Big Men of Nation Go to Church. Get the Habit! Join the Procession!

T is deplorable, but nevertheless true, that there are men who think it savors of effeminacy to be seen often in church. These men should awaken to the error of their ways.

The really strong men, the men of the nation, are constant churchgoers. They rarely miss a Sunday. The story is told of a great composer who on one occasion was accorded a magnificent ovation. The audience cheered him for fully five minutes. It was a tribute calculated to turn any man's head. Then there came cries for a speech. The composer faced the great multitude of his admirers and said:

"'WHAT DOTH IT PROFIT A MAN TO GAIN THE WHOLE WORLD AND LOSE HIS OWN SOUL?"

THAT WAS ALL. THE AUDIENCE WAS ELECTRIFIED. THEY KNEW THE DEEP RELIGION OF THE MAN AND GRASPED THE SIGNIFICANCE OF HIS REMARKS. THE OVATION THAT WENT BEFORE WAS AS NOTHING COMPARED TO THAT WHICH FOL-LOWED. THAT GREAT AUDIENCE DIDN'T THINK THIS MAN EFFEMINATE. HE WAS BIG ENOUGH TO PROCLAIM PUBLICLY HIS FAITH IN GOD AND A HEREAFTER. IT IS THE WEAK RATHER THAN THE STRONG MAN WHO, WHILE PROFESSING A BELIEF IN GOD, REMAINS AWAY FROM CHURCH. IF YOU BE-LIEVE IN GOD, PRACTICE YOUR BELIEF BY GOING TO CHURCH. GOD DOESN'T ASK MUCH OF YOUR TIME.

Don't delay GOING TO CHURCH. Start in next Sunday. Get the habit. You'll find it is not a hard task. Join the procession. By going to church you set a good example to your neighbor. It will set him thinking. You will please your wife, your mother, your sister. It will fill them with happiness to see that you are on the road to righteousness. And be honest with yourself. Don't you know you are a lot happier after an hour with God? 80 TO CHURCH!

ANTI-TYPHOID VACCINATION

AST week we discussed the sanitary rules for preventing typhoid fever There is another weapon which we may use in controlling this disease, ANTI-TYPHOID VACCINATION.

When disease germs get into the system a struggle begins between the invading germs and the defensive forces of the body. The cells of the body produce specific antidotes to the poisons of the germs and attack and destroy the germs themselves. Recovery from the disease means that the body cells have triumphed over their opponents, and after an attack of typhoid fever or smallpox the person is IMMUNE for a time against that particular disease BECAUSE OF THE INCREASED POWER OF RESISTANCE THE SYSTEM HAS GAINED IN THE STRUGGLE

In certain diseases bacteriology has taught us how to produce ARTI-FICIAL IMMUNITY by using vaccines which stimulate the body cells, just as an attack of the disease would do, so that THE PERSON VAC-CINATED GAINS AN IMMUNITY AGAINST THE PARTICU-LAR DISEASE WITHOUT HAVING THE DISEASE AT ALL

The anti-typhoid vaccine consists of a culture of typhoid germs KILLED BY HEAT. When the dead typhoid germs are injected into the body the special substances in them stimulate the cells of the body and produce IMMUNITY AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER.

The protection gained from vaccination lasts about two years. It is not absolute any more than is the immunity gained by an attack of typhoid fever. Sometimes a person has typhoid fever twice. Sometimes a vaccinated person has typhoid. Either of these events, however, is VERY RARE. An infection which would cause a hundred cases of typhoid fever among the unvaccinated will not cause one among the vac-

Typhoid fever usually attacks young persons between fifteen and forty-five, and it is between these ages that vaccination is important. In particular all persons who for any reason are specially liable to be exposed to infection should seek this protection. WHEN A CASE OF TYPHOID FEVER OCCURS THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE FAMILY SHOULD BE PROMPTLY VACCINATED. NURSES AND HOSPITAL ATTENDANTS AND ALL WHO

COME IN CONTACT WITH THE SICK SHOULD BE PEOPLE WHO TRAVEL A GREAT DEAL AND ARE THEREFORE IN SPECIAL DANGER OF DRINKING INFECT.

BE VACCINATED. Typhoid fever is at its height between August and October. It will the protection of vaccination before the typhoid sea-BOD, COMING OF

SOME REAL LABOR SAVERS

Methods by Which Efficient Work May Be Done in Comparatively Short Time.

It is a trying task to cut gowns or skirts of crepe de chine, silk muslin, soft silks or any material which has a tendency to draw or slip on the table. and if you would greatly obviate the difficulty of cutting such goods, first cover the table with a felt or heavy cloth. In renovating feather pillows, first open one corner of the ticking and pour boiling water in. This renders the feathers a kind of pulpy, wet mass, which can be easily handled. Have ready some soapy water and take the feathers out and thoroughly wash them in this, using more soap if necessary. Then thoroughly rinse them in several waters and put back into the washed cover and hang it out in the hot sun.

With a long, clean stick you can turn them occasionally through the opened corner. As the sun's heat dries the feathers they will swell to fill the cover and be wonderfully light and fluffy and perfectly clean without being scattered at all, which invariably happens when they are handled easily cleared by waving above one's head a towel that has been wrung out. Used in a fanning fashion, it is said to accomplish the work in a few minutes. Only a little vinegar in a small quantity of water is required for the wetting of the towel.

A neat and very satisfactory way to keep patterns is to file them away in a 25-cent letter file. Kept this way patterns of one class are filed away nated by E. S. Akin.

Prune Jelly.

Prunes are frequently ordered by physicians, and if the patient rebels at the plain stewed dish, try prune jelly. Wash half a pound of prunes and soak them overnight in cold water. Next morning set them over the stove in an agate pan, cover with half a cup of water and bring to the boiling point. During this process soak a quarter of a box of gelatin in half a cup of cold water. When it is dissolved add it, with a quarter of a cup of sugar, to the prunes. Now press the mixture through a colander into a mold and stand aside for three or four hours to harden. Serve with cream if the diet list permits.

An Improvised Steamer.

If you have not a steamer a very good make-shift is to put your pudding mixture in a small round tin pan. Tie a string around this just below the rim and fasten two long loops to it, one on each side.

Put this pan in an ordinary sauce pan, big enough to hold it, and pour in boiling water enough to come about half way up the inner pan. Pull up the loops of string, let them hang down outside the saucepan and put on the cover. The strings are to be used for handles to take the pan out of the boiling water when the pudding is done.

Cocoanut Rice Mold.

Boll one pint of milk; stir in three tablespoonfuls of well-washed rice; allow to cook till the rice is quite soft; add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, two heaping tablespoonfuls finely chopped cocoanut and one-half tablespoonful of gelatin which has been dissolved with one-quarter pint of hot milk; allow to cool. Stir in one-half pint of whipped cream and pour into wet molds. When firm turn out on a dish. Serve with cold stewed fruit.

To Clean Black Satin.

When cleaning black satin peel and slice two large raw potatoes and put into a pint of water, with a pinch of salt, and let stand all night. Next morning sponge the satin on the right side with this mixture and wipe lightly with a cloth. Then Iron on the wrong side, and it will be as glossy as

THE Seventy-Fourth New York State I Fair will be held at Syracuse. August 31-September 1-5. Some idea of the importance of the State's great exposition and its value in the promotion of progressive agricultural methods and scientific breeding may be gained by a study of the prize list just issued.

The record sum of $75,000 is offered this year in live stock, farm produce, flower and domestic arts departments. Of this handsome amount, $70,000 is offered in open classes and an additional $5,000 for classes of unusual size and merit. The premium list exceeds that of 1913 by $12,000, and it is the largest offering ever made by any fair or exposition in America. Medals, cups, trophies and special prizes are also offered by the State Fair Commission and by a score of breeders' and growers' associations.

Farm, Draft and Breeding Horses. Department A, including farm, draft and breeding horses offers 194 classes with premiums aggregating $9.065. A large number of these classes are limited to animals owned by residents of the State of New York for a period of at least three months before August 14. Gold and silver medals are offered champions by the Belgian Society & Brussels, the New York Belgian society and the Hackney Horse society. The Percheron Society of America offers gold and silver medals, two sterling silver (flat), they are not found rolled or trophies and $130 money prizes. The Army Worm.

Calvin J. Huson, Commissioner of Agriculture, is sending out broadcast instructions prepared by State Entomologist Dr. E. P. Felt, telling how to find and check invasions of army worms.

"Army worm outbreaks are likely to originate in rank grass or other growth along fences, in pastures and other localities except swamps. It is not a swamp feeding caterpillar. Large numbers of eggs are laid in such situations, and as the young caterpillars increase in size, nearby vegetation is quickly exhausted and we then have more or less extensive army worm outbreaks. The caterpillars are about an inch and a quarter long, dark, light-striped and usually feed at night. It is decidedly advantageous to detect these outbreaks in their innillars before they have spread to any great extent. "Examine the thickest portions of fields for their small, black or brown droppings and the absence of the lower leaves of grass or grain. If such conditions obtain, the caterpillars may be found hidden under loose shelter of any kind at or just below the surface of the ground, and when small they may be found upon the plant.

"Clean cultivation, rotation of crops and the cleaning up of fence rows, are important measures in preventing outbreaks by this insect.

"Local infestations may be controlled by the judicious distribution of poisoned bait, such as thirty-five pounds of wheat bran, one gallon of molasses and a pound of Paris green mixed to a moist though not sloppy consistency. This should be scattered thinly just before nightfall over the infested area and should not be used where there is any danger of poisoning domestic animals.

"Army worms may be kept from invading valuable fields by ditching or plowing a rather deep furrow with its perpendicular side toward the field to be protected. If the pests are abundant, holes about two feet in depth should be made in the bottom of the furrow at a distance of fifteen or twenty feet, into which the caterpillars fall and soon perish. Such ditches should be watched to keep the side next the crop to be protecked smooth and perpendicular and the committee in charge to make the depression from being bridged by the accumulated bodies of the caterpil- of the kind. There are few ways in "Broad bands of tar may be used as barrier, or tar may be applied to boards set up on edge. Tree tanglefoot could be used in the same way.

"The advance of army worms may also be checked by spraying a strip just prove of great value to our school if in front of the caterpillars with Paris we are but present to hear them. green, using at least one pound to fifty Begin to plan now to attend this con gallons of water and taking care later to see that all such vegetation is cut and burned or disposed of in such a way as not to endanger live stock,

The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

and marer, and how little I am able to do for a single creature to prove to God that I am grateful for my existence! I could, if only I were free, make such a merry day for Patty and Mark and their young friends. Oh, what joy if father were a man who would let me set a bountiful table in our great kitchen; would sit at the head and say grace and we could bow our heads over the cloth, a united family, or if I had done my duty in my home and could go to that other, where I am so needed-go with my father's blessing! All the woman in me is wasting, wasting. Oh, my dear, dear; man, how I long for him! Oh, my own dear man, my belpmate, shall I ever live by his side? I love him, I want him. I need him! And my dear little unmothered, unfathered boy, how happy I could make him! How I should love to cook and sew for them all and wrap them in comfort! How I should love to smooth my dear mother's last days, for she is my mother in spirit, in affection, in desire and in being Ivory's."

Waitstill's longing, her discouragement, her helplessness, overcame her wholly, and she flung herself down under a tree in the pasture in a very passion of sobbing, a luxury in which she could seldom afford to indulge herself. The luxury was short lived, for in five minutes she heard Rodman's voice, and heard him running to meet her as he often did when she came to their house or went away from it, dogging her footsteps or Patty's whenever or wherever he could waylay them.

"Why, my dear, dear Waity, did you tumble and burt yourself?" the boy so walk along with me and tell me the

"There isn't much news. Ivory told you I'd left school and am studying at home? He helps me evenings and I'm 'way ahead of the class."

"No, Ivory didn't tell me. I haven't seen him lately."

"I said if the big brother kept school the little brother ought to keep house," laughed the boy. "He says I can hire out as a cook pretty soon! Aunt Boynton's 'most always up to get dinner and supper, but I can make lots of things new-things that Aunt Boynton can eat too." "Oh, I cannot bear to have you and Ivory cooking for yourselves!" exclaimed Waitstill, the tears starting again from her eyes. "I must come over the next time when you are at home, Rod. and I can belp you make something nice for supper." "We get along pretty well," said Rodman contentedly. "I love book learning like Ivory, and I'm going to be a schoolmaster or a preacher when Ivory's a lawyer. Do you think Patty 'd like a schoolmaster or a preacher best, and do you think I'd be too young to marry her by and by, if she would wait for me?"

"I didn't think you had any idea of through her tears, "Is this something

"It's not exactly new." said Rod, jumping along like a squirrel in the path. "Nobody could look at Patty and not think about marrying her. I'd love to marry you, too, but you're too big and grand for a boy. Of course I'm not going to ask Patty yet. Ivory said once you should never ask a girl until you can keep her like a queen. Then after a minute he said: Well, maybe not quite like a queen. Rod, for that would mean longer than u man could wait. Shall we say until he could keep her like the dearest lady in the land? That's the way he said it. You do cry dreadfully easy today, Waity. I'm sure you barked your leg or skinned your knee when you fell down. Don't you think the 'dearest lady in the land' is a nice sounding sentence?" "I do, indeed!" cried Waitstill to herself as she turned the words over and over trying to feed her bungry heart with them.

"I love to hear Ivory talk. It's like the stories in the books. We have our best times in the barn, for I'm helplog with the milking now. Our yelwww cow's name is Molly and the red cow used to be Dolly, but we changed but to Golly 'cause she's so troublesome."

"We had a cross old cow like that once," said Waitstill absently, loving to hear the boy's chatter and the eterual quotations from his beloved hero.

"We have great fun cooking, too," continued Rod. "When Aunt Boyntion was first sick she stayed in bed more, and Ivory and I hadn't got used to things. One morning we bound up each other's burns. Ivory had three Sagars and I two done up in buttery to take the fire out. Ivory called m soldiers dressing their wounds aftw lies battle.' Baumges spatter dreadfully, don't they? "He shall not!" cried Waitstill passionately. "It is not seemly for Ivory to sew and mend, and I will not allow it. You shall bring me those things that need patching without telling any one, do you hear, and I will meet you on the edge of the pasture Saturday afternoon and give them back to you. You are not to speak of it to any one. you understand, or perhaps I shall pound you to a jelly! You'd make a sweet rose jelly to eat with turkey for Thanksgiving day is drawing nearer Thanksgiving dinner, you dear, comforting little boy!"

Rodman ran toward home, and Waitstill hurried along, scarcely noticing the beauties of the woods and fields and waysides, all glowing masses of goldenrod and purple frost flowers.

Patty was standing under a little in tone with the landscape and the kind of anxious that the village should hood of her brown cape pulled over her bright head. She looked flushed and excited as she ran up to her sister and said: "Waity, darling, you've been crying! Has father been scolding l'hoebe settin' tegether at the harvest

"No. dear, but my heart is aching today so that I can scarcely bear it. A wave of discouragement came over me as I was walking through the woods, and I gave up to it a bit. I remembered how soon it will be Thanksgiving day, and I'd so like to make it happier for you and a few others that I love." Patty could have given a shrewd guess as to the chief cause of the heartache, but she forebore to ask any questions. "Cheer up, Waity!" she cried. "You can never tell. We may

He took a circuitous route from his watch tower and, knowing well the point from which there could be no esplopage from Deacon Baxter's store windows, joined t'atty in the road, took the pall from her hand and walked up the nill beside her. Cephas turned about face and employed the entire month of September in a determined assault upon the affections of Miss Lucy Morrill, but with no better avail. Cephas' belief in the boly state of matrimouy as being the only one proper for a man really ought to have commended him to the opposite (and un-

It was only a chance. but Lucy would almost have preferred temaining unmarried even to the withering age of twenty-five rather than, happy. not be at ilberty to accept Philip Perry in case she should be asked.

Cephas, therefore, by the middle of October could be picturesquery and ailiteratively described as being raw from repeated rejections. His bruised beart and his despised ell literally cried out for the appreciation so long and blindly withheld. Now att at once Phoepe disclosed a second virtue, her first and only one hitherto in the eyes of Cephas having been an ability to get on with his mother-a feat in which many had made an effort and few indeed had succeeded. Phoebe, it seems, had always secretly admired. respected and loved Cephas Cole. Never since her pale and somewhat glassy blue eye had opened on life had she beheld a being she could so adore if encouraged in the attitude.

The moment this unusual and unexpected poultice was really applied to Cephus' wounds they began to heat In the course of a mouth the most ordinary observer could have perceived a physical change in him. He cringed no more, but held his head higher; his buck straightened; his voice developed a gruff, assertive note like that of a stern Roman father; be let his mustache grow and sometimes, in his most reckless moments, twiddled the end

And then congratulations began to pour in. Was ever marriage so fortuitous? The Coles farm joined that of the Days', and the union between the two only children would cement the friendship between the families The fact that Uncle Bart was a joiner. Cepbus a painter and Abel Day a ma and brickiager made the alliance amost providential in its business opportunities. Phoebe's Massachusetts aunt sent a complete outfit of gilt edged china, a clock and a mahogany chamber set. Aunt Abby relinquished to the young couple a bedroom and a spare chamber in the "main part." while the Days supplied live geese feathers and table and bed linen with positive prodigality. Aunt Abby trod the air like one inspired.

"If only I could 'a' looked ahead." smiled Uncle Bart quizzically to himseif. "I'd a' bad thirteen sons and daughters an married off one of 'em every year. That would 'a' made Abby's good temper kind o' permanent."

Cephas was content too. There was good deal in being settled and having "the whole doggoned business" off your hands. Phoebe tooked a very different creature to him in these latter days. Her eyes were just as pale. of course, but they were brighter, and they radiated love for him, an expression in the female eye that he had thus far been singularly unfortunate in securing. She still held her mouth slightly open, but Cephas thought that it might be-permissible, perhaps after three months of wedded bliss, to request her to be more careful in clos-

Cephas did not think of Patty any longer with bitterness in these days. being of the opinion that she was punished enough to observing his own growing popularity and prosperity.

"If she should see that mabogany chamber set going into the ell I guess she'd be glad enough to change her tune," thought Cephas exultingly, and then there suddenly shot through his mind the passing fancy, "I wonder it she would!" He promptly banished the infamous suggestion, however, reenforcing his virtue with the reflection that the chamber set was Phoebe's anyway, and the marriage day ap you can be sure of that" said Mark pointed and the invitations given out gallantly, "Then it's decided that next and the wedding cake being baked, a loaf at a time, by his mother and Mrs.

As a matter of fact, Patty would have had no eyes for Phoebe's magnificent manogany, even had the cart that carried it passed her on the hill where she and Mark Wilson were walking Her promise to marry him was a few weeks old now, and his arm encircled her slender waist under the brown homespun cape. That in itself was a new sensation and gave her the deliclous sense of belonging to somebody who valued her highly and assured her of his sentiments clearly and frequently, both by word and deed. Life, dult gray life, was going to change its hue for her presently, and not long after.

she hoped, for Waitstill too. The "publishing" of Cephas and his third choice, their dull walk up the aisle of the meeting house before an admiring throng on the Sunday when Phoebe would "appear bride," all this seemed very tame as compared with the dreams of this ardent and adventurous pair of lovers who had gone about for days harboring secrets greater and more daring, they thought, than had ever been breathed before within the hearing of Saco water.

Love's Young Dream. was not an afternoon for day dreams, for there was a chill in the air and a gray sky. Only a week before the bills along the river might have been the walls of the New Jerusalem, shining like red said. Patty was a capricious creature, but all her changes were sudden and endearing ones, captivating those who loved her more than a monotonous and unchauging virtue. Any little shower with Patty always ended with a rainbow, that made the mudscape more enchanting than before. Of late her little coquetries and petuianes had disappeared as if by magic. She had been melted somehow from trresponsible girlhood into womanhood and that, too, by the ardent affection of a very ordinary young man who had no great gift save that of loving Patty greatly. The love had served its purpose in another way, too, for under its influence Mark's own manhood had broadened and deepened. He longed to bind l'atty to him for good and all, to capture the bright bird whose fluttering wings and burnished plumage so captured his senses and stirred his heart, but his longings had changed with the quality of his love, and he glowed at the thought of delivering the girl from her dreary surroundings and giving her the tenderness, the ease and comfort, the innocent gayety, that her nature

"I've given the town clerk due notice and I have a friend to meet me at his office. He is going to lend me his horse for the drive bome, and we shall change back the next week. That will give us a fresh horse each way and we'll fly like the wind, snow or no snow. When we come down Guide Board bill that night, Patty, we shall be man and wife; isn't that wonderful?"

"We shall be man and wife in New Hampsbire, but not in Maine, you say," Party reminded him delefully. J. D. ATWATER, Genoa, New York.

HERE is a well grounded bellet among Republicans throughout the state that Charles S. Whit man, the militant district attorney of New York county, will be the party's choice for governor this year and that he will bear the Republican standard to victory

In response to this sentiment, ex pressed to him not only by representa tives of the rank and file of the Republican party, but by many leaders representing the best element of the party. Mr. Whitman has announced his candidacy for designation in the forthcoming Republican primaries.

In announcing his candidacy Mr. Whitman has not followed the traditional method. He has issued no wordy statement appealing to the voters of his party; he has sounded no verbal tomtoms, nor has he launched into the flow of political rhetoric which usually characterizes the entry of a candidate into the field.

A Man of Deeds.

That is not Mr. Whitman's way Those who know him best-those who know his record as a public servantcharacterize him as a man of deeds, not words. His whole career as a public servant has borne out this statement When Mr. Whitman has something to say he does not beat about the bush to flush the coveys of

In announcing his candidacy Mr Whitman said simply this:

I expect to be a candidate for nomination for governor in the Republican primaries. I have entered into no deal or arrangement-with anybody as to my nomination, and I shall not make any such arrangement or enter into any deal with

When Colonel Roosevelt returned from Europe late in June and announced that he would not allow the Progressive party to indorse the candidacy of Mr. Whitman for governor, on the ground that he believed State Chairman Barnes favored Mr. Whitman's candidacy, the latter was asked for an expression of opinion. In his characteristically simple style Mr. Whitman

I am not and never have been subserve ent to Mr. Barnes or to Mr. Roosevelt, and I do not propose to be so now, whether I am supported by either or not. I think the public has learned that I speak the

Those are the only two political utterances from Mr. Whitman thus far. They are in keeping with the character of the man. When the time is ripe for him to talk he does so simply and without ostentation, but directly to the

The Standard Bearer.

It is deeds, not words, with which Mr. Whitman has built the fabric of a reputation for fearless Integrity, aggressive energy and untiring devotion to duty-a reputation which has forced him to the front as the Republican party's standard bearer in the gubernatorial campaign of 1914.

For twelve years Mr. Whitman has served the public. At the beginning of Mayor Low's administration in New York city (1902) Mr. Whitman was appointed assistant corporation counsel and as such was designated to represent the interests of the city of New York at Albany during the Jegislative sessions of 1902 and 1903. There by practical experience he gained an insight into the workings of state and municipal affairs which has ripened and broadened with the succeeding

During the administration of Mayor Low Mr. Whitman was his personal legal adviser, thus coming into intimate touch with the various depart ments of New York city, obtaining a clear understanding of the city's financial system and policy and the various provisions of the charter.

Established the Night Court.

in recognition of his work Mayor low appointed Mr Whitman city magistrate, and although a majority of the board of city magistrates at that time were Democrats, Mr. Whitman was elected president of the board and during his incumbency obtained many reforms in magistrate courts' pro cedure. The establishment of the night court and the breaking up of the pernicious straw ball bond system were among his reforms.

So impressed was Governor Charles E. Hughes with Mr. Whitman's abili ty as a lawyer and as a servant of the people that he appointed him to the bench of the court of general sessions. In the fall of 1900 Mr. Whitman was nominated by the fusion party in New York county and indorsed by the Civic alliance as the district attorney of the county of New York. He was elected by a majority of more than 29,000. In the fall of 1913 an unprecedented thing happened. Mr. Whitman was renominated not only by his own party-the Republican party-to succeed himself as district attorney, but was indorsed by the Democratic party, the Progressive party, the Independence league and the Prohibition party. He was practically unanimously re-elected for the further term of four years. Such a compliment was never before paid to a public servant in New York.

With a record such as this Mr. Whit man could not fail to give to New York state an administration fearlessly honst-an administration in which effi-

IN THIS STATE? That is what the coming election will determine. If Charles 8 Whi: man, district attorney to New York county, had consented to sell his man hood and accept the boss-ship of Roose velt his candidacy for the governor bit would have been enthusiastically in dorsed by the third termers in thi state, who masquerade under the name of Progressives.

Whitman would not consent to wor

Complaisant, Whitman could have had the bull moose indorsement. Everybody knows that

Because he would not, but preferred to put his fate in the hands of the Republican masses of this state at the primaries and later submit his case to the whole people, the threat of th third ticket is to be carried out.

whom to try blackmail. He has sent many blackmailin: grafters away, and it may be mention ed in passing his chief object in suck ing the governorship now is to put .h grafters ir prison and recover the many millions stolen from the people of this state. Only the success of the Roosevelt plans can prevent him from doing the things he was prevented from doing by the present agent of Tammany, who is without election in the gubernatorial chair. - Brooklyn Standard Union.

Charles S. Whitman enters the race for the gubernatorial nomination with the brightest prospect of success There may possibly be other cand: dates. That would indicate a healthy condition in the party. It points out convincingly the fact that the Repub lican party goes into the campaign. with enthusiasm and confidence. But no candidate mentioned thus far begins to measure up to all the elements of strength that Mr. Whitman possesses and with Mr. Whitman holding aloft

Under the heading "Roosevelt Mail ice" the New York World prints the following editorial:

Mr. Roosevelt's attack on District Attorney Whitman is mean, malicious and contemptible.

What if Mr. Barnes does favor Mr. Whitman's nomination for governor by the Republicans? Does that make the district attorney a Barnes "rubbe stamp?" Mr. Roosevelt was nominal ed for governor by Platt. Did that make him Platt's rubber stamp? He was nominated for vice president by Platt and Quay. Did that make tiln Platt and Quay's rubber stamp?

Mr. Whitman has been district after ney of New York county for more than five years. There is no office in the state that offers more numerous of more subtle opportunities to play ma chine politics. CAN MR. ROOSEVELT NAME A SINGLE INSTANCE IN WHICH THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE UNDER MR. WHIT MAN HAS EVER BEEN SWERVEL BY SO MUCH AS A HAIR'S BREADTH BY POLITICAL CON SIDERATIONS?

A man who has been president of the United States should be ashamed to try to besmirch an honest, conscientious public official of Mr. Whitman's character. That is the sort of thing that Mr. Roosevelt has been shrieking against for thirty years.

"HE SUITS THE PEOPLE," says the Watertown Daily Standard, refer ring to the candidacy of Charles S Whitman for the Republican nomina tion for governor.

The New York Evening Post, an in dependent paper, comments interest ingly on the following statement of Colonel Roosevelt:

It is evidently the intention of the Barnes machine to run either Mr Whit man or some other man on whose sub serviency they can count-in short, to have a rubber stamp ticket from top to bottom, a ticket of which the personnel would be wholly unimportant.

In answer to Colonel Roosevelt's at tack the Post says:

"No, there cannot be the least truth in the reports that the colonel has come back from South America a changed man. It was the old Roosevelt who declared with a snap of the jaws that 'if my friend Perkins goes go.' It is the old Roosevelt who flings out this outrageous characteri zation of a public servant who has won extraordinary popularity by displaying the very opposite of the qualities Mr. Roosevelt brands him with The Evening Post has regretted that Mr. Whitman yielded to his aspirations for the governorship. With opportunities for such wide usefulness in the district attorney's office it seemed a mistaks, tactically and otherwise, for Mr. Whitman to show himself enget to abandon the place to which he was unanimously elected. But it would be ter, and serve with a cottage pudding, on the way just now; purhaps just at brutally unjust, if it were not ludicrously unjust, to apply the term rubusual courage and persistence, has car- time, will wear very much longer than what but the prace one toll the tenegable night against intrenched evil for this city."

SOMETHING GOOD TO EAT.

A raisin sauce is most delicious with corned tongue, or in fact with beef in any form.

Beef a la Mode, With Raisins.-Cut quarter of a pound of salt pork into strips and fry in a pan, until crisp, with a sliced onion, using beef drippings for the frying medium. Lay a compact round of beef on them, add a pint of boiling water, cover and cook ten minutes, turning the beef three times during the time. Take up the beef and lay it in a dripping pan, dredge with flour and baste with the gravy. Strain the gravy from the frying pan, thicken with flour, season with salt, teaspoonful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of chopped raisins and the same of blanched and shredded almonds; cook five minutes, then pour around the meat.

Cottage Pudding.—Cream a tablepoonful of softened butter with a cup of powdered sugar; add two well beaten eggs, salt a half teaspoonful, and a cup of sweet milk, alternating with 11/2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder; two cups of flour. The amount of flour varies, sometimes more may be needed. The batter must be quite thin, as the pudding is much more delicate in texture if little flour is used. Bake in a flat tin and cut in squares. Serve with a lemon sauce. Mix well a cup of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour and a half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg; add a cup of boiling water and cook until the starch in the flour is well cooked, then add the juice of a lemon, if very large a half may do; a tablespoonful of butter, a bit of the grated rind may be used instead of the nutmeg, if so desired.

g, Abide with us; for it is toward evenand the day is far spent. And ho went in to tarry with them. Luke Mills

What a great and gracious gospel is proclaimed and made possible by the central fact of Easter; for without the resurrection Jesus Christ from the dead there is no evangel for the minister to preach and no gospel to save those who might believe no salvation from sin, no sun to drive away darkness and despair, no hope of heaven. Paul lays great emphasis upon these vital things in I Corinthians 15:12-19.

It is significant that after his resurrection, Jesus appeared only to his disciples; and of these, first to those who needed him most. There is deep meaning in the very order of the recorded appearances after his resurrection. First, to Mary, probably the most heart-broken of all the little band; then to Peter, who had denied him, and since then had been weeping bitter tears of repentance; then to the two sad and weary ones on the way to Emmaus who were saying, "We trusted it had been he who should have redeemed Israel."

On the Emmaus Road.

Let us consider this story of the first Easter Sunday evening. There is a peculiar charm in it, and the very simplicity wins our hearts. How realistic it is, how true to life, how pahad been away in the tomb, a few days Well stewed prunes with whipped before; some gave account of strange grave doubt still possessed many of the disciples; and now these two are on their homeward way, sorrowfu! as they go, under the shadow of a great perplexing mystery. Perhaps light and comfort will come in the quiet and rest of home.

As they journeyed a stranger joined frem, inquiring the cause of their sorrow, and learning what he knew, their perplexity about what had happened that day. It was not strange that they did not know him To Abraham he came as a wayfaring man, to Joshua as a soldier, to Jacob as a wrestler, to Mary as a gar-lener; besides their eyes were holden. But, meeting their perplexity and doubt, with a precious unfolding of the Scriptures, "beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself." Four blessings came to these sorrowing travelers from their unknown companion-their minds were opened, their hearts burned within them, their eyes were opened, and he revealed himself as set forth in all the Scrip-

The Gracious Revelation.

"And he made as though he would have gone further. But they constrained him . . . and he went in to tarry with them." That is one of the sweetest touches in the story. But what a calamity if they had let this unknown companion go on his way-no-A few tablespoonfuls of canned corn gracious revelation of the very Christ with a cupful of bread crumbs; makes | And your calamity will be great if you do not constrain the tarrying Jesus to come in and abide with you. Oh, bid the dear Savior come in.

Can burning hearts keep back the message? These disciples were filled with joy. Possibly they did not wait to finish the meal, for they rose up that same hour, hastening to Jerusalem to tell the glad story about the risen Lord who had considered it worth while to take time on the first day of his resurrection to walk seven miles into the country with two sorrow-stricken disciples.

And this Christ with the tender heart is with us yet. The evangel of Easter is the glad news of a Savior. who by his resurrection from dead, has power to raise our souls from death. As you accept Christ, the very omnipotence of God will work within in your daily life a share in the research rection of Christ. Today we know that DISEASE COMES FROM PEOPLE. The disease germs are parasites. Every case of communicable disease from a common cold to tuberculosis or the bubonic plague is caused by the transfer of germs FROM ONE PERSON TO ANOTHER, or sometimes from an animal like the cow or the rat, in which the disease germs grow as they do in a human being.

This is why the health officer is today interested particularly in PEOPLE, NOT IN THINGS. If he can get hold of the sick people and stop their dangerous germs from getting away into water or onto food or fingers to infect others he can do more in the prevention of diswase than in any other way. The public health council of New York state has just issued the first two chapters of a new sanitary code for the state dealing with communicable diseases. There are many things in this code which only concern the health officer, but there are other things which every intelligent citizen should know if he is to do his part to keep himself and his state healthy. Some of them we are going to discuss in this column

during the next few weeks. THE FIRST ESSENTIAL IN CONTROLLING DISEASE IS TO KNOW WHERE THE CASES ARE, AND THE FIRST SEC-TIONS OF THE CODE ARE PROPERLY DEVOTED TO RE-

PORTING COMMUNICABLE DISEASE. There are twenty-four different communicable diseases listed in the code, which it is important that the health department should know about. It is the duty of the PHYSICIAN to report any one of these diseases to the local health officer within TWENTY-FOUR HOURS after he has seen the case. The SUPERINTENDENT OR PERSON IN CHARGE OF EVERY HOSPITAL, OTHER INSTITUTION OR DISPENSARY must report any cases that occurrin his institution in the same way. If no physician is in attendance the code requires that TEACHERS must report to school principals, and SCHOOL PRINCIPALS must report to the local health officer ALL, FACTS RELAT-ING TO THE ILLNESS AND PHYSICAL CONDITION OF ANY CHILD WHO APPEARS TO BE AFFECTED WITH ANY DIS-DASE PRESUMABLY COMMUNICABLE. Suspicious cases of illness must be reported in the same way by PROPRIÉTORS OR KEEP-HOUSES, BY VISITING NURSES AND PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES AND PERSONS IN CHARGE OF ANY LABOR OR OTHER CAMP, BY MASTERS OR PERSONS IN CHARGE OF VESSELS AND BY OWNERS OR PERSONS IN CHARGE OF FARMS OR DAIRIES PRODUCING ANY FOOD PRODUCTS

LIKELY TO BE EATEN RAW. Remomber, this is for your protection, and do all you can to help the enforcement of the law. It is the other people in the household of a sick person who are most in danger, and if the case is promptly reported the health officer will tell you how to protect the rest of the family as well as the public at large.

Of all oriental workmen the Chinese are undoubtedly the best, though there may be some with experience of both races who may be disposed to give the palm to the Japanese. A European ness, and who is able to impart his knowledge and his instructions in a clear manner to his Chinese subordinate, and who moreover is blessed with a little patience and tact, will find little difficulty in the management and control of Chinese labor of whatever kind.

Yet a great London sportsman has spent 16 years, several million dollars, and a stupendous amount of keen thinking in his endeavor to gain title to this carefully guarded object. The

The challenge was brought over by a committee consisting of Vice-Commodore R. G. Sherman Crawford of the challenging club, H. M. McGildowney and Hugh C. Kelly, accompanied by the new yacht's designer, William Fife, Jr., and Charles Russell. Immediately all was bustle in New York Yacht club circles. It is understood J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, furnished the money to build the defending yacht, the Columbia. The cup

Robinson, Secretary J. V. S. Oddie, S. Nicholson. Kane, C. O. K. Iselin and E. M. Brown. Messrs. Robinson, Oddie, Kane and Brown are now dead.

The Herreshoffs again got the job of building the defender. They constructed the sloop Constitution, the money being supplied by August Belmont, James Stillman, Oliver H. Payne, F. G. Bourne and Henry Walters. Capt. Urias Rhodes sailed her.

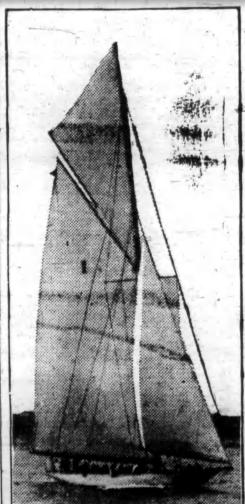

Poor Thomas W. Lawson of Boston built the Independence and wanted a chance to pit her against the Constitution and Columbia in the official trials, but the lordly New York Yacht club decided he was barred because not one of their members.

The Constitution was the victim of an accident like that which had happened to the Columbia off Point Judith the year before. She lost her mast at Newport and was badly damaged. The Columbia was finally selected to defend the cup a second time.

The Shamrock II, which was designed by George L. Watson, came to grief in the Solent May 22, 1901, while King Edward VII was on board. Like the Constitution and the Columbia her tall mast was too much for her in a strong blow and went overboard. But she was fixed up and towed across the Atlantic, making the trip in 16 days. The challenger was beaten by the Columbia three successive times by 1 minute 20 seconds, 3 minutes 35 seconds and 41 seconds, respectively.

Watson and Fife jointly design the Shamrock III, which was launched at Dumbarton, Scotland, March 17, 1903, and christened by the same Lady Shaftesbury, who broke the bottle over this year's craft. Captains Wringe and Bevis sailed her. The Reliance and the Shamrock III made nine starts in 1903, but only completed three races, all of which were won by the American yacht, the first by 7 minutes 3 seconds and the second by 1 minute and 18 seconds. Shamrock missed the finish line in the fog in the. third race and her time was not taken.

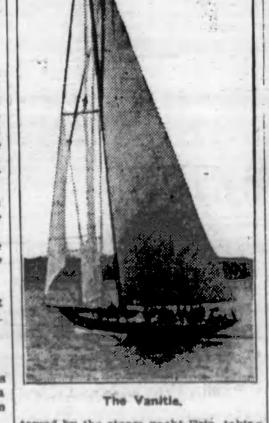

Sir Thomas sent over a new challenge in 1907, but nothing came of it, save futile jockeying. The Americans would not compete against Sir. Thomas' 68-foot rating sloop. The New York Yacht club declared that "the America's cup, held by this club as trustee, under the deed of gift, is a trophy which stands pre-eminently for speed and for the utmost skill in designing, construction, managing and handling the competing vessels and should, therefore, be sailed for by the fastest and most powerful vessels that can be produced."

Still Sir Thomas did not give up: He sent over more offers and after much parleying a race was finally agreed upon for this year. Should Sir Thomas come a cropper with his freak boat this autumn, there is no reason for thinking he will not be right back again, say in 1916 or 1917. He believes in sticking and he does want that cup. The cup is now * more than sixty years old. It cost less than $500 when new and would not be worth one-third of that today. . The trophy was offeredby the Royal Yacht squadron for a America won it on August 23, 1851, in a race around the late of Wight, off
