Eye Trials of Today.

Looking facts in the face is the way the wise ones act. Those who look another way at the trials of today add to the sufferings of tomorrow. If your eyes are weak, if a film covers over them, or they ache, or burn, or bother you in any way, don't delay in consulting me. I will tell you what you ought to do. I make a specialty of careful and thorough eye examination. Fred L. Swart, the eye fitter, 10 South St., Auburn, N. Y., Cady block, up one flight.

To Defeat Winter Ills

START NOW

Susceptibility to colds, sore throats, tonsillitis and such, indicate impoverished vitality—lack of reserve strength to weather changing seasons.

A spoonful of SCOTT'S EMULSION after each meal starts healthy body-action like a small match kindles a great fire—and more: it makes rich, healthy, active blood—fortifies the tissues and stimulates the appetite—it makes sound body-strength.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is the purest cod liver oil, made cream-like and palatable without alcohol or drug—the quintessence of purity.

Respect imitations they are impostors for profit.

From Nearby Towns.

Five Corners.

Jan. 19—We are surely having a mild winter, the highways are in a terrible condition.

Quite a good many are suffering from the prevailing epidemic, grip.

James DeRemer is back to his position at Ithaca.

Mrs. Sarah Algard is with her son Frank and wife at Ithaca.

The benefit social for Mrs. S. B. Mead which was held at Jump's hall last Friday evening was quite largely attended. We learn the proceeds were $35. Mrs. Mead wishes to extend many thanks to all who so liberally assisted in any way.

Clarence, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stephenson is under the care of Dr. Willoughby of Genoa.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tupper of East Genoa attended the funeral of Mrs. D. G. Ellison last Saturday.

Mrs. S. C. Mead goes to Auburn this week Wednesday again for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. John MacRoy have returned to their home here after spending some time with their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Streeter and family at Venice Center.

In the death of Mrs. D. G. Ellison, the community at large has lost a dear friend, one who was always willing and ready to do her part at all times and in years gone by was an active member of the Grange, a member of the W. C. T. U. at the time of her death, but as she had been ailing for several years was not able to attend the meetings. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, a niece, Jennie Ellison and a grand nephew, Dannie Moore. A brother James Palmer, who resides in Nashville, Tenn., was unable to be present on account of sickness. The funeral was held last Saturday from her late home at 2 o'clock, Rev. E. L. Dresser of Ithaca, officiated. The husband and other relatives have the sympathy of the many friends in their sad bereavement.

Donald, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Algard has been very ill. Dr. Hatch of King Ferry attended him, and the daughter Veda has been suffering from the grip.

Fred Swartwood and wife, Homer Algard and wife, Muris Algard and Mr. O'Neal attended the funeral of Mrs. Almira Bush last week Tuesday.

Miss Florence Stephenson of East Venice spent two weeks with her parents, Chas. Stephenson and wife and a few days with Florence Knox.

The remains of Samuel S. Close of Marathon were brought here last Friday. He was a resident of this place a good many years, and while out here last summer he made the remark that he got awful homesick sometimes to come to his old home here. He lived with his granddaughter, Lena Corwin, at Marathon. She came with the remains, and Mrs. George Swan and little daughter Norma came with them from Auburn. Mr. Swan came on Saturday. The funeral was held at the church on Sunday last at 11 o'clock, the Rev. E. L. Dresser officiated. Interment at King Ferry.

The West Genoa and Five Corners W. C. T. U. will give a White Ribbon dinner at the home of Mrs. Ida Smith on Wednesday, Jan. 29.

Jan. 13—News is quite scarce about here; the weather cold and stormy; coal scarce.

Mrs. D. G. Ellison slipped on the ice last week Tuesday and is now at this writing in a very critical condition. Mr. Ellison is also ill, but able to be about.

Mrs. Margaret Algard is a victim of the grip.

Miss Maria Algard and Herman Ferris went to East Genoa last Sunday to see Mrs. Bush, sister of Miss Algard, who is very sick.

Miss Florence Knox has been spending some time with Mrs. Wm. Haskin near Little Hollow.

A door on the little station at Sills Crossing would be appreciated by the people who are in waiting for the trains, especially if the wind is blowing a gale.

Mrs. Rachael Sanford and Ella Algard are expected home from Auburn this week.

North Lansing.

Jan. 22—Mrs. Bert Ross is suffering from an abscess in the head.

Andrew Brink is sick.

Miss Emily Boyer is failing.

Mary Lane is helping Mrs. Bert Ross.

David Bothwell is failing.

The funeral of Daniel Durphy was largely attended at the home last Friday, burial in our cemetery.

Rev. F. Allington officiated at four funerals last week.

A shower of post cards was sent to Mrs. Fred Coon last Saturday, her birthday; Mrs. Coon is in the hospital at Moravia.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollenbeck of Ithaca, were calling on friends here a few days ago.

Quinten Boles has bought a new horse; they recently purchased a new cow.

There were two burials in our cemetery in one afternoon last week. Edward Fallor from South Lansing and Mrs. Bush from East Genoa.

Mrs. Benton Brown had quite a surprise a few days ago when her grandson, Benton Buck came in with a long box, the contents which proved to be a large clock of the "grandpa" kind. It soon found its place in one corner of their sitting-room. It must have been a belated Christmas gift or an anniversary gift, for Mr. and Mrs. Brown have just passed their Golden Wedding Mile-stone. It is a pretty gift; came when it may.

Installation of Officers.

The installation of officers of Genoa Star Lodge, No. 488, I. O. O. F., took place in their lodge rooms Wednesday evening, Jan. 15. The installing officers performed their part according to the ritual and laws of the order, and the officers-elect took upon themselves the obligations, which, when lived up to, make the order interesting, prosperous, and with the co-operation of the members, a great success. The following officers elected and appointed, were installed:

N G—Albert Mead.

V G—Bert Gray

Sec.—C. J. Foster

Treas.—Cornelius Leonard

Warden—Earl F. Keefe

Conductor—S. G. Smith

R S N G.—D. W. Smith

L S N G.—M. K. Willoughby

R S V G.—Chas. G. Miller

L S V G.—B. C. French

R S S.—J. H. Cruthers

L S S.—F. B. Samson

I G.—Wm. Steele

O G.—L. J. Younglove

Chaplain—Rev. T. J. Searls

Past Grand D. W. Smith, appointed Right Supporter for the Noble Grand could not be present on account of sickness.

So much depends upon the ability, tact and character of the Noble Grand that the lodge feels very much gratified with the one selected for that office. Mr. Mead is well known in this community as a man with good ideas and the ability to express them. A good leader, progressive and broad-minded. The lodge is looking forward and not backward, and expects to aid and support every good undertaking.

After the installation supper was served and was greatly enjoyed. Speeches were called for from the installing officers, the newly elected Noble Grand and members of the lodge. Remarks by Chaplain Searls were received with much interest, as was also an amusing poem by Secretary Foster. The Noble Grand delivered his "message" and it now remains for the members to carry out his progressive ideas.

A Christmas Sermon

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.,
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute,
Chicago

TEXT—When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.—Galatians 4: 4, 5.

Christianity was not precipitated upon the world, but came in as the result of a long and patient preparation. The seed which blossomed in Bethlehem, was planted in the garden of Eden. In other words, it was not until "the fulness of time" that "God sent forth His Son . . . to redeem them that were under the law."

Why this delay? Why did not the birth of the second Adam follow immediately upon the fall of the first? Why was a diseased race allowed to suffer in the absence of the only physician who could give relief?

Some of the most interesting and thoughtful answers to this question are in a great sermon on this text by the eloquent Robert Hall, an English Baptist clergyman of an earlier generation, from whom I quote in part.

In the first place, it may have been God's purpose to impress the race with the great lessons of its apostasy, and the fearful consequences of rebellion. Thus to restrain our haughty spirits from acting in the future life as we have acted here.

In the second place, if it was necessary in any sense that salvation should be prepared for man, it may have been equally so that man should have been prepared for salvation. Man needed to have a true knowledge of his sinfulness and the misery it produces, as well as his moral inability to overcome it in his own wisdom and strength. It needed time for man to find this out, for he must exhaust everything that nature could do before he would be prepared to receive the grace of God in the present work of his son.

Another reason for the delay is found in the necessity for the accumulation of prophetic evidence concerning the Savior, that when he came he might be identified beyond a doubt. When Jesus came it was at the moment when all the prophecies concerning his advent had reached a focus.

The Most Favorable Time in History. Finally, in this connection it may be added that of all the periods in the world's history that which was selected for the advent of the son of God was the most favorable in at least three particulars:

(1) It was a time of great intellectual refinement, when the human mind had been cultivated to the last degree, and was therefore able to detect and prevent imposture as at no previous time. Tom Paine or Robert Ingersoll did not live then, but such rash lights as they could not have been seen among the luminaries of the Augustan age. In other words, if Christianity stood the test of the first century, it has nothing to fear from the present one.

(2) It was the time of a centralized human government, and Rome was in the heyday of its power. This made the whole of the civilized world easily accessible, furnishing an opportunity for the propagation of the gospel message to mankind everywhere.

(3) It was the age of the perfection of the Greek language, which for many years had been under process of cultivation. This was a tongue pre-eminently adapted to illustrate spiritual truth, and to assist later ages in discovering the meaning of its words. Whatever was written in Greek was accessible to all, and at any earlier period the want of such a vehicle of thought would have made the general teaching of the bible almost prohibited.

The Lessons for Us.

And, finally, whatever may be said as to the delay of the father in sending the son into the world, the two points to be considered now are these:

In the first place, the delay caused no injustice to the preceding ages, for the mediation of the son of God looked backward as well as forward, and his sacrifice on Calvary atoned for the faithful who had died before that event as well as for those who follow after.

And in the second place, "Now" that "once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself," it behooves us to inquire whether he has yet been received into our hearts. This should be our chief concern on this anniversary occasion. This is the "fulness of the time" for us, and God forbid that the opportunity should come and go and leave us where we were before. The way to make the Christmas in the earth a Christmas in the soul is to receive Jesus Christ by faith as a personal Savior. He is God's unsearchable gift to us. Will you now say to him, I accept this gift, I take thy son? It is so simple, and yet so vital. Do it now.

WITH WHISTLER AT WORK

Great Artist Had His Own Method of Producing Masterpieces Which the World Prizes.

The studio was surprisingly different from the room he previously used in Lindsay row, and entirely unlike the studios usually occupied by other artists. I remember a long, not very lofty room, very light, with windows along one side; his canvas beside his model at one end, and at the other, near the table which he used as a palette, an old Georgian looking glass, so arranged that he could see his canvas and model reflected in it. Those who use such a mirror (as he did constantly) will know that it is most merciless of critics. I marveled then at his extraordinary activity, as he darted backward and forward to look at both painting and model from his point of view at the extreme end of the long studio. He always used brushes of large size, with very long handles, three feet in length, and held them from the end with his arms stretched to their full extent. Each touch was laid on with great firmness, and his physical strength enabled him to do without the assistance of a mahlstick, while the distance at which he stood from the canvas allowed him to have the whole of a large picture in sight and so judge the correct drawing of each touch.—Way's "Memories of Whistler."

NEW LIGHT ON OLD PROVERB

Showing That the Early Bird Is Not Always the One That Gets the Most Worms.

Once there were two birds. One was an early bird, and the other was a lazy sort of bird which never got out much before eight o'clock in the morning.

The early bird caught a worm. The early proverb-maker happened to be there at the time, and made a note of it. Now, this worm that had been caught by this early bird had a wife and ten children. When the worm left home that morning his ten children were just getting up and his wife was preparing breakfast.

No doubt this worm had gone out for his morning walk to work up an appetite for breakfast, but such are the uncertainties of life—he never returned. The family of worms waited until about eight o'clock, and then, highly alarmed, started out to look for Papa Worm.

At this time the bird that was a lazy sort of bird was just getting out to look for a bite of something to eat. He saw the family of worms—and had a fine breakfast.

Moral: It's not always the bird that gets into the proverb that gets the most worms.—Lippincott's.

Sponge as an Animal.

Nothing is less like a living creature than the common bath sponge, yet the fact remains that sponges do form a very important species of the animal kingdom, eating their food and living their lives much as any other animal would do.

The actual existence of a sponge commences with the separation from the parent of a tiny particle. This particle, whirling through space, eventually attaches itself to a piece of rock, and from that time it seeks its own livelihood.

At the very commencement, with some species of the sponge family, the baby sponges feed upon yolk cells, in which are stored food supplies. By-and-by, as the youngster develops, the currents in the water sweep into a kind of bag the minute particles of food required, and the same currents carry off undigested matter.

There are many varieties of sponges found at different levels of the ocean, some clinging to rocks, others to mud.

Snakes Fond of Music.

Science has recently been studying the question as to whether or not snakes have an appreciation of music. This applies particularly to the cobra, which responds to the piping of a gourd instrument played by the East India fakir with a rhythmic movement suggesting a dance. The conclusion seems to be that it answers to the musical notes much in the same way as a dog does—that is to say, through a special or nervous sympathy. When the whistles blow at noon in the Bronx zoo the wolves set up a great howling in concert. Whether or not they enjoy this sort of music is disputed—though probably they do, for some dogs undoubtedly take pleasure in harmonious strains and will run a block to sit in front of a hand organ and "sing," while other dogs unquestionably suffer from certain kinds of music, and express their pain in lugubrious howls.

Asked and Answered.

A languid swell was visiting a charming young society lady, and as they sat on either side of the fire his heart was full of a burning desire to say something not only complimentary, but brilliantly flattering.

So, after revolving the matter in his mind, he said: "Ah, Miss Lillie, why are those fire-tongs so like me?" He meant her to guess, or hint to tell her: "Because they glowed in her service," or were "prostrate at her feet," or something of that kind.

Miss Lillie, looking solemnly demure, said she didn't know, unless it was because they had two thin legs and a brass head. He was groping blindly for the front door before she had recovered from the shock of her own folly.

It is his own fault if the lover of pumpkin pie is not happy now.

A Chicago woman says American girls are too artificial. It is self-evident.

A Chicagoan who wanted a good, long sleep shot himself. No doubt he was satisfied.

A Kansas doctor asks a divorce because his wife constantly scolds him. A mighty thin excuse.

Tuberculosis leads to crime, according to a Binghamton judge. Is there anything that doesn't?

Trouser skirts are predicted as the next thing. They have been coming for, lo, these many moons.

From Paris comes the announcement that skirts will not be narrower this season. They couldn't be.

A Columbia university professor says that vacations are unnecessary. Certainly, if salary stops during them.

A Montana man has been arrested for robbing a butcher. The meat situation seems to be getting desperate.

The price of egg sandwiches has gone up in Washington. Are they getting ready for the inauguration this year?

Mere man will be grateful if woman will learn him how she keeps the noble skirt from bagging at the knees.

A Detroit man wants a divorce because his wife talks too much. But wouldn't this plea, if allowed, clog the courts?

Bachelors are more apt to go insane than married men, says an expert. They don't seem to go crazy to get married.

A man in St. Louis had his heart taken out and sewed up. But many a broken heart has been easier mended than this.

A club has been formed in Chicago for the purpose of excluding cats from grocery stores. And Chicago claims to be a city!

Dr. Charles Dana of New York says love of animals is the latest disease. Now we understand why some women carry some men.

A Los Angeles maniac was arrested for carrying dynamite in a hand bag. Probably he was prepared to say a dead march.

A scientist says he can keep heads of cats alive. Be a fine breed for the man who is troubled by midnight lines on the back yard fence.

Some insane individual is circulating $10,000 bills. Watch out, one is easily induced to accept so small a thing as a counterfeit $10,000 bill.

But even if platinum wears longer than gold in wedding rings it will not necessarily become the universal medium in this era of matrimonial rapid transit.

A divorce was granted to the wife of a man who did not divide the bed covering fairly on cold nights. Divorces may yet come to follow seasonal causes.

Aeroplanes are now to be catapulted from battleships. Plainly, our boasted strenuousness is but a state of timorous dalliance compared with that which is to come.

Next year's fashions for women, it is said, will be military in style. Evidently the militant age of woman is to be upon us, with men marching in the ranks as privates.

Fifteen miles of motion pictures have been exported from this country during the last year. Judging from the ones which remain, most of the 15 miles must have depicted lively scenes.

The man with the longest name has been found in Texas. He is Pappous Podochoountouryontopolos. If you cannot pronounce it at the first glance, it is music. It sings better than books.

A New York man punched a hold-up man so hard that the would-be robber was identified by his nose. It should be a warning to other hold-up men to keep their noses out of what doesn't concern them.

New York is making another crusade against church bells. The general impression has been that the New Yorkers steal into the pews in the stocking feet, Saturday night, as early as 9 p. m.

PROPER DEALING OF JUSTICE

Judge's Stern Rebuke of Would-Be Briber Accompanied With Appropriate Reduction of "Sock."

The justice of the peace was in a marked state of ignorance. He was approached by a man desiring a divorce, and he did not know what to do. Calling a friend to his side, he whispered:

"What's the law on this point?"

"You can't do it," was the reply. "It's out of your jurisdiction."

The husband, observing the consultation, and feeling keenly his desire to escape from the matrimonial woe, explained:

"I'm willin' to pay well; got the money right here in my sock."

At this juncture the Justice assumed his gravest judicial air. Obviously he was deeply pained. Never before in all his life had he been so bowed down by grief.

"You knew before you came here," he said sadly, "that it wasn't for me to separate husband and wife, and yet you not only take up the valuable time of this court by talking, but you actually propose to bribe me with money. Now, how much have you got in that sock?"

"About $6.50, your honor."

"Is that so? Then I fine you $5 for bribery and $1.50 for taking up my time with a case out of my jurisdiction; and may the Lord have mercy on your soul!"—Popular Magazine.

HAD IT PROPERLY NAMED

English Sailor May Have Forgotten Politeness, but He Had Appropriately Designated Dish.

A certain London clergyman who had been traveling in Greece found himself compelled to stay the night at a monastery at Mount Athos. The welcome was warm, but the food execrable, in particular the soup, which the guest could hardly force himself to swallow. Being a classical scholar, his knowledge of ancient Greek helped him to some understanding of the monks, who spoke the widely different modern tongue, and he was astonished to hear that the unpalatable soup was an English dish.

"English!" cried one of the monks, adding that an English sailor had been there not long before and recognized it.

"What did he call it?" asked the clergyman.

The monk had to think for a moment before he could recollect the strange English name of that soup. Ah! he had it. It was "bees'y muck!"

Mechanical Horse.

A real "mechanical horse" is being experimented with abroad. It is a "tractor" that is easily hitched to any horse-drawn vehicle, just as a team of horses may be, and combines all the advantages of the horse with those of the auto truck at an exceedingly low price. The outfit comprises a steel bar and coupler and sprocket wheels designed to be attached to the wheels and tongue of the wagon.

There is only one wheel on the "horse" and that is at the front, the most of the support for the tractor depending upon the front wagon wheels by which it is driven. The engine, mounted under the front hood as in an automobile, is of 40 or 50 horse power and drives the wagon at a speed of from 8 to 30 miles an hour, the latter speed only being used when it is designed for fire engine service. The front wheel is used to steer by and it allows a turn being made at an angle of 85 degrees, thus giving remarkable turning ability in narrow streets. One of the greatest advantages of the "mechanical horse" is the fact that it may be kept constantly at work while unloading or loading is going on.

Cement Gun.

There is a cement gun which is used to apply a mortar covering to structural steel work. A mixture of dry sand and cement is shot from a nozzle by compressed air. A second hose delivers to the same nozzle a supply of water under pressure, and the mixture of sand, cement and water is shot out with a velocity of about 250 feet a second. The nozzle is arranged to produce a thorough wetting of the material. As the mixture strikes the surface to be covered, the coarse sand grains rebound until the fine cement mortar, which adheres immediately, has formed a plastic base in which the coarse particles become imbedded. A covering of any required thickness is then rapidly built up.

One of these guns has been used on the Panama canal in covering the sides of the Culebra cut with cement, to prevent the unstable earth from sliding into the canal.

Nero's Claim to Distinction.

Aubrey Beardsley, the famous artist, once outshone Oscar Wilde, who was the greatest wit and conversationalist that ever lived.

At a dinner at which both were guests Wilde talked interestingly on Nero for nearly two hours. When he concluded, Beardsley, who was only a boy, spoke up:

"Mr. Wilde," he said, "you have forgotten to mention Nero's greatest religious achievement."

"I must confess I do not know to what you are referring," admitted Wilde.

"I am referring to his action of pouring oil on Christians and setting fire to them," said Beardsley. "Wasn't it Nero who lighted the first fire of Christianity that illuminated the world?"

SELLING INVOLVES FOUR BIG FACTORS

Advertising Expert Expounds Business Building and Art of Salesmanship.

By W. T. GOFF.

When we discuss the art of selling—the work of business building—and the principles of service, it is essential in so far as may be possible, that our facts shall be organized and classified.

I say, we must arrive at a "basis" of classification of business facts and truths, ere we can proceed satisfactorily in the discussion of business science. Its higher name, of course, is efficiency. And this applies to the institution itself, as well as to each individual employe. It embraces exactly four factors—no more nor less. These are, first, one who sells or makes proposals of sale to another.

Second, the proposition which is made, including the thing for sale. Third, one to whom proposal is made or goods sold. And fourth, agreement or transaction consummated between the first and third factors, the seller and his customer. In short, the linking-up of the buyer with the seller in full agreement regarding the goods or proposal.

These elements, the seller, the buyer, the goods or proposition, and the agreement or sale, constituting, as they do, the whole of any transaction, commercial or otherwise, and without all of which no trade can exist, it becomes both interesting and instructive to examine into the facts and see how far knowledge of them has been organized and classified, if at all, and how much truth there is in the saying of Mr. Sheldon, i. e., that "business is a science, and the practice of it is a profession."

A successful salesman's equipment, in addition to his goods, comprises a rational knowledge of the factors which enter into a transaction or agreement of any kind. "Rational" knowledge is the result of systematic reading and study—and please believe me—I do not speak this as an attorney for a cause. It is systematic study plus personal experience; and it adds to our own personal experience, that of others born in the same way.

Many men have deluded themselves into the belief that a knowledge of the goods is the only essential thing. They have not realized that a knowledge of the goods really represents but one-quarter of what one needs to know, and that all the factors entering into a sale must be comprehended, as well as the laws and principles that underlie each. And the laws underlying the art of selling are the same, no matter what the article may be. That is true, just as the science of music is the same, quite regardless of the particular instrument which is being played.

Everyone who is normal is a bundle of wonderful possibilities. Each has undeveloped powers. Professor James, formerly of Harvard university, who was one of the greatest psychologists this country or any other ever produced, discovered before he died and announced that the average man habitually uses but one-fourth of his physical powers and one-tenth of his mental powers.

I said that there were four factors in every transaction or agreement. The individual himself is one of them—the first one. The second factor in a sale is the buyer or customer. Your success must depend in a very great measure upon your ability to get a hearing with the customer—and you can do this most successfully after you have learned how to approach and adapt your methods to the customer's character and temperament—"to rub the fur the right way," as the saying goes. Through habit the customer's eyes and ears are closed to the ordinary appeal. That is, the seller, whether in person or by the written method, more often than not, finds the prospective patron behind a wall of mental resistance, which only the ablest and best trained men and women can get over and gain a proper hearing.

The study of human nature, when properly viewed in the light of systematized and classified knowledge of man, is of the greatest possible importance to every one. The student of human nature learns how to quickly and accurately read and measure the customer's mental activities, motives, ideas, and so forth, and how to judge different men and women from evidence furnished by their bearing, facial expression, eye and head movements, tones, emphasis, and so on; thus learning how to adapt himself more often to the various types. Different methods are necessary with different types, as for example: There are pugnacious people, who reason definitely. There are also evasive people, who are very difficult to bring to a decision, and so it goes with many styles and types of men and women. To be able to measure individuals accurately, and to place each one in his or her right class, is to know how to

AD POINTERS

Most advertising pays some, but good advertising always pays.

Manufacturers and retailers are not enemies. They are partners and should work together for their common welfare.

Quit work and you will go on the down-and-out list. Nature has not any time for men who neither advertise nor work.

Your advertisements are salesmen just as much as a man you have in your store. One sells through the eyes of your customer, the other through the ears. Be as careful in the preparation of your advertisements as you are in the hiring of your clerks.

Real salesmanship supposes co-operation with your customer, not conquest. We both realize this. Co-operate more with your customers—look at things from their viewpoint—and you will decide that it is a paying plan.

work along lines of least resistance with the largest possible number.

Next, we come to the factor in the sale known as the goods, or the thing being sold. This factor involves three lines of study, first, how to get at all the facts of it through analysis; second, how to build up, or construct facts in the most logical order; and third, how to express in the most effective language, all the facts relating to its selling points. Herein especially does the successful advertising salesman excel. All this is necessary that the customer may be led to see and know that the representations made are true. In this way the seller gains new ideas about the goods—gets new views and features—in the same way that one discovers objects under a magnifying glass which otherwise remain hidden. There are many points that can be made about any article of commerce, and to know only a part of these points is to be only partially posted on what to say when interviewing the customer, and you see, then, that the customer's conception of the goods or proposition, the advantages to be derived by him, and so on, comes very largely through the seller's presentation to him. If the seller has a hazy, fuzzy, blurred and indistinct picture in his own mind, the customer will get the same kind of a picture, and very often will not buy. Much valuable business is lost by people who do not know how to analyze things for selling points, how to construct points, nor how to properly express the facts he has in mind.

Indeed, the true business builder is fast becoming "professional," and is coming to understand that as the professional class has in the past, and must in the future, lead in the activities of mankind he must see to it that leadership in society, while continuing to be "professional," shall be taken by the professional business man.

BAN ON FAKE ADVERTISING

Columbia, Mo., Merchants Form Organization to Do Away With Graft Schemes.

The merchants of Columbia, Mo., have organized to put a ban on objectionable advertising and to end some of the so-called graft schemes.

Twenty-one business houses have signed a petition not to purchase tickets or give donations unless the written indorsement of the committee of the organization is given. No programs or any printed matter, except that ranked as second-class mail matter by the postal regulations, will be used by the merchant members of the organization.

Even the newspaper of the town will have to have the indorsement of this committee before it can be considered as an advertising medium. The committee members will not be known to the public.

Too Much Talking to Talk.

In my opinion the most important thing in working up an export trade through advertising, whether it is trade paper, daily paper or catalogue advertising, is to know how to tell your story—to bring out the points of individuality, novelty, difference or improvement that distinguish your goods.

And it is precisely in this direction that many a manufacturer and many an advertising agency fails. I should be afraid to tell of the number of catalogues that I have seen, to say nothing of advertisements and of letters designed to provoke orders, that did not include the very points which the salesman representing these goods relies on most when he is talking face to face with a prospective customer. It seems to me that the strongest selling points ought to be incorporated in every bit of advertising copy as well as in other literature and in correspondence.—B. Olney Hough, editor American Exporter, to Detroit Aircraft Club.

Reverse the code of morals of a large percentage of those who are engaged in commercial pursuits today, and make it read: "Get honest, get honor, get on," instead of "Get on, get honor, get honest."—George H. Williams.

IN GOLDEN AGE OF YOUTH

"College Life" a Thing Always to Be Regarded With the Tenderest of Memories.

The phrase "college life" is an Americanism and it has no equivalent in any other language but English. It describes, to those whose use with understanding and sympathy, an experience out of which grows a deep sentiment made up of pleasure, friendship, affection, loyalty and pride. It seems to them "a tender influence, a peculiar grace," that reaches out across miles and years, drawing them back to their Alma Mater, and the comradeship of their classmates. To most graduates their college life seems their golden age; through the mist of years the campus becomes an island of Utopia whose very tediums grow bright in the retrospect, the sting of whose sins and failures was always lessened by the power of the ideals and hopes that filled its air. No campus ever was a Utopia, and the most golden age of memory has doubtless been much alloyed with baser metal, but if there is not something very bright and beautiful in American college life it is hard to account for the feeling in thousands of gray-haired men that long ago in their youth, besides the education they got, they gained around the knees of Alma Mater lasting joy, strength and inspiration that was not entirely contained in the books they read and cannot be exactly measured by the knowledge they acquired.—Paul Van Dyke in Scribner's Magazine.

AND MR. VANDERBILT PAID

"Get the Very Best," Was His Instruction—Said to Be Only a Matter of Course.

This is how the late Cornelius Vanderbilt found himself giving to an institution the same costly carpet he had just selected for his palatial New York home: Saint Johnland is a church community on Long Island, where differences of faith play little part in the admission of some 200 children and old people. Mr. Vanderbilt, its vice-president, offered one day, through Dr. Henry Mottet, to give the chapel a much-needed carpet, and told Dr. Mottet where to buy it. The article continues: "Get the very best," said Mr. Vanderbilt, who had just finished his new house at 1 West Fifty-seventh street. Mr. Mottet accordingly looked over carpets and selected a costly one of red velvet. He told the clerk it was for an institution, gave its rather generous dimensions-to-be, and added that the bill should go to Mr. Vanderbilt. The clerk had some difficulty to recover his composure. "I don't suppose you know," he volunteered, "that this is the identical carpet selected by Mr. Vanderbilt for his new house?" The Vanderbilt carpet is still in the little chapel.—The Churchman.

Need Not Be Drudgery.

Young American women would do well to heed the words of a recent lecturer on household economics, who said that housework need not necessarily be drudgery. She says it is not drudgery, once its technique is mastered, any more than dancing or piano playing or acting or singing are disagreeable tasks, once the girl has mastered the basic principles of each of those arts. Housekeeping is relatively simple when one knows how. The difficulty is that few take the trouble to learn how. If the same intelligence and persistence are used as are employed in mastering any of the other accomplishments, after the learning period is over, the practice is comparatively easy. There is a period of drudgery in acquiring any art, no matter what it is, and no one can expect to master housekeeping or music either who is not willing to submit to the necessary period of training. But ease comes with knowing how and disposing of the duties in a clear-headed, systematic, scientific manner.—Exchange.

Victim for Each Building.

The builder, illustrated in the ballad of "The Bridge of Arts," that a human victim is required to insure the stability of a bridge or building survives in Greece today, J. A. Lawson says. There is no murder now. It suffices to obtain, preferably from an enemy or an old person, a hair, nail paring, shred of clothing, old shoe or a thread or stick marked with the person's height or footprint measure, and bury these, beneath the foundation stone. The victim dies within a year, but the building is safe.

Even a shadow will do. Mr. Lawson was himself dragged back by a friend in Santorini so that his shadow might not fall across such a fatal spot; and the mayor of Agrinian told him that his four predecessors had all died from lettering their shadows fall on foundation stones laid by them.

Fire Without Flame.

An English engineer named Bode has invented a way to have fire without flame. His apparatus consists of a porous plate or mass of fire-resisting fragments, within which he mixes inflammable gas and air in the right proportions.

When the gas is first turned on and lighted it burns with a flame at the surface of the plate. When the air is turned on the flame disappears, but the heat increases. A temperature of 2,300 degrees is obtained. Just what use of this invention can be made is yet a question.

TITANIC WRECK EVERY WEEK

Many People Go to Their Death Directly and Indirectly Through Liquor Traffic.

Every week in the year as many people go to their death directly and indirectly through the liquor traffic as went down with the Titanic. How few people get shocked at this weekly calamity! Pastors of big churches never hold memorial services for these victims. Newspapers do not get out special editions with great, startling headlines and devote page after page to this calamity. Great theaters do not give special benefits to raise money to aid the helpless and dependent victims left by the loss of the bread-winner of the family. Congress does not appoint a special investigating commission to find the cause and fix the responsibility for the great calamity.

The Titanic disaster was an accident, but the liquor traffic is no accident in our country. We would that it were, and that the large death loss caused by it happened but once in a century. But the sad fact is that this awful death loss is repeated every week, and the more astounding fact is that the continuous calamity caused our country by the liquor traffic is prearranged and planned and deliberated upon.—The Reform Bulletin.

LAYING CONTEST'S BEST HEN

Most Industrious Fowl of 655 In Competition Lays 260 Eggs in Course of Eleven Months.

The hen which has made the highest record in the national egg-laying contest laid 146 eggs in 151 consecutive days, and produced 260 eggs in 11 months. "She is the most industrious hen among the 655 in the contest," writes Secretary T. E. Quisenberry. "She goes immediately from the roost about daylight each day into her trap nest. She lays the egg and is released from the nest about eight o'clock in the morning. She then spends the remainder of the day in eating a large amount of food and drinking lots of water, out of which to manufacture eggs for future days. We can usually tell about when she is going to miss a day. As this time approaches she lays a little later each day, that is, if she is to miss soon, we will not find her in the nest so early as usual. She will go on at ten o'clock, the next day at one o'clock and the day before she misses we do not find her on the nest until about four o'clock in the afternoon. When we find her on as late as this she then misses the following day, but the next day has laid by eight o'clock and keeps it up at that hour until time to miss again. She has only missed laying five days in the past five months, and this has been true of her in each case when she missed a day."

White Plymouth Rock Lady Showyou, Best Layer in National Egg-Laying Contest—Producing 260 Eggs in 11 Months. Her Nearest Competitor is a Barred Plymouth Rock with a Record of 239 Eggs.

HANDY NEST FOR HEN HOUSE

Arranged So That One May Gather Eggs Without Entering Building—Not Hard to Make.

It is easy to make a nest box which will enable you to gather the eggs without going inside the hen house, writes Horace H. Dahl in the Farm and Fireside. It is fastened to the hen house seven inches from the floor by pieces of iron shaped as shown in Fig. 2. These have holes in them and can be screwed to the nests and house. Fig. 1 is the end made of one-half-inch wood. There are two of these. Nail boards on the back of them as long as the side of the hen house. Make a bottom of boards or tin, and nail it to the ends. The cover is made of weatherboarding and is two inches longer and one inch wider than the nests. This is hinged to the hen house. The partitions which separate the nests are nine by eleven inches and ten inches apart. Holes are cut in the side of the hen house, through which the hens may pass into the nest. In Fig. 2, H is the hen house; A shows the holes; E is the end shown in Fig. 1, and L is the cover of the nests. These nests are dark, easy to clean and are handy when sitting time comes.

Telling Fresh Egg.

The fresh egg beats to a froth easier than a stale one. It takes a longer time to boil a fresh egg than it does a stale one. The fresh egg, when boiled, will stick to the shell, while one a few days old will peel off smoothly.

Different Diets.

It never occurs to the average farmer that the effect of a long continued diet of grain is as injurious to fowls as to cattle, nor that the concentrated corn food gives the best results when diluted or mixed with some bulky succulent material.

FISH THAT FELL UPWARD

Brilliant Colors Have Been Noted at a Depth of Three Thousand Feet.

According to Sir John Murray, one of the greatest authorities on oceanography, the bottom of the sea is a desert of pitch black darkness, penetrating cold and eternal silence, says the London Evening Standard. Worms, sea puddings and coral polyps sluggishly crawl or sway in the almost currentless depths, and only two species of fish, both of them small, with much head and little body, have been found deeper than a mile and a quarter down.

The range of fishes in the sea is as though it were divided into layers, one above the other, and no fish can live above or below his layer. Thus many of the deeper fish—three-quarters of a mile below the surface—have been found floating at the top; they had swallowed a fish as large or larger than themselves and its buoyancy had lifted them out of the strata to which they were accustomed.

The physiology of a bottom fish is almost impossible to know, because they are built to resist a tremendous pressure of water, and when this pressure is released—as when they are brought to the surface in a net—sometimes the fish has burst; the organs are crushed beyond reconstruction. Similarly if a fish of a higher strata attacks a bottom fish in the neutral zone where both can live, and—as sometimes happens—his teeth become entangled so that he cannot let go and he is dragged into deeper water, he strangles instantly, for his breathing arrangements are of no use to him under the pressure of water in the lower strata of the sea. As a rule, however, the fish of the various depths rarely feed on those above or below them.

There have been brought to light an astonishing number of forms of fish, and especially of prawns of a brilliant red color, living in the ocean at a depth of 3,000 feet. But, astonishing as it may seem, these brilliantly colored fish and prawns, instead of being conspicuous in the water at that depth, are almost invisible when almost any other color could be easily seen.

MAKE SOMETHING OF LIFE

Not Without Reason Should Any Pass Through the Joys and Troubles of the World.

Thousands of men breathe, move and live; pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more. Why? They did not a particle of good in the world; and none were blest by them, none could point to them as the instrument of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke, could be recalled, and so they perished—their light went out in darkness and they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal! Live for something. Do good and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storms of time can never destroy. Write your name by kindness, love and mercy on the hearts of the thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. No, your name, your deeds will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as bright on the earth as the stars of heaven.—Thomas Chalmers.

Rubber Plant Oil for Umbrellas.

A vegetable oil used in making paper umbrellas in Japan is pressed out of the seeds of the rubber plant. This oil is made in the various islands famed for oil and seeds from these plants. Sandy ground is favored for the cultivation of the plant, and the oil is extracted from the seeds by presses. The yield of seeds is estimated at 20 bushels per acre. The annual production throughout Japan amounts to 350,000 bushels, from which over a gallon of oil per bushel is extracted. The oil before it is used is boiled and then cooled until it can be applied by hand to umbrellas with a piece of cloth or waste. No machinery or tools are used in applying the oil. When the oiling is complete the umbrellas are exposed in the sun for about five hours. This oil is also used in making the Japanese lanterns, artificial leather, printing ink, lacquer, varnishes, oil paper, and paints.

Modern Idealism.

Our intuitions of a goodness, a beauty, a truth, transcending anything that earth can show, our persistent devotion to ideals that actual life always disappoints, our postulates of a perfection that rebukes and shames our practice—what can these things mean save that . . . a refraction of the white light of eternity by life's dome of many-colored glass, a sequence of shadow pictures cast on the further wall of the dim cavern where we sit, our eyes . . . averted from the true light of the world?—Paul Shorey (on Plato.)

Telling Him.

A well-known Boston physician has the reputation of being exceedingly gruff, especially with those whom he thinks are trying to "beat" him. The doctor was present at a social affair the other evening when a "dead beat" whom the doctor knew of old approached. "Doctor," said the man, "what is the best thing for a cold?" "Competent medical advice," replied the physician shortly, as he turned on his heel.

A New Year's Sermon

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.,
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute,
Chicago.

TEXT—And now Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in Thee.—Psalm 37:7.

Another twelve month has rolled around and we are 'still here. How remarkable this is! Some people think death is the greatest wonder of human history, but life is a stranger miracle. The steam engine in a vessel tied up at its dock is not so extraordinary as one in a vessel plowing the broad seas; and it is less singular that the machinery of our existence should cease to operate, than that it should operate at all. How surprising that one should live an hour, to say nothing of three score years and ten!

"Strange that a harp of thousand strings Should keep in tune so long."

When we thus reflect, it is not to be wondered if, like David, we sometimes put the question as to what we are waiting for?

Our Experiences Last Year.

Putting the question to ourselves, is it enough for boys and girls to say that they are waiting to be men and women? Or, for youths to say that they are waiting to get a start in life and settle down? Or, for fathers and mothers to say that they are waiting to see their children educated and established? Or, for others that there are enterprises to whose success their presence is still necessary? Are these contracted carnal things really what we are waiting for?

Let us ask God the question, as David did, and be replies:

1. It may be that you are waiting to be saved, for God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance and live. How he has been pleading with some of you during the past year! Was there no sermon, no hymn of invitation or warning, no loss of a friend by death, no providential escape from bodily peril or serious illness, to remind you of your mortality, and plead with you to accept Christ?

2. It may be that you are waiting to bear fruit. By the grace of God you are already saved let us suppose, but for what purpose are you saved? Why did he not call you to himself at the moment of your conversion? As a saint, for what are you waiting? "Ye have not chosen me," said Christ, "but I have chosen you, and ordained you that ye shall go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain." (John 15:16.) Is it for this reason you are waiting here? Is the dresser of the vineyard pleading that you be let alone this year also, that if you bear fruit it shall be well, and if not, then after that shalt thou be cut down?

The Second Coming of Christ.

3. It may be that you are waiting for his coming. The coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, personally and visibly, for his saints, has ever been the hope of the true church, and blessed is the man whose heart is animated by it. Blessed is he, who like the mother of Siseria, only with a holier expectation, is looking out of the window and crying through the lattice:

"Why is his chariot so long in coming? Why tarry the wheels of his chariot?"

Oh, blessed be God, that from his own word the cheerful announcement is made "Yet a little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry."

You have seen the luscious fruit hanging from the bough long after the digging and the pruning have been ended, waiting for the genial sun to put the final bloom upon its beauty, and beget the sweetness and mellowness of completed growth. Something like this is often true in a human life, and may be true in yours. "We all do fade as the leaf," but the fading of some is often illumined by the grandeur of an autumnal sunset. God grant this to be true of you, young and old, rich and poor, first and last. May you have a "Happy New Year" in the highest and truest sense. "Happy is the people whose God is the Lord." Accept him, serve him, wait for him. It is only as we stand in such relationship to him that, after employing the psalmist's question, "And now Lord, what wait I for?" we can equally apply the comfort of that which follows it, and add, "My hope is in thee."

"Upheld by hope"—a glorious hope, As days and years roll by; The coming of our Lord and King Is surely drawing nigh.

"Upheld by hope" all toil is sweet With this glad thought in view, The Master may appear tonight To call his servants true.

"Upheld by hope" in darkest days, Faith can the light discern; The despairing glory in the East Proclaims deliverance nigh!

"Upheld by hope," how glad the heart! My soul is on the wing! Even now his hand is on the door, He comes—my glorious King! —E. MAY CRISWELL.

The KITCHEN CABINET

IT IS well to know something about everything and everything about something.

It is not what you make, but what you save that brings wealth.

FEEDING THE FAMILY.

Food is not necessarily nutritious in proportion to its cost.

Proteid foods are those more expensive and complex, such as meat, cheese, eggs and milk. Carbohydrates are the starch foods, such as potatoes, rice and macaroni.

Brain workers need easily digestible food; muscle workers find coarse foods better suited to their needs.

It is not necessary that any one meal of the day be balanced, but each day's dietary should contain proteids, fats and carbohydrates in the correct proportion, which is one part proteid to five or five and one-half parts carbohydrates.

We should not forget that butter, eggs and milk, in combination with other foods, count as foods.

Diet should be varied as well as mixed, substituting rice and macaroni for potatoes.

Plant proteid, such as peas and beans, take the place of meat. When the meat allowance is small these vegetables should be used rather than cabbage, beets or turnips.

By planning meals several days ahead it will be easier to arrange a rightly balanced and varied diet.

The water in which most of our vegetables, all of the starches and cereals, as well as meats are boiled or cooked, should be saved, as they are valuable foods in themselves.

Do not serve a heavy dessert when a hearty dinner has preceded it. Likewise, never precede a hearty dinner with a cream soup. Over-eating is not only a willful waste of food, but is the cause of many ills that our flesh is heir to. It has been repeatedly proven that one-third of our food cut out would give us better health and greater efficiency as to mental and physical labor.

An excess of meat or other animal food is especially bad, as that which is not assimilated clogs the system and causes auto-intoxication, or, in plainer words, self-poisoning.

It is not possible to fix a dietary standard, as there are so many things that enter in to qualify it. Age, climate, occupation and health are some.

Nellie Maxwell.

The KITCHEN CABINET

IF THERE is any worse disease than idleness, it has not yet been discovered.

Leisure is a pleasant garment, but it is not fit for constant wear.

MORE ABOUT CHRISTMAS CONFECTIONS.

Glace fruits, which are so delicious, are unfortunately only short-lived and must be eaten within a few hours.

To Candy Grapes.—Boil a pound of sugar with a half cup of water until it hairs, then add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and when it cracks when tried in water, remove from the heat and dip the grapes quickly. One dipping is sufficient. The strup may be reheated until it begins to turn yellow. A variation which is very pretty is to roll the dipped grapes quickly in granulated sugar. Do very lightly, as too heavy a coating, is not pretty.

Nougat.—Dissolve five ounces of the best white gum arabic in ten ounces of water, strain it carefully and put it with a pound of powdered sugar in a double boiler. Stir constantly until stiff and white. Add the well beaten white of an egg; mix well, remove from the fire, flavor with vanilla and add a pound of chopped almonds, an ounce of pistachio nuts blanched and chopped. Mix well and press into a box.

When molded, cut in squares, wrap in waxed paper and keep in an airtight box.

Orange Creams.—Grate the rind from an orange and mix it with a speck of tartaric acid; put into it two tablespoonfuls of confectioners sugar and enough orange juice to make it a paste, which may be rolled into balls the size of a hazel nut, these are to be dipped in melted fondant for bonbons. If there is not enough tartaric acid to give the candy a slight acid taste, dip the end of the knife into the acid and work in a bit more. Melt the fondant over hot water, stirring all the while, as if melted without stirring, it will become clear. Dip the balls quickly in the melted fondant, remove with two forks and place to dry on waxed paper. The work must be done quickly, as the ball is likely to melt if allowed to stay a few seconds in the hot fondant.

Nellie Maxwell.
