VOTING CONTEST CLOSES THURSDAY, APRIL 25th.

A Few More Days in Which to Work for the Beautiful Piano—Last Struggle for Capital Prize Now at its Height—Other Prizes.

There are now but a few more days in which the candidates engaged in the TRIBUNE's popular voting contest have to work for the several prizes offered. The voting comes to an end on Thursday, April 25, at 3 o'clock and immediately thereafter the counting will be commenced to see who shall be declared the winner of the splendid Obermeyer piano and the other beautiful and useful articles offered to those who are making an endeavor to land the premiums. If you have not yet seen the fine piano offered in this contest go to Mastin's display window and take a look. Many of our citizens have examined the instrument as to its quality and appearance and there is yet the first one to say that it is not a fine one.

There are several young ladies who appear to have the best of the contest but none of them are sure of being the ultimate owner of the first prize. If one of these contestants who is way down the list should take it into her head that she was going to win the big premium she could do so. She would have to do some work to make it, but that was what was expected when the contest opened.

The ballot box will be taken Monday next to the First National Bank where it will remain until the contest closes.

For those who wish to vote without any competitor seeing them, THE TRIBUNE desires to state that cash with your subscription, telling where the paper is to be sent and to whom the votes shall be given can be placed in an envelope and deposited in the bank. The judges will open these envelopes as soon as they start to count and will credit all votes, including bonus votes. In order to secure bonus votes on merchant's coupons they must be counted at THE TRIBUNE office before being voted.

Miss Clara Cook was in the lead at the last count. Several others are well to the front and are putting forth every effort on the home stretch to win the coveted prize. Either of the ladies can land the prize if they will take the time to get out and solicit new subscriptions and renewals. Every bunch of seven new subscribers means 8,200 votes and seven renewals will bring in 6,500 votes and the way to win is to get these new subscriptions and renewals, as they count up rapidly and they carry with them the big bonus offers which contestants should be seeking.

Old Ledyard Resident Gone.

The death of Wm. P. Sisson occurred at his home, west of Scipioville, very suddenly on Wednesday morning, April 3, of an apoplectic seizure. He was apparently in usual health early in the morning, but soon after breakfast was found in the woodshed in an unconscious condition, and death resulted before a physician arrived.

The deceased had been a resident of the town of Ledyard for a great many years, having been born in the home in which he passed away, in the year 1839. He was one of the best known and most respected farmers of the town of Ledyard. He had been a prominent prohibitionist for many years and had taken an active part in the promotion of the party in Cayuga county. He was at one time supervisor from his town and had held other town offices. In his death the community has met with a severe loss.

The deceased leaves a wife, Rhodie Sisson, and three daughters, Mrs. Hicks Corawell, Mrs. E. A. Burgess and Bertha Sisson, to mourn his loss. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, Rev. Joseph Kerr of Scipioville officiating. Relatives attending the funeral from a distance were: Mrs. Daniel Shourds of Macedon, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pickens of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Morgan of Poplar Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Burgess of New York and Miss Messenger of Aurora. Burial was made at Evergreen cemetery, Scipioville.

For every seven new subscriptions 4,000 extra, making a total of 8,200.

For every seven renewal subscriptions 3,000 extra, making a total of 6,500.

For every seven back subscriptions 2,000 extra, making a total of 4,800.

For every three 5 year subscriptions either new or renewal 25,000 extra votes, making a total of 40,000 votes.

For every 40 merchants coupons brought to this office and counted by the publisher or her assistant we will give 500 extra votes, a total of 1,500.

These merchants' coupons may be collected from any and all merchants who are giving coupons, and must be brought to the TRIBUNE office in bunches of forty tickets, to be counted by the publisher or her assistant before the coupons will be issued.

Thursday, April 25, the voting will cease and the final count will be made that afternoon. This is but a short time ahead and it is worth the while of the candidates to get out among the people and work like Trojans from now until the ballot box is closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the day mentioned. No ballots will be received after 3 o'clock under any circumstances, no matter who may have them or what excuse they may present for not getting them in at the proper time.

The contest is on the square and there is to be a fair field and no favorites.

All bonus votes that are to be cast must be accompanied by the number of coupons stated on the bonus or the bonus votes will not be counted nor allowed to be given to the contestant.

Merchants need not be afraid of buying an over supply of coupons since we will redeem at what you paid for them all you have left over at the close of the contest.

Remember that there are many handsome prizes given by various merchants around town, a list of which may be found in the big advertisement on another page. After the piano is awarded, the next contestant has first choice of the other prizes, the next one has second choice, and so on until all are claimed.

The Masonic Relief.

The annual meeting of the Masonic Relief Association of Cayuga county was held in the Masonic Temple in Auburn Saturday, March 30, with a large representation from the lodges of the county present. The following officers were elected:

President, William F. Claudius; vice-president, A. L. Downey; treasurer, Abram W. Roseboom; secretary, William E. Taylor.

Directors for three, two, and one year were chosen from Auburn, and the following directors for one year from county lodges in this part of the county: E. H. Hillman of Lovanna, W. J. H. Parker of Moravia; D. P. Mercereau of Union Springs; Robert Lee of Cayuga, W. H. Peckham of King Ferry, A. B. Comstock of Sherwood; special directors, William O. Mercereau of Union Springs, A. E. Hutchinson of Venice Center, Robert Mastin of Genoa, Howard E. Hunter of Ensenore, Eber A. Terwilliger of Sterling Station, W. O. Taylor of Martville.

During the past year the association has paid out the sum of $9,800 in death benefits and since the organization the sum of $104,176 has been paid out.

LET PEOPLE RULE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Opposes President's Attitude on Popular Government.

PEOPLE'S VOICE MUST PREVAIL

Cheered For Speech in Opening Active Campaign For Nomination—Quotes
Taft as Opposed to the Majority Stands Squarely on His Columbus (O.) Address.

The salient passages in Colonel Roosevelt's forceful campaign speech, delivered in Carnegie hall, New York, Wednesday evening, are given below:

The great fundamental issue now before the Republican party and before our people can be stated briefly. It is,
Are the American people fit to govern themselves, to rule themselves, to control themselves? I believe they are.
My opponents do not. I believe in the right of the people to rule. I believe that the majority of the plain people of the United States will, day in and day out, make fewer mistakes in governing themselves than any smaller class or body of men, no matter what their training, will make in trying to govern them. I believe again that the American people are as a whole capable of self control and of learning by their mistakes. Our opponents pay lip loyalty to this doctrine, but they show their real beliefs by the way in which they champion every device to make the nominal rule of the people a sham.

I have scant patience with this talk of the tyranny of the majority. Whenever there is tyranny of the majority I shall protest against it with all my heart and soul. But we are today suffering from the tyranny of the minorities. It is a small minority that is grabbing our coal deposits, our water powers and our harbor fronts. A small minority is fattening on the sale of adulterated foods and drugs. It is a small minority that lies behind monopolies and trusts. It is a small minority that stands behind the present law of master and servant, the sweatshops and the whole calendar of social and industrial injustice. It is a small minority that is today using our convention system to defeat the will of a majority of the people in the choice of delegates to the Chicago convention.

Not For Recall Everywhere.

My opponents charge that two things in my program are wrong because they intrude into the sanctuary of the judiciary. The first is the recall of judges and the second the review by the people of judicial decisions on certain constitutional questions. I have said again and again that I do not advocate the recall of judges in all states and in all communities. The integrity of our judges, from Marshall to White and Holmes—and to Cullen and many others in our own state—is a fine page of American history. But—I say it soberly—democracy has a right to approach the sanctuary of the courts when a special interest has corruptly found sanctuary there, and this is exactly what has happened in some of the states where the recall of the judges is a living issue. Is it not equally plain that the question whether a given social policy is for the public good is not of a judicial nature, but should be settled by the legislature or in the final instance by the people themselves?

The president of the United States, Mr. Taft, devoted most of a recent speech to criticism of this proposition.
He says that it "is utterly without merit or utility, and instead of being ... in the interest of all the people and of the stability of popular government, is sowing the seeds of confusion and tyranny." (By this he, of course, means the tyranny of the majority—that is, the tyranny of the American people as a whole.) He also says that my proposal (which, as he rightly sees, is merely a proposal to give the people a real instead of only a nominal chance to construe and amend a state constitution with reasonable rapidity) would make such amendment and interpretation "depend on the feverish, uncertain and unstable determination of successive votes on different laws by temporary and changing majorities," and that "it lays the ax at the foot of the tree of well ordered freedom and subjects the guarantee of life, liberty and property without respond to the fitful impulse of a temporary majority of an electorate."

This criticism is really less a criticism of my proposal than a criticism of all popular government. It is wholly unfounded, unless it is founded on the belief that the people are fundamentally untrustworthy. This is the question that I propose to submit to the people. How can the prevailing morality or a preponderant opinion be better and more exactly ascertained than by a vote of the people? The people must know better than the court what their own morality and their own opinion is. I ask that you, here, you and others like you, you the people, be given the chance to state your own views of justice and public morality and not sit meekly by and have your views announced for you by well meaning adherents of outworn philosophies, who exalt the pedantry of formulas above the vital needs of human life.

Mr. Taft's position is the position that has been held from the beginning of our government, although not always so openly held, by a large number of reputable and honorable men who down at bottom distrust popular government and when they must accept it accept it with reluctance and hedge around it with every species of restriction and check and balance as to make the power of the people as limited and as ineffective as possible.

Mr. Taft fairly defines the issue when he says that our government is and should be a government of all the people by a representative part of the people. This is an excellent and moderate description of an oligarchy. It defines our government as a government of all of the people by a few of the people.

I am not speaking jokingly nor do I mean to be unkind, for I repeat that many honorable and well meaning men of high character take this view and have taken it from the time of the formation of the nation. Essentially this view is that the constitution is a strait jacket to be used for the control of an unruly patient—the people. Now, I hold that this view is not only false but mischievous, that our constitutions are instruments designed to secure justice by securing the deliberate but effective expression of the popular will that the checks and balances are valuable as far and only so far as they accomplish that deliberation and that it is a warped and unworthy and improv-er construction of our form of government to see in it only a means of thwarting the popular will and of preventing justice. Mr. Taft says that "every class" should have a "voice" in the government. That seems to me a very serious misconception of the American political situation. The real trouble with us is that some classes have had too much voice. One of the most important of all the lessons to be taught and to be learned is that a man should vote not as a representative of a class, but merely as a good citizen, whose prime interests are the same as those of all other good citizens.

Taft's "Disbelief in the People"

Mr. Taft again and again, in quotations I have given and elsewhere through his speech, expresses his disbelief in the people when they vote at the polls. In one sentence he says that the proposition gives "powerful effect to the momentary impulse of a majority of an electorate and prepares the way for the possible exercise of the grossest tyranny." Elsewhere he speaks of the "feverish uncertainty" and "unstable determination" of laws by "temporary and changing majorities," and again he says that the system I propose "would result in suspension or application of constitutional guarantees according to popular whim," which would destroy "all possible consistency" in constitutional interpretation. I should much like to know the exact distinction that is to be made between what Mr. Taft calls "the fitful impulse of a temporary majority" when applied to a question such as that I raise and any other question.
Remember that under my proposal to review a rule of decision by popular vote, amending or construing to that extent the constitution, would certainly take at least two years from the time of the election of the legislature which passed the act. Now, only four months elapse between the nomination and the election of a man as president, to fill for four years the most important office in the land. In one of Mr. Taft's speeches he speaks of "the voice of the people as coming next to the voice of God." Apparently, then, the decision of the people about the presidency, after four months' deliberation, is to be treated as "next to the voice of God," but if after two years of sober thought they decide that women and children shall be protected in industry, or men protected from excessive hours of labor under unhygienic conditions, or wage workers compensated when they lose life or limb in the service of others, then their decision forthwith becomes a "whim" and "feverish" and "unstable" and an exercise of "the grossest tyranny" and the "laying of the ax at the foot of the tree of freedom." That is the old, old doctrine which has been acted upon for thousands of years abroad and which here in America has been acted upon sometimes openly, sometimes secretly, for forty years by many men in public and in private life, and I am sorry to say by many judges; a doctrine which has in fact tended to create a bulwark for privilege, a bulwark unjustly protecting special interests against the rights of the people as a whole. This doctrine is to me a dreadful doctrine, for its effect is, and can only be, to make the courts the shield of privilege against popular rights. Naturally, every up-holder and beneficiary of crooked privilege loudly applauds the doctrine. It is behind the shield of that doctrine that crooked clauses creep into laws, that men of wealth control legislation.

People Will Define "Liberty."

The decisions of which we complain are, as a rule, based upon the constitutional provision that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The terms "life, liberty and property" have been used in the constitutions of the English speaking peoples since Magna Charta.
Until within the last sixty years they were treated as having specific meanings—"property" meant tangible property; "liberty" meant freedom from personal restraint, or, in other words, from imprisonment in its largest definition. About 1870 our court began to attach to these terms new meanings.
Now "property" has come to mean every right of value which a person could enjoy, and "liberty" has been made to include the right to make contracts. As a result, when the state limits the hours for which women may labor, it is told by the courts that this law deprives them of their "liberty," and when it restricts the manufacture of tobacco in a tenement it is told that the law deprives the landlord of his "property." Now, I do not believe that any people, and especially our free American people, will long consent that the term "liberty" shall be defined for them by a bench of judges.
Every people has defined that term for itself in the course of its development.

Task Is to Strive For Justice.

Friends, our task as Americans is to strive for social and industrial justice, achieved through the genuine rule of the people. This is our end, our purpose. The methods for achieving the end are merely expedients to be finally accepted or rejected according as actual experience shows that they work well or ill. But in our hearts we must have this lofty purpose, and we must strive for it in all earnestness and sincerity or our work will come to nothing.
In order to succeed we need leaders of inspired idealism, leaders to whom are granted great visions, who dream greatly and strive to make their dreams come true; who can kindle the people with the fire from their own burning souls. The leader for the time being, whoever he may be, is but an instrument to be used until broken and then to be cast aside, and if he is worth his salt he will care no more when he is broken than a soldier cares when he is sent where his life is forfeited in order that the victory may be won. In the long fight for righteousness the watchword for all of us is spend and be spent. It is of little matter whether any one man fails or succeeds, but the cause shall not fail, for it is the cause of mankind. We, here in America, hold in our hands the hope of the world, the fate of the coming years, and shame and disgrace will be ours if in our eyes the light of high resolve is dimmed, if we trail in the dust the golden hopes of men. If on this new continent we merely build another country of great but unjustly divided material prosperity we shall have done nothing, and we shall do as little if we merely set the greed of envy against the greed of arrogance and thereby destroy the material well being of all of us. To turn this government either into government by plutocracy or government by a mob would be to repeat on a larger scale the lamentable failures of the world that is dead. We stand against all tyranny, by the few or by the many. We stand for the rule of the many in the interest of all of us, for the rule of the many is a spirit of courage, of common sense, of high purpose, above all in a spirit of kindly justice toward every man and every woman.

Remember I am not discussing the recall of judges—although I wish it distinctly understood that the recall is a mere piece of machinery to take the place of the unworkable impeachment which Mr. Taft in effect defends and that if the days of Maynard ever came back again in the state of New York I should favor it. I have no wish to come to it, but our opponents when they object to all efforts to secure real justice from the courts are strengthening the hands of those who demand the recall. In a great many states there has been for many years a real recall of judges as regards appointments, promotions, reappointments and re-elections, and this recall was through the turn of a thumbscrew at the end of a long distance rod in the hands of great interests. I believe that a just judge would feel far safer in the hands of the people than in the hands of those interests.

My remedy is not the result of a library study of constitutional law, but of actual and long continued experience in the use of governmental power to redress social and industrial evils.

Again and again earnest workers for social justice have said to me that the most serious obstacles that they have encountered during the many years that they have been trying to save American women and children from destruction in American industry have been the courts. That is the judgment of almost all the social workers I know and of dozens of parish priests and clergymen and of every executive and legislator who has been seriously attempting to use government as an agency for social and industrial betterment. What is the result of this system of judicial nullification? It was accurately stated by the court of appeals of New York in the employers' liability case, where it was calmly and judicially declared that the people under our republican government are less free to correct the evils that oppress them than are the people of the monoarchies of Europe. To any man with vision, to any man with broad and real social sympathies, to any man who believes with all his heart in this great democratic republic of ours, such a condition is intolerable. It is not government by the people, but mere sham government in which the will of the people is constantly defeated. It is out of this experience that my remedy has come, and let it be tried in this field. When as the result of years of education and debate a majority of the people have decided upon a remedy for an evil from which they suffer and have chosen a legislature and executive pledged to embody that remedy in law and the law has been finally passed and approved I regard it as monstrous that a bench of judges shall then say to the people: "You must begin all over again. First, amend your constitution [which will take four years]; second, secure the passage of a new law [which will take two years more]; third, carry that new law over the weary course of litigation [which will take no human being knows how long]; fourth, submit the whole matter over again to the very same judges who have rendered the decision to which you object. Then, if your patience holds out and you finally prevail, the will of the majority of the people may have its way." Such a system is not popular government, but a mere mockery of popular government.

Text, "What is that in thine hand? and he said, A rod."—Exodus iv. 2.
Poor Moses! Stands leaning on his shepherd's staff, weighing himself in the balance. God's just called him to lead millions of slaves from bondage.
He thinks of his shepherd's garb and rough speech. "Who am I?" he asking. What's the difference? "They will not hearken to my voice." Well, what if they do not. God himself has spoken to men and they would not listen. Moses soliloquizes. "This is a stupendous undertaking. The man who is to lead this people ought to be a wise and ready man. To persuade this people he ought to be above all a fluent speaker." He is startled by God saying, "What is that in thy hand?" Why only a rod, a stick cut from a common bush, his shepherd's crook, carried so long he's unconscious of its being in his hand. "What has that to do with the question of leading out 3,000,000 slaves?" "Cast the rod upon the ground." He obeys, and behold, that despised stick, so commonplace to Moses, became a writhing, twisting serpent. When Moses saw its poisonous fangs and its vicious little eyes he fled in terror. God's touch can make a fearful and wonderful thing out of a contemptible stick. When God put the stick back in Moses' hand Moses had a new respect for that common thing, and had learned a lesson that every Christian ought to learn.

BOSTON REVOLTED.

When Commodore Knowles Worked His Press Gang in 1747.

In the year 1747 a great tumult was raised in the town of Boston. Commodore Knowles, while lying at Nantucket with a number of men of war, losing some of his men by desertion, thought it reasonable that Boston should supply him with as many men as he had lost. To therefore sent his boats uptown early in the morning and surprised not only as many sea men as could be found on board of any of the boats outward bound as well as others, but swept the wharfs, taking some ship carpenters' apprentices and landsmen.

This conduct was resented. As soon as it was dusk several people assembled in King street, below the town house, where the general court was sitting. Stones and brickbats were thrown into the council chamber through the windows. A judicious speech of the governor from the balcony, disapproving of the impress and promising his utmost endeavors to obtain the discharge of the persons impressed, had no effect. The seizure and restraint of the commanders and other officers who were in town were insisted upon as the only effectual method to procure the release of the inhabitants on board the ships. The militia was summoned in aid of the government, but refused to appear.

Letters in the meantime passed between the governor and the commodore. The council and house of representatives now passed some vigorous resolutions, and the tumultuous spirit began to subside. Finally the commodore dismissed most if not all of the inhabitants who had been impressed, and the squadron sailed.

NOISY FISHES.

The Skate Grunts, the Puffer Chuckles, and the Drumfish Booms.

Perhaps the most conspicuous example of the fishes that are capable of utterance is the drumfish, so called by reason of the deep, booming noise it produces at will. It is found along the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to Florida.

The squeteague, another salt water fish of the noisy variety, resembles in appearance the trout, and the not unusual sound that it gives out is much like the note uttered by a big bullfrog. Allied to the squeteague is the fish known as "the croaker," which, as its popular name indicates, affects the croak—an unmistakable croak.

The sea robin, so called because it has crimson fins just behind its head, about the size of birds' wings, is another fish that makes itself heard. The "squawk" of the sea robin is especially emphatic when on being caught it lifts up its voice in reiterated protests.

There is a fish that may be said to chuckle—the little puffer or swellfish. It puffs itself into the shape of a perfect sphere and as it does so gives out a peculiar, hoarse chuckle.

The skate when caught grunts, groans and gasps pretty much after the manner of a human being in distress. Carp and goldfish frequently utter curious sounds, but hardly sound in the meaning of the term here used, inasmuch as their sounds are produced by approaching the surface of the water and blowing out air in bubbles until a rippling noise is heard.—Denver Republican.

Sparrow Diet For a Stork.

An English sparrow flew into the flying cage in the zoo and began helping itself to the cracked corn thrown upon the ground by the keeper. A Brazilian stork quickly approached and shot out its six inch red beak and caught the sparrow. Going to the fountain, the big bird dipped the little one in the water and then swallowed it and looked about for more.

"Oh, you cannibal! You ought to get a beating!" exclaimed a woman visitor.

"The sparrow ought to know better than to go in there," explained the keeper. "The stork has been eating half a dozen of these birds a week since he came here. The English sparrow has a quick eye and is quick on the wing and is seldom caught by prowling cats, but doesn't suspect anything with feathers on. The big bird is getting fat on a sparrow diet."—New York Sun.

True to His Promise.

"Dearest, will you let me share your every sorrow after we are married?" she whispered as she cuddled her cheek against his.

"Yes, darling," he replied, again plucking a delicious kiss from her sweet lips.

It was the same lady who two years later wearily cried out: "Oh, Tom, why can't you ever come into the house without bringing a tale of trouble with you? I'm so sick of hearing about how hard you have to work to keep the bills paid."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Funny Metaphor.

The late King Edward when he was Prince of Wales once made a funny mixture of metaphors. In reply to certain inquiries and admonitions he said, "I will do my best to walk in my father's footsteps, which you have held for my imitation."

Story of a Stingy Husband.

In a lively article in the current number of Farm and Fireside, on the relations between husbands and wives on the subject of home finances, there are several interesting reports of actual cases. Following is a report of a stingy husband:

"A girl I knew in my youth was married after a short acquaintance to a professional man. He had been brought up under hard conditions in a strenuous school of poverty. She was the daughter of wealth and had never been denied a reasonable wish. Her husband was what is called a good provider. He bought amply for the table, and was not averse to having plenty of fuel and sufficient house furnishings to keep his house comfortable and dignified. He simply declined to let Betty buy so much as five cents' worth of anything. He did not wish her to have accounts at shops, nor did she desire them. When she wanted to buy anything for herself or the children, he accompanied her, superintended her purchases, examined every pair of stockings and every yard of muslin, and frowned upon ruching and trimmings as needless, drawing out his well-filled pocketbook and paying the bill with a flourish when the shopping had been done to his satisfaction. She never had any money in her possession except when her mother sent it to her as a gift, and when this was done, she took excellent care to keep Reuben in ignorance. Once the good man, for in some ways he was good, was compelled to leave home for a few days. He carefully counted the amount that his wife would spend for the house during his absence. Then he lost his train and had to wait over another day. Coming home, he asked her for the cash and put it back in his own pocket for the next twenty-four hours."

A BIBLE VERSE.

It Surprised the Boy Who Boasted of His Wonderful Memory.

A boy who had won a prize for learning Scripture verses and was greatly elated thereby was asked by a minister if it took him a long time to commit them.

"Oh, no," said the boy boastfully; "I can learn any verse in the Bible in five minutes."

"Can you, indeed? And will you learn one for me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then in five minutes from now I would like very much to hear you repeat this verse," said the minister, handing him the book and pointing out the ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Esther:

"Then were the king's scribes called at that time in the third month—that is, the month Sivan—on the three and twentieth day thereof, and it was written, according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and to the lieutenants and the deputies and rulers of the provinces, which are from India unto Ethiopia, a hundred, twenty and seven provinces, unto every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people after their language, and to the Jews according to their writing and according to their language."

The boy entered on his task with confidence, but at the end of an hour could not repeat it without a mistake and had to tearfully acknowledge himself defeated.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Tricky Lions.

Some of the most dangerous tricks of animals are those of simulating kindness. Charles Montague in "Tales of a Nomad" says that hyenas often follow lions and finish a carcass the moment the lions have left it. Sometimes, however, the hyenas are too eager and steal bits of meat while the lions are still at their meal.

"I have been told that the lion rids himself of the nuisance in the following way: He throws a piece of meat aside. When the lion is looking the other way the hyena dodges in and rushes off with the meat. Presently the lion throws another piece of meat, this time a little nearer. The hyena takes that also. At last the lion throws a piece very near indeed. The hyena, having become reckless, makes a dash at this also, but the lion wheels round and lays him low with a pat of his paw and a growl of annoyance."

Showed Him the Point.

A large crowd which collected on Broadway attracted the attention of two commercial travelers just back in New York. Joining it, they discovered that a safe was being raised to the fifteenth floor of a building and that the crowd was careful to stand outside the roped fence. "That's a good advertisement for my business," remarked one of the drummers, who is interested in the sale of airships. His companion admitted he didn't see the point. "Well, look at the sign, 'Danger below' Then look up in the air. Danger below, safe above. Moral, take an airship."—New York Tribune.

Carefree Bohemians.

"How would you like to go to a bohemian supper? Lot of literary people and all that, you know."

"No; the bohemians are too free and easy for me. Last time I went they ran out of cheese and spread the sandwiches with library paste."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Conflicting Precedents.

A man can't always regulate himself according to history. There was Benson, who lost his life because he had his hair cut, and Absalom because he didn't.—Smart Set Magazine.

—Mrs. Warren Counsell and daughter Mildred of Union Springs have been guests of Genoa relatives and friends for the past week. With Mrs. Lois Smith, they also spent a few days at Walter Smith's at East Venice.

—Rev. E. L. Dresser of Ithaca and his nephew, Rev. Howard Chandler, were in town Monday calling on friends. Mr. Chandler, during his course in Auburn seminary, supplied the pulpits of the Five Corners and Genoa Presbyterian churches. Five years ago he went abroad, traveling through England, Southern Europe and Palestine and for the past two years he has been teaching in a mission school in Turkey. He is now on the way to visit his parents in Cleveland, Ohio.

—Stephen Sharpsteen, a lifelong and respected resident of this town, died at his home at East Genoa on Tuesday morning, after a long illness. The immediate cause of death was heart trouble from which he had suffered for sixteen weeks, but he had been afflicted with Bright's disease for six months or more. Mr. Sharpsteen was the son of the late Jacob and Delilah Sharpsteen, and was 58 years of age on Aug. 28, 1911. He was twice married, his first wife being Sarah Upton. Two children were born to them, Mrs. E. C. Starnes, of Ithaca, and J. D. Sharpsteen. Mrs. Sharpsteen died in 1885. He married for his second wife, Miss Nettie Smith, who survives, with their three children, May Sharpsteen, Millard Sharpsteen, and an infant son born Saturday, April 6. He also leaves his aged mother and two sisters, Miss Amy Sharpsteen and Mrs. Frank Bothwell. Funeral services were held at his late home on Thursday at 2 o'clock, Rev. F. J. Allington officiating. Burial was made in Genoa cemetery.

—Miss Kathleen Norman is home from the Cortland Normal this week for the Easter vacation.

—Miss Mary Sellen of Union Springs spent her Easter vacation with her sisters at Locke and Moravia.

—Stephen Donovan, who was reported last week as perhaps seriously injured, is improving and it is said that the hip is not broken.

—Mrs. John O'Neill and children of Fabius are spending the Easter vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Samson.

—Miss Ruth Leonard of Syracuse and Lawrence Leonard of Morrisville are spending the Easter vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Leonard.

—Miss Charlotte Bush returned Saturday evening from Groton where she had been for the past four weeks. She spent a few days in Ithaca before returning home.

—Mrs. A. Cannon and Miss Mabel Cannon spent Saturday and Sunday with Chas. A. Cannon and family in Auburn. Miss Cannon returned to Brooklyn Sunday afternoon.

—The North Lansing W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank Beardsley, Saturday afternoon, April 13, after which they will have a maple sugar social. All are invited.

We have just unloaded two cars of corn and winter bran, midds, and spring flour. Give us a call. Genoa Roller Mills, SAMSON & MULVANEY.

—The J. E. Davis piano factory at Cortland was destroyed by fire Friday morning last. Loss $250,000. The factory was formerly the property of the Whitney Wagon Co. The company employed 150 men, who are thrown out of work.

—Rev. F. E. King of Ithaca, N. Y., will have charge of the service at 11 o'clock on Sunday, April 14, at the Venice Baptist church, under the direction of the Law and Order Union of the State of New York. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

—Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church, the Holy Communion service will be observed. The pastor's theme, "Born Anew." This service is of special interest to all Christians and all who can should attend. Sunday school, Christian Endeavor and evening service at usual hours. The Easter service last Sunday morning was largely attended, and the pastor preached a most excellent sermon. If we had more time and space, we would like to put it in type for the benefit of our readers.

Our feed mill at the Genoa elevator is now ready for custom business. We can handle grain or ear corn; Will grind Tuesday and Friday of each week. J. G. ATWATER & SON.

—The complete program of the W. C. T. U. institute to be held in Genoa next Wednesday appears in this issue. The sessions are open to all, and the county officers extend a special invitation to every woman, young or old, in this vicinity to attend. No one should fail to hear M. J. Fanning, the speaker of the evening. He has a wide reputation as a temperance orator, and deserves a large audience. The men of the village are especially urged to hear him. No admission will be charged. Dinner and supper will be served to all who desire at 25 cents each. The serving of the meals is in charge of the Ladies' Aid society, and the vacant room on the second floor of the school building has been secured to use for this purpose.

—The Erie canal will open for navigation May 15.

—After May 1, the Genoa post-office will be a Postal Savings bank.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Buck of East Lansing recently spent a few days at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. L. B. Mead.

—Mrs. Webb Greenfield died at her home in Moravia early Sunday morning, aged 70 years. Death was due to shock following an operation which she underwent about four weeks ago. Her death was unexpected and was a great shock to her family and friends. She was the last of the family of the late Wm. and Lucy Keeler of Moravia. Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Mead, and a son, William E. Greenfield. Funeral services were held at St. Matthew's church on Tuesday at 2 p. m.

—Miss Emma A. Waldo spent Easter with friends in Auburn, and remained for the concert by the Boston Grand Opera orchestra and Miss Alice Neilsen, the prima donna soprano, on Monday evening in the Auditorium. This company is composed of 70 skilled musicians with Wallace Goodrich as conductor, and all are artists of splendid musical abilities. The orchestra numbers were exquisitely rendered and received much applause, while Miss Neilsen was enthusiastically encoored after every selection. Her last two songs were in English with piano accompaniment.

DEPOSITS IN TRUST COMPANIES

AS COMPARED WITH DEPOSITS IN SOME OTHER KINDS OF BANKING INSTITUTIONS

Some Banks have no capital and so the surplus is all that stands between a depositor and loss. A Trust Company, besides a surplus, has a capital and equal amount of liability on the Stockholders' account.

For example, besides a surplus of $125,000, the Ithaca Trust Company has a paid-in capital of $200,000 and a Stockholders' liability of $200,000. This means $525,000 of our Stockholders' money must be lost before one of our depositors can lose a dollar

Is your money as well protected? Our depositors are always secure in panics as well as in prosperous times.

Almost A Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results. It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at J. S. Banker's, Genoa, F. T. Atwater, King Ferry.

Not Enthusiastic.

"My boy's back from college." "How does he take holt on the farm?" "I hadn't seen him make no cane rush for the wood pile."—Kansas City Journal.

Dreadful.

Stella—A dreadful experience, you say? Bella—Yes; I saw a great bargain in shoes when I had a hole in my stocking!—Ladies' Guest.

The Danger After Grip

lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50 cents. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by J. S. Banker, Genoa, F. T. Atwater, King Ferry.

MIXED RELATIONS.

A Family Problem a Lawyer Did Not Care to Tackle.

A lawyer received a call from a new client, a man bent upon recovering a sum of money advanced upon a note and not repaid.

"Who is the debtor?" asked the lawyer.

"Oh, she's a relative of mine."

"How nearly related?"

"Very nearly."

"But, my dear sir," persisted the lawyer, "you must be more explicit."

"Well, she may be my mother-in-law."

"May be? Then you are likely to marry her daughter."

"I've already married the daughter."

"Then, of course, the defendant is your mother-in-law."

"Perhaps you'd better hear the whole story," returned the client.

"You see, a year ago we lived together, my son and I. Across the way lived the Widow Foster and her daughter Mary. I married Mary, and my son married the widow. Now perhaps you can tell me whether my son's wife is my mother-in-law or my daughter-in-law."

The lawyer did not answer. The problem was unfamiliar. He was not ready.

"I don't think I can take your case," he said. "It presents too many complications."

"Very well," returned the man, taking his hat despondently. "But there's one thing I forgot. Since our double wedding a child has been born to each of us. What relation are those two children to each other?"

Bagpipes.

Bagpipes, mentioned in Jeremiah xiv, 30. "Mine heart shall sound for Moab like pipes," and elsewhere in Scripture were used also by the early Egyptians. Both Greeks and Romans knew the instrument, for a coin of Nero shows upon one side the tibia utricularis, a bag with two reeds and nine pipes. Procopius also, who wrote about 550 A. D., asserts that Roman soldiers sometimes marched to the sound of the bagpipes, and it is not impossible that they introduced them into the British islands. The earliest, more modern reference to them is in an Irish MS. of 1150, and an Irish illuminated MS. of 1390 depicts a pig playing on the bagpipes. The Scottish highlanders were the first and only people to use the great war pipe, as the highland regiments still do.

PRINTING IN CHINA.

Often No Presses Are Used, a Pair of Brushes Doing the Work.

The Chinese assert that the art of printing was discovered in China about fifty years before the Christian era. Until the discovery of the art of papermaking, A. D. 96, they printed on silk or cloth cut in the form of leaves. The method employed to this day by many native Chinese printers is as follows:

No printing press is used. The delicate nature of the Chinese paper would not admit of it. When the blocks are engraved, the paper cut and the ink ready one man with his brush will print a large number of sheets in a day.

The block to be printed must be placed perfectly level and secured firmly. The printer has two brushes, one of them stiffer than the other, which he can hold in his hand and use at either end.

He dips it into the ink and rubs the block with it, taking care not to moisten it too much or leave it too dry. If it were wetted too much the characters would be blurred; if too little, they would not print. When once the block is got into the proper condition he can print three or four impressions without dipping his brush into the ink again.

The second brush is used to rub over the paper with a small degree of pressure, that it may take the impression. This it does easily, for, not being sized with alum, it receives the ink the instant it comes in contact with it. It is only necessary that the brush should be passed over every part of the sheet with a greater or smaller degree of pressure and repeated in proportion as the printer finds there is more or less ink upon the block.—Harper's Weekly.

A Malediction on Mathewson.

Soon after the baseball season opened last spring Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants received a letter from a gentleman in a small town reading after this fashion:

"Dear Sir—Will you kindly give me some advice right away? With the bases full and Hi Hecker, the demon batsman, at the bat, I contend that I ought to throw him my slow out drop. My manager insists that I ought to give him my high in up. This emergency is liable to arise at any moment and I would like to hear from you right away."

Mathewson forgot to answer, and three weeks later he received this letter from his correspondent:

"Sir—I asked you an important question like a gentleman, and I expected that you would answer it like a gentleman, but you did not do so, and what is the result? With three men on bases I threw Hi Hecker my high in up, and he knocked the ball over the fence. I hope the next time you face Joe Tinker he bats you out of the box."—Saturday Evening Post.

Life's Triumphs.

Each life has one grand day. The clouds may lie along the hills and storm winds fiercely blow. The great red sunshine like a thing of woe and death's sad skeleton stalk grimly by. Yet none of these, no matter how they try, can shroud the perfect triumph we shall know. Or dim the glory that some star will show. Set far away in depths of purple sky. Sweet love may bring to us this day supreme. Or it may thrill our souls through art or song. Or meet us where red battle surges foam; Hope's stranded wrecks the barren coasts may gleam, and weeks and months dash by a somber throng. But some time, somewhere, it will surely come.

—T. S. Collier.

Just Had To.

John M. Thomas, president of Middlebury college, says that a year or two ago a certain town employed a trained superintendent, a college man who knew what a school ought to be, to exercise supervision over all the schools of that town. It was the first time some of those schools had ever been visited in an official capacity by a salaried administrative officer. In one school a little toddler was found studying percentage, learning it by heart.

"You should not teach him percentage," the superintendent said. "He does not know how to add and subtract."

"But I've got to," the teacher answered. "The front part of the arithmetic is torn out."

Fooled the Doctor.

"I remember one time," said a comedian, "when a medicine show came to our town, and father went to the performance. As you probably know, it used to be the custom of the medicine 'doctor' to try to make the audience think he was merely selling his medicine to advertise it. Such was the case the night my father attended the show. The 'doctor' when he began telling of the virtues of the cure-all declared that since he was merely advertising the medicine, he would positively sell but one bottle to a person. It would be impossible to buy more than one. That night my father reached home very much elated. He came into the sitting room and pulled a bottle of the medicine out of each side pocket of his coat.

"I got ahead of the darned sinner!" he said.

"What's that?" I asked.

"Why, that feller said he wouldn't sell us more than one bottle apiece, but (here he shook his head and smiled) I fooled him. I got two."

"How did you do it?" I asked.

"Why, darn him," replied my father. "I bought one. Then I went outside, took off my coat and come back in an' bought another. The blamed chump never knowed me."

The French and English of It.

That fine artist, Legros, had always declined to learn English, but he took an inconsistent step, for he had himself naturalized as an Englishman. The incident gave occasion to one of his best replies, and, though an austere painter, he was a jovial wit.

"Well, Legros, how do you feel?" asked a friend on the morrow of the naturalization. "Why, particularly happy," Legros answered. "Yesterday I had lost the battle of Waterloo and today I have won it."

A Surprise For the Weather Prophet.

A century and a half ago people used to depend upon the weather prognostications in Partridge's Almanac. One day Partridge himself put up at a country inn for dinner. The hostler advised him to stay the night, as it would certainly rain. "Nonsense!" said Partridge, and proceeded on his way. Soon a heavy shower fell, which so impressed the traveler that he instantly rode back to the inn and offered the hostler half a crown if he would tell him how he knew the rain was imminent.

"Well," replied the man, with a grin, pocketing the coin, "the truth is we have Partridge's Almanac here, and he's such a liar that whenever he promises a fine day we know it will be foul. Today is set down as fine."

The weather prophet, like many other weather prophets before and since, passed on discomfited.—Strand Magazine.

The Amateur Pianist Who Thought He Rivalled Rubinstein.

An orchestra leader who conducted for Rubinstein when the great musician was on tour, tells of a joke played in one city on an amateur pianist.

"The amateur's father was the owner of a large hall, and he offered the use of it to Rubinstein for his benefit. There was to be a piece for four pianos, and the amateur was to play one of the instruments. I was the leader. I thought Rubinstein would have a fit when I told him that the amateur couldn't play three straight notes. 'He is sure to throw us all out,' said I, 'and ruin the performance.'

"Rubinstein swore like a major, but 'twas no good. The bills were out and he must keep faith.

"At last I hit on an idea. The amateur came down to rehearsal and we praised him up until he thought he was to be the star of the night. As soon as he left we took the hammers out of his piano and made it dumb as an oyster. I guessed he would never know the difference with three pianos going at once.

"And, just as I thought, that amateur and his friends never discovered the trick. No, sir; he just sailed in and pounded on that piano as if it was the worst enemy he ever had. He was bound to show off among so many good pianists, and he hammered on his keyboard until the perspiration nearly blinded him. Now and then I looked at him approvingly to give him fresh courage, and every time that I did he gave the piano a lick that nearly made matchwood of it.

"His friends all around threw bouquets at him till he looked like a wedding arch, and when it was all over his fond parent fell on his neck in the greenroom and slipped a fat check into his hand.

"'Didn't he do splendidly?' said he to me.

"'I never heard an amateur do so well in public,' said I, and, what's more, I meant it."

His Only Fear.

As is well known, the late Justice Peckham was a Democrat, while Justice Harlan was a Republican. They were the best of friends. One day they were discussing the fear of death. Justice Peckham said to Justice Harlan:

"You are not afraid to die, are you?"

To this, after a moment's reflection, Justice Harlan replied: "No, not exactly. My only fear is that I might bring up at Democratic headquarters."

A Noble Footman.

Billy Hitt, a well known society man in Washington, was late one evening for dinner at the home of Larz Anderson. Springing from his automobile, he rushed into the house, struggling out of his big fur overcoat as he went. Just inside the door he saw a footman at whom he hurled the coat, exclaiming: "That's all right. Never mind the check."

"NEVER MIND THE CHECK."

But as he was disappearing into the dining room he was stopped by a storm of outlandish language coming from the prostrate form that had been knocked down by the impact of the overcoat. He looked round and saw emerging from the covering of fur the face of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador.—Washington Star.

Whistler Tamed a Russian.

When James MacNeill Whistler went to Venice to make those fourteen famous etchings of his he became so intoxicated with its beauty that he made seventy pastels first, leaving his etchings till the last few days. These pastels made a tremendous sensation. All the art world of Venice was carried away with enthusiasm excepting a Russian painter, who declared them tricks, betting a basketful of champagne he could paint six not to be distinguished from them. Mr. Whistler amiably gave some of his paper and six pastels, which were finally mixed up with those by the Russian and submitted to a jury which had seen none of them. Mr. Whistler's pastels were unmistakable, and the Russian lost. A few days later the two met on the Rialto, and Mr. Whistler laughed a little about the bet. The Russian was furious. "You forget, sir," he said, "that I'm a Russian, and if you scratch one you find a Tartar underneath."

"Oh, no; you have it wrong," said Mr. Whistler. "You have it wrong! I scratched an artist and found an amateur."

A Man Or A Manager?

Following is an extract from an interesting editorial discussion in the April American Magazine:

"Last week I called on the president of a big concern uptown. My card was taken by a little girl who sat shivering at a desk in a draughty outside corridor by the elevators. You know what bitter weather we have been having, well, the suction of those elevators set up a breeze that you would have said came from the north side of the North Pole. The office manager had placed her there because it was the conventional place for her to be; doing as a man, but being a manager, he did it and thought nothing of it. When I went inside, the president was just sending off a big check to a tuberculosis fund. He is a splendid fellow; he too as a man would never in the world expose the girl to an all chance of pneumonia in that boreal draught; but being president, no doubt he took her as thoughtlessly granted there as he would her desk."

She Was.

A very loyal lady of English birth once asked an American dame in England whether they had any painters in America.

"Oh, yes," said the American, "you have some of them here—Sargent and Abbey and Mrs. Merritt and McClure Hamilton."

"Dear me," said the English lady, "you'll be claiming Whistler next!"

In The Snow Belt.

Seventy-eight inches, or six feet six inches, of snow fell in Oswego, N. Y. between December 28 and February 15, says the New York Telephone Review for March, which prints a series of pictures showing the snow piled up to the second story windows of a residence, lamp-posts almost buried, and other views equally remarkable. The telephone alone afforded means of communication to a large part of the population during this trying period. "The snow belt" is applied to a section only a few miles wide and about 80 miles long, extending from a point west of Oswego to a point near Utica. In this belt there is a much heavier fall of snow than in any other section of the state, this being due to the peculiar moisture conditions between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean.

Farm Help.

Farmers, fruit growers and dairymen in the southern, central and western counties of the state will be interested to learn that Hon. Calvin J. Huson, State Commissioner of Agriculture, has opened a bureau for supplying them, free of charge, with agricultural laborers. The bureau will be located at 710 Mutual Life Building, Buffalo, and those desiring farm laborers should write the Agricultural Department, at that address stating their wants.

The success of the Farm Bureau in the Department of Agriculture at Albany in securing more than 5,000 laborers on farms the past year has decided Commissioner Huson to open the branch in Buffalo. That city has a large foreign population, chiefly of Poles and Germans—many of whom followed agricultural pursuits in their home country. From among their numbers it is believed the help necessary to man the farms of western New York may be recruited. The services of the new Farm Bureau will be at the disposal of the farmers of the state without cost to them.
