The December American Boy.

Beneath the unusually attractive colored covers of the Christmas issue of the American Boy is contained a wealth of fiction, of fact, and of attractive illustration that is certain to interest the active boy as it will inspire him. The fifty-two large pages are crowded with good things. The many departments and short articles appeal to a boy's every interest and aid him in his important business of being a boy and developing into an able man. A boy you know wants a copy. $1.00 a year. Published by the Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit, Mich.

Poor Blood is Responsible for much sickness and suffering because its quality determines our resistive power. With poor blood we are languid, susceptible to colds, lack natural energy and ambition, and the gradual decline of strength makes prompt and careful treatment necessary. Drugs or alcohol cannot make blood and must be avoided.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is nature's grandest blood-maker because of its wholesome medical nourishment, so carefully predigested that it assimilates without taxing digestion and quickly increases the red corpuscles of the blood, strengthens the organs and tissues and rebuilds the whole system.

Absolutely nothing compares with SCOTT'S EMULSION to purify and enrich the blood to overcome or avoid anaemia. It is totally free from alcohol or opiates and your health demands the purity of SCOTT'S.

Dec. 9—The blacksmith shop was open for business last Thursday. Benton Brown had the first horse shod. It is an up-to-date shop, and adds very much to the looks of the place.

Little Leah Singer was quite sick last week, but we are glad to know that she is better.

About four weeks ago there was quite a drove of cattle picked up among the farmers. Benton Brown sold them a cow that had been in the family possibly from a calf. It is a very sad thing. Jay has a family to care for and is trying to pay for a home and the loss of his hand is a great one and it will be a long time before he will learn to do without it. The Christian way will be for the people to help him bear it, by relieving him of some of his burdens.

Boy Fired Fatal Shot.

The mystery which has surrounded the shooting of Charles Hoyt of Ledyard on the Neville farm in Scipio was cleared up by a sworn statement made by Robert Manchester, a well known farmer of the town of Scipio. Mr. Manchester's statement made before Coroner Forman is in substance as follows:

"That he, Robert Manchester, resides in the town of Scipio, and that he is the father of one, Harold Manchester, who was 13 years old on the 26th day of November. Deponent also swears that he is the possessor of a .22 caliber rifle. That he had forbidden the boy to take the rifle but that in a conversation with the boy on the third day of December that the boy Harold told him that on the 29th day of November, he with his cousin, one Ray Pattington, took the rifle and went to look at their traps.

"The boys after examining the traps at the several places came along the fence from the east and followed said fence along to the willows. Here they saw what they took to be a flock of geese on the ground to the east and he, Harold, fired into them with the rifle.

"As soon as the shot was fired, Harold saw a man jump up and run. He did not see any other person nor a pit. Both boys were startled when they saw the man run and went home at once and put the gun back."

Resolved, That we sincerely and affectionately sympathize with her afflicted family in their sorrow, and we express a hope that this great loss to us all may be of benefit, as we know "He doeth all things well."

Resolved, That we drape our altar in mourning, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and also placed on the records of our Order.

SIMPLE GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS TIME.

A paperweight may be made of Christmas ribbon in the form of a bag filled with bird shot or lead and tied with narrow ribbon at the top.

For a small blotter cut half a dozen different colored blotters the size of a postal card, bore a hole through blotters and postal card at each end and tie together with Christmas ribbon. Choose a card with an appropriate greeting.

An attractive way to make a floral calendar is to take twelve sheets of sketching paper, cut into some neat design and paste on each leaf the floral symbols of each month. You can cut the flowers from any seed catalogue. The calendar leaf should be tastefully placed.

A gift quickly made is a decorated tablet, which is useful for recording messages. Buy any kind of a tablet and carefully remove the cover so that the cloth binding will not be spoiled. Make a new cover from bright red mounting board and decorate it with holly leaves cut from white paper colored green. Arrange the leaves in bunches or wreaths.

Coat hangers are always acceptable and are easily made attractive. One covered with holly ribbon, with a bunch of frosted artificial holly leaves attached to the wire, is pretty.

A useful shirt waist bag may be made from a yard and three-fourths of white paper cambric. Use narrow tape for drawstring and cotton floss to work the initials of the owner.

A suitable present for a little girl is a tiny kimono. One can be made in an hour from any preferred material.

PATHOS AND JOY AT CHRISTMAS TIME IN SOLDIERS' HOMES

CHRISTMAS is as pathetic as it is joyous to many of the old Confederate veterans who, by fate and circumstances, are forced to depend entirely upon the generosity of their comrades and their friends who have prospered since the war. There are no pensions for these old soldiers except the meager sums they get from the various states. Some of the veterans are dependent on these insignificant funds to keep them out of the poorhouse.

The fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg was celebrated last July. The twenty-year-old boy of this battle is now a gray haired veteran of seventy. The old soldiers are crossing the great divide by the score, and before many years have passed there will be few left.

About twenty years ago it was discovered that many of the bravest soldiers of the war were drifting to the poorhouses because there was nowhere else for them to go and because their wounds kept them from work. Many had no relatives, and the relatives of others were too poor to support the old soldiers. In many cases the veterans declined to accept alms. The movement to take care of these men resulted in Confederate homes in all of the southern states, and descendants of the men who wore the gray now spend about $2,000,000 annually in pensions and in the support of various homes.

Christmas is a happy reality in these institutions. Although, owing to the slender incomes, the homes have to run on the most modest basis, there is no skimping at Christmas time. From the neighborhood around come turkeys and chickens and pies and biscuits and fruit and cakes and tobacco in plenty—everything except wines and liquors, for the rules against alcohol in these institutions are particularly strict. And on Christmas day the relatives and friends and acquaintances crowd to the homes with all sorts of presents and with good wishes for the old fellows, who recall their fight for the lost cause with pride in what they did and with satisfaction for the preservation of the Union.

You will hear some one say: "That old fellow over there, with one eye and one leg, was the most brilliant young man in our town. He belonged to the richest family in the county. But the war took the wealth, and he lost the eye and the leg in the Wilderness, and a bullet in his head ruined his mind for life. All his people are dead, and only the few of us who were with him know what a brave man he was. I left my family today to come out here and bring a box of cigars and talk a little over old times to let him know that he is not entirely forgotten."

The best thing about it is that the old fellows are always disposed to do full justice to the offerings of the day, and to look their best in their gray uniforms, and to tell their choicest stories, and to eat the most.

POSTAL REGULATIONS.

Many articles of merchandise are absolutely prohibited transmission in the mails, therefore inquire before mailing. Now that the holidays are here the mails are flooded with Christmas presents, going to and coming from all parts of the world.

The average person knows little about the postal laws and regulations of this country and consequently is apt to make a mistake. Do you know that you cannot mail tobacco in any form to a friend in France or that you cannot mail patent medicine to a friend in Hungary. If you have one there? The postal laws of this country prohibit the mailing to any foreign country of matter liable to decomposition, such as confectionery or confections. Did you know that, with few exceptions, you cannot mail to foreign countries (Canada excepted) any packet or letter containing gold or silver substances, jewelry or precious articles? It is true. Nor can you send any packet or letter containing articles liable to customs duty in the countries addressed. That does not apply to Canada or Mexico or to articles forwarded by parcel post. The postal laws prohibit the putting of intoxicating liquors (ardent vinous, spirituous or malt) in the mails. If you try to send to a friend in some distant city a small flask of fine whiskey its destination will be Washington—the dead letter office.

One would be surprised at the tremendous number of violations of the postal laws and regulations because of the ignorance of the average person using the mails. Nearly every package that goes through the mails at this time of the year is opened by the postoffice department. Some persons are accustomed to sending a package purporting to contain nothing but photographs through the mails. When those packages have been opened in the postoffices some of them have been found to contain writing, handkerchiefs or jewelry, which is a violation of the postal laws and subject to a fine.

Why They Are Higher.

Are you thinking of a Fur Coat this year? If so, we wish to warn you in advance that the price has gone up. In placing our order we found it necessary to pay more in order to get the same high grade coats we have always sold, but we prefer doing this to keeping the price down and selling you an inferior coat. These coats were bought from one of the more reliable houses in the business and as buying furs is merely a question of confidence, we feel we did a wise thing in buying the kind we knew from past experience will prove absolutely satisfactory.

Hints to Advertisers

By HOLLAND.
THE man who prepares copy for a printer, whether it is a reading notice or an advertisement, should remember a few essentials. Typewriter copy is better than that made with a pen or pencil. But if you must use a pencil write as plainly as possible. Do not crowd your words together. Leave plenty of space at the top and bottom of the page and between lines. Paper is cheaper than a man's time deciphering illegible writing. WRITE ONLY ON ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER, and if you use more than one sheet number the pages. Remember that some man must read what you are writing and that he does not know what you mean to say and must be guided by what you do say. Write your copy as plainly as you would like to have the other man write it if you had to put it in type. Designate the lines that you want displayed and do not expect extra large type in a small space.
The editor of this paper knows something about advertising and a good deal about the typographical art. He will be glad to have you consult him about preparing your copy. The advice he offers will be free and honest. And you don't need to follow it unless it seems sound to you.

The Scrap Book

One Favor He Craved.
Augustus Thomas in his recollections of Frederic Remington relates the following: "One Sunday morning in those later days I went with him to the office of an osteopathic physician who was treating him. The osteopath was a slight man and not tall. Remington, lying face downward on the operating table, presented a skyline so much higher than that of the average patient that the doctor standing on the floor lacked the angle of pressure necessary to his treatment. The doctor, therefore, mounted a chair, from which he stepped to the table and finally sat astride of Remington, applying his full weight to the manipulation which he was giving to the spinal column. 'I hope I'm not hurting you, Mr. Remington,' said the doctor. Remington answered, 'It's all right, doctor, so long as you don't use your spurs.'"

THE DOCTOR MOUNTED A CHAIR.

The Ultimate Peace.
There is a peace which no man know. Save those whom suffering hath laid low—The peace of pain.
A strength which only comes to those Who've borne defeat—greater, God knows, Than victory.
A happiness which comes at last. After all happiness seems past—The joy of peace.

Gave It In Full.
An old Scottish minister took it into his head to marry his housekeeper. His precursor being ill on the day when the banns were to be proclaimed, the minister, not caring to make the intimation himself, arranged with his herd boy to do it. "Now," he said, "you just call out in a loud voice, 'Proclamation of marriage between the Rev. Mr. Murray of this parish and Jean Lowe o' the same!' Ha, ha!" laughed the minister as he concluded. "Wha'd hae thocht it!" The Sabbath came round and the congregation assembled. When the moment arrived the lad, who had duly prepared himself, rose and called out: "Proclamation of marriage between the Rev. Mr. Murray of this parish and Jean Lowe o' the same!" Ha, ha!" he laughed, thinking this to be a part of the proclamation. "Wha'd hae thocht it?" The effect on the minister and the congregation can be imagined.

"WHAD HAE THOCHT IT!"

The Same Old Suit.
One Eyed Bill Plaster, long since passed to his reward, moved suddenly from Texas to Arizona.
"How comes it, Bill," asked Marc Smith, now senator from Arizona, "that you left Texas and came over here?"
"Why," said Bill, "I'll tell you, Marc. It's all on account of a lawsuit. Every term of court I was pestered with a lawsuit. 'Always there was that darn lawsuit every blamed term, and I just sloped to get rid of it.'"
"What lawsuit?"
"Oh," Bill answered, "the same old lawsuit every time. They allus called it the commonwealth of Texas agin Bill Plaster."—Saturday Evening Post

What Might Have Been.
In a backwoods lived a farmer who, although he had never seen a railroad, yet had his opinion of them and the mischief which he understood they might cause. According to his notion, a train was as much to be dreaded as a cyclone itself. Great, then, was his consternation upon learning that a right of way for a railroad was wanted through his farm. He swore "by hickory" that no money could buy it. Finally land enough for the purpose was condemned and the road built. The day the first train was to pass the neighbors, knowing of the old fellow's opposition, persuaded him nevertheless to go with them to see it. As the train disappeared some one said, "You see, Bill, it didn't hurt anything after all." Bill was surprised, but hated to abandon his contention that a train would ruin things. "Waal, ynaas," he said, "I reckon that ye mought say so, but, ye see, the gosh darned thing come through here endways. Ef it hed come sideways it would 'a' busted the daylight outen of every cow in the place."

Painfully Frank.
A somewhat parsimonious couple in Edinburgh invited a friend to dine with them on a Monday, and when the joint was laid on the table it proved to be the remains of Sunday's roast heated up, whereupon the guest remarked that this appeared to be "an' an' frien' with a new face." This, however, did not prevent his doing justice to the fare provided, and upon departing he said, "Well, good night; I've had an enjoyable evening, and you have always the consolation that it hasn't cost you much."

PAID FOR HIS LESSON.

It Was Double Price, at That, but It Taught Him a Lot.

Mr. Potterton prided himself upon being a man of a philosophical turn of mind. Coming home one evening, he discovered that a thief had taken his scarfpin, an heirloom. Mrs. Potterton was for sending out a general police alarm, besides asking the departments of Yonkers and Patchogue to help in the search. But Mr. Potterton had other views.
"I will advertise for its return, Maria," he declared. "The sum of $10 with promise of no questions asked, will get the pin back. The $10 is less than I would be obliged to pay the detective as a tip, and the detective would not recapture the pin. Cheaper, quicker, safer."

Mr. Potterton advertised. An answer came. Mr. Potterton was to be on a certain corner at 9 o'clock that evening. He kept the appointment faithfully, and a man came up to him, handed out the scarfpin, took the $10 and turned away.
"But hold, my good man," said Mr. Potterton. "I mean you no harm, but I am so curious to learn how it was that you took the scarfpin without my noticing the—er—er—thief that I will gladly pay you $10 more to have you show me how it was done."

The man looked at Mr. Potterton's face. It was transparently honest.
"Put the pin back in your tie," he commanded.
"Now," he went on, "do you remember that the other evening in the subway a man, holding a paper in one hand, lurched against you? That man was I. Just as my hand struck your breast I extracted the pin. I left the train at the next station. If you will remember I struck you just so."

The man tapped Mr. Potterton as he had done in the subway.
"Your skill is truly marvelous," said Mr. Potterton. "Thank you, my good man. Good night."
Arrived home, Mr. Potterton described to Maria the success of his efforts and how the thief had taken the pin. "His light fingeredness was truly astounding," he declared. "He showed me his method. He struck me just here"—And Mr. Potterton illustrated the blow and stopped, thunderstruck.
"The scoundrel!" he shouted. "He got it again!"—New York Post.

True Charity.
It is not written blessed is he that feedeth the poor, but he that considereth the poor. A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money.—Ruskin.

He Bought Last.
An inebriated man of the name of Riley boarded a trolley car and, after paying his fare, made himself comfortable. The conductor, after calling off the streets, was nearing the street which corresponded with the jag's name.
"Riley street next!" yelled the conductor.
"The souse, who was only half asleep, roused himself and yelled out: 'You're a liar! I treated last.'—National Monthly.

Jarred His Dignity.
When Commissioner Allen had charge of the patent office in Washington he was punctilious about office etiquette and demanded courteous treatment from everybody.
One day he was sitting at his desk when two men came in without knocking or announcement and without removing their hats.

"WE AIN'T VISITORS."
Allen looked up and impaled the intruders with his glittering eye. "Gentlemen," he said severely, "who are visitors to this office to see me are always announced and always remove their hats."
"Hub!" replied one of the men. "We ain't visitors, and we don't give a hoot about seeing you. We came in to fix the steam pipes."

Altered the Model.
In his later years Frederick William, king of Prussia, was sorely afflicted with gout. The twinges of pain aggravated his naturally insensible temper. During the attacks he was accustomed to divert his mind by painting. His models were always soldiers.
One day he kept a tall grenadier posing for a long time. At length the picture was finished. The king turned to the man and in a terrible voice asked: "What do you think of that?"
"The cheeks are redder than mine, was the hesitating reply.
"I'll soon fix that!" thundered the old king.
So he seized his brush and painted both cheeks of the terrified grenadier a brilliant red.

JOY-TIME

This is the season of good cheer. The season of the holly and the mistletoe, the time for bright faces and generous impulses—for gladsome greetings—a time for noble resolves to be born—a time for old animosities to die—a time when the benevolent side of one's nature should predominate—a time when thoughts should turn toward home.

"It's Christmas time, friend! What will you do about it?" asks a prominent philanthropist. "Mothers! You who love to see your babies bend, crooning softly over their dolls, with that grave little smile of dawning motherhood fitting tenderly over their faces, just within a stone's throw of babies who have no dolls, and the motherheart beats in their bosoms just as it does in that of your own children; but their faces are grave and sharp and old; and little drawn white lines show about their mouths; and the eyes are not like the eyes of your children. Now is the time to look about you and see if you cannot make someone happy. Life is not made up of just prayers and sitting reverently in your pew, keeping one day of the week holy."

Let the keynote of our Christmas be love—"peace on earth, good will to men." Let those that have been blessed with plenty see to it that their neighbors have good cheer and abundance to make their hearts glad.

Let us try to imagine what a happy scene the world would present if all the men the world around could have and enjoy one perfect Christmas—one day in which the spirit should manifest itself in every human heart in all its happiest, truest, largest meaning. What a fortaste of the millennium such a day would be: What sorrow, misery, jealousy and bitterness would be buried never to be renewed. Since a Christmas even for one day would be a source of immeasurable blessing to the world. It could not fail to break crust of human selfishness and set many a spring of human kindness flowing never to cease. While such a day can only exist in our imagination, it is in our power to make each returning Yuletide like it by translating our wishes to deeds, by making the best of our opportunities and means to make life a little brighter and a little sweeter for those around us, and a little nearer like the life we could truly wish for all mankind.

In May, 1907, a farmer of Franklin county, Kansas, sued a neighbor for $9, the value of three pigs. The case has been tried in justice court, in the district court three times, the supreme court twice, and is now before that tribunal for a third decision. The costs up to date, are $3,600. Henry Farnham, who came to this town from Venice a few years ago as a farm hand, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Fay Teeter on a warrant charging him with burglary and larceny, in stealing a quantity of ginseng roots from the gardens of Emmett Trapp, at East Venice. Deputy Teeter had been at work on the case for several days, and his successful apprehension of the culprit was a clever piece of work, and very satisfactory generally. The crime was traced to Farnham through his purchase of a pair of wire cutters at a local store, which he used to cut the fence of fine wire netting which extends around the ginseng gardens. The roots were taken on two nights about two weeks apart. Teeter found the roots drying in an upstairs room in Farnham's abode. The man made a clean breast of the matter and was taken before Justice Sharpsteen, who held him for the Grand Jury. He was taken to the county jail that night.

Let's pretend a little while,
That the world is managed right,
That there's little which is vile,
That there's much to give delight.
Let us hopefully pretend
That the luck we have is fair;
Let us put a sudden end
To the murmurs of despair.
Let's pretend just for to-day
That our hearts are free from woe;
That the wind blows just the way
We would like to have it blow.
Let's pretend that what we do
Is the work we like the best;
Let's pretend the scene we view
Is of all the loveliest.
Let's pretend we're satisfied;
Let's pretend we're brave and strong;
Maybe after we have tried
We can do it right along.
—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

The Christmas Table

SO many table favors of little huts and houses are to be had nowadays that it is not difficult to carry out the idea of a table to represent Christmas in an old fashioned village. This, of course, only possible where a long table is concerned and sufficient space is available to group the set pieces effectively.

Where the dinner table is for a dozen or more covers, however, this can be arranged to make a very novel scheme.

The first investment is that of a sufficient number of little snowbound cottages. Some of these can be altered easily enough so as to look a little different one from the other. In front of one a white pencil stuck in whitened cork—diamond powdered—can, with a little ingenuity, be made to represent a signboard to face the coaching inn. An advertisement in a paper frame will make a capital sign, sprinkled with "rime" to give the same effect of winter as the rest.

A sheet of looking glass for village pond and two or three tiny toy ducks should occupy the center of the table. Among the many set piece cracker decorations it is easy, too, to pick up lanterns to hold Christmas candles, doves, farm wagons and carts laden with crackers, which will add to the realism of the pantomime scene.

Japanese Toweling For Christmas Gifts

NUMEROUS attractive Christmas things may be made from Japanese toweling, a novel material, which costs about 75 cents to $1.25 for a piece of ten yards. This narrow, coarse, white cotton crapy goods is printed at intervals, with the two toned designs, showing single sprays of wistaria—Fujlyama by moonlight, a few scattered maple leaves, flying birds, shaggy chrysan themums and similar designs.

A bolt or two may be easily converted into presents. A farseeing matron bought the toweling and made it up into tea sets, the crosspieces forming the cloth proper and the dozen small napkins. She fagoted the two strips together with a coarse blue floss, then marked the napkins with long, angular Japanese letters, one above the other, with a dash beneath. The marking in blue was done in a corner where the white background predominated. One of her sets, she is sure, will be enjoyed next summer by a hostess who has a veranda furnished in blue and white. Another is to be sent to a young bride in whose simple little dining room blue and white china is used.

This toweling has also been used for a nursery set. A spread of the white cotton crape is bordered with the toweling, and dresser cover and curtains are made to match. This Japanese material is to appear in a set for an invalid's breakfast tray. The oval cloth, shaped to fit the tray, is buttonholed, and it has the napkins to match. A set of fruit napkins made of the blue and white crape will be another Christmas remembrance. The toweling launders perfectly, and fruit stains do not show. A child would enjoy having a half dozen of the marked napkins for her "very own" to use in her school lunch box.

Laundry bags and bags for the table napery to hang in the butler's pantry made with the convenient hoop top are both pretty and practical.

Another gift that will not come amiss is a pair of hemstitched sash curtains for the small bathroom window.

Go Home for Christmas

STOP at this busy Christmas season and think for a moment of the folks back home. Consider how much happier they will be if you are with them on this Christmas day. Perhaps your parents are getting very old now—perhaps they have only a few more Christmases to spend here. Certainly your presence at the old home place would add greatly to their joy. Think of the days when you were a child—of the Christmases, now gone forever, when your father and mother did so much to make you happy. A man's mother is the best friend he ever had or ever can have. One owes it to her to spend Christmas at her side and to devote the day to making her happy. But if we have no mother what would be prettier, what sentiment or act could be more beautiful, than to visit her grave and make it green with wreaths and flowers on Christmas day?

Public Sale in 1846.

The following notice was published in the Missouri Times several years ago, and was handed us by Wm. Starne, who obtained a copy while on a trip to Iowa this fall:

"The following is a copy of a sale bill advertising a sale 61 years ago. It was printed on a small sheet of paper 5x7 inches.

PUBLIC SALE

State of Missouri, County of Pike. To whom it may concern:

The undersigned will on Tuesday, Sept. 28, A. D. 1846, sell at public outcry for cash on premises where Cook creek crosses the old Mission road the following chattels to wit:

6 yoke of oxen with yoke and chains 2 wagons with beds, 3 nigger wenches, 4 buck niggers, 2 nigger boys, 2 prairie plows, 25 steel traps, 1 barrel of pickled cabbage, 1 hog-head of pickled cabbage, 1 hog-head tobacco, a lot of nigger hoes, 1 spinning wheel, 1 loom, 13 fox hounds, a lot of corn, mink and skunk skins and a lot of other articles; am going to California

Chas. E. Johnson

E. B. Lee, Cryer.
Free head cheese, apples and hard cider.

As our readers will notice the free lunch was a fad at that time as it is to-day and probably always will be. The chattels were principally slaves."

Modern Health Crusade Day.

Red Cross Christmas Seals and their relation to health will be discussed in the schools of New York State on Dec 12 "Children's Modern Health Crusade Day" will be celebrated on that date. The State Charities Aid Association, which has charge of the enterprise, plans to have a short story relating to the Red Cross Seal, tuberculosis and other health subjects read to the pupils. Each child will then be asked to write on a slip of paper one fact concerning the subjects. These will be examined and corrected by the teachers who will read the best ones to the class.

The State-wide celebration of this day was carried out for the first time last year. So widespread was the interest and so great was the enthusiasm created that it is proposed to make it an annual affair hereafter.

Share Your Fortune

MID all the happiness and joys of the merry Christmas season think of those less fortunate—of those on whom the sun of plenty has failed to shine during the past twelve months. Think of the heart-aches that will be theirs on Christmas morning; think of the tear stained eyes of the little children weeping because Santa Claus could not call at their homes. Half of your pleasure at Christmas will be derived from making others happy, from sharing your good fortune and sowing seeds of kindness wherever you happen to be on Christmas day. Give something, be it ever so trifling, to the little child to whom Christmas otherwise would mean nothing. You can keep tears of sorrow from those eyes and brighten the day a hundredfold for yourself. Try it.
