We know of two gentlemen who started last Thursday to go to Ithaca; went to Bill's crossing, sat there in the little station waiting for the train to come from the north, and lo, and behold, they soon heard the whistle blow at North Lansing on the way back to Auburn. So one of them walked to North Lansing, the other came back and took the Lehigh at Atwaters. Guess they will get up earlier another time. Had it been the 4th we would have thought nothing of it.

Dannie Moore and wife and Will Ferris and wife motored to Auburn last Friday and attended Barnum and Bailey's circus.

enjoyed the trip and were glad they had thick wraps with them as they needed them on their return trip. They also visited the cemetery where their relatives were buried.

Ellwood Stoughton and Amos Palmer of Belltown took their threshing engine to Ithaca one day last week for repairs, and of course took some old clothes in a suitcase to don while working around the machine. When they got about ready to start for home about 4 o'clock the next morning, they placed the suitcase on the engine and went across the street for breakfast. When they returned to the engine the suitcase and clothes were gone and six dollars of Mr. Palmer's money. When the thunder storm commenced all had left for their homes and Mrs. Hudson was alone in the house, when a terrible crash came. Thinking her house had been struck she ran out in the pouring rain to find the air was full of bits of bark. The top of the very tall evergreen tree was completely torn out and splintered. The lightning had followed a branch of a willow tree that reached into the evergreen splintering the bark off the willow and filling the air and even landing on the porch. From there the lightning ran across the road striking the top of a fence post and splitting it the whole length. Farm and Garden

DO YOU LIKE "SWEETS?"

They're Fine With Gravy—Here's How You May Grow a Crop.

Plant a few sweet potatoes in your garden this spring. They aren't hard to grow, and what is richer to eat than brown sweet potatoes with gravy? Besides, this vine is very ornamental, and its thick, dark foliage helps to make your vegetable garden more attractive.

Sweet potatoes are grown by means of sets or sprouts which grow from the root buds. It is best to get them from seed growers or gardeners. They require warm, moderately rich, sandy land. If the land is too fertile there will be a large growth of top at the expense of the root. The plants may be set out from the middle of May until the 1st of July or after the late frosts are over.

The potatoes may be grown on the level, but a ridge usually is preferred in the garden ridging may be done with a hoe, making the ridge about eighteen inches broad and six inches high. The rows should be from three and a half to four feet apart. Set the plants along the center of the ridge—they should be about two feet apart—and if the soil is moist it is only necessary to dip the roots in water before setting. But if it is unusually dry at this time it will be advantageous to sprinkle the plants occasionally.

When the plants are small they should be cultivated often enough to kill the weeds and keep a mellow surface. Later on the vines themselves will cover the ground; then cultivation is impracticable as well as undesirable. After the vines are too large to cultivate they should be lifted occasionally or they are likely to take root at the joints and keep on forming more vines with no roots in the hill large enough for use. The vines should be lifted once a week. Every vine should be loose from hill to tip. This lifting may be done very rapidly with a pitchfork, but some care must be taken.—Kansas Industrialist.

FOLKS OUT, STOCK IN.

Here's a Simple Gate That Will Help to Solve the Problem.

It is often inconvenient to pause and unlatch and then latch a gate between the barnyard or some other place where stock is kept and the garden or a field from which it is desired to keep animals away.

To obviate such difficulties the plan illustrated will be found very convenient. As will be seen, the fence is made to end at two stout posts, between which is a rather larger opening than is usually allowed for a footpath gate.

From one of these posts the flaring lines of fence are built to posts so as to form a V shaped opening, each ending at a post. On the other large line post is hung the gate, which swings each way and either comes against the V shaped sides when pushed or may continue so as to strike the smaller posts. In either case animals cannot get past, and yet the gate is always open for human beings.—American Agriculturist.

[From the American Agriculturist.]

STOCK STOPPING GATE.

OLD AND TRUE.

The old English farmers put their advice about keeping barnyard manure into two lines: Keep it moist and tread it tight. And it will well your care requita. That is pretty much the whole story.—Rural New Yorker.

FARMING WITH BRAINS.

Never venture upon an old bridge with team or machinery without seeing that it is firm and safe for heavy weights.

If the fertility of the soil is to be maintained it must be supplied with vegetable matter. Turn under cover crops and increase the humus supply.

According to the Iowa Press bulletin No. 12, sodium arsenite is the only chemical that will entirely destroy the Canada thistle. It is applied at the rate of one and a half pounds to fifty-two gallons of water.

Do not expect the hired man to feel satisfied if you leave him alone with all the chores while you are away visiting unless you are willing to do the same for him occasionally. Hired men are human beings and will, as a rule, appreciate fair treatment.

A soil that dries out quickly, is loose and sandy and leaches is also in poor physical condition from too little water and organic matter. Where irrigation is practicable this is advisable, plenty of manure, green manure, liming if there is sourness and thorough and persistent cultivation.

TELEPHONE GIRL MARRIED WHILE AT HER SWITCHBOARD

Ceremony Frequently Interrupted by "Hello" and "Number, Please."

Miss Alta F. Gum, operator in charge of the Telephone Exchange at Eaton Colo., was married recently to E. B. Mick while wearing a receiver clamped to her head, holding switchboard plugs in her hand and putting up connections for subscribers.

Several times the ceremony was interrupted while Miss Gum answered calls. The officiating minister became somewhat embarrassed, but persisted in making Miss Gum Mrs. Mick.

"Henry B. Mick," began the minister, "do you take this woman to be your lawful, wedded wife, to—"

"Hello! Hello! Yes, just a minute," broke in Miss Gum, in whose ear another voice than the minister's also was demanding certain information.

"Sorry to interrupt you," she said, turning to the minister. "Proceed." And so it went on until the ceremony was finished.

Miss Gum had been in charge of the Eaton exchange for several years, and on the day set for the wedding she informed Mick that she could not desert her post at the switchboard. After the wedding Mick, who is a stockman, waited anxiously while the telephone company looked for a successor to Mrs. Mick.

GIRLS' HOTEL FOR CHICAGO.

Vice Commission Suggests Plan to Merchants of the City.

A plan to erect a hotel for working girls is being considered in Chicago. At a recent meeting of the state senate, the vice commission of the city and about forty of the leading merchants it was suggested that $1,000,000 be raised for the project. Such an institution, its advocates said, would effectively safeguard the morals of young women who live away from home.

Senator Beall after the meeting said: "I told the merchants that if they divert the money given to colleges and churches into a fund for the erection of a great hotel their philanthropy would do more good. Practically all the merchants agreed that the project was feasible, and practically all agreed to consider the matter."

"The hotel we contemplate erecting is to house all working girls who do not live at home. They will be given board and room, places for dances and other amusement for $2 or $3 a week. It will be run on a non-profit basis."

The commissioners proposed that the Chicago stores take the lead by establishing a minimum wage for their women employees without waiting for legal compulsion. Eight dollars a week set by the majority of those merchants who testified as the lowest amount on which a self supporting girl can live in Chicago, was considered the natural minimum.

GIRL WALKS AROUND WORLD

Now on Last Lap of Her Four Year Journey.

Miss Dora Rodriguez, a nineteen year-old girl, recently passed through Toledo, Detroit and other cities of the middle west on the last lap of a four year walking trip around the world.

The girl, whose home is in the Netherlands, started out primarily to make a study of the politics of the countries which she has visited. She has walked through Europe, Egypt, Mexico, the Central American countries and parts of the United States and Canada.

Her itinerary beyond Detroit included Toronto, Montreal and Quebec, from which city she will sail for home Aug. 16. She has already covered more than 20,000 miles on foot. Her money comes largely from the sale of postcard pictures of herself and some scenes she has taken in her travels.

She was in Tiffin, O., when the flood washed away the bridges. She immediately left her hotel and started for Toledo so that she would not be held in the flood stricken city.

Miss Rodriguez tells many interesting stories of her trip. She has visited prisons, asylums, hospitals and poorhouses, and believes she has an intimate knowledge of the affairs of every country she has visited.

When Andrew Lost His Clothes.

The death of Andrew Lang has served to recall various anecdotes and sayings of Stevenson's well-loved "Andrew of the brinded hair." Among them is the following: Lang was a visitor at the home of a friend, and was to catch a train in the morning. Breakfast was ordered for nine o'clock, but at half-past eight a horrified maid announced to the family that some one had stolen Mr. Lang's clothes, and he could not get up. The host went to the room of his guest, and found him sitting up in bed in monacle and pajamas. There was no sign of any other garment in the room. The host went down-stairs to summon the police, but before he got to the telephone, the maid came running down to inform him that Mr. Lang's clothes had been found. He had folded them up the night before and had put them under his pillow, because it was too low, and had forgotten all about it.—Youth's Companion.

Worthy of Adoption.

A Rhode Island Rhodes scholar (no connection between the Rhodes and Rhode), who contributes an entertaining article to Brown Alumni Monthly on Oxford undergraduate life, says that the afternoon at Oxford is given over to athletic exercise. Hardly a half-dozen undergraduates in the college will be found at work between these hours. Games for physical development and the genuine sport of playing them—here is an English idea that is worthy of being adopted in American colleges as the system of examination by subjects. No matter how immaculate the status of the athletes, there can be no doubt that American college athletics have been sadly "professionalized" at the expense of a willingly subservient majority.

Early Visitors to Kansas City.

The first white men to travel overland from Santa Fe, N. M., to St. Louis were Pedro Vial, Josef Vicente Villanueva and Vicente Espinosa, who left Santa Fe on May 21, 1792, and ended their journey October 7. They passed the present site of Kansas City in September, after having been held prisoners for several days by the Comanches (Kaw) Indians. "We reached their village," Vial wrote in his diary, "which is located on the River of the Canoes. That river flows into the river called Missouri. We remained there until the 11th of September, when a Frenchman came with a prodigious laden with various sorts of merchandise, by permission of the government, to trade with that tribe."—Kansas City Star.

As Good as He Sent.

That the request discourteous is very likely to be followed by a discourteous reply, is the moral of the following little story from the New York Sun: Mr. L. was touring with his family through one of the eastern states. At a cross-road some miles from Boston he became uncertain of his route. An aged country woman with a basket was the only person in sight. He stopped his car, and called out to her: "I say! Hey, you!" The old woman put down her basket, and stood at indignant attention. "We want to go to Boston!" he cried. With every evidence of resentment, she picked up her basket, and screamed back: "Well, who's a hinderin' ye?" and walked on.—Youth's Companion.

Early Missourians Were Poor.

Missouri land was not very valuable in 1778. The Spanish authorities could not get settlers enough, so Governor Bernardo de Galvez decided to invite French Canadians to his colony. He offered to give Canadian settlers a plot of ground and the necessary tools if they would settle in Missouri. In his official report he said: "They are so poor that when they arrive in these settlements they come burdened with a family, but have not a shirt to wear. They would be in great straits if they were obliged to buy the farming implements necessary for making their living. This promise would incite them to seek their liberty."

Knew Father's Game.

Mark Twain's daughter Susie kept a diary at one time in which she noted the occurrences in the family, and, among other things, the sayings of her parents. On one page she wrote that "father sometimes uses stronger words when mother isn't by and he thinks we don't hear him." Mrs. Clemens came across the book and showed it to her husband, who afterwards kept a watch on Susie's diary. But one day his eye caught the following entry: "I don't think I'll put down anything more about father, for I think he does things to have me notice him and I believe he reads this diary."—Kansas City Journal.

Dime-in-Slot Photography.

A dime-in-the-slot photographic machine is, it is announced, about to be put on the market. The sitter places the coin in the slot and pulls a lever; the mechanism turns on an electric light, drops a plate into position behind the lens, opens the shutter for three seconds, develops, fixes and washes the plate, and in 37 seconds delivers the picture, finished and in a neat frame. If the mechanism should fall to work, the dime is automatically returned.

Women and Congress.

The question as to woman's eligibility to congress has never been raised and, of course, not decided, but if the people of a district in a state where woman suffrage existed and where women were eligible to any office should elect a woman to congress she would probably be admitted.

SANITARY WORK IN CANAL ZONE

Dr. Roswell Park Finds Conditions Very Satisfactory.

ISTHMUS HEALTHFUL PLACE

No Mosquitoes to Be Seen, and Flies Are Few—Last Death From Yellow Fever Was Seven Years Ago, and Malaria Has Also Been Stamped Out by Banishing the Insect Pests.

"Let the public not forget the heroes here at home, the research workers in the little laboratories, the men who built the foundation for the sanitary work so splendidly put to use by Colonel Goethals and his official staff at Panama," is the suggestion offered by Dr. Roswell Park, the physician who attended President McKinley in his last days at Buffalo and who has just returned from an unofficial visit to the canal zone.

Dr. Park is at present devoting a large amount of his time to the forthcoming international congress on school hygiene, which is to be held at Buffalo the last week in August, and accordingly on his recent visit to Panama he was specially interested in what is being done for the benefit of the school children. Dr. Park found that the same care which surrounds and protects the adults in Panama is given to the children and that school hygiene at the isthmus is simply a part of the concern of public welfare, the kind of public welfare which will be brought so prominently to the attention of the world at the forthcoming congress in Buffalo.

"It is almost seven years ago to the day," said Dr. Park the other day in New York, "since the last death in the canal zone region by yellow fever. In other words, it has been effectually stamped out. The two principal diseases of that region have been in time past malaria and yellow fever. The carriers of both of these are a species of mosquito. It was Ross, an English officer, who first discovered the relation of the mosquito to malaria, and it was Reid, a United States army surgeon, who made out the same relationship for yellow fever, the disease which, in its investigation, he himself contracted and died, a martyr to science.

A Penny a Day.
"The actual expense of conducting the sanitary department of the canal zone has been nowhere near that which has been popularly supposed to exist. It has been quite generally stated in the public press that these expenses have amounted to the sum of $20,000,000. Actually they have not exceeded $4,000,000, and never in the world's history has money been applied to better purposes. Even in the expenditure of this sum the cost of the sanitary department, as Colonel Goethals has impressively stated, is to be separated from what may be called the cost of sanitation.

"Figured minutely, this cost is practically 1 cent a day per man. The public should realize what this means. In other words, it costs only 1 cent a day for an individual in the isthmus zone to preserve his health.

"Every house in which government employees are permitted to live is surrounded by a wire screen, and each house is lifted from the ground. In this way insects are absolutely excluded. Not a mosquito is to be seen and scarcely a fly.

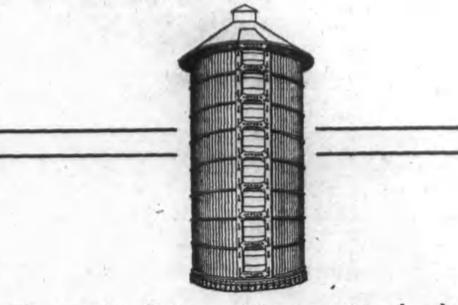

"Even yet the public has very little comprehension of what it has meant to bring sanitation to this degree of perfection in this previously badly infected zone. It has been stated in time past that the canal enterprise has cost a man every time the Panama railroad runs a car. This is exaggerated, but it might be almost literally true to say every other time. There is for instance a station near the Pacific end of the road called Matarchin, where 1,200 Chinamen died in one camp of yellow fever some years ago. The very name implies the fact, since matar in Spanish means 'kill' and 'chin' is short for Chinaman. Matarchin means, therefore, 'dead Chinamen.'

Triumph Over Nature.
"Nowhere and never in the world's history has there been such triumph of man over the forces of nature. This applies to disease producing agencies as well as to mechanical conditions. Let the public not forget as it thinks of the Panama canal that underlying the surface of this enormous governmental work is the minute and painstaking investigation in the recalcitrant cause of disease in the little laboratories where men are hidden from public observation and where they concern themselves with the study of disease germs and culture methods and the use of the microscope.

"And let it not forget also that the heroism displayed by those who have lost their lives in this sort of study is equal to any heroism displayed upon the battlefield or anywhere else. In fact, it is superior to it, because it concerns men giving deliberately, from stern conviction of duty toward others, and it is devoid of the glamour and applause which come to men who are in the public eye.

"All praise, then, to the men who, like Dr. Walter Reid of the United States army and others, have sacrificed themselves in the attainment of knowledge which is now the property of the world at large."

VIVIEN'S CAPTURE

Not a Bank Robber as She Thought, but a Willing Servant and Lover.

By CARY DELONE.

"Don't move, or I shall shoot!" The clear girlish voice rang out with unmistakable emphasis.

"How careless that would be," replied the man in a tone of gentle irony.

He paused in his efforts to get himself and a pair of saddle-bags over the rude fence, and turned calmly in the direction of the voice.

A black-haired, black-eyed girl of about twenty stood at the edge of the clearing, not two rods away.

She had on a serviceable brown suit and leggings, her cloth cap was slightly askew—and she was pointing straight at him a light but businesslike rifle.

Her cheeks were aflame with excitement, and the man could see her bosom rising and falling rapidly.

"Excuse me for referring to it," he said quietly, standing motionless by the fence, "but if you keep up that careless, unsofisticated way of pointing guns at people, some day there'll be an accident."

"If you resist, or try to draw your gun, I'll shoot you sure as fate," exclaimed the girl, "and I can shoot straight, too. Put up your hands!"

"Before you get utterly foolish, and do anything you may be sorry for," said the man, disregarding the order, and still leaning easily against the fence, "stop and think whether you hadn't better tell me what is on your mind, and why you threaten to murder an unarmed stranger."

"As if you didn't know, and you standing there with the saddle-bags themselves—my own saddle-bags, and the money probably still in them."

"Oh, as for these saddle-bags, well, perhaps there is more method in your madness than there seemed to be at first. Do these belong to you?"

"Of course they do, and you are the robber who stole them from our stable last night; and there is my silver monogram on them; and what have you done with my horse? And oh, you robber and murderer, I ought to shoot you anyway. But if you will keep your hands up and walk ahead of me, I will take you back to Clinton and give you up. I don't know but they will hang you as soon as you get there. They ought to."

"My dear young lady," said the man, with unruffled calm, to the panting girl, whose eyes blazed anew at this address, "I can see that there is some reason back of your mistake. But you are making a complete blunder. I am no robber. And these saddle-bags I found—"

"No doubt!" said the girl, with raging sarcasm; "found them growing on a huckleberry bush probably. And you didn't shoot at the cashier of the Clinton bank; and you didn't steal my horse and saddle last night to escape with; and there aren't a hundred men with guns looking for you this minute. Now, I tell you what, I mean business! Will you surrender, or shall I shoot?"

"Well, on reflection, I think I'll surrender."

"Put up your hands then. I shall make you walk ahead of me and carry those bags."

"How can I carry them with my hands above my head?"

"Well, you know what I mean. You must—Oh, aren't you a harrid villain! You smile as if it was all a joke. Take up those bags at once and go ahead; and remember, my rifle will be pointed at you all the time. And I shall be close behind you."

She started toward him. But she had not fully counted on the difficulty of keeping a steady aim and at the same time walking over the very rough ground. Her foot caught in a root, and she fell flat, the rifle going off as it struck. In three leaps the man was at her side, one hand grasping her weapon, and one held out to assist her. She sprang to her feet; and her brave, bewitching little face went deathly white.

"Now, fortunately, you will be compelled to listen to me," said the man in the same quiet, commanding tone that he had used throughout. "See, my mistake young friend. I have your rifle. You are powerless now. Pray, keep your self-control, and just listen reasonably to what I have to say. I wouldn't harm you for the world. And I am no more a bank robber than you are."

The girl stood white and motionless, her lips trying not to tremble.

"I am a lumber surveyor, a stranger in this part of Michigan. I walked over from Port Coleman this morning. More than an hour ago, down the road, I met a riderless horse, a white horse, with one dark stocking. I tried to catch him, but he was shy. These bags I found while I was prospecting through the woods; they lay near the body of a man in that clump of bushes over there. You can go over and look at the body, if you don't believe me. I guess he is your robber all right; and I judge he didn't get away without carrying some lead in him. I looked in the bags and found they were stuffed with bankbills, and I guessed pretty near what had happened. I was trying to find my way to the nearest town when you so suddenly appeared."

"The reaction was too much for the man, who was after all a little more than a little nervous."

"Trapped."

"Tommy, did you break this window-pane?"

"Father, I can not tell a lie."

supported her to a big log and she sat down.

"I guess I probably made a mistake," came at length, in rather a faint voice. "You don't talk much like a robber. And you don't look much like one," glancing up into the clean-cut, manly face. "I ask you to excuse me. I was dreadfully excited. Father taught me to shoot; and I love to go around in the woods. But I had no idea of meeting the robber. They all thought he would strike toward the Canada line. When I saw those saddle-bags, I was dead sure you must be the robber."

"You couldn't very well think anything else. But my name is John Carleton, and I am in the employ of the Western and Northern. When you are sufficiently rested, we will go to Clinton together, and I will introduce myself properly to your father. I am expecting to spend most of this season in the vicinity of Clinton."

Three months later, in the dusk of a beautiful, balmy evening, John Carleton and Vivien Laroche were talking together. He had seen much of her during these happy summer weeks, and was an honored guest at her father's house whenever he called.

"Miss Laroche, I often think of our first meeting, and what a brave, piquant little figure it was that ordered me to put up my hands."

"Let's leave that to rest in the past." The girl's flush was partly concealed by the gathering twilight.

"At any rate, my horse, and the bank's money both came back, and nobody was hurt but the poor robber. You must have thought me a blood-thirsty child."

"Not so horribly bloodthirsty," I noticed how you trembled; and I noticed later how you shrank from the spot of blood on the saddle-bag. Not very bloodthirsty, but just plucky—and bewitching! As for the child part of it, why, I am only six years older than you. Do you know, dear child, dear girl, dear woman, my thoughts have been very full of you the past few weeks. I did not know then that it was Fate that called on me to surrender; but it was not long afterward that it began to dawn on me, and I know it now. Dearest, come to me for life."

His arms were around her now; and without a single word the girl nestled close up to him in the eventide. Then his hand found hers, and her head rested on his shoulder.

"Vivien, my wildwood sweetheart, with the dear romantic name and the true heart. Life opens up a new vista of happiness for us both."

His lips met hers; he felt the soft pressure sweetly returning his ardor.

"Darling," he whispered at last, "on that blessed day you did not, indeed, capture a bank robber, but you captured a willing servant and lover for the rest of your life."

WAS TOO SLOW TO CATCH UP

Bashful Swain Is Given a Hand Reaching by Fair One, But It Fails.

Reginald Vanderbilt said at a pre-Exeter wedding in New York:

"How interesting it would be if we could know how all these pretty weddings came about! Often, no doubt, the girls themselves brought them about—unless, indeed, the man was too inordinately dense, like Travers."

"Travers met a pretty girl last winter in Bermuda. He danced with her at the Hamilton and Princess, he wheeled with her to Tom Moore's house for strawberries and cream, and he bathed with her in the pretty blue pool with its lining of azure tiles."

"But he didn't propose. Was he too bashful? The girl, at any rate, one afternoon in a tea garden, offered to read his future, and, halting his big brown hand in her slim white one, she murmured, as her finger moved delicately across his palm:

"This line indicates that before you lies—happiness."

"She paused, with downcast eyes. But nothing followed. The young man sat beside her, grinning sheepishly. Her lip curled in disdain and she added, in a clear, cold voice:

"But this other line indicates that you'll never overtake that future. You're too slow."

Flying Bullet Shown by Film.

Prof. Cranz has lately submitted to the German Physical Society a machine which allows the taking of pictures at the rate of 100,000 a second. This enormous limit is higher than anything which has been previously done. Machines are on the market which allow pictures taken at the rate of 5,000 a second.

Prof. Cranz goes so far as to say that this limit is not fixed, but that the number can still be greatly increased if it is found necessary.

Bodies moving with marvelous speed can be photographed in flight. For instance, the pistol shot can be caught and followed as far as the camera lens can reach. Infinite possibilities seem to be opening up along the moving picture line if this high speed photography can be practically carried out.

"Father, I can not tell a lie."

"Come, now. None of this George Washington business."

"All right, pa. I didn't break it."

"Ah! I've caught you in a lie. I saw you break this window-pane."

"But, pa, you just now said, 'None of this George Washington business—'

Ornamental Telephones.

The palm must be awarded to France for novelties in telephones. In one of the loud-speaking telephone outfits manufactured in Paris and designed to be used for communication within the house, the instruments are hidden in flower vases, which may be placed on the dining room table, on a table or mantel in the living room, or in the bedrooms. The receiver and microphone are mounted in the base of the vase, a small plug and a flexible cord serving for the connection with the battery. A push button rings a bell in the kitchen or servants' rooms, and the woman of the house can transmit her orders without having to call the servants to her. There are several variations of the idea, such, for instance, as an ornamental dish holder, or an odd-looking ornamental figure.

Triangular Smile.

No lady is suitably equipped now for any big function unless she has contorted her face into what is known as the "triangular smile." This "expression" is supposed to represent simplicity and innocence! It is formed by lifting the center part of the top lip to form an apex of the triangle, the lower lip then representing the base. The upper teeth are thereby revealed, and some women are wearing tiny rosebud diamonds in their teeth. Others are wearing under the nostrils a band fastened to the top of the head, thus drawing up the nose and top lip. Woman's model for next month is to be Mephistopheles! Her hair will be adorned with the long, curved feather of the cap of Mephisto, measuring anything up to two feet in length.—New York American.

English Women on Golf Links.

A very noticeable thing about Englishwomen golfers of today is the great change in their appearance on the links. It used to be considered necessary and thoroughly sporting to look as unconventional as possible when playing the game. Shapeless tweed costumes, hopeless hats and great clumsy boots were the proper wear, but now this is quite changed. At Turnbury women and girls wore dainty skirts and blouses and silk sweaters of pale shades, with coquetish caps and hats, or no head coverings at all, and the effect was distinctly pleasing. Two played their final match, the one in white with nothing on her hair, the other in a French gray sailor blouse and neatly cut skirt with a little cap out of the same material.

When Irving First Met Bernhardt.

It is related by an American man who was Sarah Bernhardt's escort to the London Lyceum theater the first time the Frenchwoman saw Irving, that the English actor sent an invitation to the actress begging her to take supper with him after the performance, in the famous Beefsteak rooms of the Lyceum. It was the first meeting of the two great players. Sarah spoke no English, Irving no French. Nevertheless they discussed art and showered each other with compliments until nearly four o'clock in the morning, Sarah's American escort, a ready linguist, acting as interpreter. This is a fair example of how Irving spent his nights—and he paid the price.

Motoring Across Canada.

It is not possible to make a journey entirely by automobile across Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The nearest approach to such a tour was made this fall, when on October 18, a motor car reached Victoria, B. C., 49 days after it had left Halifax. The actual running time was given as 41 days, and the mileage covered was 3,900 miles. But in addition to the 3,900 miles, 700 miles in New Ontario were covered under other than the car's own power, owing to the absence of trail or road. As far as North Bay no shipping had to be undertaken, although this was the first car that had ever come through all the way from Halifax to that point.

Lived With Bullet in Brain.

Of wounds in the brain here is another example which may be considered wonderful. During the Indian mutiny, a loyal native was struck by a bullet upon the forehead, just above the left frontal sinus. The bullet wedged its way into the bone. The skin eventually healed over the wound, and the man resumed his duties as before. Twelve months later, however, he suddenly fell down in convulsions, and died within a couple of minutes of his seizure. The post-mortem examination revealed a truly remarkable state of things. The unfortunate man had lived all this time with quite two-thirds of the bullet embedded in his brain.

Naming the Cat.

One evening last summer my neighbor's bright little son, aged four, took dinner with us. After we had finished, Clyde became a little hilarious, and in order to quiet him I said, "Go and call the kitty in out of the yard." He immediately went to the door, and at the top of his voice began calling, "Come, kitty! Come kitty! Come kitty!" "Oh," I said, "call her gently, then she'll come." Then he yelled, "Come, Gently! Come, Gently! Come Gently!"—Lippincott's.

Sparrows for Food Users.

The English sparrow is a good food-bird. That's all he is good for. In Scriptural times the sparrow was used for food, and in St. Matthew's day two were sold for a farthing. The department of agriculture in a recent bulletin tells how to catch, cook and serve them. This food was may solve the problem—Lippincott's.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Without your woes. No path is wholly rough. Look for places that are smooth and clear. And speak to these, to rest the weary ear. Of earth so hurt by one continuous strain. Of human discontent and grief and pain.

EVERY DAY LUNCHEONS.

A nice hot dish for a change is a pound or two of mutton, cut in pieces and browned in a little hot fat in the frying pan, then add a pint of sliced carrots and cook in a fireless cooker or on the extreme back of the stove, well covered, for two hours or more. Just before serving, add a cup of canned peas. Season the meat after it is well browned, before the carrots are added, when water to cover is also added.

Another nice carrot dish is one cooked with peas, an onion and a bit of bacon. Cook the carrots, peas and onion until tender, add the bacon fried brown and cut in dice; add enough milk to make a sauce.

Liver With Onion Sauce.—Dredge thin slices of liver with seasoned flour and fry brown in pork fat. Put the liver on hot platter. Fry a cupful of chopped onions in the fat until a light brown. Add a tablespoonful of vinegar and pour over the liver.

Cabbage With Oysters.—Select a small heavy head of cabbage, cut a slice off the top and scoop out the interior carefully, leaving a thin shell. Shred the inner portion with an equal quantity of crisp celery or simply dress the salad with salt, vinegar and a few dashes of pepper. Fill the shell with fried oysters and serve with the salad.

Boiled rice, cooked carefully so that every grain is distinct, and served with hot chocolate sauce, is a good dessert. Fig sauce is also very nice to serve as an accompaniment to boiled rice.

Nellie Maxwell.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.

WAYS OF SERVING VEGETABLES.

Let us be reminded that there are more than two hundred ways of cooking and preparing potatoes, and try to learn a few new ones each week or two, to change the monotony of mashed and baked and boiled and fried potatoes, which are the common ways of serving them.

When you are cooking doughnuts, arrange to have French fried potatoes. Cut them in eighths lengthwise and fry in the hot fat, sprinkle with salt and put in the heater to keep hot until needed to serve.

When baking potatoes, for a variety, cut a slice off from the top and scoop out a little potato, fill with a slice of bacon, put on the slice and fasten with a toothpick. Bake, and when done the bacon will have seasoned the whole potato.

Swedish Cabbage.—Boil in salted water for twenty minutes a dozen good-sized leaves of cabbage. Drain them and fill with the following mixture: A pound of beef chopped fine, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one-half teaspoon of white pepper, one teaspoonful of salt, one of chopped parsley. Rub the dish with the cut side of a clove of garlic. Mix thoroughly and roll each leaf around a tablespoonful of this mixture; trim the ends neatly and tie or skewer. Lay in a dripping pan, with a pint of stock or butter and water. Baste frequently, and bake for half an hour, or until tender. Remove the rolls, thickened with the gravy and pour over the cabbage.

Scalloped Onions.—Parboil a sufficient quantity of onions for the family, prepare a cup of white sauce by cooking together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and a teaspoonful of salt, a cup of milk added, then cook until thick. Add white pepper and pour over a layer of onions, then sprinkle with cheese; add another layer of onions and white sauce, and finish the top with buttered crumbs. Bake until well browned.

Nellie Maxwell.

Spinster's Jest.

Confidential Friend (to elderly spinster)—So, my dear, you've given up advocating women's rights?

Elderly Spinster—Yes; I'm now going in for one of women's lefts.

Friend—Women's lefts! What's that?

Spinster—Widowhood, my dear—

The Main Issue

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Rev. 5:9—For thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood.

For decades after Luther's reformation, in England after the Wesley revival, and in this land and Great Britain just after the Moody evangelistic campaigns, it would not have been difficult to answer the question: "What is it to be saved?" for the answer would have been uniformly: "To be redeemed from sin through the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ."

The goal of salvation with very many, and indeed, with almost all, is getting to heaven—if a man gets to heaven he is saved. Presuming that the answer is correct, and barring the advent of Jesus Christ, which will preclude the necessity of the Christian dying and his soul going to heaven as they now do, we may endorse that position. Let us note here some of the conceptions of salvation that men now hold, and of which we hear them speak, but are a part of personal conviction; in some cases, however, nothing more than feeling. In speaking of this we would not impugn the sincerity of those who hold them, but we are convinced that many of them are fatally mistaken. We have only space to note three of these exceptions.

I. One man says: "Man is saved through the inevitable operation of evolution. Man has been placed upon earth for the purpose of development, and if he exists beyond this life that development will continue until he reaches perfection." That is a widely received view, and the recent revival of the evolutionary theory as developed in scientific investigations, has largely strengthened it. Such writers as Alfred Tennyson, who speaks of that period "Far off, at last, to all," etc., have largely strengthened the idea, and it is known that evolutionary preachers, if they do not generally deny the salvation taught by Paul, as some do, so emphasize evolution that the salvation of man is involved in the principle, and consequently nothing else is needed.

II. Many indulge the conception that man is saved by right living, but just at this point of right living there is difference of opinion as to what we mean. Many promptly say it means doing what is right, but do not define the word right. We must have some criterion of judgment, and we inquire for that. Many, if pressed, will say, it is acting in accordance with the teachings of the Bible, but here again there is difficulty, for many only consider the teachings of the Bible with reference to their relationship to their fellow men, and they claim that if they act honestly in their dealings with their fellow men, or as has been recently said, give every man a square deal, they are acting in accordance with the teachings of the Scripture. But, if a man is honest, must he not consider more than his fellow men? Does he not have God, who is the author of the Bible, to deal with? Is there nothing owing to him, aside from honesty in our dealings with our fellow men? What about high morals that are really personal, and what about the demands that are made upon men as to the worship of God, the dissemination of religious truth, the individual religious life, involving the study of God's word, prayer, etc.?

III. In these days there is a widespread conception that a church connection, or church life, is the essence of salvation, consequently multitudes are easily persuaded to connect with the church, and to adopt a more or less faithful church life. We have no time to call attention to the master's well-known denunciations of the churchism of his day, of the tithing of mint, anise and cummin, or Paul's teachings touching mere churchism in his day. The religion of Christ and the apostles was the religion that must have not only the shell of profession, but it must have the kernel of reality before God.

Here is the main issue, and a recent writer has in true and beautiful lines presented the thought in connection with holy communion:

"Savior divine! O evermore abide in my cold heart! Redeemer, blessed Lord! By all the powers in heaven and earth adored; When flowed the dear blood from Thy wounded side— By God forsaken and by man denied— Why was the crimson stream thus freely poured, If man by love was not to be restored? O mighty theme! that doth debase my pride; And cast contempt on all the things of earth; If angels are not faultless in His sight, Of what account are we, who from our birth, Wander afar from heaven, and heaven's dear light? Yet it was not for them, but us He died, And with Him all our sins are crucified!"—Stockwell.

Genoa Won from Frontenacs.

(By our Special Reporter.)

Last Saturday afternoon, "Doc" McCully's augmented heavy weight champions, (better known as the Frontenacs) of Union Springs came to Genoa for the express purpose of showing our little home team how the game of baseball should be played. He did, did he? No. He secured one of the best batteries, also several high class baseball artists of the city of Auburn to help do the trick. After our boys sized up this line-up, they decided that the only way to see first base was to hire it brought to the home plate. But after seeing "Doc's" aggregation in a bunch and being assured that they were only human, the home team took courage and decided that they were more scared than hurt. McDermott of the home team was at his best and had the visitors at his mercy from the beginning, while Tommy Welch as receiver was there with the goods. Willard Saxton found the pill at the right time, which took the starch out of the visitors. In fact, all of the boys as soon as they found that no cyclone had struck town, emerged from their "dugout" and played ball every minute, as the score showed 4 to 2 in favor of Genoa.

The Home Newspaper.

A newspaper is the only home institution that travels around to distant cities. Buildings and streets cannot be seen unless one visits a place. The newspapers go as far as the mails.

The home newspaper furnishes a means by which distant people gain an idea of the place where it is published. If a newspaper is newsworthy and clean typographically, and has liberal advertising, every man from Los Angeles to Eastport, and from Ontario to the Gulf, who sees it gets an idea that the town is alive.

People have no idea how newspapers circulate away from their home town. Every publisher has a considerable list of subscribers who formerly lived where it was published, or are interested in the place for business reasons. And people send away many papers.

If you want your town to cut a good figure before the world, subscribe to the home paper and advertise as much as your business will warrant.—Oswego Times.

MANY STATES AID IN CELEBRATION

Government Also Honors Memory of Commodore Perry.

SERIES OF CELEBRATIONS.

Buffalo and Other Cities on Lake Shores Leave Nothing Undone to Make Centennial a Success—Elaborate Plans to Entertain All Visitors.

THE celebration of the Perry centennial, which is being participated in by the national government and a number of states, was first authoritatively acted upon by the state of Ohio. It was within the waters of that state that the battle of Lake Erie was fought. In 1908 the general assembly of Ohio authorized the governor to name five commissioners to arrange for the celebration of the battle of Lake Erie and General William Henry Harrison's northwest campaign of the war of 1812. The governor was also authorized to invite the co-operation of other states whose sons had participated in those two events. Governor Andrew L. Harris acted accordingly.

The states which are co-operating in the celebration are Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Kentucky and Louisiana. Except the last three, they all border on the great lakes. Rhode Island was invited to take part because it was the birthplace of Oliver Hazard Perry, and at Newport his body lies buried. Kentucky is included because from there came Harrison's riflemen, and Louisiana because there was fought the last battle of the war, that of New Orleans, which took place after a treaty of peace had been concluded at Ghent.

The congress of the United States took action upon the Perry centennial and appropriated $250,000 for the general purposes of the celebration. At Put-In-Bay in September, 1910, the interstate board of the Perry's victory centennial commissioners was organized. President Taft appointed Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, Rear Admiral Charles E. Clark and General J. Warren Keller of Ohio as United States commissioners to act with the interstate board. The different states interested in the celebration, following one the other, made appropriations. One of the first acts of the interstate board was to decide upon the erection of a fitting memorial to Perry at Put-In-Bay. This monument will be dedicated in 1915 in conjunction with the celebration of the treaty of Ghent. The national government and the various states have voted the funds with which this monument is being erected.

For the more immediate purpose of celebrating the Perry victory and General Harrison's campaign the different cities along the lakes were interested. Committees were formed in all of the larger of these cities. Delegations from the committees of the cities met, a vast program was arranged, and the dates upon which the different cities should celebrate were fixed.

So, beginning at Erie, Pa., on July 4 and ending at Louisville, Ky., on

JOHN F. MALONE, CHAIRMAN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, PERRY'S VICTORY CENTENNIAL COMMISSION, BUFFALO.

Oct. 5, there will be this year a series of celebrations, each vying with the other to give due recognition to the events of the war which did so much to establish American freedom and stability.

No city will surpass Buffalo in the greatness of its celebration. In fact, in no city have the means been provided and the arrangements made to handle the celebration that have been made in the Queen City of the Lakes. Early in the movement a committee of one hundred was formed in Buffalo. This committee includes the mayor and other city officials, military men and prominent citizens. An equally large committee of women has been formed to assist in arranging for the celebration.

The legislature of the state of New York was importuned, with the result that an appropriation of $150,000 was set aside for the celebration. A state commission was formed, consisting of six members of the legislature and five citizens. The legislative members are the Hon. John F. Malone of Buffalo, chairman of the executive committee of the commission; Hon. Martin H. Glynn, lieutenant governor of the state; Hon. William L. Ormrod of Churchville, Hon. Simon L. Adler of Rochester, Hon. Edward D. Jackson of Buffalo and Hon. Jacob Schifferdecker of Brooklyn.

The citizen members are William J. Conners of Buffalo, chairman of the commission; George D. Emerson of

GEORGE D. EMERSON, SECRETARY, PERRY'S VICTORY CENTENNIAL COMMISSION, BUFFALO.

Buffalo, secretary of the commission; Dr. Clinton B. Herrick of Troy, William Simon of Buffalo and William F. Rafferty of Syracuse.

The state commission and the city committee of Buffalo are working together in behalf of the Buffalo event. In addition to the sum appropriated by the state, the common council of Buffalo is to set aside the sum of $20,000 toward defraying the expenses of the celebration. It will be held in Buffalo Sept. 2 to 6, inclusive.

Motorboat Races at Buffalo. What will, no doubt, excite as much general interest as any other feature now being considered by the Perry victory centennial commission for the celebration to be held at Buffalo Sept. 2 to 6, inclusive, is the motorboat regatta under the auspices of the Motorboat club of Buffalo, preparations for which have been actively entered upon.

BROOCH GIVEN WITH DRESS.

Young Woman Donates Garment For Flood Sufferers and Gems Are Found.

When Miss Mary Pollock, daughter of a stogy manufacturer of Wheeling, W. Va., was asked for a donation for the flood sufferers she turned over to the relief committee several of her old dresses without examining them closely.

After the clothing had been distributed one of the dresses was found to contain a diamond brooch valued at $1,000. It had been missing for six months, and Miss Pollock believed it had been lost or stolen.

Whole Town Mourns Its Dead.

The entire town of Throop, Pa., recently suspended business for a day while a general memorial for the seventy-three men killed two years ago in the Pancoast mine fire was in progress. ## Don't Get the Impression

That the Egbert Pre-Inventory Sale is a result of backward spring weather, epidemics, strikes or any other conditions that have seemed to effect Auburn's retail business this season. Our business to July 1st, 1913, is ahead of the corresponding six months of 1912. Our Pre-Inventory Sales are Semi-Annual housecleaning events and mean a big saving to those that take advantage of them. We invite investigation of our present sale, on now, particularly from those of the doubting kind. You'll be convinced that an Egbert Sale is worth attending.
