Ledyard.
July 6—The cool breeze of to-day is welcome after the protracted spell of heat.

The Fourth passed off very quietly at Ledyard. Hardly a fire cracker was heard, but the day proved an enjoyable one, for the Reading Club had planned a picnic which was held on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Aikin in which one hundred and fifty participated. A fine dinner was served and the host and hostess did everything to make the day an enjoyable one.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Willis returned last Wednesday from a week's trip including Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other places of interest.

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Haynes motored to Syracuse and returned last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Veley and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holland spent a day recently with friends in North Rose, making the trip in Mr. Holland's auto.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Main returned Tuesday from a week's visit with friends in the western part of the state. They made the trip by automobile.

J. C. Misner and family were callers in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. Tilton of King Ferry was a guest of her son and family last week.

Mrs. Fred Avery is entertaining her father from Elmira.

Miss Marilla Starkweather is at her home here, having finished her course in the Syracuse Training class.

Mrs. Mary Bradt has returned to her home here after a three weeks' visit with her granddaughter at Venice.

Geo. Kirkland of Syracuse and Frank Kirkland of Auburn visited their mother recently.

Miss Nellie Brennan spent Friday in Auburn.

R. H. Thorpe and family spent Sunday at F. Main's. Miss Ruth Smith of Moravia was also a guest on Sunday.

Venice Center.

July 7—The party at the hall on the night of the 3rd was largely attended.

The Fourth was unusually quiet here. The circus at Auburn and attractions at other nearby places drew most of the people out of town.

Miss Bessie Clark is quite ill, and is attended by Dr. Hoxie.

Mrs. F. J. Horton spent Sunday with her granddaughter, Mrs. Chas. Prindle of Scipio.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Lane with friends are taking an auto trip through some of the eastern states, expecting to visit Boston and other places of interest.

Mrs. Alice Coddington and little son Walter of Syracuse are at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Crawford, where they expect to remain for a couple of months.

Mr. Coddington accompanied them and remained over Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Horton of Mexico City, who has been spending some time with friends here, left recently for Chicago where she will remain indefinitely.

Mrs. Patrick Shea is entertaining her niece, Miss Nellie Flynn, who came from her home in Ireland a few months ago. Mrs. Dresser of Auburn is also stopping there for a few days.

Ensenore Heights.

July 8—Mrs. Charles Burtless visited her son in Seneca Falls the past week.

Miss Bessie Hanlon has been entertaining Miss Carroll Higgins, a Cornell student of Arlington, Mass., for a few days.

Mrs. Alice VanDayne was the guest of her sisters in Owaseo from Tuesday to Monday.

Volney VanLew and wife visited relatives and friends in Dresserville from Friday night to Sunday night.

Ivan Coulson and wife of Niles were in town Sunday, to attend the funeral of his grandmother, Mrs. Elzora Seely.

Mrs. Claude Wyant and son Robert have returned from Michigan.

North Lansing.

July 9—Mrs. Catherine DeCamp Lobdell died at her home in North Lansing July 3, 1913. Funeral on Sunday at 2 o'clock at the home, Rev. Homer Chase conducting the service.

At 3 o'clock at the church Rev. C. E. Jewell of Auburn, district superintendent, an old friend of the family, preached, taking as his text "Be ye also ready." Mrs. Lobdell was born and spent her young womanhood on the farm adjoining the one where she died. She was the daughter of Calvin and Caroline DeCamp and was 60 years old the 2nd of July and died the 3rd. Thirty years ago she married Denton Lobdell (who died in 1908) and went on the farm adjoining her father's. Mr. Lobdell took his young wife into the family with his four children. Between them all, there has always been the most happy relation. She was a mother to them and they ever showed her the respect due her. She leaves one sister, Mrs. Cecelia Learn who lives on the old home farm and one brother, John DeCamp of North Lansing. The children are Charles Lobdell and Mrs. Jason Newman of North Lansing, Mrs. Glenn Morton of Freeville and Mrs. Olin Sellen of California. Arthur Lobdell died in 1907. Mrs. Lobdell had been in poor health for months, but only confined to the bed two days. She will be greatly missed—her neighbors will all testify to her kindness. She was ever a willing worker in the church work. For many years she was a member of the Grange and at the time of her death was Worthy Matron of the Lansing Chapter of the Eastern Star. Her sister members attended the funeral in a body.

"Friend after friend departs, Who hath not lost a friend? There is no union here of hearts, That finds not here an end: Were this frail world our only rest, Living or dying none were blest."

Miss Estella Short of Detroit, Mich., has come to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. Charles Bower.

Mrs. Edna Beardley and daughter Camilla visited in Groton a few days last week.

Dana Rhodes of Groton and daughter, Mrs. Mangang of Ithaca, visited at Wm. Pierce's last week.

Benn Tichenor has killed 53 woodchucks since March 20 and 49 of them in three months.

Samuel Lane and John Dempsey spent a few days in New York city.

The funeral of Mrs. Elnora Seely, aged 85, was largely attended from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Coulson Jr., on Sunday afternoon.

Rev. John Walters of Poplar Ridge officiated. A quartette from the choir of the Baptist church sang two appropriate selections. Burial was made in the family plot in Scipio rural cemetery.

The Howe Family Reunion.

The annual reunion of the relatives and descendants of H. T. Howe, deceased in 1892, was held at the residence of Charles H. Howe, state road, town of Groton, on the 5th of July.

Forty seven guests were present. Those from abroad were Squire Howe of Falconer, N. Y., and Henry T. Howe of Poplar Ridge. The day was favorable in every way; it seemed almost that it had been made on purpose for the occasion. The tables were set upon the lawn, and were well loaded with good things of the season, and everybody was happy. After dinner, brief addresses were made by Deacon John G. Cobb, who spoke in his usual genial, humorous and felicitous way; by Squire Howe who gave them an original semi-historical story entitled "The Story of an Old Farm" and by Mrs. Amanda Howe who gave them a talk on spiritism. Altogether the day was one long to be remembered with pleasure by everyone present.

Resolutions.

Whereas, It has pleased God in his Infinite Wisdom to separate from us for a little time, our Worthy Matron and dearly loved sister, Catharine Lobdell, be it

Resolved, That while we bow our heads in reverent submission to the Divine Will, nevertheless we deeply deplore the removal from our midst of a life so wholly pure and sweet, of an individual so respected by the Lodge as a unit and so sincerely beloved by us as individuals. We have lost much more than the wise counsel of a presiding officer; we have lost each and every one of us the presence of a tried and true friend. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions go on the minutes of our chapter and a copy be sent to the GENOA TRIBUNE to be published as a last tribute of deep and lasting love and respect.

Florence Smith, Adalina Underwood, Sarah Shaffer.

Believed in Prayer.

"Grandma."

"Yes, Marjorie."

"You know I just believe a whole lot in prayer."

"Why, I'm glad to hear it; that's a good little girl."

"Yes, I prayed the other day that auntie wouldn't be cross with me for breaking her little hand-mirror."

"And was she?"

"No. She thought it was Uncle John who broke it, and I didn't tell her any better."—Pittsburg Sun.

Williams Family Reunion.

The fifth annual reunion of the Williams family was held on Thursday, June 26, at the home of Charles E. Upson in the town of Locke.

There were some sixty persons present, the descendants of Ichabod and Sarah Williams, who were born in Dutchess county, New York, in the middle of the seventeenth century. Some 25 or 30 years later they came from the town of Beekman, Dutchess county, and settled at North Lansing, Groton and North Lansing.

They had a family of eleven children, of whom only four lived to grow up: two sons, William and George, and two daughters, Deborah, who married Peter Lane, and Polly, who married Nathan Fuller. Three of them located in the immediate vicinity of North Lansing, and Deborah Lane lived on the farm now owned and occupied by Charles Upson, a grandson.

There were many who came quite a distance to the reunion, relatives being present from Kalamazoo, Mich., Seattle, Wash., Cleveland, Ohio, Athens, Pa., Elmira, Cortland, Ithaca, Groton and North Lansing.

A sumptuous dinner was served, which all enjoyed, especially the grandchildren of Deborah Williams Lane, Mrs. L. L. Sawyer, E. P. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wood, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Upson who were seated at a separate table, using the chairs, table, silver, linen and dishes used by their grandparents over one hundred years ago.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Floyd Williams of Groton, president; Asaph Buck of Cortland, vice president; Miss Laura Betts of Groton, secretary and treasurer.

THE CLEANUP IN BROWNWOOD

How Texas Town Won Prize For Civic Improvement.

CO-OPERATION A BIG FACTOR

Commercial Club, Women's Organizations and City Officials Combined With Residents and Storekeepers in Work—School Children Enlisted.

Recently, in response to the civic improvement wave sweeping over Texas, a contest for the cleanest town was inaugurated. A cash prize of $500 being held out as a spur to interest. The San Antonio Express says the contest was long drawn out because two towns—Gainesville and Brownwood—were tied for first place. The official inspectors found it necessary to visit the towns and make three separate inspections before the prize was handed to Brownwood.

Probably the most remarkable feature in the cleanup campaign was in the fact that Brownwood won first prize and expended only $216 above her ordinary expense account, which goes to show that city cleanliness is not such an expensive luxury if made an everyday necessity.

When the inauguration of the clean town contest was announced Brownwood's different organizations, such as the Women's Federated Clubs and the Commercial club, at once quietly announced to the citizens that Brownwood was going after first place in the contest. Then it was simply a matter of efficient work and co-operation among the organizations and the citizens. The city's already excellent condition was improved in many ways. Every defect that could be discovered was remedied. Every trash pile, every hole for the collection of filth and dirt, was searched out by diligent officers and banished from the city limits.

No one feature of the campaign was more noticeable than the untiring and efficient work of the Women's Federated Clubs through their committees and individual members. Women went into the public schools and taught the children cleanliness.

In gaining and maintaining the standard of the "cleanest town in Texas" Brownwood gained much knowledge and put into practice many ideas which will subsequently be published and given to the other towns of Texas to aid them in attaining the point of civic cleanliness which Brownwood has reached.

WOMEN'S CIVIC LEAGUE.

Elmhurst Maids and Matrons Working to Improve Town.

Twenty public spirited women of Elmhurst, N. Y., recently banded together in the cause of civic betterment and formed the Women's Civic League.

Officers were elected, and the following policies were adopted:

No more peanut shells, discarded cigar stubs, waste paper and banana peelings in trolley cars.

All motormen and conductors shall wear linen collars and keep their trousers pressed.

Police shall improve their department and shall not wear toothpicks as a component part of their service uniform.

Sidewalks shall be kept in repair; also swept.

All citizens are urged to plant some sweet smelling flowers in a conspicuous place in their yards or on their fire escapes. The male residents would not create an unfavorable impression if they wore occasionally a boutonniere of forget-me-nots or sweet william.

Clean Vacant Lots.

Weeds of all sorts should at least be headed to prevent the seeds maturing. Vacant lots, parkways and roadways are responsible for most of the weeds in our gardens, and those public breeding spots for weeds should receive attention. One year's seeding makes seven years' weeding, and those living in the neighborhood of weedy vacant lots would find it profitable to keep such properties clean. It is cheaper for one to bear his pro rata of expense for weed cutting on these wastes than to pull the ever present crop in his garden close by the seed farm.

CITY IS KILLING WEEDS BY A TAX.

Los Angeles' Novel Experiment in Civic Betterment a Success.

Los Angeles, Cal., is embarked on the novel experiment of taxing its weeds out of existence, and the experiment has aroused so much interest among those who study municipal affairs all over the country that it is the subject of a special report by Ethel Cleland to the National Municipal League.

"Twice a year, in August and April," she says, "in accordance with an ordinance of July, 1912, owners, agents and persons in possession of property must remove from their sidewalks, property, lands and lots all noxious weeds and vegetation except such as are cultivated for use, ornament, food or fuel, all dead trees, tin cans, rubbish, refuse and waste material of all kinds which may endanger or injure neighboring property or the health welfare of the residents of the vicinity; otherwise the board of public works will remove all or any of these detriments to civic beauty and hygiene and to insure payment for their removal and collection assess the cost, together with 25 per cent thereon to be added to cover interest, upon the property."

"This assessment is known as a weed tax. All weed taxes unpaid on the last Monday of November of each year become delinquent, and 10 per cent is added to the amount of the tax when thus delinquent, and a delinquent list, with an accompanying alphabetical index of names, is published once a week for three successive weeks in a Los Angeles paper, with a notice appended declaring that unless these taxes are paid in twenty-eight days from the date of the appearance of the first notice the property on which they are assessed will be sold to the city. As costs of such publication 50 cents is collected on each separate piece of land separately assessed.

"All property delinquent on which the weed taxes and ensuing penalties have not been paid on the day fixed in the published notice is sold to the city, and if not redeemed within a year a deed is drawn up conveying to the city the absolute title to the property."

"To redeem the property within the year after it is sold to the city the owner pays the weed taxes, penalties and costs due thereon and interest on the same at the rate of 7 per cent, all unpaid weed taxes assessed since the sale and also certain penalties, varying with the time after the sale such payments are made."

WOMEN'S WORK FOR THE SOCIAL CENTER.

Making the public schoolhouse the civic home of the neighborhood! What more appropriate task could engage the energies of American womanhood?

Bringing the Farmer to Town.

Among the ways of providing better transportation facilities for the dairyman and farmer, none seems more feasible than a radial system of good roads running out into the country for ten or fifteen miles. Farmers then could drive in with their products at any season of the year and save the profits of possibly two middlemen and of at least one, the railroad. In practice it generally works out that this saving is shared by both the consumer and producer. It would seem that any city could well afford to contribute generously as a business proposition to such a project, which would both bring trade to her merchants and cheaper food for her people.—Winnipeg Telegram.

Value of Good Roads.

One of our most able writers on rural economics has said that he would deduct $5 per acre from the price of a farm for every mile away from town or shipping point. He has not put it any too strongly, for the market and facilities for marketing are large elements in the value of a farm. It is variously estimated that a farm in a locality where the roads are generally improved is worth from $10 to $25 per acre more than the same farm would be worth if the roads were unimproved.

Temperance

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

BAN ON MODERATE DRINKING

Employers of Prominent Railway System Prohibit Employees From Touching Alcoholic Liquor.

The use of alcohol is receiving some hard knocks these days. A prominent railway system, not contented with the general rule heretofore in force on railroads forbidding employees to drink while on duty, now forbids employees to indulge at all in drinking out of employment hours, or in any other conduct which will impair their health or make them less alert and less capable while on duty. The owner of one of the nation's best—a prominent baseball team—announced that moderation in drinking is not sufficient; the players on his team must leave alcohol entirely alone and abandon cigars. The justification for such rules may be found not only in the difficulty of being moderate in indulgence, but also in the cumulative and after-effects of dissipation. The world is moving; the old fetish of "personal liberty" at whatever cost of danger to the public at large seems to be losing its power. The time may come when every man to whom the life and safety of others are entrusted may be expected or even required to be as abstemious as the ball players and railway employees just mentioned.—Journal American Medical Association.

INTEMPERANCE AS A DISEASE

Dr. Maxmillian Grossman Declares the Question is One to Be Handled by the Doctors.

In an address before the last International Congress of Hygiene in Washington, D. C., Dr. Maxmillian Grossman, director of the National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children, declared that intemperance was a disease and a question to be handled by the doctors. The utterance has been widely quoted in the liquor press as bolstering the arguments of the anti-prohibitionists. What all thinking, common sense people ask is that the manufacture and sale of that which directly causes this disease of intemperance be forbidden by law. "Our national health is physically our greatest asset," wrote Theodore Roosevelt, when president of the United States. "To prevent any possible deterioration of the American stock should be a national ambition. The preservation of national vigor should be a matter of patriotism."

The alcohol question is therefore a national issue.

WHAT HIS FAMILY RECEIVED

In Making Temperance Speech English Workingman Makes Startling Illustration With Bread.

In Manchester, England, a workingman was making a temperance speech. He held in his hands a knife and also a loaf of bread. Drawing the knife across the loaf and taking off a slice of moderate size, he said, "This is what you give to the city government." He made another and larger section, and added, "And this is what you give to the general government." He now made a tremendous slash with his knife that cut away a quantity of bread equal to three-quarters of the entire loaf. "This," he said, "you give to the brewer." The remnant after all this amputation was only a thin slice. The larger fraction of this he allotted to the public-house, and of the few crumbs left he said, "And this you keep to support yourself and your family." The drunkard's children know this well.

What is Wanted.

What the temperance men want is not the regulation of the liquor traffic, but its destruction; not that its destruction; not its evils should be circumscribed (idle fancy), but that they should, to the full extent of the state's ability, be utterly eradicated. No shilly-shally legislature can endure, and it would be good for nothing if it could. Stave in the heads of the distillers, confiscate the demijohns, bottles and glasses that have been polluted by the infernal traffic.—Horace Greeley.

What Temperance Brings.

More of good than we can tell; More to buy with, more to sell; More of comfort, less of care; More to eat and more to wear; Happier homes with faces brighter; All our burdens rendered lighter; Conscience clean and minds much stronger; Debts much shorter, purses longer; Hopes that drive away all sorrow; And something laid up for tomorrow.

Before and After.

There are now hundreds of children in Knoxville with clothes and shoes to wear and something to eat who went naked and hungry when saloons were here.—W. P. Chandler, Chief of Police of Knoxville, Tenn.

Great Barrier.

"I can desire nothing better for this great country than that a barrier, high as Heaven, should be raised between the unpolluted lips of the children and the intoxicating cup."—John W. Booth.

RURAL SCHOOL INTEREST.

Much Can Be Done For Their Material Improvement.

Greater public interest in the rural schools, their consolidation where practicable and the enrichment of courses of study will bring about an improvement in the material environment of these schools. Substantial, well arranged, well heated and well ventilated schoolhouses will be the rule rather than as now, the exception. The grounds about the schoolhouse will be laid out so as to provide suitable playgrounds and shady nooks for out of door study and instruction. To stimulate interest in the planting of trees about country schoolhouses the department of agriculture has recently issued a farmers' bulletin on this subject. Where circumstances will permit, school gardens will be maintained. These need not be large nor elaborate, but may easily be so managed as to furnish such material for instruction and an opportunity for the children to learn by doing things themselves. Such gardens are now successfully maintained about country schools in some places in this country and more commonly in certain parts of Europe. There will also be collections of seeds, dried plants, soils, minerals, insects and other natural objects, not as curiosities, but as direct aids to instruction. Already much has been accomplished in some states in providing the country schools with useful libraries. In Wisconsin and California all the school districts have libraries, and in Connecticut, Minnesota, New York, Indiana and Illinois much progress has been made in this direction. The public libraries are being closely connected with the public schools. In Massachusetts, for example, nearly every township has a public library to which the school children and their teachers have access.

Combating Dust.

An English city is experimenting with granulated calcium chloride to combat dusty roadways, applying about half a pound to the square yard.

The Way to Teach.
As a country physician was driving through a village he saw a man amusing a crowd with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor pulled up and said:

"My man, how do you manage to train your dog like that? I can't teach mine a single trick."

The man looked up with a simple, rustic look, and replied: "Well you see, it's this way: you have to know mo'ra the dog, or you can't learn him nothin'."

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK: To J. Delmar Raymond, whose place of residence is unknown and cannot be ascertained after diligent inquiry:

Send Greeting: Whereas, E. Byron Whitten of the city of Auburn, N. ON SECTION NO. 12

What We, Us and Company Did
With a Firm Hand to Guide the Undertaking.

BY JOHN PHILIP ORTH.

A new railroad had been surveyed through the country within two miles of Major Charlton's country home, and the retired army officer had made a bid for and secured the grading to be done on section No. 12.

The major was a widower with only one child—a daughter named May. She had returned from school and was waiting, as all girls must wait, and it was generally understood that she was rather strong-minded for a young girl. It was rather independence than strong-mindedness. Not that she was mannish, but that she rode around the country on her pony without a chaperon, fished, swam and hunted at her pleasure, and could beat her father at billiards or at almost any other game. When the major came home and announced that he had secured the contract for section 12 Miss May applauded and said:

"You will want a bookkeeper and a paymaster, and I will serve as both."

"But you don't understand what sort of help I must employ," he replied.

"Foreigners, and mostly Italians. It will be a tough crowd, but that doesn't scare me."

"Too tough a crowd for a girl to be mixed with. I shall count myself lucky to get along with a row every two weeks. I am told that I can't carry my contract through, do the best I can."

"Don't you believe it, daddy. We, us and company will start in with a firm hand and not let the padrones or Black Hand take the authority out of our hands. I shan't expect to do much bossing, but if called upon to take a hand I shan't run away from it."

"I shall, of course, get a man for bookkeeper and cashier," observed the father as he turned away.

But he did not. From the time the work began until the office of the contractor was ready to step into, Miss May spent most of her time on the ground, suggesting and bossing, and when the hour arrived she took off her hat and gloves and opened the books and pocketed the key of the safe.

"Wait until you see the sort of laborers that are coming!" said the major as he shook his head.

Two days later 300 men arrived—Italians, Slavs and Hungarians. They had their own quarters, but they could not fall to hear of the girl's presence. Indeed, she must come and go in their full sight. They were a hard lot and one or two men dominated all the others. One of the leaders visited the office to say to the major:

"Why you have the girl here?"

"She is my daughter."

"It makes no deference. No girl should be here. She makes mistakes and we are cheated."

"When you think you have been cheated come and tell me so."

"But the men don't like it. You must get a man to take her place."

Two or three of the unsuccessful bidders had evidently tampered with the men with a view of getting up a strike at the very outset. It was a puerile excuse they advanced, and it aroused the major into saying:

"I shall not get a man. If you want to raise a row go ahead!"

"It is not me, but the men."

"Tell them to strike at any hour they want to!"

"Bully for you, daddy!" exclaimed the daughter as the fellow left the office.

"I didn't want you to come, but I am not going to let them run you out. They won't strike until they can find a better excuse."

Neither did they. The road-bed for the new railroad ran parallel with the highway for a mile and as Miss May rode to and fro she received black looks and heard men cursing under their breath. It would have been folly to pay any attention to it.

Nothing more was heard from the leader as to the girl's leaving, and it was two weeks before another call was made. Then the leader announced:

"We were hired to work nine hours a day, and you are making it ten. We must have an hour off or more pay."

"Every man of you was hired for ten hours a day," replied the major, "and I shall not shorten the time by a minute nor increase the pay by a cent."

"The men are very angry."

"So am I."

"I think they strike, eh?"

"If they want to."

"If they do then they will break and destroy."

"When they begin to do that there will be some shooting!"

"So? So? You are not a wise man."

"I am wise enough to see your game."

"Will they strike?" asked the girl of her father.

"Sure to, after coming with a third pretext."

"And they may even attack us?"

"They certainly will."

"And we?"

"You had better stay home for a few days."

"And miss the row? Well, I guess not! We each have a revolver, and can make it very lively for them."

At 9 o'clock next morning the leader delivered his ultimatum—eight hours a day or a strike.

"Strike away!" was the reply of the major.

Fifteen minutes later every laborer had thrown down his tools and was cheering and whooping. They made no other demonstration for some time, but at length they formed in a solid body, and armed with picks, shovels, axes and stones moved down on the office and surrounded it. Then the major did a foolish thing, but one perfectly logical from the standpoint of a man of arms. He threw open the door and stood there and defied the mob. He was not armed, but one can't look for honor in such a crowd.

After a long minute, in which the men hurled a hundred insults at him, the major was struck in the head by a stone and fell back into the office unconscious. Miss May dragged the body back and closed and locked the door. There was no rush of the strikers. She went to the telephone and called up the house and the cook, and said:

"Mary, the men out here have struck and are making awful threats. Go down to the road and tell the first man that comes along that father is badly hurt and I am locked in the office."

"I get you, and I'll send a dozen men!" replied the cook as she hung up the trumpet and made a scot.

Miss May was bathing her father's wound when the whooping recommenced and the rocks began to pelt. It was only a temporary structure, and the splinters soon began to fly. Amidst the fusillade the leader of the mob was heard shouting:

"Come out here—we want you! If you don't come out we'll try dynamite."

"And I'll try bullets!" said the girl to herself as a rock came through the window and missed her head by an inch.

There were hoots of derision as the soldier's daughter rested the barrel of her revolver on the sill of the same window and pulled the trigger. She fired low, to take her targets in the legs, and out of six bullets five drew howls of pain. The mob broke back at her shooting, lugging off the wounded, and after an interval of ten minutes the leader approached under cover of a flag of truce and called out:

"Open the door to us or we use dynamite and blow you all to —"

No answer was ventured, and in a quarter of an hour the mob was ready to carry out the threat. One side of the office was without windows, thus making a safe approach, and a man was creeping forward with a charge that would have rent everything to pieces when the panting and pale-faced girl heard the hoots of an auto, and next moment the popping of revolvers. The cook had obeyed orders nobly. As it chanced, the first auto to come along contained four men, and it needed but a word to send them speeding away. In five minutes after their arrival the mob was in flight.

When four men get together, in an auto or on the street corner, there is at least one young man among them. If asked to go to the rescue of a maid and her father chain-lightning can hardly keep pace with him.

It was the young lawyer, Phillip Fayram, in this case. He was on his way over to the county seat to try a case, and the old gray heads with him were witnesses. Of course they couldn't see any romance in the rescue, and they even smiled in a cynical and superior way, but others saw things through different eyes.

The strikers came back after two or three days, and the major's contract was finished without further trouble. The wounded legs went to the hospital to be cured in time, and in time the warrior-father made reply to a question:

"Yes, by George, take her!"

And some time after peace had been restored the leader of the strikers was heard saying to the man who was creeping up to place the dynamite that day:

"You fool—I fool—all fool but the young laidee. She big heroine! She don't yell and whoop—she shoot!"

Private Rafferty Explained.

It was a snowy, windy night and Private Rafferty, on guard, quickly got chilled.

The snow drifted into his sentry-box until, in sheer desperation, he moved that rude shelter to a sloping position in the lee of the buttress of the wall.

From a locker at the foot of the flag-staff he abstracted a large Union Jack, and wrapping this round him he crept into the box and tried to make himself comfortable. The time seemed dreadfully long and presently Rafferty dozed off to sleep, to be awakened later by the flash of a lantern in his eyes, and, looking up, he found an officer and the sergeant eyeing him with astonishment.

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded the officer, sternly.

But Rafferty did not disturb himself.

"Shure," he replied, "I thought you'd left me to freeze to death so far convenience I jest laid myself out in ould coffin. An' bebad, ye can please yourself about callin' out the firing-party an' going on wid the funeral."—Tit-Bits.
