South and Central American Diplomats Give Valuable Aid to the Administration.

JATCHFIL waiting in Mexico is no more. The last rites over this policy were said at the conferences between the Ladh American diplomats and Secretary Lansing, at which it was decided that the United States, with the moral support and co operation of Central and South American republics, should restore peace in that country, which has been rubbed and looted by the various leaders who have been in passer from time to time since the overthrow of Liaz.

The calling in of the South and Central American diplomats was lauded on all sides, but this was not the first time the United States had requested them to aid in Mexico. When our troops had been lauded at Vera Cruz. with a large fleet in the harbor, and when the city had been put under military government the A. B. C. mediators at the meeting at Niagara Falls smoothed over the difficulties, and the policy of watchful waiting was resumed.

Conditions failed to improve, and the United States with the other republics on this continent has outlined a method of procedure which, briefly stated. foilows:

First.-An appeal was made to the Mexican factions to compose their differences in a convention or by such other means as they may regard as practicable.

Second .- If any faction fails to observe this injunction the other factions will be expected to set up a government, which in due season will be recognized by the United States, the republics of South America and the powers of Europe and the far east.

Third.-The faction that refuses to support the plan will be barred from the privilege heretofore exercised of obtaining support of any kind from either the United States or South America. This means that the opposing faction will be unable to get equipment for military forces or funds to further military operations.

Fourth.-With a full understanding of the purposes of the United States and Latin America influential leaders in Mexico will proceed to the establishment of a provisional government. This government will at once be recognized by the United States and the other great bowers.

Fifth. - A plan will be devised to finance the new government of Mex-

The Appeal Is Sent.

The joint appeal-intended as a final warning before intervention-was signed by Secretary of State Lansing, by the ambassadors of Argentina, Brazil and Chile and the ministers of Bolivia, Uruguay and Guatamala. The minister of Peru pledged his government to support the action taken by the conference, and John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American union, assured the conference that the remaining countries of South and Central America would undoubtedly indorse its action.

After the conference Secretary Lansing made the following announcement: "We agreed or assented to a proposition that a communication be address and to the different factions in Mexico urging them to compose their differances, and we also agreed on the form which we will recommend to our govarnments with reference to the recognition of a government in Mexico."

Explains Sailing of Warships.

At the outset Secretary Lansing was ashed to explain the sending of American warships to Vera Cruz. Several Exampables might be interpreted as without placing the United States in had had this year's spree.

fort to bring about peace in Mexico and arrive at a composition of the differences now existing between the various revolutionary factions President Wilson had decided that if this effort failed the United States would go into Mexico and restore peace in exactly the same way as in Cuba,

When this decision was reached, however, the situation south of the Rio Grande was different from what it is today. Carranza had not then obtained the upper hand.

The joint appeal embodies the recommendations made by Paul Fuller, President Wilson's confidential investigator, who has all along opposed the recognition of Carranza.

May Recognize Carranza.

Among the large number of Mexicans and Latin Americans in this country there is a very strong current of opinion that only two courses are now open to the United States. One is armed intervention in Mexico and the other the recognition of Carranza. In view of the fact that all of the Latin American republics are opposed to armed interventon, which they fear would establish a dangerous precedent action, and their governments are fully in case Mexican conditions were repeated in their own country, they believe that the United States will finally recognize Carranza.

It is not thought any direct action will be taken for another month or siz weeks, but if in that time Carranza has consolidated his position and the position of attempting to dictate a orm of government for Mexico.

Optimistic Feeling Prevails.

The feeling of optimism is shared in by all the South Americans who atended the conference. Representafives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Boivia, Uruguay, Peru and Guatemala were present. These ambassadors were armed with the support of their respective countries.

But the only threatening feature to the policy is the actions of the Mexian bandits who are operating on the Texas border, Several Americans have recently been killed, and requests have been made for additional troops there. States in 1805, when Branco solved the territorial dispute that involved Argentina, Bolivia and Brazil, Da Gama has apparently brought to himself all the keenness that distinguished his amazing.

This view of the Brazilian ambassa dor is only one of many similar expressions, and its counterpart is found in the assertion that to his excellency Dr. Romulo S. Naon, the minister of Argentina, must be awarded the title for suavity, while to his excellency Senor Eduardo Suarez Mujica, the minister of Chile, is given credit for the most pronounced manifestation of the true Latin spirit.

Men of Different Types.

These three ministers are as different in type as are the Mexican factions. While Da Gama seems to embody a combination of the best ideals of his own country with the distinguishing characteristics of the American business man, Naon is apparently entirely American and Mujica entirely French. If one did not know the last named as a Chilean he would be put down at once as the personification of all that bespeaks the true Frenchman. Distinguished by a beard that makes his face the easiest remembered of any one at the conferences, the Chilean minister, in both walk and speech, looks very much the Parisian boulevardier and is a person to be approach ed with awe and tremulation. The other South American diplomats are equally well known and able men. They are as determined to have lasting peace in Mexico. All are men of as anxious to see an end to the reign of chaos as the United States. No drastic action is likely for a few weeks yet, but when it does come it will mean a good government there.

UNDERSTANDING CITY DEVISING

Expert Talks to National City Planning Conference.

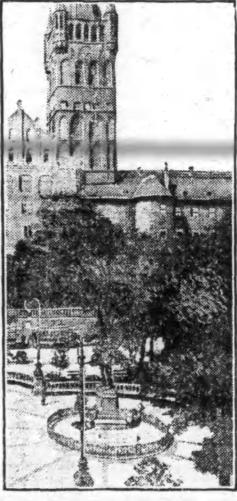

FOR BEAUTY AND UTILITY.

The Only Difference Between Architecture and Civic Design Is One of Degree and Application-in Both the Eye Is Satisfied by Good Taste.

Addressing the seventh national city planning conference held recently at Detroit, George B. Ford, consultant to the committee on city planning of the board of estimate, said:

"Citizens are now waking up to the fact that, once a plan is satisfactory from the standpoint of business efficiency and social welfare, it need cost little if any more to make it pleasing to the eye as well. Many are feeling that oftentimes it is worth while to sacrifice a little of the other elements in order to gain in beauty. The pendulum is swinging back to the normal, Comprehensive, all around city planning is arriving,

"Architecture, or, better, civic design, as it is often called when speaking of civic architecture, is generally considered a rather mysterious subject, to be left for its creation to the initiated few. The sooner that illusion can be cleared away and the principles underlying good civic designs are generally understood the more insistent and general and therefore the more effective will become a popular demand for seemliness in our cities. From the first we find that the only difference between architecture and civic design is one of degree and application. In both cases the eye is satisfied by the use of good taste in mass, proportion. placing of ornament, scale, appropriateness and the handling of color and materials.

"The appropriateness of the design of structure to its function is a matter great master and has, besides, schooled on which every one has his own views. himself to a capacity for work that is Many question whether the heavy. classic architectural treatment of the Pennsylvania station in New York is peculiarly suited to the needs of a great modern terminal. There is a distinct demand for a monumental treatment in order to make it a worthy entrance to a great city, but it is a debatable point whether a more open treatment would not have given a greater sense of the movement of a city's crowds.

"Attention to the possibilities of texture of surface and of materials is something that we have not carried as far in America as they have in Europe. We have become used to the red pressed brick facade, with its rock faced granite trimmings and its painted iron cornice. Yet what a far cry from that to the beautiful texture and use of material in the Morgan library in New York, in the Wisconsin state capitol or in some of the recent suburban stations about New York, as in Yonkers. White Plains and along the Westchester and Boston road. For the same cost, good taste in the use of material and in the texture of surfaces can make a great difference in the appearance of a structure.

"The recent use of color in architecture in our expositions, particularly in the wonderful color effects which are now to be seen in San Francisco, has opened our eyes to new possibilities in this field. We are afraid of color, especially in our civic architecture. We excuse ourselves by saying that it is 'undignified.' The real reason is that we do not trust ourselves to use it. But in view of the present case and cheapness with which colored terra cotta and colored cement can be made I believe that our cities are not bound to remain much longer somber, drab established a government in Mexico a man, Jamaica (N. 900000000000000000000000 BE NEIGHBORLY.

"Get acquainted with your neighbor-you might like him." This, from the letterhend of a western village improvement association, is excellent advice. What fine things a large personal acquaintance can do for us, provided we are worthy of it! Let us put aside any petty dislike, engendered perhaps by fancied faults in other people, and go out and shake hands with neighbors whom we probably have never really known. Let us talk over our common problems with them; discuss the welfare of our community, the state, the nation, so that we may all have a better understanding of our common hopes and aims. All this pays. Its returns come not alone in the help we can be, one to the other, but in the greater discernment with which our personal business can be conducted and in the better feeling and progress that follow in a town or city where all are working for the common good .- Coun-

Fire Protection In Hotels.

The guests of Raleigh (N. C.) hotels are given exceptional protection against fire hazard by the arrangement which the Raleigh chamber of commerce has made with the city commissioners for one of the city's paid firemen to inspect the hotels of the city hourly between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m. This protection is in addition to that provided by the hotels themselves.

PROTECTION. The chamber of commerce of Raleigh has arranged with the city commissioners of Raleigh for one of the city's paid firemen to inspect this hotel hourly from 10 o'clock p. m. to 7 o'clock a. m. This fireman carries a watch clock, and the watch clock stations are located at the end of each corridor on each floor, including basement, dining room and kitchen The watch clock records are filed with the secretary of the chamber of commerc and are open to inspection.

This protection is arranged by the cham ber of commerce in addition to that provided by this hotel that the guests may feel amply protected against hazard o

The card here reprinted is tacked up in every room in the different hotels, thus informing all guests that the hotel is being afforded fire protection in the manner described and incidentally affording desirable publicity to the chamber of commerce.

A Slanting Compliment. Here is a good sea story from the late Frank T. Bullen's "Recollections." He once gave an impromptu lecture to the crew of H. M. S. Mars at the invitation of Captain May:

"I did not attempt to lecture. I just fell back upon the well known vernacular and talked pure sailor, giving them all the yarns in my budget that were appropriate. And the time allotted me an hour and a half-sped like a dream, punctuated by laughter and applause as generous and as full as only the handy man can give."

The next morning the chief yeoman of signals saluted Bullen and asked him casually if he knew the ship's steward. He replied that he did not.

"Ah, well," Flags rejoined, "he's a funny man, but a great chum o' mine. Last night, as he was a-goin' down from the lecture, he says to me. A story told of Justice Brewer concerns a trip he made to his old home in Kansas, accompanied by Mrs. Brewer. In Washington a justice of the supreme court is spoken of as "Mr. Justice," and that is the title Mrs. Brewer always has heard. A Grand Climax.

The following reminiscence is related by the well known composer, Isidore de Lara, writing of his opera "Messaline:" One night the principal baritone fell ill, and the manager implored Mr. de Lara to take his place, as the theater was filled with people, and to disappoint them was out of the question. Mr. de Lara consented to do so, but stipulated that he should not dress for the part. Accordingly he made his appearance on the stage in a frock coat, although all the other characters wore the costumes of ancient Rome.

In the part he was playing Mr. de Lara had to be thrown to the ground by Messaline's slaves. The "slaves" flung him down so violently, however, that a quantity of money which he had in his pocket rolled all over the stage. It is possible that the audience might not have noticed this little piece of unrehearsed byplay had not the "slaves" become so excited at the sight of the coins that they left their captive and rushed to pick them up with the eagerness of gold miners who had struck a pile of nuggets.

"This," says Mr. de Lara, "was the

THE DARDANELLES.

& Strait Famed in Mythology as Well as In History.

The Dardanelles and the Hellespont are names for the same thing. At its narrowest place the strait is less than a mile wide. On one side is Asia, and on the other is Europe.

The strait is famous in mythology The pre-Christian incursions of barbarians into Europe often were halted

Xerxes and Alexander ferried across One determined to destroy the civilization of Greece and the other to diffuse Grecian culture over the whole world.

Crusaders went back and forth over this strait. The Roman empire of the east commanded it even after the Mohammedans had established themselves at Adrianople.

By treaty and by consent and by her situation Turkey was given control of this strait.

Strange to say, in modern times the first ship of war that ever passed through flew the flag of America. Bainbridge ran by the guns of the forts and unfurled the stars and stripes in front of Constantinople, and in that city he and the American crew were elaborately entertained.

For many centuries Russia has looked with eager eyes for the control of the shores along this strait.-Memphis Commercial Appeal.

HER ABSENT BOY.

When a Mother's Lot Is One of Wistful, Weary Waiting.

It's mighty hard to be a mother of sons in Homeburg. I worked in the postoffice for a year once-handed out mail-and I got to know just exactly what most of the mothers in town wanted. I could please them with a new magazine and mystify them with a circular or a business letter.

But if I wanted to light them up until they took the shadows out of the corners as they went out I would give them a letter from a son way off somewhere making good. The best of them didn't write any too often. Once a week is pretty regular, I suppose, from the other end, but you should see the mother begin to come in hungry again the second day after her letter came.

And when a boy came home success ful and prosperous and his proud mother towed him down Main street it used to go to my heart to see the wistful looks of the woman friends.

There is hardly a family in Homeburg of the right age which hasn't a grownup son off at war somewherefighting failure. It's grand when they win, but I hate to think of some boys who haven't come back.-George Fitch in American Magazine.

Just Like Eve's Apple.

A fruit supposed to bear the mark of Eve's teeth is one of the many botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "the forbidden fruit." or "Eve's apple tree." The blossom hus a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It-is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside and deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led' the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the garden of Eden and to warn men against its nox lous properties. The mark upon the fruit is attributed to Eve.

The Elgin Marbles.

The adventures of the Elgin marbles, new in the British museum, began in 1803, when they were wrecked at Cerigo on their way from Greece to England. It took the divers three years and a vast sum of money to fish up the Parthenon relics. It is believed that Lord Elgin spent over £74,000 in procuring these priceless fragments left by Turkish vandals, who would probably have made an end of even these had the earl not rescued them in time. The house of commons voted £36,000 for their purchase, so that the enterprising peer lost heavily in cash and suffered from a public agitation against his alleged "vandalism, rapacity and dishonesty," as well as from Byron's "Curse of Minerva."-London Chronicle.

Care of the Baby In Summer

Summer Complaint. [Prepared by the children's bureau, United States department of labor.]

Most mothers have leared to regard diarrhea as one of the most dangerous ills of habyhood. Thousands of babies die of this disease every year, largely in the hot weather months a fact which has gained for this illness the common name of "summer complaint." The deaths from this disease begin to increase in May, and the number grows rapidly in June and July and reaches its highest point in August, then decreases rapidly as cool weather approaches. It is prudent, therefore, for mothers to be on guard at the beginning of summer and to do all in their power to prevent the onset of this illness by exercising great care in feeding the baby and by keeping him as cool and quiet as possible. In all illnesses prevention is far better than cure, but this is particularly true with infant diarrhea, because the second attack comes on much more readily than the first. Also the baby's growth is seriously proceeding most rapidly. To prevent summer diarrhea in babies first feed the baby on the right food in suitable amounts at proper intervals and in no other way; give him plenty of pure, cool water to drink between meals; keep him out of doors as much as possible in cool, fresh d'Annunzio, he asked him everything air, dress him lightly and bathe him interfered with at a time when it is frequently. Another important part of keeping the baby well is to protect him from flies and mosquitoes, which frequently carry disease about. It is believed that one form of infant diarrhea is distributed by these household pests.

The healthy baby usually has one or two bowel movements a day. If this number is increased to four or more it is time to take measures against

It is well to remember, however. that the bowel movements of a baby fed entirely at the breast are normally more frequent than those of a bottle fed baby and that a slight increase in the number of movements is not so serious a matter to a baby at the breast as to one artificially fed. A haby fed at the breast does not usually have diarrhea, and when such a baby shows signs of digestive disturbance it is usually because he is overfed, either he is nursed too often or at irregular intervals, or is allowed to nurse too long at one time. When he does have diarrhea the time between nursings should be increased to four hours, and the times at the breast re duced to five or ten minutes. If the bowels continue loose the breast should be withdrawn entirely for several feedings if necessary, giving the baby instead cool drinking water at frequent intervals. In this case the mother should pump her breasts at the regular nursing times, both to keep them from drying up and to prevent their caking.

Bottle fed babies are the most frequent sufferers from summer diarrhea, and this fact furnishes another strong argument in favor of breast feeding. Diarrhea in a bottle fed buby is also best treated by reducing the amount of food. The bottle should be omitted for eight, twelve or twenty-four hours. according to the severity of the attack, and in place of the milk there should be given as much boiled and cooled water as the baby will take. Food should not be withheld for more than twenty-four hours, without the advice of a doctor. When the bottle is resumed the food should be much weaker than before, water should be substituted for at least half the milk previously given. The milk should be skimmed and the sugar omitted. The return to the former feeding should be made gradually by adding a little more milk each day and beginning to add sugar. The more severe the attack has been the more slowly should changes be made. If the baby is on "mixed" feedingthat is, partly breast and partly bottle fed the bottle feedings should be omitted if diarrhea appears and the breast given once in four or five hours, with nothing but drinking water be-

:ween meals. The children's bureau publishes a pamphlet called "Infant Care," which is sent free to any one sending a request to the chief of the children's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington. This pamphlet contains some simple directions for the care of the babies in summer, which may help the mother to prevent summer diarrheas and other ailments

A Difference of Opinion Among Growers Regarding the Practice.

There is a difference of opinion among alfulfa growers in regard to the practice of cultivating the surface of alfalfa fields after the removal of a crop, says the Iowa Homestead. In the dry regions the effect of surface cultivation is to strengthen the growth and thicken the crop, but there is some question as to the advisability of doing any cultivating whatever in the corn belt. The reason for this is that farming implements tend, in many cases, to split the alfalfa crowns in such & way as to cause the root to rot, and after getting a stand. This matter is briefly discussed in the following extract sent out by the Farm Improvement association of Win-

The next best time to cultivate is in the fall after the last cutting. Alfalfa may be cultivated immediately after the first or second cutting, but this is not very practical on account of lack of time and labor and less desirable than spring or fall cultivation, because summer cultivation

"Set the disks rather straight and weight the harrow if necessary, makfng it cut two or three inches deep. Double disk or cross disk, if necessary, and finish with the common straight tooth harrow in order to pull out the grass and weeds and to thoroughly pulverize the soil and level it.

GREEN MANURE EXPERIMENTS

There is a difference of opinion as to the effect on soil fertility of allowing the land to lie bare. The practice is generally thought to be destructive of humus. Due to the high straw yields on fallow plats, approximately as much straw is taken off one acre of fallow as is produced on two acres continuously cropped. Both of these systems are deficient in that no provision is made for directly or indirect- Belgian Minister Discribes Desolation ly maintaining soil fertility. A modified form of summer tillage is the plowing under of a crop. This practice of green manuring, aside from being a partial fallow, supplies the material necessary for restoring or keeping up the humus content of the soil. In this way both soil fertility and moisture conservation should be attained. In the work here reported three crops have been used as green manures-namely, rye, peas and sweet clover. Williston does not use sweet clover. Winter rye is used at Williston and Dickinson and spring rye at Edgeley and Hettinger. A supposed advantage of winter rye is the fact small shop near the city hall I found a that this crop can be plowed under little old man cheerfully selling funeral earlier in the season. This gives an crowns and post cards depicting the additional month for moisture con ruins. The bombardment continues servation, which is of considerable advantage in the western portion of the lars.

Sweet clover, being a biennial plant, is seeded with the grain crop of the previous year. Thus no extra cultivation is required for its production. In the eastern parts of the state this method of handling the land is probably more nearly like the ordinary method of handling fallow than any of the other methods of summer tillage or green manure except that with the ordinary fallow weeds may take the place of the green manure crops,

These crops are grown in a series of four year rotations planned according to the following general schedule: Small grain, corn, small grain, green manure, and then repeated. Another set of rotations substitutes summer tillage for green manure.

From the standpoint of immediate returns it is evident that green manuring as compared with clean fallow has not increased the yield of the wheat crop at any of the stations. Where oats follewed the green manure we note negative results, except at Williston, where oats after the green manures average higher than outs after fallow. This greater advantage in 1913 was due to the weeds choking the oats on failow. In all probability, with the soil still in almost its original state of fertility, the practice of green manuring will not materially increase the present yields way the information should have read, produced under the ordinary fallowing but after he had been condemned to system. Before the guns at Neuve Chapelle A gallant soldier fighting fell;

Lost in the swirling tide. Woke from black dreams at dawn's grey

To find a comrade clothed in white Was kneeling at his side.

With tender care each wound he bound And wrapt with clean, soft linen round, And oh, his zeel was such That all the horror, all the pain The soldier would have faced again To feel that gentle touch!

Farmers' institutes were arranged at a meeting last Friday afternoon NOW IS THE TIME in the office of J. Robert Teall, manager of the Cayuga County Farm Bureau for East Venice, Fair Haven, Locke, Owasco, Dresserville, Conquest and Weedsport.

Two extension schools were granted to the county, one at Sherwood, town of Scipio, and the other at Five Corners, town of Genoa.

Present at the meeting were Edward Van Alstyne, director of farmers' institutes; Prof. D. J. Crosby, director of extension schools; Mr. Teall and various representatives of Granges. The dates will be announced by Mr. Van Alstyne.

Rebekahs Appreciate Assistance.

Stellar Rebekah lodge, No. 535, wish to publicly express their appreciation to Brother Geo. Sill as manager of the play recently given for his untiring efforts to make the play the success it was. The lorige is also very grateful to those of the caste

To the public who gave the play their patronage and encouragement the order is indeed indebted and grateful.

As a result of the play given at Genoa and nearby towns, a tidy sum was handed over to the financial secretary last Tuesday evening. The money will serve to give the young lodge a portion of the equipment much needed.

Minturn Reunion.

The reunion of the Minturn family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baker in Locke on Saturday, Aug. 14. There were 40 present, it was a beautiful day and every one had a good time. A solo was given by Hayden Todd of Binghamton, followed by a number of recitations and songs.

Those present from out of town were Mrs. E.A. Minturn of Williamston, Mich., Mrs. Franc Minturn, Mrs. A. M. Todd and Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Todd and their children of Binghamton, N. Y., and other relatives from Levanna, Five Corners, Ludlowville, Auburn and Lansingville.

The next reunion will be held on the second Saturday in August, 1916, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parke Minturn of Lansingville.

Opens Tuesday, Sept. 7, 1915

This school has recently added the necessary equipment to make it a school of the middle grade. It is now permitted by the Board of Regents to do the first three years of High School Work.

A Physical Laboratory has been added to the equipment this summer.

The state pays tuition of non-residents holding preliminary certificate or its equivalent. Those lacking one or more subjects of the preliminary will be given an Examination For Free Tuition by the principal during the first week of school. School athletics will be in charge of the principal who has had special preparation for this line of work.

A large number of non-residents have already enrolled. Others contemplating enrolling should address the principal or president of the board.

EVEN THE UNDERTAKER.

A certain temperance lecturer at one point in his address is in the habit of taking out his gold watch and saying "I will give this watch to anyone present who will arise and tell me one class of people in the world that has ever been benefited by the saloon

He made that offer all over this country, and no one ever took it up. until one gentleman stood and said: "I think I can tell you one class."

"What's that?" "The undertaker."

My friend was about to unchain his watch and hand it over, when an old man arose and said: "Hold on! Before you give away that watch allow saked a specialist in trees and shrubs me to say that I have been the undertaker in this community for 35 years, and I have buried a great many of that kind of people; but whenever I am called upon to lay away an old soak or any member of his family I always know it's a charity job; that I shall never get the money. I should be much better off today if I had never had to bury one such case."

Arkansaw Bill

How His Elimination Was Accomplished

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Away back in the fiftles when the town of Deadshot began to think of taking on the hue of civilization the question was how to make a beginning. Men had gone elsewhere for wives, who had consented to marry tan is one to which Borough President them and go to Deadshot without being aware of what kind of place it was. Families had sprung up about only men and the only law is gun law.

> For some time there was talk of stopping the gun play, but nothing was done till three little children, whose mother had died a natural death, were deprived of their father by an unnatural one. This came home to the felt obliged to provide for the children. and the desire to stop the gun play received a new impetus. A knot of men were standing on the only street in the town discussing the matter when Andrew Hunker, grinding his quid with a pair of jimber jaws, said:

> "Gents, so long as we was all men together the gun was a first rate and children among us it's different It's onjust that a woman should be port because he's suspected of holdin'

> 'Now, I reccymend that we have an orphan asylum in Dendshot, to be paid for by them as gits the better of sich as differs with 'ein. Supposin' we start a fund for the purpose in this way; Any man as bores a hole in another in Deadshot pays a thousand dollars for the privilege. When the fust thousand turns up we'll begin the buildin' o' the asylum, and every thousand comin' in after that goes to carryin' on the goo.

"That's all very well," remarked Cy Atkins, "but who's goin' to levy on the man that bores the hole? Mr. Hunker ground his quid a triff-

harder and slower and continued: "I take it for granted that the senti ment o' this yere town has turned agin hole borin', particularly in the bodies of fathers of kids. I offer myself = one to enforce the penalty, and I haven't any doubt that I kin git all the assistance I need. This elinched the argument, and the same evening a copy of the decree signed by a self constituted committee was posted throughout the town. Mr Hunker's name, written in a style to remind one of John Hancock's on the Declaration of American Independence led the rest, and those who were dis posed to sneer at the document, on see approved, seeing in the effet a promise of being able to keep their husbands. For several days after the posting of the notice the town of Deadshot was like the 5th of July. Not a pistol crack ed. Some of the men were seen going about without their revolvers at their hips, indicating that they would rathe; get shot than be held for the thousan. dollar penalty. But by and by the no tices, moistened by the rain, did not look so formidable, and there were signs that they were forgotten or at least had lost their terror.

One morning two shots in quick suc cession rang out in a cabin where two men were playing cards. A third she followed a few seconds later. The signers of the edlet gathered at the scene of controversy and found Ben Rogers on the floor stone dead with two bullet holes in him. Jim Murphy was unhurt.

Mr. Hunker stepped up to Murphy and demanded his arms. Murphy, who still held his revolver, looked inquiring ly into his face, then at six men back ing him, all having cocked weapons in their hands, and surrendered.

The body being examined, it was found to contain two holes. The committee, after due consideration, decided that Murphy must pay $1,000 a hole.

The decision staggered the citizens of Deadshot. Some declared that Murphy, having fired in self defense, was not flable to the One. Others declared that $2,000 for two holes, especially when one would have killed the man receiving it, was exorbitant. The committee gave out that the price of boring holes in human flesh was rising and they were thinking of making it 50 per cent higher. They had nothing to do with any other consideration than enforcing the payment due from hole borers at so much a hole.

Murphy was a gumble, and, since he never played to lose, he had plenty of funds with which to pay his fine. He added $500 as a voluntary subscripion, making the nest egg for the of phan asylum $2,500. A hundred dellars was expended for a lot and maferial was bought for the building.

After this more men left their guns at home, and Pendshot was showing new element of trouble came into the town in the person of a man from the south whose real name was not known, but who passed as Arkansaw Bill. He gave evidence of being a desperado. He knew nothing of the firmness of the committee in carrying out the edict against hole boring, and he held a law against gun play in contempt. He announced that any man who was disposed to interfere with him would get holed, and since hole boring was a right he did not intend to pay for ex-signs of much peacefulness when a ercising it. Arkansaw Bill at once proceeded to make a nuisance of himself. He insisted on being admitted to games of chance, cheated and when taken to task instead of shooting his accuser invited him to put a hole in him. Bill was doubtless ready to defend himself. What he wanted was to take advantage of his enemy's indisposition to pay $1,000 for shooting him to put the orphan asylum edict into disrepute. He insulted the women, choosing those who had no men whose duty it was to protect them. It is very hard to make a law that will not on occasion work disadvantageously. Any man attempting to put Arkansaw Bill out of the way must pay $1,000 for the privilege, and be taken against you by default for the for every additional hole that was necessary to do the job he must pay an additional thousand. And this was not the worst of it. Arkansaw Bill was known to be a marvelously quick shot, and any man tackling him was likely to get holed instead of holing him.

A meeting of the committee was called to decide upon some way of getting rid of Arkansaw Bill. It was moved that in case any one put a hole in him the fine should be remitted. The motion was carried, but since any one bent on putting a hole in the desperado was liable to get a hole in himself the remission of the fine did not especially improve matters. No one seemed inclined to tackle him. Andrew Hunker proposed a simultaneous attack upon the enemy, agreeing to fire the first shot. But his proposition did not meet with favor; one or more lives of good citizens were liable to be paid for that of a villain. It was conbe eliminated without fine.

In the first place no one was sufficiently inventive to produce such a signed, the administrator of, &c., of said stratagem, and in the second the con- deceased, at his place of residence in King sensus of opinion was in favor of a Ferry, in the town of Genoa, County of fair fight even if it was desirable to Cayuga, on or before the 29th day of eliminate one of the combatants. It October, 1915. was finally proposed by Mr. Hunker that each man tackle Arkansaw Bill until some one of them downed him. This proposition meeting with favor. Mr. Hunker offered himself as the first victim. It is to the credit of the others that they declined to accept his offer, averring that lots should be drawn to determine who should be first, second, third, and so on till the six members of the committee each had a place in the proceedings.

Six numbers were written on as many bits of paper, from one to six inclusive, and placed in a hat. Then the men successively put a hand in the hat and drew a number. He who drew No. 1 was Abe Billings, a man with a wife and four children. Hunker begged to be permitted to change man having promised secrecy, broke up. Billings was to choose his own time for doing the job and was not required to give any notice to any one. In case he was killed in the attempt he was to make, the man who had drawn No. 2 was to make another, and should be cilminated.

Twenty four hours passed, and both Abe and Bill still lived. During the second night after the lots had been drawn several shots in quick succession were heard coming from the direction of the quarters occupied by the desperado. Every man of the committee believed that Bill, or Abe-perhaps both-had bitten the dust. Every one of them got out of bed and burried to the scene of the fray. Abe's cabin was lighted. His children were running about in their nightgowns, but beither their father nor mother was

One by one the committee as it passed Abe's quarters asked the children what had happened, but getting no coherent response hurried on toward Arkansaw Bill's cabin. They met Mrs. Billings coming away. Asked what bad occasioned the firing, for repty she turned and led them to Bill's house. There in the doorway by a body. Some one struck a match, held it to the dead man's face and lighted up Bill's ashen features.

"Who did it?" asked Hunken. "I did it." replied Mrs. Billings caimly, "I called him to the door and shot

You'll Set Your Boy a Good Example if You Go to Church

O TO CHURCH for the sake of that boy of yours!

Although everybody should GO TO CHURCH, fathers of families are particularly enjoined to join the GO TO CHURCH throng. Think of that boy of yours. He is young today. He is impressionable today. If he sees you on your way to church he will ask questions. He will want to know why you are going to church. You can tell him. He will listen. And when he grows to manhood he will not forget the example you set him. He will not forget why you went to church.

ON THE CONTRARY, IF YOUR BOY SEES YOUR NEIGHBOR AND YOUR NEIGHBOR'S SON ON THE WAY TO CHURCH AND HE DOES NOT SEE YOU GO HE WILL NOT THINK WELL OF THE CHURCH. A BOY BELIEVES IN HIS FATHER. IT MATTERS NOT IF EVERY ONE ELSE IN THE COMMUNITY GOES TO CHURCH. IF HIS FATHER REMAINS AWAY THE BOY IS SATISFIED THE OTHERS ARE ILL ADVISED. WHEN HE GROWS OLDER HE WILL THINK LESS OF THE CHURCH. IF HIS FATHER DIDN'T GO TO CHURCH, WHY SHOULD HE GO, HE WILL RIGHTLY ASK.

Now it is fair to say that there is not a God fearing father in the land who does not believe that his boy should GO TO CHURCH. Yet he will not set that boy a good example by attending divine worship himself. He may preach all day to his boy on the benefits to be derived from going to church, but if he does not go himself all his preaching will be lost. If he GOES TO CHURCH, however, it will not be necessary to preach to his boy. The boy will be only too glad to go. His father thinks church is all right. Therefore, it must be all right.

Put that boy of yours on the right track. Get him to GO TO CHURCH. There's no better way to do it than by-

MORE MILK BORNE DISEASE

PUBLIC HEALTH HINTS

Prepared Each Week For the Readers of This Newspaper by the New York State Department of Health.

JUST a year ago this week an epidemic of septic sore throat caused by milk was described in this column and was used as a text for a iscussion of the dangers from infected milk supplies. Since last autumn the Sanitary Code has required the grading and labeling of all milk sold in the state, so that purchasers of milk know what they are getting and can make sure of a SAFE SUPPLY by buying only Grade A or Grade B PASTEURIZED milk. Yet the spread of disease by raw lik still goes on.

Last spring there were two more striking cases to add to the long list of examples of MILK BORNE DISEASE. In the city of Poughkeepsie and the neighboring towns there were over 100 cases of SCARLET FEVER, with eighteen deaths, traced to infected milk, and in Rockland county there were thirty-four cases of DIPHTHERIA caused by another supply.

One may ask how this sort of thing can happen with the increasing care bestowed by farmers upon dairying—care which in many cases will make milk production financially unprofitable at present prices. The answer is that a person suffering from a slight and unrecognized case of disease or perhaps a carrier, a person who while perfectly well is cullivating disease in his throat, may at any time cough over a milk pail or infect the milk from his hands in the act of milking. One cough may spray out thousands of germs and be enough to infect a whole supply. In both the Poughkeepsie and the Rockland county epidemics the original cases on the dairy were so light that NO PHYSICIAN was called, and there is NO WAY AT ALL in which such danger can be absolutely avoided at the dairy.

There is, however, a sure method of making all milk ENTIRELY SAFE before it reaches the consumer—by pasteurization or heating to 145 degrees for thirty minutes—and milk borne disease will be a thing of the past only when this treatment becomes UNIVERSAL.

Professor Rosenau of Harvard gives the following list of epidemics which were definitely traced to milk in Boston during a period of five

	4	Cases.

The lesson was at last learned, and all the large milk dealers of oston installed pasteurizing plants. There have been no such outbreaks

The same thing happened in New York. Outbreak after outbreak typhoid fever and other diseases was traced to milk, and finally all except a very small proportion of certified grade was required to pasteurized. The Bulletin of the New York City Department of alth for July 3 reports that "NO KNOWN MILK EPIDEMICS any kind have been discovered in New York city during the past

It would not be possible to require at once the pasteurization of all lk throughout the state of New York. Most of the large dairy firms , however, ready and willing to supply pasteurized milk as fast as demand permits. With the requirement of grading and labeling by the remedy now lies in large part WITH THE CONSUMER. If people of the state demand PASTEURIZED MILK it will be proed, and in smaller communities where no such milk is available milk could be pasteurized or scalded before drinking as regularly as meat is ooked before it is eaten.

DESIRE OF WHISKY VICTIM.

Some years ago in a village of western New York on election morning the recognized village toper went to the polls. He asked for a temperance ballot, and a liquor seller got him one, supposing a joke was at hand. Folding it as best he could with trembling hands, the blear-eyed, bloated-faced, ragged, unkempt man went to the ballot box and registered his wish. Then they began to scoff and sneer at the drunkard who had cast a temperance vote. "A pretty temperance voter you are," said one. "Why, if there was a bottle of whisky yonder there at the top of that liberty pole, and if you could have the whisky by climbing the pole at the risk of your life, you know you'd climb." And then the drunkard straightened himself up as best he might and answered them. 'Know it!" he said, with trembling, painful emphasis: "Know it! Oh, yes, I know it. And I know another thing, gentlemen-if the whisky wasn't there I wouldn't climb."

TRIED AND CONVICTED.

It is one of the most cheering signs of the times that the cause of temperance is steadily gaining champions in the United States congress. This from Representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania:

"The American saloon has already been tried and convicted in one-half the territory of the United States, and in the remaining territory where it still waves the Stars and Stripes it will soon be seeing the stars and wearing the stripes. Facing the facts and knowing the meaning of the struggle, the liquor interests are forming a battle line of gigantic strength. We accept its mighty challenge, for we know that with this giant wrong overthrown many others which have marred and scarred humanity for generations will go crashing down in one great heap of wreck and rubbish. And crediting that, we do not ask how many the enemies are, we only ask where the enemies are."

NO FINANCIAL PANIC.

The American Machinist recently published a chart showing the number of workers (wage-earners, proprietors and executives) engaged in twelve of the manufacturing industries of this country. The following are the fig-

If all the breweries and distilleries were to close their plants tomorrow there would be no panic in the business world, only a little readjustment.

HER LITTLE LECTURE.

A young man, in company with several other gentlemen, called upon a young lady. Her father was present to assist in entertaining the guests, and offered wine, but the young lady asked, "Did you call upon me or upon Gallantry, if nothing else, compelled

Capt. Charles Healey, who introduced Mr. Patterson, took occasion to say that no man who drank could remain on the mounted police force.

CHEERING NEWS FROM TEXAS.

The farmers of Texas are organizing to "oppose the liquor traffic and to assist in all proper ways in driving liquor out of the state." Since farmers are a potent factor in the making of "dry" states, this is a cheering sign of the times for the Lone Star

COLORADO BANKS GAIN.

During the six weeks immediately following the adoption of state-wide prohibition the state banks of Colorado made a gain in resources of $1,575,639.89. The real estate dealers say that saloonkeepers and bartenders are buying ranches and truck farms.

BREWERS' VIEW.

"There are even companies and individual employers who threaten to discharge employees for drinking alcohol at any time. They do not care if that is social and economic slavery. Their main object is to protect their pocketbooks."-The Brewers' Journal.

TEMPERANCE REFORM ADVANCE. "A movement of victorious yesterdays and confident tomorrows." Thus the Union Signal epitomizes the advance of the temperance reform.
