Popular Objections $ How to Meet Them

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE

TEXT-When I have a more convenient season, I will call for thee .- Acts 24:25.

When a man says: "I have no time for religion," it means that he is not interested. He has all the time thereis, and if he considered his salvation a matter of much importance, he would take time for it. He may be so crowded with business and home cares that he cannot attend meetings, but that need not prevent him from being a Christian. cial interests of the community. An Our Roman Catholic friends, who belong almost wholly to the laboring class, and whose time is not their own, as a rule, are the most regular churchgoers in the community. The fact is that people find time for what they consider important. I know a young man who wished to attend a certain series of meetings. The factory where he was employed was running evenings, and every man was expected to work overtime for a few weeks during the busy season, for which of course, they received extra pay. He was not a Christian, but he went to his employer and asked to be excused from working evenings for a week, and he also went without his supper each night in order to attend the services. Very soon he gave his heart to God, and before the end of the week he had the pleasure of seeing his brother converted.

Not the Real Reason.

When one offers the lack of time as an excuse for not being a Christian, it is well to show him by some simple illustration that this is not the opportunity to earn ten dollars each week by one hour of extra work, would you accept the offer?"

He will doubtless answer, "I think I

"In other words, if you want time for something extra, you manage to find it. You see, my friend, the simple fact is that you do not feel the need of salvation, and you are not interested in it. You are in the condition described in Ephesians 4:18, 'Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the hardening of their heart.' Why not face the fact, disagreeable as it may be, and when people ask you why you are not a Christian, give them the real reason instead of offering a false one? And furthermore, it is well to remember that if you do not take time to consider this question of salvation, you will soon lose your capacity to know God, and will be in the condition described in the nineteenth verse of the same chapter, 'Who being past feeling,' gave themselves up to all manner of sin." "I Will Think About It."

There are some minds which mature very slowly, and if one really has never considered what is involved in becoming a Christian, it may be well to give him a little time for reflection. As a rule, however, this excuse is only another way of saying, "Not now." We should show the person that already he has all the information he needs for an intelligent decision, and that if he waited a dozen years he would not be any better prepared, but on the contrary, he would be less disposed to decide than now. There are only two things that he needs to know-that he is lost, and that Christ is the only Savior. These two things he knows already, and all that remains for him to do is to accept Christ as his Savior. Show him that continual thinking on the subject will not make the decision any easier, but continual rejection of Christ will surely make it harder. It is a great mistake for people to think that they can be saved when they please. The only time when a man can be saved is when God chooses to save him, and God's time is now; "Behold, now is the accepted time; be hold, now is the day of salvation."

No one has a right to say that he will think it over and decide when he is ready. God calls for immediate decision; he commands us to lay down the weapons of our rebellion, and surrender unconditionally. FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT. (By REV. JOSEPH HENRY CROOKER.) Let us see how the liquor trade works out as a business proposition in s small village of 3,000 people (counting the tributary country folk), with four saloons. As the average per capita expenditure for drink in the United States is over twenty dollars a year, on that basis this village would spend $60,000 annually for liquor. But, to be conservative, we will cut this in two and make it $30,000. That sum, very large for so small a community, we may set down as the charge against the saloons. The business gains from them are practically as follows: For licenses, $1,000 ($250 being the average village fee); for rent (the keepers living above their bar-rooms), $2,500; for household expenses of four families, $4,000 (a very high estimate); making $7,500 the amount of money which the business spends in the town -a very liberal calculation. That is, for every four dollars paid over the outgo of four dollars and income of one dollar. Surely, not much profit in Or to put the matter in another way: For every four dollars that goes into any one of those saloons, three dollars never comes out again to do business in that town; the grocer on one side loses a dollar's trade, the market on the oth-bar, only one comes back to the finaner side loses a dollar's trade, and the merchant across the street also loses a dollar's trade for every hour throughout the year!

GROWTH OF BEACH RESORT.

According to the last census, Long Beach, Cal., is the fastest growing city in the United States. In 1902 the population was approximately 2,000; in 1910 it was nearly 20,000-a 685 per cent increase. Today its population is reckoned at 45,000. Long Beach is one of the youngest tourist resorts in southern California and has been "dry" many years. "Other coast cities are as favorably located as to climate, environment, and proximity to Los Angeles," says Mayor Whealton, "and Long Beach is larger than real reason. Say to him, "If, in addi- any of them, its banks and bank cleartion to your regular work, you had an ings and assessed valuation of property far surpassing them." The prohibition of the liquor traffic, he declares, has contributed more than anything else to this phenomenal growth and prosperity, 50 per cent of the population coming there, he believes, because it is a saloonless town.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT MAKERS.

Two visitors in Milwaukee, in attendance at a home missionary convention, went on a tour of inspection of the Schlitz Brewing company's plant, relates the Union Signal. In the course of their tour, one of them casually inquired of the man who was escorting them, "Has the work the women (meaning the W. C. T. U.) have been doing at all affected your business?" For answer the man pointed out of the window to a group of vacant buildings. "See them-not a wheel of machinery moving. Once we worked seven days and seven nights a week-now we have reduced it to

OPPOSITION TO LIQUOR TRAFFIC. This from a Pennsylvania hotel keeper, who for four years was secretary of the Philadelphia Liquor Deafers' association and should know whereof he speaks:

"Liquor men who say that all this agitation is being created by temperance cranks are not awake. The opposition comes from many men who have liquors in their cellars; it comes from the big corporations who are making this fight on economic grounds; it comes from big merchants-they themselves may drink and many of them do, but they don't want their employees to drink."

URISHMENT IN BEER.

It is now possible to demonstrate with mathematical certainty that, so far as enriching the blood is concerned, the flour that will lie on the point of a knife affords more nourishment than four measures of the best Bavarian beer; and that anybody who drinks a measure of beer daily would thus imbibe in one year about as much nourishment as is contained in a pound of bread.—Baron Justus von Liebeg, in Chemische Briefe.

CHANCES OF MODERATION.

I weigh my words when I say that the man who habitually uses alcohol in so-called moderate quantities—the man who "takes it every day, but never was drunk in his life"-has, other things being equal, a substantially smaller chance of standing the strain.-Sir Arthur Chance, noted British surgeon.

A GOOD POINT.

The plea for compensation made by the liquor traffic, says a prohibition journal, loses its force in face of its own statement that prohibition does not prohibit, for if this be true its property should be enhanced by reason of the increasing consumption.

KILLED IN BATTLE.

Methods of Different Nations For Identifying the Dead.

When a German soldier falls in battle he is identified by a little metal disk which he carries. This disk bears a number, and this number is telegraphed to Berlin. There the soldier's name is determined. This system is as effective as everything else connected with the German army.

The British use an aluminium disk that contains, besides marks of identification, the soldier's church affiliation. The Japanese system is similar, each soldier wearing three disks, one around his neck, another on his belt and the third in his boot. The Russians wear a numbered badge.

The United States army uses a cloth tab woven into the shoulder strap of the tunic. The French use identification cards stitched inside the tunic. The French once made use of metal identification badges, but these proved an irresistible attraction to the savages whom the French faced in Africa, so the cards were substituted. Austria still uses a badge of gun metal in the form of a locket with parchment leaves inside.

Turkey has no identification badges for her soldiers. Edhem Pasha once explained this omission as follows: "A dead man is of no use to the sultan. Why, therefore, trouble with him?"-Baltimore American.

MOVING PICTURES IN JAPAN.

Shoes Are Doffed at the Door, and Spectators Sit on the Floor. any of the motion picture thes in Japan, particularly in Tokyo, where there are over 100, are quite as elegant as some to be found in any American city. You can secure admission for as low as 5 cents up to as high as 50 cents. In the cheaper portions of most theaters the natives sit crosslegged on the floor in characteristic Japanese fashion. They remove their shoes before entering, and an attendant takes charge of these.

Both American and European pictures are shown, but the principal attraction is a long Japanese play, which is presented in a very unique fashion. In fact, it may be said that the Japanese have real talking pictures. The film is produced in the same manner dialogue spoken.

Suspicions of Charles Reade.

Wealthy men are often abnormally suspicious of tricks. The celebrated author Charles Reade was one of this kind. He always imagined be was being robbed and set traps to catch the thieves. When he became lessee of a certain theater he suspected that his ticket office cheated him by letting in the public for anything they could get and keeping the money. So Reade turned up the collar of his overcont. pulled his hat down over his eyes and shuffled up to the box office as the peode were going in. He shoved a half crown in the box office keeper's hand and whispered: "It's all right-that's for you-I don't want a ticket. Just pass me through." The clerk ran out. seized Reade by his cont collar and was passing him roughly into the street when he recognized his "chief."

OLD ENGLISH HOUSES.

In the Days of Wooden Huts, Thatched Roofs and Clay Floors.

The habitations of English common people for centuries consisted of a wooden hut of one room, with the fire built in the center. To this hut, if a man increased in family and wealth, a ean-to was added and later another and another. The roofs were of thatch. the beds of loose straw or straw beds with bolsters of the same laid on the floor or perhaps eventually shut in by a shelf and ledge like the berths of a ship or by a small closet.

The Saxon thane or knight built more pretentious "hall," a large open room like the Roman atrium with a lofty roof thatched or covered with slates or wooden shingles. In the center of the hard clay floor burned great fires of dry wood, whose thin acrid smoke escaped from openings in the roof, above the hearth or by the doors, windows and openings under the eaves of the thatch.

By day the "hearthsmen" and visitors, when not working or fighting, sat on long benches on either side of the fire and, as John Hay puts it, "calmly drinked and jawed" or, gathering at long boards placed on trestles, regaled themselves on some sort of porridge with fish and milk or meat and ale. At night straw or rushes spread on the floor formed beds for the entire company in the earlier and ruder days. when the "baser sort" were glad to share their straw with the cows .- National Magazine.

SEEING THE WIND.

Easy to Watch the Air Currents Flowing Like a Waterfall. It is said that any one may actually see the wind by means of a common handsaw. The experiment is simple enough to be worth trying at least. According to those who have made the experiment, all that is necessary is a handsaw and a good breeze. On any blowy day hold the saw against the wind-that is, if the wind is in the north hold the saw with one end pointing east and the other west. Hold the saw with the teeth uppermost and tip it slowly toward the horizon until it is at an angle of about an easy occupation. He accomplishes

It is doubtless the tiny particles that make the air dust laden that can be seen falling over the edge of the saw as the wind current drops, but it is about as near as any one can get to seeing the wind under normal conditions.-Washington Post.

Mr. Jasper Mayne at least considered himself witty when he bequeathed to his valet a wornout portmanteau, as it contained something, said the will, which would make him drink. The excited valet ripped open the trunk and found a red herring in it. So, doubtless, did the Scotch gentleman who in 1877 left to his son's care his two worst watches, "because," he said, "I know he is sure to dissect them."-St. James' Gazette.

Wonderful Memory.

A few years ago there was a teamster in Milwaukee named Israel Mullin who was able to tell at the end of the week the number of loads and their weights he had hauled for the six days past without so much as a figure on paper. It would have been useless to furnish him with paper and pencils, his memory was found to be unerring. He was dismissed once for using liquor too freely and a man appointed to his place who used pencil and paper. The first week the pencil and paper man made over a dozen errors, and Mullin got his job back,-Pittsburgh Press.

QUARDING GOLD AT SEA.

Armor Plate Rooms on Ocean Liners For Holding Bullion.

It would be natural to suppose that shipments of gold bullion back and forth across the Atlantic on big liners would be attended by considerable precaution, but there is probably no other piace in the world where the transport of great wealth is carried on with such simplicity.

One of our great liners has two strong rooms, the smaller being in close proximity to the captain's quarters, while the other is next to the provision department. The small strong room has its walls, floor and celling lined with two inch steel plate and contains nothing in the way of furnishing other than shelves. This has more than once contained enough gold to buy the liner many times over.

The locks, which are of the double variety, are rendered still more secure by covering the keyholes with steel hasps, which are themselves locked in place with massive padlocks. This strong room, being located in the most frequented portion of the ship, is passed by persons at all hours of the day and night, which, after all, is the great protection. The strong room located near the provision department is twelve feet long by four feet wide, and it often happens that both these rooms are filled to capacity with gold bullion On one occasion the two rooms contained £20.000,000 in gold bullion. packed in small kegs bound with steel hoops.-London Answers.

TAUGHT HIM HIS DUTY.

Now He Knows All About the Etiquette of the Droshky.

The Siberian method of riding in a droshky requires an etiquette all its own, which, although sometimes surprising to the English traveler who encounters it for the first time, is based upon practical considerations. The danger of being thrown out has determined the prevailing usage, says Mrs. John Clarence Lee in "Across Siberia

How Standing Armies Originated.

The earliest European standing army was that of Macedonia, established about 358 B. C. by Philip, father of Alexander the Great. It was the second in the world's history, having been preceded only by that of Sesotris Pharaoh of Egypt, who organized a military caste about 1600 B. C. Of modern standing armies, that formed by the Turkish janizaries was first, being fully organized in 1362. It was a century later that the standing army of France, the earliest in western Europe, was established by Charles VII. in the shape of "compagnies d'ordonnance," numbering 9.000 men. Rivalry thereupon compelled the nations to adopt similar means of defense. In England a standing army proper was first established by Cromwell, but was disbanded under Charles II., with the exception of a few regiments called the guards, or household brigade. This was the nucleus of England's present Force of Habit.

A consul in Guatemala tells a story of a man who ran a store in Retalhulieu who had been ordering candles from Germany for many years. Each candle was wrapped in blue paper. One shipment came wrapped in yellow paper. The people would not buy them. In vain he argued and showed that the candles were the same as he had been selling. It was no use, and he could not sell those candles until he sent to a paper supply house in Guatemala City and bought sufficient blue paper in which to wrap them. Then he had no difficulty in selling them.

WHEN MEN WORE MUFFS.

Likewise Silk Stockings and Plaid Shawls and Capes.

In the good old days about which so many men so dreamily read and profess to reverence, and when men were believed to be more bold and dashing and daring than they are now, the must was the thing of winter wear for men. It was a regular part of a gentleman's cold weather tollet.

Among Horace Walpole's Christmas gifts to his friend George Montagu, in 1676, were "Anecdotes of Painting." a pamphlet on "Libels," the "Custle of Otranto" and a muff. That was the period of the muff for men. It had been an article of men's apparel for many years before, and men retained the muff for long years afterward, it being cast off when men forswore colored silks and satins, rare laces and jeweled shoe buckles.

It was not so far back in American bistory that men wore silk stockingsnot merely silk socks-and knee garters and fancy garter buckles, and many men walking the streets of Washington today remember when their sex wore brillant plaid shawls and when the cloth cape, called a fashion. Now and then one sees a gentleman of the old school walking along with a gold headed cane and wearing a somewhat motheaten, frayed or shiny "talma."-Washington Star.

AN ICEBERG AT SEA.

One of the Most Awe Inspiring Spectacles In Nature.

There is nothing in nature so imposing and awe inspiring as the iceberg. writes Lacey Amy in the Wide World Magazine. It gives an overpowering sense of relentless force, of diguity and of brilliance. Beneath the sun's vivid rays or the dark clouds of threatening storm, in the moon's cold beams or dimly through the shadows of moonless night, in calm and tempest-every one of them, from the tiny "growler" to the huge mass of spurs, rouses at first glimpse an awe undiminished by a growing appreciation of its beauty.

Always before one is the thought that but an eighth of the iceberg's bulk shows above the water, the remainder stretching down and down into the blue-green depths and out and out until captains breathe freely only when the horizon is clear of them. Far out in the ocean, with the largest steamers passing swiftly miles inside. they ground upon the bottom in tremendous depths and calmly await the relieving touch of sun and current.

In the wildest seas and strongest gales these frigid mountains float undisturbed. There could be no seasickness on an iceberg, for its foundations are fathoms below the wave disturb-

An Earthquake.

The horror of experiencing an earthquake has been set down by F. S. Lyman, who was in the Hawaiian Islands some years ago, when there began a series of earthquakes on the southern flanks of a so called "quiet volcano.' "First the earth swayed to and fro from north to south, then from east to west, then round and round, up and down, and finally in every imaginable direction, for several minutes, everything crashing around and the trees thrashing as if torn by a hurricane, and there was a sound as of a mighty wind. It was impossible to stand. We had to sit on the ground, bracing with hands and feet to keep from being rolled over. The villages on the shore were swept away by the great wave that rushed upon the land immediately after the earthquake."-Exchange.

BATTLE NEARTAMPICO A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

There has been a considerable ex tension of the battlefields both in the Carpathians and in the Woevre dis trict of France, where fighting of ex treme violence continues day and night without definite decision.

The Russians have made themselves masters of the principal chain e mountains from Dukla pass to Uzsok pass and have begun an attack on the German forces which hold the hills from the latter pass eastward to the Beskid pass. This section of the Car pathians has been the scene since early February of many fierce encoun ters between the Germans who were sent to help the Austrians in their fruitless efforts to relieve Przemys and the Russian army whose task it was to held them back until the fall of the fortress.

The French army in the Woevre is hammering at the two sides of the German wedge which was driven, into the French lines as far as St. Mihie. early in the war, and which thus far has remained firm, and simultaneously has attacked the German front which passes close to the Lorraine border between Nancy and Chateau Salins.

From Russian sources it is reported that the invasion of Hungary has beer begun. A dispatch from Lemburg Galicia, says that the Russians are advancing successfully along a wide front between Barfeld and Uzsok, de scending the southern slope of the Carpathians and pressing back the Austrians.

In the Dukla region also the Rus sians are said to have routed the Aus trians, forcing them to abandon stores and transports in their retreat.

The Meuse-Moselle region is stil the scene of the principal contest ir the west. Although the French at tacks have been made with increasing vigor, Berlin reports that virtually nothing has been accomplished by these tactics.

An official review of these opera tions contains the statement that the Germans have regained all the post tions lost earlier in the fighting, with a few unimportant exceptions, and that the French have sustained ex tremely heavy losses.

The effort of the allies to drive back the German wedge in the Meuse-Mo selle region continues unremittingly but the official communications from both Paris and Berlin indicate that

The Berlin announcement speaks of a number of French infantry attacks with strong forces, which are said to have been repelled. Small gains are claimed for the Germans in the forest of Le Petre.

The French war office refers only briefly to this fighting, saying that a several points the attackers made their way to the wire entanglements of the Germans.

Elsewhere over the western front there was a lull. German aviators dropped bombs on three towns occu pied by the British.

Five independent Austrian armic are operating along the Carpathian front Petrograd newspapers assert that the various Austrian armies are under direction of the German general staff. It is said also that Emperor William personalty is supervising the work of the staff.

CONSTITUTION—8. PASS THOMPSON BILL THE NEW STATE

Association Proposes.

In New York State the question of letter county government was opened some years ago by the law which permits the state comptroller to go into any county of the state and examine the financial and other conditions, The law was a dead letter for some time but finally some good work was started, resulting in amazing revelations of graft and irregularities.

For several years the citizens of Westchester County have maintained at private expense the Westchester County Research Bureau with paid investigators and accountants going over the county books, studying county methods. The supervisors of Westchester County were honestly proud of their county government and believed it to be the best in the state. But the investigators of the Research Bureau speedily found evidences of the most ludicrous inefficiency. For example, board of supervisors appropriated for the expenses in their own department $25,000; the expenditures, as shown by the county treasurer's report, were $32,000; actual expenditures $65,000. For the Superintendent of the Poor, ure. $17,000 was appropriated; the treasurer accounted for $108,000 and actual expenditures were $118,000, Complete Reconstruction Necessary. Piecemeal reforms have been advocated and some of them have been adopted, but the Research Bureau conble without a complete reconstruction of the whole institution of county government. The citizens of Nassau County maintain the Nassau County Taxpayers Association which has begun similar work.

Under the auspices of a volunteer committee in Schenectady, about fifty men and organizations as were known to be interested were brought together in November, 1914, at the first Conference for Better County Government. Some able papers were read and there nent organization and founded the thrown in the Susquehanna river. County Government Association of New York State. The Short Ballot Organization in New York contributed the services of its office and secretary, and its present headquarters is there. and has been used primarily for the bile." publishing of the proceedings of the Conference. For the present the program of the association aside from the problem of increasing the number of Over 200 Gallons Are Poured Into a citizens who are interested in county government, is laid out in the following resolution which was adopted at the Schenectady Conference:

WHEREAS the present basic form of county government, imposed uniformly on all the counties of the State regardless of their great differences, is exceedingly and needlessly complex, disjointed and wasteful; and

WHEREAS this complexity and disunion cannot now be repaired by logislation on account of the requirement of Sections 1 and 2 of Article X of the present State Constitution, that all the principal county offices shall be separately elective and maintained in isolation: THEREFORE be it resolved that in the opinion of this Confevence the interests of better county government require the removal of the aforesaid obstacles to unification and simplification contained in Sections 1 and 2 of Article X of the Constitution, to the end that the Legislature may be free to devise improved forms of county government, suited to urban and rural counties respectively and otherwise adjusted to varying local condi-tions, any one of which forms any county may adopt by referendum.

This, of course, is a negative rather than a positive proposition. In itself to makes no change whatever in county government but opens the way to legislation on the subject.

In that simple project lies all the hope which New York State may have for better county government. If the Constitutional Convention throws that resolution into its capacious waste basket, the present decrepit institution will be nailed down probably to stay for the next twenty years.

In New York City, which has five inefficient county governments within its borders, the workers for civic betterment have a similarly simple program. They wish to add to the constitution the simple words "counties within Greater New York may be consolidated or abilished." There are several large cities in the country, Baltimore. St. Louis, San Francisco and Denver, for example, where county government has been consolidated with the city government to the great advantage of the taxpayers. This ought to be possible wherever city and county boundaries are the same. At present the Board of Estimate of New York City is forced to raise money and hand it over to the county officers to spend without exercising the remotest supervision as to the intelligence or wisdom of that expenditure. With the powerful backing of the municipal administration, the City Club, Citizens Union, etc. this amendment may be secured.

The chance that the up-state counties will also secure their freedom is more remote!

[This is the cizhth of a series of nine articles prepared jointly by the Municipal Government Association, the County Government Association and the New York Short Ballet Organization on questions to come before the Constitutional Conven-

Measure Also Allows Employment of Minors at Night and on Sundays During the Canning Season-Bill Passed In Senate Under a Heated Discussion-Other News of Interest,

The state senate passed the Thompon bill, permitting women to work 2 hours a week in canneries during the canning season and permitting the employment of minors at ight and on Sundays in canning establishments. The vote was 27 to 15, Republican senators Bennett of New York, Gilchrist and Lawson of Kings, Hill of Binghamton and Mills of New York voting with the Democrats against the measure, while Senater Greiner, Democrat, of Erie, voted with the Republicans for the bill.

Senator Thompson maintained that the reason for the bill was the desire on the part of those employed in the canning industry to work as many hours as they pleased so that the crops could be moved. Senator Samuel Jones of Chenango gave this also as his reason for supporting the meas-

There was great wailing and gnashing of teeth among the bibulously inclined citizens of Washington (Pa.) county when 245 gallons of whisky ranging in age from 20 to 45 years, was poured into a sewer by John A Howden and A. In clearing up Kammerer's estate the executors struck a snag when they came upon the whisky. Washington county being dry, the executors, to avoid running afoul of the law, were unable to give away or sell the liquor. They were told by federal authorities the only thing to do was to throw the liquor away. The time and place were kept secret. The liquor was valued at nearly $2,000. Kammerer had not had a license for the last five years,

REHEATED DISHES.

To make over remnants of food and not have them messy and unattractive is a most desirable accomplishment and one which practice will perfect. There are many dishes that are more toothsome on their second appearance than on their first. It is not advisable, if one has a finicky household, to mention too often that this is "so and so" warmed over. What fussy people don't know won't worry them. Christian Science Bill Killed. Albany, April 14,-The assembly yesterday defeated the bill of Assemblyman Frank B. A similar bill introduced by Mr. Thorn last year passed both the senate and assembly, but was vetoed by Governor Glynn,

MORS FOUND INSANE

Man Confessing to Killing Eight Old People Goes to State Hospital, Locked in the White Plains jail since

Feb. 3, because of a confession that he killed eight aged inmates of the German Odd Fellows' home in Yonkers. Frederick Mors, the porter, who has been looked upon as a wholesale murderer, was discharged from the White Plains jail by Coroner Dunn.

Mors has been held pending an investigation on a charge of homicide. District Attorney Frederick E. Weeks found there was not evidence to convict Mors, and, therefore, he could not be held on the criminal charge. Mors has been found insane by Mrs. Samuel F. Getty and William F. Coons, after they had examined him at Hastings. He will be committed to the Hudson River hospital, although it is thought probable that ultimately he will be deported, as he landed here only last July.

INFANT DEATHS REDUCED

State Health Report Shows Big Saving of Young Lives by an Educational Campaign. A reduction of infant deaths in the state during the last year from 137 to 112 for 1,000 births is one of the striking advance recorded by the annual report of Dr. Herman M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, just transmitted to Governor Whitman.

It covers the first year of the working of the public health law, adopted in 1913, which the Hinman bills seek to revolutionize. The work of the division of child hygiene shows a saving of more than 1,400 lives through a campaign to show mothers how to care for and feed their children, that cost $14,500. Forty-five cities were visited and 150 popular health lectures were given from April 1 to July 1.

SALARIES NEED REVISION

Move Made to Standardize Pay and Position of State Employes.

The civil service committee of the senate at Albany reported that the salaries and titles of one-half of the 17,000 state employes who are getting $18,000 a year need revision. Chairman Clinton T. Hor, on of Buffa', handed up a preliminary report of the committee's work in investigating the situation in the 200 state departments, bureaus and commissions and recommended that an appropriation of $25. 000 be made to permit the committee to complete this investigation and report to the next legislature.

Senator Horton believes that $2. 000,000 a year can be saved to the state through a standardization of salaries and positions of state employes. More than $500,000 could be saved the report.

Will Not Meddle In Reapportionment. Many of the leading Republicans in the constitutional convention at Albany have decided that the convention should not take up the question of reapportionment of senate and assembly districts, thereby eliminating from the deliberations of that body the one big feature which heretofore has projected partisan quarrels, Senator Elihu Root, president of the convention, is said to favor this plan. believing that the reapportionment is a matter for the legislature to set-

VALUATION OF CIVIC UTILITIES

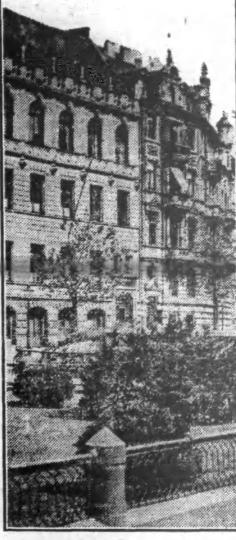

Public Properties Should Be Estimated by Experts.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP PLAN

With the Growing Tendency of Cities and Towns Toward the Ownership of Public Utilities the Determination of Values Becomes of Great Importance.

By FRANK KOESTER, Consulting En-

With the growing tendency of municipalities toward public ownership of public utilities and especially the tendencies either to take over existing plants or to stipulate rates and charges the determination of the true value of public utilities becomes of great importance. When charges to the public for service are fixed on the basis of allowing the operating company to earn a certain rate of return on its invested capital or on the going value of the concern any improper valuation will act as a fraud on the public, and it is therefore necessary that the valuation be made by impartial experts and in the most thorough and careful manner

Similarly when the city levies taxes or acquires properties or fixes limits or grants authorizations for new issues of stocks or bonds the correct valuation of the property is essential, while when arrangements are made to take over property at the end of a term of years or when adjustments of rates are to be made at fixed periods the methods of valuation should be prescribed and faithfully carried out.

When uniform systems of accounting are prescribed the question of valuation should be settled and a proper basis for the opening of the books of account provided. Further, in the matter of assessments for purposes of apportioning the cost of public improvements, such as the widening of streets and cutting through of new streets, the question of valuation is of the first consequence.

Valuation, thus a matter of the greatest civic importance, is essentially a judicial matter, consisting in arriving first at as complete a knowledge of the facts as possible and then an equitable decision in the light of the facts disclosed. It is one of the processes of justice and those having charge of valuation should be of a judicial temperament, not likely to be swayed by prejudice and of course wholly above the suggestion of ulterior motive.

At the same time it is very necessary for those in charge of valuations to have ample experience and a thorough knowledge of the numerous devices of corporation bookkeeping so that they may be equipped to ascertain the facts in the case and not be deceived by corporation managers.

In making a valuation for a property and such a valuation as will be fair and equitable, many complicated considerations are encountered. The basis of the valuation must be fixed and three principal methods are employed for this purpose:

The determination of the physical value of the property. The determination of its earning capacity. The determination of the value of its
