Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work.

The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Keep a spray calendar.

Cut out the dead branches.

Chickens relish fresh lettuce.

Select your breed and stick to it.

If you plant pear trees in rich soil you invite blight.

It is work worth while to scald the calf's feed pail every day.

A peach tree will stand a heavier heading back than an apple tree.

Do not allow the stock to run in the orchard during the winter months.

Scatter the manure as you haul it. don't put into little piles all over the land.

Keep the feed troughs clean. It is a wasteful practice to mix manure with grain.

Letting the calf suck the cow the first day or two lessens the danger of milk fever.

If sows are expected to produce a fall litter, the spring litter should be weaned when about 10 weeks old.

Five or six of the twelve or thirteen species of beetles attacking stored grains are found usually in farmers' bins.

If you are still so far behind the age as to be dairying with no separator, get one now, if you sell a cow to do it.

An occasional colt or young horse to sell, even when one is not making a business of raising horses, is a help to any farmer.

The litter carrier will do much to keep the barn clean, because it encourages the boys and men to do their work better.

The training of a colt cannot be too thorough. A half-broken horse is not broken at all, and is always a dangerous animal.

Calves should have plenty of water as early as they want to drink it, but it is best not to let them have it right after their milk feed.

Where from four to eight cows are milked the churn should hold from six to ten gallons. Better a little large than too small.

currant bushes must also be watched carefully, and be thoroughly sprayed at least twice or you will find more green worms on your bushes than fruit.

A vessel which would hold 1,000 pounds of water would hold 1,032 pounds of whole milk, 1,038 pounds of skim milk, or 1,000 pounds of good cream.

When you see the little ghost-like winged creatures rising like tiny clouds from your rose bushes, be sure it is the aphids. Get after them with the spray.

Young climbing roses ought to be cut back to a strong eye, and the side shoots pruned as grapevines are pruned—that is, a couple of eyes from the stem.

When cream foams in the churn and butter will not come, put in a handful or two of salt and a little water, slightly warmed. This usually remedies the trouble.

Get some variety in the poultry ration. If the chickens are not eating heartily they may need a little change in their food to put their appetites back in tone.

Not a few of our dairy folks are going to raise a crop of cowpeas as hay feed for cows this year. Cowpeas hay is next to alfalfa and clover in milk-making qualities.

Eggs to be preserved should be perfectly fresh and be placed in the solution the same day as laid to obtain the best results, although eggs several days old will keep very well. Washed eggs should not be used.

With gravel and sand to be had on most farms, the purchase of some Portland cement will provide the entire material for a root cellar, a drinking trough, a milk house and many other convenient buildings which will last for many years.

Where there is hardly enough milk from a single milking to make separating worth while it may be set away until next milking time, when the cream should be thoroughly stirred in and the milk warmed up before passing through the machine.

ORIGIN OF "CATCH MY PAL"

Witty Irish Orator, Rev. Robert J. Patterson, Persuaded Twelve Hard Drinkers to Sign Pledge.

"Catch-my-Pal" is the unique name of a remarkable temperance movement which has been working a wonderful transformation in the North of Ireland during the last six months. It was originated by Rev. Robert J. Patterson of Armagh, who is a shrewd and witty Irish orator.

One day last July this clergyman persuaded twelve hard drinkers in the city of Armagh to sign the pledge. Before parting with them, he said:

"Now perhaps each of you could bring a pal to my house tomorrow and induce him to sign."

"I think I can catch my pal," said one of the men, and that was the origin of the "Catch My Pal" movement now sweeping over the North of Ireland.

Scarcely a town or village in Ulster is without an enthusiastic band of members each of whom wears an enamelled brass button bearing the words, "Catch My Pal Union." The public houses in many of the provincial manufacturing towns have lost fully 50 per cent. of their trade. Of the 3,000 inhabitants of Cookstown, County Tyrone, over seven hundred men joined the union in November and December, and the percentage is equally great in other towns.

Missionaries have been sent already to the West of Scotland, and the movement has already taken strong root even in Glasgow. In the latter city the originator inaugurated the movement himself at a great Sunday afternoon meeting. At the close of his address two hundred men gathered round him and, with uplifted arm, recited the pledge after him, and then, with closed fist and determined voice all declared: "We will see this thing through."

RESTRICT SALE OF ALCOHOL

Suggestion is Advocated That Its Sale be Restricted as That of Poisonous Strychnine.

Facts of physiology are against alcoholics. A single injection into the stomach causes the pepsin to precipitate, and at once arrests digestion. It absorbs water from the living tissues so rapidly as to dry and harden them; it contracts the liver; it unhealthily increases the pulsations of the heart; it renders the subject liable to epidemic diseases.

Physiology describes alcohol as an irritant, blistering the living tissues; an astringent, contracting and hardening the parts which it touches; a solvent, destroying the vital tissues; a narcotic, often producing the last long sleep. Alcohol is needed, no doubt, for some mechanical and medicinal purposes. So is strychnine. Let the sale of the one be as carefully restricted as that of the other.

The following circumstances illustrate the subject of whisky and wages. Three young men, carpenters by trade, hired themselves to a boss, promising to stay with him until a certain piece of work was completed. They were to receive the same wages and were to draw them as they chose. The work lasted from spring until Christmas. On the final settlement, one of the young men, who frequented the tavern and was a pretty hard drinker, found a balance to his credit of $2.50. The second, who was a somewhat moderate drinker, had $11. The third, who was a teetotaler, had $150. The first and second wore very nice clothes, and were in debt. The third had a good suit and no debts. The relations of capital and labor in this country are confessedly strained. The lot of the working people is hard; but whisky comes in as a disturbing element to increase the hardship. It breeds poverty, discontent, anarchism.

Young climbing roses ought to be cut back to a strong eye, and the side shoots pruned as grapevines are pruned—that is, a couple of eyes from the stem.

HOW TAFT AND SHERMAN WERE RENOMINATED

Review of the Crowded Week That Ended in the Naming of the Old Ticket and Left Roosevelt's Hat Still in the Ring.

INCIDENTS THAT ENLIVENED PROCEEDINGS

Amid Scenes of Mingled Enthusiasm and Turbulence the Republican National Convention Wound Up Its Labors—Within an Hour After the President's Renomination, in Which 344 Roosevelt Delegates Sat Mute, Refusing to Vote, Roosevelt Was Nominated at a Separate Mass Meeting in Orchestra Hall.

Chicago, June 23.—Amid scenes of turbulence and disorder, which at times bordered upon a riot, the Republican National Convention wound up its labors by nominating William Howard Taft of Ohio for President and James Schoolcraft Sherman of New York for Vice President.

President Taft was renominated at 8:30 o'clock, p. m., by a majority of 21 votes. The total vote cast for him was 551. Vice President Sherman did much better. His vote was announced as 557.

The vote on the Presidential candidate was:

Taft	561
Roosevelt	107
Cummins	17
La Follette	41
Hughes	2
Not voting	344
Absent	6

Total 1,078

President Taft's and Senator La Follette's names were the only ones formally presented to the convention. The Marching Through the Aisles.

Votes for the others were cast by delegates who insisted on following their instructions and two who favored Justice Hughes.

In the meantime, followers of Theodore Roosevelt named him on a third, or progressive ticket, at a "rump" convention in Orchestra Hall. Mr. Roosevelt accepted the nomination, and in a brief speech told his delegates to go home, organize State tickets, place a ticket in each Congressional district and then call another great national convention at which he would accept the nomination at the hands of progressives of all parties.

In the regular convention Mr. Taft was nominated on the first ballot.

Mr. Taft was placed in nomination by Judge Harding, of Ohio, who extolled the virtues of the President and scolded the enemies of the party.

The convention adopted a conservative platform, very similar to the platforms of the Republican party in past years.

The vote on Vice-President was: Sherman, 557; Borah, 21; Hadley, 14; Merriam, 20; Beveridge, 2; Gillette, 1. Three hundred and thirty-eight delegates were present but did not vote. Eighty-five were absent.

Mr. Roosevelt's "rump" convention in Orchestra Hall was by far the most exciting meeting ever held in this city. It was presided over by Gov. Johnson, of California. Among those present were Senator Dixon, former Governor Fort, of New Jersey; Frank A. Munsey and all of the Roosevelt delegates who were thrown out of the regular Republican convention by the Taft steam roller.

The Roosevelt delegates who refused to bolt with him comprised such leaders as Governor Hadley, Stubbs and Borah. They and their delegates remained in the regular Republican convention, but did not vote.

President Taft was renominated at the end of a wild and riotous day which had produced everything from arguments to fist fights.

The final session of the convention began at 1:45, when Senator Root's gavel whacked the table.

The convention had been adjourned to meet at 10 o'clock, but at that hour only a few delegates were in their seats. It was a weary and faded looking lot that came slowly into the Coliseum. Not only had they been getting little sleep, but the long sessions meant sandwiches for sustenance until well along in the evening.

There were few vacant seats in the gallery when the day's proceedings began and few left their seats through the long session.

The session was opened with prayer by John Wesley Hill. He is a close friend of President Taft and has been stamping for him. He prayed fervently for the President and that the country might be spared from revolution.

The Mississippi contestants were taken up and the Taft delegates, as usual, seated with a viva voce vote; this viva voce vote began soon to provoke hoots and yells. First would come the "ayes" in a great volume of sound and then the "noes" in what seemed to be even greater volume, and when Senator Root would announce that the yes had it the Roosevelt men yelled derisively.

When the Washington delegates at large were reached a Roosevelt delegate interrupted the proceedings with a point of order.

Asked to state it, he said: "Our complaint is that the steam roller is exceeding the speed limit."

Even Chairman Root had to laugh. "The chair will rule the point of order is sustained—the justification is that we have some hope of getting home on Sunday," he said.

The Washington contestants involved a Presidential primary. The Roosevelt men in the Pennsylvania delegation began singing "John Brown's Body." There were few raps of the gavel, and Senator Root and others on the platform sat and smiled throughout a great deal of the noise. Whistles and toots imitating a steam roller came from some of the delegates. A rolling pin was lifted high on a pole, provoking more laughter.

H. T. Halbert defended the minority report on the Washington case and said that he had a statement to make on behalf of the minority members of the committee.

The issue in the Washington case, Mr. Halbert said, was one of simple morality. "The acceptance of the report of the majority," he added, "will put before this convention one of two alternatives, defeat or Theodore Roosevelt."

There was laughter from the Taft forces and cheers from the Roosevelt men.

"Merrily we roll along," they sang, the chorus filling the convention hall. John C. Dight, a Pennsylvania man, got up on his chair and shrieked through a megaphone: "One more stiff for the undertaker!"

"Pennsylvania nominates Jim Watson of Indiana for Coroner," came a minute later through the megaphone.

The galleries were laughing and cheering in turns. Chairman Rosewater happened to pass by the Pennsylvanians. One of Flinn's biggest henchmen picked him up like a baby.

"Now we got Rosewater!" came the cry.

A big Texan sitting opposite grabbed Rosewater and held him up in the air in return. It was all done in a spirit of fun, but little Rosewater did not seem to enjoy it greatly. Lucy, a California man for Roosevelt, started the "We want Teddy" cry, but the delegates were too tired to keep it going very long.

Finally Miss Flo Jacobson, a professional singer, got up in the band gallery and sang "My Country, 'Tis of Me."

All the delegates got up and for a while things quieted down. It started up with the resumption of business. The session was clearly the most disorderly yet.

It was 2:45 when the credentials committee finished its report. The permanent organization committee's report naming Senator Root as permanent chairman was received and adopted. The Taft men rose to their feet cheering.

Mr. Root came forward and was cheered by the Taft forces. After thanking the convention he asked for unanimous consent for some remarks from Henry J. Allen of Kansas, a Roosevelt man. The Kansan said if he had quiet he would guarantee not to say anything that would offend the Roosevelt men.

At the conclusion of Mr. Harding's speech, Mr. Root introduced John Wanamaker of Pennsylvania, who seconded Taft's nomination.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler also seconded Taft's nomination.

Senator La Follette was put in nomination by Michael B. Gilbreath of Wisconsin.

He said the fight to-day was one against industrial despotism.

When he named La Follette the Wisconsin men and some of their sympathizers raised quite a respectable racket crying "We want Bob!"

Robert M. Pollock of North Dakota seconded this nomination.

The delegates had now missed lunch and dinner; they began sending out for sandwiches for their evening meal and munched them while they listened to the speeches and waited for the roll call.

They began to call the roll at 8:30 p. m., there were the same cheering and cheering went on Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth came in and took their seats. The Roosevelt men began to parade, filing slowly through the aisles. The congestion became so great that the police began turning them back. They refused to take their seats, however, and kept on pushing through the crowded aisle. The standards of Massachusetts, Maine, South Dakota, West Virginia, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio and California were carried around, and some of their bearers seemed to be well along in the evening.

There were few vacant seats in the gallery when the day's proceedings began and few left their seats through the long session.

The session was opened with prayer by John Wesley Hill. He is a close friend of President Taft and has been stamping for him. He prayed fervently for the President and that the country might be spared from revolution.

Mr. Allen said when order was restored: "This statement from Mr. Roosevelt and any comment I have to make on the case is not for the purpose of creating a demonstration in this convention. I will not read the whole of his statement because the delegates have it in their hands."

Mr. Root let the Roosevelt demonstration go on for twenty minutes before trying to restore order. With a few raps of his gavel it subsided.

It was 3:20 when Mr. Allen began reading the Roosevelt statement. There were a good many interruptions.

At the Colonel's request that the Roosevelt delegates should not vote there were cheers and jeers.

"If a man doesn't know when he's dead his friends ought to know," said a man in the gallery and there was an uproar.

At the hullabaloo over the Colonel's statement and Mr. Allen's remarks was over the regular program me was taken up.

First came the report of the rules committee and then ex-Vice-President Fairbanks, chairman of the committee on resolutions came forward to read the platform. The Taft men cheered him.

No minority report on platform was presented by the Roosevelt men. Senator Owen of Wisconsin offered the La Follette platform containing the Senator's well known doctrines.

Both sides cheered when the vote on the platform was announced. It was 666 ayes, 16 absent, 343 not voting and 53 noes.

The roll call on the platform having been completed and announced time came for the presentation of candidates for the Presidency; it was 5:55 o'clock.

Miss Ruby Farmley attended Regent examinations at Moravia last week.

Leo Foster and wife were entertained at Walter Smith's Sunday.

New Gingham at Smith's.

No one can afford to raise pigs that refuse to fatten or that are frequently off feed. In this case the correction may often be made before the pigs are farrowed. It is very apt to lie with the handling of the brood sow.

To make alfalfa hay cut in the forenoon and let it wilt; then rake into windrows. It should be cured in windrows and cocks, and stacked and put in barns with as little handling as possible before the valuable leaves become too dry and brittle.

The garden with a row of trees or some shrubbery along the north will be some days earlier in the spring but in dry countries this earliness may be paid for later. Trees along the edge of a garden are apt to sap the moisture for a long distance on either side.

The Value of Good Manners.
Manners must adorn knowledge and smooth its way through the world. Like a great rough diamond, it may do very well in a closet by way of curiosity, and also for its intrinsic value; but it will never be worn, nor shine if it is not polished.

Criticism of Modern Education.
Too much of the teaching of today is book learning, and too little of it education.—Exchange.

Wanted: Men!
Not parties bound with mystic ties,
Not platforms framed of clever lies;
Not politicians snug and bland,
Nor candidates with eager hand;
But men,
Strong, patriotic men.
To serve the people of the land
With vision clear and hearts sincere;
To quit themselves like men.

Plans New Service.

For the first time in 22 years the residents of the section of country along the Auburn-Ithaca Short Line are to have soon telegraphic communication with the outside world.

For all these years people have been obliged to receive messages over the telephone from Ithaca or Auburn.

The announcement was made recently by General Manager H. A. Clarke of the Short Line, who has just returned from New York and Philadelphia having taken his family to the latter place for a visit.

Mr. Clarke says arrangements have been made with the Western Union Telegraph Company, whereby patrons may enter one of the Short Line stations, write out a message and leave it with the agent the same as in any office in the country. These will be telephoned to the telegraph office in Ithaca or Auburn and sent over the company's wires. Service will be installed soon.

Goodness

"Alice," said a little girl's mother wishing to press home a certain lesson, "you have behaved very badly for some days, and I want to be sure that you think seriously about the master. So I want you to sit down and write an essay on the subject of 'Goodness.' And you must not leave the house until the essay is done." Alice, accordingly, sat down at her desk and proceeded to nibble her pencil. But a little comrade immediately began calling outside the window, and this was the "essay" which Alice duly laid on her absent mother's table: "Children, be good" Chicago Record-Herald.

As to Buying.

Whatever we wish to buy, we ought first to consider not only if the thing be fit for us, but if the manufacturer of it be a wholesome and happy one; and if, on the whole, the sum we are going to spend will do as much good spent in this way as it would if spent in any other way.—Ruskin.

B'er Fox Again.

"A fox which was hard pressed by the Essex Union Hounds entered a house in High street, Billericay, and bolted upstairs into a bedroom. When found," says Punch, "he pretended to be a wolf rehearsing 'Red Riding Hood' for a cinematograph show, but his tale was cut short."

Black Sheep Not Wanted.

Australian wool growers have been officially warned by an English chamber of commerce not to breed from black or gray sheep; to take the greatest care in selecting rams from flocks as free as possible from black hairs; to slaughter all black and gray lambs.

This is said to be the best record of the road since it was opened in 1909. During the month of May the Short Line operated 682 trains. All were on time except one, the report shows, and that was seven minutes behind schedule. But for the one instance the road would have scored a perfect record.

Hiram McIlroy, for more than 45 years a resident of Poplar Ridge, passed away at his home early Saturday evening, after an illness extending for a period of four years. The deceased was 75 years old. He was one of the charter members of the Poplar Ridge lodge, No. 437, I. O. O. F., and for many years was the leading spirit in the local order. Besides his widow he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Merton Merritt of Syracuse, and four brothers, Joseph, John and Frank of New Jersey, and Fred of Pennsylvania. Funeral services were held at the family home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Burial at Evergreen cemetery, Scipioville.

Invitations have been received to the wedding of Miss Eva Sellen, to Raynor Pelbeam. The young people are to be married in their future home, 510 Benjamin street, Ann Arbor, Mich., on Wednesday, July 3. Miss Sellen will be remembered as the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sellen who resided here a number of years ago.

LOW TONES ARE A SEDATIVE

Pitch the Voice Deep When Under Nervous Tension and Self-Control is Gained.

An excellent sedative for nervous excitement is found in using the voice at its lowest comfortable key. Immediate relief from stuttering is often obtained by dropping the voice from a high pitch to a lower tone. Teachers whose pupils become restless and unruly as they themselves grow tired and nervous will find that a low-pitched, quiet tone will relieve their own nervous tension, and prove wonderfully quieting to their pupils.

This simple expedient is also useful when you are trying to control or prevent weeping. There are times when a person fears to talk lest he break down and cry, yet must answer a question or carry on a conversation. Again, the deep lower tones of the voice, joined to slow, deep breathing, come to the rescue, and self-control is gained.

In any situation where one must struggle for self-possession, the low-pitched voice, with its impression of poise and self-confidence, is a wonderful aid. Even under ordinary circumstances the lower register of the speaking voice is richer and more musical.—Youth's Companion.

CURIOS FOR THE CHILDREN

One Room in Smithsonian Institution Filled With Objects of Interest to Young Folk.

Among the dim old rooms of the Smithsonian Institution, in Washington, is one very bright and cheery apartment, over the archway of which are the words "Children's Room." Here there are arranged all sorts of natural objects in which boys and girls are interested, such curious things as mineral wool, flexible sandstone, landscape marbles, a model of the Great Mogul, the largest diamond ever cut, and another of the largest lump of gold ever found.

In another case are the strange glove and finger sponges and the Venus flower basket, and over a case of beautiful shells is one of iridescent and brightly hued butterflies.

How creatures hide is illustrated by "walking leaves," the night hawk, crown creepers, "walking stick" and other queer creatures that are scarce to be detected because of their clever adherence to leaves, twigs and other objects of similar coloring.

Canny Grocer. The canny grocer sized up his customer:

She had ordered six strictly fresh eggs.

He took down the paper bag and, going to the basket, picked them out. Twisting the top of the bag together he handed it to the woman, who paid him and went away.

The canny grocer smiled. He had given the woman seven eggs when she ordered but six.

He knew that when she reached home and found that she had seven instead of six eggs she would be so delighted with the supposition that she had overreached him that she would entirely disregard the fact that six of the eggs were storage and one was dubious!

For the grocer understood human nature. And he was canny.—Plain Dealer.

Tenth Century Horses.

Money values in the tenth century were very low, according to our ideas, but as the purchasing power of money then equaled from eight to twenty times what it is today, one must not hasten a comparison. In Athelstan's time a horse was worth 120 shillings, an ox 20 pence, a cow 20 pence, a sheep 5 pence, a hog 8 pence, a slave 20 shillings, making a slave worth eight oxen, and these prices, except in times of famine, appear to have changed little under the Norman. In 1156 wheat sold at 18 pence the quarter of eight bushels, and in 1248 it brought only 24 pence, but in 1026 seed wheat sold at 2 shillings a bushel, barley at 2 shillings and oats at 1 shilling a bushel.—National Magazine.

Not to Englishman's Likin.

Ridiculous was the duel General Israel Putnam arranged when challenged by an English officer. The general was to provide weapons. Arrived at the spot selected, the Englishman found "Old Put" serenely smoking by the side of an open powder keg, into which he had stuck a match. Requesting his antagonist to be seated on the other side of the keg, General Putnam lighted the match and smoked unconcernedly. The Englishman for a moment watched the Lucifer working its way downward, then beat a hurried retreat. The keg contained nothing but onions with a sprinkle of powder on top.

Books Ruthlessly Destroyed.

The Puritans destroyed many collections of books in the monasteries, and even Cromwell burned the Oxford library, then one of the finest in Europe. Extremists in revolution, as in religion, have been equally destructive as regards books. The Spanish Inquisition and the French revolution were as one in this respect. The crusaders were destroyers of what they regarded as heretical books, and in Russia today the war of orthodoxy on sectarian dissent still manifests itself, among other things, in the ruthless destruction of the books of the non-conformists.

STOPPED THE CHILD'S CRIES

Sudden Philanthropy of Newsboy Put an End to Walls of the Youngster.

Nobody seemed to know what he was crying about, but it must have been something, for the youngster was running the entire gamut of infantile shrieks. He was a tow-headed, lace-collared little chap of four or five, down town on a shopping tour with his mother, a large, fashionably attired woman of the society type.

People along the street turned and looked at the waiting youngster, but it wasn't up to them to say anything and they just let him cry. The mother tried to hush him, but to no avail. Whatever it was that he was so lachrymous and worked up over had him right. Then strolled up a little newsboy—a lad probably nine or ten years of age, but not much larger than the five-year-old. The newsboy was just starting to eat a banana when he heard the shrill shrieks of the smaller kid. Whether as a joke or in a spirit of magnanimity he rushed up alongside of the astonished mother, placed the banana in her son's hand and says:

"Here, bo, eat that an' stop your yellin'."

And the unexpectedness of the gift did actually stop the noise and tears in about two seconds and a half.

WHEN WALKING WITH LADIES

Nearly Every Country Has Its Own Ideas as to Place of Male Escort.

Almost every country has its own fashions for men who walk with ladies on the public streets. In America and in England we walk on the side of the lady that is nearer the street. Many years ago when the streets were not kept as clean as they are now, any person walking on the outer edge of the pavements was likely to get well splashed with mud and rainwater, and that is why the gentlemen took that side, so as to save the ladies' fine clothes.

In some countries it is considered better for the gentleman to keep nearer the middle of the pavement in order to preserve the lady from jostling of persons going in the opposite direction in a crowded street. When it is the rule for every one to keep to the right those who are on the left of the two passing streams are continually being bumped into. In Germany the gentleman always keep on the same side of the lady, no matter which side of the street they may be on or which way they are going.

Money Value of Women.

If you are a married woman, and were asked to tell just what you were worth in hard cash to your husband, what figure would you name? The question is not a fanciful one by any means, but has been a subject of judicial consideration.

It was this way: The wife of an Iowa farmer bought a gallon of what purported to be kerosene, but which was afterward shown to be 21 per cent gasoline. When the woman used some of it to start a fire with the stuff exploded, and she was burnt to death and her three children were seriously injured. The woman's husband sued the dealers for damages, and the jury awarded him $25 for the loss of his wife and $299.71 per child on account of injuries.

The defendants evidently thought that a woman was not worth $25, for they took an appeal from the verdict. The learned court, however, declined to look at it in that light, and the judgment was affirmed.—New York Mail.

Depending On.

An artist of international fame recently had a bright little Swedish girl posing for him, and thinking to keep her expression animated, he conversed with her while he worked. "Do you go to school, Ragnhild?" the great man inquired with affable complacency.

"Oh yes," was the reply. "And what are you going to be when you grow up?"

Ragnhild's face beamed.

"If I have sense," she answered, "I will be a school teacher. If I have no sense, I will paint pictures—like you."

A Long Excuse. The magazine writer rolled in late at night and found his better half sitting up, awaiting his coming. "What have you got to offer this time?" she demanded.

"I can give you a 1,200 words story," was the reply of the writer, whose answer was dictated by force of habit.

AUNT JENNY'S JOHNNY CAKE

How This Most Popular of Table Dainties Is Put Together by Southern Cooks.

A cupful of sweet milk, a cupful and a half of buttermilk; a teaspoonful each of salt and of soda—the latter sifted three times in a cupful of meal; one tablespoonful of melted butter. Enough meal to enable you to roll the dough into a sheet half an inch thick. Begin with two cupfuls and add at discretion.

Knead the dough briskly before rolling it out. Have ready a clean, sweet board of oak, hickory, or hemlock (never of resinous wood), buttered and heated. Set before the red coals under the grate at an angle that will not let the cake slip down, and prop it in place. Spread the dough upon it, patting it gently to make the surface even, and bake. As soon as it is hard enough to keep its place, set the board upright. Begin then to baste it with butter, lightly going all over the sheet. Do this three times. The cake should be nicely browned and crisped.

Cut with a sharp knife, held perpendicular, into squares.

Virginia water ground meal should be used for this delicious cake. The northern cornmeal will not do. Nor does the southern cook put sugar into corn bread. She holds that the meal should be sweet enough without it.—Chicago Tribune.

BELINDA'S WAY

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

At his first meeting with Belinda Howe, Jack Owen determined that the charming girl should become his wife. On and after their tenth meeting he resolved to ask her the all-important question that must precede an engagement, but his courage was not equal to his desire.

"I'll ask her tomorrow," was always his desperate promise when his courage failed, and many tomorrows had become todays and yesterdays, and still the question was unanswered, yet he almost knew, without being conceited about the matter, that Belinda cared and that her affirmative answer would be forthcoming when he asked her.

Time and again he had gathered his courage and on each occasion his tongue had clove to the roof of his mouth when Belinda's brown eyes had shyly dropped before the love light in his.

Occasionally he raged at himself for his stupidity. "If she only knew what a consummate ass I am she wouldn't have anything to do with me," he groaned one day.

Perhaps Belinda knew—or guessed the state of affairs!

"I'll ask her tomorrow—sure!" he said one evening after he had returned from a dinner party where he had taken Belinda to dinner, and sat beside her in ecstatic wonder at his great good luck.

Tomorrow came and with it a note from Belinda saying that they were all going down to Sea Sands that day for the week-end and she hoped Mr. Owen would be sure to accept her mother's invitation to accompany them.

Mrs. Howe's invitation came in the same mail and Jack accepted it delightedly. Then he made hurried preparations for the journey because he wanted to be sure and catch the same train that Belinda was going on. He went to the station and engaged a seat, trusting to his customary good fortune to find it placed next to Belinda's chair.

It was next to Belinda's seat, but on the other side of Belinda sat a new man—a foolishly grinning idiot with his hair parted in the middle and a dimple in his chin. This was Jack's summary of the masculine charms of Mr. Harry Brompton.

Belinda was interested in Mr. Brompton, so deeply interested that she only spared an occasional smile for Jack, who sulked openly and determined to ask her the fatal question that very night—if he got a chance.

When they reached Sea Sands and the Howe's motor vehicles were filled with the expected guests it was found that Mr. Brompton was seated beside Belinda in one car while Jack Owen was squeezed between Mrs. Howe and her private secretary, a little pale black-eyed being who shivered with the excitement of the coming week-end gaities, of which she would only snatch an occasional glimpse.

"I'll show him!" sputtered Jack fiercely as he noted the devoted attitude of Mr. Brompton's by no means ill-looking head.

It was an added irritation to find that Mr. Brompton was to occupy the pleasant room which Jack Owen had always occupied on his frequent visits at Sea Sands. The room now appointed to Jack was pleasanter than the other, but jealousy is fed by little things like this and Mr. Owen became positively unhappy over the matter.

By the time Jack was ready for dinner the situation looked very bleak. He was positive that Mr. Brompton had been a dark horse in the race for Belinda's heart and hand and he was sure that gentleman had won out, and that the engagement would be announced tonight.

He hoped it would not be announced at the dinner-table—he was positive that he would be unable to control his features. Yet it looked ominous enough. As he tallied the guests who would be there he realized that they consisted of old and intimate friends of the Howe family.

Harry Brompton was the only stranger to him. He wondered vaguely if any of these friends were related to Mr. Brompton or was the prospective bridegroom an orphan like himself?

He went down to dinner in a mood of black despair.

"Dear boy!" murmured Mrs. Howe, as he stopped for a word with her. "We are so delighted about little Belinda!"

"Then it is decided?" he asked in a hollow voice.

She looked at him in a puzzled way. "You mean about announcing it tonight?"

He nodded grimly. He could not speak.

"Oh, yes—of course you do not mind?"

Jack's face hardened. Of course they had thrust the knife in, but they needn't twist it around!

"No, indeed, Mrs. Howe, I am delighted, of course!"

"Poor boy!" she murmured sympathetically. "I suppose you are frightened to death—do go over and talk to William. Belinda has hurried us on, only notified us this morning and insisted on its being announced tonight."

"That's all right—don't mind me," faltered poor Jack and strolled over to William, who was Belinda's father.

"Keep up your courage, old boy!"

whispered Mr. Howe. "Brace up—it can't happen but once, you know!"

"I won't give any one a chance to let it happen to me again!" growled Jack fiercely, but William Howe was happily hard of hearing, and at this moment dashed away, for dinner was announced.

"Mighty kind of 'em to be so careful of my feelings," thought Jack as he tried to quell a murderous thrill at sight of Harry Brompton's carefully parted curly hair.

Belinda came in then—a wonderfully radiant Belinda in pale pink satin veiled with white lace and with pearls about her throat. She included Jack in her swift survey of the room, and he saw that a rosy wave of color stained her cheeks from brow to chin and left her pale.

His own heart did not leap in response to her passing glance as it had been wont to do. It felt quite cold and still. It did not throb even when he found that he was to take Belinda in to dinner. His face was like a white mask as he gave her his arm and led her to her seat.

To his relief Belinda did not talk much to him. She seemed absorbed in conversation with Harry Brompton on her other hand, while Jack was not obliged to talk, for a lady beside him chattered foolishly from course to course until dessert was reached.

An unusual silence came upon the company as Belinda's father slowly arose holding his wine glass.

"Friends," he smiled upon them, "may I ask you to drink to the health happiness of one who is very dear to me—my daughter, Belinda, and her future husband, Mr. Jack Owen."

"It is a joke!" gasped poor Jack as the company merrily drank to their health and happiness. "There must be a limit to—"

Nobody heard his voice save Belinda, whose hand sought his and pressed it significantly.

"I'll explain afterwards, Jack!" she said hurriedly. "You must respond to the toast."

"It's true, then?" he asked dazedly.

"Of course—stupid!"

Afterwards they commented on the brilliant speech of Jack Owen.

"Didn't know it was in him to be so funny!" commented one.

"Enough to make any one hilarious to win a girl like Belinda Howe!" retorted another.

"Who is this young Brompton?"

"Oh, I don't know—some friend from the west who inflicted himself upon them this morning and had to be invited down."

After dinner Jack Owen found himself mysteriously spirited away to the alcove in the library. Belinda was beside him, very pale, very quiet. Sounds from the company in the distant drawing room came faintly to them.

"Oh, Jack, do you mind?" asked Belinda after a long silence.

"Mind?" he asked, still dazed at the strangeness of the whole thing, and suspecting a trick of some sort.

"Mind being engaged to me?" she faltered.

"Mind being engaged to you?" he repeated. "Why, Belinda, darling, it's what I've been trying to accomplish ever since I met you!" His arms were around her now, and his lips were pressed against her wonderful hair.

"I didn't understand, you see."

"I knew you wanted to, only you were so diffident—oh, indeed, sir, you are recovering rapidly—and it was the only way. You know this is leap year!"

HUMOR AT A NAVAL COURT

Sailors, Unused to Proceedings, Cause Much Merriment Among the Spectators.

At a naval court of inquiry, in New York, much unconscious humor was exhibited. The sailors called as witnesses were quite unused to such proceedings, and went about their work very much as a Sioux Indian might be expected to conjugate a Greek verb. One of them—Bill Bubbles—came shuffling forward, his eyes hunting all round the room, as if in search of some place of safety. "Come here," said the admiral. He came, of course, upon the wrong side. "No, here! What's your name?" "Bubbles." "What's all of it?" "Bill Bubbles." "Bill Bubbles, take the book." "Book, sir?" "Yes, here!" The admiral stood up, placing his eyeglasses astride of his nose, peered through them at the unhappy Bubbles, and held out the Bible. Bubbles made a motion as if to take the Bible, perhaps thinking it a gratuity. "No, no! just place your hand on it." Bubbles put up his left hand. "No, your right hand." Bubbles put up both hands. The admiral seized the left one between his thumb and finger and removed it. The right remained. "Now, Bubbles." "Yes?" "Do you solemnly swear that the evidence you will give in this case shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?" "Yes?" "Well, then, kiss the book." "Hey-zur?" "Kiss the book." "Kiss it, zur?" "Yes, kiss it." Bubbles looked around appealingly, but there seemed to be no help for it, so he placed himself squarely on his feet, drew a long breath, bent over the Bible, and produced a noise which made the admiral jump. For an instant, the Bible seemed to be in peril, and the admiral, rescuing it with a sudden pull, looked sternly at Bubbles and said, slowly: "Go yonder and sit down." Another witness had had trouble with Lieutenant Lumley. "He says, seeze, 'Ef you wanna so smal' seeze, I'd knock you out of sight,' seeze. I'd like to see you do it,' says I. Also be done it." There is much eloquence in these four words.

PROTECTS BASE OF TREES

HOME TOWN HELPS

CORRECT WAY TO BUY TREES

They Should Be Very Carefully Inspected and Purchased From Reliable Nurseries.

Trees should be bought just as paintings are purchased. You should delegate yourself or some one who knows something about what you should plant to carefully inspect the plants in the nursery to see that the trees are properly grown and in good form, trimmed up to a height of six or seven feet, typical of the variety, true to type and free of insects and fungus disease. When delivered the trees should have a well developed, fibrous root system and be free from mutilation.

In planting trees do not bury more than six inches deeper than the former depth at which the tree stood. If secured with the ball of earth frozen to the roots or secured to them by a canvas wrapping, dig the hole a foot wider all around than the diameter of the ball or roots and earth and a foot deeper than its depth. Scatter fertilizer in the bottom of this pit and mingle fertilizer with the loose soil with which you will fill in the hole. Place the tree properly upright, supporting it with three braces. Then pack in the earth gently. Do not pack too tight, in order to give the roots a chance to go through this rich soil easily.

If the roots of your tree are bare of earth handle them very carefully. Dig a shallow, wide hole as wide as the greatest diameter of the roots, and then place your tree in the center of this hole. Drive a substantial stake firmly into the ground alongside the tree trunk, being careful not to bruise or sever any of the big or small roots in doing this. Fasten the tree to stake with soft cord or a bandage of some old goods. Then carefully fill in the hole by hand with well fertilized soil. Pack it gently with your fingers around the roots, carefully cutting off any bruised or broken to a uniform circle. This insures growth of the tree.

See that the soil is sifted into all the crevices between the roots and press down gently until the process is complete, when you can fill in with a spade. This preliminary work must be done carefully, as it means so much to the tree. Be sure you do not bend the roots back toward the trunk. Pack the soil down at the top and water well.

Glacier National Park.

The principle points of interest in the newest of the great reservations that maintained by the government for the benefit of the people are described in a circular entitled "General Information Regarding Glacier National Park," just issued by the Department of the Interior. This park is situated in northern Montana, 260 miles northwest of Yellowstone Park in an air line and 447 miles by railroad. It is under the control and supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, who is represented in the actual administration of the park by a superintendent, assisted by a number of park rangers who patrol the reservation.

The park is bounded on the north by the Canadian line, on the east by the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, and on the west and south by the Flathead river. It has an area of about 915,000 acres and derives its name from many glaciers which are scattered throughout its area. There are about 80 glaciers between five square miles and a few acres in area. The park is a rugged mountainous region and contains over 250 lakes which are surrounded by steep and beautifully wooded mountains.

A road has been built from Belton to the foot of Lake McDonald, a distance of 2 miles. Beyond Lake McDonald trails extend into the greater portion of the park. A number of trips may be made from Lake McDonald in one day. One of these is to Avalanche lake, a charming body of water which is surrounded by great cliffs and into which the melting snow pours cascades looking in the distance like threads of silver. Another interesting trip affording fine views of lake, mountain, and forest is to the west of Lake McDonald to Trout lake, situated in one of the most impressive of glacial cirques. Still another trip is over the steep slopes of Mount Brown to Sperry Glacier where a camp has been established for the accommodation of the traveler. One may continue from Sperry Glacier over Gun-sight Pass amidst the finest of mountain scenery to Upper St. Mary's lake and thence to Midvale on the railroad.

Wide Use Of Aluminum.

Aluminum, comparatively few years ago a rare metal, too expensive to have any particular economic value, has today come into wide use in a great number of industries. The consumption in the United States in 1911, according to the United States Geological Survey, was 46,125,000 pounds, the price in New York ranging from 18½ to 22 cents a pound. The Survey has just published a report by W. C. Phalen on "Bauxite and Aluminum," and advance chapter from "Mineral Resources of the United States" for 1911, which gives a comprehensive review of the industry for the year. Bauxite ore, the present source for metallic aluminum, is mined in Arkansas, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, the output from these States combined amounting in 1911 to 155,618 long tons, valued at $750,649, an increase of about 5 per cent in both quantity and value compared with the figures for 1910. The increase, though small, shows a healthful condition of the industries dependent on this ore for raw material.

The chief uses of bauxite are in the manufacture of metallic aluminum, of aluminum salts, of alumina or fused alumina, which finds extensive use as an abrasive, and to the minor extent in the making of bauxite brick and of plaster compositions. The first three industries mentioned constitute the bulk of the ore now mined.

A Little Out of the Way

Rural Church Problem.
Rural Life has the following to say on the country church problem:

"There is hardly a week passes that someone doesn't start a movement to wipe out the little denominational country churches and establish in their stead centralized undenominational features of an up-to-date social club with D. D. for amusement director and general entertainer.

We are old-fashioned enough to believe that the rural church can never successfully compete with the grange as a social club, or with the dance hall and bowling alley as an entertainment institution.

We have noted, among other inconsistencies, that the folks who are most aggressive in insisting that there are far too many country churches, are also foremost in demanding that each rural community have a Young Men's Christian association, boys' club, community social center, improvement association and other organizations which will require larger contributions from the farmers to keep them going than is now expended for the churches.

There may be instances where the consolidation of several country churches into one congregation is advisable; but if the would-be rural reformers who are now working so persistent and enthusiastically in the church consolidation movement, would spend the same energy in an effort to build up the country churches along genuine gospel lines, there would be little need for abandoning churches in the country or anywhere else."
