Are You a Town Booster?

No business man in any town should allow a newspaper to be published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns, says an exchange. This applies to any kind of business—general store, grocers, dry goods, mechanics, professional men, and all classes of business men. This does not mean that you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter of a page ad. in every issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned if you do not use more than two lines space. A stranger, picking up a newspaper should be able to tell just what business is represented in a town by looking at the business mentions in the paper. This is the best possible town advertising. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and his town. He is the man who expects the newspapers to do the most free boosting for his town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to a town, but refuses to advertise his business, is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of any town depends on the live, wideawake, and liberal advertising man.

NO CHANCE HERE FOR ANARCHISTS

Terrorist System Plainly a Misfit In United States.

"WORLD OWES ME A LIVING"

That Best Expresses Mental Attitude of Some of Youths Who Would Pose as "Reds"-Professor Robinson of Columbia University Blames "Idea Glimmerings" For Bomb Attempt.

"Foreigners with idea glimmerings not worked out, with a terrorist philosophy that is a misfit in this countrythat is how I would describe the planters of the bombs in St. Patrick's cathedraf and anarchists of their type," said John Harvey Robinson, professor of hestory in Columbia university and an authority on historical-philosophical subjects, in discussing the arrest and frustrated plet of Abarno and Carbone.

There is no justification for the existence of anarchists in the social conditions of this country," he maintained. "It is hard to conceive" the motives which impel such actions as theirs. One can understand the thoughts of a Russian nihilist, who is not a criminal in the true sense, but who is working along the lines of a definite philosophy toward a definite end, or of the terrorists of Paris who engaged in the fight for the Commune in 1871.

"But things are different in this country. I can trace no analogy between conditions before the commune of 1871 and the conditions in this country today which precede what the two Italian anarchists are said to have planned -a commune of anarchy and riot in New York. There is no paralle, of cause, and there will be no parallel of

Think what would happen if anarchists tied up the subway for a day! The whole city would band together for their suppression. Our civilization is too complex, too delicate, too sensitive, to stand such shocks enough anarchists in the country to succeed in terrorizing New York for any-length of time. for the simple reason that the community is constructed in such an orderly manner that no disturbance would be tolerated by it.

"The case of the commune in Paris was different. The country and the city were already in a state of semianarchy. Police power and the more certain power of public opinion had vanished from Paris with the capture of the city, the death of her best citizens in the war with Germany and the starvation and suspension of business which followed. It can be said, in a general way, that the struggle of the commune in 1871, during which the Hotel de Ville, the Luxemburg and other public buildings were burned and thousands died before and behind the barricades of the anarchists, was the more or less natural result of conditions in the community Conditions Different Here.

"But that cannot be said of any attempted commune in New York nor of the acts of the anarchists later. These can be attributed to misapplication of half formed ideas and ideals, fitted, perhaps, to Russia or even to Italy, but not to conditions in the United States, which are totally different.'

Speaking more definitely of the mental makeup of the Bresci amarchists. A. T. Poffenburger, engaged in laboratory research and experimental work with the department of psychology at Columbia university, spoke of the terrorist plans revealed by the recent ar-

Privileges Arising From Fellowship With God

By REV. WILLIAM EVANS, D. D.

Five distinct blessings are enumerated here as arising from, and en> joyed by, those who are in fellowship with God. I. The Assurance of Personal Salvation (13). It is the privilege of every Christian to be assured of his personal salvation. To claim such assurance is not the language of charitable presumption, but a mark of confidence in the word and promise of God, who has said that every one believing in his son has eternal life. Not to believe that statement is to make God a liar (10-12). The word "know" here does not mean merely to perceive, but to know with a settled and unquestioning knowledge. The ground of assurance of salvation lies not in our feeling but in the unchangeable word and promise of God.

II. Assured Answer to Personal and Individual Prayer (14, 15). The thought of assurance of salvation leads to that of boldness in prayer. If we know that we have eternal life we know that we have boldness. If we are sons then we can speak freely with the father, and may rest assured. that God not only hears but also answers our prayers. The words "according to his will" may be called a limitation of prayer, and yet it is hardly a limitation, for God's will is the most disreputable, the most down always best. And indeed it is just and out of the holores and the unem- this seeming limitation that makes us ployed in the city, would never follow free to pray; were it not so we should not feel free to open our lips to ask "The proof that conditions in this a blessing for fear it might be a curse, but when we know that what we ask is according to God's will we archy and anarchism are not natural know that it can be nothing but good

A VIEW OF HIMSELF.

The following story is going the rounds of the newspapers and is well worth passing on:

A young man of a fine family and eplendid gifts was going down as fast at it was possible for a man to go, through strong drink. His friends had pleaded with him, but he had taken their warnings as an insult. One of them, who was a court stenographer, was sitting in a restgurant one evening when the young man in question came in with a companion and sat down with his back to him at the adjoining table. He was just drunk enough to be talkative about his private affairs, and on the impulse of the moment the stenographer pulled out his notebook and took a shorthand report of every word he said. It was the usual maudlin folly of a young man with his brain muddled by drink and included a number of highly can-I'd details of his daily life-things which, when he was sober, he would as soon have put his hand in the fire as speak about to a casual acquaint-The next morning the steaographer copied the whole thing neatly and sent it round to his office.

ing in with, "What is this, anyhow?" "It's a stenographic report of your menologue at the restaurant last evening," his friend replied, and gave him a brief explanation.

In less than ten minutes he came tear-

"Did I really talk like that?" he asked faintly.

"I assure you it is an absolutely verbatim report," was the reply. He turned pale and walked out. He

This church, mcreover, through her bishops and priests, administers the pledge to tens of thousands of children every year on the occasion of their confirmation or first communion. Last summer saw the first organized move on the part of Catholics looking definitely toward the abolition of the liquor traffic. A conference of Catholics of the United States and Canada in the interests of prohibition was held at Niagara Falls and adopted most radical resolutions. Hereafter moral suasion methods will be backed up by a legal suasion policy.

DANGERS IN BEER-DRINKING.

Dr. S. H. Burgen, a practitioner for 35 years, 28 in Toledo, O., says:

"My attention was first called to the insidious effects of beer when I began examining for life insurance. I passed as unusually good risks five Germans, young business men, who seemed in the best of health, and to have superb constitutions. In a few years I was amazed to see the whole five drop off, one after another, with what ought to have been mild and easily curable liseases. On comparing my experifound they were all having similar luck with confirmed beer drinkers, and my practice since has heaped confirmation upon confirmation."

INFLUENCE OF SALOON.

The saloon is sending more children into the factory, the mines, the mills and shops, that ought to be at school or play, than the influence of the trade union has been able to eliminate, either by direct action or by legislation. The attitude of organized labor upon the employment of wamen in industry is just the same as it is with children. * SOLUTION OF UNEMPLOY-

The problem of unemployment is one of the most serious puzzles confronting the cities of the Unithas been a surfeit of laborers that has quite choked the labor

There are few cities that have not undertaken some plan for the alleviation of the condition. but very few of the larger cities have as yet found any satisfactory remedy.

The smaller cities, however, with a problem far less complex. have, in many cases, done remarkably well. Watertown, N. Y., with its municipal wood pile, is notable for the simplicity and effectiveness of its scheme. With the co-operation of the local railroad authorities several thou sand old railroad ties were gathered in and needy men were put to work sawing and chopping. These men were paid $1.50 a day, and the wood so cut was sold for $2 a cord or given to those who could not purchase fuel. The money earned from the sale of the wood was put back into the "unemployment fund" and thus provided the cash to meet the exigencies of the future. - Town Improvement

NEW MUNICIPAL MARKET.

Joplin, Mo., Is Justly Proud of Up to Date Building.

Joplin, Mo., is justly proud of its new municipal market, built at a cost of $86,000 secured by bonds voted by the people. It is a fireproof, re-enforced concrete structure spacious enough to contain twenty-eight booths. These booths rent for $5 to $15 a month Each one is provided with running wa ter, gas and electric light, all provided

On the main floor of the building there is a smoking room and rest room generously supplied with current magazines and farm periodicals. Tangler was long ruled in part by a sanitary commission of foreign consuls. Now it is in the Spanish sphere or belt of influence, and that again is surrounded by the paramount French power. The city itself is neutral and starts with a boom, France having written off part of its debt.

The assembly consists of twenty-four Moors and eleven representatives of the powers. The Moors are real Moors, not subjects of other nations. The military police is headed by a Spaniard, the civil police by a Frenchman. A mixed court sits for foreigners: Moslem cases are tried by the sadi.  THE MOVING SPIRIT.

To the locomotive more than to anything else may be attributed the spirit that has made town development possible. It is perfectly easy now for civic secretaries to assemble anywhere, perhaps a thousand miles away from home. A day and a night behind the steam monster and the man from Boston grasps the hand of the secretary from Cape Girardeau; North Dakota and South Carolina compare notes; Utah and Maryland swap experiences; Kansas and New Jersey are brothers.

So with all business and commerce. Without the locomotive Chicago today would be a small town, Atlanta a village, Denver a hamlet. Development, dependent as it is upon rail traffic, would have been impossible.

A junior police force has been reof regulations. The precinct has been divided into twelve districts, with a captain over each. Each captain has a lieutenant, two sergeants, and from twenty-one to sixty-five patrolmen. whose duty is summed up in the ten sentences following:

Prevent swearing in public streets and places.

Prevent the building of bonfires on the streets.

Prevent boys from defacing property and sidewalks with chalk.

Prevent boys from engaging in dangerous or unlawful play.

Prevent boys from playing craps or smoking cigarettes.

Prevent persons placing encumbrances or obstructions on fire escapes. See that ash and garbage cans are removed after being emptied.

Prevent the mixing of paper, gar bage and ashes.

Request persons to keep the sidewalks and areaways clean in front of their premises.

For the above purposes do not enter

CONSTITUTION-7.

Will County Government Be Neglected as Usual?

It is time that somebody began to take an interest in the county government as a political institution. The cities have had their reformers for fifty years. City charters have been tinkered and patched and rebuilt and new principles tried out and perfected, but until the last five years nobody ever made any attempt to reconstruct or improve the basic organization of county government. . There are hundreds of books on the subject of city charters but not one on county government!

The form of government which New York State has is the same as in most of the other States. Among the four thousand counties throughout the country there is not one which claims to be a model or which anyone thinks worth copying. There has been no progress in fifty years and, worse than all, practically no attempt at progress.

County Organization a Joke. As an example of orderly organization county government is a joke. All the officers are elected independently of each other and are co-ordinated theoretically by elaborate laws. There is no governing body, for while the Board of Supervisors goes through the motions of governing by granting the appropriations it has no power, except on paper to control and direct the expenditure. The County Clerk, the County Treasurer, the Superintendent of the Poor, the Sheriff, the District Attorney, are each a law unto themselves, constituting in effect each a The community bordering on no navigable waterway would have been stalled. Town Development believed to the country is like an aument Magazine.

The community bordering on no paper to tell all the other officers to go to glory. The country is like an automobile with a separate motor at every wheel, each going its own gait, without any central control.

Under these conditions county officers find themselves in a very hard situation. They are constantly being blamed for matters over which they have no real control. Any man who takes a county office must be prepared cently started on the east side in New for all sorts of unjust accusations. If York city. The department is organiz- he tries to do well his efforts may be ed on the model of the regular police negatived by the work of some other force and governed by a written code officer who is not in sympathy with

> It is practically impossible to make a complete diagram of a county government and put in all the inter-relations which are laid down in the county law and in other laws, for the lines cross and criss-cross so endlessly that the diagram begins to look like a ball of yarn after the cat got through with it. The county law is an enormous patchwork of successive and conflicting amendments and few county officers have ever been known to read it. The conduct of the successive county officers is really regulated mainly by tradition and no two counties have the same traditions as to the proper conduct of their offices. The average voter hears very little about his county government except at election time when he considers the momentous question of which men shall get the

The condition is only partly the fault of the lawmakers at Albany, for the Constitution specifically requires that the various county officers shall be separately elected and accordingly the various county officers are restrained from excesses only by the fear of prosecution by the district attorney or the Governor for transgressing a tapgled hedge of legislation.

Control by Litigation.

Control of public officers by cumbersome court process is of course too roundabout to be effective and it is said on excellent authority that no county officer in the state can be found who is conducting his office in strict regard to the written law. The tendency of the public is to be satisfled if the county officials are bonest, but easy-going good intentions on the part of transient amateurs in public office is capable of wasting far more money than is likely to be stolen deliberately by thieves. It is not necessary for a corrupt man to get into office in order to rob the treasury, if the man on guard is lax and easygoing enough to give him a chance to do it from the outside. What attention the Constitutional Convention will give to counties remains to be seen. The least that it can do is to upshackle them; to remove the constitutional fetters that now embarrass all attempts at progress and which now compel the metropolitan counties to have the same form of government as the rural counties. Even a good form of county government ought not to be imposed arbitrarily upon every county in the state regardless of different fundamental

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

Worry About Work Doesn't Pay In the Long Run.

Business women frequently allow their responsibilities to weigh too heavily upon them. They do not forget their cares, but take them home, discuss them at the dinner table, take them to bed and once more they are heard at the breakfast table.

It is small wonder that business eventually drives them and the family to the point of tense nerves and much unhappiness.

The brain should not be robbed of its peace, especially at night, for nothing wears off its finer edge more quickly than worry, which naturally encourages insomnia.

Every effort should be made to indulge in outdoor diversions, active and passive, so as to suit one's needs and

Long hours of office work and household labor shoud be followed by periods of play, mental or physical relaxation, which serve as a balance wheel. Depression is sometimes due to too little physical exercise. Few people suffer from fatigue where the circulation is normally active.

Trying to Cure Insomnia.

The immediate cause of insomnia is the presence of too much blood in the brain. The feet go to sleep first, so use a hot water bag or a soapstone first of all to see if you cannot draw the blood to the extremities or soak the feet in hot mustard water just before retiring, but you must not do this

If very nervous put a mustard plaster at the back of the neck. The little ones already prepared and sold at the drug store for 5 cents each are nice for this purpose. One of the simplest and usually an effective method is to place a hot water bottle on the stomach. Never use drugs. They deaden. but do not heal.

At who were present at her lecture know how pleased she was with the excellent response her audience gave her and Mrs. Morgan left with many words of praise and commendation for the prople of Genoa and vicinity. Mrs. Morgan can not give much time to this work now on account of her hame duties but she has aroused so strong a sentiment through this state for botter songs that Cornell University is concentating a new deparagraph for this work next year,

Many from this place and vicinity natural each day from 12 to a close the "Old Factional Singing School" held in the Achitorium of the Home Economies building during Farmer's Week the year at Cornell. The work is in charge of Mis-Sarah Hulf a sister of Mrs. Morgan. Miss Huff has planned for four such schools in different parts of this state for this spring and we are very fortunate in having her choose Genoa as one of these places on the recommendation of Mrs. Morgan. The plan is to follow up Mrs. Morgan's work with some sort of an organization in these communities.

Miss Huff is a woman of pleasing personality and possesses a strong rich contratto voice and has the ability as a leader, to get everyone to sing.

Miss Haff has charge of all the musical activities of one of the largest churches in Brooklyn and also "has a studio in that city. Mrs. Morgan has enlisted her services for brief intervals from her work.

Miss Huff comes to as from Holley, N. Y., where she is now conducting the second school this season. She payes for the West on an extended lecture tour Wedneaday, April 21st and stops off with us for Saturday afternoon and evening, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings of April 17-20. The meetings will be held in the Presbytorian church at Genoa.

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock will be a song service for the children and every child in the town and vicinity old enough to sing is urged to be present. Everyone is invited to this service but it is especially for the children. The real singing school will commence Saturday evening at 7:30. Sunday morning and evening she will take charge of the congregational singing using the lantern slides with words and music in the evening service. Monday and Tuesday evenings will be given up to the "Old Fashioned Singing School," Everyone will sing and only the old songs will be used. The lantern will also be used.

The necessary expenses for this work are being met by the people of this vicinity who especially interested. No admission is charged. Everyone is urged to come and sing. 7:30 is the hour for the evening meetings.

A telegram received from Miss Huff says she will hold two meetings each day at 3 o'clock and evening at the usual hour.

The Bost of Friends.

There are no friends like old friends To help us with the load That all must bear who journey. O'er life's uneven road. And when unconquered sorrows The weary hours invest The kindly words of old friends Are always found the best.

There are no friends like old friends To calm our frequent fears When shadows fall and deepen Through life's declining years, And when our faltering footsteps Approach the great divide We'll long to meet the old friends Who wait on the other side. -Anonymous

To the Point.

An Indianapolis man has a sister in a Canadian town whom he long ago placed in the list of the old maids who largely if not wholly from filial devotion are content to remain at home to comfort the parents. She is climb ing rapidly to forty. Taking Off the Chill.

This story is probably exaggerated Maclyn Arbuckle says a darky in Galveston got an offer of a fob in Minneapolis and, having a desire to visit the north, started for his new place in the middle of January. Texas was balm, when he left, but he stepped off the steam heated train at his destination into the middle of the worst blizzard in fifteen years. In his cotton shirt and ragged overalls the new arrivat staggered along for perhaps a him dred yards, then stiffened like a boar. and rolled over into a snowdrift.

There, according to Arbuckle, a policeman found him some time later and, with the aid of two hardy citl sais, envied the buly to the morgae where the coroner diagnosed the case as one of death by exposure, and, since the earth was frozen so hard that burials were impossible, the unknown a 3 sent to the crematory.

On arrival there an attendant slid the body into the white bot interior of the receptacle and went off to bed. Next morning another body was brought to him. As he opened the steel door of the crematory and drew back from the gush of terrific heat that shot out into his face a complaining voice came forth from the inside. saying:

Barrie and Kigling.

Mr. Barrie was one day at Waterloo stution in a hurry to catch a train. He was hastening from the bookstall laden with papers, "a good many sixpenny ones among them," he dolefully relates, when, in rushing around a corner, he fell into the arms of Rud yard Kipling, equally in a tearing hurry. They turned on each other with seawling faces, then smiled in recognition, and asked each other whither he went. Then Kipling, exdalming, 'Lucky beggar, you've got spory!" seized the bundle from Barthe flang blin some money and made off. "But you did not stoop to pick up his dirty bulfpence, did you?" queried one of Mr. Barrie's hearers.emupally : "Didn't I, though?" returned Barris, and safetd ruefully, "But he ATTENT Gaussia.

Amusing Incident of the Author's Second Visit to Boston.

During Thackeray's second visit to Boston Mr. James T. Fields, his host. was asked to invite Thackeray to attend an evening meeting of a scientific club, which was to be held at the house of a distinguished member.

I was, said Mr. Fields, very reluctant to ask him to be present, for knew he was easily bored, and I was fearful that a prosy essay or geological paper might be presented and felt certain that should such be the case be would be exasperated with me, the innocent cause of his affliction.

An Artful Dodger.

Mr. Balfour is credited with knowing more good stories about the house of commons than any other member. One of his best is the following, which he told at a public dinner some time

"I remember hearing of a distinjuished gentleman," he said, "who reported in the press gallery just about 100 years ago. He had had an excellent dinner, washed down with excellent wine. He was bored with the debute. He was wearled with the superfulty of rhetoric, which prevailed just as much 100 years ago as today. He got bored, and he got up and asked the speaker for a song.

The speaker of that day was Mr. Addington, a gentleman who was nothing If not proper. The whole house, except the speaker, was convulsed with laugh-

MAINTAINING THE ORCHARD.

Cover Crops Contribute to Welfare of Trees In Various Ways.

Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

It is far better to keep the soil of an schard at a high standard than to permit it to become depleted so that restoration is necessary.

Good tillage and the maintenance of an ample supply of humus or decaying egetable matter in the soil will do much to keep it in a sufficiently productive condition. But continuous tillage of the soil tends to deplete its content of humus unless it is renewed from time to time.

Where stable or barnyard manure is bundant there is probably no more satisfactory way of supplying bumus to the soil than by a liberal use of it Manure is seldom obtainable, however, in sufficient quantity to meet any farreaching needs. In its absence the use of cover or green manure crops is to be advised.

A cover crop may contribute to the welfare of the orchard in a number of different ways. They have been canmerated as follows:

First.-it directly improves the physical condition of the land, prevents hard soils from cementing or puddling, holds the rains and snows until they have time to soak away into the land.

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD-PEACH TREE.

dries out the soil in spring, making early tillage possible, and sometimes serves as a protection from frost.

Second.-It catches and holds some of the leaching nitrates (of which the roots of trees are in little need late 1: the season, adds humus, renders plant foods available and appropriates nitrogen if it is leguminous.

The plants commonly used for cover crop purposes fail into two groupsleguminous (or nitrogen gathering) and nonleguminous. The former group comprises red clover, crimson clover. bur clover, field peas, vetch, cowpeas, and others; the nonleguminous group consists of rye, oats, buck wheat, millet. rape, -turnips and various others Sometimes the growth of weeds or other more or Jess spontaneous growth is encouraged after the seasonal cultivation is ended as a means of obtaining a cheap supply of vegetable matter for the soil.

The range of usefulness of these dif ferent cover crops cannot be discussed in detail in the present connection. It must suffice to mention a few of the most salient features. Red clover is she said calmly, laying down four more commonly used in apple orchards than in peach orchards and especially when it is intended to omit tiliage for a season. Vetch is apparently being used more and more as an orchard cover crop in the northern fruit districts. Crimson clover is especially satisfactory in some of the light soils in New Jersey and Delaware in seasons when there is a good supply of moisture in the soil at the time of seeding. Cowpens are very widely used for this purpose in middle and bouthern latitudes.

Probably rye is the most widely used nonleguminous plant. It can be sowed late in the season, and it lives over winter and starts into growth early the next spring. All of these points are important considerations in many instances. But outs in combination with vetch have been especially satisfactory in some cases, and German millet has been shown to be almost an ideal nonleguminous cover crup under some of the conditions that prevail in Nebraska

In starting the cover erop the usual practice is to sow the seed when the orchard is given its last cultivation for the sensons asually in July or early in August, though the exact time b regulated by conditions Sometimes coupers are blanted in drills in June and tilbage continued with a small rul tivator. Where rye is used it is commonly put in toward the close of the "The sergeant at arms was appealed growing season. The above methods may be used in the culture of farm crops in general, as well as in fruit orchards There is, of course, an opportunity for erop rotation with farm crops that is not possible in an orchard.

THE FARM ORCHARD. The time has come when good fruit does not "just grow" without any effort on the part of the owner of the trees. Neglect means inferior fruit or none at all, and ultimately no trees on which to grow it. As dangers have multiplied means of overcoming them have increased. Spraying is no longer a job that calls for the employment of a college professor. Anybody can buy sprays ready made, can operate the machines to apply them, and can afford both sprays and machines if he has any trees. No farmer with a small orchard could be blamed very much for failing to spray his trees when he had to make his own material and apply it with inadequate machines. But that time is past, sprays and machines are reliable and cheap. and the day of universal spraying is approaching. Some day all states will require it by law as a few of them do now .- Na-

One of the Most Destructive Enemies of the Orchard.

Among the numerous insect pests that attack fruit trees the peach tree borer is one of the most destructive. At this time of the year this denizen | ficiency. of the orchard is in the larval stage and will be found at work under the bark at or below the surface of the ground. The eggs are deposited by the adult in spring and early summer on the trunk of the trees. In time the eggs are hatched, and the larvae begin or are left ster serving may be renwidely disseminated, there being no much better than butter for fine cooksection entirely free from its attack.

Convenient Chicken Trap. A simple device to aid in catching chickens that get out of the yard, says a contributor to the Farm Progress, is rigged as follows: Attach a strip of chicken netting five feet long and two feet wide to the outer side of the fence by tying at intervals of four inches through the vertical center. Secure the ends to stakes driven out about five inches from the fence. When a chicken escapes it naturally runs be side the wire, trying to get in with its mates. It then enters one of the angles in the device, when it may be readily caught. I breed one of the small and spry varieties, and have been put to much trouble by "breachy" chicks until after arranging this device. Now I actually enjoy having them "break jail," it is so easy to catch them.

Marvelous Achievements of Past Decade Graphically Displayed at Panama=Pacific International Exposition

In Mighty Palaces on Shores of San Francisco Bay Hundreds of Thousands of Spectators View the Wonders of the World.

In Vast Panorama.

TITHIN the first month after the opening of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco 2,000,000 people had passed the turnstiles, exceeding all expectations, breaking all exposition records and assuring to the San Francisco Exposition a success unparalleled in the history of world celebrations. In thousands of exhibits the things that mark signal advances and betterments in different lines of activity are displayed, so that the average man and woman who have been too busy to follow the world's gress may have a concrete picture presented.

Visitors may hear conversations over the new transcontinental telephone between the Exposition and New York or they may go down into the depths of a mine, where are shown the revolutionary advances made in the welfare and safety of mine workers. The telegrophone, which records telephone conversations, is in action, while another great accomplishment and one that has been striven for for years, is photography in colors. The Diesel engine, which engineers claim marks a new era in power development, runs daily, built on a hardwood floor, with costly rugs surrounding it and engineers in white duck suits to show the cleanliness of the engine in operation.

The marvels of plant hybridization, seed selection and floriculture are shown in the beautiful Palace of Horticulture, while there are thousands of separate exhibits, each representing some phase of present day activity, of interest, worth and instruction are some and the careful orthogo A we have Shelley Was a Queer Boy.

The poet Percy Bysshe Shelley as a small boy was an eccentric little being. He used to dress his four sisters to represent flends, and, filling a fire stove with some inflammable fluid and setting it aflame, he would marshal the diabolical procession to the back door. As a boy at Eton he would watch the livelong night for ghosts and consulted his books how to raise one. His diet in after years was meager enough to bring him weird fancies. Bread became his chief sustenance, and his pockets Star. were well stored with it.

A circle upon the carpet, clearly fined by an ample verge of crumbs, often marked the place where he had long sat at his studies, his face nearly in contact with his book, devouring bread at intervals amid his profound abstractions. Sometimes be ate taisins with it, and his awest tooth was im-
