Valuable Land.

There are prospects that Cayuga county may, by the building of the barge canal, come into possession of thousands of acres of the finest and most fertile land for truck farming to be found in the country. The Montezuma marshes, which have laid for ages a barren waste of sluggish wa ter and reeds, will be bared by the building of the big canal and will be converted into the finest and most fertile kind of land for raising celery and onions and other profitable garden crops. It is believed by many that the quality and quantity of celery that can be raised on this barren waste when the water is gone will more than equal that of the famous celery growing district of Florids. At the present time there is a top coating of woody matter that becomes highly inflammable when dried, and this will have to be burned over, but when this is done it will make the land all the more prolific.

Agricultural experts who have examined the land there are of the opinion that it will be the most fertile and profitable tract of land for the growing of garden crops in the country, as the unexhausted condition of the soil will prove highly fertile and productive for years This, in connection with the close proximity of the city markets, will make the land very valuable for truck farming.—Ex.

PROLOGUE.

This story of a young man's honest attempt to "break" the "boss" and the power of the "machine" is an absorbingly intimate portrayal of the working of the "wheels within wheels" in a desperate political struggle of today. The senator, strongly intrenched behind his party "machine," presents an almost invalnerable front, and the conflict between father and son as this young lawyer, single handed, fights for what he honestly believes to be the truth and right holds one with a tremendous sympathetic interest.

hind my back? What will the people of this state say to me and about me when the corruption is exposed?"

"Ah," she said, "that is just where have chosen.'

"Patricia, you are an inspiration. If anyway." I could only have you beside me to give me my battle word I shouldn't mind the odds against me."

"Now you are tempting me," she said slowly, "and it isn't fair. You know my weakness and passion to help. You mustn't tempt me, Evan."

What he would have said, with what passionate pleadings he would have pressed the advantage gained by his appeal for the larger help, she was not to know, for at that moment the portieres were drawn aside, and the small house mistress appeared in the doorway of the smoking den.

"You two." she scolded, with light hearted austerity, and then to Evan: "Don't you know that we keep country hours here at Wartrace? The professor will be up and calling for the car at 6 o'clock, and it's past midnight. Shame on you! Run away and get your beauty sleep, both of you!"

CHAPTER XIII. BARRIERS INVISIBLE.

LOUNT drove himself back to the capital the following morning in the big roadster, and there was no opportunity for further confidential speech with Patricia before he left. But with the new day had come a new determination. To the best of his ability he would try to live up to the high standard set for him by the woman he loved, not only preaching the gospel of political righteousness, but doing his utmost to try to make it effective.

me some more about that telegram?" was his greeting.

Blount shook his head. "No. If you have sent it, well and good; if you haven't, you may pitch it into the wastebasket. I came to talk about something else."

"Good, sound, sensible second thought," said Gantry, laughing. Then he took out his pocketbook and passed the suppressed telegram across to Blount. "Here it is. You can do the wastebasket act yourself. I couldn't let you commit harakiri without at least trying to get the cutting tool out of your hands. What is the other thing you've got on your mind this early in the morning?" "It's this, Dick. You know what I've been doing-what I supposed I was hired to do-assuring everybody. right and left, that we were going into this campaign with clean hands?" "I know," admitted the traffic manager, developing a sudden interest in the figures of the rug at his feet.

"I have been doing this in a business way at my office uptown in season and out of season, and night before last at Ophir I did it publicly. As the campaign progresses I shall doubtless put myself on record many times to the same effect."

"Good man!" applanded Gantry, striving to drag the talk down to some less portentous altitude. "I'm sure we need all the whitewashing anybody can give us.'

"That is just the point," Blount went on gravely. "It mustn't be merely a coat of whitewash, Dick. It has got to be the real thing this time. I began by firing the 'little brothers,' as you called them, but I mean to go higher up if I am compelled to. I am here this morning to ask you to give me your word as a gentleman and my friend that you will not, directly or indirectly, do or cause to be done anything that will make me stand forth as a self convicted liar before the people of this state. I want you to promise me that you will cut out all the deals, all the briberies, all the bargainings, all the"-

"Oh, say, see here," protested the man under fire; "you've got the wrong pig by the ear, Evan. I'm not the Transcontinental Railway company."

"I know you are not. But to a greater degree than any other official in the management you have Mr. Mc-Vickar's confidence. If you don't feel competent to handle this thing on your own responsibility pass it up to those who can and have it understood that there must be no compromise.'

"Great Scott!" murmured Gantry. "And you're on the pay sheets the you begin to grow one sided. You same as the rest of us! But candidly, must go on preaching the gospel, but as man to man, Evan, the thing can't that is only half of your duty. The be done. We've got to play the game. other half is to try to make the thing They'll eat us alive if we don't. You itself agree with the gospel. I fully needn't figure in it. It was a mistake and firmly believe that you lost your letting Sim Hathaway go to you, and best helper when you refused to join I said so at the time. But your-erhands with your father. But that is the powers that be said it had to be over and done, and now you must that way, and I had to let him go and make the best of the opportunities you ball you all up. It shan't happen again. I can promise you that much,

Blount caught quickly at the hesitant pause.

"Who were 'the powers that be' in Hathaway's case, Dick?" he demand-

"I can't tell you that; honestly I can't, Evan," was the anxious refusal. "Don't ask me."

"All right; then I shall assume that Mr. McVickar was responsible," said Blount calmly, thus proving that he had not taken his degree in the law school for nothing.

"Oh, hold on; you mustn't do that, either," protested the unwilling occupant of the witness stand. "Thank you," said the postgraduate, with the true Blount smile. "Now I know that it was my father. No: don't deny it. But we are wandering from the real issue. I've asked you for a promise, Dick. Will you give it?" "I-I can't give it, Evan, and that's the truth."

"No; it isn't. But that was about what I expected you to say. Now hear my side of it. If you don't clean house-you and the other officials of the company-I shall not only resign; I shall take the field on the other side and > tell what I know. I have been telling everybody that this is to be a campaign of publicity. I shall keep my word."

"Oh, you would not do that!" protested Gantry, now thoroughly alarmed. "You know too mucha great deal too much!"

Blount got up TOU KNOW TOO and relighted his DEAL TOO MUCH!" cigar with a MUCH - A GREAT match taken from the traffic manager's desk box. "It's up to you," he said, with his hand on the doorknob. "Get into communication with whatever 'powers that be' there are that can give the necessary orders and see to it that the orders are given and that they are put in the way of being carried out. Dick, I mean what I say. It's a clean sheet -or an exposure that will make a lot of you wish that you had never been

"Hold on-one question before you go, Evan," pleaded Gantry, "and give me a straight answer. Is this another move of the honorable-of your father's?" Blount's smile was as grim as any that Gantry had ever seen on the face of the Honorable David.

"My father is much more likely to take sides with you, I am sorry to say. No, Dick; you've got only one man to fight, but you mustn't forget that his name also is Blount. Go to It and send me word and let the first word be that you have scotched the head of this lumber company snake. That's all for today. Goodby."

accuraing to his omce in Temple court. Blount found that the morning mail had been busy with him also. Tuere were three invitations from widely separated cities in the state, all based upon the newspaper reports of his Ophir speech, and the afternoon mail brought three more.

It was evident that the campaign of education had struck a popular chord. and the young political manager saw what a miraculous opportunity was opening for the railroad if only the "powers" that Gantry had refused to name could be broad enough and high minded enough to seize it.

After that for three weeks Blount scarcely saw his office in the capital. One appointment followed another in rapid succession, and everywhere there was a repetition of the welcome extended by the Ophir miners-a cordial welcome, generous applause and kindly hospitality at every turn.

It was not until he was deep into the fourth week of the hurryings to and fro that he began to admit a suspicion which grew like a juggler's rose when he had once given it place. These invitations, which were now coming from all parts of the state—could it be possible that they were all spontaneous? And if they were not-

If they were so many subtle moves In the great game he could see no possible end to be subserved by them save one-they were effectually keeping him away from the capital, which was the nucleus and center of the campaign activities.

Was there something going on at headquarters that "the powers" did not wish him to find out? Of one thing he was fairly well assured-Gantry was dodging him, was apparently keeping an accurate record of his movements, for whenever the hurryings to and fro permitted a flying visit to the capital Gantry was always out of town.

With the awakening suspicion came a rapid putting together of two and two. Wherever he went there was always the same pressing hospitality, with many urgings to delay his going. At the same time it became evident in many little ways that he was in reality merely skimming over the surface in his campaign work. That a hot political fight was going on all around him he could not doubt. The newspapers were full of it, and in many sections of the state the fight you see that I've got to make good?" had become acrimonious and bitter. But, although he was supposed to be in the fight, it began to be apparent that he was little more than an onstruggle of the moment.

It was as if everything had been triumphal procession. None the less the invisible barrier, the barrier which was shutting him out from the inner workings of the campaign, was there, and he could neither surmount it nor push it aside.

Notwithstanding the hard work and the hard traveling he was doing he did not let the missionary effort outweigh the sturdier purpose, which was to hold his principals rigidly up to the mirror of a vigilant watchfulness.

Arguing that the opposition newspapers would be quick to seize upon any charge of corruption involving the railroad company, he read them faithfully. As yet there had been nothing more than spiteful innuendoes and a raking over of past misdeeds, though many of the editors were charging a secret alliance between his father and McVickar and warning their readers to look out for startling developments

Not content with mere watchfulness. however, Blount got his finger upon the pulse of occasions whenever he could. On his brief stopovers in the capital he kept his eyes and ears open for the earliest hint of any charge of chicanery, and, though he was unable to get hold of Gantry personally, he kept up a steady fire of letters and elegrams, all pointing to the same end-absolute and utter good faith and the upholding of his hands in the public plea for a square deal.

To these the traffic manager replied guardedly, but optimistically. The management was delighted with the good work done and doing by the new division counsel; public opinion was slowly but surely changing; it would be a landslide election, and Blount could take credit for his due.

In all this Blount did not fail to re mark that there was never anything said about the Hathaway bargain, and the omission made him the more watchful. A little investigation un earthed other and similar bargains made in the past.

For example, there was a practical and very effective irrigation trust, an alliance, offensive and defensive, of the big irrigation companies. Controlling the water under proprietary rights, as most of them did, these companies could influence many votes among the beneficiary farmers. Land deals in the past with the railroad company had been the basis for corruption here, and, with the electric power people, preferential freight rates had been traded for the votes of employees, as with Hathaway. Some of these special rates were still in force, as the quiet investigation on the ground developed, whereupon Blount's communications to Gantry took on a more emphatic tone. The tariffs must be revised and one of two things must be done-either the preferential of the favored corporations must be withdrawn or the public rates must be leveled down to meet the specials.

It was on a second speechmaking visit to Ophir that Blount had his first face to face chance at the traffic manager after the opening of the correspondence battle.

A meeting of the Mine Owners' association, moving for a readjustment of the classification on copper matte and bullion at a time when the railroau compan- might be supposed to be on the giving hand, took Gantry to, the great camp in the Carnadine bills, and the first man he met at the hotel was the new dictator of policies for the Transcontinental company. "Made a mistake, didn't you, Dick, coming while I was here?" said the reformer, with a very lifelike replica of his father's grim smile. "I suppose you've got an immediate engagement to go somewhere or see somebody."

"No; I wish I had," was the hearty admission. "Say, Evan, you are getting to be a perfect nightmare with your letters and telegrams. You've got me so I'm afraid to open my desk. Why can't you let well enough alone? You haven't heard of any skulduddery lately, have you?"

"Nothing new, no. But a housecleaning is supposed to take down all the old cobwebs. Those preferentials for United Electric and the Siwash Land and Improvement"-

"Heavens and earth! You call yourself a lawyer, and yet you ask us to set aside promises that are or ought to be as binding as so many written contracts, with penal attachments! It can't be done, Evan-that's all there is to it; it can't be done."

"'Can't' goes out of the window when 'must' comes in at the door, Dick. I've been digging into the records, and have evidence enough to turn the people of this state into a mob that will tear up your tracks if I should publish it."

"But I tell you we can't withdraw the specials, you wild eyed far ---"All right; then level down the paid lic's rate to fit them. And do it quickly, Dick. The time is growing fearfully short, and my patience isn't what it used to be."

"Anybody would think you owned the Transcontinental, lock, stock and barrel! Where under heaven did you get your nerve, Evan? Blest if I don't believe you could outbluff the old-eryour father himself if you once got the fool notion into your head that it was your duty to try." This time Blount's smile was rather sorrowful, and he shook his head.

"Come and hear me speak tonight if you're staying over that long. Then you'll know why I must have the solid rock of good faith under my feet, Gantry. You spoke of my father just now. I bear the name, too, Dick. Don't

It was during this hardworking interval that Blount saw, with keen regret, the gradual widening of the breach between him and his father. looker when it came to the really vital | That the long arm of the machine of which his father was the acknowledged head was reaching out into all carefully prearranged, like a sort of corners of the state there was ample paign was a thing to be reckoned with and fought against was a cardinal principle with the young reformer.

But it is hard to fight in the dark. The organization was so perfect that its very existence seemed mythical at times-a mere bugbear set up to be knocked down by the honest voter at the polls on election day.

Yet Blount knew that it was no myth. Sometimes he fancied that it was the machine which was interposing the invisible barrier beyond which he was not permitted to pass. With that thought came the old doubts and fears that his father and McVickar had consulted together to make him the fence behind which all the trickery of a venal campaign could be safely screened. But while this thought visibly widened the growing breach it made him only more determined to fight to the bitter end. What one man could do to herald the dawn of a new political epoch for his native state should be done. It was on one of his short stopovers in the capital city that Blount found himself seated opposite his father at a table for two in the Inter-Mountain cafe. The meeting was purely accidental, as most of their meetings had come to be. Inquiring for his father at the desk, Blount had been told that the senator was out of town. But an hour later, when he had taken his seat at the dinner table, the supposed absentee had walked in to take the opposite chair.

For a time their talk was of the doings at Wartrace Hall, of the professor's enthusiastic digging for fossils, of Patricia's keen enjoyment of the life in the open and-this put with gentle hesitation on the part of the news bringer-of Mrs. Honoria's growing love for the young woman whose ambitions reached out toward a "career."

"Working you pretty hard these days, aren't they, son?" was the friendly remark that opened the way for more to follow. "If you belonged to my generation instead of your own you wouldn't be cold shouldering that young woman out at Wartrace the way you do-not for all the politics that was ever hatched."

"I have my work to do," said the son gravely, "and Patricia Anners would be the last person in the world to put obstacles in the way of it. I

A Bit of Savage Warfare. One of the amenities of savage warfare is mentioned in Major C. G. Bruce's "Twenty Years In the Hima laya." In the old days, when the two tribes were at war, the Hunza men caught the Nagyris at a disadvantage. beat them and took prisoner nearly the whole of their force. Now, they aid not want to keep them prisoners and feed them-they had scarcely enough food for themselves-nor did they want to make an end of them, so they just stripped them of arms and clothing and sent them home absolutely in a state of nature. This was considered far more shameful to the Nagyris than if they had all been killed in the fight.

A Joke on the Artists.

Some years ago there was a colony of artists painting in a Maine village some twenty miles from Prout's Neck. All were enthusiastic admirers of Winslow Homer, and all, having had a go at the painting of rocks and sea and realizing how difficult was the task, bethought them of Homer, only twenty miles away. How refreshing it would be to have a glimpse of the man's work in his studio! Fully aware that it was not his custom to admit strangers, they yentured upon the pilgrimage to that shrine. They counted on his waiving the rule where it concerned a group that contained at least one full fledged national academician and several associates of that august body. They all went to Scarborough (Prout's Neck), put up at the hotel and sent him a joint note, signing their names and begging that he would receive them. When the messenger returned they read with dismay that Winslow Homer presented his compliments and begged to be excused from receiving "art students." The joke was so good that the story was given out in artistic circles.-Arthur Hoeber in World's Work.

Crossing the Bar.

Tennyson's famous poem "Crossing the Bar" was written, said his son, in the poet's eighty-first year, "on a day in October when we came from Aldworth to Farringford. Before reaching Farringford he had had the 'moaning of the bar' in his mind, and after dinner he showed me the poem written out. 'That is the crown of your life's work," said his son, who was the first man after the poet to read "Crossing the Bar" and who passed the first criticism upon it in such fitting and generous language. "It came in a moment," said the poet, and he explained the pilot as the Divine and Unseen, who is always guiding us. A day or two before he died the poet, calling his son to his bedside, said, "Mind you put 'Crossing the Bar' at the end of all editions of my poems."

Increase In Use of Plant Good For Pastures In Many Regions.

For several years past meadow fescue has been an important crop in northeastern Kansas, according to the United States department of agricul- through clover, alfalfa, cowpeas, soy ture. The acreage devoted to this beans, vetch and the like. No farmer grass has, however, been extremely should buy commercial nitrogen for variable. The fluctuating tendency is due chiefly to changes in the price of gardeners require it in this form for seed. The meadow fescue seed crop quick action in small areas, but farmhas in some years reached a total val- ers can obtain an abundance of the uation of over $150,000 in a very limited section of the state. The demand for meadow fescue seed is quite limited; hence an undue expansion in production has caused in several years a decided fall in price. The merits of the grass are such, however, that it is believed that a better knowledge of its usefulness will result in its being employed much more extensively, especially for permanent pastures throughout the timothy region.

Meadow fescue is also locally known as English blue grass notwithstanding the fact that in England it is called meadow fescue. The name English blue grass should be discarded for the established name meadow fescue, as the use of both leads to confusion. Meadow fescue sown alone furnishes scant pasturage during the hot summer months, and its lack of root stocks prevents its taking first rank as a pasture grass in any region where Ken- ganism to serve them in deriving nitrotucky blue grass does well. Its value gen from the air. About 100 pounds of at present is fully appreciated only in soil per acre is sufficient. many regions an increase in the use of meadow fescue would have a very beneficial effect on the pastures. The ability of meadow fescue to survive in wet places when trampled by stock keeps such places productive in pastures where timothy, red clover and Kentucky blue grass fail, and, besides being strongly perennial, meadow fescue has the additional advantage of coming quickly and surely from seed producing in a short time a firm sod and considerable pasturage.

In the east meadow fescue has shown itself to be almost as well adapted as orchard grass to the clay soils, and, though not quite as productive, it is rather more palatable than the latter. As the value of tame pastures over native pastures is better realized and as the English idea of mixtures is more firmly established with the American farmer meadow fescue will take a more important place at least as a pasture grass. The soil best adapted to the produc tion of meadow fescue is a heavy black loam. This grass has been noted growing in the most decided "gumbo" spots, and in these places when moisture was sufficient no amount of trampling seemed to destroy it. It is not adapted to a light sandy soil, and the best yield of hay and seed is always secured from heavy soils rich in organic matter. Farmers interested in this pasture plant can obtain further information from their state experiment stations or departments of agriculture or from ie agricultural department at Wash-

There is nothing that will destroy the productiveness and value of a farm so fast, and so certainly as running it to grain and shipping the grain to market instead of feeding it on the ground.

SOIL FERTILITY.

Principles by Means of Which It Is Restored or Maintained.

Soil fertility can be restored and maintained in any agricultural region by the persistent practice of simple systems of farming. The growing of leguminous crops, the turning under of green manures to make humus and the systematic rotation of crops are absolutely essential. In most attempts to rebuild soils the use of the element phosphorus is equally important. With the exception of swamp or peaty types, all soils are adequately provided with potassium. Nitrogen can be secured ordinary field use. Truck farmers and element practically without cost by growing legumes.

In order to make these restorative crops attain proper growth most soils east and many types west of the Mississippi river must be limed. Failures with the clovers are due almost altogether to an excess of acid in the soil. Ground limestone applied at the rate of from 1,000 to 10,000 pounds per acre neutralizes the acid and increases the supply of available calcium, thus rendering the soil more hospitable to legumes. Inoculation to insure the presence of bacteria also is sometimes necessary. Legumes that do not form tubercles on their roots do not fix nitrogen. Each legume has its own special bacteria. Soil taken from a spot in which sweet clover is established can be used in inoculating for alfalfa, these legumes having a common or-Kansas. It is quite probable that in plot of the particular legume which it is desired to grow.—Breeder's Gazette.

> Business methods in buying and selling receive too little attention among farmers. The way and manner of using the income from the farm is quite as important as a large yield and a good profit.

Homemade Land Roller.

A friend of mine writes that he has lived sixty years, but has just found out how to make a land roller that actually does the business, says a correspondent of the Iowa Homestead. e gets a section of round galvanized iron culvert material. He prefers to have it at least two feet in diameter and corrugated. The section is as long as you wish to make the roller. It is turned on end, and an iron axle or rod of axle size is placed exactly in the center. The inside is then ready to be filled with cement mortar. Let it cure for two weeks before using, wetting occasionally during that time. A frame is bolted to the axle, of course.

Potato Fertilizer Formula. One that is used by many large potato growers in the vicinity of New York city is made up as follows: Nitrate of soda, 127 pounds; high grade dried blood, 440 pounds; acid phosphate, 400 pounds; land plaster, 33 pounds. The greatest profit resulted when these fertilizers were mix ed and applied at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre in some tests at the New York experiment station.

Cooking Feed Does Not Pay.

To learn the value of cooking feed for live stock extensive trials were made at the North Dakota experiment station in feeding hogs and cattle raw feed and cooked feed. It was found that more pounds of grain were made from a given amount of feed when fed raw. Potatoes were an exception, as they gave the best returns when cooked.

Let every farmer give his farm the degree of LL. D.-lime, legumes and drains. - Rural New Yorker.

Dairy Doings.

It takes two-thirds of all the good cow eats to keep her alive and without loss of flesh and the other third of ordinary good rations to enable her to give milk. The expense of two-thirds of the money earning rations has to be incurred when the cow is earning Timothy hay is better than nothing as a feed for dairy cows, but it is worth more to sell on the market. A good supply of alfalfa will cut down the bran bills.

If the cow's teats are made sore from exposure to cold or wet weather an application of carbolized vaseline gfter each milking will remedy the trouble if used when it first appears.

The best hay feeds for dairy cows are clover, alfalfa, cowpeas and soy beans. They contain a large percentage of protein, which is a great milk producing element.

The world's champion milk cow produced nearly nine tons of milk last year, and advocates of dairying in preference to beef production call attention to the fact that this cow is repared to repeat such performances for many years, while the beef animal must go to the block to produce cash for its owner.

The secret of dairy success in Holland is easily understood and may be stated in a few words-efficient cows, excellent care, co-operation and superior quality of butter and cheese.

LATE ARBOR DAY.

In Many States Annual Tree Planting Should Be Earlier.

It is well to defer gardens until the frost has left the ground and the days are long, but tree planting time or Arrooted after th: sap is well started and the leaves beginning to unfurl receives a nervous shock. It is likely, too, that the roots are wounded in transplanting and it has to begin life al over again in order to adjust itself to conditions. The rulings of habit are strong. Thus because we are accustomed to give presents at Christmas and to dye eggs at Easter schools and clubs decide that trees must be planted on Arbor day, if at all. In Illinois the first Arbor day was appointed at a season when it was supposed that it would be pleasant to be out of doors and every one could enjoy the budding foliage. In mid-April planting enthuslasm runs high, but for the welfare of trees it is rather late to do much transplanting. However, this fact should not discourage those who have laid plans, but another year matters may be arranged along other lines.

At several recent meetings of forestry committees of the women's clubs it was suggested that tree planting in school yards and parks be done at the proper season earlier in the year named by experts and that it should be made known that Arbor day was a time appointed for ceremonies and programs bearing on the subject. Trees may therefore be se' in the school yards at any time, and the sooner the better. Leafing is on the way. If shrubs are to be transplanted one should not delay, but get to work at once and set rosebushes, lilacs, snowballs, privet and tree honeysuckle or any of the native wild shrubs which will make good progress during the rains of April and May.

Hints on Tree Planting. The best shade trees are compact Planting For Posterity.

There is something nobly simple and pure in a taste for the cultivation of trees. It argues, I think, a sweet and generous nature to have this strong relish for the beauties of vegetation and this friendship for the hardy and glorious sons of the forest. There is a grandeur of thought connected with this part of rural economy. He who plants an oak looks forward to future ages and plants for posterity. Nothing can be less selfish than this.

FAMILY ARBOR DAY.

Parents and Children Can Do Much to Protect Trees.

Arbor day celebration need not be confined to clubs and to schools; it may be made a valuable ceremony among family féstivities. It is quite as valuable to learn how to care for trees growing in the yard as to plant new ones. Arbor day is the occasion to drive home observations against tying the clothesline to young saplings, swinging the hammock between trees and injuring the bark, permitting horses to bark trees before the house or the cook to empty the salt water from the ice cream freezer at the roots of the single oak or elm near the back door. Electric wires do much damage. and then there are the live pests, caterpillars and scales, which may be routed if taken in time A sickly looking tree may need a fertilizer or the earth spaded about its roots. In a district where there are no trees a program of tree songs and poems and a trip to one of the parks would revive the spirit of the day. Of course the planting of new trees is not to be discouraged, and it is hoped that many nurserymen have been consulted in advance of Arbor day. Subscribe for THE TRIBUNE.

Items of interest that can be furnished by the members should be addressed to the above correspondent who will see to their being carefully prepared and published.

On May 12 next, will be the beginning of a new order of program by the Worthy Lecturer of Venice Center Grange. Now that we may expect good roads and pleasant weather a full attendance should be had as a full hour's program has been prepared with dialogues, essays, recitations, and questions on current topics will be discussed, also the opening of a question box. Be sure to come and bring with you any question to be answered and discussed that is of personal interest to you. The new badges for members, sashes for officers, and working tools for in demonstration work have arrived from the Boston Regalia Co., and are creations of artistic merit. The purchase of these was made necessary by the loss by fire of all paraphernalia of the Grange. Now that we are in full working order and will have something each Grange meeting night to interest all members, both young and old, we shall expect all members to feel that their presence is essential to the success of our Grange.

On April 11, 1911, at her late home, after a short illness with pneumonia occurred the death of Mrs. Abbie Willis Saxton in the 50th year of her age. The deceased, at her home in Suffolk Co., L. I., in Sept. 1883, was married to Walter B. Saxton, one of our most successful and prominent farmers and blooded sheep and stock raisers in this part of the country. They immediately took up their residence in their beautiful home on the Indian Field road and had lived a quiet, unostentatious and happy life there ever since. Mrs. Saxton is survived by her husband, one sister, Mrs. Pauline Willis Merritt of Farmingdale, L. I., and one brother, Richard Willis, of Port Jeffries, Long Island. The funeral was largely attended by sympathizing friends who were present to pay their last sad tribute of respect to her whom the community where he had resided they loved, the Rev. M. E. Penney offi so many years, and his family have clating. The remains were laid to rest

The following resolutions were adopt-

********** SUPPOSE THERE WERE ONLY ONE TREE ON EARTH.

F there were only one tree in all the world, what would be its commercial value, not to speak of its aesthetic worth? The millions of Rockefeller and Carnegie added to the billions in the Bank of England could not buy that tree.

Suppose you owned it. What would you do with it?

Would you build a high wall around it, so high as to shut off outside view even of the topmost leafage, and charge tourists, who, of course, would come from all parts of the world in flocks and droves and herds. $100 a peep? Would you gather the annual crop of leaves and sell them at $25 a leaf? Would you yank off the shedding bark and sell bark souvenirs of the only tree at $10 a square inch? Would you charge $500 for the privilege of climbing your tree?

Or would you cultivate a magnificent lawn around the only tree, put plenty of benches under its shade and invite the people of the world to come and sit and have a shade with you?

This is just a hypothetical question in the case of brotherhoed versus selfishness. How will you answer it?

If you answer it unselfishly then go and plant another tree on Arbor day.

Ill health due to bad glasses. It is agreed that the eccentricities and mental and physical weakness of many people is caused by eye strain and aggravated by improperly TIME TABLE NO, 11. IN EFFECT DEC. 4, 1910 fitted glasses or no glasses at all.

The varying symptoms are headache, insomnia, biliousness, sick headache and indescribable suffering.

One shrinks from parading their own clinical experience, but you will find I have relieved thousands of cases in the past years in this, your own vicinity. The evil done by improperly fitted glasses and failure to detect highly dangerous diseases is responsible for many cases of total blindness. GLANCOMA is a disease which increases far sight, dimness of sight and diminishes the field of vision. It is an insidious disease that can be checked if taken at the outset. If not taken in time it eventually destroys the eyesight. The same is true of retinitis and choroiditis, and bear in mind, once the ravages of these diseases destroy the sight the case is hopeless.

Altrophy (a wasting away) of the optic nerve is another quite common eye disease -Memorial day will soon be and if anything is rather more dangerous than glancoma, retinitis or choroiditis. When here. Arrangements should be you are in the depths because of failing eyesight be sure you can depend upon whom you consult; go to one who has successfully fitted glasses for years in your midst and can detect the beginning of these grave eye diseases by the aid of scientific instruments and and thorough knowledge of refraction which make these diseases immediately apparent.

THE MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

THE PRIMROSE PATH

By BYRON WILLIAMS

OME of my friends have asked me why I resigned the editorship of the magazine having the greatest world. The following letter, recently received, is one of the minor reasons:

"Dere editor: I have been taking your paper a long time, and I find it one, if not the best, magazine among my papers. Therefore I would THE AUTHOR OF "THE like to have you STOLE TRUNK." publish my story. It is considered very fine. I want to get it in book form. It is all written. Each chapter is headed. All there is to be done is to put it to press. It is a love story, 'Loved or Not Loved.'

"There has been several read it, and all think it just fine. If you think you can print it threw in your paper I will promise you some fifteen or twenty new subscribers.

"Outlines of this as follows: " 'CHAPTER 1.

"'Mr. Little's home, the loss, causing his death. Roseline is forced to give up her friend, has to work to earn their daily support, her mother is greatly grieved. Roseline goes to secure her position. Meets Mr. Lisenbee, avoids him as a "mere stranger." His proposal, the refusal, his departure, Mrs. Little's death. Mr. Lisenbee vows to marry Roseline in disguise.

"'Dreams the night before her wedding day he is forcing her to marry him. She dreams this. So the next day when the man who comes after her comes, she reports she is ill.

"'Claude's confession to Roseline. She forgives him. The great wedding. Roseline takes her place in society again. In the meantime her friend marries. Finis!"

"This is only a mere outline, so that you may know just how the story runs, which is fine. The best of language is used, which will be a boost to your paper. Let me know at once. as I have another almost completed, which, if this is a success, I can put threw at once."

Another reason I resigned is because of the receipt of a seventeen stanza poem entitled "A Calling," the first of which is as follows:

Lying on a cottage bed, No human skill could relieve her. She is lying their dead From a disease called "brain fever."

Hardly had I recovered from this attack than I received among an armful of manuscript a letter from a man who wrote: "I have three stories - 'The Haunted House, "The Stole Trunk" and 'How Jeff Was Hung; or, The Mystery of a Murder.' I think 'The Stole Trunk' is the best of the three. How much will you give me for it? When you tell me I will send it along if

A SEVENTEEN you will send me STANZA POEM. postage. I sent a storie to a magazine once, and they never cent it back." You may think these things are funmy and conclude that an editor's job is a gay interim between meals. Let me use two barrels in refuting this. Nay, nay! Imagine a subscriber from a little town away off yonder writing in and asking, "Will you please give me a list of the plumbers in Chicago?" There are seven pages in the Chicago directory devoted to plumbers. Why remind an editor that he is compelled to help support them?

And the poor suffering people who appeal to you to "buy this story or the sheriff will take my cow" is something pitiful. It would seem that the last financial ditch is well supplied with pens and paper and that literature is not only the best bet, but the only one, before the poorhouse.

Once when I was publishing a country newspaper (and those were happy days, too) a subscriber threatened to whip me because I refused to print the history of his family as written in verse by

WHIP ME. his grandmother. Frecall that I just escaped by suggesting that the poem was too good to waste on a home newspaper and advised him to send it to Upstart's Magazine. Before he got it back I had sold my paper. But manifold repentance has been done for this act-yes, for both of them, for that matter, for editing a country newspaper has many virtues to recommend it as a business when compared to the editorial sanctum of the great magazine and its political reform in one of the great cities of the United States," he writes. "On the platform were some of the first citizens of the city.

BIBLE LITTLE KNOWN TODAY

Dr. Lyman Abbott Says Book Is Strange to This Generation,

Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, in a recent issue of his periodical tells a few incidents which indicate that the Bible is a sealed book to this generation.

I generally carry with me wherever I go and, saying, 'I have here an old book which is a favorite with me,' proceeded to read Jotham's parable of the trees from the book of Judges.

"Two gentlemen on the platform asked me what the book was from churchgoing families, asked her class of over fifty members if they could recall any well known historical incldent connected with Egypt.

"Getting no reply, she hinted at the fact that the Jews came out of Egypt and attempted to recall to them the story of Joseph, but not one of them could give her any account of it, and one of them, franker then the rest. came to her afterward, puzzled to know what the Bible had to do with geography.

"Another friend of mine, a teacher in a church Sunday school of a girls' class, all of whom were daughters of churchgoing parents and all of whom had been for some years in Sunday school classes, asked her class why Pharaoh sought to kill Moses and got for reply that it was at the time of the birth of Jesus and Pharaoh attempted to put all the babies to death. To this answer all the pupils except one agreed.

"Some years ago two ladies in a western town were coming out of a concert hall where the cantata of 'Queen Esther' had been given. One was overheard saying to the other: 'That was a very beautiful story. I wonder where the composer found it? And the other did not know."

New Religious Center.

John W. Hansel, formerly president of the secretarial institute of the Young Men's Christian association in Chicago, and one of the most influential of the group of Christian statesmen who developed the famous association camp on the shore of Lake Geneva, has taken in band a project which aims to develop on the gulf coast a Christian center for the southwest similar to what Winona, Chautauqua and Northfield have become for the north and east.

Three large landowners-Burton D Hood, M. G. Magill and F. W. Joneshave given 200 acres of land for the assembly grounds on the shores of Matagorda bay near Collegeport, Tex. These grounds have been named Bay park. The donors of the land have besides provided $100,000 working capital for the development of the project Mr. Hansel is now organizing a body fecting that quarter of the nation .-Interior.

"'Oh, it's no use,' he would say. "I never read the advertisements in a paper, and no one else does. I bethat will force itself on the public. Then it pays. But in a newspaperpehaw! Everybody who reads a pages as if they were poison.'

"Well, said I, "if I can convirce you that people do read the advertising pages of my paper, will you advertise?'

"Of course I will. I will advertise whenever I think it will do any good,'

"The next day I had the following line set up in the smallest type in the office, and stuck it in the most ob scure corner of the paper:

"What is Simpson going to do about it ?'

"The next day so many people annoyed Simpson by asking him what the line meant that he begged me to explain the matter in my next issue. I promised to do so if he would let me write the explanation and stand to it He agreed, and I wrote:-

"And he did."

Is New York Proud of Herself?

A table in the twenty-first biennial report of the State Board of Health of California, issued in 1910, shows that among the states men tioned, New York, the great Empire State of which its citizens boast so much, stands third in per capita wealth and twenty-first in per capita health appropriation; first in total assessed valuation of property and second (a very bad second to Pennsylvania) in total health appropria tion. ## Your Attention Please!

If you have no buggy you will want one, and the one you will want is the Haydock. I have just received a fresh carload of these buggies. It does not take any hot air to sell the Haydock line; they are the kind that sell themselves. You will Everything for house clean- readily see at a glance that the finish and design has the other fellow beat. Also a fresh stock of single and double harness all styles and prices. I also have the Milburn lumber wagon conceded by every one to be the best manufactured. Be sure and call and look the stock over before buying elsewhere. No trouble to show goods. What we say we will do, we do do.

To Your Satisfaction.

Perhaps you have heard that an Egbert Suit will wear to your entire satisfaction-well, your hearing is good, it will; it can't help but wear satisfactorily, for the quality of the fabrics, the construction of the garments, and the workmanship precludes any other result.

May we hope to have the pleasure of showing you what the Egbert line consists of?

Men's Suits $12.50 to $30.00.

Horses! Horses!

I leave for the West to-day to purchase more horses. Will return with them and have them on sale Saturday morning. May 20th. Horses will weigh from 1,100 to 1,500 lbs. If you are in need of horses at once come and look over my stock as I always have some good ones on hand, and the prices are right. Every horse as represented or no sale and going summons is served upon you by publimoney refunded.

My Percheron Stallion, weighing 1,600 pounds will make the season at my stables. Ten dollars to insure a live foal.
