WHY WEAK LUNGS?

The toll of tuberculosis is claiming more than 350 victims every day in the United States, yet few realize their grave condition until the critical period arrives. Overwork, worry, weakness after sickness, catarrh, bronchitis, tender throats—all exert the weakening influence that invites consumption. To guard against consumption, thousands of people take Scott's Emulsion after meals because its rich medicinal nourishment strengthens the lungs, puts vigor in the blood, and upbuilds strength to resist tuberculosis. Scott's Emulsion is nature's strength-builder. Refuse substitutes.

ALL SERBIAN MEN ENLIST IN ARMY

Even Women Aid In Protecting Country From Enemies.

A MOST PATRIOTIC RACE.

If United States Were to Call to Colors
as Many Men in Proportion to Her Size It Would Mean an Army of Perhaps 12,000,000 Men — Compulsory Service Is Personal.

Washington.—Little Serbia, the excuse for the great European war, has one of the best armies—perhaps the best—of any country in proportion to its size. There is not a more patriotic race in the world. Serbia's sons are always ready to take up arms and defend their country. Even Serbian women carry arms in battle. If the United States should call to the colors as many men in proportion to the population as Serbia has it would mean an army of upward of 8,000,000 men. This does not take into account the fact that the recent wars in the little country have made such fatal inroads into the percentage of adult male population. Probably, if the United States called as many men to the colors in

KING PETER OF SERBIA.

proportion to the adult male population, it would mean an army of 12,000, 000 men.

These figures show what a heavy hand Austria-Hungary laid upon the little country whose army gave such a remarkable account of itself during the two wars it has just passed through before this third one descended upon it. How terrible the ravages of the wars in the near east have been is indicated by the census of conquered territory taken by Bulgaria in the early months of the present year. That count showed that where previous to the wars there had been a population of 702,000 there is now a population of only 301,000. Of course Serbia did not suffer that much, but these figures are indicative of the great wars it had to face. Military critics everywhere admit that in matters of discipline, leadership, adamant spirit and elan there is no army its size in the world that can make a better showing than the Serbian army made during its wars with Turkey and Bulgaria.
It is a fighting force that is conceded to have every quality of strength that a military machine may possess.

Its plan of organization is distinctive.
Compulsory service is personal for all able-bodied men and pecuniary for all who are incapable of personal service.
These latter must pay an indirect tax of 30 per cent additional.

The military forces are divided into a national army and the landsturm which forms the last line of defense.
Service in the national army begins at twenty-one and ends after forty-five.
In the landsturm it begins at seventeen, ends at twenty-one, begins again at forty-six and ends at fifty.

The national army consists of three bans, the first ban including all able-bodied men between twenty-one and thirty-one, the second ban all between thirty-one and thirty-eight and the third those between thirty-eight and forty-five.

The first ban has its cadre, a school through which every able-bodied man of twenty-one must pass. No one is allowed to change his nationality while belonging to the first ban, nor can any member thereof receive any outside appointment or become even a monk until he has served his term in the army.

The term of service in the standing cadre is two years in the cavalry and artillery and one and a half years in the other branches of the establishment. There is a six months' service for those in the schools of the country who can pass an examination for lieutenant of reserves.

All those who possess cattle and subsistence are under obligation to turn them over to the army when needed.
Those who do not possess cattle and substance have 5 per cent added to their tax for the reserve fund.

God in His Universe

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"I am Jehovah, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I will gird thee, though thou hast not known me." Isa. 45: 5, R. V.

It is said in the Bible of certain men that God is not in all their thoughts, which might be interpreted, God is not in any of their thoughts. Multitudes do not think upon God, act as if there were no God,
and are practically atheists. While men do not theoretically deny the existence of God,
in fact, they do so in ignoring him. In an editorial in a reputable daily newspaper, entitled,

"God Not to Blame," commendation was given to a Unitarian minister who, in speaking of the recent burning of a club house in St. Louis, where more than thirty persons lost their lives, said that the disaster was to be attributed to "criminal stupidity and obstinacy." Commendation was also given to another minister, who said that the disaster was an "evidence of the shallow fashion in which men accept social responsibility." In connection with these commendations this was said: "It used to be the fashion to blame God for such disasters, or at least to speak of them as mysterious dispensations of his providence. We have outgrown that cowardly and unintelligent viewpoint." The question arises in connection with this editorial, Was God asleep when the club house burned, or was he so far away that he could not get information of the event? Such questions seem ridiculous, even blasphemous, for God was awake and everywhere immanent.
Granting that as to human responsibility the remarks of both the ministers referred to were correct, does that rule God out? God may work through men or events for the accomplishment of his mysterious providence, as he may work without them. How could the destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum, of St. Pierre, of Galveston, or of San Francisco be connected with criminal stupidity and obstinacy? As far as men can see, man could have nothing to do with those occurrences, and yet they were disasters greater than that in St. Louis.
Had God anything to do with them?
How God is in such events we are not able to explain, and so short-sighted are we in the face of disaster that cannot be charged to human stupidity and obstinacy that all we can do is to acknowledge that we cannot understand, and to say, "For so it seemed good in thy sight."

In the text there are three things to be noticed. God claims to be Lord, in the words, "I am Jehovah and there is none else." That is to say, "In all the great universe, I am the supreme God, I created the universe, I made the laws to control it, and nothing transpires within it without my knowledge." If we concede the knowledge of God, logic compels us to say that everything is according to his purpose, however we fail to reconcile some things with the character of God as loving and merciful.

God says to Cyrus, I will gird thee, which means, I will strengthen thee.
As the armies of Cyrus swept over Asia, and kingdom after kingdom fell before him, as the great walls of Babylon, presumably impregnable, were no barrier to his entrance into the city, doubtless Cyrus would be tempted to think of himself as a great world conqueror, in the style of ancient days, although we do not have record to that effect. God had a great work for Cyrus to do, and, to impress this upon him, tells him that the strength that he would show in his military success was simply God's strength. In modern times great political, social and military movements are made, and those making them largely ignore God, but God is in all of them. God was moving in the Russo-Japanese war, in the Chinese revolution, in the war in the Balkan states, and he is now moving in Great Britain in connection with the Irish question, and in Mexico in connection with the civil war. In all the great movements of modern times, in the great inventions, and all accomplishments of men that are the wonder of an onlooking world, God is moving.

The charge of God against Cyrus was that as yet he was not recognizing God. That is precisely what we believe that editorial failed to do in connection with the St. Louis disaster.
God was not ignorant of that disaster,
nor of the burning of the steamer Slocum, nor of the sinking of the Titanic, although in connection with all these events man was criminally stupid and obstinate.

As the president of the United States is watchfully waiting the issue of the struggle in Mexico, so ought man to watchfully wait as he sees God working in the world. Shakespeare was not wrong when he said:
"There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough how them how we may."

A MARKET IN SPAIN.

With a Bargain in Cheese Plus the Price of the Compliments.

At early morning the market place of Medina is a rare sight, says C. Bogue Luffmann in his "Quiet Days in Spain." It is thronged with hundreds of tilted carts and pack animals, loaded with all the materials that the population requires. So universal is the practice of buying in the market square that there are very few shops, and those are both small and old fashioned.

At a stall in the market place a bright eyed dapper little woman was offering tiny cheeses of goat's milk. A countryman examined one carefully, tucked it in his pocket and put down a real. I thought the cheese a bargain and said to the little woman, "I'll have one," and gave her a peseta, which is four reals. She beamed and gave back two reals. I remarked, "The price of the cheese is one real."
"Ah," said she, with a winning smile, "but you are a caballero." (A nobleman.)

I enjoyed her audacity so much that I had to laugh and say, "You are a little rogue," and she, seeing that she had beaten me, curtsied and laughed as she cried, "Ah, great señor mine, you are many times a caballero!"
I do not complain. Such incidents and compliments are cheap at the price.

ROYAL DOUBLES.

Understudies Who Played the Role of Monarch in Public.

In a land of distrust like Russia, it is only natural that the precautions taken should be of the most drastic order; hence the use of a royal understudy who has always been a conspicuous figure at that court. Indeed, it was the understudy of the late Czar Alexander III.—a man named Komaroff—who was murdered in Moscow some years ago, when the murderer thought he had covered himself with glory by assassinating the czar.

Nicholas, like his father before him, has an understudy, and the many state functions he attended at the opening of his reign, when the relations with his people were less strained than they are today, were attended for the most part by proxy.
No monarch, however, made such frequent use of his understudy as the late Emperor William of Germany. Every day as the clock struck 12 the emperor came out and bowed on the palace balcony. It was not until some time after the emperor's demise that the secret was made known that the man who appeared daily on the balcony was the royal understudy. And the person who gave the secret away was the great Bismarck.—London Black and White.

Trinidad's Asphalt Lake.

The proverb about the folly of building on sand might be written to include the vicinity of the Trinidad asphalt lake. This remarkable body of pitch is perhaps the nearest thing to the "goose which laid the golden egg" that has ever been found, for it has the obliging faculty of replacing during the night the asphalt which has been dug from its surface during the day.

That the replenishment "comes from somewhere" was graphically illustrated a short time ago when a house located near the edge of the lake began settling on one side, not to stop until the digging of pitch in that vicinity ceased.

The pitch is dug laboriously from the lake by negroes, using pick and shovel, and is carried on an overhead tramway directly to the waiting ships.—Wide World Magazine.

As a Clown Sees Us.

"It is lots of fun to watch the big crowds that throng the circus or any huge amusement place," says a famous clown. "Just as soon as they get within the doors they all grow younger except the children, and they become just a wee bit older. Highbrows call it the psychology of the happy crowd, but we clowns say it's the old uns getting gay."

"A great big crowd, no matter how old or dignified they may be in everyday life, are just about nine years when they smell the sawdust in the ring. My, it's fun to watch them! Many a time we clowns laugh in real happiness just because the 'old uns' make us laugh with their happiness."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BULL PLOWS OF PERU.

Primitive Methods and Implements Still Used in Farming.

The tilling of the soil is done in the crudest way not only in Peru, but throughout the whole of South America. Outside of the wheat fields of the Argentine, the methods would not do credit to the Egyptians in the days of Rameses. In fact, the bull plow as it is used in Peru today dates back to the kings of the first dynasty of Egypt.

The plow, the Peruvian spade and the grub hoe, which latter is simply a crooked stick with an iron shoe, are the three implements of agriculture in Peru today. No implement is found to crush the hard lumps of ground in the plowed fields. This is done by the women and children with a short club like a ball bat. Corn is planted by using a sharp stick to make a hole in the ground. Then the kernel is dropped in the hole and covered by a push of the bare foot on the softened earth.

Rain is not a necessity in these valleys. The natives have made admirable irrigating ditches that convey an abundance of water to every portion of the cultivated fields. The water moistens the roots of the corn from day to day, or turned into the ditches that follow the cane fields it becomes a potent factor in the luxuriant growth of the sugar cane. The best sugar cane in the world is grown in Peru, but 90 per cent of it is used, I am told, to make rum.—National Magazine.

LUCERNE'S QUIANT BRIDGE.

In its Center is an Old Time Prison and Torture Chamber.

Lucerne, in Switzerland, possesses what is probably the most curious bridge in the world as well as one of the greatest historic interest. This bridge, known as the Kapellbrücke, or "Chapel bridge," crosses the River Reuss at its junction with Lake Lucerne. It was constructed so long ago as 1333 and for nearly 600 years has formed the chief avenue of traffic across the broad but sluggish stream. In other days the bridge extended its zigzag shape to nearly twice its present length and reached as far as the hofkirche, or cathedral, whence its name.

In the center of this covered wooden bridge stands the famous octagonal "wasserthurm," or water tower, where in olden times the municipal treasure was stored. For ages it was also used as a prison, and among its dungeons is a torture chamber. But the most unique feature of all consists of the series of curious pictures in the roof of the bridge. There are sixty-nine of these painted on triangular wooden panels fitted into the pitched roof of the bridge. One after another they tell the salient facts of Swiss history or portray events in the life of the saints of the town, St. Leodegar and St. Maurice.—Washington Star.

Footprints in Stone.

From time to time amateur geologists unhampered by "book learning" make as they suppose wonderful discoveries in the primeval rocks. They find what they hail not as footprints on the sands of time, but footprints of men and animals on flat rock surfaces and slabs of stone. The real origin of such hollows is now known to be the former presence of concretions which have in time been worn out. In every part of the earth such "footprints" have been found. The most remarkable of these is a print two feet long on the top of a lofty hill called Adam's peak, in the island of Ceylon, which is believed by the natives to be the stamp of the foot of Buddha as he left the earth and sprang into heaven, and it is accordingly an object of worship.—London Globe.

Novelties in Old Fleet Street.

Fleet street was formerly the wonder place of London, where all that was novel, bizarre and marvelous was exhibited by enterprising showmen. Ben Jonson alludes to "a new notion of the city of Nineveh, with Jonah and the whale, at Fleet bridge," and at the "Eagle and Child" was exhibited a collection of freaks and monstrosities that set the whole town agape. In 1710, too, were advertised as on exhibition at Fleet bridge "two strange, wonderful and remarkable monstrous creatures, an old she dromedary, seven feet high and ten feet long, lately arrived from Tartary, with her young one, being the greatest wonder, rarity and novelty ever seen in the three kingdoms."—London Express.

Worse Off Than He Thought.

Shadboit—Well, I'm $50 worse off than I was yesterday morning. Dings—How's that? Shadboit—I was held up by footpads on my way home last night and robbed. Dings—I'm sorry for you, old man. But they didn't get the $5 I borrowed of you before you started home, anyhow. Shadboit—That's so. I forgot that. I'm $55 worse off than I was yesterday morning.—Chicago Tribune.

A Matter of Feet.

"If one did not know better," remarked an observant man, "he would be inclined to believe an aviator is akin to a centipede. Not long ago I was telling a friend that a certain airman had dropped forty-five feet. 'Yes?' he asked. 'And how many has he left?'"—New York Tribune.

Women Physicians.

Women physicians are not a modern innovation. There were plenty of them among the ancient Greeks, some of them being famous.

Let no man think he is loved by any one when he loves no man.—Epictetus.

HAVOC AT LIEGE SICKENING SIGHT

Horrors of Modern War Are Vividly Described.

MEN MOWED DOWN IN HEAPS

Mutilation Worse Than Killing Outright—Refugees Tell of Advancing Into the Jaws of Death Until It Was Sheer Impossibility to Go Farther. Fine Heroism of Women.

Count Ehrenberg, correspondent of the New York Tribune and the London Standard, has sent a story to those papers of the attack at Liege from the invaders' point of view. Details of the terrible scenes enacted chilled even the hearts of the soldiers. The count quotes his informant, a German soldier, as follows:

"I took part in the earlier attacks on the Belgians defending Liege, and though I am not a coward the sights I saw and the wholesale slaughter of our men filled me with dread. Again and again we advanced, always in close formation, lying and shooting at an elevation given us by officers, running forward and dropping again on our stomachs, continuing to fire and advancing once more, always nearer, nearer to the lines of our enemy.

"As we pressed forward our ranks became thinner and thinner. Shells burst among us, killing and wounding, and such wounds were far worse than death itself, while the rifle fire of the Belgians mowed down our men in dozens, scores, hundreds.

Words Fail to Describe Horrors.

"Have you ever been under fire, ever pushed forward against the invisible enemy, with comrades dropping either dead or mutilated all around you? Ever seen the effect of modern artillery trained on masses of human beings? Ever seen heaps of dead and mangled bodies mixed together? Ever heard the cries of fallen soldiers who were obliged to leave to their sufferings in order to continue the battle? If not you cannot imagine what we went through at Liege. Some of our attacks were by day and others by night.

"Our officers, reckless in their bravery, led us, urged us, encouraged us to throw away our lives. I think there was much unnecessary bloodshed. We marched straight at the enemy's lines and toward the mouths of hostile artillery as if on maneuver in a field of sham opponents. It was magnificent, but not war, as war should be conducted in this age with more destructive weapons.

"If there were moments when we broke and ran it was because a further advance into the jaws of death was a sheer impossibility. After the first assaults, with their disastrous endings, the spirit of the attackers was broken. Deep depression followed the buoyant charge with which we marched into the enemy's country. The lack of enthusiasm spread through all the ranks and retarded success, yet with relentless discipline we were required to hurl ourselves repeatedly at lines which seemed unbreakable.

Fresh Troops to Slaughter.

"Then, when only a fraction of our regiment survived, we moved to a different part of the battlefield, while fresh troops were brought up to go through the same course of action. It was common talk among our men that hundreds of wounded were left for hours without any kind of adequate attention, for the simple reason it was impossible to reach them without almost certain death.

"Their sufferings were heartrending beyond the powers of description, and there were sights and sounds that even amid the din of battle shook our nerves and struck terror to our hearts. The bravest of men may well be full of fear on a modern battlefield."

The German who told this tale of war, says the correspondent, was well educated and a conscript from a middle class family. His companions had similar things to relate.

The wholesale cremation of bodies of German soldiers killed in the fighting before Liege also was described by the German fugitives who have crossed the frontier into Holland. During two or three successive nights after the fearful carnage around the forts of Liege the Germans collected their dead and piled them in heaps of twenty or thirty each.

Women Repulse Uhlans.

As illustrating the bravery with which the Belgians resisted invasion of their territory, details have been received of the defense of Herstal, a village just outside of Liege, by women workers in the Belgian national arms factory.

The men were away fighting in the army, and the women entered into a compact to defend to the death the factory. They armed themselves with revolvers and other weapons, with which they repulsed several charges of the uhlans.

When their ammunition was exhausted the women barricaded themselves in the factory houses, from which they poured boiling water on the German soldiers. It is declared that 2,500 Germans were disabled by wounds and scalds. Children and old men shared in the defense.

A TRUE BENEFACTOR.

Oh, Christopher Columbus, we are much obliged to you
For keeping up the courage of your discontented crew,
And even now a duty of apology remains
For the way that people flouted you and threw you into chains!

Our first discoverer they say was quite another chap.
But anyway you are the man who put us on the map.
We've grasped the opportunities that were presented here
And made it, on the whole, a happy little hemisphere.

Oh, Christopher Columbus, when the awful cannons speak
A fierce melange of languages, including even Greek.
We think of your adventures in the years so far away.
It's thanks to them that now we have a peaceful place to stay.

ALL SWITZERLAND AS A RED CROSS HOSPITAL CAMP

Disabled Fighters of Every Army Engaged Would Be Cared For.

The evening journal La Sera of Rome has received a message from Berne stating that the federal council has proposed a guarantee of neutrality and has offered to convert the whole of Switzerland into a colossal Red Cross hospital camp for the reception of the wounded, irrespective of nationality.

Surgery and medicine did not come into use on the battlefield before the last decade of the eighteenth century. Before that time wounded soldiers were either carried to the rear by their comrades or left unattended to and exposed until the fighting was over. Surgical assistance did not reach the battlefield until the day after the engagement or even later, and for many of the wounded it was then too late.

In 1792 Baron Dominique Jean Larrey of the French army introduced his system of "ambulances volantes" or flying field hospitals, capable of moving rapidly from place to place. They gave primary surgical treatment and removed the wounded quickly from the field. Napoleon warmly supported Larrey, and the system soon was brought to a high state of efficiency in the grand army.

The founder of the Red Cross society was Jean Henri Dunant, a philanthropic citizen of Geneva, Switzerland. On June 14, 1859, he chanced to be present at the battle of Solferino and was an eyewitness to the vast amount of unnecessary suffering that resulted from the inability of the regular surgical corps to care for the thousands of wounded who lay upon the field. Three years later he published a book describing the horrors of war and proposing volunteer societies to supplement the military surgical corps.
After the publication of his book an agitation began which resulted in calling an international conference at Geneva in 1863. In October of that year the Geneva convention was signed, which neutralized the surgical corps of hostile armies and volunteer societies caring for the wounded. The Geneva flag (the Red Cross) was adopted as the symbol for the International Red Cross society. Geneva has been since that time the headquarters of the International Red Cross society.

PORTABLE WAR CREMATORS.

Germans to Burn Dead on Field, Physician Hears.

Portable incinerators to be used for the cremation of the dead on the battlefield are to be used by the German army in the present war, according to advices received by Dr. Hugo Erichsen of Detroit, president of the Cremation Society of America.

"Cremation as practiced in the conflicts of the past has been of the crudest possible description," said Dr. Erichsen. "The general staff of the German army, however, has adopted a portable cremator that will be used on the battlefield and is capable of incinerating twenty-five bodies an hour. The ash, whenever possible, will be returned to Germany for burial."

"Moratorium."

The European war has introduced a new word into the United States. News dispatches announce that a "moratorium" has been declared in England and France. A New York bond house received a cable message from its London correspondent, which ended up "moratorium expected." The message was not in the code. The cable clerk consulted his code book and discovered that "moratorium" was the symbol for "we draw on you for $7,000." But this interpretation did not fit the sense of the message. Further investigation developed that "moratorium" means a period in which debts are suspended by proclamation.

WAR SNAPSHOTS.

The Kaiser has revived the Order of the Iron Cross, to be awarded for valor in this war.

At the moment Great Britain declared war on Germany there were 2,000 German steamships and 3,000 German sailing vessels in various parts of the world.

General von Emmich, commanding the German forces in Belgium, served as a lieutenant in the Franco-Prussian war forty-four years ago.

The king and queen of England have ordered that their chefs shall serve only the simplest foods on the royal table.

The Thousand Isles.

When Mother Nature first began
This wondrous ball of ours to plan,
She culled a lot of jewels rare
And laid them by with miser care.
These will I keep to deck the place
Where Nature mirrors best my face;
Where rock and water, earth and air
Combine to make it passing fair.
Finished, in modest pride she stood
And heard her God pronounce it good;
Then glancing round all wreathed in smiles,
Scattered her gems—the Thousand Isles.

Genoa Presbyterian Church.

Morning worship at 11:00 a. m.
Sabbath School immediately after morning service.
Mid-week prayer service Thursday evening at 7:45. Study for this week was from the life of Paul. Everyone, especially the young people are invited to come and join us in this service. Meeting will close promptly at 8:30.

On Tuesday evening and Wednesday, Sept. 29 and 30, the regular fall meeting of Cayuga Presbytery will be held in our local church. We trust that everyone will be ready to help in any way possible to make our visitors feel welcome. On Tuesday evening the present minister will be installed as pastor. It is hoped to make this meeting of special interest to everyone.

On Sunday, Oct. 4, the regular quarterly communion service. We hope to make this an unusually helpful service. It will be the first service held after the installation of the new pastor. We feel that there are many in the community who have been delaying uniting with the church. There are a number who have held their membership in other towns, but who are now making their homes in our town. We hope that there will be a goodly number who will unite with us at this communion season. The pastor will be very glad to talk with any who are considering this step. We hope that there will be some also who will bring their little ones to be baptized at this service.

Now that the fall season has come and people are returning from their vacations, we wish to urge everyone to rally to the support of the church. There is a great work before us this winter if we will unite our forces and each one be faithful. As a slight return for the way God is blessing us, as a nation and as individuals, is it not as little as we can do to show our appreciation, by our efforts to aid in every way possible in carrying on His work?

The Ever Faithful class of the Sunday school have decided to use the money which they had on hand when they joined the Baraca class, to decorate the session room of the church.

Elder--Sellen.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dey Sellen, near Homer, on Saturday, Sept. 12, their daughter, Lina Maria Sellen, became the bride of James William Elder of Homer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. L. Herr, pastor of the Baptist church of that place.

Ruth Sellen, sister of the bride, acted as ring bearer and Leona Nixon, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. The couple were unattended. The wedding march was played by Mrs. George Hyde. Nellie R. Young, cousin of the bride, sang "Oh Promise Me," and Fred J. Nixon, cousin of the bridegroom, sang "A Perfect Day."

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Elder are taking an auto trip through Western New York.

Mr and Mrs Dey Sellen were residents of Genoa at one time, and have relatives here at present.

Primary Day.

Primary day will be Monday, Sept. 28. Candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, United States senator and other state offices will be nominated on that day by a plurality of the votes cast in each political party. THE STORY OF A TYPHOID CARRIER

PUBLIC HEALTH HINTS

Prepared Each Week For the Readers of This Newspaper by the New York State Department of Health.

A MAN whom we may call Mr. X. had typhoid fever when a boy of fifteen in Wisconsin in 1863. Three years after he came to Camden, N. Y. He married in 1871 and began to operate a dairy farm in 1873.

In 1878 his daughter and his mother had typhoid fever; in 1886 a hired man on the farm had it; in 1893 another daughter and in 1897 another; in 1903 a hired man and in 1909 another hired man came down.

Meanwhile Mr. X. was selling milk in Camden right along. Meanwhile Camden was gaining a wide reputation as a typhoid center. Its death rate from typhoid had averaged four times the normal. The disease was so common that it was called CAMDEN FEVER.

In the summer of 1909 some of the milk from the X. dairy (usually sold in Camden) was shipped through a creamery to New York city. In August and September an epidemic of about 380 cases of typhoid broke out in New York AMONG THE CUSTOMERS OF THE CREAMERY WHICH HANDLED THE X. MILK. The New York City Department traced the epidemic to the X. farm and revealed this remarkable story. The typhoid bacillus was found in almost pure cultures in Mr. X.'s excreta.

FOR FORTY-SIX YEARS this man had been a "carrier" of typhoid fever; for forty-six years, while quite well himself, he had been A TYPHOID FACTORY, cultivating typhoid germs in his body and distributing them to his family and friends and customers.

Such carriers are common, not only in typhoid, but in diphtheria and many other diseases, and some of the most progressive hospitals make regular bacteriological examinations of their typhoid patients to determine whether the typhoid germs have disappeared before the patients are discharged.

In the Spanish-American war typhoid broke out in every regiment of volunteers soon after they went into camp, and in many cases there was no chance for infection from outside. In each group of a thousand supposedly healthy young men there were two or three carriers.

Diphtheria carriers are even more common. Bacteriological examination shows that TWO OR THREE OUT OF A HUNDRED HEALTHY CHILDREN are growing the diphtheria bacillus in their throats.

It is from the carriers that most of the puzzling mysterious cases come which were once thought to be due to sewer gas or upturned earth or old toys or books which had been used by some earlier sufferer from the disease. PEOPLE, NOT THINGS, ARE THE SOURCES OF COMMUNICABLE DISEASE, and it is particularly on account of carriers that clean food and clean hands are so essential as safeguards against disease.

Culinary Notes

Putting Up Rhubarb.

The end of the season rhubarb may be preserved for winter pies without being cooked at all. It will retain its freshness until the new supply comes on in the spring.

The rhubarb should be cut into three-quarter inch pieces and put into quart jars. When the jars are full water from the cold water faucet should be run into them until all the air is forced out. After all the air bubbles have come to the top of the mouth of the jars should be wiped dry and the covers screwed on with a can tightener. The jars should be kept standing in a cool place and the covers tightened each day. They should then be wrapped in paper and put in a dark closet not too near the heating pipes.

To make pie the water should be drained off and the same amount of sugar used as for fresh fruit. If the cans have been tight the fruit will be hard and solid.

Cantaloupe Pickle.

Firm, hard fruit should be selected for cantaloupe pickle, which is very good and very inexpensive. The fruit should be cut along the ridges and peeled. The softest part of the inside and the seeds should be cut out and the sections put into a quart jar lengthwise. The jars should be steamed in a steamer until they are hot, but before the fruit is cooked they should be taken out and filled with a hot sirup made of two pounds of sugar and one quart of vinegar to each four quarts of fruit. The spices—cloves, stick cinnamon and allspice—should be tied up in a piece of cheesecloth before being put in the jars.

Jars, covers and sirup should all be very hot before they are closed and should be sealed very tight. The pickle may be served with meat.

Delicious Tomato Sandwich.

Sandwiches will, with the opening of school, be in demand for the children's luncheon.

The tomato sandwich is piquant and appetizing.

Select large, smooth, meaty tomatoes, with few seeds. Slice very thin and place on ice while the other ingredients are being prepared. Mix together with a silver spoon till thick and creamy one tablespoonful of olive oil, a quarter teaspoonful of finely minced clove of garlic, two tablespoonfuls of thick sour cream, the yolk of one hard boiled egg, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of black pepper. Cut white bread thin, leaving the crust on; spread with the dressing and place the cold tomatoes between the slices.

A Popular Jelly.

When crab apples can be had for the picking the housekeeper should put up lots of jelly. The proportions are four pounds of fruit to three pounds of sugar. The method is as follows:

Wash the apples and cut away decayed parts. Put into a vessel with water, cover and boil until the fruit is soft. The skin and cores can then be easily removed. Strain the water the apples have been cooked in through a jelly bag and put aside.

Dissolve the right quantity of sugar in the water set aside in the proportions of one pint to three pounds of sugar. Set the preserving pan over the stove and when the contents boil drop in the apples. Boil until clear and then put into jars.

Fried Vegetables.

The flavor of fried vegetables is much more delicate than that of raw. To prepare them heat two tablespoonfuls of butter for one pint of vegetables cut in cubes. Stir together over the fire until hot; then set where they will cook slowly for one-half hour, stirring often. Place on the hot part of the stove and cook for a few minutes longer. Drain butter and add vegetables to the dish they are to flavor. The herbs most frequently used for seasoning are parsley, chervil, chives, thyme, sage, summer savory and bay leaf. Wash well, place on a clean board and mince fine with a knife. Add to soups or sauces just before serving.

Dainty Dessert.

An excellent dessert may be made from a pound of marshmallows, each cube cut in four pieces, and added to a fifteen cent bottle of maraschino cherries, drained and with each cherry cut in half. A teaspoonful of chopped nuts, a half pint of cream whipped stiff and two tablespoonfuls of sherry complete the dessert.

The ingredients should be stirred together and put in the icebox for three hours to give the marshmallow a chance to dissolve. It should be served with sponge cake or lady fingers.

Summer Fruit Salad.

A delicious hot weather salad is this: Boil three-quarters of a cupful of water with half a cupful of sugar for fifteen minutes. Cool it and add a few drops of lemon juice and a spoonful of vanilla.

Prepare fresh fruit—bananas, grapes, pineapple, peaches or any other reasonable fruits—and place it on lettuce leaves. Pour the cold syrup over the fruit just before serving.

CLOVER AND CORN SILAGE.

Results of Experiments as Feeds For Dairy Cows.

Results of experiments made by the Montana Agricultural college experiment station with clover and corn silage as feeds for dairy cows led to the following conclusions:

First—Second crop clover made into silage during September and October after being frozen kept well until May and June the following year, but became dark in color strong in odor and was not relished by dairy cows after the weather became warm.

Second—Cattle relished the clover silage and had a keen appetite for it during the winter months.

Third—As an average of three experiments of two periods each the daily production of milk on clover hay was 22.8 pounds and of fat 0.33 pound, while on clover silage the daily production of milk was 24.08 pounds and of fat 0.37 pound.

Fourth—On clover hay the cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk was 73.9 cents and of one pound of fat 17.9 cents, while on clover silage the cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk was 73.4 cents and of one pound of fat 17.8 cents.

Fifth—In milk production 2.33 pounds of clover silage were required to equal one pound of good clover hay.

Sixth—The value of clover silage, according to the experiments reported, ranges from $2.36 per ton to $2.76 per ton, with an average value of $2.55 per ton.

Seventh—Corn cut in the milk stage made good silage and was relished by dairy cows.

Eighth—With a basic ration of alfalfa hay and a mixed grain ration of bran, oats, barley and shorts corn silage from corn cut in the milk stage had a value of 2.38 per ton for milk production as compared with clover hay.

IMPROVING QUALITY OF EGGS.

Rooster Is Being Eliminated From Eggs Intended For Consumption.

The "rooster" has been "swatted." Over 250,000 male birds were marketed in Missouri on "rooster day" and during the few days which preceded it. Practically all of the 1,500 buyers and wholesale dealers in eggs in Missouri co-operated with us in this movement, and from reports received from them thus far it is safe to say that a quarter million males were marketed by Missouri farmers during "rooster week," says a Missouri experiment station writer.

The production of infertile eggs will mean the prevention of a loss of from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 this season in Missouri alone. This movement also will result in the improvement of the quality of the poultry, as most of these farmers will replace their scrub flocks with pure bred males. It will also result in the improvement of the cleanliness of the egg, the method of handling and the improvement of the quality in general. The fact that farmers show enough interest in the quality of the eggs they market to dispose of their surplus males and market infertile eggs shows that they are making progress and taking some interest, and there will be a general improvement in the poultry business along all lines in this state as a result. The object in "swatting the rooster" is not to keep bacteria out of the egg, as some seem to imagine, but to prevent chick development in fertile eggs. Before the eggs pass through the hands of the farmer, the country store, the local dealer, the wholesale jobber and the retailer and by the time they reach the consumer there has been considerable delay.

An egg does not have to be in an incubator for the embryo to grow and develop, but chick development takes place in a hot country store or a living room or on a hot country road, on the road to market or in any place or under any circumstances where the temperature is as high as it is in most hot summer days. By eliminating the fertility we prevent chick development, which causes our greatest loss in summer months. I have some eggs on my desk which are over a year old. They have never decayed. The contents simply dried up. "Swat the rooster" by all means if you have not already done so. Confide him if you wish to carry him over for breeding purposes.

TO CHECK THE ARMY WORM.

Plowed Furrows and Poison For New Outbreak of Pest Are Advised.

[Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

There seems to be a general outbreak of the army worm pest throughout the north, east of the Rocky mountains. These worms are emerging from eggs laid by moths that apparently swarmed up from the southwest. Great numbers of these moths were noticed in the vicinity of Washington during the month of July, hundreds of their broken wings having been seen near the Union station. Larvae in the capital were overrun by the pest.

The army worm is a smooth, striped caterpillar about an inch and a quarter long and a quarter of an inch in diameter. It is rather dark in appearance. While normally it feeds by night and hides by day, not being generally noticed, as soon as it has increased to such a number that its food supply falls short it starts to travel and, becoming bolder, feeds both night and day. The moth from which this worm hatches is brown, with a white spot in the center of each fore wing. It measures about an inch and one-half from wing to wing.

If the worms have not yet attacked a field the most practical way to keep them out is to plow furrows in front of them, throwing the furrow in the direction toward which they are traveling. The worms will fall into the furrow, and when this is full they may be killed either by dragging a log back and forth in the furrow or by destroying the worms in holes previously dug at intervals of twenty feet in the bottom of the furrow. Kerosene poured on them in the holes will destroy them.

If the worms are already in the field the following mixture which will attract the worms and destroy them should be spread about: One pound of paris green (poisonous), fifty pounds of wheat bran, and juice of one-half dozen oranges.

Bring this mixture to a stiff dough by the use of dilute molasses and scatter it among the worms. Care should be taken to keep this dough from children or domestic animals.

Prompt action to prevent the worms from infesting a field is much better than later efforts to attempt to kill them in the grain. Once the caterpillars have infested a field the measures necessary to destroy them may seriously hurt or even destroy the crop.

The worms at first are almost always localized in some definite breeding place in the field, and immediate efforts should be taken to eradicate them in these small areas before they have had time to spread. The normal breeding place of the army worm is in rank grass, such as is usually found along the edges of swamps or in spots of pasture land that have been overfertilized. They are practically never found in swamps, because the army worm needs a reasonably dry place in which to breed.

Clean cultivation, rotation of crops, cleaning up of fence corners, close pasturing and the burning over of waste grass land in the spring or fall are good measures to prevent a recurrence of the army worm.

For Young Weeds.

Take a strong piece of clock spring, bend in a loop one and one-half or two inches across, wrap the ends with cloth or insert in piece of wood for handle, and you have the best hand weeder for plants that you have ever used. It is especially good for going close to plants and is a safe one for children to use. They are less likely to tear up plants with such a weeder because there are no hooks or sharp corners on it.—Farm and Fireside.

MARKET GARDENING.

An abundant supply of soil moisture is essential to full yield, and frequent tillage conserves moisture. The cultivators should be kept moving and a fine soil maintained.

It is poor economy to use cultivator teeth after they are worn very short. They are not effective in making the finest mulch.

A few weeds allowed to go to seed will cause extra work next year. It will pay to make an extra effort to remove them before they sow a new crop of seed.

Late celery may be planted in very rich soil as late as August, and there will be time for it to attain marketable size before hard freezing in the fall.

Golden Self Blanching celery is especially desirable for planting late in the season because it requires much less time to mature than the green sorts.

The old strawberry plantations should be cleaned up promptly if they are to be retained for fruiting next year. The berries are generally smaller the second year, and this is a strong argument for starting new plots each year and fruiting the beds only once. Again, it usually costs about as much to renew the old plantation as to start a new one.

All garden makers should now plant at least some beets for the winter use. The soil should be fine and well prepared and handled in such a way as to have sufficient moisture for the germination of the seeds.

SCAB CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE

Disease May Be Controlled by Spraying With Either Bordeaux Mixture or Lime-Sulphur.

Scab of the pear tree affects fruit, leaves and twigs. The twig injury is, however, of minor importance. The spots on both the fruit and foliage are of an olive color and usually have a velvety appearance. The fruit spots often continue developing in cold storage, and decay is very apt to start in such places. The fungus lives over winter in the leaf spots, and is also believed to be carried over to some extent on the twigs.

Scab also affects apple trees and fruit, but usually it is not quite so serious as the pear scab.

Scab may be controlled by spraying with either bordeaux mixture (3-5-50) or lime-sulphur. The first application should be made just as the leaves are unfolding, and another should be given immediately after the blossoms fall. The leaves should be plowed under or gathered up and burned.

CROWN-ROT OF FRUIT TREES

Extended Investigation of Disease Shows That It Is Due Chiefly to Winter Injury.

Crown-rot is a disease of trees in which patches of dead bark or bare wood occur on the trunk near the surface of the soil. An extended investigation of this disease shows that it is due chiefly to winter injury. It is most liable to occur on trees in wind-exposed situations, particularly on those which have made very rapid growth and gone into the winter with their wood unripened. Hence, it appears probable that it may be at least partially prevented by planting the varieties which are least susceptible, providing windbreaks, heading low, avoiding excessive rapid growth and inducing early ripening of the wood.

In order to prevent trunk rot which often follows the initial injury the areas of dead bark should be detected and treated as early as possible. The trunks of young apple trees should be carefully examined twice a year—May and July. Wherever dead bark is found it should be carefully cut away, the wound disinfected with a 1 to 1,000 solution of corrosive sublimate and then covered with grafting wax or gas tar to keep out moisture and induce healing.—Geneva Experiment Station.

WOODRUFF GRAPE QUALITIES

For Hardness and Productiveness of Vine It Has About All That Could Be Desired.

One of the grapes not particularly well known, yet possessing some merit, is the Woodruff. So far as the hardness and productiveness of the vine are concerned, it has about all that could be desired. But the fruit is lacking in some of the characteristics that go for sustained popularity. The Woodruff is a handsome, showy, brick-red grape with large clusters and berries, according to the careful description appearing in the recent compilation, "Grapes of New York," under the auspices of U. P. Hedrick.

While attractive in appearance, the flesh is coarse and the flavor foxy. It ripens a little before or with the Concord and comes on the market at a good time, especially for a red grape. It is not considered a good keeper and shows a tendency to crack and shatter. Thus the Woodruff has not been popular for either vineyard or garden. The Woodruff came from C. W. Woodruff of Ann Arbor, Mich., who reported it a chance seedling, which came up in 1874, and fruited for the first time three years later.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

CHIEF FACTOR IN NATIONAL DEGENERACY.

A wave of degeneracy is sweeping the land, and its development threatens the physical vitality of the nation. Within a period of 50 years the population of the United States increased 330 per cent., while the number of insane and feeble-minded increased 950 per cent.

What is the cause of this degeneracy? A hundred different intermediate agencies may contribute to the undoing of the race, but back of them all stands alcohol as the chief degenerative factor. Statistics compiled by the leading insurance companies, and presented by Sir T. P. Whitaker in a report to the British parliament, show that out of every 1,000 deaths among the population at large, 440 are due to alcohol. This would mean a mortality from alcohol in the United States of 680,000 a year.

The great burden of drink is not borne by the drinker, but by the drinkers' children. In our studies among school children in New York city we find that 62 per cent. are the children of drinking parents, and that 91 per cent. of these children of drinking parents suffer from some functional or organic disease. If this percentage holds good over the entire country there are 13,000,000 children of a school age that are afflicted with functional and organic diseases, and less than two and a half millions of these are free from hereditary alcohol taint. A nation half diseased and half well cannot live, but here we show three-fifths of the rising generation mentally and physically diseased.—Dr. L. Alexander MacNicholl.

STRIKES FROM THE SHOULDER.

(From an Address of MORRIS SHEPARD, Before the Texas Legislature After His Election as United States Senator.)

The liquor traffic is a peril to society because it undermines the health, the strength, and the integrity of man. It is a source of danger to posterity because the alcoholic taint foredooms the unborn millions to degeneracy and to disease. I shall oppose this scourge until my arm can strike no longer and my tongue can speak no more. I shall oppose it because I hear the cries of children who are hungering for bread. I shall oppose it because I see a mother's wasted face, her pale lips pleading with the besotted figure at her side. I shall oppose it because I see the staggering forms of men whose trembling hands hold but the ashes of their strength and pride. I shall oppose it because it mocks all manhood and makes of woman's virtue a commodity of the slums. I shall oppose it because I see its battle line stretched across the globe, threatening the pure, the true, the good. I shall oppose it because its abolition will mean a new stability for the republic, a new radiance for the flag.

TROUBLE-MAKER

A Pittsburgh paper tells us that "one person out of every 95 in Pennsylvania was behind prison bars in 1911. Out of 707 prisoners receiving penitentiary sentence 80 per cent. were drinkers. Out of 10,607 prisoners sentenced to serve time in jails and workhouses over 85 per cent. were drinkers. Out of 3,670 persons sentenced to the Allegheny workhouse in 1912, 92 per cent. were drinkers. Father Penn's children who are dependent wholly or in part for support upon the taxpayers outnumber the combined armies of Meade and Lee at Gettysburg in 1863. The vast majority of them are the victims of John Barleycorn. One person out of every 45 in Father Penn's dominion is dependent either as a lunatic, pauper or criminal."

The drink traffic produces criminals, paupers, dependents and undesirables generally. The state pays the bills. The twentieth century taxpayer is waking up to the situation. He—and she—is moving to "put the liquor business out of the government and the government out of the liquor business."

ONE EXCEPTION.

Legitimate industries favorably affect each other. The liquor traffic unfavorably affects them all. The more it flourishes, the more they must decline. Its profits are taken from the merchant, and the manufacturers behind him; from the butcher, and the cattle raisers behind him; from the farmer, the miller, the baker, the builder, the shoemaker, the printer, the teacher, and the preacher. Every honest producer suffers from it. The country suffers from it. More than low tariff, or high tariff, or no tariff at all, it depreciates American industry.—A. A. Hopkins, Ph. D.

ALCOHOL AS ASHES.

In the production of alcoholic drinks the raw material is destroyed. Alcohol is not the outcome of a development or adaptation of food properties; it is the creature of destruction, obtainable only by the destruction of the natural properties of the subject. A log of wood may be developed, altered or adapted so as to produce a table or a case for an organ or piano. Put the log into the fire, and all that will be left of it is ashes. So likewise alcohol is the ashes of the fruit, barley or corn.

INITIATIVE, the power to plan, create, accomplish, the one quality that takes the big prizes—what is it, anyway—and how shall one acquire it? First get the idea, then decide how to carry it out, and then—well, just do it—that's all. —Lloyd.

SOME PUDDINGS.

Some of the old-fashioned puddings which were favorites of our grandmothers are being used today on our best tables.

The common bread pudding may be made into one of the most delectable of desserts, using coconut, other nuts, chocolate, orange rind, lemon rind and other things to vary the flavor. A very good pudding may be made of stale cake crumbs with some left-over canned fruit, put in layers and baked as one does Brown Betty.

Lemon Pudding.—Mix the yolks of four eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar, the juice of a lemon and two tablespoonfuls of water; cook in the double boiler until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Fold in the whites when the cooked mixture is cool, to which has been added two tablespoonfuls of sugar.

Carrot Pudding.—This is an old English recipe and can be changed to cup measure, if so desired. Mix together a half pound each of flour, seeded raisins, potatoes and carrot grated, suet chopped fine, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and soda dissolved in a little water; then add a half cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one egg beaten. Turn into a well buttered mold after giving the mixture a thorough beating, and boil two hours or steam three. Serve with a hard sauce made by creaming a third of a cup of butter, add two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla; fold in a half cup of whipped cream.

Cracker Pudding.—Moisten one and a half cups of cracker crumbs with boiling water; let stand until cool, then add one pint of milk, one-third of a cup of molasses, one egg slightly beaten, a cupful of raisins finely cut; put into a mold and steam four hours. Let stand in mold until cool. Serve with creamy sauce made by creaming half a cup of butter, adding a cup of powdered sugar, then a fourth of a cup of milk and two tablespoonfuls of orange juice, with a little of the grated rind. Add the liquids slowly, to keep them from curdling.—The hard sauce for the carrot pudding is good also for this.

"I WORK like a slave," said a good woman, weary with her worries, but the answer came from her wayside companion: "Oh, but my dear, you can work like a Queen!" —Anon.

He only is rich who owns the day, and no one owns the day who allows it to be invaded with worry, fret and anxiety. —Emerson.

FISH FIXINGS.

A most delicious sauce to serve with boiled or baked fish is the following: Make a rich white sauce, using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and a cup of thin cream. Melt the butter, and when bubbling hot add the flour; mix well and add the milk, and just before taking from the fire add the salt and a few dashes of cayenne, a tablespoonful of chopped capers, one sour pickle chopped and parsley for a garnish with eighths of lemon.

Spanish Codfish.—Take a half pound of salt codfish, one clove of garlic finely chopped, a cup of rich tomato sauce, one onion chopped fine, a few dashes of paprika, a quarter of a cup of olive oil, one-half of a sweet red pepper. Soak the codfish over night, and simmer in fresh water 40 minutes. Pick out the bones and lay the shredded fish in a buttered baking dish. Fry the onion, pepper and garlic in the olive oil and add to the tomato sauce. Cut triangles of bread and fry in the oil and arrange around the dish. Cook for 15 minutes and serve very hot. When soaking cod fish, or any other salty fish, put it skin side up in the water, otherwise the salt will sink into the skin and flesh and fall to the bottom of the dish.

Luncheon Fish.—Free left-over fish from bones and skin and flake with a fork. To a cupful allow a teaspoonful of flour with a quarter of a teaspoon of mustard, a dash of cayenne, a tablespoonful of butter and a saltspoon of salt. Rub these ingredients well together, adding enough lemon juice to moisten; half fill scallop shells, cover with buttered bread crumbs and set in a hot oven until thoroughly heated.

For the Children

A Cute Little Dog With a Funny Name.

Copyright by American Press Association.

Hedley Tango is the name of the smart looking little dog herewith pictured. Rather an odd name for a dog or any other thing for that matter. This little animal is a Scalyham terrier and was exhibited at a recent dog show in England. The Scalyham is a rather new kind of dog and is related to the Irish and Dandy Dimonts. He is very bright and alert, as his picture shows, and is much liked in England and this country where known. Terriers from time immemorial have been trained to kill rats, rabbits and other small rodents. As household pets they have lost much of their desire to kill, but the sight of a rabbit sets them jumping. They are very clever and handsome dogs, and whoever owns one is sure to prize him highly.

The Torch Fish.

There is a kind of fish that swims in the deep sea which is very rare and a great curiosity, says the American Boy. Its common name is the torch fish. Its jaws are filled with long, slender teeth. It has a cartridge shaped tongue and a body very much like a worn-out old shoe that has become so limp that it cannot hold itself up in shape any more.

The most remarkable thing about this strange fish is that on the tip of its long, pipestem nose there is an egg shaped object that the fish can light up like the bullseye lantern whenever he wants to and put it out again when he so pleases. This lantern does not serve as a guide to him in his wanderings, but is used as a trap to entice unwary and innocent little food fishes. When this deep sea lucifer is hungry he just lights his lamp, which is a peculiar kind of lip with phosphorus on it, opens his mouth and waves before it a slender, cordlike appendage that grows from beneath its lower jaw. The small fishes mistake the light for a certain kind of toothsome firefly that is down in the sea, and in their scramble for this dainty they sail right into the lucifer's mouth, which is gaping wide open to receive them. When he has had all the dinner he wants he turns off the light and goes away about other business.

Man's First Wings.

The first effort to equip man with wings that he might fly through the air seems to have been made by Watson E. Quinby, a Delaware inventor, who patented a flying machine over forty years ago, says the American Boy. The inventor used the bat as his model in designing the wings. Previous flying machines had been constructed on the balloon principle, but Quinby's apparatus consisted of wings twelve feet in diameter and semicircular in form. The wings were attached to the limbs of the persons flying, and the motions used were very similar to those used in swimming. The wings refused to work, however, and no one ever succeeded in flying with their aid.

Making Rice Paper.

The so called rice paper is not made from rice, as one who knows its name would think, but from the pure white pith of a little tree belonging to the aralia family. It flourishes in Formosa and, so far as naturalists have been able to find out, nowhere else. The stems are laden on boats and sent to China, where the rice paper is made. It is used, aside from ordinary purposes, by the native Chinese for water color drawings, and sometimes it is dyed in various colors and made into wonderfully natural looking artificial flowers.

Saturday Night Fun.

Saturday night and tub time done! This is the end of a week of fun. But while we sit in our great big chair, cozy and warm by the firelight's glare, let's talk of the games we had each day. As the long week rolled itself away, do you remember blind man's bluff? We seemed unable to laugh enough. And puss in the corner—that was fine; I liked it best when the turn was mine. To stand in the middle as puss, you see. And catch whoever was passing me. Then hide and seek! Did you like that more? When you opened the cupboard behind the door. And hid yourself so well that none could find you at all till the game was done? Yes, yes! I think that hide and seek was the best, best game in all the week. But hark to the clock! It is time for bed. "Come, eat your supper, and go!" it said. So now, goodby to the fire so bright. Goodby to the week on Saturday night. We go quite happy, as all should do. Who'd wake up happy on Sunday too. —Clarence's Recollections.

KAISER DISCUSSED BY ENTIRE WORLD

Loved, Hated, Admired and Likened to Roosevelt.

AGGRESSIVE AND TENACIOUS

Ruler at War With Nearly All the Great Powers of Europe Is Not Yet Sixty Years Old—Stubborn and Unyielding When Once He Makes a Decision.

Berlin.—William II., German emperor, is the most widely discussed ruler in the entire world today, for upon his head there has descended the concentrated wrath of the greater part of Europe.

A wonderful man is William II. Many worship him, many hate him, and many fear him, but almost everybody admires him. He has all the aggressiveness of Roosevelt and the bulldog tenacity of Grant. He is a veritable human dynamo, and his versatility is the wonder of all those who have made a study of his intensely interesting career.

Whether giving orders to an army or composing a song; whether mapping out the course of a war fleet or painting a picture; whether estimating the value of aeroplanes as factors in military operations or lecturing on the evils of alcoholic intemperance; whether gunning for big game in forest jungle or directing an orchestra; whether negotiating a vast business deal or advising a German hausfrau as to the best method of making sauerkraut, Wilhelm II. is equal to the role.

Such a kaleidoscope array of accomplishments may sound paradoxical, yet the kaiser has amply demonstrated his mastery over the variegated mass of technique.

And how he has ever elevated himself into such a record of achievement is all the more remarkable when consideration is given to the fact that Wilhelm II. was born with a withered arm and a constitution that because of its comparative frailty would have given him ample excuse for choosing a life along lines of least resistance.

One of Wilhelm's mottoes is, "Trust in God; watch everything else." Wilhelm is exceedingly religious, and while he is not an advocate of absolute annihilation of the liquor traffic, he is reputed to be a decidedly moderate user of alcoholic beverages, and the German soldiers have received many a lecture on the subject of strong drink.

EMPEROR WILLIAM II. OF GERMANY

It is generally suggested that the correct private life of the kaiser is in large measure responsible for his ability to overcome the physical weakness which nature thrust upon him. In this respect he may be again compared to Theodore Roosevelt, whose evolution from puny boy to acme of vigorous manhood has excited comment the world over.

Stubborn and unyielding when he once makes a decision, Wilhelm is of that type which prefers death on the firing line rather than surrender.

Wilhelm II. is not an old man, for on Jan. 27 of this year he celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of his birth, and despite his somewhat pallid face and lack of muscle and girth his mentality is ample and well nourished, and his indomitable spirit and grim determination make him a power not to be lightly reckoned.

But, according to the signs of the times, all of the resources of this wonderful man are going to be needed to cope with the situation confronting him—a world's war, the signal for which was given when an eighteen-year-old boy, aide with the pan-Serb spirit, slew the Austrian crown prince, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, and his wife at Sarajevo, Bosnia, June 28.

The domestic life of Wilhelm II. is said to be fraught with contentment. Despite his wide range of interests he is reputed to be essentially a home-loving man, never less than a devoted part to the Kaiser's and the Empress's Ehler--Atwater.

Another rural wedding, and for King Ferry an "event" to the Protestant wing of its inhabitants.

This time, it was Miss Emily Elizabeth Atwater and Mr. Harry Charles Ehler of New York City, who plighted their troth on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 9, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Atwater, and once the home of Jabez Bradley, her great, great, grandfather. The flowers of the season adorned it.

A bouquet of white asters was carried by the bride, who was gowned in the popular white crepe de chene. The responses were distinct to the clearly read service. Then, under an arch of wild clematis, with its delicate green, feathery seed tufts, (a suggestion by the bride) Mr. and Mrs. Ehler received the congratulations of the seventy (nearly) relatives present. For with the earlier Atwaters and Bradleys there was no sign of "race-suicide," and with later matrimonial alliances, they now form a sort of "interlocking directorate" hereabout. Yet even the prying I. S. C. C. would pronounce it a "benign" one.

Outside the family, two young women, friends of the bride, came from Ardsley, and there were two classmates with their husbands, and the nearest neighbors and friends—Mr. Alfred Avery and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Fessenden. The groom, till now almost unknown here, went straight to our hearts.

It was pleasant to see Mr. Walter Bradley of Lima, Ohio, home on a flying visit, and also Archibald, elder son of Eugene A. Bradley, a student of the Troy Polytechnic.

The bride's table had a beautiful center of creamy hydrangeas and salvia splendens. At her right sat her parents, and next in order her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jason G. Atwater, Miss Emily H. Atwater, Mrs. Charles E. Slocum, Miss Sarah Goodyear, Mrs. Dan Bradley, (grand mother of the bride) and the officiating minister, Mr. Perry, and his wife next Mr. Ehler. Beside Mrs. Perry, there was another bride of this year, Mrs. Carlton Wilbur nee Emily Slocum.

There should be a list of gifts, guests and gowns usual on such occasions, but we can offer only our impressions. A GUEST Farmers' Institutes.

Farmers' Institutes for Cayuga county were arranged Thursday afternoon, Sept. 10 at a conference between Edward Van Alstyne, director of Farmers' Institutes, and representatives of the various Granges, at the office of J. Robert Teall, manager of the Cayuga County Farm Bureau, in Auburn. It was arranged to hold institutes this winter at Five Corners, Locke, East Venice, Sennett, Moravia, Scipioville, Conquest, Port Byron, and Fair Haven. Harry Powers will be local correspondent at Five Corners, W. S. Tanner at Sennett, Arthur Dayton at Moravia, Edward Casler at Scipioville and W. H. Root at Port Byron.

The dates at which time the various Institutes will be held will be announced later, as will the speakers who will address the meetings.

The correspondents who were present last week presented lists of the subjects which they wished to be discussed in their locality. Among the most prominent of these were alfalfa, poultry raising, dairying, ensilage, fruit growing and breeding of horses and cattle. At each institute there will be a woman speaker who will talk on subjects of interest to the home and give advice to the women of the community on problems pertaining to their work.

Monarchs Lose to Genoa.

By the score of 3 to 1, the fast Monarch A. C. tossers of Auburn went down to defeat at the hands of the Genoa nine in the final game of the series of three played this season, on the home grounds Saturday afternoon. From beginning to end, the game was a hummer.

After securing three goose eggs, the Monarchs started the ball rolling by copping a point in the fourth. Mackert who sent the ball sailing into center field for a two bigger scored Auburn's one run when Conroy singled. Despite the fact that the chances looked good for further scoring by the Monarchs as they had many men on base, five consecutive goose eggs fell to their lot.

For three successive innings, Genoa battled on without gaining a point. In the fourth, they scored two of their three tallies, when Ferris and L. Bergan who singled and were advanced a base when McDermott flew out to deep center. Ferris came home on a slow rolling hit by Welch. After a minute or two, Welch was caught off the bag at first by W. Bergan. While First Baseman Davis stood holding the ball in a bewildered manner, L. Bergan scored. In the seventh round, Genoa gained their third and last tally on a single and an error.

The pitching of McDermott of Genoa was all to the mustard. He had eleven strikeouts against six for Donovan, his opponent. The summary:

Woman's World

Grace W. Key, Whose Ancestor Wrote "Star Spangled Banner."

GRACE WILLIAM KEY.

If America can be said to have a national song, surely "The Star Spangled Banner" is that song. "The Star Spangled Banner" was written in 1814 when Fort M'Henry, the defense of Baltimore, was bombarded by the British. As every one has heard, Francis Scott Key, who was at the time district attorney of the District of Columbia, went to the commander of the British fleet under a flag of truce just prior to the bombardment. His generous mission was to secure the release of a friend who had been made prisoner by the British. He was detained until the bombardment was over and watched the attack with the greatest anxiety. It was the sight of his country's flag still proudly floating over the battlement of the fort as the gray light of dawn stole up in the east that inspired him to write this great heroic poem.

Key's native state, Maryland, is celebrating the centenary of the composition of the song in happy fashion. In April a memorial water front highway named in his honor was opened with appropriate ceremonies in Baltimore. This great highway cost $3,000,000. Over this highway in September the original flag of Fort M'Henry will be escorted to the old stronghold by President Wilson, members of his cabinet, governors of states and a guard of 100 men picked from the eighteen states that were in the Union in 1814.

One of the most interesting participants in these ceremonies will probably be little Miss Grace William Key of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who sprang the barrier, permitting traffic for the first time to pass along Key highway. She is the ten-year-old great-grand daughter of Francis Scott Key and very proud of her distinguished ancestor.

PRESERVING TOMATOES.

An Easy Way to Prepare Them For Winter Use.

The best way to can tomatoes whole, says a noted housewife, is simply to pack them, without peeling, into wide mouthed jars. Half fill the jars with cold water, put the jars into a large saucepan or washbowl with water to reach halfway up the jars. Bring the water to boiling point, boil half an hour, take out the jars, fill them to overflowing with boiling water and seal.

In this way you will get all the value from the tomatoes. You can do this after dinner, and you can do it while washing your dishes. This is a particularly nice way for those who pick the fruit from their own vines as it ripens.

In a short time you will have a goodly stock on hand for a rainy day, and a can opened in winter will give you the full, fresh flavor of tomatoes from the vines.

When You Feel Drowsy.

Drowsiness during the day, if a person has slept well the night before, may be caused by indigestion. Often this is remedied by drinking something hot like cocoa or coffee. The brain needs a mild stimulant. Lassitude of the body is not always an indication of illness or laziness. A weak stomach is the primary cause for that drabby feeling in the morning.

Ironing Pongee.

To iron a natural colored pongee so as to preserve its beauty iron it only when it is perfectly dry and with an iron only moderately hot, as nothing scorches quite so easily as silk. Do not sprinkle pongee, as the water spots never iron out.

MILADY'S DRESS.

A new veil is caught into a velvet neckband decorated with rhinestones or cut steel.

Dancing caps of gold net over a wire frame with flower trimming are very coquettish and flattering.

A charming sleeve is simply a square of tulle fastened into the armhole and falling like a wing as far as the belt.

Puffed apron tunics of silk over painted skirts of tulle and lace looped up with roses are a charming style for young girls' dancing frocks.

Shoes become more fanciful even for ordinary day wear. Certainly the part they play in the perfect toilet is very important.
