not only for Bible study but for real service to the world. Mr. Wm. B. Wilmore of Poplar Ridge spoke on "The Adult Member" He emphasized the need of strong faith and true religion for the adult member. Rev. E. E. Warner of Stewart's Corners Baptist church spoke on "The Girl in Her Teens". He felt that the girl in her teens is rather at the center of the young people's problem. Miss Marian Atwater of King Ferry spoke on "Some Ideals We Should Bring to Our Primary Department." She dealt with the spirit of the teacher in the kind of ideals we should try to inculcate in the primary minds. Rev. C. L. Haynes of Ledyard spoke on "How to Lead the Young People to Become Steadfast and Useful Christians." He spoke with much emphasis upon the necessity of training the young people in the fundamentals of the Christian faith. Each one of these addresses

was followed by free discussion

which was entered into heartily. The evening program was as follows: After devotionals and report of committees, written questions were received from the audience and read by chairman and answered by the audience in discussion. A recitation was given by Mrs. Chas. Cornell, Rev. W. H Perry gave an address on "Teacher Training." He dwelt upon the need of Normal Sunday school teacher training, if the Sunday school is to become an institution that educates in the Christian religion efficiently. He told how each chusch can proceed to bring this about. D. J. Cotten gave an address out of his Miss Van DeBogart of Ithaca was a experience as a Sunday school superruest of Mrs. Harvey Smith last week | intendent. He made a plea for living The fourteenth annual reunion of close to God and constantly serving in the Sunday school. Rev L W. Scott of Genoa gave a short address on "The Man's Relation to the Boy and the Bible School" He dwelt mostly on the boy, denying that any boy is bad in the beginning, but that if so it is due to his training, and pointed out the necessity of social work to be carried on by the Sunday school for the boys.

> Mrs Ray White sang a solo in the afternoon. The King Ferry choir rendered two anthems in the evening and Mrs. Perry and her father, Mr. Co ten, sang a duet. The convention was pronounced a success. Those who did not attend missed something they will not make up.

CAST ST. LOUIS had a banner GO TO CHURCH Sunday. Eighty-two per cent of the population went to divine service. "How did you do it?" was the question asked by hundreds of other cities throughout the country. The answer came:

ALL CITY OFFICIALS ASKED THEIR EMPLOYEES TO GO TO CHURCH. THE CHIEF OF POLICE ASSEMBLED ALL THE PO-LICEMEN AT ROLL CALL AND ASKED THEM TO GO TO SOME CHURCH. JUST BEFORE GOING HOME SATURDAY NIGHT HE REVISED THE PATROL SCHEDULE OF ALL THE PATROLMEN AND DETECTIVES SO THAT THEY COULD GET AWAY TO SOME CHURCH SERVICE SUNDAY. IN THE PRESENCE OF MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF POLICE COMMISSIONERS HE HANDED THE SCHEDULE TO THE SERGEANT IN CHARGE.

The chief of the tire department just after returning from a fire run Saturday afternoon assembled the entire fire department and told the men the schedule would be arranged so they could GO TO CHURCH. The superintendent of public instruction assembled all the teachers and asked them to GO TO SOME CHURCH. He also instructed them to tell their pupils to GO TO

One of the chief recommendations for the casserole is that it is a fine help in using up left-over meats. Take two cupfuls of boiled rice, two cupfuls of chopped or sliced meat that has been left from dinner, a cup of brown or cream sauce, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one of parsley, a tenepoonful of salt and a few dashes of red pepper. Line the casserole a half inch deep with the boiled rice. In another dish melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour and stir until smooth, then add the seasonings, the brown or white sauce, the meat, and ninish the top with another layer of rice. Steam in a pan of hot water for 45 minutes, then serve with tomato sauce. THE MAN WHO CAN SAY "NO"

It is largely the spirit that marks the measure of a man, and it is the nind that sets the standard of a man. And in public life-high public lifeman's spirit and his mind are determining factors in the success of his areer. These human talents exerted by men in official positions are fre quently instrumental in defeating the ablic will, in spite of the fact that an oath of office has sacredly bound a man to labor sincerely in the interests of the people. These human talentsspirit and mind-enforce the public will when exercised in official life by men who, possessing them, have honesty of purpose as their guide.

Many persons have commented on the successful career in office of the New York county district attorney, Charles S. Whitman, who is the logical candidate for governor on the Republican ticket. And it is a simple matter to analyze the situation-to state definitely and accurately why Whitman is today the leading man in the skin is not more indigestible than the minds of the general public for the high office o chief executive of the Empire State. He has the spirit prompting him to render effective public service, no matter what obstacles are sought to be placed in his path. He has the trained mind necessary to solve difficult political and economic problems and to provide practical remedies for evil conditions.

Whitman has proved himself a SPE-CIALIST in good government.

That he is one of the most fearless men actively engaged in New York state affairs today is an important fac-

He is a man who dares to say "No." The Answer Always "No."

Some of them have asked for favors affecting criminal procedure. The answer has always been "No."

Appointments have been asked on Whitman's staff for purely political purposes. "No" has always been the reply to the applicant.

Whitman has kept the district attorney's office out of politics. He's the first one in many years to do so.

ALSO HE HAS KEPT POLITICS OUT OF THE DISTRICT ATTOR-NEY'S OFFICE, much to the disappointment of the inevitable schemers who endeavor to use public office for private gain.

Whitman says "No" alike to the high priced corporation attorney who seeks an uncalled for delay or adjournment and to the little shyster lawyer who wants a thief let free because "be didn't mean to do it.'

The embezzling bank president. wealthy and educated, and the ignorant, degraded gun man look the same to Whitman. He is old fashioned enough to remember that he has an oath of office to fulfill.

If people do not like to be punished for their crimes they should have the law changed-that is Whitman's view.

He can say "No" to suggestions he deems improper because he is without fear and because he is determined to keep his pledge to the people of all parties, who elected him practically unantmously to his present New York coun

That is a striking thing about Whit man and Whitman's office-you always get a square deal. A man who re ceived a sentence of eighteen years in prison not long age said on his way to his cell: "No, I am not 'sore' on the district attorney's office. I will say that I had a fair trial. I know that my record was against me."

WHAT STATE EDITORS THINK OF WHITMAN

hey Indorse His Candidacy For the Governorship.

Scores of newspapers throughout the state are indorsing the candidacy of Charles S. Whitman, district attorney of New York county, for the governorship nomination on the Republican ticket in the primaries to be held

Sept. 28. The Caledonia (Livingston county) Advertiser says: "Whitman defies Roosevelt, and, if nominated and elected, he can be depended upon to stand for the Republican party and not Rooseveltism. We believe that it will be hard to lead the Republican voters away this fall from their party. Whitman's record as district attorney of New York is too fresh in their minds to be forgotten or turned under for anything Roosevelt can offer. A vote for Hinman will mean a vote for Roosevelt for president in 1916. Republicans, will you stand for it?"

From the Ogdensburg Journal:

"As a matter of fact, whether Roosevelt himself or Perkins himself or any other individual should run on the third ticket (the Progressive) this year, Charles S. Whitman can be elected governor. Murphy half perceives that himself, and his gang trembles at the prospect of a real man in power at Albany who knows how to go after the rotten gang that is plundering the state and who does not know how to turn aside for politics' sake or to bargain with bosses of any kind.

"As for Governor Glynn, he deceived nobody when he declared a few weeks ago he 'would not cross the street to get the nomination' he is now begging for. He never had any need to cross the street to get anything from Boss Murphy. He has always been on that side of the street."

"The Roosevelt - Whitman - Duell af fair," says the Troy Evening Record, "is a typical Roosevelt incident. It You cannot find a politician who can has all the raw material that is presgo to the district attorney's office in ent in every political climax where he New York city and "hush up" a case. takes a hand, and the same object and ment adds nothing and detracts nothing from the colonel's bitter attack. The colonel was willing to condemn a reputable opponent on hearsay information. Mr. Duell merely confesses the source of that hearsay information. Neither proves anything nor seems to care for the proof. All the colonel cares for is a hook on which to hang an attack. In accepting for the purpose an unproved circumstantial tale from immature lips he accentuates the strength of Mr. Whitman's position. If he can get nothing better against the district attorney than this farfetched story. none of whose probable details are any discredit to a political aspirant. there is an implication that there is little to get."

> District Attorney Whitman, in his fight for the Republican nomination for governor, will find that he has hosts of followers up state who adnire him not alone for his public record, but for his courage in shunning even the bull moose boss of Oys ter Bay.-Binghamton Press.

As to Mr. Whitman's assertion that the real issue is whether Mr. Roose velt is to be allowed to dictate the Republican nomination. Mr. Hinman said. "With the new primary law nobody can dictate anything."

Then why does Hinman base his campaign on the allegation that Mr Barnes is the dictator of the Republican party?-Buffalo Express.

There is no room for surprise that Colonel Roosevelt doesn't think much of Mr. Whitman's recent statement and that he professed great pleasure in the document issued by Harvey D Hinman. If the district attorney of New York insists upon keeping in the limelight the colonel proposes to make it an unfavorable light. There must be no other political luminary before or beside "ME!"-Walton Chronicle.

Big Fires at Peruville.

Lightning last Friday atternoon and evening did about $15,000 worth of damage in the vicinity of Peruville, when buildings on the farms of Ed. S. Hill and L. B. Sutliff, with their contents were burned to the ground. About 4 o'clock in the after noon a big barn and outbuildings including a wagon house, hennery and hoghouse on the farm of L B Sutliff, two miles west of that village, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

The barn contained 25 tons of newly cut hay, besides oats and wheat. Out of five pigs in the hoghouse, but one was saved, Mr. Sutliff's loss on the barn and contents is estimated at about $3 500 He carried $2,500 in-

A peculiar feature of the storm was that although the lightning was al most incessant and the wind blew a gale, not a drop of rain fell.

The fire on the Hill farm which is about two miles east of the village occurred about 9 o'clock in the evening. The loss is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $13,000. Besides the buildings the flames consumed 125 valuable sheep, 75 tons of hay and more than $2,500 worth of wool

The fire communicated to a straw barn and tool shop nearby, both of which were destroyed. A metal roof is said to have saved the house which was near the barn

The insurance on the barn and con tents is said to be only about $6,000 less than half of the estimated los

The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Waitstill waived this point as too impossible for discussion. "When and where were you married, Patty?" she

"You thought of all that before, didn't you, child?"

"Nobody that hasn't already run away to be married once or twice could tell how it was going to feel. Never did I pass so unhappy a day. If Mark was not everything that is kind and gentle he would have tipped me out of the sleigh into a snowbank | hour?" and left me by the roadside to freeze.

"I might have been murdered instead of only married by the way I-behaved. but Mark and Ellen understood. Then the very next day Mark's father sent him up to Bridgton on business, and he had to go to Allentown first to return a friend's horse, so he couldn't break the news to father at once, as he intended."

"Does a New Hampshire marriage hold good in Maine?" asked Waitstill. still intent on the bare facts at the bottom of the romance.

"Well, of course," stammered Patty. scmewhat confused, "Maine has her own way of doing things and wouldn't But nothing can make it wicked of: anything but according to law.

"Besides, Mark considered all the difficulties. He is wonderfully clever, and he has a clerkship in a Portsmouth law office waiting for him, and that's where we are going to live, in New Hampshire, where we were married, and my darling sister will come soon and stay months and months with

"When is Mark coming back to arrange all this?"

"Late tonight or early tomorrow morning."

"Where did you go after you were married?"

"Where did I go?" echoed Patty in a childish burst of tears. "Where could I go? It took all day to be marriedall day long, working and driving hard from sunrise to 7 o'clock in the evening. Then when we reached the bridge Mark dropped me, and I walked up home in the dark and went to bed without any supper for fear that you and father would come back and catch me at it and ask why I was so late."

"My poor, foolish dear!" sighed Wait-

You are married, and you love each other. That's the comforting thing to me."

"We do," sobbed Patty. "No two people ever loved each other better than we, but it's been all spoiled for fear of father."

"I must say I dread to have him hear the news," and Waitstill knitted her brows anxiously. "I hope it may be soon, and I think I ought to be here when he is told. Mark will never upderstand or bear with him, and there

"I've a good mind to go upstairs and put on my gold beads and my wedding ring just to get used to them and to feel a little more married. No. I can't after all, for there is father driving up the hill now, and he may come into the house. What brings him home at this

"I was expecting him every moment," and Waitstill rose and stirred the fire. "He took the pung and went to the mills for grain."

"He hasn't anything in the back of the pung-and, oh. Waity, he is standing up now and whipping the horse with all his might. I never saw him drive like that before! What can be the matter? He can't have seen my wedding ring, and only three people in all the world know about my being married."

Waitstill turned from the window, her heart beating a little faster. "What three people know three hundred are likely to know sooner or later. be likely to fancy New Hampshire's. It may be a false alarm, but father is in a fury about something. He must not be told the news until be is in a better humor!"

"Go, Patty! It's the only thing to be done. Don't tremble, for nobody shall touch a hair of your head. I can trust you to find shelter tonight, and Mark will take care of you tomorrow."

Patty buttoned her shabby coat and tied on her hood as she walked from the kitchen through the sitting room toward the side door, her heart heaving with shame and anger, and above all, with a child's sense of helplessness at being parted from her sister.

"Don't tell the neighbors any more lies than you can help," called her father after her retreating form, "an' if any of 'em dare to come up here an' give me any of their imperdence they'll be treated same as you. Come back here, Waitstill, and don't go to slobberin' any goodbys over her. She ain't likely to get out o' the village for some time if she's expectin' Mark Wilson to take her away."

"I shall certainly go to the door with my sister," said Waitstill coldly, suiting the action to the word, and following Patty out on the steps, "Shall you blazed and she held her head high tell Uncle Bart everything, dear, and ask him to let you sleep at his house?" Both girls were trembling with ex-

This was a most astoundingly generous proposition on the deacon's part, and, to tell the truth, he did not himself fully understand his mental processes when he made it, but it seemed to be drawn from him by a kind of instinct that he was not standing well in his elder daughter's books.

CHAPTER XXV. Waitstill Speaks Her Mind.

MOUGH the two girls had never made any demonstration of their affection in his presence, Deacon Baxter had a fair idea of their mutual dependence upon each other; not that he placed the slightest value on Waitstill's opinion of him or cared in the smallest degree what she or any one else in the universe thought of his conduct, but she certainly did appear to advantage when contrasted with the pert little hussy who had just left the premises; also Waitstill loomed large in his household comforts and economies, having a clear head, a sure hand and being one of the steady going, reliable sort that can be counted on in emergencies, not, like Patty, going off at half cock at the smallest provocation. Yes, Waitstill. as a product of his masterly training for the last seven years, had settled down, not without some trouble and friction, into a tolerably dependable pack horse, and he intended in the future to use some care in making permanent so valuable an aid and ally. She did not pursue nor attract the opposite sex, as his younger daughter apparently did; so by continuing his policy of keeping all young men rigidly at a distance he could count confidently on having Waitstill serve his pur-the Roosevelt candidate for governor, loses in the Republican primary and wins in the Progressive primary he must, under the provisions of the primary law, run against the candidate of the Republican party in the November election. He must therefore choose NOW on which ticket he will run on Sept. 28.

Section 50 of the election law provides: "If the candidate designated for nomination does not decline the designation within the time hereinbefore mentioned and he is thereafter nominated at the official primary election his name shall be printed on the official ballot as the candidate of the party or body holding the primary, AND HE SHALL NOT BE PER-MITTED TO DECLINE SUCH NOM-INATION."

If Mr. Hinman loses the Republican nomination it will be too late for him to say that he is still a Republican, for he will be driven into the service of the Progressive party, whose sole aim seems to be to destroy the Republican party.

The primary law itself will make him automatically an ally of Tammany Hall-the same Tammany Hall that he has so often and so vigorously denounced.

It may be that in this new and relatively untried primary law this fact has escaped the attention of many voters. But Mr. Hinman cannot claim any such ignorance. He was a leader in the endeavor to enact the primary bill named after him-the so called Hinman - Green direct primary bill. That measure preserved party voting and enabled parties to choose party candidates as such. UNCOVER GRAFT

District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of New York county makes the following announcement as to his candidacy for the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket in the primaries to be held Sept. 28:

"I shall file my petition on the first day permitted by law, and shall be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination at the Republican primary and none other. I will support the Republican candidate chosen at that primary, as I have supported at the election every Republican nominee for president and governor since I have been a voter. I ask Mr. Hinman if he will make a like pledge to support the Republican nominee chosen at the coming primary.

"I have stood from the beginning of this fight for the principle that a candidate should be chosen by the enrolled voters of each party at their own

"I am against the attempt of Mr. Roosevelt to force a candidate upon the Republican party. If I had been willing to submit to his dictation, no doubt I could have had his support. I did not submit to it, and I did not

"The issue that will be fought out now is whether the Republican party is to be dominated by Mr. Roosevelt or by the enrolled members of the Republican party. That is the first issue at this primary.

"If elected governor I propose to follow the trails partly uncovered by the recent graft investigations, no matter where such trails may lead, or what the consequences may be.

"The office of governor has the further and more important function, the power to prevent departmental extravagance and corruption in the future. It is a known fact that since the Democratic party came into power in this state there has been extravagance and corruption. What the people of the state want is to have that stopped. If I am elected governor it will be stopped."

FERTILIZING PRODUCT WASTED *********

Dnly 25 Per Cent of Country Tankage

Is Availab a. Seventy-five per cent of a highly valunble fertilizing material in the form of tankage and blood from the country slaughter of food animals is being wasted throughout the country districts. In addition, $22,000,000 worth of ammonia, from which ammonium sulphate, another valuable fertilizing material, could be unde, is annually wasted by the practice of making coke in the beehive type of oven, according to a recent bulletin of the department

Tankage, a product of slaughter houses, consisting of such waste material as bones, horns, hoofs, hair, etc. contains a large percentage of nitrogen and other products used in commercial fertilizer and in the larger packing houses is carefully saved. In country killing, however, only 25 per cent of the tankage and blood is saved for fertilizer. The nitrogen content of tankage is said to vary from 5 to 8 per cent and its phosphoric acid content between 5 and 12 per cent.

Dried blood is perhaps the richest in nitrogen of all the organic materials used in the fertilizing industries. Unadulterated blood when quite dry contains 14 per cent of nitrogen, but as obtained on the market its content. varies from 9 to 18 per cent.

From the figures estimated by the bureau of animal industry, department of agriculture, as representing the total slaughter of cattle, calves, swine and sheep in the United States in 1912 it has been calculated that if all the materials rendered available by this slaughter had been saved and convert ed into tankage and dried blood they would have produced 222,535 tons of tankage and 79,794 tons of dried blood.

The introduction of a co-operative system among American farmers undoubtedly would result in an increased utilization of blood and tankage for fertilizing purposes. In Denmark country killing is being practiced on a cooperative basis in small country abattoirs, and the blood is carefully pre

Another method is to spray fresh new growth of clover or any other good succulent plant with one pound of paris green to twenty-five gallons of water. Then mow it and spread in Those having been milked all summer should be allowed to rough it with the stock cattle. The milk cows should be given the best sleeping quarters that conditions will permit. The cuives should have good care. Each mother will produce enough skimmilk for her calf, but at the age of three weeks each calf should be eating a little grain.

PLAN AND WORK

Cities and towns can grow like business institutions, but in order to do so the people of these cities and towns must study, think, plan and work. They must take an account of their assets. In other words, they must ascertain how much power for industrial enterprises the town or city possesses. Indeed, there are many things that must be taken into account. - Governor David L. Walsh of Massachusetts.

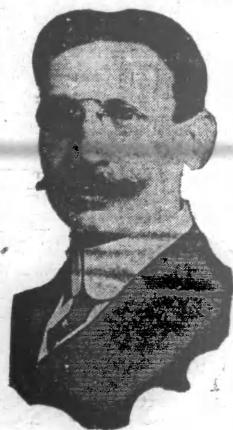

W. L. FINCH, TOWN BUILDER,

Pioneer In the Work of Commercial Organization.

Twentieth century industry and invention have been responsible for the creation of many new professions, but to personal initiative alone may be attributed the newest and most unique profession of them all, that of the commercial club organizer.

Will L. Finch, president of the Town Development company of New York, is the pioneer in the profession that he has created. His hand turns commercial club lethargy into life and makes ten members work where one drowsed before. His business is to prod the sleepy commercial organization into a realization of its existence and, having once aroused it, to instruct it in the ways it should tread. All over the country his advent to a town has meant that the place so favored was due to a boom for prosperity, for his up to date and, at the same time, hard, headed business acumen supplies the foundation for successful commercial enterprise.

Up and down, across and back the country, Mr. Finch flits with his message of organization and efficiency. The frozen north and the balmy south, the stately cities of the Atlantic seaboard and the booming towns of the slope of the Sierras respond to his quiet exhortation. New York and Spokane, Marquette, Menominee and Mount Vernon, St. Louis, St. Paul and St. John attribute the power of their commercial clubs to his guiding hand.

Like most men who have attained the summit of their professions, Mr. Finch has reached his present position of recognized authority after a long, hard climb. Beginning as a newspaper man in Cincinnati, he graduated from journalism at an early age and identifled himself with commercial work. For ten years he was the secretary of the old Cincinnati organization, first known as the industrial bureau, then as the Commercial association and now as the chamber of commerce. Growing with, or, rather, forcing, the growth of the organization, Mr. Finch brought the Ohio chamber to its present high state of efficiency. Then, having practically reached the limit of endeavor in local work, he branched out and boldly created the field of commercial organization. Over thirty-eight successful campaigns in towns that ranged in size from Clarksburg, W. Va., to New York city and St. Louis attest the wisdom of his unique ven-

The recent phenomenal campaign in Spokane, Wash., in which over 8,000 new members were enrolled within a week, is perhaps the crowning triumph, but it is by no means the consummation of the efforts of this ploneer in town development.

GREAT VALUE OF HONEY BEE

Little Insects Are Almost Indispensable to Fruit Grower and Are His Best Friends,

(By F. G. HERMAN.) In this age of combination and competition in all industries, more exensive and more determined every day, there is, there must be, a persistent search for the means of increas ing incomes, especially the small ones.

Bees do not make honey, they gather it; and honey, the sweet secretion and distillation in flower cups, is found in abundance in city and country throughout the land from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with some exceptions, and thousands of tons of honey evaporate and are lost because no bees are present to gather.

It must at all times be remembered that bees and fruit go well together, and that while the fruit-bloom is of much value to the bees and their keeper, the bees are also most indispensable to the fruit grower, and are his best friends, and aid in securing a good fruit harvest.

There is scarcely a fruit grower or rural citizen who does not understand the pollenization of fruit blooms; also that the wind is a great agent in pollenizing fruit, but if no wind is blowing at all while the trees are in full bloom the wind cannot be counted on to do much distribution of pollen.

Nature has wisely provided for the pollenization of blossoms of the vegetable kingdom in the creation of bees. Of the different agencies depended upon to do this important work, the bee is the most thorough

We may plant our fruit trees in such a way that those prolific in the production of pollen will be intermingled with other trees that are to be fertilized, or we may depend upon the wind to deliver this life-giving dust from one plant or tree to another, but there are times when these will fail.

The only profit most people see in keeping bees would be the surplus honey obtained for family consumption or to put on the market.

KEEP POULTRY IN ORCHARDS

Actual Advantages Not as Great as Many Would Suppose Suited to the General Farmer.

The fruit and poultry farming is at tractive in some ways, but its actual advantages are not so great as many would suppose.

So far as the fruit is concerned, the system is essentially that of pasturing the orchard in sod with hens in place of sheep or pigs. A pasture system of any kind is generally not thought equal to growing vegetables and small fruits during the summer season and sowing the land to crimson clover, or rye and sand vetch, for green crops to be plowed down the following spring. Young trees require summer culture. Poultry in the orchard may be allowed when the trees come into full fruit, and the foliage is so dense as to shade the ground so much as to make the culture of vegetables no longer profitable. In the New England states portable houses are placed in the orchard and moved from one location to another from time to time. This has worked well in most instances. The orchard poultry in and the night prowlers out The combination plan is well suited to the general farmer, and te the one who engages in a regular retail business throughout the year. Rocky lands and lands that cannot be put under cultivation are well suited for most all classes of fruit; and the same fand can be used as a pasture for the hens. The holes for the trees can be cheaply opened by the use of dynamite. The cost is said to be not more than six to eight cents for each hole.

FEATS WITH THE CAMERA.

Difficult to Snap Fast Moving Objects at a Given Point.

Only an expert, and he only after much practice, can take a photograph. of a rapidly moving object at a predetermineà point-for example, an express train with the cowcatcher just of industry, "are two very different at a white chalk mark on a tie or matters. You can take liberties in the a baseball at the instant the bat first case which you cannot in the case strikes it.

there is a certain appreciable time between the mental decision to do a thing and the actual doing of it; second, it takes a certain appreciable time O wherever possible are the two goldfor the impulse given by pressing the button or squeezing the bulb of a unsingable language, and certainly camera to travel to the shutter and Italian and French are more liquid open it. The latter may in a very fine camera be only one-fiftieth of a second, but even the fiftieth of a second instance, the word 'thee,' which is in a train going 100 feet a second breathed out between the teeth, with would mean a difference of two feet.

C. H. Claudy in an article in the Camera says that not more than once in four attempts will even an expert catch the precise instant he is seeking. The average man snaps his camera at the moment the ball is striking the club or racquet, and by the time his shutter has worked the ball has gone. A tennis ball travels nearly a mile a minute when struck bard. That is ninety-six feet a second, so in a lag of one-tenth of a second between the pressing of the button and the opening of the shutter the ball will move near ly ten feet, and ordinary cameras work no faster than this. So one need not wonder if eyen experts fall.

CLOUD FORMATIONS.

What We Know About Them Seems to Be Mainly Guesswork.

Many scientists have told us how clouds are made. Most of the textbooks on physical geography tell all about them, but it is all guesswork. Clouds are a mystery. It is true they are composed of moisture floating in the air, but how did the moisture get

It is held that particles of moisture are evaporated from the earth's surface by the heat of the sun. This moisture does not form into clouds immediately. Indeed, the passage of the moisture from the earth to the upper air is quite invisible. It was formerly supposed that this moisture was condensed by the cold of the upper air into rain droplets, which formed the clouds.

But scientists hold that the tiny particles must have something to condense upon. They used to tell us that the moisture collected upon dust particles to form into rain drops. Now they are practically agreed that it is something else, but they don't know Anyway, when these drops get large snough they accumulate into vapor. forming clouds. When the droplets get too large and heavy to float in the air they fall to the earth in the form of rain, and this is about all we actually know about clouds.-War Cry.

When Seals Were Food.

The gray seal used to serve Cornishmen as an article of diet. Stephen Hawker tells how he and a brother elergyman, having asked a landlady at Boscastle what she could give them for dinner, were told "Meat and tatles." They tried to get her to particularize the meat, but "Meat, nice, wholesome meat, and tatles" was the full extent of her information. When the meat was served it tasted like veal, but was unaccompanied by any vestige of bone that might have enabled the diners to infer its origin. Years afterward Hawker lighted on the nature of the "meat" when he read in an old history of Cornwall that "the people of Boscastle do catch divers young soyles, which doubtful if they be fish or flesh conynge housewives will nevertheless roast and do make thereof savory meat."-London Graphic.

SIBILANTS AND SONG.

A Combination That Does Not Produce Satisfactory Results.

"Writing verses for the printed page and writing 'words' to be set to music and sung," remarked a gentleman who has won laurels in both departments of 'lyrics,' as with these you have The reason for this is twofold; First, to consider the 'singableness' of the words used.

"To avoid sibilants like a pestilence and to use open vowels such as A and en rules. English has been called an and easier to vocalize in. Open vowels are very important. Compare, for its plural 'you,' which enables the singer to open the mouth widely. The relative singableness is apparent at "An excessive use of sibilants produces a ludicrous hissing sound. (Read the last sentence aloud, and note the effect.) Nevertheless a well known dramatist was once careless enough to give an actor a speech in which he described 'Dick sitting still as a stone and steering the horse splendidly.' -London Answers.

BIRDS AND BRAINS.

The Canary Well Supplied, While the Poor Hen Is Sadly Lacking.

Naturalists have arrived at the conclasion that the brain in birds is large in proportion to the body. If it is admitted that intelligence depends upon the weight of the brain then the goldfinch must be placed at the top of the list of birds. The brain weighs onefourteenth of its whole body.

It must be remembered, however, that attempts to draw conclusions as to the intelligence of certain birds from a comparison of the weight of the brain with that of the body have been considered futile. In man the brain forms from onetwenty-second to one-thirty-third of the whole body; in the canary, one-fourteenth; the sparrow, one-twenty-fifth; the chaffinch, one-twenty-seventh; the redbreast, one-thirty-second; the blackbird, one-sixty-eighth; the duck, onetwo-hundred-and-fifty-seventh; the eagle, one-two-hundred-and-sixtleth; the goose, one-three-hundred-and-sixtleth; the domestic ben, one-four-hundred-and-twelfth. By some the preternaturally cunning raven is supposed to be the most highly developed of birds. His courage is so great that the eagle respects it, and his intelligence prevents him from getting into unseen though suspected dangers.-London Spectator.

The President's Privilege. President Wilson has had his nails manicured by a professional manicure just once in his life. That once was after he was elected president and before he was inaugurated.

He had some time in New York and decided to use it in a visit to a manicure. A fluffy blond person officiated with the orange stick and pumice.

She took the hand of the future president, began operations and began conversation at the same time.

"Where do you live?" she asked archly. "In Princeton, N. J.," Mr. Wilson re-
