Miss Holme and Mr. Ts'en both spoke very interestingly on Saturday evening on the problems in China which concern all Christians.

There were from thirty to forty friends in attendance from the vicinity of Poplar Ridge. As officers for the ensuing year, Eliezer Partington was appointed clerk and Harriet B. Pyle of Poplar Ridge treasurer.—Union Springs Adv.

Try a Special Notice in THE TRIBUNE. They bring quick returns.

First M. E. Church of Auburn.

The plan for the dedication of the First M. E. church, which has been undergoing extensive repairs, are now complete.

The dedication service will begin on Sunday morning, May 14, with morning prayer conducted by the Epworth League at 7 a. m., followed by preaching at 10:30 by Bishop John W. Hamilton, D. D., LL. D. of Boston, Mass., who is a great preacher and scholar and of great oratorical power.

On Monday evening at 8 o'clock Rev. William D. Marsh, D. D., of Little Falls, N. Y., will give his popular lecture, "From Knickerbockers to Pants"—a lecture on boys.

On Tuesday night comes the banquet to be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The tables will be spread in the new assembly room and covers will be laid for about 400 guests. The toast list is taken from the old pastors and presiding elders.

On Wednesday evening comes the great organ recital by Charles M. Courboin who is indeed one of the great players of the world. Mr. Beman, the organ builder, says there is no greater organ player in the United States.

On Thursday night there will be a general love feast led by the Rev. C. E. Jewell, district superintendent of Auburn district.

On Friday night there will be a presentation of gifts, memorial windows, gift windows, pulpit and baptismal font, a beautiful cabinet for the communion silver, drinking fountain, and the new organ given by the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. F. T. Keeney, D. D. of Syracuse and others will speak at this meeting.

On Sunday, the 21st, comes the last day of the feast of dedication, when Bishop Earl Cranston, D. D. of Washington, D. C., will preach both morning and evening and consecrate the church.

Sunday School Convention.

The work of preparing for the coming of the great State Sunday School convention, which will convene in Elmira, May 31 to June 2, is going forward rapidly just at present.

Arthur Clinton, chairman of the local executive committee, is giving his entire time to the work, and he is getting the local committees busy. An effort will be made to make this one of the best state conventions ever held.

The program gives promise of being superior. Among the speakers will be the Rev. A. F. Schaffler, the beloved former chairman of the state executive committee, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. Wallace of New York city, the Rev. W. A. Brown of Chicago, international superintendent of missions, and Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner of Peoria, Ill.

The music will be in charge of Professor E. O. Excell of Chicago, who is one of the finest musical directors of the country. The local publicity committee have planned some surprises for the delegates, and if the plans carry there that the committees have originated the visitors will have the time of their lives.

There is a movement on foot to have a representative from the six thousand schools of the state. All over the state the Elmira convention is being boomed. Through it will be a gigantic task to entertain the delegates, Elmira will be equal to the occasion. The convention will be held in the First Baptist church, which is easy of access and has a very large seating capacity, especially adapted with spacious rooms for the work of the committees.—Star Gazette.

Expressions of Appreciation.

Mrs. Maria T. Lanterman and family wish to extend thanks for the many kind acts of friends and neighbors during their recent bereavement and to all who sent flowers and expressions of sympathy.

We are sincerely grateful for the assistance received during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, and wish to thank all for their kindness in whatever manner expressed.

PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly entrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invulnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

wish I could say as much for other people.

The boss looked up quickly. "Somebody been trying to block you?"

Evan Blount met the gaze of the shrewd gray eyes without flinching. "I don't know of any good reason why we shouldn't be frank with each other, dad," he said, using for the first time since his return the old boyhood father name. "You know better than any one else. I think what the stumbling blocks are and who is putting them in my way."

Instantly the faraway look came into the gray eyes.

"I know a heap of things that I can't tell—not just yet, son. Has McVicker been calling you down?"

"No one has called me down, but some one or something is keeping me out of the real fight. There isn't any fight that I can get into. Everywhere I go there is the same cut and dried welcome, the same predetermined enthusiasm. Sometimes it seems as if all the people I meet had been instructed to make things pleasant and easy for me."

The senator's chuckle was barely audible.

"I wouldn't find much fault with that if I were you, son," he said. "You'll get enough of the real thing by and by."

Blount felt his anger rising. He was in precisely the right mood to believe that his father, failing to make him a cog in one of the wheels in the machine, had gone about in some mysterious way to insulate him, to make it impossible for him to get into the real life of affairs. But he kept his temper.

"It's no use," he said, with a tang of abruptness in his tone. "We are diametrically opposed to each other—you and I, dad. I stand for democracy, the will of the people and its fullest and freest expression. You stand for—"

"Well, son, what do I stand for?" queried the father, and the question was accompanied by the quizzical smile that brought the hot blood boyishly to Blount's cheek.

"If I should say what all men say—what some of them are frank enough to say even to me"—He stopped short and then went on again with better self control:

"Let's keep the peace if we can, dad. I'm sorry that you are finding it necessary to fight me and a thousand times sorer that I've got to fight you. But I'll tell you here and now that I'll never quit this state—this native state of mine—until it has had at least one decently clean election. I have told Gantry to pass the word that I shall show the railroad up if it can't play fair, and I've got to hand the same thing out to you, dad. I don't want to threaten, but it is only fair to say that I haven't been going about with my eyes shut. Whether you have authorized it or not, there is a lot of crooked work going on, and if I am driven to it I can print some things that would change the political map of this state so it won't be recognizable."

For some little time after his son had left the cafe the Hon. Senator Sagebrush sat absently toying with his deserts. When he rose to go out the battle light in the fierce gray eyes was the signal which not even his most faithful henchmen could always interpret, but which most men feared.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE DYNAMITER.

It was about the time that Evan Blount was finishing his fourth week of the campaign of education that the senator's wife began to detect signs of country weariness in the eyes of Miss Patricia Anners. During the last week or two some impulse which she did not take the trouble to analyze seemed to be drawing the girl toward the city. The roads around Wartrace were just as good as ever, and the free pleasures of motoring in a country where speed restrictions were conspicuous by their absence were just as keen. But now Patricia confessed freely to a longing for the sight of city streets.

"Only you mustn't consider us or me so much as you do, Mrs. Blount," she protested. "I have a dreadful suspicion that we have already interfered shamefully with your autumn plans. You are merely too kind and hospitable to admit it."

"You have interfered with nothing," was the ready assurance. "No inducement that was ever devised would take the senator away from his own state during a political campaign, and your coming has been a blessing. But for the good excuse to bring your father out here to the fossil beds we should have been mewed up in the Inter-Mountain hotel from the firing of the opening gun to the day after election. But that is neither here nor there. You are tired of the country. Shall I telephone the senator that we are going in this afternoon to stay awhile?"

"I shall be delighted," said Patricia, and the eyes which were so apt to tell tales confirmed it. Then she added, "Now that father has his box of books from the university library he will never miss us."

On their first day in the capital Evan was away, but he returned the following morning, and Mrs. Blount captured him for a theater box party.

It proved to be a rather more formidable affair than Evan had anticipated. There was a sufficient number of guests to fill two of the open dress circle boxes. Gantry was of the number, and so were the Weatherfords—father, mother, daughters and son.

Blount had been counting upon a measurably undisturbed evening with Patricia, but fate or a designing hostess intervened, and he found himself cornered between Mrs. Weatherford and her younger daughter, with the square shouldered reform candidate for governor strengthening the barrier which separated him from Patricia.

Blount had met Gordon socially a number of times, and in the intervals allowed him by Mrs. Weatherford he was silently studying the face of the big man, who, if the gods should so direct, might be the leader and chief political figure in the state for the succeeding two years.

It was a good fate and, in Blount's estimate, an exceedingly strong one. Almost unconsciously he fell to contrasting it with that of Reynolds, the candidate for whom the corporation interests were working.

Though Blount himself was on the corporation side, he could not help admitting that the comparison was not favorable to Reynolds. He said to himself that Reynolds' face was the face of a time-server.

Weighing the two men one against the other—Reynolds was sitting in an adjacent box with a party of railroad officials—Blount was conscious of a twinge of regret that chance or his convictions had made him a partisan of the weaker man.

Throughout the play and the intermissions the Weatherfords—mother and daughter—kept him from exchanging so much as a word with Miss Anners, whom Gantry was shamelessly monopolizing. But on the short return walk to the hotel after the play Blount resolutely pushed his friend aside and gave Patricia his arm.

"I think you owe me a very abject apology," was the way she began on him when they had such privacy as the crowded sidewalks conferred.

"Consider them made and then tell me what for," he countered.

"Consider a moment. You come to me with a really harrowing story of your new experiences, and just as I am beginning to get interested there is an interruption, and in the morning, at some perfectly impossible hour, off you go, and we hear no more of you for weeks and weeks. What have you been doing?"

"I have been doing precisely what you told me to do—preaching the gospel of honesty and fair dealing and trying my level best to make other people practice it."

"You have been successful?" she asked quickly.

"Reasonably so in the preaching, since that depended solely upon me. As to the other, I don't know. Sometimes I think the housecleaners are honestly at work, and at other times I am afraid they are putting up a front only to deceive me. Some time perhaps I may tell you how far I have had to go into the 'practical politics' armory to get my weapons."

"And your father, Evan—are you coming to understand him any better?"

"He shook his head despondently. "No, or, rather, yes. I am afraid I am coming to understand him or his methods only too well. The only way we can keep from quarreling now is to banish politics when we are together."

"I am sorry," she said, and the sorrow was emphatic in her tone. "As I have said before, you don't understand him. You are judging him by standards which, however just and true they may be, are peculiarly your own standards. I know you can be broad for others when you try. Can't you be broad for him?"

It was good to hear her defend his father. It was what he would have wished his wife to do. Suddenly there arose within him a huge reluctance to lessen or to weaken in any way her trust in David Blount.

"Let us say that the fault is mine," he said hastily. "God forbid that I should be the means of making you think less of him in any respect!"

"He is simply a grand old man—the best I have ever known for whom the acknowledged phrase seemed to have been made," she asserted warmly. "If he has faults I am sure they are nothing more than gigantic virtues, the faults of a man who is too strong to be little in any way."

With Patricia in town, the "silver-tongued" spellbinder of Quaretero Mesa," as the Daily Capital called the new division counsel, would have been glad to evade some of the speaking appointments, but as his engagements had been made for some days in advance he was obliged to go.

On his return to the capital he was delighted to find the party of three still occupying the private dining room suit in the Inter-Mountain. Arriving on the morning train, he was permitted to make the party of three a party of four at the breakfast table.

Later, however, when he went to his offices in the Temple court building the stenographers asserted themselves again with somewhat startling emphasis. Though he found his desk closed and was reasonably sure that he had in his own possession the only key that would unlock it, he found his papers scattered in confusion under the roll top and the letters and telegrams which had come during his absence opened. A touch of the electric button brought the stenographer from the anteroom.

"Who's been in my desk, Collins?" he demanded, pointing to the confusion and scrutinizing the face of the young man for signs of guilt.

"Goodness gracious! I don't know," was the instant reply, and Blount concluded that the secretary was either innocent or an astonishingly good actor. "I have been putting the mail and telegrams through the letter slit, as you directed, and I've kept the private office locked."

"Nevertheless," said Blount, "it is very evident that somebody has been here." Then he had a sudden shock. "What did you do with that packet of papers I gave you last Monday and told you to put in the safe?"

"I did just what you told me to put it in the cash box and put the key of the cash box on your desk. Didn't you get it?"

Blount felt in his pockets and found the key.

"Get the packet and bring it to me," he directed, giving the stenographer the key to the inner compartment of the safe.

It was not more than a minute later, while he was attempting to bring order out of the confusion on his desk, that a sudden prompting led him to go quickly to the door of the outer office. Snapping it open with a jerk, he caught the clerk in the act of untying the string which bound the thick packet of papers together.

"What are you doing? Why don't you bring it to me?" he called angrily.

"An American invasion. We have often said that no European army could march far into the interior of our country because it would be annihilated without the necessity of defeating it in a pitched battle. If a German army takes Paris, the conquest is completed: if an army takes London, England would ask for peace as she accepted the Norman after Hastings, but when an English army took Washington it did not take time to cheer before starting back to its ships. If there be disadvantage in having many capitals we are not without compensation—to us the taking of Washington would mean no more than the taking of Baldwin or Sopchoppy.—Florida Times-Union.

Improvements in Ocean Travel.
When Charles Dickens went to America he was stuffed into a miserable little cabin and bunk, as comfortable as Falstaff in the buck huckster, and was bumped more unmercifully than was Sancho when tossed in the blanket. Then a winter voyage in the ships of that day facing high gales was an inconceivable horror, and many a voyager sailing to join the family group at Christmas never came home. Now ocean voyaging is safer and more luxurious on the whole than any other form of travel without exception.—London Telegraph.

"Another literary man that I know who was very neat and methodical was Sir Edwin Arnold," says Mrs. T. P. O'Connor in "I Myself."
"He told me that on one occasion in America a newspaper reporter had extracted a long interview from him and just at the end said, 'Now, Sir Edwin, what is your opinion of the American woman?'"
"An exhaustive subject," said Sir Edwin, "but I can dispose of it in one word, 'Afrin.'"
"And what," said the reporter, "does that mean?"
"It is Turkish," said Sir Edwin, "and means, 'O Allah, make many more of them!'"

The Beginning of Satin.
The discovery of the principle of the manufacture of satin was a pure accident. The discovery was made by a silk weaver named Octavio Mal. During a dull period of business one day he was pacing before his loom, not knowing how to give a new impulse to his trade. As he passed the machine each time he pulled short threads from the warp and, following an old habit, put them into his mouth and rolled them about, soon after spitting them upon the floor. Later he discovered a little ball of silk upon the floor of his shop and was astonished at the brilliancy of the threads. He repeated the experiment and eventually employed various maculagnous preparations and succeeded in making satin.

Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." There were still no signs of guilt in Collins' face.

"I was just going to make sure that it was the same package," he said innocently, handing it over at once.

With the packet in an inside pocket of his coat, Blount put on his hat, had himself shot down the elevator and a few minutes afterward was renting a private box in the deposit vaults of a bank in the next street. When he returned to his office another touch of the electric button ressumoned Collins.

"Sit down," said Blount, indicating a chair. "I have been reasonably kind to you, haven't I, Fred?"

"Yes, sir; very kind indeed," was the clerk's admission.

"Yet you have let some one bribe you to be disloyal to me," was the direct charge. "Who was it, Collins?"

"I don't know anything about it, Mr. Blount. If I was going to die the next minute I couldn't say anything different."

"You've got to say something different if you want to stay with me," said the master decisively. "Did you know what was in that package you put in the safe?"

"No."

"Yet you said you were untying it to see if it were the same package I gave you last Monday. You are lying to me, Collins. You opened my desk to hunt for the key of the cash box. Sit tight in the boat. I'm not going to fire you. I merely want to know who hired you to do this."

"If I did it I must have done it in my sleep," was all the reply the young man would make, and after trying a threat or two Blount dismissed him.

This was the first of a series of incidents all pointing toward the same conclusion—that some one was evidently determined to let him have no rest.

Will be here soon. The season for beautifying the graves of our dead. Nothing adds so much to the good appearance of a cemetery lot as a well-proportioned dignified Memorial.

It need not be large and showy—for the headstone or monument of smaller dimensions tells the same story of a friend gone but not forgotten, and perpetuates their memory, just the same as the more pretentious stone.

We carry a large stock of finished monuments, headstones, markers, etc., and can set your work on short notice. Write for catalogue.

Farm and Garden

BETTER PAY FOR FARM HANDS

Wages Last Year Higher Than For the Last Forty-five Years.

Higher wages were paid to American farm laborers in 1910 than at any time in the last forty-five years, according to statistics just made public by the department of agriculture. The average wage for the country was $27.50 per month in 1910, while twenty years ago it was only $18.33. With board the average wage was $19.21.

In some parts of the country the rate of wages of farm laborers was higher than in others. The highest was in Nevada, where the rate was $54, while in Montana and Washington it was $50. South Carolina paid the lowest rate, $16.50 per month.

In the New England and north Atlantic states the average was $33.19, with Massachusetts paying the highest, $37.20. With board the average was $21.65.

In the south Atlantic states the average was $19.75, with West Virginia paying the highest, $29. With board the average was $13.77.

In the northern central states east of the Mississippi the average was $31.81, with Wisconsin paying the highest, $37.25. With board the average was $22.94.

In the northern central states west of the Mississippi the average was $35.45, with North Dakota paying the highest, $42. With board the average was $25.10.

In the southern central states the average was $21.90, with Oklahoma paying the highest, $28.10. With board the average was $15.28.

In the far western states the average was $46.48, with Nevada paying the highest, $54. With board the average was $32.69.

NO FLIES ATE THESE RADISHES

New Remedy to Kill the Peats is Based on Arsenate and Wool Fat.

The radish fly is bound to make its appearance in early spring, says Farm and Fireside, and to lay its eggs on or near the roots of the radish plants it happens to find, and the eggs will hatch, and the young maggots will bore into the radishes. No method of manuring, whether with stable manure, old compost or chemical fertilizers, will protect the plants. Boiling water will, of course, kill the maggots or eggs it touches, but it cannot be applied free ly enough to kill those already inside the root without also killing the plant. It is not a complete nor a safe remedy.

The free application of tobacco dust, with or without bonemeal, next to the rows of plants, will tend to keep the fly away and prevent in some measure the deposition of eggs. Many sprays, especially tobacco tea, kerosene emulsion and probably lime sulphur solution will also kill the worms touched by them, but the applications should be made repeatedly at short intervals so as to catch the maggots before they find a safe retreat inside of the root. This year we have a new compound remedy in a combination of lime and sulphur solution with lead arsenate and wool fat.

Double Your Milk Supply.
Think of what a chance the dairy farmers of the United States are missing to make double the profit they now do. A few years ago the average product per cow in Denmark was 3,000 pounds of milk. Simply by following the advice of the Danish dairy students the production of milk has been brought up to 6,000 pounds per cow. The Danish farmers have been willing to learn, willing to appreciate good advice when they got it and are making double the profit they once did. American farmers can do the same thing if they will follow the same good dairy sense.

After more than 6,000 years of production in the older countries of Europe the yields of crops are large and increasing from their more intelligent methods of intensive culture.

MAKE YOUR OWN SEED TESTER

Two Pie Plates Intelligently Used May Improve Next Season's Crops.

Good seed is important to large yields of crops. It does not pay to carefully prepare land for a crop and then sow seed that lacks in vitality and a large percentage of which will not grow. The principal seeds which should be tested before using are clover, alfalfa and corn. It is a simple matter to do this and one that should be attended to before spring's work begins.

The accompanying illustration shows a homemade seed tester which can be made of two pie tins or two ordinary table plates and two pieces of muslin. If alfalfa seed is to be tested

CHEAP, BUT EFFECTIVE SEED TESTER.

Take 100 seeds from different portions of the seed package and place them on a moist cloth on a plate, then cover them with a moist cloth and another plate. The plates should be kept in a reasonably warm room, and each day open the plates and lift the cover cloth. In a few days all the good seeds will be sprouted. By counting the unsprouted seeds and noting the character of the sprouts of all the seeds a person will know the percentage of germinable seed and the vitality of the seed.

In testing corn faster work can be done with a larger tester and divided into small squares, each large enough to hold three kernels of seed. Each square should be numbered so it can be easily designated from which ear the kernels are taken. The principles of the larger tester are the same as the one herewith illustrated. When corn is tested it is customary to take three kernels from an ear, one from tip, one from the center and the other from the butt. Ears showing a low germination test and weak in vitality should be discarded.—Hoard's Dairyman.

HER EGGS HIGHEST YET.

Aeroplaning Men Produces Them in the Air Every Day.

An up to date bantam hen residing near New York has taken to aviation, but combines business and sport. To say she lays while she flies sounds paradoxical, but is true.

A rustic hanging basket in her mistress' grape arbor was spied by the aspiring bantam one day last week. She flew up, and the impetus she gave the basket set it swinging like a pendulum. The hen enjoyed the flight in the monoplane so greatly that she paid her fare by depositing an egg in the basket.

Since then she has taken a flight every day and has laid an egg every time. Omelets are light as air when made from these aerial eggs. Biddy's owner intends to raise chickens in mid-atmosphere, as she thinks they might bring high prices.

Female Supremacy.

A 1,000 pound steer goes to the block and that is the end of him, but only a fairly good dairy cow will produce several times her own weight in milk each year and keep it up during her entire active life. What is the answer?

The wise farmer plans his summer time work in the midst of cold weather.

Orchard and Garden.

Scatter wood ashes through the orchard, especially on the sandy parts. If you are not using any system of cover crops keep the orchard well cultivated for two reasons, to keep down weeds and to conserve the soil moisture.

Rough, stormy weather should be utilized in preparing the frames and in replacing broken glass in the hot-bed and gold frame sash. It is desirable to paint sash at least every other year.

If the orchard is an old one with trees headed high let the chickens run in it and disk frequently, at least twice in three weeks. This will not only cultivate, but also furnishes a good scratching place for the chickens.

If the orchard is young it should, of course, be headed low. In this case work under the trees with an extension frame harrow. This harrow has a frame which may be extended so as to throw the discs out to the sides. This tool may be used as an ordinary harrow or may be used to straddle rows and is a very useful tool for the horticulturalist.

Look for borers in the trunks of the young peach trees. If you find holes with gum exuding, either dig out the borer or kill him by thrusting a piece of wire into the hole and twisting it around. Examine all grafts and remove any branches which might switch them loose. If the scions are growing cut away all the suckers which have started around the edges of the cut.

FLY CASTING FOR TROUT.

How to Become Proficient in Sport That Needs Patience.

Fly casting can no more be taught theoretically than can wing shooting, riding, skating, swimming, milking a cow or playing the violin. A few general hints in regard to casting as well as to the other accomplishments may, however, be useful to the beginner.

Hold the rod loosely. Watch some good caster and imitate him. The skillful caster is he who can quickly place his fly within the space of a handkerchief at a distance of fifty feet. Much longer casts are made, but this answers every practical purpose. When a fish has struck and is hooked, look out for him and keep your line taut as he leaps out of the water. The line is kept moderately tight by elevating the point of the rod.

Every caster should learn to use the rod with either hand, and no man is an expert who cannot do this. To say nothing of a sprained wrist and consequent loss of sport during the season or being obliged to cease fishing from fatigue and weakness of one hand, there are certain winds in some situations where a cast cannot be made with the right hand. Again, it is important to be able to cast a fly in the teeth of the wind, which, when properly done, often lifts the very best fish. It is not very difficult, but is very laborious and requires practice.

It is not accomplished by either the single or double turn, but is done by bringing the rod right up in front, avoiding, if possible, the wind taking the rod to the right or left. When the rod is almost straight press the butt strongly toward the body with the wrist, keeping the arm as close to the side as possible until the tip of the rod comes about three-quarters straight against or in the eye of the wind, and then turn the arm out directly forward, turning the wrist during the forward movement outside or toward the right side. By this mode, which is more easily done than described, the line which should be only of manageable length, will unfold and display a pretty fair cast. At all events, the waves or turbulent state of the water will conceal the defective fall of the flies.

The wind, the sun and even the time of day are important factors in the success of the fly caster. Trout seldom rise to the fly just before rain

If it is a cheap rug you want—we have some Brussels Rugs in 9x12 size, very good style too, at $11 and some others of a little better quality for $12.75.

In extra quality Brussels Rugs, 9x12 size, we have a line of very fine small figured patterns at $19.75. These we recommend highly.

And in Wilton Velvet Rugs, there are some great values at $20 and $23; these rugs are seamless, too.

Then there are some Axminster Rugs at $21 which will look good to every one. The patterns are fine for use in parlors.

Half Wool Ingrain Carpets of very heavy quality, may be had at 45c a yard.

Our best all Wool Ingrain Carpets, Gold Medal brand, woven with extra heavy double and twisted worsted warp, is selling for 70c a yard.

Stair Carpets may be had in granite quality at 15c, 25c and 30c; brussels from 65c up.

How to Care For Shrubs.
When the winter is breaking up and you are reasonably sure of mild weather, gradually remove all protective material that was used in the winter, but keep it handy for use again should an unexpected cold snap come.

Much afresh with well rotted manure all nursery stock that was planted last fall and give an overhauling to all the shrubbery. Cut out all dead wood which has been overlooked and prune roses and all shrubs that flower on the current season's growth. Attend to the roses as soon as possible.

Cold winters often injure the tops of rose plants without injuring the roots. In such cases the tops should be cut off at or below the point where freezing stopped, which is often close to the ground.

For climbing roses the removal of dead wood is sufficient pruning.

How to Form a Library.

Apropos of a conscience stricken borrower who recently sent to the London library the published price of some books which he had taken out of the institution years ago and forgotten to return a contemporary relates the following: A visitor was being shown around a library by the owner and admired it very much. He asked for advice about book collecting. "My advice," said the collector, "is simple. Never lend books." "Never lend books," said the inquirer, rather mystified. "No; never lend books. Do you see these shelves?" indicating with a sweep of his arm a couple of thousand books or so. "Well, every one of these was borrowed."—London Globe.

How to Clean Ormolu.

Dull and stained ormolu is not difficult to clean with powdered whiting moistened with gin. This cleaning paste should be rubbed on with a small brush, the bristles of which are hard, so that it is possible to work it into the chased design. When the paste has dried on it should be removed with a hard brush and the piece polished with a clean leather.

How to Cook Beans.

A German woman cooks a sprig or two of mint with string beans. The beans are always cut lengthwise instead of across, as is usual with American cooks, and they are parboiled and rinsed before going into the final water with the mint.

How to Restore Color to a Turquoise.

A turquoise which has lost its blue color and becomes green may be restored by soaking it in pure alcohol for two weeks and drying carefully in sawdust for a week. If the color changes again repeat.

How to Make Cake Filling.

A delicious filling for layer cake is made by mixing a pound of finely minced shelled almonds with two eggs, a cupful of confectioner's sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla.

Village and Vicinity News.

—Dudley Robertson of Ithaca was a Sunday visitor in town.

—Miss Edith Hunter has been visiting Moravia friends for the past week.

—Mrs. Lafayette Allen and daughter Emma are in Ithaca for a few days.

—F. C. Hagin and family were Sunday guests at the home of his sister, Mrs. Winn, at Ellsworth.

—Mrs. Marion Clark and daughter, Mrs. Grace Harrington of Knoxville, Pa., are visiting their cousin, Mrs. Eliza Beardsley.

—Mrs. F. J. Bryant and daughter, Miss Nina, arrived from New York Friday last to spend the summer with Mrs. Addie Miller.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Eccles and children of Auburn and Mr. E. C. Knapp of Fayetteville were Sunday guests at the home of Cashier A. H. Knapp.

—Mrs. Chas. Cannon and daughter arrived from Rochester Saturday evening to spend some time with relatives. Mr. Cannon is reported as gaining slowly.

—Mrs. H. S. Hopkins and Mrs. Major and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hatch were at King Ferry on Sunday to attend the funeral of Alfred Lanterman.—Groton Journal.

—A meeting of the school directors of the towns of the county will be held on Tuesday, May 16. The appointment of school superintendents is not made until August.

—Mrs. J. H. Rease is visiting in Cortland and Harford Mills this week and next Monday Mr. and Mrs. Rease expect to go to Glenwood for the summer. The season at Glenwood will open May 15.

—Mrs. E. H. Tift of Ithaca was a guest of Mrs. D. W. Gower on Thursday and Friday last, and attended the Eastern Star meeting and banquet at North Lansing Friday night.

—The Auburn District Epworth League annual convention will be held in the Clyde M. E. church, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24. Auburn district comprises some forty Leagues, which will be represented on that occasion by about 200 delegates.

Don't fail to see the beautiful Oxford in black and tan, $3, $3.50 and $4.00, just received at Genoa Clothing Store.

—Rev. T. J. Searls will exchange pulpits next Sunday with Rev. W. C. Brass of Dryden. Mr. Brass, who formerly preached at King Ferry, is well known here and many will doubtless avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him preach. Services as usual at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Evening topic, "Every Man in His Place." Sunday school and C. E. society at regular time. All are invited.

—It may not generally be known that operating an incubator on insured property without permission of the company issuing the policy invalidates the policy and no indemnity will be paid if a fire occurs, even if the incubator were not the cause of it. Policies covering farm property have the incubator prohibition clause printed in the form, while others would come under the general rule regarding extra hazardous acts. On application permission is granted to use incubators, which protects the policy holder from loss.—Ex.

—In reply to the question, "Well, what makes a town anyway?" an exchange says: "Just one thing—the unity of the people, the existence of a common bond which causes business and social enemies to put aside all differences when it comes to boosting the town. No town ever made real progress on the way to substantial success without the get-together spirit unanimously adopted. Any town with half a chance can be made to grow and expand and thrive when its citizens join with one accord in the boosting program."

—W. W. Potter of Auburn spent Sunday with his family here.

—David Kinney has returned from the Soldiers' Home at Bath to Genoa for a time.

—Miss Bernice Gibson and Mrs. Victor Fulkerson of Etna were over-Sunday guests at the home of their brother, Chas. Gibson.

—Mrs. Arthur Goodman and children of Lucas, So. Dakota, have recently come to Venice to reside. Mrs. Goodman is a sister of Mrs. W. W. Beach.

—Mrs. Naomi Purinton celebrated her 80th birthday on Friday last at the home of her son, F. C. Purinton. She received 94 post cards and letters.

—Arthur H. Knapp entertained a few friends at dinner last Friday evening. The gentlemen were invited by Mrs. Knapp as a little birthday surprise for her husband.

—A. D. Stryker, who has been a keeper in Auburn prison for several years, has moved to his farm at West Groton on account of the ill health of his son, Millard.

—Among those suffering from tonsillitis the past week are Arthur B. Peck, Miss Ida Mastin and Mrs. W. W. Potter, who is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Alving.

—Mrs. Eliza Beardsley was much pleased and comforted by the good wishes expressed by the postal shower from friends and members of the W. C. T. U., on May 3.

—There will be a business meeting of the Philathea class in the Grammar room of the Genoa Academy on Friday, May 12, from 4 to 7 p. m. All members are requested to be present.

Mrs. C. D. Loomis will be at the home of Mrs. W. S. Loomis in Genoa village, Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13, to demonstrate the advantages of the La Grecque corset. All ladies are invited to call.

—Mrs. T. J. Searls goes to Newark Valley Saturday to spend a week with her son and family. Mr. Searls will join her there Monday for a short visit, after spending Sunday at Dryden, where he will preach in exchange with Mr. Brass.

—Mrs. F. W. Auer and Miss Marguerite Drescher of Syracuse were in town Friday last. They came to Locke to attend the interment of the remains of the former's mother, Mrs. Muth, and her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Carson, which were placed in the receiving vault in the winter, in the Bird cemetery.

—The contract for the new bridge over Salmon creek in Genoa village was let by the Town Board on Wednesday to the Groton Bridge Co. The new bridge will have a concrete platform through the center, 20 feet wide, and a walk on both sides, 4 feet in width, also of concrete. It is expected that the work will be commenced in a few weeks.

—The State will expend about $50,000 in establishing a modern system of fire protection at the capitol, making a repetition of the disastrous fire of last month practically impossible. State Education Commissioner Draper informs Governor Dix that an appropriation of $1,000,000 should be made in the next two years to provide for a restoration of the state library, destroyed in the recent fire in the capitol.

—Three young women of St. Lawrence county are planning to take up a work on a big scale which is eminently fitted for their sex—broiler and poultry raising.

A large section of land, especially adapted to the business has been secured near Theresa. All the feed for the poultry will be home grown, the broilers will be sold to the big hotels in that section which have already contracted for hundreds of them and a special effort will be made to have a heavy egg production during the months the eggs are highest. The farm will be a feminine one from superintendent down to feed mixer, the young women expecting to make a success without bossing or assistance from any men.—Ex.

—The Baraca class of the Presbyterian Sunday school will meet at the home of Mrs. W. W. Beach to-night.

—Four candidates took the third degree at the meeting of Genoa Star Lodge, Wednesday evening. Next week there will be initiation of new members.

—The East Genoa Ladies' Aid society will meet Wednesday afternoon, May 17, at the home of Rev. F. Allington at North Lansing. Supper will be served and a full attendance is especially desired. All are invited.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen left on Monday for Newark, N. J., where Mr. Allen has a lucrative position as architectural designer with the American Concrete Steel Company. Mr. and Mrs. Allen visited his parents in Elmira a few days last week before leaving for their new home. Mrs. Allen was formerly Miss Edna Strong.—Locke Courier.

—Some of our subscribers did not receive their last week's papers until Monday and Tuesday of this week. We wish to state that this was no fault of ours, as every bundle of papers left our office at the usual time last Friday morning, and we cannot explain why they were held up in this way. Some of Uncle Sam's clerks must have gone fishing for a day or two.

—Next Sunday, the 14th inst., will be observed as Mothers' Day, throughout the civilized world. The wearing of white carnations on that day will be regarded as a visible expression of the love and gratitude that men, women and children owe their mothers. All National, State, County and municipal, religious, fraternal and patriotic organizations are requested to take official cognizance of the day.

—At the regular meeting of North Lansing Chapter, O. E. S., No. 236, last Friday evening, R. W. D. G. M., Minnie Lobdell of Ithaca and R. W. A. G. L., Chas. D. Anderson of Union Springs were present, and the work was exemplified in full form. An elaborate banquet was served and visitors were present from Syracuse, Ithaca and other places. Over forty were in attendance, including several members from Genoa.

—There is a right and a wrong way of reading a newspaper. To gaze blankly at a page and let the eye roam from one part of it to another, often results in the reader missing some item or article of particular interest. If a person will take the first page, for instance, and commencing with the first column, follow it down to the bottom, reading the headings or the articles as interest may prompt, and continue through the whole paper in the same way, one will often be surprised at the amount of interesting matter which he will find and which otherwise he would not have noticed. It might be objected that this process would take too much time, but this is not true, for it really takes less time than by the common hit-or-miss plan, and the results are much more satisfactory. Try it and see.—Fairport Mail.

Wreck Near Elmira.

A passenger train on the Elmira and Cortland division of the Lehigh Valley railroad, due at Elmira at noon, was wrecked about eight miles north of that city Monday and over fifty people were injured, some perhaps fatally.

The train left Van Etten about 45 minutes late and was making up time. When near Fowlers Crossing, between Horseheads and Breesport, the tender, baggage car and two coaches were derailed. The tender and baggage car ran over the ties and passed over a culvert, but the two coaches were thrown down an embankment and turned over.

Among the most seriously injured are Mrs. Della Hollenbeck of Erin, Thomas Linderman of Swartwood, and Perley Dickinson of Cortland. J. J. Chandler of Moravia was among the injured, but it is thought he will be able to come to his home in a few days.

Death of John Norman.

The death of John Norman, probably the oldest resident of this town, occurred at his home about two miles east of this village, on Wednesday of this week. Mr. Norman resided with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Eason, and family, and although he had been gradually declining for several months, his death was quite unexpected at this time. His death was due to old age, and he suffered no pain during the last days of his life.

John Norman was born Aug. 4, 1819, and consequently would have rounded out 92 years, had he lived until August. His birthplace was Beaumont, Cumberland county, England, and he came to America when 33 years of age. On Sept. 27, 1853, he married Margaret Sill of this town, and they began housekeeping at the place now known as the E. H. Sharp place east of the village. Two years later, they moved to the farm where his death occurred, their entire life after marriage having been spent in the same school district. After the death of Mrs. Norman several years ago, he spent a part of the time in Venice and in this village.

He is survived by three children—Mrs. Geo. Eason, Messrs. W. D. and L. B. Norman—all of Genoa.

The funeral will be held at his late home on Saturday at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. O. Brass of Dryden will officiate. Burial in Genoa cemetery.

WAYS TO SOLVE DUST PROBLEM

Roads Can Be Made Healthful Without Water.

ARTIFICIAL METHODS USED.

Solvay, Granulated Calcium Chloride and Dustoline Have Been Found to Absorb Moisture From Air and Keep Highways Dustless—Can Be Sprinkled on Roads by "Dry" Method.

At present the science of road building, at least of building what may be called general utility roads, is in an important phase of its development, says Good Roads of New York. The methods that were satisfactory so long as the vehicles passing over the roads were drawn by horses have been found inadequate for the construction of roads capable of withstanding the destructive effects of motor driven vehicles, and new methods are being evolved. Meanwhile the old roads must be adapted as well as possible to the present conditions.

Excepting smoothness of surface, perhaps nothing is more essential to the comfort and well being of those using a road or spending a portion of their time in its immediate vicinity than that it be free from dust.

Various means have been tried in the endeavor to solve the dust problem. In general they may be classed as prevention and suppression, the dividing line being by no means easily drawn, since suppression necessarily implies a measure of prevention. The prevention of the formation of dust is more or less a matter of construction, while suppression is the laying of the dust constantly forming on the surface of roads.

Since the majority of the roads of the country are earth, gravel or water bound macadam one of the chief phases of the dust problem is the laying of dust on these roads. It is generally conceded that water sprinkling, at least by the methods commonly employed, is not practicable for the ma-majority of such roads on account of the frequent difficulty of obtaining water near at hand and the consequent excessive cost; therefore various artificial dust layers have been produced, many of them acting with water to produce the desired effect.

As compared with water sprinkling for dust laying, the use of the various artificial palliatives is generally considered the cheaper.

Calcium chloride is a highly hygroscopic and deliquescent salt. The commercial form, known under the trade name of Solvay granulated calcium chloride, is a byproduct of the manufacture of soda by the Solvay process. It contains about 75 per cent of calcium chloride and about 25 per cent of moisture. Its effectiveness as a dust layer depends very much upon its property of retaining moisture applied to the road surface and absorbing moisture from the atmosphere, thus greatly increasing the effect of water applied directly to the road, and also making available that existing in the air above it. It is applied by either of two methods, the "wet" or the "dry."

By the first it is dissolved in water and applied from an ordinary sprinkling cart, a solution of from one pound to one and one-half pounds of the material to each gallon of water being used. The second method is especially applicable where water is not easily obtained, though it is often used elsewhere. By this method the dry material in its granular form is spread directly upon the road and allowed to dissolve by the absorption of moisture from the air.

Dustoline is a transparent liquid of a brown or plum color, practically without odor. It is shipped in barrels or in tank cars and is applied directly to the road without heating or mixing with water or other material. Ordinary water sprinkling carts may be used to apply it, or it may be sprinkled by hand with a garden watering pot. It acts as a dust layer by holding together the fine particles on the road surface in a moist condition, thereby keeping the road free from dust.

THE MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

WOMAN AND HER CLUB

By BYRON WILLIAMS

THERE'S a yellow streak in some people as pumpkin colored as a bed of caleduill.

Today I saw a mother sobbing out her heart. From the darkened front room came the sweetly nauseous odor of tuberose. Surrounded by white waters and lilies of the valley, his nut browned hands clasped mutely across his breast, this woman's only son lay in there asleep.

Down behind the grocery store stove old Abe Haskins helped himself to a silver of codfish and remarked that "While it wa'n't charitable to say so now, if Mrs. Jones had paid less attention to that Browning club and more to her home the boy wouldn't have run away and got killed on the railroad."

Which not only was not charitable, but was not true. It not only was not true, but by the time the remark had reached this broken reed of a woman, steeped in woe, it was a crime—a crime committed against the purest and the most abject of God's creatures, a helpless mother, sobbing, "Oh, my boy, my boy!"

The facts are that Willie Jones did not run away and get killed because his mother, weary with the tedium of housekeeping and longing for something to divert and elevate her mind, joined the Browning club. It wasn't because she gave one day a week to endeavor to grasp hold of something above the sordid level of things that Willie went away like Robinson Crusoe and came back like Cardinal Wolsey.

On the contrary, it was because Willie, just like his mother, longed to do something different—yearned to vitalize the spark of adventure or the coal of ambition or romance, for frequently they are the same, that was within him. He went away because things were rather dull around home. He had explored the same woods all summer, gone in swimming in the same "old swimmin' hole" and had his shirt tattered in the same old knots for epochs. He had sawed wood with the same old saw, always dull, and split kindling with the same old broken handled ax ever since the birth of doriculture. He had tagged home the same old brindle colored, contrary minded, crumpled horned cow for centuries, and the night before, to add insult to injury, her wabby legged, bang haired calf had kicked him in the apple granary of his anatomy with its snout and made him mad.

Dwelling upon the same old Sunday school lesson and remembering that Horace Dodds, the village banker, once had told his father there wasn't much in that town for a boy to look forward to, Willie had jumped the freight and gone away. Day Crockett had done the same thing and heaps of other great men, and why shouldn't he?

Mother, go to all the clubs you can without forcing too much fried beefsteak on to the family, but do not let your boy's hope grow dim or wander off into pirate roosts and the lairs of Lotharios. Do not let lofty ambition die within him. Keep him interested in something higher and better than putting the pool ball into the corner pocket. See that he has something to do mentally as well as physically. Keep his mind busy imagining. Keep his aspirations burnished. Keep an

Meal light burning.

The government is spending $50,000 a year to improve the government mule—and it isn't spending the money in cheap restaurants for cigarettes. Don't let the mule beat the boy.

Do not be afraid of the fire in your son as long as you have control of the throttle. It is the force, the energy, the dynamo of his being. Themistocles was so full of spirit that his tutors feared for him. He became not only a great general, but a most prudent one. Keep the fire of energy under the boy and point him toward the stars—toward pure women, great men.

If you learn something worth while at the Browning club come home and tell the boy about it. Get his confidence by being his companion. Help to create a fellowship between the boy and his father, but, most of all, make him understand a mother's love. The realization of it in after years will be the greatest heritage you can leave him—the holiest of holy memories.

KEEP HIS ASPIRATIONS BURNISHED.

The Thrice-A-Week Edition

OF THE

New York World

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The great political campaigns are now at hand, and you want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-A-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE GENOA TRIBUNE together for one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

American Fence

The famous American wire fence has been improved in two ways; first, heavier wires; and second, a heavier coating of galvanizing.

We sell a new fence made especially for chickens and cattle at a lower price than ordinary poultry netting. It is a bargain.

When You Buy a Suit

You never have very much trouble in finding the shade or pattern you want; but what about the QUALITY, do you always get as good as you think you are entitled to?

Now you owe it to yourself to get the most you can for your money, and the place to get it is Egbert's. We make this assertion in full knowledge of how it sounds and exactly what it means and stand ready to prove it to your entire satisfaction.

Men's Suits $12.50 to $30.00.

C. R. EGBERT,

The People's Clothier, Hatter and Furnisher,

75 Genesee St., AUBURN, N. Y.

If You Will Come

and see the reduced prices on our Coats and Suits you will realize that we are offering better values than you can obtain elsewhere.

Owing to the cold season we have more Coats and Suits in stock than usual, and have decided to cut the prices early that we may dispose of them before the warm weather.

Our Annual MAY WHITE SALE

BEGINS SATURDAY, 13TH

Bringing You All Claseses of White Merchandise at Prices Much Below Market Value.

WE instituted these White Sales in Auburn twelve years ago. What a lot we thought of ourselves the first White Sale, but what a lot we had to learn! We are interested each year to do something better so that this year we ought to have twelve more "betters," than when we started; we think we have.

The advertising alone does not make a White Sale, nor mere bulk of merchandise, nor the mere fact of its being held in the Big Store, but it's the bringing together of special purchases and the putting of special prices on our regular reliable stock of White Goods during this month of May when White Goods are so much wanted. In other words it's the giving you The Right Goods, in the Right Styles, at the Right Prices, at the Right Time.

During the May White Sale out-of-town customers coming from within a radius of 40 miles will have car fare refunded one way on general purchases of $10 and over, and both ways on purchases of $20 and over, and if goods are not satisfactory bring or send them back and have your money refunded.

How to Choose a Teapot.
The real secret of choosing a teapot, be it made of silver, crown derby or even the humble but useful brown "mug," is this: Never buy a teapot with the root of the spout low down in the body of the pot. Let the spout be set high in the body, then you can fill the pot well up without the tea dribbling over, as it never falls to do when having a low built spout close to the teapot's foundation. Far too many fancy articles are made and sold more fit to stand among chimney-piece ornaments than to brew and pour that welcome beverage which cheers, but does not inebriate.

How to Rinse Blankets.
In washing fabrics of delicate color and in washing blankets be careful to rinse in water the same temperature as that in which the garment is washed.

This is particularly necessary in the case of blankets, as careful washing is often rendered useless by too sudden change of temperature in rinsing. In neither case must the water be too hot.

How to Test Eggs.
Take a deep dish, fill with cold water and drop in your eggs. If they are fresh they will sink to the bottom on their side; if they are cold storage they will float on end. Take some fresh eggs and some cold storage eggs and try it. This is an unerring test.

How to Darn Stockings.
An ingenious woman darns all her stockings over shoe trees. She says that as the stockings are held in the shape in which they are worn the darns are more comfortable to wear, as they conform to the shape of the foot.

Object Lesson in Advertising.

Those who believe that women don't read the advertisements in the newspapers might have had a convincing object lesson of the fallacy of their views a few days ago. The proprietor of a chain of New York grocery stores determined to test the matter by inserting in all the leading papers a coupon which, presented in person, would entitle the holder to one dozen eggs for ten cents. The advertisement appeared in the evening papers, and on the following morning the streets in the neighborhood of all the stores were almost blocked with women. Special police had to be assigned to keep the anxious bargain seekers from fighting each other in their anxiety to take advantage of the great offer. Although the grocer lost money on the egg deal, he has gained hundreds of new customers and his business for the week following "egg day" has been the biggest he has ever had by thousands of dollars.—Ex

STRAW AS FACTOR IN ROAD BUILDING

Found to Give Best Results When Mixed With Soil.

CAN SUPPORT HEAVIER LOADS.

Though This New Method Costs More, It Makes a Road That Will Outlast Gravel and Cinders—Straw to Play an Important Part in the Good Roads Movement.

Wheat straw will play an important part in many miles of new good roads which will soon be built in this country. Straw has been used for years on roads in Washington. It has been found to give the best results when put on wet and mixed with the soil. When scattered loosely on the road it ignites and the work of weeks is lost.

The newer plans are better yet for the application of straw. In the first place, the roads will be plowed and graded and brought to a crown. When the roadbed has been harrowed and made level the straw is put on to a depth of six inches. A disk cutter is used to cut the straw up and mix it into the earth. If all the straw works into the roadbed more straw is put on until a cushion is formed. A steam roller packs the earth and straw into a hard mat as durable as asphalt and a road which will turn off water if the grade is right.

The new method of mixing the straw with the soil costs more than that of throwing straw into the ruts and making a road that will outlast gravel and cinders. Gravel is expensive, and the cost of hauling is heavy. In all the lowlands and uplands in this country straw will be used with the clay soil.

For $25 a mile a year the state highway commission of Minnesota can take the most sandy road in the state and turn it into a highway which can be worked with a road grader, by the use of straw, sawdust or clover, whichever is the most convenient. It has been doing this in various parts of the state for the last few years, paying for the improved roads from the expense fund of the commission, but it will ask the legislature for more money to extend this work to other parts of the state and will extend it just as far as the legislature sees fit to permit it by the limit on the appropriation.

Near Cambridge, Minn., an experimental road was made with sawdust several years ago, but the supply at the local sawmill gave out, and straw was used during the past season and with better results. The straw works into the sand, forming a vegetable loam which can be handled by the road grader and will also support heavier loads than are possible with the sand in its natural condition.

G. W. Cooley, state engineer, also has shown the people what can be accomplished by constant watch of the roads, as is done in foreign countries, by maintaining a man on a stretch of road all the time. Last season a road six miles south of Stillwater, Minn., was under experiment. The year before a road leading from St. Paul into Dakota county was watched. For $25 a mile for the season these or other roads can be kept in such condition that they may be used every day during the experiment.

Co-operation Needed in Road Work.
There is no sort of public work in which folks are interested generally where the principle of co-operation could be followed to better advantage than in the care of the public highways. In some sections this fact seems to be recognized, in some others not.

Especially is there need of this co-operation in those sections where earth roads are the rule and where the character of the soil is such that there is need of working it at a critical time following heavy rains or wet seasons. Particularly is this true of stiff clay or adobe soils, which can be advantageously worked and leveled only when they possess the proper amount of moisture and the right consistency.

WHAT BAD ROADS COST.

Bad roads cost the people of America $12.50 "a head" each year. That is the waste computed from government statistics. It represents the extra expense of hauling foodstuffs to market over bad roads contrasted with the expense of the same hauling over good roads. That loss is much more in amount than the total of all the revenues of the nation and forty-six states for the same period.—Kansas City Star.

Texas on the Good Roads Wagon.
The use of the automobile in Texas has caused a demand for better roads. It has taught the farmers to see the saving in having good roads and road improvement, and road building is going on in nearly every community.

Texas will have one of the longest automobile roads in the United States when a few unfinished links are completed. This road will extend from Houston to Brownsville by the way of Corpus Christi, Kingsville and intermediate points. Connecting with this at Corpus Christi will be another road to San Antonio. This will be completed the coming summer.

Your Attention Please!

If you have no buggy you will want one, and the one you will want is the Haydock. I have just received a fresh carload of these buggies. It does not take any hot air to sell the Haydock line; they are the kind that sell themselves. You will readily see at a glance that the finish and design has the other fellow beat. Also a fresh stock of single and double harness all styles and prices. I also have the Milburn lumber wagon conceded by every one to be the best manufactured. Be sure and call and look the stock over before buying elsewhere. No trouble to show goods. What we say we will do, we do do.
