Advertising Clearly Defined. Advertising is a salesman that is always to work, but never wearies a customer; that calls on the same man until he is convinced, but never annoys him with insistence; that wastes so words, and that can always gain an audience and hearing. Alone among salesmen, advertising has free access to the libraries of President Taft and Mr. Morgan; it marches unchecked past the secretary of the big merchant and enters without hindrance the store of the retailer. When it cannot tell its story to a man in his office it can always gain his attention in his home. SYNOPSIS

Private Mark Malone, U. S. A., sent as a spy to Chattanooga by General Thomas, is saved from guerrillas by Souri Slack. Disguised as a countryman, Mark starts for Chattaneoga with Jakey, Souri's brother. Mark is to send Souri her red handkerchief if in peril.

Mark and Jakey are given shelter by Laura Fain and her mother. Laura suspects Mark is a Union soldier in disguise. He confesses that he is. Laura is a Confederate. She prevents her lover, Captain Cameron Fitz Hugh, C. S. A., from detaining Mark

Mark learns that a big Confederate army is massing at Chattanooga and planning a northward dash. He attempts to es-eape from Chattanooga.

He carries Jakey in safety past the picket line and unexpectedly meets a band are then taken prisoners.

guard. Bloodhounds follow him. He takes to the river. Reaching the Pain house, Laura conceals him and gives him food and new clothing. She upbraids him for, seeking her protection.

Souri and Jakey are sent home by the Confederate provost marshal. Mark poses as Professor Rhett of South Carolina in the Fain home. He sends Uncle Daniel, a negro, to Chattanooga for further military information. Captain Fitz riugh, calling unexpectedly, captures Mark. Laura insists that Fitz Hugh permit Mark to escape. He does so, and their engagement is broken. Mark, Laura and her mother start for Nashville. Mark, endeavoring to pass a Confederate picket, says he and Laura are Mr. and Mrs. Green. They are detained. Mark and Laura agree to be man and wife in Laura and her mother rejoin Mark, and of no one else since." Laura he will be a spy no longer.

"I have been prospecting, madam, and am separated from my party owing to the stupidity of the driver of the vehicle which contains my crucibles and chemicals. I appeared at your door and your daughter was kind enough to ask me in-not surprising, considering your far famed Tennessee bospitality.

"You are quite welcome, sir." Mark bowed low, with his hand on his heart, like a South Carolina gentleman of the old school,

"Have you supped?" asked Mrs. Fain. "Yes, madam; I succeeded in getting a meal by the way. A poor one, indeed a very poor one, with burned beans for coffee. But since the abolition Lincoln government has violated all rules of civilized warfare by this cruel blockade -intending to starve us into subjection -I suppose we must take what we can get. I repeat it, we must take what we can get, madam."

Mark's eyes flashed with well feigned indignation. "It is our duty to bear our deprivations cheerfully," said Mrs. Fain. "We shall gain our independence at last, and that should be an incentive."

"It should, madam, and let me tell you we are about to see stirring times and great successes. This region has become of especial military importance. Our forces will be in front of Nashville, perhaps Louisville, very soon, while General Lee can't fail with such noble men as he has in his army-the very flower of the south-the flower of the south, madam-he can't fall, I say, to drive the Yankees out of Vir-

"You are very hopeful." While Mark was thus performing. Laura stood with downcast eyes, and if her mother had not been so interested in the hopeful words of the garrulous South Carolinian she would have noticed a slow heaving of her daughter's bosom, with here and there a slight spasmodic action, "And now, madam," said Mark, "may I beg for a night's lodging? I fear it is too late to find my party." "Certainly, sir. Call Miranda, my Mirands was summoned and directed to show the gentleman to the guest chamber on the second floor in the front of the house Mark went with the servant and remained in his room long enough to have made a tollet and then sauntered down stairs. At the door of the parlor in which Mrs. Fain and her daughter were sitting, he paused, as if waiting for an invitation to enter. This was given him, but he did not stay long. For a hot blooded South Caro-Hnian, he seemed not to bear the heat well, and manifested a desire to get out on to the veranda. Indeed he had a wholesome dread of the light. Besides he desired to be where he could converse with Laura.

"Do you think it essential, mamma?" "Certainly I do. South Carolinians ire especially particular about the enertainment of their guests, and I wouldn't have it go back to Charleson that we had been remiss for the vorld."

Laura obeyed her mother and joined the guest on the veranda,

"You are safe for the present," she said, her eyes glistening in the moonlight and a bright spot on each cheek. "Thanks to your courage and ingenu-

"For the cause," said Mark, "one ought to"-"Nonsense! The cause! You love these dangers."

"There is a fascination in them, I admit. So long as there is one chance for me, no matter how many there are against me-so long as I have an arm or a weapon to fight with I am a man. When cornered and taken I am the veriest coward in the world. While in prison in Chattanooga I moaned and whined like a frightened child. The truth is that danger is fascinating only either before it is encountered or after it has passed. When I am in it I want to get out of it; when I am out of it want to get in it again." "I don't believe you know the meaning of the word fear." 'Indeed you are mistaken. If I did not feel fear there would be no fascination in danger."

Mark rose and faced about. His hand went to his heart, and he bowed low. Laura, too, rose and stood look ing at her mother.

"Madam," said Mark, "can I ever forget this kindness?"

"If you will discover the ore you seek on our property I shall feel amply repaid," said the lady sententious-

"Trust me, madam, I will have dillgent search made."

"Are you a geologist?" "None but a geologist would be hunting for ore in the government service." "That is a fascinating study," remarked Mrs. Fain, who was a great reader and a very intelligent woman.

Now Mark, though an educated man and born to a taste for the sciences, unfortunately knew less about the profession he had temporarily adopted than any other.

"There are some curious geological facts," Mrs. Fain went on, "which always interest me. Another turn of his head and Mark suddenly turned and looked there stood the figure of Captain

Cameron Fitz Hugh. Twice before had Mark seen that face, once when Fitz Hugh had approached the Fain house the morning Mark had left it for Chattanooga, and once when the young Confederate had defended him at the trial.

No sooner had Captain Fitz Hugh laid eyes on Mark's face than he recognized the spy he had defended at Chattanooga.

"Professor," he said coolly, "you are very adroit."

Mark turned scarlet, and then ashy pale. For a moment it seemed that his legs would not support him. "Since you are so good at extricating yourself from difficulties, you have a fine opportunity to show your skill now." Fitz Hugh spoke with his hand on the handle of his pistol. "May I trouble you to throw up your hands, professor?"

"It is not necessary," said Mark. "I am unarmed."

A picture of his certain fate flashed across his mind, and he wished Fitz Hugh would shoot him.

ECCENTRIC BETTING.

Burlous Wagers Recorded at White's Club In London.

The betting book of White's club in London contains the record of some extraordinary wagers. The idle gentlemen of 100 years ago could give their successors of today sundry hints on eccentric betting. Here are facsimiles of some of the records. One

"Mr. Methuen bets Colonel Stanhope 10 guineas to 1 that a worthy baronet-understood between them-does not from necessity part with his gold ice pails before this day twelvemonth. The ice pails being found at a pawn-broker's will not entitle Colonel Stanhope to receive his 10 guineas."

This peculiar wager was made in 1813, and another one, recorded the same year at White's, may have reference to the same hard up personage. It reads:

"Lord Alvanley bets Sir Joseph Copley 5 guineas that a certain baronet -understood between them-is very much embarrassed in circumstances. In three years from the date hereof, if one of his bills is dishonored or he is observed to borrow small change of many fine old trees are disfigured by the chairmen or waiters, Sir Joseph is to be reckoned to lose."

Here is an odd one: "Mr. Butler bets Sir George Talbot 20 guineas to 1 that he is not in the room at White's with Napoleon in the course of the next two years-April 24, 1815." History shows that Mr. Butler won that guinea.-Christian Science Moni-

In this way cities could get all the park lands necessary with-

In case streets are opened purposes these parks could be included in the same condemnation proceedings and the cost therefor assessed on the abutting property, so that the city would be in exactly the same position with regard to the acquisition of parks as it now is with regard to the acquisition of streets.

Loyalty to Employer. The "don't care" man is often found about the store and can be found in the ranks of the traveling salesmen. He is the man who looks after his salary mainly and his expense accountwhich the house pays-and his principal aim is to do just enough business to hold his job. Such men are not always the most loyal to the bouse they represent. They are always on the lookout for a job that will pay a greater salary. They are always the class that can pick flaws in the management of the concern that employs them. They always have a grievance against the "old man," who in their estimation never treats them fairly and is trying to get the most out of them for the smallest amount of money. never for once taking into consideration that there is a duty that they owe to the house they represent and that if they exercise loyalty and good business judgment and will work faithfully they are sure to advance more quickly than should they be forever changing houses. Loyalty to employer is not to be lightly considered. It means much-it means faithfulness and right performance of every duty.

MARKETING GROWING.

This Equation is an Axiom, Especially to the Apple Producer. Success in apple culture, financially speaking, says the report of the Vermont agricultural experiment station. is just as dependent upon the intelligent and businesslike disposal of the fruit as upon the cultural methods followed in its production. It is quite possible to grow a good crop of nice fruit and yet through lack of business ability or intelligence or both to fail to realize a reasonable profit from its disposal. Success in the business end of fruit growing depends largely upon the following factors: Picking the fruit at the proper time and in a careful manner, proper grading and packing, the use of attractive packages, proper storage, adequate transportation facilities, placing the fruit on the market in its season and when it is commanding a good price. While there are no hard and fast rules governing the picking of apples, the successful orchardist strives to harvest his fruit when it has reached its full size In many cities in this country the and has developed, in the case of colengineering departments plot the ored varieties, a normal, or, if possible, whole area of the suburban sections a maximum, amount of color. Apples in anticipation of future development, should not hang until they have begun to ripen if a long keeping fruit is de-

The ability so to grade and to pack apples that when they are offered for sale they present an attractive appearance because of uniformity and minimum amount of injury from transportation is a valuable asset to the orchardist. This one item determines largely the success or failure of the grower to realize the best market price for his product. In order to present this attractive appearance the apples must be of a nearly uniform size and color and present few surface defacements. In packing either a barrel or box the package should be carefully faced with fruit which should as nearly as possible represent its average contents. Facers, however, may be somewhat higher colored than the average without seriously misrepresenting the contents of the package. Barrel packages are either single or double faced, usually the latter. In facing a package the stem end is placed downward. By judicious selection of facers the packer can usually manage to have a well filled layer. Large interstices or irregular arrangement of the fruit in the facer rows detracts materially from the finished appearance of the package. Likewise high colored fruit should not be mixed with medium or low colored fruit in the facer row. Uniformity in size, arrangement, color and freedom from blemishes are four points to be kept in mind.

The observance of these details alone does not, however, insure an attractive package when opened. Another necessary precaution is that the package shall be sufficiently well filled so that when headed it will be just firm enough to hold the fruit in place and not so tight as to bruise a considerable proportion of it. A clean, bright barrel should be used, in which a plain or corrugated paper cap should be placed to lessen the bruising and add to the attractiveness of the package. The bottom being faced, the barrel should be half filled with fruit poured in carefully by lowering the basket well into the barrel and given a thorough shaking to settle the apples into place. This operation should be repeated when the barrel is nearly full. It is then filled a trifle above the chines, the top layer being arranged as uniformly as possible. The contents of the barrel are then pressed into place with a well padded head specially prepared for this purpose. When this false head is removed a plain or preferably corrugated paper cap is added and the top cover pressed into place with a screw or lever barrel header and nailed firmly into place. Tough twigs may be used for cleating.

When barrels are filled too full the pressing may injure all the apples. When filled too light to provide for shrinkage during shipment the apples

THE GENOA TRIBUNE.

Priday Morning, Sept. 29, 1911 Published every Friday and entered at the postoffice at Genoa, N. Y., as second class mail matter.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The 25th annual convention of the Cayuga County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the First M. E. church, Auburn, Sept. 27 and 28, 1911, and was a very succonful and interesting meeting.

The sessions were attended by about the usual number of delegates, thirteen local unions being represented, and by a large number of members and friends of the cause, more than usual being present from the country unione, showing an increased interest in the work in the whole county.

The reports of officers and superis tendents were, in the main, encouraging, showing that much work had been done throughout the county, and in some places with very gratifying results also that the purpose was to increase that work so far as possible during the coming year.

The financial reports were especially pleasing, showing a good balance on hand for future use.

Although no increase has been made in the regular membership, a great cause for rejoicing lies in the fact that there are now six Loyal Temperance Legions organized in the county, with a pledged membership of nearly 200, where but a short time since this department was conspicuous by its non-existence; Miss Helen I Root, county superintendent of L. T. L. work, is the right woman in the right place, and her long experience in the mission field seems to have specially fitted her for this most needed work with the children, and she is fast bringing Cayuga county to the front rank in L. T. L.

It was a disappointment that Mrs. Cora E Seberry, state organizer and lecturer, was unable to be present as expected, but her place on the program Wednesday evening was ably filled by Mrs. Nellie R Willis of Byracuse, state superintendent of parliamentary usage, who gave some very interesting details of the results of prohibition in North Carolina and Tennessee, which came under her personal observation during a recent visit to those states. She found the State Penitentiary at Raleigh, with two large buildings unoccupied and grass growing in the gravel walks, the few men in the other buildings being employed upon the roads and the problem before the State Legislature what to do with the large machine shops and other industries which had formerly been used but were now idle for lack of men; upon questioning the guard who was the guide of her party, she was told that since the state had been dry the num ber of inmates of the pri ons were 1:se every year; when she said to him, "Then you say that prohibition has made the difference?" he answered, "Why, yes ma'am, sure that have done it." The same results were found in Nashville and other parts of Tennessee where she spent some

One of the most enjoyable events of the convention was the children's demonstration given by pupils from the different Sunday schools of Au burn, under the direction of Miss Boot of Port Byron. A large number of children marched in singing to the music of piano, and an orchestra of boys, none of whom appeared to be over twelve years of age and led by a little fellow of only ten, who marched and played a cornet with an accuracy and expression which might well be copied by many adult musicians. After the marching children had entered and completely filled the choir lofts, he took his place with the orchestra and led the music for further singing and exercises. Several of the boys spoke, each introducing himself as representing some prominent man-Thom. as A. Edison, ExGovernor Robert Glenn of North Carolina, Dr Grenfell of Labrador, and others, giving the r arguments against the use of alcohol; and one young girl representing Mrs. Lillian N. M. Stevens, president of the National W. C T. U., and telling of the encouragement gained from these sentiments which so many of our most noted men are giving to the world. The election of officers resulted as followe: President, Mrs. M. Adele Miller; vice-president, Mrs Mary E Luird; recording secretary, Mrs. Ra chel M Gale; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Maude Harrington; treasurer, Mrs. Elvenah M:ad; secretary, F W L , Mrs Edith Dawson; secretary L T L . Miss Helen I Rost; delegate to national convention, Mrs. Ida F. Beach; alternate, wrs. Crouse.

The memorial exercises were impressively conducted by Mrs Gale. Nine regular members and two honoraries have passed over the river during the past year.

Excellent music was rendered at the convention were due the church choir and solos by Miss Lucy Taylor of Auburn and Mrs. Anna Smith of Port Byron were very much enjoyed.

The county banner was awarded to Weedsport union for the largest increase in membership, and the prize for new members gained at parlor meetings went to West Genoa. The place of meeting for the county institute to be held in May 1912 was not decided. Meals were served in the new dining hall of the church by the Ladies' Aid and it is enough to say that the ladies did themselves credit and the good things were thoroughly enjoyed by the hungry delegates. Ice cream and lunches were also served to all who wished before leaving for home on a Suit or Overcoat Thursday afternoon.

When at last the meeting ended, They had pledged with hand and heart To be ever faithful, loving Until death they two should part. Oh, how memory fondly lingers On that hour so long ago,

When on paths till then untrodden We ventured forth, life's cares

Thus we started on Life's journey When the war clouds hovered o'er And our nation, throbbing, listened To the cannons' awful roar, Daring thus, in times of danger Sign the roll that means for life Courage, faith and hope sustaining, Going forth as man and wife. Have we all these years been faithful To the pledge and sacred vow? Fifty years-devoted, loving-Flashes back the answer now, And we thank the Lord of Glory For the blessings gone before, Asking prayers of friends assembled Till we reach the other shore.

In memory of our virgin wedding Friends and neighbors thus to meet Like patriarchs upon our journey, We love our friends to kindly greet, Thankful for this friendly meeting

Prizing more than words can tell All our lifetime, of this gathering Kindly thoughts will fondly dwell. May the sunset brightly golden As our years go swiftly down, Shining forth with rapt effulgence Peacefully the ending come, And may the friends so kindly present, When life's journey has been trod Meet us there, beyond the River In the Paradise of God.

A Real Grouch There is in Washington an old "grouch" .whose son was graduated from Yale. When the young man came home at the end of his first term he exulted in the fact that he stood next to the head of his class. But the old gentleman was not satisfied.

"Next to the head!" he exclaimed. "What do you mean? I'd like to know what you think I'm sending you to college for? Next to the head! Why aren't you at the head, where you ought to be?"

At this the son was much crestfallen, but upon his return he went about his work with such ambition that at the end of the term he found himself in the coveted place. When he went home that year he felt very proud. It would be great news for the old man.

When the announcement was made the father contemplated his son for a few minutes in stience; then, with a shrug, he remarked:

"At the head of the class, eh? Well, that's a fine commentary on Yale university."-Lippincott's.

A Powerful Appeal. Two Dublin bargemen were strolling along beside the Liffey when they saw a notice that any one who rescued a drowning person from the water would receive a reward of £5. If a dead body were taken out the reward would be only 30 shillings. it seemed an easy way of making money, so after thinking the matter over for some time they arranged that one of them would fall in and the other would "rescue" him. "And then," Mike explained, "we'll share the £5 between us, two pound ten each." They found a fairly quiet spot, with nobody about, and Pat jumped into the water. Only when he saw his companion go down and come up gasping did it occur to Mike that neither of them could swim. So he stood rather doubtfully on the bank and watched his friend go down and come up again for the third time. Then a faint voice called to him; "Mike! Mike! For the love of hiven, save me, quick, or we'll only get 15 shillings aplece!"

Pleasant For the King. One of the most delightfully ludicrous enactments to be found in the acts of parliament is the "fifty-second of George II., chapter 146," which enacts that the penalty imposed under it shall be given half to the king and half to the poor of the parish. After the act had been passed it was discovered that the penalty which the act provides is transportation for fourteen years. The first intention was that the penalty should be a fine of £500. On second thought parliament substituted a term of penal servitude. But it forgot to omit the clause providing for the division of the spoils between the king and his indigent subjects.

Superfluous.

For sixteen years Mike Flynn had cleaned out the town hall after shows. lectures, political meetings, Memorial day exercises and other doings and never a complaint did he make. Recently, however, he fancied he had a kick coming, and he went into the mayor's office to register it. "What is it, Mike?" asked the mayor. "It's about the hall, yer honor. The byes stand up in the rear, they do, an' they chew an' spit durin' the intire performance. An' not a wurrud would Ol say, yer honor, if they would spit out on the flure where Oi could git at it, but, the varmints, they would spit all over the legs of the chairs in the back row an' on the places where the chairs do be fastened to the flure, an' hard work it is fer a man of me age to stoop down an' scrub it off. There's a favor Oi would ask of yer honor this mornin' in respict to it." "What is that, Mike?" "Indade, Oi would ask yer honor fer permission and authority to do away with the back row of seats entirely. Nobody likes to sit in the back row anyway, yer honor, an' sinceless it is to have one in the hall at all."

Right In Town.

According to John Lattimer, a clerk at the Seelbach hotel, a big Chicago traveling man, while stopping in the city recently tried to call a little southera Indiana town by long distance telephone. He was informed by the girl on the switchboard that the call would cost him 25 cents. Immediately he raised a strenuous kick.

"Bay," he shouted, "In Chicago we can talk to bell and back for 25 cents." "Well, I know," came the calm and "but that's in the city limits."-Louiswillin Timess.

HIS OTHER MINE

He Found a Use For It After He Had Dallied With New York.

Australia's most picturesque character got to town the other day. He is Tom Brown, miner, speculator, after dinner speaker and world traveler. Sixty-five years old, he has just returned from a visit to a South American mining region, where the thermometer stood 100 degrees in the shade.

"That isn't anything to what Australia can do," said the tall, lean traveler. "It's a fact that we can fry eggs on a sun heated shovel out in our country."

It is his boast that forty years ago he was captured by the Maoris, stripped and tied up, to make the piece de resistance at a cannibal feast. Luck saved him, he got back to Sydney in time to take part in the gold rush, and for a generation he has been one of Australia's richest men. "Just write "Tom Brown, Australia," on an envelope, and I'll bet you that the letter will find me," he declares. When he first struck New York he put in a few days seeing the city while waiting for the arrival of his steamer.

"I guess the high prices won't frighten me," said he. "I've got a gold mine working for me and another gold mine that I know is good that I have never opened up. I'm holding that in reserve."

Three days later one of the others of his party reported to him. "Tom," said he, "shall we make reservations for the return to Australia or stay here a few days longer?"

"I don't care," said Brown, "only if we decide to stay here for awhile walk around to the cable office with me. I want to cable my manager to open up that other mine."-Herbert Corey in Cincinnati Times-Star.

Wanted to Lump It.

At a certain college in Scotland the male students were not allowed to visit the resident lady boarders. One day a male student was caught in the act of doing so and was court martialed.

The rector, addressing him, said: "Well, Mr. --, the penalty for the first offense is 2s 6d., for the second 5s., for the third 7s. 6d., and so on, rising half a crown each time up to responded the keeper of the box office 'you're drunk." The frankness of this reply had rather a sobering influence upon the playgoer. He gathered up his money with dignity. "Of course I'm drunk," he said cheerfully as he turned to go. "I wouldn't come to see this play if I were sober, would I?"

Helped Out the Code.

A Boston oil man was putting down well in virgin territory. He was keeping the fact a profound secret in order to secure leases without difficulty if he got a good well. But he arranged a code telegram to be sent him as soon as the drill reached sand. In order that the news might not leak out at the telegraph office he told the driller that the sentence "Pine trees grow tall" would mean that he had struck oil. The driller promised to follow instructions. In a few days the telegram arrived. It read: "Pine trees grow tall. She's spurting clean over the derrick!"

A Great Comfort.

In rural New England districts the telephone takes the place of tea in the city as a place where women gather and retail gossip. Walter Prichard Eaton in American Magazine tells the following story:

"'It's a great blessing, 'specially it you're on a party line,' said our hostess 'And we're all on party lines! Wait'-"She went to the instrument, called a number and remarked: 'What you. Bessie? What's this I hear 'bout you'n Jim breaking it off? "We watched her smile as she listen-

'How'd I hear it? Why, Mrs. Asa Par ker told me.' "She held the receiver free of her ear and beckoned us close. We heard distinctly an indignant voice exclaim Why, Sarah Bowers, I never said no ed to the answer. Then she said:

such a thing!" "'I thought I'd catch her,' said Mrs.

and the second s

CHRIST'S DON'T WORRY CLUB. Text, "Be not therefore anxious for the morrow."-(R. V.) Matthew vi, 34.

The first Don't Worry club took its rise not at Battle Creek, but in Palestine. There, amid cloud crowned hills and breeze swept shore, in narrow street and dusty synagogue, Christ communicated to that little circle his own trustful spirit. Men study his every act and word under microscope of closest scrutiny, but in not a single line of his four biographers is there anything that even suggests Christ's giving way to worry. "Thy Saviour hath crucified joy," said the great infidel. Don't you believe it? No; he didn't play the comedian nor act the clown for the amusement of the crowd. He didn't come for that. But "peace" and "joy" were large words in his vocabulary. Worry is forethought gone to seed; discounts unknown sorrows of tomorrow that you may have misery today. A traitor that dampens your powder weakens your aim. Under the guise of helping you today it steals your strength for the morrow. It is mental chaos and anarchy. It is an attack of the ravenous, restless borde of the imps of fear, precluding reason, paralyzing action, impairing appetite, disturbing sleep, stimulating disease. The full, rich strength of the subconscious mind, that which produces our best success, is tapped and wasted on worry. If I were to write a twelfth commandment it would be, "Thou shalt not worry." "Off the Banks."

Worry leaves days when all goes wrong. Your mental, moral and physical self feels foggy and soggy as a morning off the banks of Newfoundland. From 7 a. m. till 10 p. m. things "break wrong." After a worried, sleepless night you get up out of bed on the wrong side. Beefsteak is tough; coffee is muddy; some one's stolen your morning paper; you miss your car, catch a cold in your head and a cinder in your eye; there's a note due and no money to pay it; agent comes in and wants to insure your life when it's already insured for more than it's worth; you wave him out and upset your ink bottle over your typewritten letters. Shoo! You're in for a day of it. The gloom imps are camped on your trail.

The day's out of joint, and no surgeon can set it. You'd shut your desk and go to the ball game only it's just started to rain. If there does come a break in the clouds, mental or physical. you discount it. Some people do that habitually. "How are you today, Aunt Hannah?" you say to your old maiden relative. "Oh. I feel pretty good. only I always feel bad when I feel good, 'cause I know I'll feel worse afterward.'

"Behind the Clouds Is"-Oh, say, cheer up! "Behind the clouds is the sun still shining." "Nothing so bad it mightn't be worse." "It's always morning somewhere." "Every cloud has a silver lining." "Long lane that has no turning." "Always darktroubles. So have others. I heard our little colored wash girl say to her older sister, standing scratching her tousled head, "Say, Lize, 's you got creepers?" "'F cose I has. Everybody has!" Most of our worry is selfish. We think of ourselves and our cares only. There are others. Ever keep a "worry book?" On the left hand page of the ledger each worry you've entertained; on the right the actual event, whether the worry comes true or was only a molehill foolishly turned into a moun-

At month end you'll find most worries hobgoblins. They've run away. Your right hand page will be ciphers. Stand up 365 panes of window glass and try to look through them. Might as well look in your hat. Take up one at a time the vision's clear, sunrise and sunset, and the day as it really is. Read of Edison's jest? Going to take a trip to Europe to give himself a chance to worry. He's been so busy that he's had no opportunity. Catch his thought? Idleness, mere pleasure, means worry. Work, action, shuts out worry. Think of busy days and use fulness. "How dismal you look," said the bucket to his companion on the way to the well. "I was thinking on the uselessness of our being filled; we only come away empty." "Oh," smiled his companion, "what a strange view! I always think no matter how empty we come we always go away filled."

What Men Worry About.

They're worrying over everything imaginable and often many things unimaginable. Watch any ordinary gathering of people in a room, street car, street corner and notice the worriers. The boat will be lost, the train wrecked, it will be raining when they get there, they will be too late for dinner. People worry when they're poor and when they're rich, when home and when abroad, when in trouble and when they've escaped it; because they are tall or short, dark or fair, fat or lean. Excessive ambition gets its grip on a fellow who's doing nicely. The humming bird wants to be a crow, the robin a buszard. They fly higher and tion was closed. 'As I told you, the his wife are drudges—the only servants and irone repaired at Huson's, Genes, phone's a great comfort to me all?" In their bouse that work for nothing. N. T. phono's a great comfort to us all?" | 'a their bouse that work for nothing.

Averts Awful Tragedy.

Timely advice given Mrs. C. Willoughby, of Marengo, Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote "and the awful cough has almost gone; It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung troubles. Price 50c

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY

Superiority of Light Diet. The superiority of the monodiet, with slight variation, has been demonstrated, and those who advocate indiscriminate variety must give some reason. A friend commented on the greatly improved appearance of a Chicago business man, aged fifty-six. "What do you think I'm eating?" he replied "Cornmeal mush and milk morning and evening. And, eating only one thing at a time, I am not so apt to overeat." Under perfectly natural conditions appetite would be a safe guide, but our living is now extremely complex and in nothing more than eating. If it is true that excessive variety is the chief physical cause of cancer we need to consider our eating habits.

Is the World Growing Better? Many things go to prove that it is. The way thousands are trying to help others is proof. Among them is Mrs. W. W. Gould, of Pittsfield, N. H. Finding good health by taking Electric Bitters, she now advises other sufferers, everywhere, to take them. "For years I suffered with stomach and kidney trouble," she writes. "Every medicine I used failed till I took Elecrtic Bitters. But this great remedy helped me wonderfully.? They'll help any woman. They're the best tonic and finest liver and kidney remedy that's made. Try them. You'll see. 50c at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, and F. T. Atwater's, King Ferry.

GRAFT.

No city can be injured by the enforcement of the people's laws. To do otherwise is to substitute the will of the official for the laws of the people, and that is tyranny. No state can be hurt by exposing grafting. To do otherwise is to connive at it. There is no secret remedy known for evils of this character. They cannot be cured by hiding them. The disgrace Is not in their correction, but in submission to them with supine indifference. It is well for a state to display its virtues and not to parade its faults, but it should not be forgotten that the highest civic virtue is the overthrow of depravity.-Joseph W.

"The World About Us."

A recent bulletin of the University of Wisconsin states that more than ten billion dollars-$10,000,000, Winter Goods 000—is spent annually in the United States for food, shelter and clothing, and that ninety per cent. of this vast We are now prepared to sum is spent by women. The bulleshow you the most complete tin holds that most women have no and reliable lines of dry goods adequate knowledge of economic in our city. Dress goods, latest values, and it calls for better trainweaves from 50c to $3.50 the ing of women so that they may spend more intelligently and receive better returns for their money.

One of the suggestions is that women should devote more serious study to the advertisements. The school recognizes that a revolution in Ladies and children's coats buying is well under way and that their goods and to deliver quality to Oct. 1st we will have our customers at fair prices. Thousands of women still believe that the extensive advertising of an article means larger cost, and it will take some time to remove this misapprehension, but a simple study of economics will soon show that judicious advertising-which means large advertising persistently pursued-is the only cheap way to the universal Children's Underwear from market, which is the home. The producer who enters upon this course Ladies' Underwear from 25c cannot afford to cheapen the quality of his product, for by the very act of Remnants of dress goods in publicity he courts constant surveillance and criticism. He banks his whole investment upon the reputation he may secure from the good faith and exacting demands of the people. -The Ladies' World for October.

National Tree of China.

The tung, or wood-oil, tree is worthily named the national tree of China. It is stately in appearance, with smooth green bark and widespreading branches, affording a fine shade. It bears a fruit resembling a shell bark hickory nut, but as large right. Then you need those pleasant as a small orange. Each nut conlittle strike-breakers-Dr. King's New tains three triangular seeds similar to Life Pills-to give them natural aid and small Brazil nuts. The oil is pressed from these seeds, and the refuse is used as a fertilizer. The oil is used principally for polishing wood-work and dressing leather. Considerable quantities are exported.

The wood of the tung tree is used for making musical instruments, fine boxes and the frame work of small houses. It is believed that this tree might flourish in warmer parts of the
